	How Scripture Builds on Scripture	Examples of Unity and Continuity in Teaching
The Promise and Blessing	The Lord repeats promises to the patriarchs, so that these words of the covenant become the key reference point of OT revelation.	Cf Gn 12:2–3; 15; 17; 22:15–18; 27:27–29; 28:13–15; 35:9–12; 48:15–16.
Books of Moses	The Lord confirms the covenant through Moses, who records it as the first body of Scripture, the Torah (Hbr "law" or "instruction").	Cf Ex 2:24; 3:6, 13–17; 6:2–4; 32:13; 33:1; Lv 26:42; Nu 3:1; Dt 1:8; 6:10; 9:5; 29:13; 30:20; 34:4. See p 127.
First Books of History (Joshua and Judges)	The first Books of History refer to the Law of Moses as a unified teaching and apply it for the people in their day. They set the precedent for all the Books of History, which compare the people's faith and deeds with the faith and deeds taught and commanded in the covenant confirmed through Moses.	Cf Jsh 1:7, 13–17; 4:10; 8:30–35; 22–24; Jgs 2:16–23; 3:4. See pp 335–37. See CC Jsh, 42, 804–5.
The Promise to David's House (Samuel, Kings, Chronicles)	God confirmed the covenant and promise with David and his descendants. These books often refer back to the Law of Moses and the history of the people under the covenant. Consider also the focus on the ark of the covenant throughout.	Cf 1Sm 2:10; 12:6–25; 2Sm 7; 22:1–23:7; 1Kgs 2:1–4; 8; 2Kgs 14:6; 18:4–6, 12; 17; 21:8; 22; 23:25. Note also how Chronicles is built on Samuel and Kings. See pp 628–31.
The Books of the Prophets before the Exile	These books act like sermons on the Books of Moses, applying their content for the people and prophesying what God would do in the future. In particular, they warn against disobeying the covenant and prophesy the coming of the Savior from David's house.	See p 1245. See "Amos' Use of Earlier Biblical Texts," CC Am, 289–92. On connections between Jonah and the Psalms, see CC Jnh, 210.
Psalms	In poetry and song, the Psalms record God's work with the patriarchs and their descendants, commenting on the history and its application. They also affirm the promise God made to David and his descendants.	Cf Ps 78; 99; 105; 106; 135; 136.
Prophets during the Exile	Ezekiel and Daniel describe the downfall of Israel in view of the covenant confirmed through Moses. They continue to expound and apply the Law.	Cf Ezk 14:14, 20; 16:59; 22; 23; Dn 9:11, 13. See CC Ezk 1, 458; CC Ezk 2, 682–84, 692; CC Dn, 438–39.
The Books of History and the Prophets after the Exile	Priests and prophets work together to reestablish God's people in the life to which He called them in the covenant. Scribes collected the texts of earlier prophets and psalmists.	Cf Ezr 3:2; 6:18; 7:6; Ne 1:7–8; 8:1, 14; 13:1.
The Time between the Testaments	Writers refer to the collected writings of Moses and the Prophets as more than a national body of literature. They are the consistent revelation of God to His people.	Cf, e.g., Ecclus Prologue; 24:23; Bar 1:21; 2:2, 24, 28; Sus 3, 62; 2Macc 2:13; 7:30; 15:9; Tob 14:5.
The New Testament	Jesus, the apostles, and their disciples have the Law, Psalms, and Prophets as their Holy Scripture and place special emphasis on OT prophecies that are fulfilled in the coming of Christ.	The NT cites the OT over 250 times. Apart from some weak allusions to Esther, NT writers cite or allude to every other OT book as Sacred Scripture. On the persistent theme of prophecy and fulfillment, see p 1245.

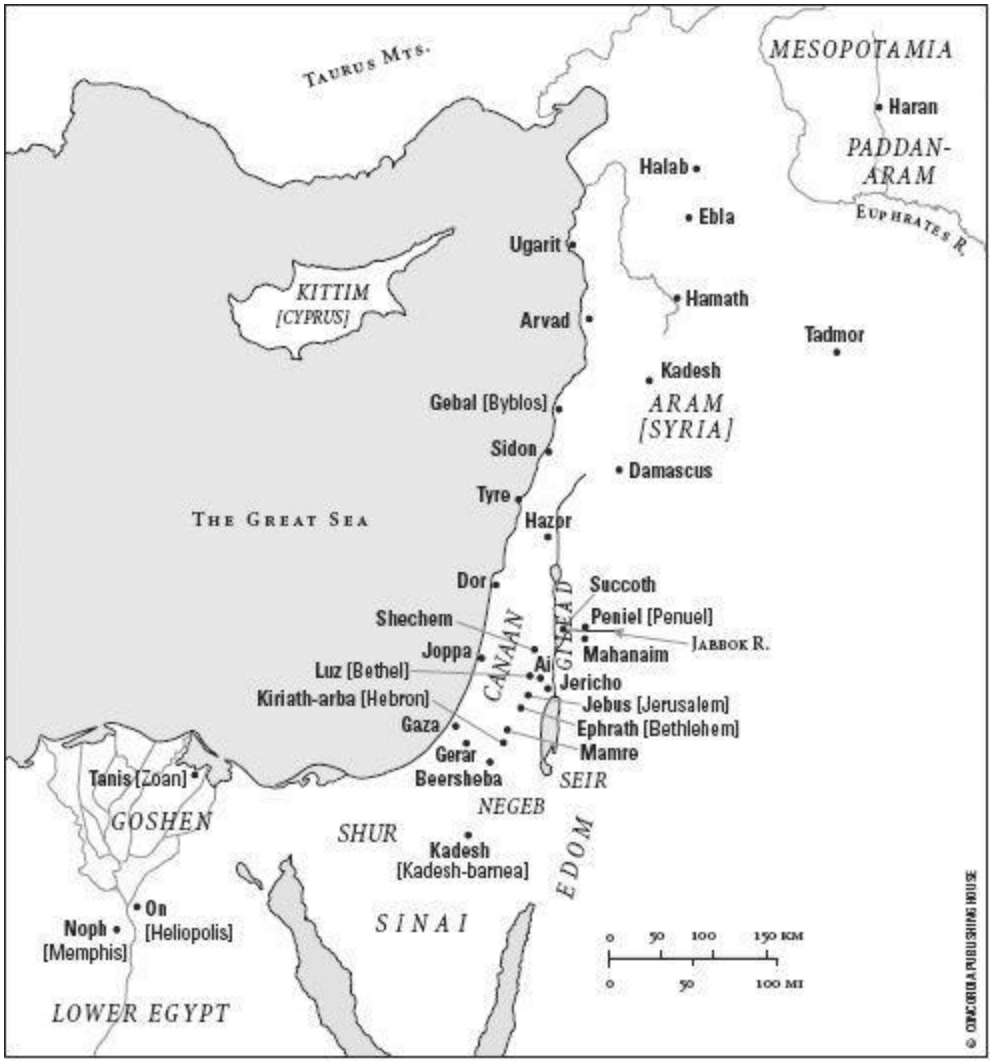
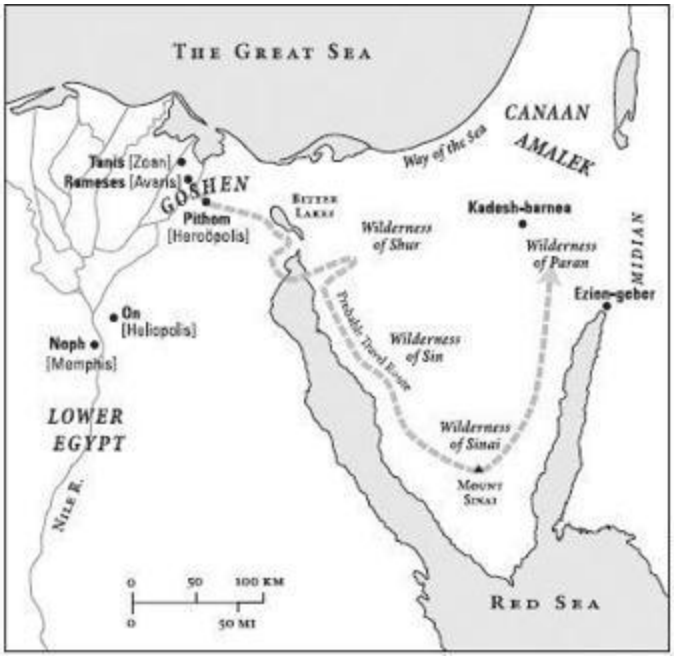
ABRAHAM'S TRAVELS. "Ur of the Chaldeans" (Gn 11:28, 31) refers to Ur in Old Babylonia, amidst the declining Sumerian and Akkadian civilizations. Terah and his family, including Abraham and Lot, migrated from Ur to Haran (11:27–32). God called Abraham to Canaan (12:1–9). Abraham sojourned in Egypt during a famine (12:9–20), then returned to Canaan with Lot, who moved to Sodom (ch 13). Abraham defeated forces led by Chedorlaomer of Elam (14:8–16). God promised Abraham numerous offspring and the land of Canaan (ch 15), sealing that with the covenant of circumcision (ch 17). The sacrifice of the ram for Isaac happened in Moriah (ch 22), possibly on the later temple site in Jerusalem, where Melchizedek reigned in Abraham's time (14:17–24). Abraham and Sarah were buried near Mamre (25:9–10), close to Kiriath-arba.



JACOB'S TRAVELS. Jacob's mother, Rebekah, was from Paddan-aram (Gn 25:20). Jacob went from Beersheba to his uncle's home in Haran (28:10). On the way, God spoke to Jacob in a dream at Bethel (28:11–22). In Haran, Jacob married Leah and Rachel, the daughters of Laban, Rebekah's brother (29:1–30). Later, on his way back to Canaan, Jacob settled matters with Laban in Gilead (ch 31). He camped at Mahanaim (32:1–2), then wrestled with God at Peniel (32:22–32). Esau went to Seir, but Jacob went to Succoth and Shechem (33:16–20), then to Bethel (35:1). Rachel died near Ephrath (35:16–20). Isaac was buried at Mamre (35:27–29), and Jacob's son Joseph rose to administer all Egypt, bringing his father and his brothers to Goshen (37:12–36; 39:1–47:12). Jacob died in Egypt and was buried at Mamre (49:28–50:14).

Dreamer	Revelation/Fulfillment
Abimelech (20:3–7)	God reveals that Sarah is Abraham's wife and threatens death to Abimelech. As a result, Abimelech returns Sarah to Abraham.
Jacob (28:12–15)	Jacob dreams of a stairway reaching to heaven, from which God promises that He will bless all people and will watch over Jacob. Years later, Jacob returned to this site to thank God for His blessings.
Jacob (31:10–13)	A method of breeding goats that would bring prosperity is revealed to Jacob. In the same dream, the angel of God tells Jacob to return to his homeland. Jacob obeyed and returned home in great prosperity.
Laban (31:24)	God warns Laban not to speak either good or bad to Jacob. Laban grudgingly complied.
Joseph (37:5–8)	Joseph dreams his brothers will bow down to him. This is fulfilled in 42:6–9.
Joseph (37:9–10)	Joseph dreams his family will bow down to him.
Chief cupbearer (40:8–15)	The chief cupbearer will be restored to his former position. This is fulfilled in 40:20–21.
Chief baker (40:16–19)	The chief baker will be hanged. This is fulfilled in 40:22.
Pharaoh (41:1–4)	Seven years of bounty will be followed by seven years of famine. This is fulfilled in 41:53–54.

THE EXODUS. God led His people through the wilderness, not by the Way of the Sea (Ex 13:17–18). Many sites on their route cannot be located with certainty. The Israelites journeyed from Rameses in Goshen to Succoth (12:37), which may be Pithom. They marched to Etham, on the edge of the wilderness (13:20). God ordered them to Pi-hahiroth to bait a trap for Pharaoh (14:1–4). Then God led His people through the Red Sea, trapping the Egyptians under the waters (14:5–31); see Jos, Ant 2:315, 324–25. The Israelites traveled into the Wilderness of Shur to Marah (15:22–25) and Elim (15:27). They came via Dophkah and Alush to Rephidim (Nu 33:13–14; Ex 17:1), where they defeated the Amalekites (Ex 17:8–16). Through the Wilderness of Sinai, they came to Mount Sinai (Ex 19–40). Israel went to Kibroth-hattaavah, Hazeroth (Nu 11:34–35), and then into the Wilderness of Paran (12:16). God commanded Israel to remain in the wilderness for 40 years (Nu 14:20–35).

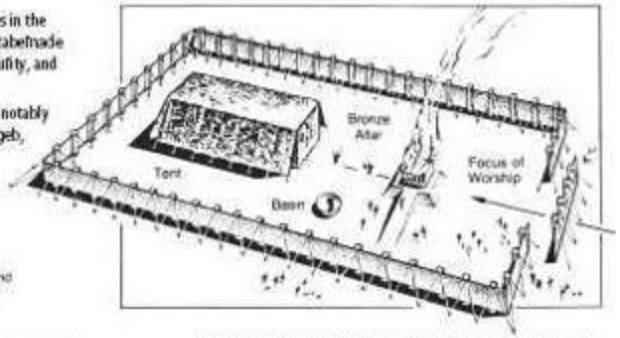


Divisions	Elements	Notes on Ex 19–24
Preparation	Summons	19:1–9. After rescuing Israel from Egypt, God calls them into a special covenant relationship. He promises to make them a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.
	Consecration	19:10–25. The Lord emphasizes that He differs from every other ruler.
Book of the Covenant	Title Cf Dt 1:1–5; Jsh 24:2a	20:1. The Hbr term debarim ("words") is used technically here to mean the stipulations of the covenant.
	Historic prologue Cf Dt 1:6–3:29; Jsh 24:2b–13	20:2. The Lord reminds Israel of their enslavement in Egypt and how He delivered them.
	Moral stipulations Cf Dt 4–11; Jsh 24:14–15	20:3–17. The most basic set of rules, later distinguished as the 10 debarim, "words" (usually translated "commandments"; Ex 34:28). Grammatically, these words are not commands but statements describing God's holy people. In 20:18–26, we have an interlude. The people express their fear, and Moses explains that God appears so fearsome in order to test them. God wants them to know for certain that they are hearing from heaven. He emphasizes again that idols can have no place in His covenant.
	Civil stipulations Cf Dt 19–25	21:1–23:9. Specifics on relationships among the Israelites.
	Ceremonial stipulations Cf Dt 12–18, 26	23:10–19. Specifics on the way the Israelites will worship God.
	Promise of a guardian	23:20–33. Through His messenger, God promises protection, health, defeat of enemies, and a land grant. The covenant is not a new one, but a renewal of God's promises to Abraham and his descendants (Gn 15).
Confirmation	Deposit/Witness Cf Dt 31:9, 19–22, 24–26; Jsh 24:22, 27	24:1–4. Moses gets an initial commitment from the people and sets up monuments as a physical demonstration of their part in the covenant.
	Sacrifices	24:5–6. A covenant was "cut" (usually translated "made") between two parties. This involved sacrifice, cutting animals as representatives of the parties involved. This seems to have symbolized that if the covenant was not kept by the people, they could end up like the sacrificed animals (cf Gn 15:9–18, where Abram divides animals in half and God passes between the halves of the animals to show His commitment to the covenant). God demonstrates His commitment to this covenant through the death of His Son in the NT (Heb 9:19–28).
	Oath Cf Dt 29:12–15	24:7–8. The people formalize their agreement, and Moses seals them in the covenant with the blood of the sacrifices. This washing foreshadows the washing Christians receive through Baptism (Heb 10:22–23).
	Meal	24:9–11. The two parties gather for an intimate meal and eat the meat from the sacrifices. This meal foreshadows the Lord's Supper.
	Testimony	24:12–18. God gives Moses a memorial edition of the Torah ("teaching," often translated "law") and commands its instruction.

THE TABERNACLE

The new religious observances taught by Moses in the desert centered on rituals connected with the tabernacle and amplified Israel's sense of separateness, purity, and oneness under the lordship of Yahweh.

A few desert shrines have been found in Sinai, notably at Serabit el-Khadem and at Timnah in the Negeb, and show marked Egyptian influence.

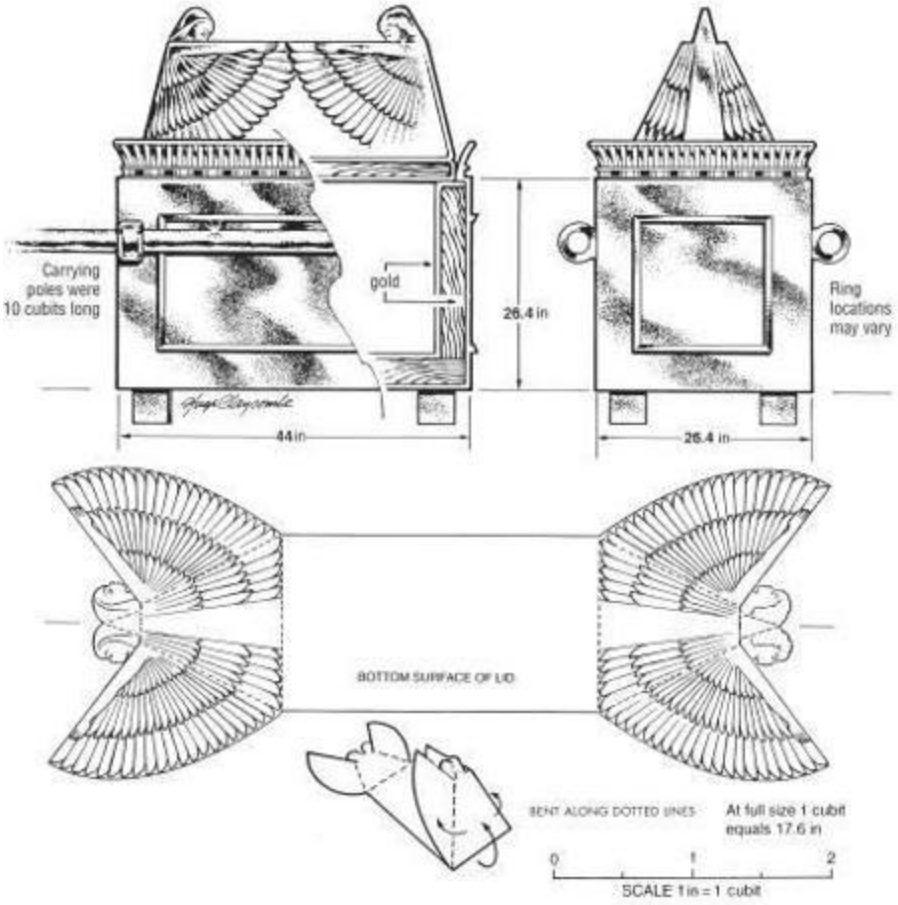


Specific cultural antecedents to portable shrines carried on poles and covered with thin sheets of gold can be found in ancient Egypt as early as the Old Kingdom (2800–2250 BC), but were especially prominent in the 18th and 19th dynasties (1570–1180 BC). The best examples come from the fabulous tomb of Tutankhamun, c 1350 BC.

Comparisons of construction details in the text of Ex 25–40 with the frames, shrines, poles, sheathing, draped fabric covers, gilt rosettes, and winged protective figures from the shrine of Tutankhamun are instructive. The period, the Late Bronze Age, is equivalent in all dating systems to the era of Moses and the exodus.

	Materials	Uses	Notes on Culture and Symbolism
METALS	Gold	Ark; table; lampstand; clasps; gold hooks; frames and crossbars; ephod; chains for breastpiece; bells; plate; altar of incense	Symbol of wealth and authority (Gn 41:42); used for money and for making precious items, such as idols.
	Silver	Bases for curtain frames; curtain hooks	Represented wealth (Pr 3:13–14); used for money and making idols.
	Bronze	Clasps; altar utensils; curtain bases; basin	Represented strength (Dt 33:25); used for weapons and tools (Gn 4:22; 1Ki 14:27).
CLOTH	Blue yarn	Curtain decoration; courtyard curtain; ephod; breastpiece; robe; cord	The coast of Canaan was known for the production of blue and purple dyes, which derived from mollusk shells and were expensive to produce. Therefore, these colors were associated with wealth and royalty.
	Purple yarn	Curtain decoration; courtyard curtain; ephod; breastpiece
	Scarlet yarn	Curtain decoration; courtyard curtain; ephod; breastpiece	Color derived from the body of the female cochineal insect. This vigorous dye is known for its staining power. Scarlet became a symbol of sin (Is 1:18). However, in Moses' day, scarlet wool was used in ritual cleansing from sin and sickness (Lv 14:1–7, 48–53). The color probably represented the cleansing power of blood.
	Fine linen	Curtains; courtyard curtains; ephod; breastpiece; tunic; turban; undergarments	The term for fine linen comes from the word for "white." Linen was the clothing of authority (Gn 41:42). White cloth also suggested purity and refinement.
	Goats' hair	Curtains	An animal of sacrifice. The curtains made from its hair enclosed the tabernacle.
HIDES	Rams' skins	Tent roof	An animal of sacrifice. The scarlet dye may have symbolized the blood of the sacrifices, which covered the sanctuary.
	Goatskins or dugong skins	Tent roof	The dugong is a slow-moving sea mammal, 7–11 ft in length, found in the Red Sea. It is valued for its meat, oil, and waterproof hide. Goatskins were also used; Ex 26:14.
PLANTS	Acacia wood	Ark; table; curtain frames; crossbars; altar; altar of incense	A hardwood tree that grows in desert valleys. Such trees were more plentiful in ancient times, growing in groves. The wood is still used for cabinetmaking today.
	Olives	Oil for the lampstand	As a fuel, food, and medicine, olive oil was one of the staple resources of the ancient Near East. It symbolizes plenty (Gn 8:11; Dt 32:13; 33:24).
	Spices	For incense and anointing oil	Spices provided a necessary perfume in the desert climate of the ancient Near East. As incense, the spices would help to cover up the smell of the animals and smoke that were found in the court of the tabernacle each day.
MINERALS	Onyx stones	Shoulder pieces	A precious stone made of fine-grained silica in black-and-white layers. By carving through the layers, an artist can produce sharp black-and-white contrasts, ideal for lettering.
	Gems	Breastpiece	Precious stones covered the heart of the high priest, who bore them before God. They showed how God regarded the tribes of Israel as precious.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ARK
Ex 37:1–9



Ex 37:6–9 states that the cherubim were "of one piece with the mercy seat" and that they were "hammered" as in flat sheets, not a casting. It would be difficult for a goldsmith to hammer large sculpturelike figures from the flat surface of the mercy seat as artists commonly show. This proposal suggests that the mercy seat and the cherubim were formed from one single gold sheet folded upward at the ends, probably over wooden forms for support. Therefore, the place of the presence of Yahweh (God) was surrounded by a continuous sheet of gold both below and above. Overshadowing wings (Ex 25:20; 37:9), along with incense (Lv 16:13), helped cover the throne on the Day of Atonement.

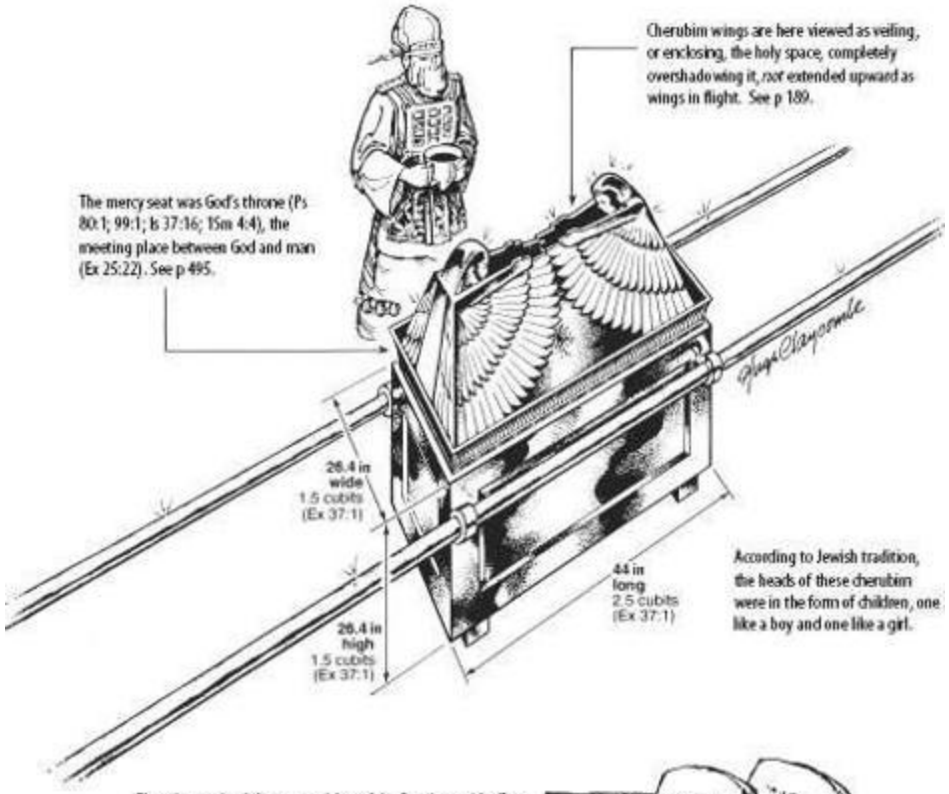
THE ARK OF THE COVENANT

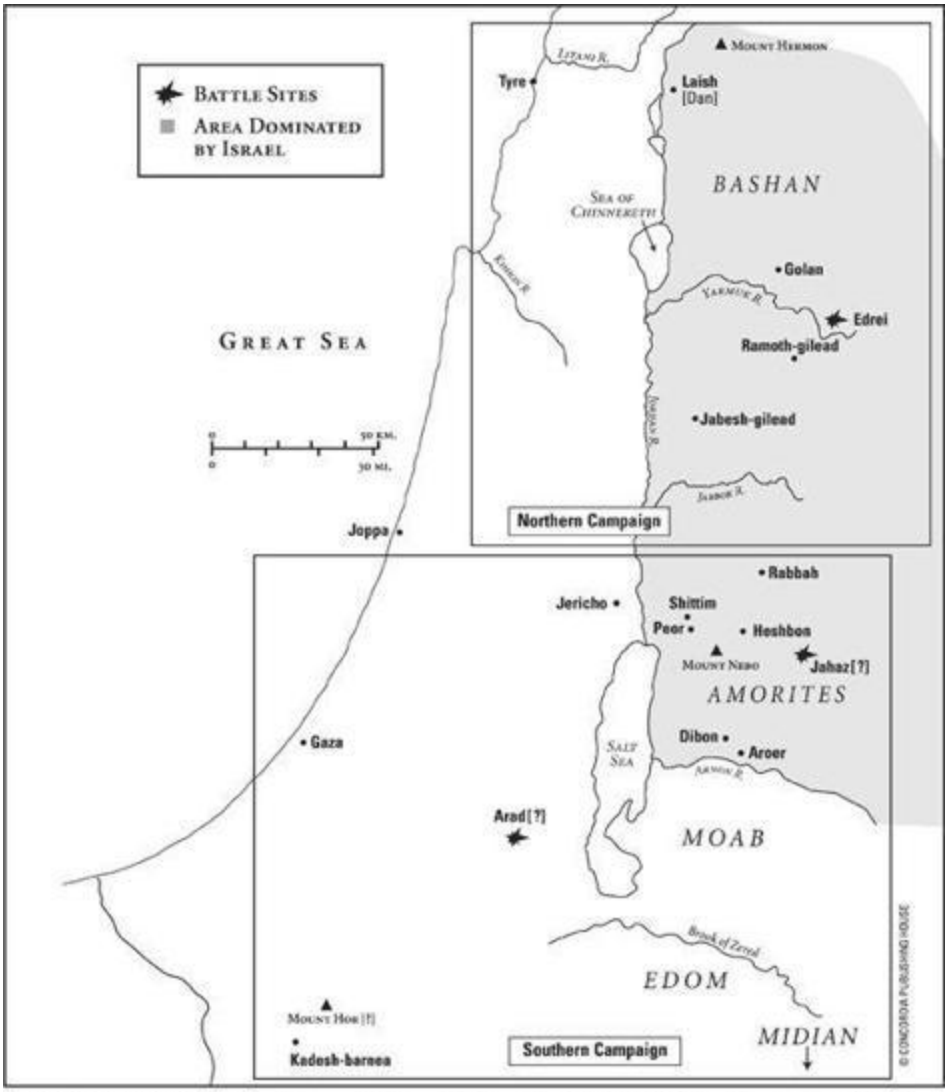
The ark of the covenant was the centerpiece of the Israelite tabernacle. The ark was a box covered with gold, 44 in. long by 26.4 in. wide and high, with carrying poles for the wilderness journey to the Promised Land. Centered within the tabernacle (portable temple), the ark was later placed within Solomon's permanent temple.

Once a year, the high priest entered the Most Holy Place to appear before the Lord (Lv 16:34). This part of the Day of Atonement ceremony included sprinkling of the blood from animals upon the cover of the ark of the covenant (Lv 16:14). Israelite people prayed over animals to be sacrificed, placing on them their own sin and guilt (Lv 16:21). Blood was a substance that embodied both physical and spiritual life, and it was sprinkled on the sacred space between the cherubim.



The ark contained the stone tablets of the Decalogue (the Ten Commandments), prompting the name "ark of the covenant" (Dt 10:5). The tablets of God's Law delivered to Moses at Mount Sinai functioned as the constitution for the Israelite nation. Later, a jar of manna from the desert wandering (Ex 16:33) and Aaron's rod (Nu 17:10) were stored in the ark as symbols of God's deliverance.

Domestic Foods	Uses	Meanings
Grain Wheat, barley, millet, spelt	Wheat flour formed the basis of Israelite meals ("daily bread"). The Bible refers to bread more than 300 times. Barley was raised primarily to feed cattle but was also eaten by the poor.	The aroma of daily bread filled the Holy Place of the temple (Ex 25:30) and surrounded Israelite homes with a reminder that their food came from their heavenly Father (Mt 6:9–11). At the feeding of the 5,000, Jesus blessed a poor boy's barley loaves in order to feed the crowd (Jn 6:9). When Jesus said, "I am the bread of life," He declared Himself the source of sustenance of life for everyone who received Him (Jn 6:35).
Fruit Grapes, olives, figs, pomegranates, dates, apples	Olives and grapes, along with wheat, were the most important foods. Olive oil was mixed with flour to make bread. Wine was a common beverage. Pressed "raisin cakes" were also common.	Oil was valued as a food ingredient and as a soothing skin treatment; wine brought joy and served as an antiseptic (Ps 23:5; 104:15; Lk 10:34). Negatively, oil and wine were also associated with excesses (Pr 21:17).
Dairy Products Sheep's milk, goats' milk, cottage cheese, curds, aged cheese, butter	Fresh milk was the basis of the herder's diet and a common beverage at meals. Poor urban families probably did not have fresh milk regularly since they could not keep herd animals. Many Jewish people today still avoid eating dairy products with meat, based on Ex 23:19.	Canaan flowed "with milk and honey" (Ex 3:8), a description of its abundance. Milk also represented the food of the immature (1Co 3:2).
Legumes Beans, lentils, pulse	Stews prepared from legumes were often served at the main meal of the day. The Israelites scooped the stew up with pieces of bread.	Esau craved the red lentil soup prepared by Jacob and sold his birthright for so meager a meal (Gn 25:29–34). Such a diet represented subsistence living (Ezk 4:9–17).
Meat Beef, lamb, goat, fish, dove, quail, chicken, eggs, locusts	Fish was probably a common form of meat in the Israelite diet. It was dried with salt and could also be ground to form "fish flour" for use in stews. Oxen, sheep, and goats were slaughtered for festivals or temple sacrifices. They were too valuable as sources of milk, wool, and farm labor to be eaten regularly.	The blood of oxen, sheep, goats, and doves made atonement for sin (Lv 4:1–5:13). Slaughtering an animal evoked the joy of feasting (Lk 15:23–27). Early on, the fish became a symbol for Christianity because so many disciples were fishermen. Also, the letters of the Gk word for fish (ichthus) were used as an acronym for "Jesus Christ, God's Son, Savior."
Vegetables Melons, cucumbers, onions, garlic, leeks, parsley, celery, lettuce, cabbage, endive, chicory	Vegetables were available based on the season and local climate. They were eaten raw or in stews.	The Israelites craved the variety of fresh vegetables they enjoyed in Egypt (Nu 11:5). God commanded them to eat bitter herbs during Passover to remind them of their bitter slavery under the Egyptians (Ex 12:8).
Nuts Almonds, walnuts, pistachios, carob pods	Just as today, nuts made convenient travel food. They were given as gifts (Gn 43:11). Carob pods were normally fed to animals but were also eaten by the poor (Lk 15:16).	Almond trees are one of the first trees to blossom in Israel. The shape of the blossoms ornamented the golden lampstand of the tabernacle (Ex 25:33–36). God caused Aaron's staff to bud and produce almonds to show His support for the Levites (Nu 17).
Seasonings and Spices Salt, black cumin, cumin, dill, mustard, coriander, cassia, mint, anise, saffron	Salt was most valued because of its flavor and usefulness in drying fish. Other spices were used in stews, etc. Some were given as gifts (Ge 43:11).	Salt symbolized goodness (Mt 5:13). Spices were valued for their pleasing taste or aroma. Some were used for perfume (Sg 4:14). They represented the finer things in life, since only prosperous people could afford them.
Sweeteners Honey, grape honey	Honeycomb was eaten directly or used to sweeten "cakes," similar in size to cookies. Grape honey was made from boiled and condensed grape juice.	Canaan flowed "with milk and honey" (Ex 3:8), a description of its abundance. Solomon refers to honey often and associates it with pleasure (Pr 24:13), excess (Pr 25:16), and sensuality (Sg 4:11).



WILDERNESS WANDERINGS. God delayed the conquest of Canaan for 40 years (Nu 13–14; Dt 1:19–46). Israel often stayed near Kadesh-barnea (Nu 33:36). Aaron died on Mount Hor (Nu 20:22–29; 33:37–39). Israel destroyed Arad and surrounding cities (Nu 21:1–3). Edom refused passage to the east (Nu 20:14–21), so the Israelites went perhaps as far south as Ezion-geber to skirt Edom (Nu 21:4; Dt 2:8; see color map 3). They camped in the Valley of Zered and along the Arnon River (Nu 21:12–13). At Jahaz, they defeated the Amorites who had occupied part of Moab (Nu 21:21–30; Dt 2:24–37). They defeated Bashan at Edrei (Nu 21:31–35; Dt 3:1–7). Next they camped east of Jericho at Shittim (Nu 25). After they defeated the Midianites (Nu 31), Israel controlled the Transjordan from the Valley of the Arnon to Mount Hermon (Dt 3:8–10). Moses died on Mount Nebo (Dt 34).

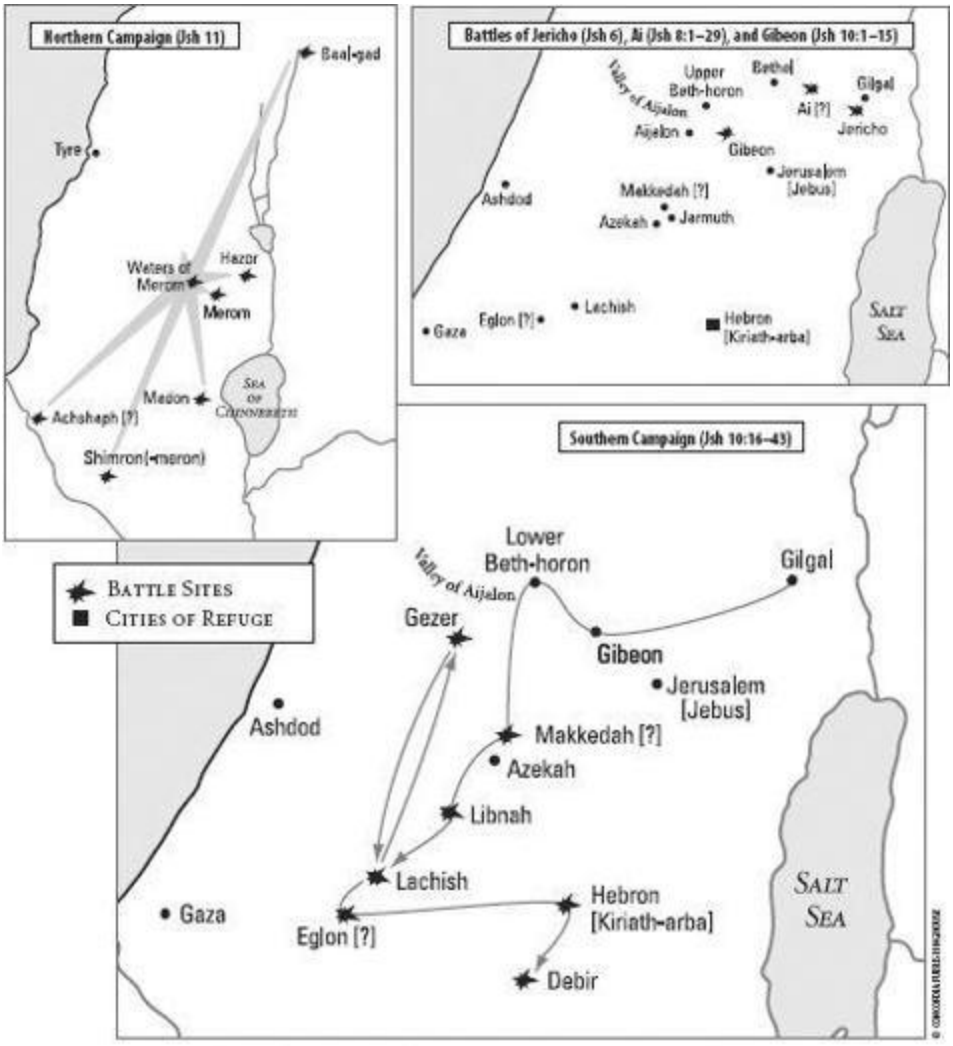
	Principles	Notes
Genesis	"You shall not eat flesh with its life, that is, its blood." (9:4)	See further explanation in Lv 17:10–16.
	"To this day the people of Israel do not eat the sinew of the thigh that is on the hip socket, because He touched the socket of Jacob's hip on the sinew of the thigh." (32:32)	An Israelite custom
Exodus	"They shall eat the flesh [of the lambs] that night, roasted on the fire; with unleavened bread and bitter herbs they shall eat it. Do not eat any of it raw or boiled in water, but roasted, its head with its legs and its inner parts. And you shall let none of it remain until the morning; anything that remains until the morning you shall burn" (12:8–10)	Regulations for Passover
	"You shall not boil a young goat in its mother's milk." (23:19; cf 34:26; Dt 14:21)	An unusual law, which may speak against a regional custom. See note, Ex 23:19.
Leviticus	"Whatever parts the hoof and is cloven-footed and chews the cud, among the animals, you may eat." (11:3)	The attention Moses gives to food shows its importance to the holiness of God's people. See "holy," p 7. He establishes the important principles of "clean" and "unclean" in great detail. See p 6.
	"Everything in the waters that has fins and scales, whether in the seas or in the rivers, you may eat." (11:9)
	"These you shall detest among the birds." (List follows in 11:13–19)
	"Among the winged insects that go on all fours you may eat those that have jointed legs above their feet, with which to hop on the ground." (11:21)
	"If any animal which you may eat dies, whoever touches its carcass shall be unclean until the evening." (11:39)
	"Every swarming thing that swarms on the ground is detestable; it shall not be eaten." (11:41)
Deuteronomy	"You shall not eat any abomination." (14:3–21)	A repetition of thoughts from Leviticus

Predictor	Failed Predictions
William Miller (1782–1849); farmer; founder of Adventist movement	Miller predicted that Christ would return in 1843; he then proposed Oct 1844. After this date failed, many abandoned Miller, but other followers formed the Seventh-day Adventists.
John Nelson Darby (1800–82); clergyman; founder of Plymouth Brethren	Creator of the rapture doctrine and dispensationalism. Darby's views developed from his struggle with Bible prophecy and the prophetic utterances of Margaret McDonald, a 15-year-old follower of the Scottish preacher Edward Irving. Darby's views have encouraged numerous failed predictions.
Joseph Smith (1805–44); founder of the Latter-day Saints (Mormons)	Smith made numerous false predictions about his generation (e.g., that they would build the New Jerusalem in western Missouri, and that the lost tribes of Israel would be restored). Other Mormon leaders have made similar fruitless predictions.
Charles Taze Russell (1852–1916); founder of Jehovah's Witnesses	Russell predicted that the world would end in the battle of Armageddon in 1914. His followers have proposed numerous other dates.
Lester Sumrall (1913–96); pentecostal missionary; television preacher	Authored a book called I Predict 2000 A.D. Taught that Christ would return by the year 2000.
Jeane Dixon (1918–97); Realtor; Roman Catholic; psychic	Dixon gained attention when she correctly predicted the assassination of a new president (Kennedy). Most of her predictions have proven false. For example, she predicted that a comet would devastate the earth in the 1980s.
Hal Lindsey (b. 1929); evangelical speaker and popular author	Wrote The Late Great Planet Earth. Predicted the rapture would take place in 1981 and the world would end in 1988. Lindsey continues to propose dates.
Pat Robertson (b. 1930); charismatic; founder of Christian Broadcasting Network; 1988 U.S. presidential candidate	Taught that Christ would return in 1982.
Benny Hinn (b. 1953); television preacher	Predicted Christ would return in 1993.



THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN. Joshua succeeded Moses for the conquest of Canaan (Nu 27:12; Dt 31:14), yet the real general was the Lord (Jsh 5:13–15). God delivered Jericho (Jsh 6) and Ai (Jsh 8) into Israel's hand. God permitted the Gibeonites to become the servants of Israel at Gilgal (Jsh 9). Five kings attacked Gibeon, and God gave Israel victory at Gibeon and in the Valley of Aijalon when the sun stood still (Jsh 10).

After defeating the northern alliance under Hazor at the Waters of Merom, Israel destroyed those cities allied against it (Jsh 11). Israel systematically destroyed the southern towns in the hill country and slopes (Jsh 10:16–43).

Other cities conquered included Arad, Adullam, Aphek, Carmel, Dor, Geder, Goim, Hepher, Hormah, Jokneam, Kedesh, Lasharon, Makkedah, Megiddo, Tappuah, Taanach, and Tirzah.

Cities that the Israelites failed to take were Jerusalem, which David would later conquer, and the five Philistine cities: Ashdod, Ashkelon, Ekron, Gath, and Gaza.

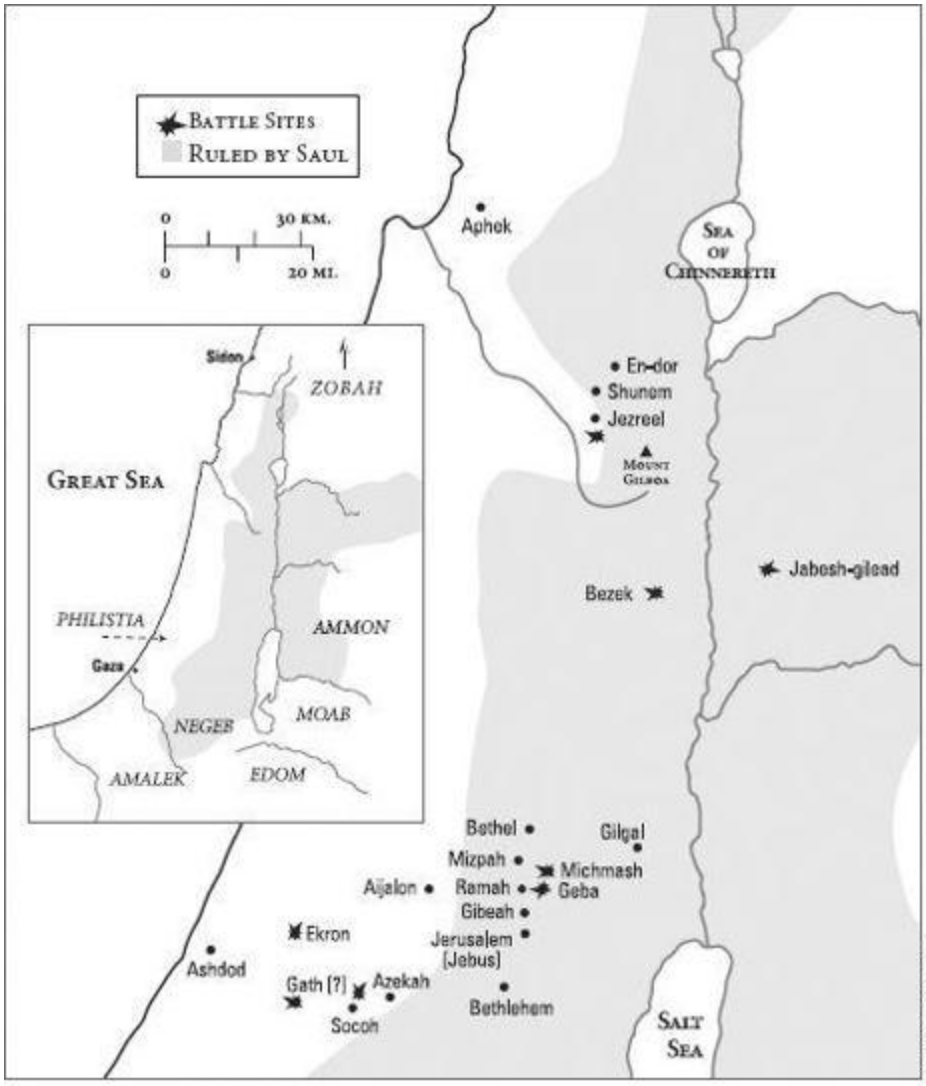
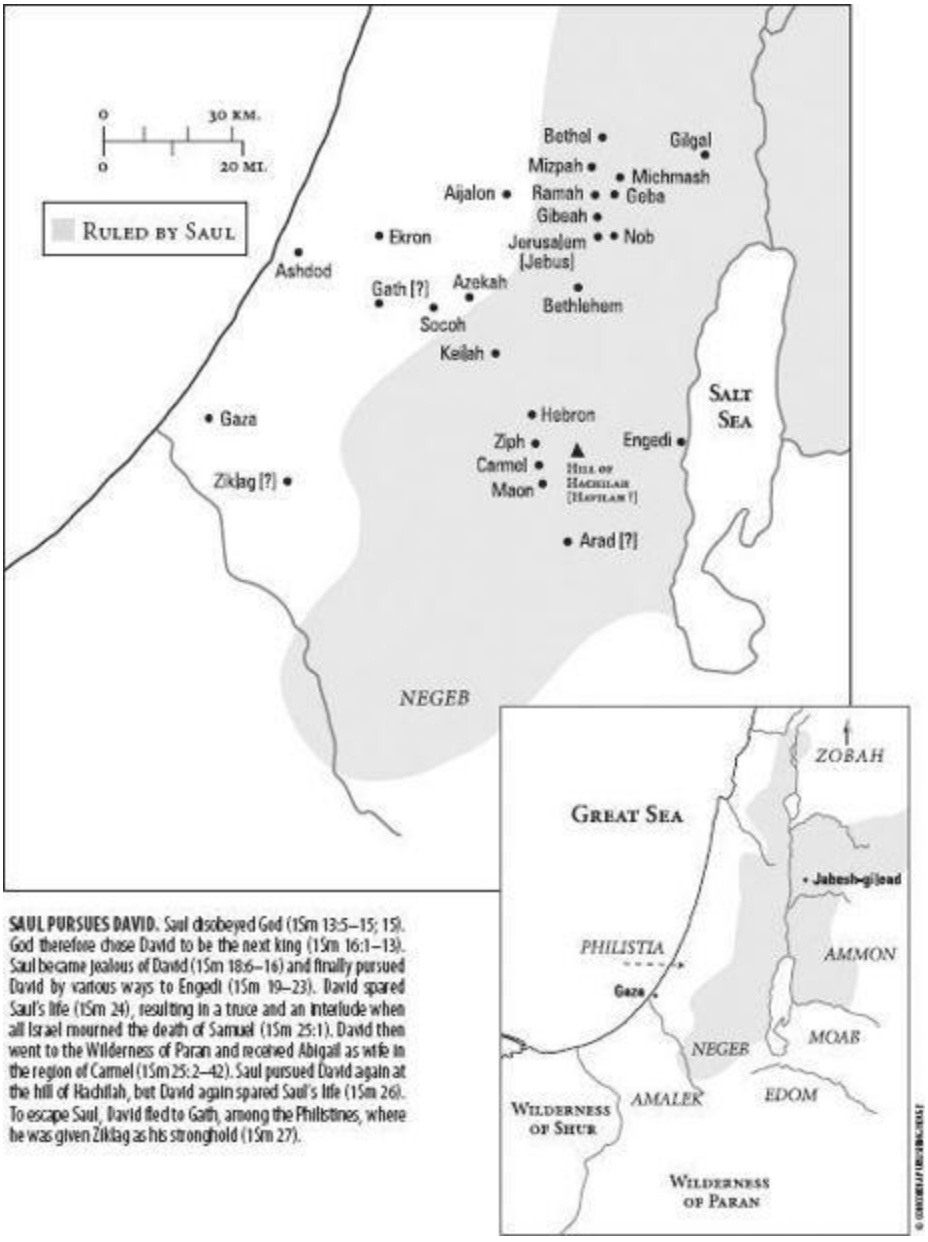
JOURNEYS OF NAOMI AND RUTH. An Israelite would not usually leave his inheritance, because it was really on loan from the Lord (Lv 25:23). Such a move would normally result in punishment or condemnation. The Book of Ruth, however, does not condemn Elimelech and his family, who probably exhausted all other resources before leaving for Moab.

Moab had become Israel's enemy (Nu 22–24). Yet, at this time, no specific ban on marrying Moabite women existed, as it did later in the Old Testament (Ezr 9:1–15; Ne 13:23–28).

At times, the Lord encouraged the patriarchs to seek refuge in a foreign land (Abraham and Jacob in Egypt; Isaac and David among the Philistines). As He did for these others, God delivered Naomi and Ruth, the forefather of David and Jesus.



KINGDOM AND BATTLES OF SAUL. Saul defeated Nahash, leader of the Ammonites, at Jabesh-gilead (1Sm 11:1–12). Jonathan routed the Philistines at Geba, but they reassembled with a great force at Michmash (1Sm 13:1–7). God gave Jonathan the victory at Michmash, and Saul pursued them beyond Aijalon (1Sm 14:1–46). David slew Goliath near Azekah and Socoh, whereafter the Israelites pursued the Philistines to Gath and Ekron (1Sm 17). Israel's enemies included Philistia, Zobah, Ammon, Moab, Edom, and Amalek (1Sm 14:47; 15:1–9). Saul fought against all of them. He and his sons, except Ish-bosheth, died on Mt. Gilboa in battle against the Philistines (1Sm 31).

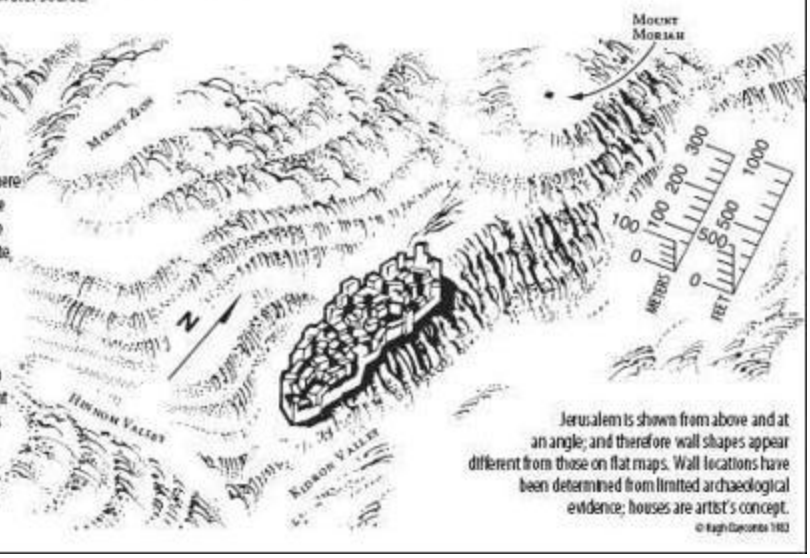


SAUL PURSUES DAVID. Saul disobeyed God (1Sm 13:5–15; 15). God therefore chose David to be the next king (1Sm 16:1–13). Saul became jealous of David (1Sm 18:6–16) and finally pursued David by various ways to Engedi (1Sm 19–23). David spared Saul's life (1Sm 24), resulting in a truce and an interlude when all Israel mourned the death of Samuel (1Sm 25:1). David then went to the Wilderness of Paran and received Abigail as wife in the region of Carmel (1Sm 25:2–42). Saul pursued David again at the hill of Hachilah, but David again spared Saul's life (1Sm 26). To escape Saul, David fled to Gath, among the Philistines, where he was given Ziklag as his stronghold (1Sm 27).

The City of the Jebusites
Barely 12 acres in size, Jebus, a Canaanite city, could well defend itself against attack, with walls atop steep canyons and shafts reaching an underground water source.

David's Jerusalem
David captured the stronghold and made it his capital.

Substantial historical evidence, both biblical and extra-biblical, places the temple of Herod (and before it the temples of Zerubbabel and of Solomon) on the holy spot where King David built an altar to the Lord. David had purchased the land from Araunah the Jebusite, who was using the exposed bedrock as a threshing floor (2Sm 24:18–25). Tradition claims a much older sanctity for the site, associating it with the altar of Abraham on Mount Moriah (Gn 22:1–19). Genesis equates Moriah with "the mount of the LORD," and other OT shrines originated in altars erected by Abraham.



Jerusalem is shown from above and at an angle; and therefore wall shapes appear different from those on flat maps. Wall locations have been determined from limited archaeological evidence; houses are artist's concept.

KINGDOM OF DAVID. David ruled Judah for seven years at Hebron (2Sm 5:5; 1Ch 29:27). Saul's son Ish-bosheth ruled Israel from Mahanaim for two years (2Sm 2:10). David's men scored a victory over Ish-bosheth's force at Gibeon (2Sm 2:10–3:1). David conquered Jerusalem and ruled all Israel from there for 33 years (2Sm 5:1–10; 1Ch 11:1–9). He defeated the Philistines at Baal-perazim and routed them from Geba to Gezer (2Sm 5:17–25; 1Ch 14:8–16). David had victories against the Philistines at Metheg-ammah (location uncertain); against Edom in the Valley of Salt; and against Moab, Zobah, Damascus, and Amalek (2Sm 8; 1Ch 18). He also defeated the Syrians and the Ammonites at Helam (2Sm 10; 1Ch 19) and the Ammonites at Rabbah (2Sm 12:26–31; 1Ch 20:1–3).

KINGDOM OF DAVID AND SOLOMON. David experienced civil war in his later years. His army defeated his rebel son Absalom at Mahanaim (2Sm 17:24–18:18) and the rebel Sheba at Abel of Beth-maacah (2Sm 20).

David and his men undertook campaigns against the Philistines at Gob and Gath (2Sm 21:15–22; 1Ch 20:4–8) and at Lehi, Adullam, and Bethlehem (2Sm 23:11–17; 1Ch 11:12–19).

Solomon secured what David had won, taking Hamath and building Hazor, Megiddo, Gezer, Upper and Lower Beth-horon, Baalath, and Tadmor (1Ki 9:15–19; 2Ch 8:3–6). He built a fleet at Ezion-geber (1Ki 9:26; 2Ch 20:36) and sealed pacts with Tyre (1Ki 5:1–12; 10:22; 2Ch 2:3–16; 9:21). Solomon's kingdom stretched from Tiphsah on the Euphrates in the north to Gaza in the south (1Ki 4:24).

Solomon's later apostasy caused God to raise adversaries in Hadad of Edom; Rezon of Damascus and Zobah; Pharaoh Shishak of Egypt; and finally Jeroboam, who would rule Israel over against Rehoboam, Solomon's son, who would rule Judah (1Ki 11).

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE

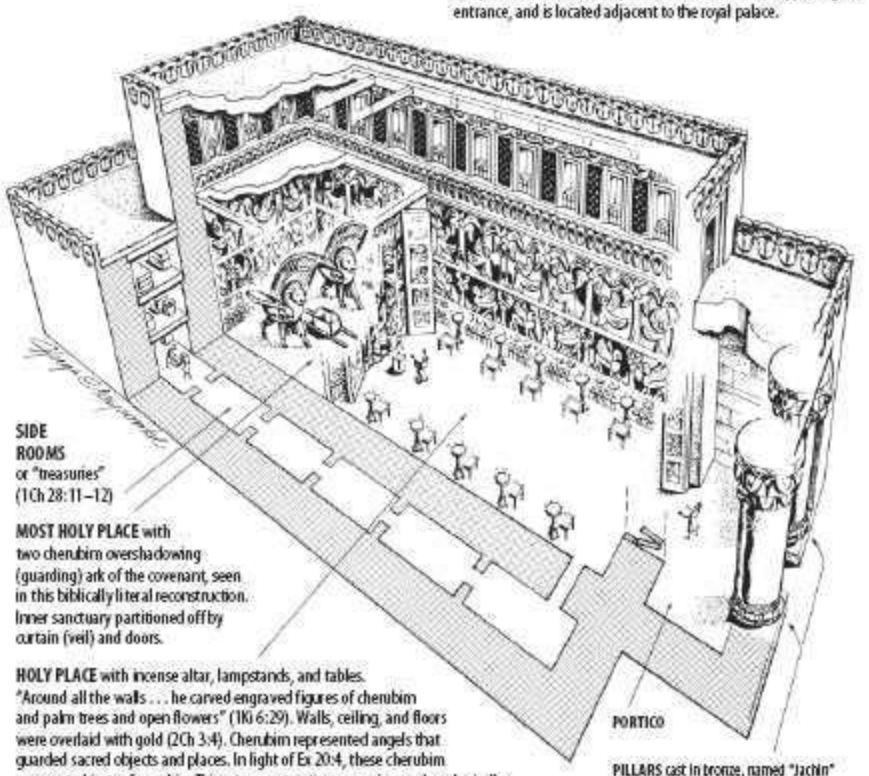
The temple of Solomon, located adjacent to the king's palace, functioned as God's royal palace and Israel's national center of worship. By its symbolism, the sanctuary taught the rule of the Lord over the whole creation and His special headship over Israel.

The floor plan is a type that has a long history in Semitic religion, particularly among the West Semites. An early example of the tripartite division into 'ulam, hekal, and debir (portico, main hall, and inner sanctuary) has been found at Syrian Ebla (c 2300 BC) and, much later but more contemporaneous with Solomon, at Tell Ta'yinat in the Orontes basin (c 900 BC). Like Solomon's, the latter temple has three divisions, contains two columns supporting the entrance, and is located adjacent to the royal palace.



SIDE ROOMS or "treasuries" (1Ch 28:11–12)

MOST HOLY PLACE with two cherubim overshadowing (guarding) ark of the covenant, seen in this biblically literal reconstruction. Inner sanctuary partitioned off by curtain (veil) and doors.

HOLY PLACE with incense altar, lampstands, and tables. "Around all the walls . . . he carved engraved figures of cherubim and palm trees and open flowers" (1Ki 6:29). Walls, ceiling, and floors were overlaid with gold (2Ch 3:4). Cherubim represented angels that guarded sacred objects and places. In light of Ex 20:4, these cherubim were not objects of worship. This art reconstruction recognizes archaeologically attested Near Eastern art forms of Solomon's historical period and general region.

ART FORMS OF SOLOMON'S HISTORICAL PERIOD

Complete biblical descriptions of Solomon's temple are presented in 1Ki 6; 7:13–51; 8:1–20; 1Ch 28–29; 2Ch 3–5.

Did Solomon's temple look like this?

This art only depicts how Solomon's artists might have expressed themselves within their vision and times. The temple was destroyed in 587 BC by the Babylonians, and not one decorative stone has been found. Yet the word pictures of Scripture cannot be rejected. Though inadequate to the task, this selection of artifacts from Solomon's time period provided the artist with, at best, acceptable illustration copy. For example, a small carved ivory from Arslan Tash, Syria, became the model for the large cherubim that guarded the ark; costume decor was followed in detail, but the wings were changed, rolling forward and outward to match the sculptured cherubim of the Most Holy Place (2Ch 3:10).

Artifacts (from the floor up) A. Ribbonlike design found at the 'Ain Dara temple may have symbolized the endless roll of seasons and years. B. Seedpod design from a column base at Tell Ta'yinat. C. Lampstand modeled on artifacts from Megiddo and Hazor. D. Winged guardian and sacred tree, Nimrud ivories. E. Lotus blossoms, Egyptian theme. F. Winged guardian, Arslan Tash. G. Stylized palm tree featuring heart of new palm growth, new life, Samaria. H. Frieze of palm trees, Arslan Tash. I. Window sash and railing styles, Nimrud ivories.

Gold overlaid the floor (1Ki 6:30) and the beams, thresholds, walls, and doors (2Ch 3:7). This sounds extravagant, yet not within its time. Inscriptions of Assyrian kings exclaim, "I covered the walls of [my] temple so it shone like the sun"; another king claims to have applied gold "like plaster, slapping it on." In recent times, sheets of gold were discovered all over large objects in the tomb of King Tutankhamun. Solomon had trade monopolies and also may have benefited from a "gold rush." Lavish gold for the house of God! It was the ancient norm.

Were Solomon and his temple a myth?

Archaeologists have now found temple foundations that bear strong architectural parallels to Solomon's as described in the Bible, notably at Tell Ta'yinat, discovered in 1936, and at 'Ain Dara, excavated between 1980 and 1985, both in northern Syria. They share what is known as the "long room plan." Since Solomon relied on the architects of King Hiram of Tyre, his temple is indeed an expression of the Syrian long room style and anchors itself in that region and period of history.

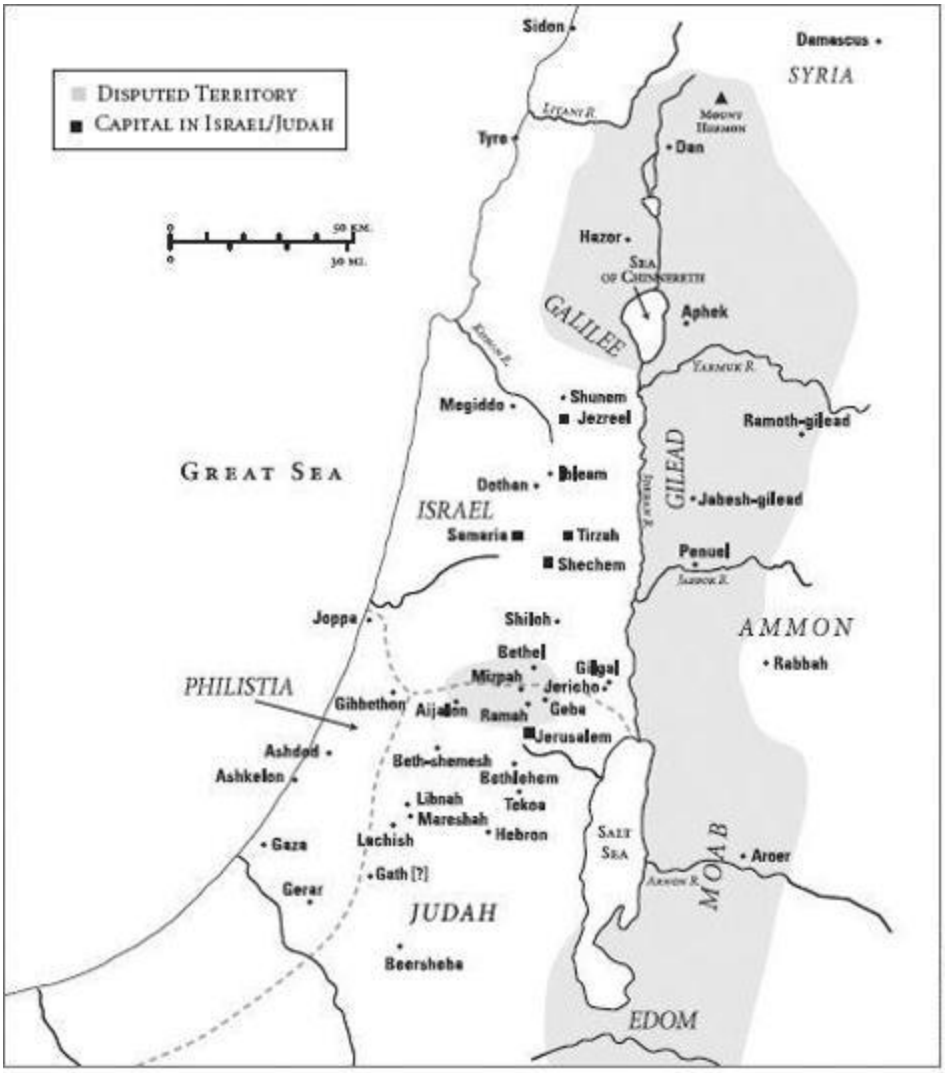
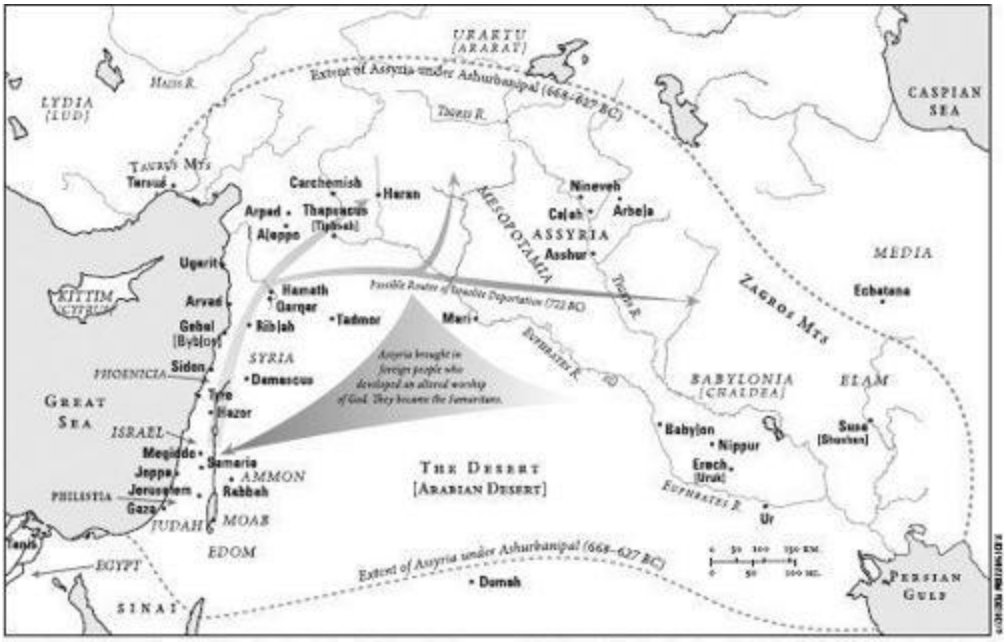
Though wealthy, Solomon lacked both architects and craftsmen experienced with large public buildings.
King Hiram of Tyre (today's Lebanon) was called upon to provide both expertise and materials (1Ki 5).



ISRAEL AND JUDAH. Solomon's son Rehoboam caused Israel to split from Judah; Israel then made Jeroboam its king (1Ki 12:1–24; 2Ch 10:1–11:4). Jeroboam established Israel's capital first at Shechem (1Ki 12:25), but later apparently moved it to Tirzah (1Ki 14:17). Jerusalem remained the capital of Judah (1Ki 12:18). Periodic coups in Israel destroyed the dynasties of Jeroboam (1Ki 15:27–30), Baasha (1Ki 16:8–13), Zimri (1Ki 16:15–22), Omri (2Ki 9:14–10:14), and Jehu (2Ki 15:8–12). Omri moved Israel's capital to Samaria (1Ki 16:23–24); Jezreel apparently served as a secondary capital (1Ki 21:1). Moab, and then Edom and Libnah, rebelled against Judah (2Ki 3; 8:20–22). Control of territory east of the Jordan passed back and forth between Israel and Syria (2Ki 10:32–33; 13:14–25; 14:23–29). A chaotic succession of kings heralded the fall of Israel to Assyria in 722 BC (2Ki 15:8–17:23).

Elijah lived in Tishbe (1Ki 17:1); proclaimed a famine and dwelt by Brook Cherith (1Ki 17:1–7); performed miracles in Zarephath (1Ki 17:8–24); defeated 450 prophets of Baal at Mount Carmel and slaughtered them at Brook Kishon (1Ki 18:20–40); outpaced Ahab's chariot to Jezreel (1Ki 18:41–46); escaped to the wilderness near Beersheba (1Ki 19:1–7); met the Lord at Mount Horeb, as did Moses (1Ki 19:8–18); called Elisha near Abel-meholah (1Ki 19:16–21); confronted Ahab in Samaria (1Ki 21:17–24) and cursed Ahaziа there (2Ki 1); journeyed with Elisha from Gilgal to Bethel to Jericho and then across the Jordan, where he was taken up to heaven (2Ki 2:1–12).

Elisha lived in Abel-meholah (1Ki 19:16, 19–21); journeyed with Elijah from Gilgal to Bethel to Jericho and across the Jordan (2Ki 2:1–12); returned to Jericho (2Ki 2:13–22); went to Bethel, Mount Carmel, and Samaria (2Ki 2:23–25); traveled to Edom to deliver an oracle against Moab (2Ki 3:4–20); passed through Shunem at various times (2Ki 4:8–37); performed food miracles at Gilgal (2Ki 4:38–44); healed Naaman and recovered an axe head near the Jordan (2Ki 5:1–6:7); led the blinded Syrian army from Dothan to Samaria (2Ki 6:8–23), where he later promised food during a siege (2Ki 6:24–7:20); anointed Hazael at Damascus (2Ki 8:7–15; cf 1Ki 19:15); sent a prophet to Ramoth-gilead to anoint Jehu (2Ki 9:1–13; cf 1Ki: 19:16); died at home near the Jordan (2Ki 13:14–21).



ASSYRIAN EXILE OF ISRAEL. Assyria was the largest empire since the Old Babylonian dominance of Sumer and Akkad before Abraham. It deported people from Galilee and east of the Jordan as early as 733 BC and crushed Syria in 732 BC. God permitted Assyria to destroy idolatrous Israel in 722 BC; Israelites were deported and assimilated into upper Mesopotamia (2Ki 15:8–17:23). Assyria resettled other peoples into Israel (2Ki 17:24–41). Assyria menaced the entire Near East, at times exacting tribute from the Phoenician cities, Judah, Edom, Moab, and Ammon, and crushing Israel and Philistia. Assyria checked the power of Egypt and even incorporated Egypt into its empire for a time. Borders fluctuated with the power of the kings. Ashurbanipal held a great area, yet Assyria fell to Babylon about 25 years after his death.

JUDAH (2Ki 16–25). Under Ahaz, Judah paid tribute to Assyria after Israel fell in 722 BC (2Ki 16:7–20). Hezekiah trusted in the Lord, undertook a spiritual reform, and resisted Sennacherib of Assyria (18:1–7), who captured Judah's fortified cities; but God delivered Jerusalem (18:13–19:37). Manasseh and Amon returned to idolatry (ch 21). Manasseh's insidious evil ensured Judah's end (23:26–27), even though Josiah turned back to the Lord, reformed worship more than any king since David (22:1–23:25), and—because of Assyria's decline—controlled an area similar to David's (2Chr 34:6–7). Egyptian Pharaoh Neco killed Josiah in battle (2Ki 23:29–30), then captured Jehoahaz and established Jehoiakim as a puppet (23:31–37). Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon defeated Neco. Jehoiakim first served him, then rebelled, then died (24:1–6). Nebuchadnezzar deported Jehoiachin, the new king, and some of the population, and made Zedekiah a puppet (24:8–17). Zedekiah rebelled, and in 587 BC, Nebuchadnezzar destroyed Jerusalem and took Judah into exile (24:18–25:21). Further unrest caused many who had remained in Judah to flee to Egypt (25:22–26).

THE BRONZE PILLARS

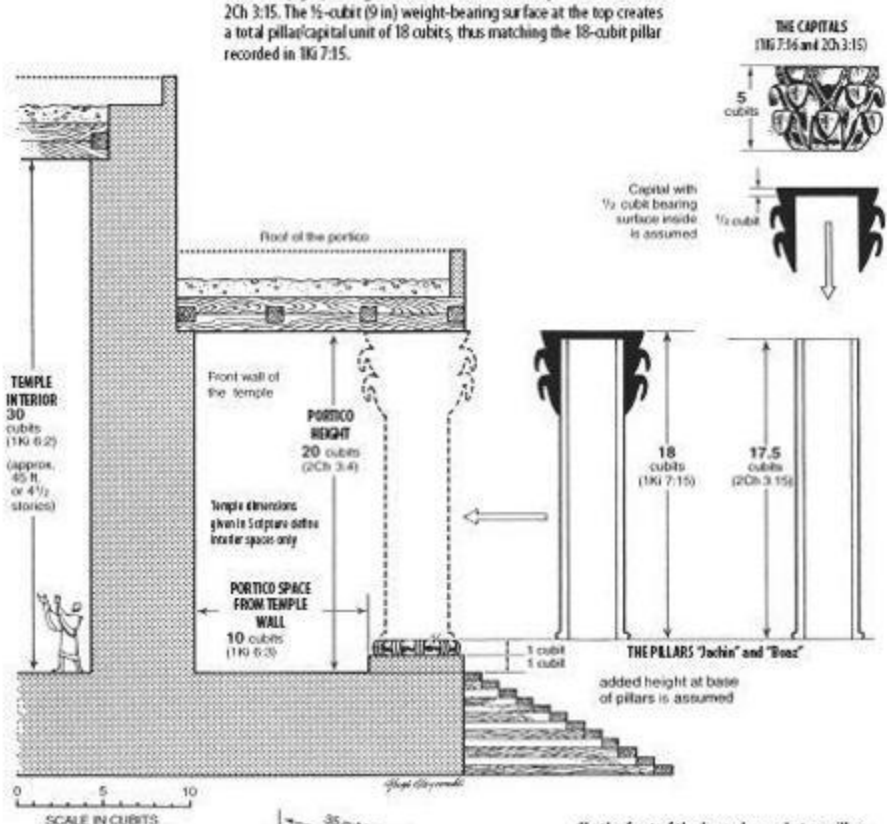
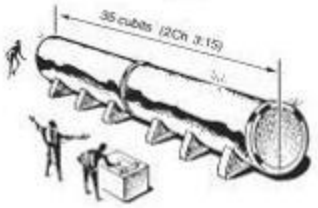
The decorative 5-cubit capital (7½ ft) in the shape of lilies (1Ki 7:19) is shown (right) fitting down over the 17½-cubit pillar described in 2Ch 3:15. The ½-cubit (9 in) weight-bearing surface at the top creates a total pillar/capital unit of 18 cubits, thus matching the 18-cubit pillar recorded in 1Ki 7:15.





"In the front of the house he made two pillars thirty-five cubits high" (2Ch 3:15). This unusual way of expressing the 17½-cubit length of each pillar may have occurred during the construction phase when the pillars were lying end to end.

BABYLONIAN EXILE OF JUDAH. Babylon rebelled against Assyria under Nabopolassar in 626 BC. He and his son Nebuchadnezzar crushed opposition, leading to decisive victories at Carchemish and Hamath in 605 BC, which firmly established the Neo-Babylonian Empire. In that year, Nebuchadnezzar also besieged Jerusalem, deporting Daniel and other Judeans (Dn 1:1–7). After his father's death in 604 BC, King Nebuchadnezzar solidified his gains against Egypt, marked by the deportation of Jehoiachin and other Judeans in 597 BC (2Ki 24:8–17; 2Ch 36:9–10). A third deportation occurred in 587 BC, after Jerusalem was destroyed (2Ki 24:18–25:21; 2Ch 36:11–21). Other Judeans escaped to Egypt after further unrest (2Ki 25:22–26), which resulted in a further deportation to Babylonia around 582 BC. The Judeans lived in refugee colonies near Babylon and were not assimilated. The increasing corruption of Babylonia's King Nabonidus—who moved to the Arabian oasis town of Tema, leaving his son Belshazzar as regent (Dn 5:1–4)—hastened its fall to the Persians in 539 BC.

ZERUBBABEL'S TEMPLE

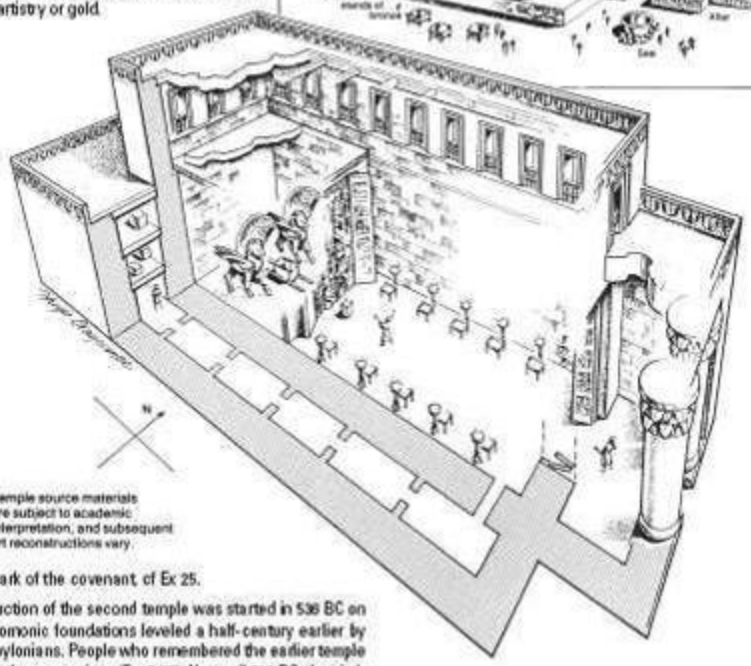
Shown here is a much more modest reconstruction of Solomon's magnificent temple, destroyed by the Babylonians in 587 BC. It is assumed that this "second temple" followed the original floor plan, but funds were limited, craftsmanship was compromised, and its glory was in a spiritual sense only (Hg 1:6–7).

Reconstructed cherubim here guard the ark as before, along with barrier tapestry (curtain or veil), lampstands, tables, and portico pillars. But the walls are plain, with no hint of lavish artistry or gold.



Temple source materials are subject to academic interpretation, and subsequent art reconstructions vary.

On the ark of the covenant, cf Ex 25.

Construction of the second temple was started in 536 BC on the Solomonic foundations leveled a half-century earlier by the Babylonians. People who remembered the earlier temple wept at the comparison (Ezr 3:12). Not until 516 BC, the sixth year of the Persian emperor Darius I (522–486 BC), was the temple finally completed at the urging of Haggai and Zechariah (Ezr 6:13–15).

Archaeological evidence confirms that the Persian period in Judea was a comparatively impoverished one in terms of material culture. Later Aramaic documents from Elephantine in Upper Egypt illustrate the official process of gaining permission to construct a Judean place of worship and the opposition engendered by the presence of various foes during this period.

Of the temple and its construction, little is known. Among the few contemporary buildings, the Persian palace at Lachish and the Tobiad monument at Iraq el-Amir may be compared in terms of technique.

Unlike the more famous structures razed in 587 BC and AD 70, the temple begun by Zerubbabel suffered no major hostile destruction, but was gradually repaired and reconstructed over a long period. Eventually, it was replaced entirely by Herod's magnificent edifice.

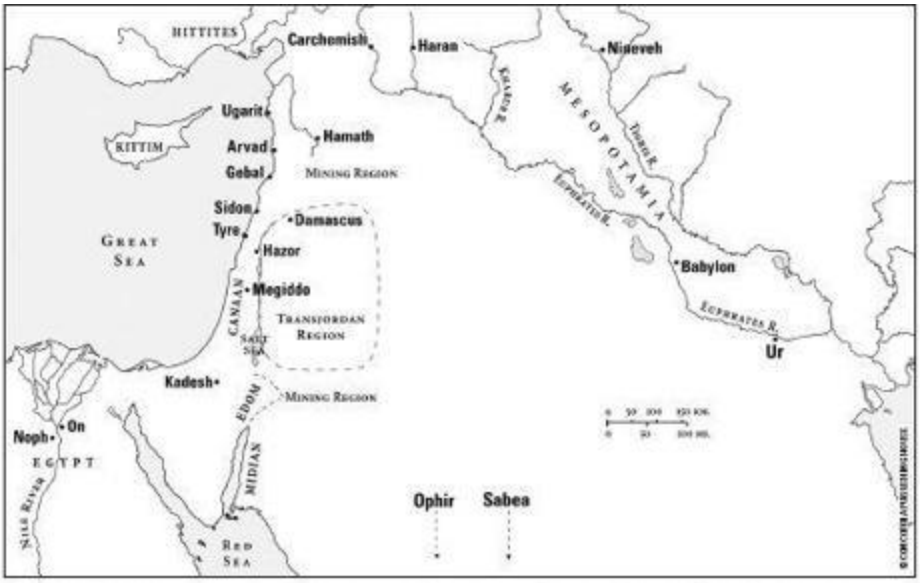
Genesis begins with God creating life and contrasting the way of life and the way of death. From this theme, first presented by God to Adam under the trees in Eden, comes all biblical wisdom. It is also a major theme in ancient Near East Wisdom Literature. The righteous, who are wise, walk in the way of life as God created it. The wicked, who are foolish, walk in the way of death, which is contrary to God's created order.



The exact location of Job's home is uncertain. Associations can be drawn with regions east of the Jordan based on other references to "Uz" in Scripture. Uz was the name of the son of Aram and grandson of Shem (Gn 10:22–23; 1Ch 1:17), of Abraham's nephew (Gn 22:21), and of an Edomite, one of the sons of Dishan the Horite (Gn 36:28; 1Ch 1:42). Jer 25:20 notes that "all the kings of the land of Uz" were forced to drink the cup of God's wrath. Lm 4:21 mentions Uz with Edom. These references look toward the south. Jb 1:3, "people of the east," encompasses people living beyond the Jordan River (from Midian in the south [Jgs 6:3] to Aram-naharaim in the north [also called Mesopotamia; Gn 24:10]). Therefore, Uz is vast. Josephus and early tradition supported a northern location as best suited for the manner of Job's life and the general background of the Book of Job. The Transjordan region was less arid in ancient times. See note, Jsh 17:15.

Ancient History and Patriarchs

Prophet and Date	References	Notes
Enoch, ancient history	Gn 5:21–24; Jude 14	Early on, the prophets focused on leadership of their clan or nation. The Bible describes them more as leaders for God's people than as spokesmen for God. Although other ancient cultures had people who predicted the future or served as divinely inspired guides for kings (e.g., the "diviners" or "nabu" of the Mari texts found along the Euphrates River dated to the 18th century BC), the Israelites esp emphasized leaders who heard from and spoke to God.

Moses, 1446 BC	Dt 18:18	Moses is perhaps the consummate example of a prophet. He is called by God to lead His people. He speaks for God and works His miracles. These features define the role of later prophets, whose ministries often conflict with the people God calls them to lead.

Kingdom of Israel

Prophet and Date	References	Notes
Priest Samuel, 1160 BC	1Sm 3:1–4:1	As Israel becomes a kingdom, the prophets often serve as advisers to the king (court prophets). The great prophet of this era is Samuel, who shares many characteristics with Moses. Samuel seems to lead the "sons of the prophets." Perhaps a formal training for prophets exists at this time. See p 555. This period of Israel's history also highlights the prophets' role in worship and song. Musical instruments accompany the prophesying. David, himself a prophet and composer, lavishly supports the musical offerings of the Levites at the tabernacle. This connection between prophecy and music may help explain why so many of the prophets write poetry (song lyrics). See also p 389.

The Kingdom Divided

Prophet and Date	References	Notes
Ahijah the Shilonite, c 931 BC	1Ki 11:29	When Israel divides into the Northern and Southern Kingdoms, the prophets have the special task of calling the people to repentance. The kings continue to seek prophetic approval by introducing and supporting false prophets. The great prophetic figure of this era is Elijah, whose showdown with the prophets of Baal demonstrates the important role both true and false prophets play in ancient Israel. Few writing prophets stem from this period. Early on, few people would have had the skill for such work. Government officials may have practiced writing almost exclusively for administrative reasons. For example, Moses probably learned to read and write in Egypt and may have passed that skill to Joshua (Jsh 1:8). Samuel is the next prophet described as writing, more than 300 years later (1Sm 10:25). However, by the time of Hezekiah, the king could issue an edict and expect that it would be read throughout the land (2Ch 30:6).

Collapse of Israel and Judah

Prophet and Date	References	Notes
Young prophet	2Ki 9:1–13	As the spiritual and political threat of Assyria and Babylon grows, so do the activities of the prophets. The abundance of prophetic writing seems to correspond with the growth of literacy during the rise and decline of Israel as a nation. In other words, God leads the prophets to use this new means of communicating His Word. After the Judeans returned from exile in Babylon, they gathered the Prophetic Books together with the Law of Moses. In these centuries after the exile, the Jewish synagogue formed, where the Judeans read the Law and the Prophets and sang the Psalms wherever they settled. Synagogues started first among the Judeans who lived farther from the temple (the Diaspora). According to the Palestinian Talmud, 480 synagogues existed in Jerusalem alone by the first century AD, the time of Jesus' earthly ministry.

New Testament

Prophet and Date	References	Notes
Priest Zechariah, 4 BC	Lk 1	John the Baptist represents the last prophet of the OT. His work of preparing the way for Christ is itself a matter of prophecy (Mal 3:1; 4:5; Mt 11:11–14). A significant difference between OT and NT prophets is that the NT prophets do not serve or seek to serve as advisers to kings. Their preaching and teaching about the kingdom of God transcends national boundaries and organizes people around Scripture rather than a political figure. Although some early Christian writings mention prophets (e.g., the Didache), God seems to have called prophets—like apostles—to found the Church but not to guide it forever (Eph 2:20; 2Co 12:12). During the first century, elders and pastors became the regular spokesmen for God. When Paul left the Church at Ephesus, he did not appoint a new apostle or prophet but entrusted these ministries to the elders and shepherds (Ac 20:28). The last prophets mentioned in Scripture are the two witnesses of Rv 11, who will appear before the return of Christ. See note, Rv 11:3; see also application note, 11:1–14.

THE PRESS OF MIGHTY EMPIRES

By the grace of God, Israel and Judah existed between two giants.

Egypt boasted a land area of c 1,000,000 km^2 and a population that ranged from c 4,000,000 in Moses' time to c 6,000,000 in Jesus' time. It had three harvests each year, was very urbanized, and could quickly raise and supply armies.

It is estimated that at the height of the Assyrian and Neo-Babylonian Empires, each controlled c 1,400,000 km^2 of territory. Assyrian and Babylonian armies were immense, but their supply lines were long. Assyrian and Babylonian rulers always had to fear revolution from occupied territories, powerful cities, and ambitious nobility.

In contrast, at its height, the Divided Kingdom of Israel controlled a land area of c 24,000 km^2, and Judah was c 9,000 km^2 in size, making both countries much smaller than their powerful neighbors.

Under Solomon, the United Kingdom of Israel was influential enough to form a marriage alliance with Egypt (1Ki 3:1; 2Ch 8:11). But when the kingdom divided under Solomon's son Rehoboam, the region became subject to attack from powerful neighbors. Already in 927 BC, Pharaoh Shishak invaded Judah and attacked Jerusalem (1Ki 14:25–28; 2Ch 12:2–12).

From 927 to 539 BC, Egyptian pharaohs and Assyrian or Babylonian emperors fought over Israel and Judah. God's work in and through these events is explained in 1 and 2 Ki (e.g., see note, 2Ki 17:7). Here are some other major conflicts mentioned in Scripture:

- So of Egypt vs Shalmaneser V of Assyria. In 722 BC, Assyria destroyed and deported Israel (2Ki 17:1–18).
- Tirhakah of Cush vs Sennacherib of Assyria. In 701 BC, God destroyed Sennacherib and rescued Judah (2Ki 19:9–37; Is 37:9–38).
- Neco of Egypt vs Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. In 587 BC, Babylon destroyed and deported Judah (2Ki 23:29–25:21; 2Ch 35:20–36:21; Jer 46:2–28; 52:1–30).

THE PERSIAN EMPIRE. The empire founded by Cyrus II "the Great" is called the Achaemenid Persian Empire to distinguish it from the later Parthians and Sassanids, also based in Persia. This was one of the largest empires of the ancient world, exceeding both the Roman Empire and the empire of Alexander. Persia had been subject to Media. Cyrus defeated Media, Lydia, and Babylon, casting himself as the savior of conquered nations and allowing religious tolerance. Cyrus also allowed exiles from Judah to return to their homeland.

The early period of the Persian Empire (559–485 BC) consisted of expansion under Cyrus II, Cambyses II, and Darius I "the Great," including the annexation of Egypt. The middle period (485–358 BC) saw culture flourish under Xerxes I, Artaxerxes I, Darius II, and Artaxerxes II. During this time, the Persians fought the Greeks in the Greco-Persian Wars and then alternately supported feuding Greek city-states in the Peloponnesian War. The decline of the Persian Empire (358–330 BC) came under Artaxerxes III and Darius III.

TRAVELS OF JONAH. The text of Jonah does not indicate where Tarshish is. Some have suggested Tarsus in Asia Minor. Others have suggested the Phoenician colony of Tartessus in Spain. In the story, the conflict between God's will and Jonah's will is reflected in the conflicting regions and directions: Israel versus Assyria, West versus East, travel by water versus travel by land.

THE HASMONEAN CONQUEST. The Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV Epiphanes annexed Judea in c 175 BC and persecuted the Jews (1Macc 1:10–63). The Hasmonean priest Mattathias and then his son Judas Maccabeus organized an insurgency (1Macc 2:1–3:1). Judas reclaimed Jerusalem in 164 BC (1Macc 3–4), from whence the feast of Hanukkah dates.

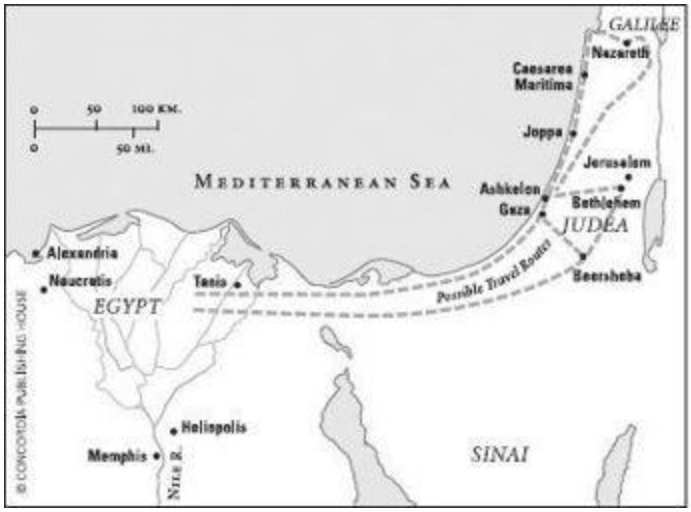
After Judas died in battle (1Macc 9), his brother Jonathan was named ethnarch and high priest (1Macc 10–12). After Jonathan was killed, his brother Simon succeeded him, gaining complete independence for Judea in 142 BC (1Macc 13–14). Simon's remaining son, John Hyrcanus, expanded Hasmonean control after Simon's death. John's son Aristobulus established the Hasmonean kingdom. Aristobulus's brother Alexander Jannaeus reigned after him, expanding the kingdom to its greatest boundaries.

Alexander's son Hyrcanus II lost the kingship to his brother Aristobulus II, who in turn lost control of Judea to the Roman general Pompey in 63 BC.

THE KINGDOM OF HEROD. Appointed as King of Judea by the Romans, Herod the Great was staunchly loyal to Rome during his reign (37–1 BC). By c 20 BC, Herod controlled the shaded area on this map. He rebuilt some 22 cities and fortresses, including Caesarea Maritima, Sebaste, Herodium, and Masada. His greatest monument was the Jerusalem temple.

After Herod's death, the bulk of his kingdom was divided among three of his sons. Archelaus succeeded him in Judea, Idumea, and Samaria. Antipas became tetrarch of Galilee and Perea. Philip received Ituraea, Gaulanitis, Batanea, Trachonitis, and Auranitis. Archelaus was deposed in AD 6, and his lands became a Roman imperial province governed from Caesarea Maritima and Jerusalem.

Agrippa I (Herod's grandson) would rule almost all of Herod's former lands through the favor of Gaius Caesar (Caligula) and, later, Claudius Caesar. Agrippa II ruled some of this territory, but not Judea. Paul appeared before Agrippa II on his way to Rome (Ac 25:13–26:32).



TRAVELS OF THE HOLY FAMILY

Mt 2:13–23 describes the flight of Jesus, Mary, and Joseph to Egypt. Only the endpoints of the journey are known: Bethlehem to Egypt; Egypt to Nazareth. One possible route to Egypt passed south over the Judean hills from Bethlehem to Beersheba. From there it went either by an inland route or via Gaza and then to Egypt on the main caravan route near the sea. Another route involved going to Ashkelon and thence on the caravan route to Gaza and Egypt. Perhaps Jesus and His family joined one of the Jewish communities in the Nile Delta or the Nile Valley. After leaving Egypt, Jesus' family settled in the Galilean town of Nazareth.

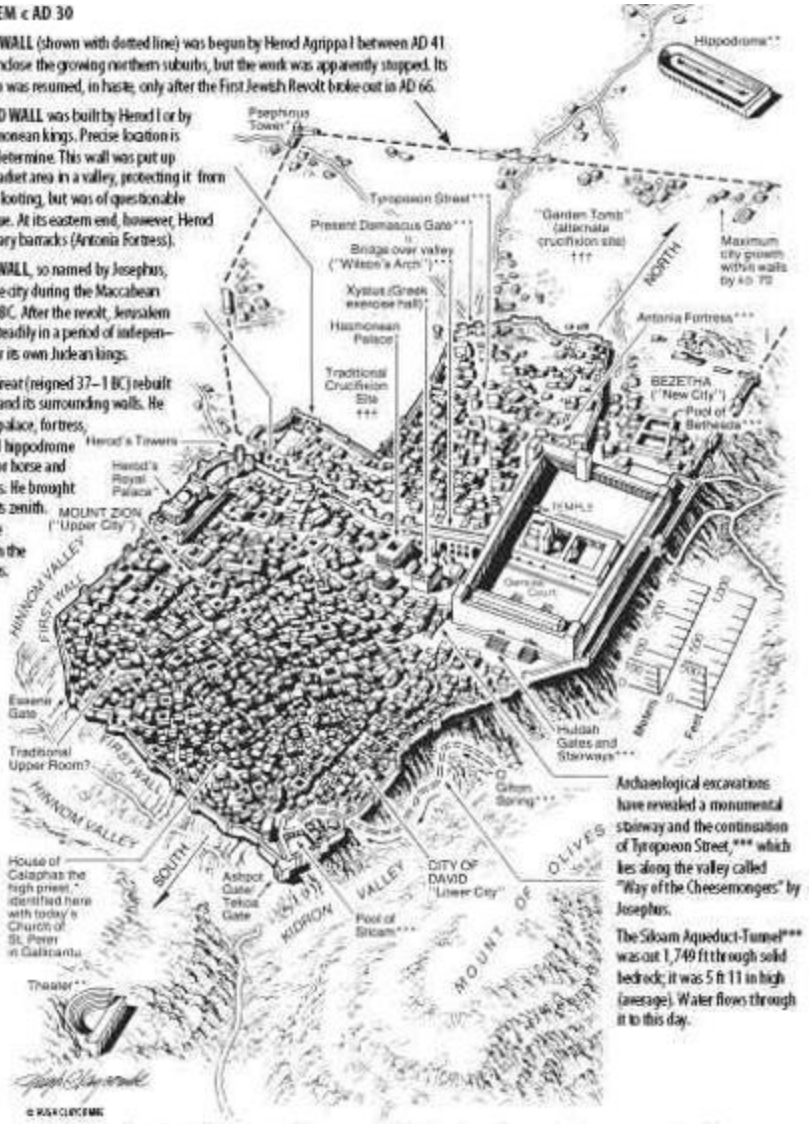
JERUSALEM c AD 30

The THIRD WALL (shown with dotted line) was begun by Herod Agrippa I between AD 41 and 44 to enclose the growing northern suburbs, but the work was apparently stopped. Its construction was resumed, in haste, only after the First Jewish Revolt broke out in AD 66.

The SECOND WALL was built by Herod I or by earlier Hasmonean kings. Precise location is difficult to determine. This wall was put up around a market area in a valley, protecting it from raiding and looting, but was of questionable military value. At its eastern end, however, Herod built a military barracks (Antonia Fortress).

The FIRST WALL, so named by Josephus, encircled the city during the Maccabean Revolt, 167 BC. After the revolt, Jerusalem expanded steadily in a period of independence under its own Judean kings.

Herod the Great (reigned 37–1 BC) rebuilt the temple and its surrounding walls. He also built a palace, fortress, theater, and hippodrome (stadium) for horse and chariot races. He brought the city to its zenith. This became Jerusalem in the time of Jesus.



Archaeological excavations have revealed a monumental stairway and the continuation of Tyropoeon Street, which lies along the valley called "Way of the Cheesemongers" by Josephus.

The Siloam Aqueduct-Tunnel was cut 1,749 ft through solid bedrock; it was 5 ft 11 in high (average). Water flows through it to this day.

 Location and architecture unknown, but referred to in written history; shown here for illustrative purposes.

Buildings, streets, and roads shown here are artist's concept only unless otherwise named and located. Wall heights remain generally unknown, except for those surrounding the Temple Mount.

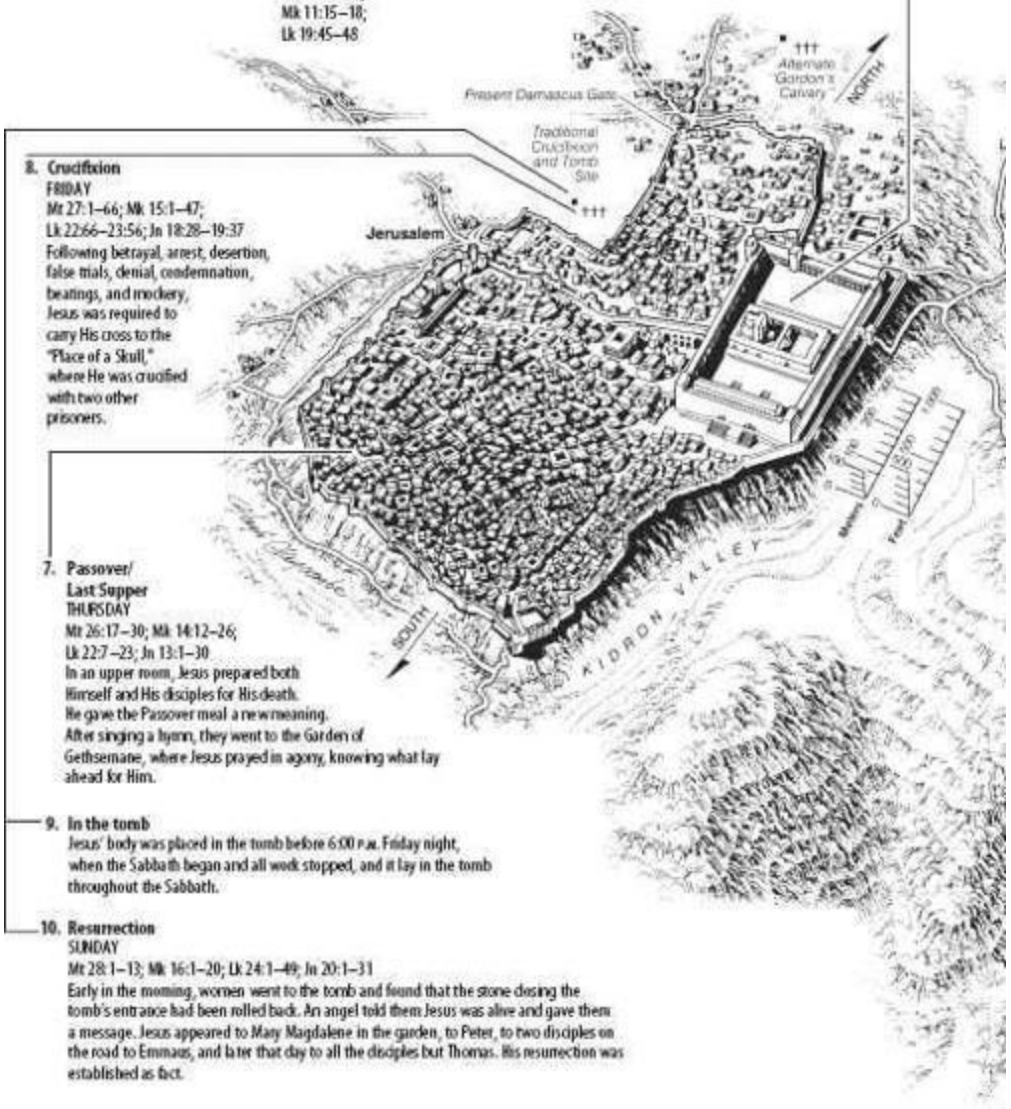
Examples	History	Meaning
Attendance at Passover (Lk 2:41–50)	Jesus faithfully attended the feasts instituted by the heavenly Father in the OT. John mentions three Passovers observed by Jesus during His ministry (Jn 2:13; 6:4; 11:55). He also mentions the Feast of Booths (7:2), Feast of Dedication (10:22), and an unnamed feast (5:1).	Jesus kept the Jewish feasts, not only for personal devotion, but more important to fulfill the Law of the old covenant. By faithfully keeping the Law, He prepared the way for the new covenant and salvation through Him.
Jews and Samaritans (Jn 4:7–9)	John points out for his Gentile readers that Jews and Samaritans did not associate with one another. This was because the Samaritans had intermarried with the Gentiles and taken up pagan practices; therefore, the Jews considered them unclean.	Jesus freely associated with the Samaritan woman, breaking Jewish custom. He did this out of loving concern for her, calling her to repentance and to faith in Him as the Messiah.
Fasting (Mk 2:18–22; Lk 5:33–39)	Fasting was an important part of Pharisaic devotion. They usually fasted twice a week, on Mondays and Thursdays (Lk 18:12). John the Baptist encouraged similar devotion among his disciples.	The Pharisees questioned the devotion of Jesus' disciples because they did not fast like other devout Jews. Jesus' reply to them shows that He expected fasting to be a part of later Christian devotion. However, He used the example of His feasting to show that He was God's special Servant who brought the joy and comfort of God's kingdom.
Picking Grain on the Sabbath (Mt 12:1–8; Mk 2:23–28; Lk 6:1–5)	In contrast to the Pharisees, Jesus applies Dt 23:25 to the Sabbath. The disciples were permitted to satisfy their hunger on the Sabbath by picking a little grain.	Jesus' interpretation of the OT and the story about King David reveal that the Sabbath was intended as a blessing and relief, not a painful rigor.
Clean Hands (Mt 15:1–20; Mk 7:1–23)	Jesus broke with the tradition of the Jewish elders because He did not require the disciples to wash their hands before they ate.	Jesus uses these incidents to point out the importance of keeping God's Law over keeping traditions. Notice that Jesus does not tell the Pharisees and teachers of the law that they have to break tradition. The problem was that they were breaking God's commands and failing to show mercy.
Washing Cups (Mt 23:25–26; Lk 11:39)	Another tradition of the Jewish elders. Jesus rebukes the Pharisees for their zeal for traditions rather than for mercy and repentance.
Seating at a Wedding Feast (Mk 12:38–39; Lk 14:7–11)	The seating at feasts illustrated people's social ranking. People competed for the "spotlight," as they do today.	Jesus' illustration and parable reveal the upside-down character of God's kingdom. For God's people, the honor is in humility, not social rank. Jesus' parable undermined the socially acceptable rules about feasting. He emphasized that one should use a feast as an opportunity to show mercy.
Invitations to a Feast (Lk 14:12–14)	Feasting and gift giving in most cultures are dominated by "reciprocal giving." I.e., if you give a gift to someone, you can anticipate a gift in return. Such giving solidifies social relationships among people of rank but isolates the poor.
Not Entering a Gentile's House (Jn 18:28)	Entering a Gentile's house brought uncleanness to a Jewish person, which made it impossible for that person to partake of the Passover.	Jesus also kept the holiness laws of the OT, but He looked forward to a new order and a new standard of holiness based on faithfulness and mercy rather than ceremonial law.

Setting of Miracle	Conflict or Crisis	What We Learn about Jesus
Exorcism Jesus sends many demons into a herd of pigs (Mk 5:1–20). Jesus heals a boy with an unclean spirit, which the disciples could not cast out (Lk 9:37–43).	Struggle with powers of evil. Conflict against Satan and the demonic world.	Jesus is confidently in control over violently evil forces. He triumphs over the power of the devil.
Controversy A woman bent over for 18 years is healed on the Sabbath (Lk 13:10–17). Sight is given to a man born blind (Jn 9:1–11).	Conflict over some issue with those in the religious establishment, usually healing on the Sabbath.	Jesus is in authority and helps us see a way out of the controversy (e.g., the Sabbath was made for people).
Petition A woman with a hemorrhage fights through the crowds to touch Jesus' garments (Lk 8:42b–48). Blind Bartimaeus keeps asking, even though others tell him to be quiet (Mk 10:46–52).	Some obstacle to wholeness is placed before the one needing the miracle.	Jesus celebrates the faith that overcomes obstacles and brings the needy to Him.
Provision Feeding the 5,000 (Jn 6:5–13). The huge catch of fish (Lk 5:4–7).	People have some basic need.	Jesus provides more than enough to meet physical needs.
Rescue Calming the storm (Mk 4:37–41). Walking on water (Mk 6:45–52).	Hostile forces of nature threaten human life.	Jesus is the Lord of creation and controls even the most violent storms.
Appearances Jesus appears to His disciples on Easter evening (Jn 20:19–23). Jesus walks with the disciples on the road to Emmaus (Lk 24:13–35).	Struggle with doubt, fear, or grief.	Jesus suddenly and unexpectedly appears to give joy, peace, and direction. His transfiguration and resurrection appearances assure us of our glorious future, a bodily resurrection from the dead on the Last Day.

PASSION WEEK

4. Clearing of the temple
MONDAY
Mt 21:10–17; Mk 11:15–18; Lk 19:45–48

The next day, Jesus returned to the temple and found the court of the Gentiles full of traders and money-changers making a large profit as they gave out Jewish coins in exchange for "pagan" money. Jesus drove them out and overturned their tables.

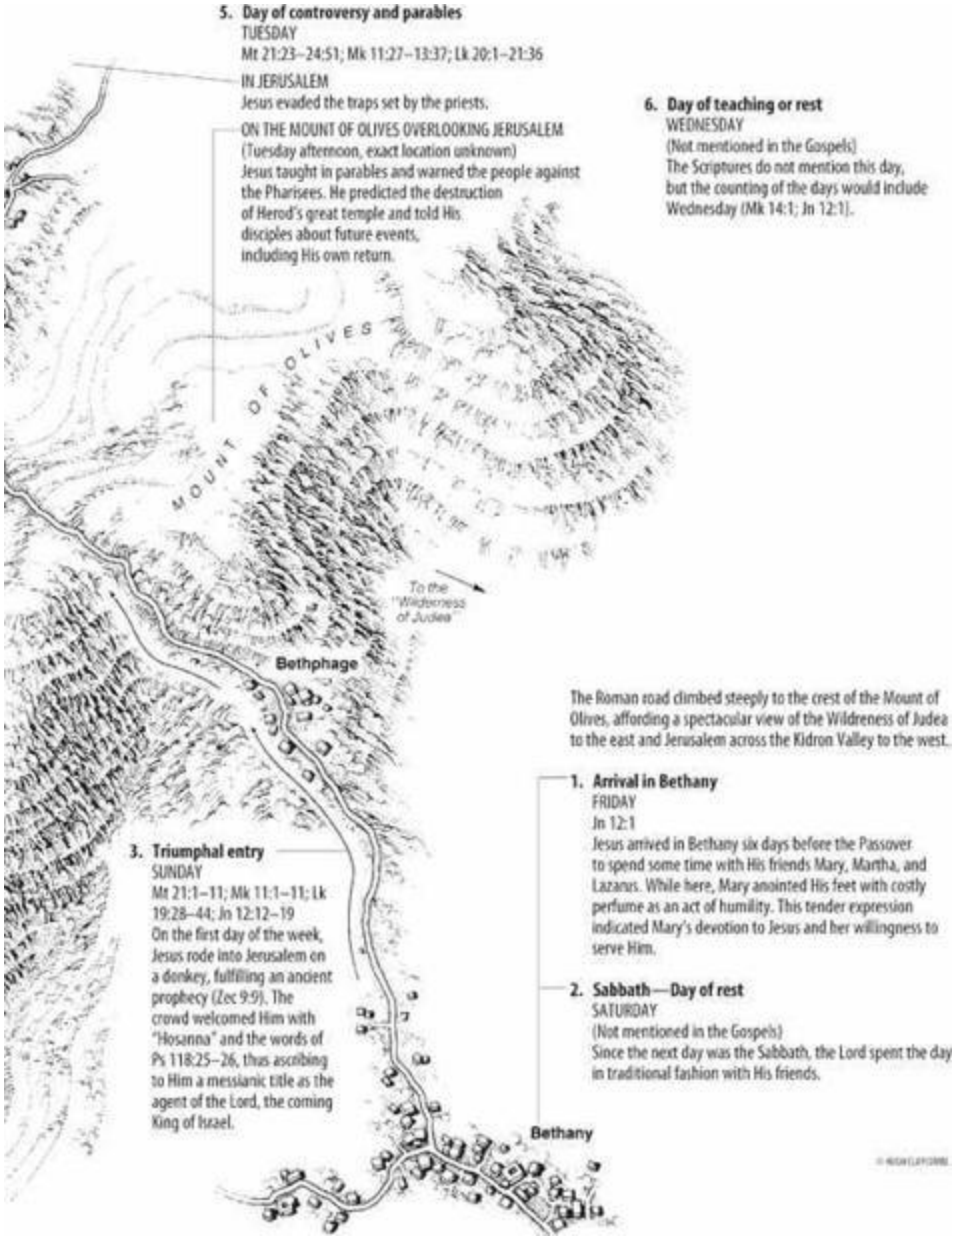


8. Crucifixion
FRIDAY
Mt 27:1–66; Mk 15:1–47; Lk 22:66–23:56; Jn 18:28–19:37
Following betrayal, arrest, desertion, false trials, denial, condemnation, beatings, and mockery, Jesus was required to carry His cross to the "Place of a Skull," where He was crucified with two other prisoners.

7. Passover/ Last Supper
THURSDAY
Mt 26:17–30; Mk 14:12–26; Lk 22:7–23; Jn 13:1–30
In an upper room, Jesus prepared both Himself and His disciples for His death. He gave the Passover meal a new meaning. After singing a hymn, they went to the Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus prayed in agony, knowing what lay ahead for Him.

9. In the tomb
Jesus' body was placed in the tomb before 6:00 P.M. Friday night, when the Sabbath began and all work stopped, and it lay in the tomb throughout the Sabbath.

10. Resurrection
SUNDAY
Mt 28:1–13; Mk 16:1–20; Lk 24:1–49; Jn 20:1–31
Early in the morning, women went to the tomb and found that the stone closing the tomb's entrance had been rolled back. An angel told them Jesus was alive and gave them a message. Jesus appeared to Mary Magdalene in the garden, to Peter, to two disciples on the road to Emmaus, and later that day to all the disciples but Thomas. His resurrection was established as fact.



5. Day of controversy and parables
TUESDAY
Mt 21:23–24:51; Mk 11:27–13:37; Lk 20:1–21:36
IN JERUSALEM
Jesus evaded the traps set by the priests.
ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES OVERLOOKING JERUSALEM
(Tuesday afternoon, exact location unknown)
Jesus taught in parables and warned the people against the Pharisees. He predicted the destruction of Herod's great temple and told His disciples about future events, including His own return.
6. Day of teaching or rest
WEDNESDAY
(Not mentioned in the Gospels)
The Scriptures do not mention this day, but the counting of the days would include Wednesday (Mk 14:1; Jn 12:1).
MOUNT OF OLIVES
To the Wilderness of Judea
Bethphage
The Roman road climbed steeply to the crest of the Mount of Olives, affording a spectacular view of the Wildreness of Judea to the east and Jerusalem across the Kidron Valley to the west.
1. Arrival in Bethany
FRIDAY
Jn 12:1
Jesus arrived in Bethany six days before the Passover to spend some time with His friends Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. While here, Mary anointed His feet with costly perfume as an act of humility. This tender expression indicated Mary's devotion to Jesus and her willingness to serve Him.
2. Sabbath—Day of rest
SATURDAY
(Not mentioned in the Gospels)
Since the next day was the Sabbath, the Lord spent the day in traditional fashion with His friends.
3. Triumphal entry
SUNDAY
Mt 21:1–11; Mk 11:1–11; Lk 19:28–44; Jn 12:12–19
On the first day of the week, Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a donkey, fulfilling an ancient prophecy (Zec 9:9). The crowd welcomed Him with "Hosanna" and the words of Ps 118:25–26, thus ascribing to Him a messianic title as the agent of the Lord, the coming King of Israel.

Outline	Passages	Events	Comment
Birth and Boyhood of Jesus	1:5–25	Angel of the Lord appears to Zechariah	A major theme in the birth narratives is the shift in location of God's presence from the temple to the body of Jesus as God's temple (cf Jn 2:19–22; see CC Lk 2, p 681).
	2:21–35	Jesus presented at the temple

	2:41–52	Visit to the temple at age 12
Preparation for Ministry	4:9–11	Satan tempts Jesus to cast Himself down from the temple	We know from other Gospels that Jesus continued to visit the temple for various feasts. However, Luke contrasts Jesus' commitment to teaching outside Jerusalem and the temple with the role of the temple at the beginning and end of Jesus' life.
Ministry	13:1–3	Jesus reminds His followers about deaths at the temple	In these accounts, Jesus refers to tensions and struggles that have taken place at the temple. He would soon confront the political and self-righteous powers that gathered at the temple.
	18:9–14	Parable of the Pharisee and the tax collector at the temple
Passion	19:45–48	Cleansing of the temple	Jesus cleansed the temple and made it once again the site of His teaching.

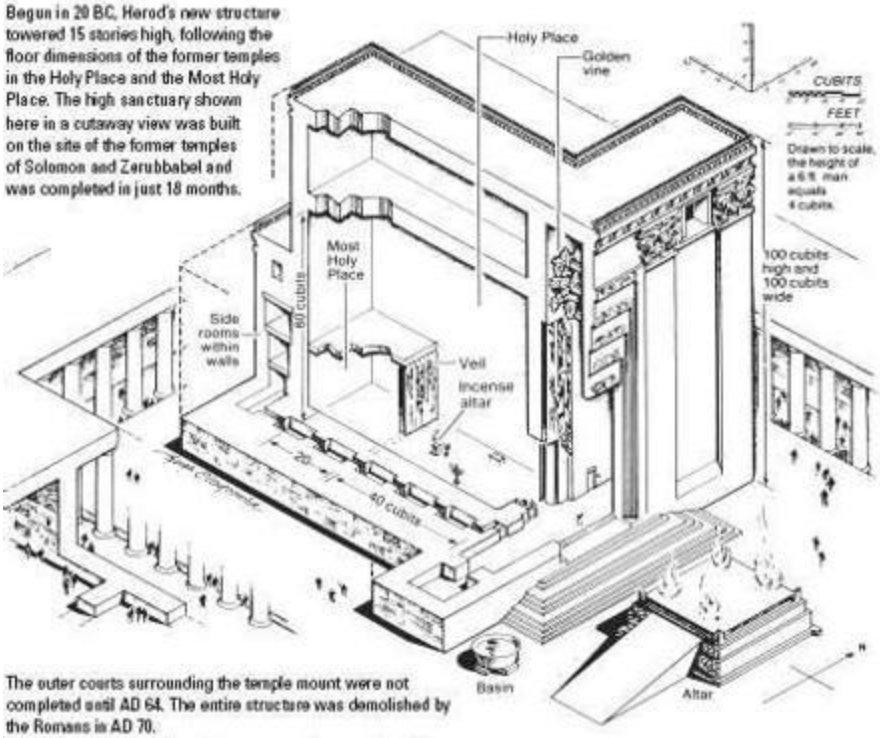
	22:3–4, 52–53	Jesus arrested by leaders from the temple
Exaltation	23:45	Curtain of the temple torn	When Jesus died, the temple's curtain tore open, showing that the separation between God and mankind ended through the death of Christ.
	24:53	Disciples continue to pray at the temple	After the resurrection, the disciples continued to gather at the temple for worship.

HEROD'S TEMPLE
20 BC–AD 70

Begun in 20 BC, Herod's new structure towered 15 stories high, following the floor dimensions of the former temples in the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. The high sanctuary shown here in a cutaway view was built on the site of the former temples of Solomon and Zerubbabel and was completed in just 18 months.



The outer courts surrounding the temple mount were not completed until AD 64. The entire structure was demolished by the Romans in AD 70.

Dimension of rooms, steps, doorways, cornices, and exterior measurements are mentioned in history (Josephus and the Mishnah) but are subject to interpretation, and all drawings vary.

SIDE ELEVATION

Was the ark still present during the Roman period? Josephus describes the Most Holy Place as having "nothing at all," which was accurate on the day he wrote it. The Mishnah hints that the ark was hidden (Shekalim 6:12). On the ark of the covenant, cf Ex 25.

Location	People Present	Meaning in the Meals
Passover in Jerusalem (Lk 2:41–50)	Mary, Joseph, and possibly other members of their extended family	Jesus faithfully kept the laws of the covenant with His family.
Wedding feast at Cana (Jn 2:1–11)	Mary, Jesus' disciples, wedding guests, and servants	Jesus did His first miraculous sign at this meal, revealing His glory and encouraging the disciples to believe in Him.
Peter's house in Capernaum (Mt 8:14–15; Mk 1:29–31; Lk 4:38–39)	Peter, Peter's mother-in-law, Andrew, James, John, visitors including the sick and demon-possessed	Peter described himself as a sinful man (Lk 5:8). However, Jesus insisted on associating with Peter, as this visit to his home indicates. By staying with a man like Peter, Jesus showed that He was different from the Pharisees.
Dinner at Matthew's house (Mt 9:10–13; Mk 2:15–17; Lk 5:29–32)	Matthew, the disciples, tax collectors, and "sinners"	By eating with tax collectors and "sinners," Jesus crossed an important social boundary within Israel and drew sharp criticism from the Pharisees and scribes. Jesus' answer to them reveals His mission: to restore the fallen through repentance and forgiveness.
A house in Galilee (Mk 3:20)	The disciples and a crowd	The healing provided by Jesus as well as His remarkable teachings drew large crowds. He and His disciples were so overwhelmed by the crowds that they did not even have time to eat. Cf Mk 6:31.
Simon the Pharisee's house (Lk 7:36–50)	Simon, a sinful woman, and other guests	Pharisees still invited Jesus into their homes, but their motive may have been to entrap Him rather than support Him. The woman was probably a repentant prostitute.
Feeding of the 5,000 (Mt 14:13–21; Mk 6:30–44; Lk 9:10–17; Jn 6:1–15)	The 12 disciples, a boy, and a great crowd of men, women, and children	John notes that this miracle took place when Passover was near (Jn 6:4). Jesus used these circumstances to test His disciples (6:6). Their responses show that they did not yet understand who Jesus was. The response of the disciples may have been similar to the response of the crowds, who wanted to make Jesus their king (6:15). In Jn 6:25–40, Jesus explains the miracle and reveals who He is: the bread of life. He shocks the crowd by describing Himself as a sacrifice that they must eat (the new Passover).
Feeding of the 4,000 (Mt 15:29–39; Mk 8:1–10)	The 12 disciples, a large crowd including many sick people	This miracle gives another example of Jesus' compassion for His followers.
Mary and Martha's house in Bethany (Lk 10:38–42)	Mary, Martha, and the disciples	Jesus' commendation to Mary shows that, for Him, the most important part of the meal was the teaching and conversation that accompanied the gathering.
A Pharisee's house in Judea (Lk 11:37–54)	A Pharisee, an expert in the law	When Jesus did not wash His hands before eating, conflict developed. Jesus pronounced six woes against the Pharisees and experts in the law.
Simon the leper's house in Bethany (Mt 26:6–13; Mk 14:3–9; Jn 12:1–8)	Mary (a woman with an alabaster flask), Martha, Lazarus, Simon, and the disciples	Simon's nickname shows that he had been unclean (perhaps Jesus had healed him). Lepers typically lived in isolation, but Jesus and His disciples recline at the table with Simon. Strangely, the leprosy does not cause a scandal, but Mary's expensive act of devotion does.
The Last Supper in Jerusalem (Mt 26:17–30; Mk 14:12–26; Lk 22:7–38; Jn 13)	The 12 disciples	Jesus transforms the commemoration of the Passover into a meal of forgiveness and salvation for His disciples through His body and blood. Unlike at public meals Jesus hosted, here He celebrated the Lord's Supper with the disciples alone, in keeping with the boundaries of Passover.
Meal at Emmaus (Lk 24:30–35)	Cleopas and a traveling companion	Jesus uses the words and actions reminiscent of the Lord's Supper. The two disciples recognize Him when He breaks the bread.
Jerusalem visit (Lk 24:36–43)	Cleopas, his traveling companion, the 11 disciples, and others	Jesus ate broiled fish in front of His disciples to demonstrate that He was physically resurrected from the dead.
Breakfast by the Sea of Galilee (Jn 21:1–14)	Simon Peter, Thomas, Nathanael, James, John, two other disciples	Jesus hosted a meal of fish for His disciples and encouraged them to remain in the ministry.

Woman	Social Status	Relationship to Jesus
Elizabeth (Lk 1:5–25, 36–45, 56–66)	Mother of John the Baptist. She was a descendant of the high priest Aaron, wife of the priest Zechariah, and a relative of Mary.	We do not know for certain whether Elizabeth was a great aunt of a cousin to Jesus. She encouraged Mary while she was pregnant with Jesus. Given Elizabeth's advanced age (1:7), she probably did not live long enough to witness the ministry of John and Jesus.
Mary of Nazareth (Mt 1:18–25; 2:11, 13–23; 12:46–50; Mk 3:31–35; 6:3; Lk 1:26–56; 2:4–7, 16–19, 22–24, 33–35, 41–51; 8:19–21; Jn 2:1–5; 19:26–27; Ac 1:14)	The wife of Joseph the carpenter and the mother of Jesus, James, Jude, and other children.	Mary was Jesus' mother. She respected Him and knew He was special (Jn 2:1–5) but was confused by His calling (Lk 2:48–49). She did not agree with Jesus' decision to leave the carpentry trade and live as a rabbi (Mk 3:21; Lk 8:19–21). Jesus downplayed the suggestion that Mary was especially blessed because of their earthly relationship (Lk 11:27–28). At the crucifixion, He showed kindness to her by entrusting her to the care of the apostle John (Jn 19:26–27). She gathered with the apostles after Jesus' resurrection (Ac 1:14). Rv 12 may memorialize her special role in history as a representative of Israel and as the mother of the Christ.
Anna the Prophetess (Lk 2:36–38)	Daughter of Phanuel of the tribe of Asher. She probably lived and served in the temple courts.	Anna (Hbf Hannah) gave thanks for Jesus and spread the news of His birth. Her name reminds readers of the thanks offered by Hannah in 1Sm 2.
Mother-in-law of Simon Peter (Mt 8:14–15; Mk 1:30–31; Lk 4:38–39)	A resident of Capernaum on the shore of the Sea of Galilee.	Jesus healed Peter's mother-in-law, and she waited on Him and His disciples.
A sinful woman (Lk 7:36–50)	A sinner unwelcome in the social circles of religious men.	Jesus welcomed this woman's act of repentance and devotion. He used this opportunity to reveal His authority as God's Son and to illustrate the blessings of God's kingdom available to all sinners.
Mary Magdalene (Mt 27:56, 61; 28:1; Mk 15:40, 47; 16:1, 9–11; Lk 8:2; 24:10; Jn 19:25; 20:1–2, 11–18)	A woman from Magdala, a town on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee.	Jesus cast seven demons out of Mary. She followed Him, supported His ministry, and witnessed His crucifixion. She lingered at Jesus' tomb and was the first person to see Him after the resurrection, addressing Him as "Teacher" (Jn 20:16). He forbade her to cling to Him and sent her to tell the other disciples about His resurrection.
Joanna (Lk 8:3; 24:10)	The wife of Chuza, who managed the household of Herod (Antipas?).	Joanna supported Jesus' ministry and witnessed His resurrection.
Susanna (Lk 8:3)	No other information.	Susanna supported Jesus' ministry.
Woman with hemorrhage (Lk 8:43–48)	A ceremonially unclean woman whose health problem restricted her participation at the temple and in the community.	Jesus fondly refers to this woman as "daughter" and commends her great faith.
Daughter of Jairus (Mt 9:18–19, 23–26; Mk 5:22–24, 35–43; Lk 8:40–42, 49–56)	Her father was ruler of a synagogue in Galilee. She was his only daughter.	She died from sickness at the age of 12. At the request of her father, Jesus raised her from the dead by taking her hand and calling out, "Little girl, ... arise" (Mk 5:41). He also made sure she had something to eat.
Mary and Martha (Mt 26:6–13; Mk 14:3–9; Lk 10:38–42; Jn 11:1–44; 12:1–8)	Residents of Bethany in Judea, sisters to Lazarus. They were probably wealthy.	Martha welcomed Jesus (and probably His disciples) into her home. Jesus taught there. He drew attention to the different actions of the sisters to emphasize the value of His teaching. Jesus grieved with the sisters over the death of Lazarus and comforted them by raising him from the dead. During a feast at Simon the leper's house, Mary poured an expensive perfume on Jesus' feet and wiped them with her hair. (This action anticipated Jesus' death and burial a week later.) Jesus defended Mary when the disciples complained that she was wasteful.
A woman in the crowd (Lk 11:27–28)	No other information.	Some challenged Jesus' power to cast out demons. This woman apparently spoke up to express her admiration for Jesus' miracles and teachings. Jesus used her blessing to draw attention to God's Word and obedience in contrast to the lack of faith demonstrated by those who questioned Him.
A disabled woman (Lk 13:10–17)	She had suffered this affliction for 18 years.	Through this healing, Jesus showed the Sabbath to be a day of salvation, not bondage.
A poor widow (Mk 12:41–44; Lk 21:1–4)	No other information.	Jesus commends her extreme generosity. Widows who did not have a son to provide for them were exceptionally vulnerable to poverty. The apostles later made special provision for such widows (Ac 4:34–35; 6:1–7).
A servant girl (Lk 22:56–57)	No other information.	This girl correctly identified Peter on the night he betrayed Jesus.
Daughters of Jerusalem (Lk 23:27–31)	Local disciples, not women who had followed Jesus from Galilee.	"Daughters of Jerusalem" evokes the prophet's words to the "daughters of Zion," who publicly mourned or rejoiced over the state of their city (cf Sg 3:11). See p 1079.
Galilean Women (Lk 23:55–24:11)	Among the women mentioned in Lk 8:1–2.	These faithful disciples cared for the body of Jesus like family members.
Mary from Galilee (Lk 24:10)	The mother of James, probably the wife of Zebedee.	One of the first witnesses of the resurrection. In a reversal of typical social order, Jesus appeared first to His female disciples.

Statement	Hearer	Application
1:51: "You will see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man."	Nathanael	Jesus prophesies that His display of divine power (recognizing Nathanael before He meets him) is only the beginning of His heaven-sent ministry.
3:3: "Unless one is born again he cannot see the kingdom of God."	Nicodemus	This leader of the people wants to believe Jesus but does not quite understand who Jesus is. The Lord interrupts Nicodemus three times and quickly points out his spiritual need: he must be born again.
3:5: "Unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God."
3:11: "We speak of what we know, and bear witness to what we have seen."
5:19: "The Son can do nothing of His own accord, but only what He sees the Father doing."	The crowds	As Jesus explains His mission and ministry among the Jewish people, many challenge Him or misunderstand His message. With each "Amen, amen" statement, He confronts these challenges and misunderstandings, calling people to faith.
5:24: "Whoever hears My word and believes Him who sent Me has eternal life."
5:25: "An hour is coming, and is now here, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God."
6:26: "You are seeking Me, not because you saw signs, but because you ate your fill of the loaves."
6:47: "Whoever believes has eternal life."
6:53: "Unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you have no life in you."
8:34: "Everyone who commits sin is a slave to sin."
8:51: "If anyone keeps My word, he will never see death."
8:58: "Before Abraham was, I am."
10:1: "He who does not enter the sheepfold by the door but climbs in by another way, that man is a thief and a robber."	The Pharisees	Jesus' harsh words toward the Pharisees demonstrate His growing frustration with their unbelief.
10:7: "I am the door of the sheep."

Description	Meaning
Dove (1:32)	Doves (pigeons) were sacrificed in the temple as part of the cleansing rituals of the OT (Lv 5:5–10; 15:13–15). Christ gives you the Spirit in Baptism, which cleanses you from all sin (Ti 3:4–7).
Wind (3:8)	The Spirit hovered over the face of the waters at the beginning of creation (Gn 1:2) and through God's Word brought forth life. Just as wind moves invisibly and uncontrollably, the Spirit works when and where He pleases through God's Word and Baptism to give life to you and all believers in Christ.
God (4:24)	The Spirit is not a thing or a power but God Himself (notice how Jesus uses the personal pronoun He to refer to the Spirit: 14:26 [based on Gk text]; 15:26; 16:13). You worship the triune God in and through the Spirit of God.
Words (6:63)	At the beginning of the Gospel, John used Word to describe Jesus. Now Jesus uses words to describe the Spirit, through whom He gives life. The Spirit of Jesus works in your life through the Word of God.
Rivers of Living Water (7:38–39)	Jesus refers to the promise given through Isaiah that God would satisfy the thirst of His people (Is 58:11). Because you are a believer, the Spirit dwells in and flows from you, welling up to eternal life (Jn 4:10, 13–14).
Helper (14:16, 26; 15:26)	The Spirit sent by the Father and Jesus will teach the disciples and remind them of Jesus' words. This would include the way the Spirit guided the apostles and inspired them to record the books of the NT. These passages also describe the inner workings of the Holy Trinity on your behalf.
Spirit of Truth (15:26; 16:13)	The spirit of falsehood, at work in the sinful hearts of humanity, would deceive the disciples. Therefore, Jesus sends the Spirit of truth to guide the disciples into all truth. Note well that the Spirit does not speak on His own. He speaks on behalf of the Father and Jesus and testifies about Jesus. Note again that Jesus binds the work of the Spirit to His Word.
Holy (20:22)	The Spirit makes you holy through the forgiveness of sins you receive in the Gospel. Just as Christ called and sent the apostles to proclaim this forgiveness, He calls and sends pastors to proclaim publicly forgiveness of sins (Absolution).

BURIAL BENCH

This diagram is based on average measurements of more than 60 tombs. Though drawn precisely, it is meant only to suggest a design concept. (A kokh is a long, narrow burial vault.)

"But Mary stood weeping outside the tomb, and as she wept she stooped to look into the tomb. And she saw two angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had lain, one at the head and one at the feet" (Jn 20:11–12, emphasis added).

In John's Gospel, Mary Magdalene observed two seated angelic beings. On the prior Friday, the body of Jesus had been hurriedly wrapped in linen and brought to the tomb. On the morning that the resurrection was discovered, the burial cloth was found neatly folded on the burial bench (Jn 20:6–7).

Healing the paralytic Aeneas (9:32–35)	Peter	Jesus Christ: "Peter said to him, 'Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you' " (9:34).

THE APOSTLES' MINISTRY (ACTS 1–12)

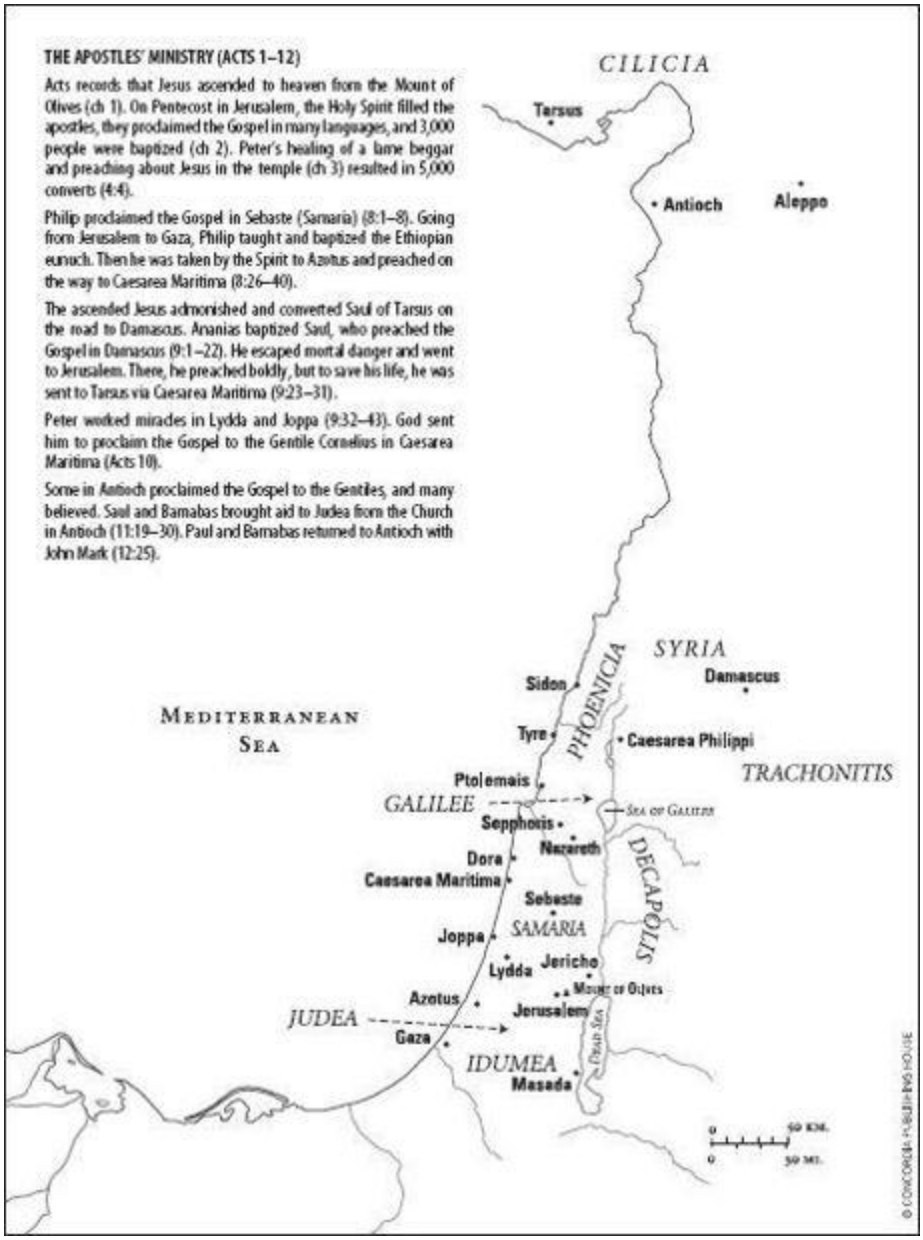
Acts records that Jesus ascended to heaven from the Mount of Olives (ch 1). On Pentecost in Jerusalem, the Holy Spirit filled the apostles, they proclaimed the Gospel in many languages, and 3,000 people were baptized (ch 2). Peter's healing of a lame beggar and preaching about Jesus in the temple (ch 3) resulted in 5,000 converts (4:4).

Philip proclaimed the Gospel in Sebaste (Samaria) (8:1–8). Going from Jerusalem to Gaza, Philip taught and baptized the Ethiopian eunuch. Then he was taken by the Spirit to Azotus and preached on the way to Caesarea Maritima (8:26–40).

The ascended Jesus admonished and converted Saul of Tarsus on the road to Damascus. Ananias baptized Saul, who preached the Gospel in Damascus (9:1–22). He escaped mortal danger and went to Jerusalem. There, he preached boldly, but to save his life, he was sent to Tarsus via Caesarea Maritima (9:23–31).

Peter worked miracles in Lydda and Joppa (9:32–43). God sent him to proclaim the Gospel to the Gentile Cornelius in Caesarea Maritima (Acts 10).

Some in Antioch proclaimed the Gospel to the Gentiles, and many believed. Saul and Barnabas brought aid to Judea from the Church in Antioch (11:19–30). Paul and Barnabas returned to Antioch with John Mark (12:25).



Filled with the Holy Spirit

Person(s)	Setting	Blessings
John the Baptist (Lk 1:15)	Prophecy spoken by the angel Gabriel to Zechariah	The Spirit would fill John his entire life and distinguish him as a holy man.

Zechariah (Lk 1:67)	Naming of John the Baptist at his circumcision	Zechariah had lost his ability to speak because he doubted that God would give him a son. Now the Spirit restores Zechariah's ability to speak. He praises God and prophesies about the ministry of his son, John.
Jesus (Lk 4:1)	Baptism at the Jordan River	The Holy Spirit had descended on Jesus at His Baptism. The Spirit now leads Jesus into the wilderness for a time of fasting.
The 11 apostles (and other disciples?) (Ac 2:4)	The Feast of Pentecost	The apostles and probably other believers praised God and spoke in a variety of languages, bearing witness to the Jewish people who had gathered for the festival.
Peter (Ac 4:8)	Sermon before the Council	Peter boldly proclaimed salvation through Christ.
Peter, John, and other disciples (Ac 4:31)	Prayer following the release of Peter and John by the Council	The disciples spoke the Word of God boldly.
Stephen and the first deacons (Ac 6:3, 5)	The choosing of the deacons	The deacons were recognized as men full of the Spirit. They took responsibility for serving the widows of the church, freeing up the apostles for prayer and ministry of the Word. As a result, God's Word spread.
Stephen (Ac 7:55)	Stephen's martyrdom before the Jewish Council	Stephen received a vision of God's glory. Before a crowd, he proclaimed the exalted position of Christ.

Teaching about the Gift(s) of the Holy Spirit

Person	Setting	Blessings

Jesus (Ac 1:5)	A meal after the resurrection	Jesus reminds the apostles about John the Baptist's prophecy (Mt 3:11), which would soon be fulfilled.
Peter (Ac 11:16)	The Jerusalem Church	Peter explains the events he witnessed at Cornelius's house in Caesarea. The Jerusalem Church accepts Peter's testimony that the Gentiles could also repent and receive the Gospel.

Speaking in Tongues

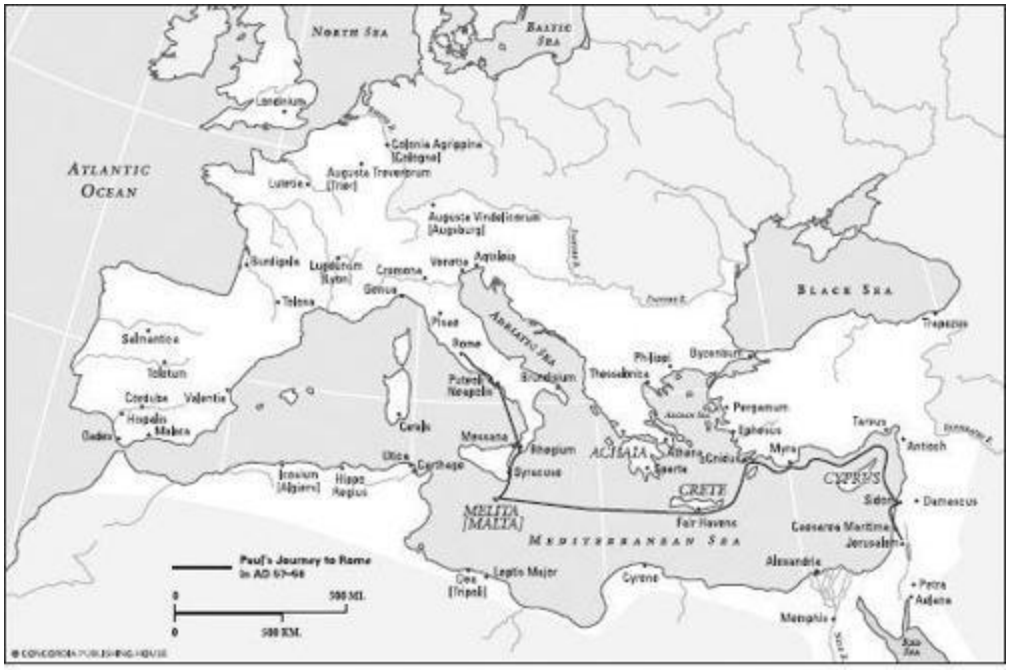
Person(s)	Setting	Blessings
The 11 apostles (and other disciples?) (Ac 2:4)	The Feast of Pentecost	God fulfilled the prophecy of Jl 2:28–32 about the Spirit's work. The crowd heard God's Word in their own languages.
Gentiles (Ac 10:46)	Cornelius's house in Caesarea	The Gentiles praised God in other languages, demonstrating that they, too, could receive God's blessings and be baptized. The Jewish believers recognized that God was calling uncircumcised people into the Church.
Disciples of John the Baptist (Ac 19:6)	Ephesus	The disciples of John learned that his teaching about the coming Savior was fulfilled in Jesus Christ. They were baptized into Christ.

PAUL'S MISSIONARY JOURNEYS (ACTS 13–21)

First journey (AD 47–48): The Holy Spirit sent Saul, Barnabas, and John Mark from Antioch in Syria via Seleucia to Salamis, then overland to Paphos (Ac 13:1–12). The three continued to Perga, where John Mark left them for Jerusalem (13:13). Saul, also called Paul (13:9), and Barnabas continued to Antioch in Pisidia (13:14–50), Iconium (13:51–14:6a), Lystra, and Derbe (14:6b–20), from whence they retraced their steps back to Pisidian Antioch, then went to Attalia and Syrian Antioch (14:21–28).

Second journey (AD 49–51): Paul and Barnabas separated (15:36–39) while in Syrian Antioch. Paul and Silas went through Syria and Cilicia (15:40–41). They came to Derbe and Lystra, where Timothy joined them (16:1–5). The Spirit led them throughout Galatia and Phrygia to Troas, where they continued, via the island of Samothrace (not shown), to Macedonia; then they traveled to Neapolis and Philippi (16:6–40). They continued via Amphipolis and Apollonia to Thessalonica, Berea, Athens, and Corinth (17:1–18:17). Paul stayed 18 months there (18:11). He journeyed via Cenchreae and Ephesus to Caesarea Maritima, Jerusalem, and Syrian Antioch (18:18–22).

Third journey (AD 52–55): Paul took the inland route from Syrian Antioch and eventually arrived in Ephesus, where he stayed for two years and three months (18:23–19:41). He visited Macedonia and Achaia, and then sailed from Philippi to Troas (19:21; 20:1–12) on his way to Jerusalem. From Troas, he sailed via Assos, Mitylene, Miletus (where he met the Ephesian elders), Rhodes, and Patara to Tyre (20:13–21:6). He sailed to Ptolemais and Caesarea Maritima, and went on foot from there to Jerusalem (21:7–17).



THE ROMAN EMPIRE AND PAUL'S JOURNEY TO ROME. The Roman Empire formed the backdrop for the ministries of Jesus and the apostles. Jesus was born during the reign of Caesar Augustus (27 BC–AD 14; Lk 2:1). He carried out His earthly ministry, was crucified, and rose from the dead during the reign of Tiberius (AD 14–37; Lk 3:1). Claudius (AD 41–54) expelled Jews (and Jewish Christians) from Rome (Ac 18:2). Under Nero (AD 54–68), Paul journeyed to Rome to make his appeal to Caesar and bear witness to Christ there (AD 57–58; Acts 27–28). Later, Nero persecuted Christians, and in AD 68, Paul and Peter were martyred in Rome.

Unwritten Law	Written Law
Law of nature (physis): God's universal order evident in the physical creation (1:26; 2:14, 27)	The Law (nomos): moral, civil, and ceremonial law given through Moses in the Torah, the first five books of the OT (2:12–13, 17–27; 3:19–21, 27–31; 4:13–15; 5:15, 20; 6:14–15; 7:4–6)
A law for themselves: the influence of God's created order continues in all cultures (2:14)	The written code: the scroll of the Mosaic Law and its literal interpretation (2:27, 29; 7:6)
The law of marriage: a particular example of God's order found in all cultures (7:1–3)	The Law's requirements: the spirit or intent of the Mosaic Law (2:26; 8:4)
	The Commandments: the Ten Commandments that make up the heart of the Mosaic Law (7:7–13)

Concern	Romans
Children are not accountable for sin until they reach the "age of accountability."	"The wages of sin is death" (6:23). The fact that children die shows that they are subject to sin just like adults. The Bible never mentions an age of accountability. Instead, it teaches that "the whole world [is] held accountable to God" (3:19). Cf Ps 51:5; Eph 2:3.
The Bible never explicitly commands that infants should be baptized.	The Bible never sets an age limit for Baptism or salvation. It teaches that "all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (3:23). All people from birth need the new life God offers in Christ. Rm 6:3 states that "all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus" receive the benefits of His death and life. Cf Mt 19:14; 28:19–20 (note the "all"). Mt 18:6 teaches that little ones can receive the blessing of faith. Ac 2:38–39 explicitly includes children among those who inherit God's promised gift of the Holy Spirit (cf Lk 1:15).
A child must first understand and make a personal commitment before Baptism.	Paul warns that the sinful mind is hostile to God. It does not and cannot submit to God's Law (8:7). This is true of children and adults. We are born enemies of God and slaves to sin. But in Baptism, "our old self was crucified with Him in order that the body of sin might be brought to nothing, so that we would no longer be enslaved to sin" (6:6). Cf Gal 3:26–27; 4:3–7.
Baptism only symbolizes the washing away of sin.	Paul does not describe Baptism as a mere symbol. It is a spiritual death to sin. It produces new life that leads to eternal life (6:3–5). Cf Lk 3:3; Jn 3:5; Ti 3:5–7; 1Pt 3:21–22.

Work of the Holy Spirit	Meaning for You
Hallowing or sanctifying 1:4; 8:13	Holiness, like salvation, is not something you attain by your own efforts. Holiness is God's gift to you, begun and completed through the work of the Holy Spirit. As you struggle to overcome sin, pray to the "Spirit of holiness" for strength and comfort.
Leading 8:1–5, 14	Every moment of your life as a Christian is intimately tied up in the work of the Spirit. Through the Word and witness of other believers, the Spirit leads you to greater faith and certainty.
Renewing 7:6	When you condemn yourself for your failures by beating yourself up with the Law, remember that God wants to renew your life with His Holy Spirit. The Law of God is good, but it has no power to renew. Certainly repent of your sins when you recognize them. In view of the Gospel, joyfully confess your sins and live in the new life God gives.
Life-giving 8:2, 10	Life, whether physical or spiritual, always comes as a gift. Begin each day like a newborn child resting in the Father's care, for He gives you life by His Spirit.
Indwelling 8:9	The Holy Spirit of God is with believers always. God actually makes our hearts His home!
Bearing witness 8:15–16	When you have moments of doubt, the Holy Spirit will bring God's Word to your mind and comfort you with the enduring promise of your heavenly Father's love.
Interceding 8:26–27	The Spirit of God prays for you! When you do not know what to pray, depend on the Holy Spirit to express your heart's deepest needs and burdens before the throne of heaven.
Working miracles 15:19	The Spirit of God is no passive passenger in the life of a believer. He works miracles in accordance with God's mercy.
Fostering love 15:30	Many new believers (and not a few mature ones!) are overwhelmed by the love expressed between Christians. This is the Spirit's work among God's people.

View of Faith	Source	Explanation	What Is the Difference?
Faith in faith (Fideism)	Existentialism	You should trust in something or someone, whether Christ, Buddha, or anything else. Your commitment itself saves you, not what you commit to.	If you are drowning in the ocean, will it matter what you cling to (life preserver, passing shark, anchor, etc.)? Faith in faith is misguided. Saving faith trusts in Jesus Christ, the only Savior.
Faith in feelings (Emotionalism)	Revivalism	You can confirm your salvation through an emotional or religious experience. If you have a positive feeling toward God, God will have a positive feeling toward you.	Feeling safe does not make you safe. E.g., if you were drowning in the ocean but convinced yourself that you would be rescued, would that save you? Feelings do not always grasp the true nature of a situation. However, God's Word and promise of salvation are faithful. Feelings should follow God's Word and faith (Rm 5:1; Eph 3:12).
Faith as work offered to God (Synergism)	Heresy of Pelagius (c 354–420) and others	God does most of the work in salvation, but you must do your part by putting your faith in Him and living a good life.	If you drowned and died in the ocean, you would obviously have no power to cooperate with a rescuer. In a similar way, the Bible declares you dead in your sins (Rm 5:12; Eph 2:1). Unless God rescues you and resuscitates you through the Gospel, you are surely lost.
Faith as God's gift	Scriptural truth taught by Christ, the apostles, Church Fathers, and Martin Luther	God's promise of salvation creates faith, or trust, in your heart. Faith is a gift you receive through the Gospel of forgiveness in Christ (Rm 1:16; Eph 2:8–9).	Just as a dead person in the midst of the ocean is lost without the help of a rescuer, you are utterly lost unless God rescues you. God finds you dead in your sins (Rm 3:10–18; Eph 2:5). He sends His Son to rescue you (Rm 5:6–9; Eph 1:5). Through the Gospel, Christ resuscitates you—then you believe (Rm 10:14, 17; Eph 1:13)!

Events	Overview	Application for You
A sincere Jewish family Mt 1:21–14 c AD 30	We first hear about James and Jude because of their opposition to Jesus' teaching ministry in Galilee. The criticism spoken by Jesus' family mingled with the accusations of the teachers from Jerusalem, who asserted that Jesus was demon-possessed. The family seems to have conscientiously followed the customs of first-century Judaism and respected such teachers of the Law based in Jerusalem (cf Lk 2:21–24, 39, 41–42). They probably regarded Jesus' appointing of disciples and His outspoken teachings as a rebellion against religious authority. When they tried to take charge of Jesus (Mk 3:21), they may have sought to protect Him from the authorities (cf Mk 3:6).	Joseph and Mary did their best to raise their family. Yet this did not prevent them from experiencing conflict. The same is true for your family. So much of who you are depends on what you have learned and experienced in your family of nurturing relationships. Learn from the Lord's Word and do your best for your family. When you make mistakes, forgive yourself and also lead your children to sincere faith (Jas 3:16–18).
Sons of a carpenter Mt 13:55; Mk 6:3 c AD 30	We next hear about James and Jude (Judas) from the lips of their neighbors in Nazareth. They describe the ordinary character of the family, uneducated descendants of a carpenter. "Carpenter" (tekhtōn) could mean a wood craftsman, a stonemason, or a metalworker. In the Gospels, Jesus frequently refers to stonework (Mt 7:24–27; 16:18; 21:42–44; 24:1–2), perhaps indicating that the family trade was stone construction instead of woodwork.	Whether you stem from peasants or kings, God has purpose for your life (Jas 2:1–5; 4:13–17). Whatever the Lord gives you to do, do it with all your might.
Family jealousy Jn 7:1–5 AD 32	The sarcasm of Jesus' brothers reveals jealousy and resentment over His popularity. It may also express fear, because Jesus was endangering Himself and His family. Jesus did not attend the Feast of Booths with His family that year but went up to Jerusalem secretly with His disciples.	When angry words divide your family, do not give up hope. Jesus knows the pain of such divisions. Seek your healing in His life-giving words of peace (Jas 1:19–21).
Witness of the resurrection 1Co 15:7 AD 33	According to St Paul, James was one of the first people to whom Jesus appeared after His resurrection. Jude does not seem to have held the same leadership role that James held. Jude is rarely mentioned.	If members of your family attain prominence or status, do not resent them (Jas 1:9–10). Thank God for their service and prayerfully support them.
Reconciled to Jesus before Pentecost Ac 1:14 AD 33	After the resurrection, Jesus' mother and brothers waited in Jerusalem with the early believers (Lk 24:52–53; Ac 1:13). At this time, Peter seems to have been the leader of the Church in Jerusalem.	Jesus sought out His brothers and mother. Despite their sinful disputes, they were reconciled to one another. When disputes arise in your family, pray for reconciliation through Christ (Jas 3:17–18).
James meets Paul Gal 1:19 c AD 38	A few years after Paul's conversion, he met James in Jerusalem. James would later become an important advocate for Paul in the dispute over the mission to the Gentiles.	Recognize the importance of relationships for the work of the Church (Jas 2:8–13). Reach out to one another with encouragement.
James leads in Jerusalem Ac 12:17 c AD 44	After Peter escaped from prison, he mentioned James distinctly from the other disciples, marking James's rise as a leader in the Jerusalem Church. Note: The name James (Hebrew Jacob) was popular for first-century Jewish people. Do not confuse James the brother of Jesus with James the brother of John (Ac 12:2) or James the son of Alphaeus (Mt 10:3; Ac 1:13).	Leaders will come and go in your congregation. Appreciate the strengths of each and forgive their weaknesses (Jas 1:1–2).
James's strict Jewish representatives Gal 2:1–12 c AD 49	Paul described another visit to Jerusalem, where he met with James, James, Peter, and John—regarded as pillars of the Church—welcomed Paul. They encouraged him to preach to the Gentiles and collect alms for the poor in Jerusalem. When James sent representatives to the Jewish/Gentile congregation in Antioch, the strict Jewish purity practices of the representatives divided the Antioch congregation. This sparked a confrontation between Peter and Paul. It also led to the first Church Council in Jerusalem.	If you have not experienced division in your congregation, know with certainty that you will. Because of sin, members of every congregation harbor sinful attitudes. When a division arises, do not panic. Turn to Jesus for help (Jas 4:6–10). Base your decisions on God's Word and love for your brothers and sisters in Christ.
Jerusalem Council Ac 15:1–20 c AD 49	James accepted Peter's report about faith among the Gentiles. He also accepted Paul and Barnabas's report about the progress of the Gentile mission. These decisions by James were key events at the first Jerusalem Council of the Church. James's judgment seems to have been instrumental in ending the dispute about the practices of the Gentile mission.	Understand your authority and role in your congregation as a voice of a leader. Exercise your calling for the good of the church and the support of God's mission (Jas 5:7–11).
Joy over the Gentile mission Ac 21:18–26 AD 55	When Paul visited Jerusalem before his arrest, he made a presentation to James and the elders of the Jerusalem Church about the progress of the mission to the Gentiles. They praised God for the conversion of the Gentiles and warned Paul that false reports were circulating in Jerusalem about his mission activities. They encouraged Paul to purify himself, according to Jewish custom, in order to quiet his critics.	Support and encourage other servants of the Word (Jas 5:13–16). When you hear about good things happening in another congregation, do not resent. Rejoice!

Example	Summary	Application
Exodus from Egypt Jude 5a; Ex 3–14	Jude begins with a positive example: how God rescued His people from Egypt.	Our lives as Christians begin with God's decisive action, rescuing us through His Son, Jesus Christ. He then calls us to lead honorable lives as we await the fullness of His mercy (Jude 21).
Wilderness Rebellion Jude 5b; Ex 15:22–17:7; 32:1–33:6; Nu 11–12; 14; 16; 20:1–13; Dt 1:26–46	Jude reminds his readers of how God did not fail to condemn and punish the sins of His chosen people.	Just because we are God's people does not mean we are immune from His judgment or discipline. In fact, because we are God's people, we can count on receiving His discipline! The Lord desires that we encourage and sustain one another until He comes again (Jude 22–23).
Rebellion of the Angels Jude 6; Mt 25:41; Lk 10:17–20; 2 Pt 2:4; Rv 12	God punished Satan and the other fallen angels (demons) for rebelling against Him. Scripture does not give us many details about this rebellion. Jude 6 may describe Satan's temptation of Adam and Eve (Gn 3) or an earlier event.	If God punishes angels for abandoning their callings, will He spare others when they rebel against Him? (Consider God's punishment for the ruler of Babylon in Is 14:3–21, which prefigures the punishment of the beast or Satan on the Last Day.)
Sodom and Gomorrah Jude 7; Gn 18:16–19:29	The wickedness of these cities brought their destruction.	God's punishment of these cities for sexual immorality serves as a warning for us. The Lord calls us to faithfulness, modesty, and mercy (Jude 22–23).
Burial of Moses Jude 9; Dt 34	God did not allow Moses to enter the Promised Land because he rebelled. Jude refers to a Jewish account about the spiritual battle surrounding Moses and rebukes the false teachers for their abusive talk.	A spiritual battle surrounds you today. Yet the Lord can keep you faithful through Christ (Jude 1). God grant you the faith of Moses and the modest words of Michael.
Cain's Way Jude 11; Gn 4:1–16	Cain murdered his brother and became a lasting example of those who profess care but harbor hatred (1 Jn 2:9–11; 3:11–15).	God grant you love for your brothers and sisters in the Gospel. He will keep you from falling (Jude 24).
Balaam's Error Jude 11; 2 Pt 2:15; Nu 22–24	Balaam sought financial gain through false teaching. Jude recognizes the same motive in the hearts of the false teachers in his day (Jude 17–19).	Christian, mind how you exercise your life's calling. Do not support false teachers with your dollars. (Think esp of the outrageous profits people make from false predictions about the end of the world.)
Korah's Rebellion Jude 11; Nu 16:1–3, 31–35	Korah stirred up other Israelites against Moses and Aaron because they were experiencing hard times. Note Jude's description of the false teachers in his day (Jude 16).	An important aspect of Moses' leadership was humility (Nu 16:4). Look for this attribute in the leadership at your congregation. Pray for your leaders and support them (Heb 13:17).
Enoch's Prophecy Jude 14–15; Gn 5:18–24	Note the fourfold repetition of "ungodly." Enoch's prophecy emphasizes God's call to holiness in contrast to the "ungodly" false teachers.	The One who calls you to holiness will also present you before the heavenly Father "blameless" (Jude 24). By the cross, He has removed all your guilt.

THE SETTING OF REVELATION

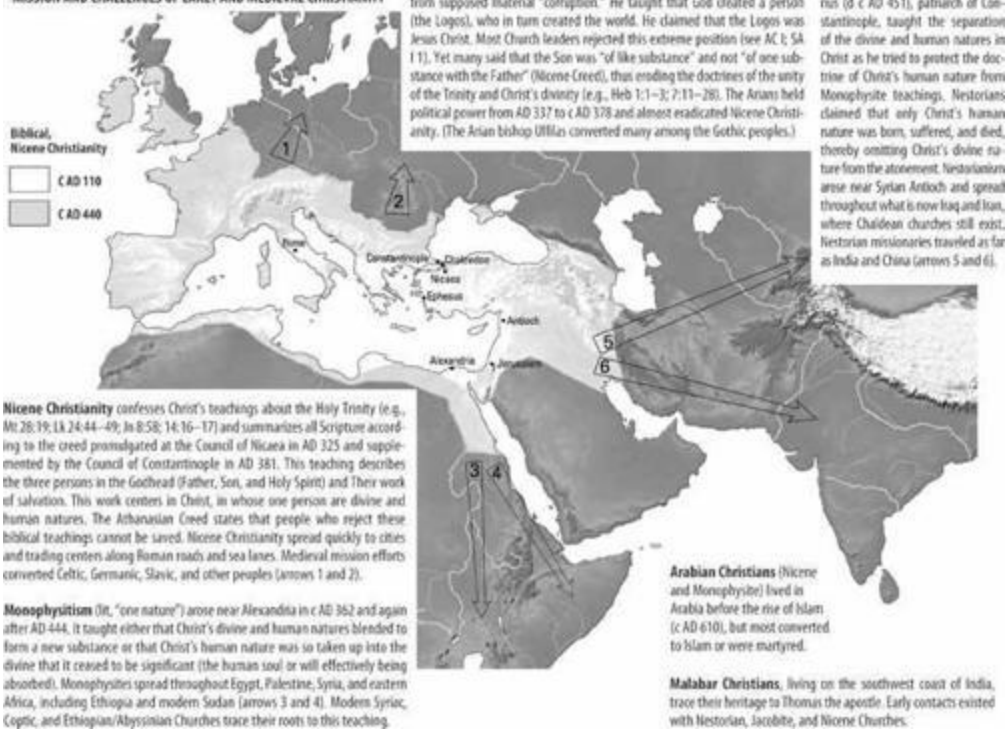
When John received his revelation, he "was on the island called Patmos on account of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus" (Rv 1:9). Patmos is a small island off the coast of Miletus.

Revelation is addressed to the seven churches in the cities marked with squares: Ephesus was an important stop on Paul's second and third missionary journeys (Ac 18:19–21; 19). It successfully vied with Smyrna and Pergamum to be the chief city of Asia Minor. Like Smyrna and the other cities mentioned by John, Ephesus embraced the emperor cult. It also held the temple of Artemis. Pergamum boasted of a great library and many pagan temples. Thyatira was known for its cloth dyers (Ac 16:14) and for general worldliness. Sardis lived to recall its past glory. Philadelphia was known for its pagan temples. Laodicea, located at an important trade-route junction, was a wool producer and a center of medicine (cf Col 4:13–16).

THE LORD'S SUPPER AFFIRMS USEFUL AND COMFORTING TEACHING

Teaching Affirmed	Basis in Christ's Words (emphases added)	For Reflection
1. Christ is our neighbor, kinsman, and brother who makes us His own people.	Take, eat. . . . Drink of it, all of you, for this is My blood of the covenant (Mt 26:26–28).	Php 3:12; Heb 2:11, 17
2. The eternal God deals with us through the human nature of His Son, who is one of us.	This is My body . . . My blood (Mt 26:26–27).	Jn 1:1, 14; 1Co 11:27–29; Php 2:5–11
3. In Christ's own person, human nature is sanctified, restored, and blessed.	I [will] drink it new in the kingdom of God (Mk 14:25).	1Co 15:22, 45, 49
4. By the bread and wine, Christ provides us an effective physical sign and seal of the promise and grace applied to us in the Lord's Supper.	Take, eat. . . . Drink of it, all of you . . . for the forgiveness of sins (Mt 26:26–28).	1Co 10:16
5. The exalted body and blood of Jesus offer to us a seal of our own coming glorification.	I [will] drink it new in the kingdom of God (Mk 14:25).	1Co 10:16–17; 15:20–23; 1Jn 2:28–3:3
6. Christ strongly wills to preserve us in the new covenant.	This is My blood of the covenant (Mt 26:28).	Jer 31:33–34; 1Co 11:25
7. The Lord's Supper is an antidote against the frailty of our faith and the forgetfulness of our nature.	Do this in remembrance of Me (Lk 22:19; 1Co 11:24).	1Co 11:26; 2Pt 1:9
8. Christ our Head is with us at the Lord's Supper and makes us members of His body and of one another.	My body . . . My blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many (Mt 26:26–28).	1Co 10:17

MISSION AND CHALLENGES OF EARLY AND MEDIEVAL CHRISTIANITY



Arianism began when a priest named Arius (d AD 336) wanted to protect God from supposed material "corruption." He taught that God created a person (the Logos), who in turn created the world. He claimed that the Logos was Jesus Christ. Most Church leaders rejected this extreme position (see AC I; SA I 1). Yet many said that the Son was "of like substance" and not "of one substance with the Father" (Nicene Creed), thus eroding the doctrines of the unity of the Trinity and Christ's divinity (e.g., Heb 1:1–3; 7:11–28). The Arians held political power from AD 337 to c AD 378 and almost eradicated Nicene Christianity. (The Arian bishop Ulfilas converted many among the Gothic peoples.)

Nestorianism began when Nestorius (d c AD 451), patriarch of Constantinople, taught the separation of the divine and human natures in Christ as he tried to protect the doctrine of Christ's human nature from Monophysite teachings. Nestorians claimed that only Christ's human nature was born, suffered, and died, thereby omitting Christ's divine nature from the atonement. Nestorianism arose near Syrian Antioch and spread throughout what is now Iraq and Iran, where Chaldean churches still exist. Nestorian missionaries traveled as far as India and China (arrows 5 and 6).

Nicene Christianity confesses Christ's teachings about the Holy Trinity (e.g., Mt 28:19; Lk 24:44–49; Jn 8:58; 14:16–17) and summarizes all Scripture according to the creed promulgated at the Council of Nicaea in AD 325 and supplemented by the Council of Constantinople in AD 381. This teaching describes the three persons in the Godhead (Father, Son, and Holy Spirit) and Their work of salvation. This work centers in Christ, in whose one person are divine and human natures. The Athanasian Creed states that people who reject these biblical teachings cannot be saved. Nicene Christianity spread quickly to cities and trading centers along Roman roads and sea lanes. Medieval mission efforts converted Celtic, Germanic, Slavic, and other peoples (arrows 1 and 2).

Monophysitism (lit, "one nature") arose near Alexandria in c AD 362 and again after AD 444. It taught either that Christ's divine and human natures blended to form a new substance or that Christ's human nature was so taken up into the divine that it ceased to be significant (the human soul or will effectively being absorbed). Monophysites spread throughout Egypt, Palestine, Syria, and eastern Africa, including Ethiopia and modern Sudan (arrows 3 and 4). Modern Syriac, Coptic, and Ethiopian/Abyssinian Churches trace their roots to this teaching.

Arabian Christians (Nicene and Monophysite) lived in Arabia before the rise of Islam (c AD 610), but most converted to Islam or were martyred.

Malabar Christians, living on the southwest coast of India, trace their heritage to Thomas the apostle. Early contacts existed with Nestorian, Jacobite, and Nicene Churches.

THE SPREAD OF LUTHERAN MISSION WORK

At the close of the Reformation, the famous Lutheran preacher and hymn writer Philip Nicolai wrote A Commentary on the Reign of Christ (1597). Nicolai's work provided a geographical survey of regions reached by the Gospel. He stirred Lutherans to increase foreign mission work.

Lutheran mission work spread in three basic ways: (1) publications of Gospel literature; (2) missionaries sent by Lutheran rulers, churches, and mission societies; and (3) Lutheran congregations established by immigrants. The map here highlights five centuries of work by Lutheran missionaries—only a sampling—which we hope will stir you to support further mission work.

1523—Luther writes Jesus Christ Was a Jew by Birth as a missionary tract; in 1529, he publishes the Small Catechism to support the instruction of converts to Christianity.

1557—Primus Truber translates and publishes the Gospels, the Catechism, and other resources for the Croats and the Wends.

1558—Estonian, Latvian, and Livonian Lutheran peasants are resettled in Russia.

1559—Swedish King Gustav Wasa begins and supports mission work among the Lapplanders.

1634—Peter Heyling begins mission work in Egypt and Ethiopia.

1648—John Campanius translates the Catechism for the Delaware Indians.

1706—Bartholomäus Ziegenbalg and Heinrich Plütschau begin mission work in Tranquebar (Thatangambadi), India.

1721—Hans Egede serves as missionary to the Eskimos in Greenland.

1742—Johann Philipp Fabricius begins mission work with the Tamil in Madras (Chennai), India.

1749—German Lutheran immigrants land at Halifax, Nova Scotia.

1762—Christian Frederick Schwartz conducts mission work at Trichinopoly (Tiruchirapalli) and, later, Tanjore (Thanjavur), India.

1965—Lutheran Bible Translators (originally, "Messengers of Christ") send Don and Mary Murray to the Philippines.

The Cold War (1948–91) interfered with the development of new mission work. Since the collapse of communism, Lutheran mission work has begun anew in parts of Eastern Europe and Asia (e.g., Kyrgyzstan, 1998), as well as in Côte d'Ivoire and Guinea in Africa. In 1993, the International Lutheran Council (ILC) was organized at Antigua, Guatemala, and is strengthening the bonds of confessional Lutheran Churches worldwide.

As Scripture and the Nicene Creed teach, Jesus Christ "will come again with glory . . . whose kingdom will have no end." Therefore, we boldly pray the words of Luther's mission hymn, "O let the people praise Thy worth, In all good works increasing; The land shall plenteous fruit bring forth, Thy Word is rich in blessing. May God the Father, God the Son, And God the Spirit bless us! Let all the world praise Him alone, Let solemn awe possess us. Now let our hearts say, 'Amen!'" (LSB 823:3).

Jesus came and stood among them and said to them, “Peace be with you.” John 20:19

Whoever believes and holds to Christ's Word, heaven stands open to him, hell is shut, the devil is imprisoned, sins are forgiven, and he is a child of eternal life. That is what this book teaches you—the Holy Scripture—and no other book on earth.

Contributors

Around 600 laypeople, church workers, and scholars contributed to the development of The Lutheran Study Bible, including people from Lutheran churches in Australia, Brazil, Canada, Czech Republic, England, Ethiopia, Finland, Germany, Ghana, Haiti, India, Kenya, Korea, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Russia, South Africa, Ukraine, and the United States. The editors wish to thank God for the service of each person. Because of the number of contributors, the material needed to be edited for consistency of content and presentation. The general editor finalized the text in consultation with colleagues and reviewers.

Grow in His Word Research Project

The development team believed that it was most important to seek input from people who would actually use the Study Bible day-by-day. To begin development, we invited more than 400 laypeople and church workers to read portions of the ESV translation and submit their questions about the readings. We carefully studied the nearly 1,500 questions people submitted. Then we prepared our notes to answer the kinds of questions people asked. The result is a very thorough set of notes that presents both insight and application.

Acknowledgments

The Lutheran Study Bible was prepared with the help of a doctrinal review team that was specially appointed by the Office of the President of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod. The editors are grateful for the support of President Rev. Dr. Gerald B. Kieschnick and the work of the doctrinal reviewers. We give thanks to God for their careful review and their many improvements to the manuscript.

The support of CPH President Dr. Bruce G. Kintz, Vice President Jonathan D. Schultz, and Publisher and Executive Director Rev. Paul T. McCain was likewise essential. They cleared the way so that others at CPH could focus on this project. We praise God for their united service and coordination of staff.

Special thanks are due to my editorial assistant, Caryn M. Hill, who managed the Grow in His Word Research Project, assignments, and correspondence for TLSB. She also drew cross-references from the Luther Bible tradition as found in Das Altenburger Bibelwerk. Debb Andrus led the team of CPH copy editors who contributed so greatly to the project. Their careful attention to factual details and style greatly improved the readability of the notes. This work would not have been completed without their important team effort. For example, besides the usual copyediting responsibilities, Debb reviewed all dates to ensure consistency and consolidated our notes in the Synoptic Gospels.

Laura L. Lane bravely volunteered to supplement the Concordance in TLSB and to review additions to the cross-reference system. She also helped develop the Reference Guide. In addition to her copyediting responsibilities, Laine Rosin and her husband, Rev. Dr. Robert Rosin, offered excellent help in identifying potential international contributors. Proofreader Dr. Kari Vo compiled the extensive list of place-names. Thanks are also due to our production coordinators, Karen Capps and Pam Burgdorf, as well as to so many other members of the CPH team.

We are grateful to the libraries of Concordia Seminary and Concordia Theological Seminary for supporting the project by making various resources available to the contributors. Concordia Seminary also allowed us to scan artwork from Die Bibel in Bildern, which included the etchings of Julius Schnorr von Carlsfeld (see p xiii). Some faculty members at Concordia Seminary provided helpful insights that contributed to the writing of “How to Read and Study the Holy Bible” (pp xxvi–xxx).

Foreword

The Reformation started from a man studying the Bible: Martin Luther. It grew from an educational setting: Wittenberg University. As these facts show, biblical studies and Christian education had the greatest importance for early Lutherans. Everywhere the Reformation spread, Bible reading and Christian education followed. Lutheran congregations, schools, missions, colleges, and universities still place great importance on study of Holy Scripture.

But there is another, perhaps even more important, factor binding the Lutheran Church to the careful study of Scripture, something that distinguished the Lutheran Reformation from other movements—its beliefs about God's Word.

In contrast with what Luther learned about the Word in his youth, he came to believe that the Word was not lifeless and passive but was truly lively and life-giving. He saw that, through His Word, God worked to bless and guide His Church. Therefore, Luther viewed the Gospel of God's Word as a means of grace, as he described it in the Large Catechism:

> You must always have God's Word in your heart, upon your lips, and in your ears. But where the heart is idle and the Word does not sound, the devil breaks in and has done the damage before we are aware [Matthew 13:24–30]. On the other hand, the Word is so effective that whenever it is seriously contemplated, heard, and used, it is bound never to be without fruit [Isaiah 55:11; Mark 4:20]. It always awakens new understanding, pleasure, and devoutness and produces a pure heart and pure thoughts [Philippians 4:8]. For these words are not lazy or dead, but are creative, living words [Hebrews 4:12]. (LC 1:100–101)

For Lutherans, studying the Bible is never merely an intellectual exercise. Study is meditation on God's Word (meditatio), an act of devotion. The form and content of earlier Lutheran study Bibles bears this out, including not simply commentary notes but also prayers based on each portion of Scripture or notes on the practical application of the text. By opening the Bible and turning its pages, we petition heaven for mercy, wisdom, and strength. This prayerful study at the heart of Lutheran doctrine and practice was also the chief motive for editors and writers of this study Bible.

What's "Lutheran" about This Study Bible?

When describing The Lutheran Study Bible project to the CPH Board of Directors, to CPH staff, and to potential contributors, we included six goals for the work. We sought to create a study Bible that does the following:

1. Presents justification by grace alone, through faith alone, in Christ alone, as the chief teaching of Scripture (Lk 24:44–47; Jn 5:39; SA II I 1–4)
2. Properly distinguishes and applies Law and Gospel (reading the Bible as a book about justification; Jn 1:17; Gal 3:21–22; Ap XIIA 53–54)
3. Emphasizes God's work through the means of grace (Mt 26:26–29; Jn 3:5; 20:22–23; Rm 10:17; SA III IV)
4. Functions from a "Scripture alone" point of view and presents a "Scripture interprets Scripture" approach to using the Bible (Ps 119; 1Tm 6:3; 2Tm 3:16–17; FC Ep Sum)
5. Equips the laity for works of service, with a particular focus on evangelism in their various vocations/callings in life (Ps 145:4–13; Eph 2; Ap XV 41–42)
6. Presents a uniquely Lutheran study Bible that features genuinely Lutheran notes and comments throughout, references to the Lutheran Confessions where appropriate, focus on the Small Catechism for helps and explanations, citations from Luther throughout, and materials to aid daily devotion and prayer

In the Lutheran Church, a broad range of readers use study Bibles. Users vary in age from thirteen-year-old confirmation students, who may be reading the Bible for the first time, to mature pastors with a master's degree in theology. We have tried to provide a resource that could offer help to this broad readership. For example, readers who are new to the Bible will likely appreciate the overviews that appear on the first page of each introduction to a biblical book. Mature students of Scripture may appreciate the citations of Luther and other Church Fathers that appear in the introductions and notes. We pray that all readers may grow in faith and in confidence in applying Scripture by growing in the use of the various helps provided. See pp xx–xxiii.

We should also add a brief comment about including quotations from Luther and other Church Fathers. The Concordia Self-Study Bible included some such material. We decided to offer more citations in TLSB to illustrate our continuity with faithful Christian teachers across the ages and to introduce people to the richness of their insights. We do not intend to suggest that the Church Fathers should become a source of doctrine or that their authority equals or rivals the Bible. We receive their faithful statements like the good counsel of faithful older pastors who serve among us today, imparting their wisdom and refreshing us by their encouragement and example. Martin Chemnitz, a major Lutheran theologian with extensive knowledge of the Church Fathers, commends their use with many helpful cautions in his "Treatise on the Reading of the Fathers or Doctors of the Church" (LTh 1:27–33).

Our first reflections on The Lutheran Study Bible project began in 2003 when Interim President Paul T. McCain contacted me about how CPH might accomplish such a large project. Development began in earnest in 2004 with the Grow in His Word Research Project in the Adult Bible Study area.

We at CPH are very grateful to the Lord and to His faithful servants who contributed in so many ways to this work. We pray that it may lead you to meditate with joy on God's life-giving Word.

The Engravings

In 1860, artist Julius Schnorr von Carlsfeld (1794–1872) published a monumental collection of 240 biblical illustrations for an edition of Luther's translation of the Bible. Schnorr was a member of the artistic Guild, or Brotherhood, of St Luke (tradition held that St Luke was a painter; the brotherhood was also called the Nazarene Movement). These artists focused on religious subjects, admired Medieval and Renaissance art, and inspired the Pre-Raphaelite Movement in England.

As an expression of their Christian faith, the Brotherhood of St Luke set a goal of fully illustrating the Bible. Several members started on the project but never produced many illustrations. Schnorr, as a Lutheran artist inspired by the graphic illustrations of Albrecht Dürer and Hans Holbein the Younger, dedicated himself fully to the Bible illustration project, which he completed. Schnorr's style is realist with a Romantic touch. His cross-hatching is influenced by Dürer, but the illustrations have Holbein's quality of draftsmanship.

Portions of Schnorr's engravings in this Bible are drawn from Die Bibel in Bildern (Leipzig: Georg Wigand, [1860]).

Preface to the English Standard Version

The Bible

"This Book [is] the most valuable thing that this world affords. Here is Wisdom; this is the royal Law; these are the lively Oracles of God." With these words the Moderator of the Church of Scotland hands a Bible to the new monarch in Britain's coronation service. These words echo the King James Bible translators, who wrote in 1611: "God's sacred Word … is that inestimable treasure that excelleth all the riches of the earth." This assessment of the Bible is the motivating force behind the publication of the English Standard Version.

Translation Legacy

The English Standard Version (ESV) stands in the classic mainstream of English Bible translations over the past half-millennium. The fountainhead of that stream was William Tyndale's New Testament of 1526; marking its course were the King James Version of 1611 (KJV), the English Revised Version of 1885 (RV), the American Standard Version of 1901 (ASV), and the Revised Standard Version of 1952 and 1971 (RSV). In that stream, faithfulness to the text and vigorous pursuit of accuracy were combined with simplicity, beauty, and dignity of expression. Our goal has been to carry forward this legacy for a new century.

To this end each word and phrase in the ESV has been carefully weighed against the original Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek, to ensure the fullest accuracy and clarity and to avoid under-translating or overlooking any nuance of the original text. The words and phrases themselves grow out of the Tyndale–King James legacy, and most recently out of the RSV, with the 1971 RSV text providing the starting point for our work. Archaic language has been brought to current usage and significant corrections have been made in the translation of key texts. But throughout, our goal has been to retain the depth of meaning and enduring language that have made their indelible mark on the English-speaking world and have defined the life and doctrine of the church over the last four centuries.

Translation Philosophy

The ESV is an "essentially literal" translation that seeks as far as possible to capture the precise wording of the original text and the personal style of each Bible writer. As such, its emphasis is on "word-for-word" correspondence, at the same time taking into account differences of grammar, syntax, and idiom between current literary English and the original languages. Thus it seeks to be transparent to the original text, letting the reader see as directly as possible the structure and meaning of the original.

In contrast to the ESV, some Bible versions have followed a "thought-for-thought" rather than "word-for-word" translation philosophy, emphasizing "dynamic equivalence" rather than the "essentially literal" meaning of the original. A "thought-for-thought" translation is of necessity more inclined to reflect the interpretive opinions of the translator and the influences of contemporary culture.

Every translation is at many points a trade-off between literal precision and readability, between "formal equivalence" in expression and "functional equivalence" in communication, and the ESV is no exception. Within this framework we have sought to be "as literal as possible" while maintaining clarity of expression and literary excellence. Therefore, to the extent that plain English permits and the meaning in each case allows, we have sought to use the same English word for important recurring words in the original; and, as far as grammar and syntax allow, we have rendered Old Testament passages cited in the New in ways that show their correspondence. Thus in each of these areas, as well as throughout the Bible as a whole, we have sought to capture the echoes and overtones of meaning that are so abundantly present in the original texts.

As an essentially literal translation, then, the ESV seeks to carry over every possible nuance of meaning in the original words of Scripture into our own language. As such, it is ideally suited for in-depth study of the Bible. Indeed, with its emphasis on literary excellence, the ESV is equally suited for public reading and preaching, for private reading and reflection, for both academic and devotional study, and for Scripture memorization.

Translation Style

The ESV also carries forward classic translation principles in its literary style. Accordingly it retains theological terminology—words such as grace, faith, justification, sanctification, redemption, regeneration, reconciliation, propitiation—because of their central importance for Christian doctrine and also because the underlying Greek words were already becoming key words and technical terms in New Testament times.

The ESV lets the stylistic variety of the biblical writers fully express itself—from the exalted prose that opens Genesis, to the flowing narratives of the historical books, to the rich metaphors and dramatic imagery of the poetic books, to the ringing rhetorical indictments in the prophetic books, to the smooth elegance of Luke, to the profound simplicities of John, and the closely reasoned logic of Paul.

In punctuating, paragraphing, dividing long sentences, and rendering connectives, the ESV follows the path that seems to make the ongoing flow of thought clearest in English. The biblical languages regularly connect sentences by frequent repetition of words such as "and," "but," and "for," in a way that goes beyond the conventions of literary English. Effective translation, however, requires that these links in the original be reproduced so that the flow of the argument will be transparent to the reader. We have therefore normally translated these connectives, though occasionally we have varied the rendering by using alternatives (such as "also," "however," "now," "so," "then," or "thus") when they better capture the sense in specific instances.

In the area of gender language, the goal of the ESV is to render literally what is in the original. For example, "anyone" replaces "any man" where there is no word corresponding to "man" in the original languages, and "people" rather than "men" is regularly used where the original languages refer to both men and women. But the words "man" and "men" are retained where a male meaning component is part of the original Greek or Hebrew. Likewise, the word "man" has been retained where the original text intends to convey a clear contrast between "God" on the one hand and "man" on the other hand, with "man" being used in the collective sense of the whole human race (see Luke 2:52). Similarly, the English word "brothers" (translating the Greek word adelphoi) is retained as an important familial form of address between fellow-Jews and fellow-Christians in the first century. A recurring note is included to indicate that the term "brothers" (adelphoi) was often used in Greek to refer to both men and women, and to indicate the specific instances in the text where this is the case. In addition, the English word "sons" (translating the Greek word huioi) is retained in specific instances because the underlying Greek term usually includes a male meaning component and it was used as a legal term in the adoption and inheritance laws of first-century Rome. As used by the apostle Paul, this term refers to the status of all Christians, both men and women, who, having been adopted into God's family, now enjoy all the privileges, obligations, and inheritance rights of God's children.

The inclusive use of the generic "he" has also regularly been retained, because this is consistent with similar usage in the original languages and because an essentially literal translation would be impossible without it. Similarly, where God and man are compared or contrasted in the original, the ESV retains the generic use of "man" as the clearest way to express the contrast within the framework of essentially literal translation.

In each case the objective has been transparency to the original text, allowing the reader to understand the original on its own terms rather than on the terms of our present-day culture.

The Translation of Specialized Terms

In the translation of biblical terms referring to God, the ESV takes great care to convey the specific nuances of meaning of the original Hebrew and Greek terms. First, concerning terms that refer to God in the Old Testament: God, the Maker of heaven and earth, introduced himself to the people of Israel with the special, personal name, whose consonants are YHWH (see Exodus 3:14–15). Scholars call this the "Tetragrammaton," a Greek term referring to the four Hebrew letters YHWH. The exact pronunciation of YHWH is uncertain, because the Jewish people considered the personal name of God to be so holy that it should never be spoken aloud. Instead of reading the word YHWH, they would normally read the Hebrew word adonai ("Lord"), and the ancient translations into Greek, Syriac, and Aramaic also followed suit. When the vowels of the word adonai are placed with the consonants of YHWH, this results in the familiar word Jehovah that was used in some earlier English Bible translations. As is common among English translations today, the ESV usually renders the personal name of God (YHWH) with the word LORD (printed in small capitals). An exception to this is when the Hebrew word adonai appears together with YHWH, in which case the two words are rendered together as "the Lord [in lower case] GOD [in small capitals]." In contrast to the personal name for God (YHWH), the more general name for God in Old Testament Hebrew is 'elohim and its related forms of 'el or 'eloah, all of which are normally translated "God" (in lower case letters). The use of these different ways to translate the Hebrew words for God is especially beneficial to the English reader, enabling the reader to see and understand the different ways that the personal name and the general name for God are both used to refer to the One True God of the Old Testament.

Second, in the New Testament, the Greek word Christos has been translated consistently as "Christ." Although the term originally meant "anointed," among Jews in New Testament times the term came to designate the Messiah, the great Savior that God had promised to raise up. In other New Testament contexts, however, especially among Gentiles, Christos ("Christ") was on its way to becoming a proper name. It is important, therefore, to keep the context in mind in understanding the various ways that Christos ("Christ") is used in the New Testament. At the same time, in accord with its "essentially literal" translation philosophy, the ESV has retained consistency and concordance in the translation of Christos ("Christ") throughout the New Testament.

A third specialized term, the word "behold," usually has been retained as the most common translation for the Hebrew word hinneh and the Greek word idou. Both of these words mean something like "Pay careful attention to what follows! This is important!" Other than the word "behold," there is no single word in English that fits well in most contexts. Although "Look!" and "See!" and "Listen!" would be workable in some contexts, in many others these words lack sufficient weight and dignity. Given the principles of "essentially literal" translation, it is important not to leave hinneh and idou completely untranslated, and so to lose the intended emphasis in the original languages. The older and more formal word "behold" has usually been retained, therefore, as the best available option for conveying the original sense of meaning.

Textual Basis

The ESV is based on the Masoretic text of the Hebrew Bible as found in Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia (2nd ed., 1983), and on the Greek text in the 1993 editions of the Greek New Testament (4th corrected ed.), published by the United Bible Societies (UBS), and Novum Testamentum Graece (27th ed.), edited by Nestle and Aland. The currently renewed respect among Old Testament scholars for the Masoretic text is reflected in the ESV's attempt, wherever possible, to translate difficult Hebrew passages as they stand in the Masoretic text rather than resorting to emendations or to finding an alternative reading in the ancient versions. In exceptional, difficult cases, the Dead Sea Scrolls, the Septuagint, the Samaritan Pentateuch, the Syriac Peshitta, the Latin Vulgate, and other sources were consulted to shed possible light on the text, or, if necessary, to support a divergence from the Masoretic text. Similarly, in a few difficult cases in the New Testament, the ESV has followed a Greek text different from the text given preference in the UBS/Nestle-Aland 27th edition. In this regard the footnotes that accompany the ESV text are an integral part of the ESV translation, informing the reader of textual variations and difficulties and showing how these have been resolved by the ESV translation team. In addition to this, the footnotes indicate significant alternative readings and occasionally provide an explanation for technical terms or for a difficult reading in the text. Throughout, the translation team has benefited greatly from the massive textual resources that have become readily available recently, from new insights into biblical laws and culture, and from current advances in Hebrew and Greek lexicography and grammatical understanding.

Publishing Team

The ESV publishing team includes more than a hundred people. The fourteen-member Translation Oversight Committee has benefited from the work of fifty biblical experts serving as Translation Review Scholars and from the comments of the more than fifty members of the Advisory Council, all of which has been carried out under the auspices of the Good News Publishers Board of Directors. This hundred-member team, which shares a common commitment to the truth of God's Word and to historic Christian orthodoxy, is international in scope and includes leaders in many denominations.

To God's Honor and Praise

We know that no Bible translation is perfect or final; but we also know that God uses imperfect and inadequate things to his honor and praise. So to our triune God and to his people we offer what we have done, with our prayers that it may prove useful, with gratitude for much help given, and with ongoing wonder that our God should ever have entrusted to us so momentous a task.

Soli Deo Gloria!—To God alone be the glory!

The Lutheran Study Bible - Kindle Edition

Introduction

The Kindle edition of The Lutheran Study Bible is slightly different than the print edition in the way that one navigates through the text and resources. Because the Kindle uses content which allows for the text to reflow based upon preferences and selections, The Lutheran Study Bible has been optimized to do the same.

While the Kindle Edition of the Lutheran Study Bible does not include cross-references to parallel passages, the content has been reorganized to include a Table of Contents for each book of the Bible. The Table of Contents for each book contains links to each chapter of the book, the introduction to the book, ESV Footnotes and the study notes for that book.

Articles, maps and charts have been collected at the beginning of the Bible to be accessed via the main Table of Contents or from links within the study notes where they may be referenced.

Tips for using The Lutheran Study Bible on your Kindle

- Start with the Table of Contents!
    - The Table of Contents is your quick-access link to both the navigation of the Scriptures and the rich collection of articles, maps, charts and notes included in The Lutheran Study Bible.
    - Access the Table of Contents by pressing the select wheel (for Kindle 1/Kindle 2 users) or by pressing the directional pad (for Kindle 3 users) and then navigate to the article, map, chart or a book of the Bible you wish to read.
    - After selecting a book of the Bible, you will find that each book of the Bible has its own Table of Contents allowing you to quickly jump to the chapter you wish to read. In each Book's Table of Contents, you will also discover links to the additional resources that have been included for that book.

For example, Table of Contents for John looks like this:

John 1 John 2 John 3 John 4 John 5 John 6 John 7 John 8 John 9 John 10 John 11 John 12 John 13 John 14 John 15 John 16 John 17 John 18 John 19 John 20 John 21

Reading, Understanding, and Applying the Bible

How to Read and Study the Holy Bible

As you open your Bible to read and study, begin with this little prayer, drawn directly from Scripture passages.

Pray

Speak, Lord, for Your servant hears.

Please show me now Your ways, that I may gain Christ and be found in Him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the Law, but that which comes through faith in Christ.

Your Word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path. Give me life, O Lord, according to Your Word, and I will declare Your greatness. Amen.

Remember

1Sm 3:9; the Lord speaks to us through His Word.

Ex 33:13; the Lord speaks to us in two basic ways: Law and Gospel.

Php 3:8–9; Scripture teaches us about Christ and His righteousness.

Ps 119:105, 107; Scripture faithfully guides our lives.

Ps 145:6; Scripture leads us to declare the Lord's ways to others.

Read the following essay to deepen your understanding of what the Bible is and how to read and study it.

An Introduction to Studying the Holy Bible

For thousands of years, people have turned to the Bible for wisdom, comfort, and hope; the Bible has changed their lives. Lutherans read the Bible, or hear it read at church, because they believe that through Holy Scripture God answers essential questions about life, death, and eternal life. They believe that God works through the message of the Scripture to call them to repentance and take away their sins. However, those who read and study the Bible may also feel challenged and, at times, confused by what the Bible says.

Learning from a Challenging Passage

The first recorded example of someone publicly reading the text of the Bible (Ex 24) illustrates important truths about the Bible as well as challenges in understanding it and applying it. After the Lord rescued the Israelites from Egypt, He spoke certain laws and promises to the prophet Moses. Moses began to write down God's Word, the first person named as doing so. The first things Moses recorded and read to the people are now part of the Book of Exodus.

> Moses wrote down all the words of the LORD. … And he sent young men of the people of Israel, who offered burnt offerings and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen to the LORD. … Then he took the Book of the Covenant and read it in the hearing of the people. And they said, "All that the LORD has spoken we will do, and we will be obedient." And Moses took the blood [of the sacrifices] and threw it on the people and said, "Behold the blood of the covenant that the LORD has made with you in accordance with all these words." (Ex 24:4–8, emphasis added)

This first known example of Bible reading introduces many of the truths and the challenges (throwing blood?) you will meet when you read the Bible. This essay will prepare you to study such truths and challenging texts. It will also show how all of Holy Scripture (including Ex 24) continually points to the most important truth: the Lord grants you forgiveness, life, and salvation through the blood of His Son, Jesus Christ. For Jesus taught:

> Truly, truly, I say to you, whoever hears My word and believes Him who sent Me has eternal life. … I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me. … The Helper, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in My name, He will teach you all things and bring to your remembrance all that I have said to you. (Jn 5:24; 14:6, 26)

I. The Lord Works through His Word

A. The Lord Speaks through His Word, Jesus Christ

From eternity, Jesus Christ is "the Word" of God (Jn 1:1; cf Heb 1:1–2). All other words from God truly come through Christ.

B. The Lord Speaks through the Words of the Bible

The meaning and use of the Bible ultimately belong to the One who first guided the writing of the words: the Lord. The first texts of the Bible came from the Lord speaking and from Moses writing down the Lord's Word for our sake, as Ex 24:4 shows.

At the time of the exodus, Moses recorded that the children of Israel did not truly know Him (Ex 3:13–15). They had lost His earlier promises to Abraham (e.g., Gn 12:1–3) and could not know the Lord's mind or His gracious heart toward them (1Co 2:9–12). They could not love Him or trust in Him, even if they were religious. For the people to know the Lord's gracious heart, they had to hear from the Lord. So He introduced Himself, revealing and bestowing His grace through the Word. (The Gospel of God's Word is a means of grace.)

The apostle John also writes that this communication from the Lord was essential:

> The law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. No one has ever seen God [the Father]; the only God [the Son], who is at the Father's side, He has made [the Father] known. (Jn 1:17–18)

In Exodus, the Lord introduced Himself to the people by giving them the Law through Moses. Yet, as John explains, the Lord was not finished revealing who He was. John calls Jesus "the Word" (Jn 1:1, 14) and explains that we most fully know the Father through the revelation of His Son—the Gospel of Jesus Christ.[1]

C. The Lord Works in Two Ways: Law and Gospel

When the Lord speaks His Word, He reveals that He works with people in two basic ways, or teachings (e.g., God's self-revelation in Ex 34:5–7).

Lutherans call these two ways Law and Gospel, though they may be described with other terms, as biblical and Christian history show (see p xxxi). These ways, or teachings, appear throughout Scripture. The Law and the Gospel show God's ways of working with us as a Father. They help us focus on His purpose for Scripture.

We need to focus on Law and Gospel and distinguish them because people come to the Bible with so many different interests and demands. These often interfere with interpreting and applying the Father's Word. For example, the Bible includes history, but it was not written just to be a history book. The Bible includes poetry, but it was not written as a guide to fine literature. It includes a coherent worldview, but it was not written as a book of philosophy. Focusing on Law and Gospel helps us use the Bible for what it truly is: a book about the heavenly Father's gift of salvation through Jesus Christ.

When the heavenly Father spoke to Moses in Ex 24, He spoke laws, or rules, for the people to obey. In view of these laws, He spoke threats and punishments if the people did not obey. Just as an earthly father has rules for his household, the heavenly Father has laws for His creation. Passages that command good works or threaten punishment for sin are passages of God's Law. This is God's first way of working with people.

In Exodus, the Father also promises mercy for the people (e.g., 34:6–7a). The people have peace with God through the blood of the offerings (24:5). He will be their God and care for them. Just as a loving earthly father has mercy on his children, so the heavenly Father is gracious and merciful. All His promises reach fulfillment in Jesus Christ, through whom the Father created the world and bestows blessings, life, and salvation (Jn 1:1–4). Passages that declare God's forgiveness, life, and salvation in Christ are passages of the Gospel (e.g., Jn 3:16–17). Such passages appear in both the Old Testament and the New Testament (see below). The Gospel is God's second way of working with people, the way by which He saves them.

As you discover the Law and the Gospel throughout the Scripture, bear in mind how they work together. The Law cannot save sinners. But the Law has essential functions. For example, through the Law, the Lord shows us our sins and drives us to repentance. In this way, the Law serves the central and most important message of the Bible: the Gospel, through which God saves us. The entire pattern of biblical history describes God commanding and condemning through the Law and then forgiving and saving through the Gospel. Though parts of Scripture proclaim nothing but the Law, the Gospel still predominates, because the Law serves the purpose of the Gospel. (See p 320.)

D. The Lord Makes Promises and Fulfills His Word

The Bible is divided into two testaments. The Old Testament describes the creation of the universe and the creation of a special nation, Israel. The Lord established Israel as His chosen people by giving them the Law and the Gospel-promises (Ex 19:5–6; 24). Just as God works through means to accomplish His purposes, He chose to work through Israel to fulfill His promises of salvation.

The New Testament describes how the Lord fulfills the Law and Gospel-promises of the Old Testament through the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It also reveals how the Lord sends His Word of salvation to all nations. Through the preaching of the Gospel, the Lord created His Church —all who trust in Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of sins. The Church is the "new Israel," promised in the Old Testament and fulfilled in the New Testament.

E. The Lord Does Not Lie

After the Lord spoke to His people and His Spirit moved the prophets and apostles to preach and write, their words were collected into books. (The Bible is not a single book but a collection of books. See pp 1559–61.) Just as God works through means, such as Baptism and the Word, to accomplish our salvation, He worked through the prophets and apostles, who "spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit" (2Pt 1:21).

> The Bible is the "Holy Scripture" because God the Holy Spirit gave to His chosen writers the thoughts that they expressed and the words that they wrote (verbal inspiration). Therefore, the Bible is God's own Word and truth, without error (inerrancy). (Luther's Small Catechism with Explanation, question 3; see also p 1646)

At times, people have assumed that the books of Scripture must contain errors, falsehoods, or useless materials because human beings wrote them down. However, Martin Luther continually pointed out that "God cannot lie" (cf Nu 23:19; Ti 1:2; Ps 12:6; 18:30; Pr 30:5; Jn 3:31–33). Because God's Spirit worked through the writers of Scripture, it is God's infallible Word and is completely reliable.

Over the centuries, people copied the books of Scripture with great care because they recognized them as God's Word. Although we no longer have the original documents written by Moses, Peter, or others, we do have the text faithfully preserved. For example, scholars have carefully studied the thousands of handmade copies of the New Testament. They have recognized that, though minor differences exist between the copies, the books of Scripture were so faithfully recorded that no doctrine has been lost.

The English Standard Version is an excellent and reliable translation of the Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek texts of the Bible (see p xvii). Just as we call the writings of the prophets and apostles "God's Word," we call reliable translations of the Bible "God's Word."

II. Scripture Interprets Scripture

As our reflection on Ex 24 has shown, helpful principles of interpretation flow from the Law and Gospel teachings of Scripture.

A. The Scripture Focuses on Jesus Christ

As stated above, the Gospel of Jesus Christ is the most important teaching of Holy Scripture. Although many passages do not explicitly refer to Jesus, all the books of Holy Scripture serve the saving purpose of Jesus. For this reason, Jesus said, "You search the Scriptures because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is they that bear witness about Me" (Jn 5:39). Jesus explained that He and His saving work were the true focus of all God's Word (Lk 24:44–48). So no matter what part of Scripture you read, understand it in view of Jesus Christ and His work (see pp xlv–xlvii).

B. The Scripture Agrees within Itself

Because Jesus is the focus of all of God's Word, the books of Scripture have remarkable agreement. The stories, proverbs, teachings, and other passages present the Law, which drives us to Christ, and the Gospel, which proclaims Christ.

When readers miss the Law and Gospel distinction in Scripture, the Scripture may appear contradictory to them. For example, one might read Ex 24 and conclude that the Israelites were to save themselves by their obedience to the Law and not through faith in the promised Christ. However, the purpose of the Law is to reveal sin so that people will see their need for the Savior (Gal 3:21–22). At first, the Law seems to contradict the Gospel. In fact, the Law serves the Gospel, and Jesus Christ stands forth as the focus.

C. The Scripture Is Understood through Context

The focus of the books of Scripture on Christ and His work and their agreement with one another do not destroy the particular experiences, struggles, and concerns of the biblical writers. Although some passages speak about humanity in general, the prophets and apostles most often wrote for a particular group of people at a particular moment in history. As a result, to fully understand Scripture and to treasure the breadth of the ways it proclaims the Law and the Gospel of Jesus, each passage must be considered in its historical context.

No book or passage should have an alien meaning forced on it. For example, when reading that Moses "took the blood [of the sacrifices] and threw it on the people" (Ex 24:8), a reader should not conclude that God wants us to sacrifice animals today so that we, too, can pour blood on one another. Nor should one shy away from the historical and grammatical meaning of Moses' words because they seem offensive to one's ideas about cleanliness or animal rights. A reader should not spiritualize the words, as though Moses only showed the blood to the people and then poured it on the altar on their behalf (e.g., the Rabbinic Midrash Tanna'im).

Instead, an interpreter should diligently compare the text with other passages of Scripture, beginning with the book of Scripture the text appears in or books by the same writer (in this case, Moses). For example, in Ex 29, blood is applied to the priests as a means of consecration (vv 19–20; cf Lv 8:22–30). The Epistle to the Hebrews tells us that Moses mingled the blood with water before sprinkling it on the people (9:19). In view of these passages, Ex 24:8 grows clearer. The sacrificial blood was diluted with water, which was sprinkled on the people for their consecration.

Because the people were unclean (sinful, as pointed out by the Law), they needed atonement for their sins and consecration through the sacrifices (blessings of God's mercy, which pointed forward to the sacrificial death of Jesus—the Gospel). In this way, the particular historic message of the passage is respected and more fully understood in view of God's work of salvation.

At times, even with careful study, a passage of Scripture will remain unclear. In such cases, readers should not fall into endless speculation or try to resolve every mystery. Instead, they should let the clearest passages of Scripture guide their understanding of biblical doctrine.

III. The Holy Spirit Blesses the Use of God's Word through Faith

A. The Holy Spirit Opens Scripture to Us through Faith

Since Holy Scripture is a book of salvation, we can understand it only through faith (1Co 2:12–16). Reason certainly has its place in reading Scripture (e.g., considering the grammar and history). But reason alone is never enough, for reason cannot grasp the spiritual truths of God's Word (cf Jn 3:1–8).

Likewise, our own reason, experiences, interests, and opinions are distorted by the effects of sin, which cloud and confuse us about the meaning and use of God's Word (Jn 3:9–10). This is one reason why people will read the same passage but arrive at vastly different interpretations. The Holy Spirit must open the Scripture for us through faith (Jn 3:31–36).

B. The Holy Spirit Creates the Congregation of the Faithful through the Word

Faith is not something that people naturally possess and offer to God (Jn 1:9–13). For someone to believe in Jesus and understand Scripture, the Holy Spirit must create faith in that person's heart (Jn 3:5–6).

The word trust, a synonym for faith, can help us understand how this takes place. You can't have genuine trust in someone you've never met or interacted with. Trust is created through the words and actions of one person toward another. The Holy Spirit creates faith, or trust, in Jesus when God speaks and interacts with that person through His Word, Holy Baptism, and the Lord's Supper (God's means of grace), which are administered by the Church. Through these means, a person comes to know God, to trust Him, and to belong to Him in the congregation of the faithful.

C. The Holy Spirit Leads Us to Confession of Faith with the Church

Never imagine that believers exist without the Church. Someone may object to this by asserting that a person could come to faith while reading the Bible at home, without ever going to a church. But how would that person receive a copy of the Bible? Of course, he or she would receive it from someone else. God called someone to prepare that Bible and distribute that Bible, work carried on by the Church! In other words, the Holy Spirit is always working through the Church—through believers like you—to spread the Word to other people. The Lord has entrusted His Word to the Church for this purpose (Ps 145:4–13). Luther wrote:

> The Spirit has His own congregation in the world, which is the mother that conceives and bears every Christian through God's Word [Galatians 4:26]. Through the Word He reveals and preaches, He illumines and enkindles hearts, so that they understand, accept, cling to, and persevere in the Word. (LC II 42)

When the Holy Spirit calls someone to faith, He likewise calls that person to serve in the congregation of the faithful (2Tm 3:16–17). A Christian should not set out to interpret Scripture for himself, in isolation from other believers. God's people meditate on Scripture together (1Tm 4:13) and interpret Scripture in view of Scripture.

Life together in the Church requires unity, because people cannot dwell together long without agreement (1Co 1:9–10). Holy Scripture is the basis of Christian unity (Jn 17:17–21). However, for centuries, most people did not have a personal copy of the Bible. The length of the Scripture makes it difficult for most people to commit it to heart in its entirety. Likewise, false teachers clouded the faithful interpretation of Scripture, as noted above. Each of these factors threatened the unity of the faithful, which the Holy Spirit had created through the Word.

For these reasons, the early Christians prepared short confessions of faith (e.g., "No one can say 'Jesus is Lord' except in the Holy Spirit" [1Co 12:3]; the Apostles' Creed, based on 1Co 15:3–4 and other passages). They also prepared longer confessions based on Scripture in order to distinguish truth from falsehood (e.g., the Nicene Creed and the Athanasian Creed). The Lutheran reformers did the same when they prepared their confessions to address medieval abuse and neglect of Scripture. Lutherans treasure these faithful creeds and confessions because they support and encourage the unity of the Church and stand as examples of faithful reading of Scripture (e.g., SC, pp xxxiii–xliv).

The need for these "rules of faith" should call us to humility, to acknowledge that our own reason, experiences, interests, and opinions are distorted by the effects of sin. Just as surely as a child needs the faithful guidance of parents and teachers to learn how to read, new believers also need the community of faith to learn how to read the Holy Scripture. Even Jesus—the Word of God in the flesh—humbly listened to the teachers at the temple in Jerusalem (Lk 2:46). The creeds and confessions are a written record of how God's people faithfully interpret Scripture.

Parents nurture their children in the faith when they read Bible stories to them and bring them to church. Adult converts grow in the faith when they gather with the faithful, where God's Word is publicly read and studied (2Tm 1:13–14).

Conclusion

When Moses first read God's Word to the people of Israel (Ex 24), the Holy Spirit worked through the Law and the Gospel of the Word to create and consecrate a community of faith. The Lord entrusted His life-giving Word to the community and still leads it today through the Word. The Holy Spirit adds to this community all who are baptized into Christ, trusting in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of sins, which is the central message of Scripture.

> From the Lord,
> through the prophets and apostles,
> in the community of faith that confesses God's Word, > we receive the Gospel-promise of our salvation in Christ and > return to the Lord our heartfelt service, prayers, and praise.

[1]For example, various OT passages point forward to the truth that God is three in one (triune). However, the persons of the Trinity are more fully revealed only later, in the NT, at the announcement of Jesus' birth (Lk 1:35) and Baptism (Mt 3:16–17). With Jesus—the Word—comes the fullest revelation of who the Lord is.

Law and Gospel: Identifying God's Ways with Mankind

In the sixteenth century, the great reformer Martin Luther wrote the first treatise on distinguishing Law and Gospel. However, Luther's work was hardly new, since Scripture and its interpreters had always made this distinction. The following quotations show the long history of distinguishing God's two ways. These examples will help you recognize terms of Law and Gospel and apply His ways in your life as you read the Scripture.

Examples from Scripture

The Lord Commands and Promises, Curses and Blesses (c 2090 BC)

> Now the Lord said to Abram, "Go from your country and your kindred and your father's house to the land that I will show you. And I will make of you a great nation, and I will bless you and make your name great, so that you will be a blessing. I will bless those who bless you, and him who dishonors you I will curse, and in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed." (Gn 12:1–3)

The Lord Reveals His Two Ways (c 1446 BC)

> "Now therefore, if I have found favor in Your sight, please show me now Your ways, that I may know You in order to find favor in Your sight. Consider too that this nation is Your people." … The Lord passed before him and proclaimed, "The Lord, the Lord, a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love … for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, but who will by no means clear the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children and the children's children, to the third and the fourth generation." (Ex 33:13; 34:6–7)

Jesus Preaches Repentance and Forgiveness (c AD 28)

> Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the gospel of God, and saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe in the gospel." (Mk 1:14–15)

> He opened their minds to understand the Scriptures, and said to them, "Thus it is written, that the Christ should suffer and on the third day rise from the dead, and that repentance and forgiveness of sins should be proclaimed in His name to all nations, beginning from Jerusalem." (Lk 24:45–47)

The Apostle Paul Distinguished the Work of Law and Gospel (c AD 53)

The Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel beforehand to Abraham. … Is the law then contrary to the promises of God? Certainly not! For if a law had been given that could give life, then righteousness would indeed be by the law. But the Scripture imprisoned everything under sin, so that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to those who believe. (Gal 3:8, 21–22)

The Creator's Twofold Power (c 207)

> Both [testaments] belong to [God] who says: "I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal" (Deuteronomy 32:39). We have already made good the Creator's claim to this twofold character of judgment and goodness, "killing in the letter" through the law, and "quickening in the Spirit" through the Gospel (2 Corinthians 3:6). (Ter, ANF 3:452–53)

The Law and the Promise Cannot Be Mixed (c 380)

> The [Gospel's] promise was distinguished from the Law, and since it is different it cannot be mixed [with the Law], for a condition [of the Law] invalidates the promise. (Tyc, Rule 3)

The Law Kills and the Gospel Gives Life (c 386–98)

> In the Law, he that has sin is punished; here, he that has sins comes and is baptized and is made righteous, and being made righteous, he lives, being delivered from the death of sin. The Law, if it lay hold on a murderer, puts him to death; the Gospel, if it lay hold on a murderer, enlightens, and gives him life. (Chrys, NPNF 1 12:307)

The Old Testament Proclaimed Righteousness through Christ (c 412)

> His words are, "The righteousness of God is manifested" (Romans 3:21). … This is witnessed by the law and the prophets; in other words, the law and the prophets each testify about it. The law, indeed, does this by issuing its commands and threats, and by justifying no one. It shows well enough that it is by God's gift, through the help of the Spirit, that a person is justified. The prophets [show this righteousness] because it was what they predicted that Christ accomplished at His coming. (Aug, NPNF 1 5:88–89)

Examples from the Medieval and Reformation Eras

Confess the Lord in Two Ways (Twelfth Century)

> Let [your works] confess Him in two ways, let them be clad, as it were, in a double robe of confession. That is: confession of your own sins, and of the praise of God. … Let the humility of confession of your imperfection supply what is lacking in your daily life. For that imperfection is not hidden from God's eyes. If He has commanded that His precepts should be diligently kept (Psalm 119:4) it is in order that, seeing our constant imperfection and our inability to fulfill the duty that we ought to do, we may fly to His mercy, and say, "Your steadfast love is better than life" (Psalm 63:3a). And not being able to appear clad in innocence or righteousness, we may at least be covered in the robe of confession. (Bern, The Life and Works of St Bernard of Clairvaux: The Advent and Christmas Sermons [London: John Hodges, 1889–96])

The Law Demands, the Gospel Gives (1540)

> The Gospel proclaims repentance and the promise of grace and eternal life. The promise should be diligently distinguished from the Law. And although the Law has certain promises of its own, nevertheless, these differ from the unique promise of the Gospel. Moreover, the promises of the Law require the condition of perfect obedience as is said in the first commandment: "I will do good to those who love me" [cf. Deut. 5:10]. But the evangelical [Gospel] promise—about remission of sins, justification, and the gift of eternal life—is gratuitous, offered on account of Christ, without a condition of our merits or our worthiness. (Mel, Romans, p 22)

Why We Distinguish Law and Gospel (1580)

> The distinction between the Law and the Gospel is a particularly brilliant light. It serves the purpose of rightly dividing God's Word [2

> Timothy 2:15] and properly explaining and understanding the Scriptures of the holy prophets and apostles. We must guard this distinction with special care, so that these two doctrines may not be mixed with each other, or a law be made out of the Gospel. When that happens, Christ's merit is hidden and troubled consciences are robbed of comfort, which they otherwise have in the Holy Gospel when it is preached genuinely and purely. For by the Gospel they can support themselves in their most difficult trials against the Law's terrors. (FC SD V 1)

From these examples, one can easily see why the preacher and writer C. F. W. Walther concluded, "Only he is an orthodox teacher who not only presents all the articles of faith in accordance with Scripture, but also rightly distinguishes from each other the Law and the Gospel" (L & G, p 1; Concordia Publishing House will release a Reader's Edition of Walther's Law and Gospel in 2010).

Luther's Small Catechism

"A Short and Brief Summary of All the Holy Scriptures" (LC Preface 18)

In 1529, Martin Luther published his now famous Small Catechism, one of the most enduring and widely used summaries of biblical teaching. Beginning with the Ten Commandments, Lutherans study and memorize the catechism's summary of Scripture as a guide to understanding the Bible and as a guide for faith and life.

Luther's Preface to the Small Catechism

Luther included this preface to the Small Catechism, which addresses particular issues of his day. Headings are added for the convenience of the reader.

Martin Luther, to all faithful and godly pastors and preachers; grace, mercy, and peace be yours in Jesus Christ, our Lord.

The deplorable, miserable conditions which I recently observed when visiting the parishes have constrained and pressed me to put this catechism of Christian doctrine into this brief, plain, and simple form. How pitiable, so help me God, were the things I saw; the common man, especially in the villages, knows practically nothing of Christian doctrine, and many of the pastors are almost entirely incompetent and unable to teach. Yet all the people are supposed to be Christians, have been baptized, and receive the Holy Sacrament even though they do not know the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, or the Ten Commandments and live like poor animals of the barnyard and pigpen. What these people have mastered, however, is the fine art of tearing all Christian liberty to shreds.

Oh, you bishops! How will you ever answer to Christ for letting the people carry on so disgracefully and not attending to the duties of your office even for a moment? One can only hope judgment does not strike you! You command the Sacrament in one kind only, insist on the observance of your human ways, and yet are unconcerned whether the people know the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, the Ten Commandments, or indeed any of God's Word. Woe, woe to you forever!

Therefore dear brothers, for God's sake, I beg all of you who are pastors and preachers to devote yourselves sincerely to the duties of your office, that you feel compassion for the people entrusted to your care, and that you help us accordingly to inculcate this catechism in the people, especially the young. If you cannot do more, at least take the tables and charts for catechism instruction and drill the people in them word for word, in the following way:

First, the pastor should most carefully avoid teaching the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, the sacraments, etc., according to various texts and differing forms. Let him adopt one version, stay with it, and from one year to the next keep using it unchanged. Young and inexperienced persons must be taught a single fixed form or they will easily become confused, and the result will be that all previous effort and labor will be lost. There should be no change, even though one may wish to improve them.

The honored fathers understood this well, and therefore they all consistently used one form of the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and the Ten Commandments. We should do as they did by teaching these materials to the young and the common man without altering a single syllable and by never varying their wording when presenting or quoting them year after year.

So adopt whatever form you wish and then stick with it at all times. If, however, you happen to be preaching to some sophisticated, learned audience, then you certainly may demonstrate your skill with words by turning phrases as colorfully and masterfully as you can. But with young persons keep to a single, fixed, and permanent form and wording, and teach them first of all the Ten Commandments, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, etc., according to the text, word for word, so that they can repeat it after you and commit it to memory.

[Rude Persons]

But those who refuse to learn are to be told that they are denying Christ and do not belong to Him. They are not to be admitted to the Sacrament, accepted as sponsors at Baptism, or allowed to exercise Christian liberty in any way. They should instead be simply directed back to the pope and his functionaries, yes, even to Satan himself. Moreover, their parents and superiors should refuse them food and drink, telling them that the prince is of a mind to expel such rude persons from his realm, and so on.

Of course we cannot, and we should not try to, force the Christian faith on anyone. Yet we should steadily keep on urging people toward it and help them know what is considered right and wrong in the society in which they want to live and earn their living. A person who wants to live in a certain city and enjoy its privileges should know and observe its laws, no matter whether he believes in them or is at heart a rogue or scoundrel.

Second, after they have well memorized the text (of the catechism), then explain the meaning so that they understand what they are saying. Do so again with the help of these charts or some other brief uniform method of your choosing; adhere to it and do not change a single syllable, as said above concerning the text, taking your time with it. For it is not necessary to teach everything at once, but one thing after the other. After they understand well the meaning of the First Commandment, proceed to the Second, and so on, otherwise they will be too overwhelmed to the point of remembering nothing.

[The Large Catechism]

Third, after you have so taught them this short catechism, take up the Large Catechism and use it to give them a broader and richer understanding. Here enlarge on every individual commandment, petition, segment, explaining in each case the various words, uses, benefits, dangers, and hurts involved, as you will find them amply described in many a book dealing with these topics. Stress specially that commandment or any other specific part of the catechism doctrine which your people neglect most. For example, among craftsmen and merchants, farmers and employees, you must powerfully stress the Seventh Commandment, which forbids stealing, because among such people many kinds of dishonesty and thievery occur. Also, for young persons and the common man you must stress the Fourth Commandment, urging them to be orderly, faithful, obedient, and peaceable, always bringing in many Bible examples of how God punished or blessed such people.

You should particularly urge those in authority and parents to govern the young well and to send them to school. Show them why it is their duty to do this and explain what a damnable sin it is if they fail to do so. For by such neglect they ruin and destroy both the kingdom of God and that of this world and prove themselves to be the worst enemies of both God and man. Thoroughly underscore what terrible harm they do by not helping train children to become pastors, preachers, writers, and the like, and how God will punish them for it. There is a great need to preach about these things. For parents and those in authority are guilty beyond words in this regard, and the devil has horrible things in mind.

Finally, now that the pope's tyranny is over, people no longer want to go to the Sacrament but despise it. Here again urging is necessary, however, with the understanding that we are not to force anyone into the faith or to the Sacrament, nor set any law, time, or place for it. Our preaching should instead be such that of their own accord and without our command, people feel constrained themselves and press us pastors to serve the Sacrament. The way to go about this is to tell them that if anyone does not seek or desire the Lord's Supper at the very least four times a year, it is to be feared that he despises the Sacrament and is not Christian, just as no one is a Christian who does not believe or hear the Gospel. For Christ did not say, "Omit this" or "Despise this," but "This do, as often as you drink it," etc. He most certainly wants it done and does not want it left undone and despised. "This do," he says.

For a person not to prize highly the Sacrament is tantamount to saying that he has no sin, no flesh, no devil, no world, no death, no danger, no hell. That is to say, he believes in none of these although he is overwhelmed by them and is the devil's possession twice over. On the other hand, he needs no grace, life, paradise, kingdom of heaven, Christ, God, or any good thing. Surely, if he recognized how much evil is in him and how much he needs all the good things he lacks, he would not neglect the Sacrament, which gives help against such evil and bestows so much goodness. He will not need to be forced by law to the Sacrament but will himself come running in a hurry to the Lord's Table, constrained within himself and pressing you to give him the Sacrament.

Therefore do not set up any law concerning it, as the pope does. Only emphasize clearly the benefit, need, usefulness, and blessing connected with the Sacrament, and also the harm and danger of neglecting it. The people will then come of themselves without your using compulsion. But if they still do not come, then let them go their way and tell them that all who are insensitive or unaware of their great need and God's gracious help belong to the devil. But if you fail to urge these things or if you make it into law and bitterness, then the fault will be yours if they despise the Sacrament. Why should they not be lazy if you are asleep and silent?

[A Saving Responsibility]

So look to it, you pastors and preachers. Our ministry today is something else than it was under the pope. It has become a serious and saving responsibility. Consequently it now involves much more trouble and labor, danger and trial, and in addition it brings you little of the world's gratitude and rewards. But Christ Himself will be our reward if we labor faithfully. The Father of all grace help us to do just that. To Him be praise and thanks forever through Christ our Lord. Amen.

SECTION 1

The Ten Commandments

As the head of the family should teach them in a simple way to his household

[The text of the commandments is from Ex 20:3, 7, 8, 12–17.]

The First Commandment

You shall have no other gods.
What does this mean? We should fear, love, and trust in God above all things.

The Second Commandment

You shall not misuse the name of the Lord your God.
What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not curse, swear, use satanic arts, lie, or deceive by His name, but call upon it in every trouble, pray, praise, and give thanks.

The Third Commandment

Remember the Sabbath day by keeping it holy.
What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not despise preaching and His Word, but hold it sacred and gladly hear and learn it.

The Fourth Commandment

Honor your father and your mother.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not despise or anger our parents and other authorities, but honor them, serve and obey them, love and cherish them.

The Fifth Commandment

You shall not murder.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not hurt or harm our neighbor in his body, but help and support him in every physical need.

The Sixth Commandment

You shall not commit adultery.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we lead a sexually pure and decent life in what we say and do, and husband and wife love and honor each other.

The Seventh Commandment

You shall not steal.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not take our neighbor's money or possessions, or get them in any dishonest way, but help him to improve and protect his possessions and income.

The Eighth Commandment

You shall not give false testimony against your neighbor.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not tell lies about our neighbor, betray him, slander him, or hurt his reputation, but defend him, speak well of him, and explain everything in the kindest way.

The Ninth Commandment

You shall not covet your neighbor's house.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not scheme to get our neighbor's inheritance or house, or get it in a way which only appears right, but help and be of service to him in keeping it.

The Tenth Commandment

You shall not covet your neighbor's wife, or his manservant or maidservant, his ox or donkey, or anything that belongs to your neighbor.

What does this mean? We should fear and love God so that we do not entice or force away our neighbor's wife, workers, or animals, or turn them against him, but urge them to stay and do their duty.

The Close of the Commandments

What does God say about all these commandments? He says: "I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, punishing the children for the sin of the fathers to the third and fourth generation of those who hate Me, but showing love to a thousand generations of those who love Me and keep My commandments."

[Ex 20:5–6]

What does this mean? God threatens to punish all who break these commandments. Therefore, we should fear His wrath and not do anything against them. But He promises grace and every blessing to all who keep these commandments. Therefore, we should also love and trust in Him and gladly do what He commands.

The Creed

As the head of the family should teach them in a simple way to his household

The First Article—Creation

[The text of the creed is from Mt 28:19; Gn 1:1; 1Co 15:3–4; etc.]

I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth.

What does this mean? I believe that God has made me and all creatures; that He has given me my body and soul, eyes, ears, and all my members, my reason and all my senses, and still takes care of them.

He also gives me clothing and shoes, food and drink, house and home, wife and children, land, animals, and all I have. He richly and daily provides me with all that I need to support this body and life.

He defends me against all danger and guards and protects me from all evil.
All this He does only out of fatherly, divine goodness and mercy, without any merit or worthiness in me. For all this it is my duty to thank and praise, serve and obey Him.
This is most certainly true.

The Second Article—Redemption

And in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried. He descended into hell. The third day He rose again from the dead. He ascended into heaven and sits at the right hand of God, the Father Almighty. From thence He will come to judge the living and the dead.
What does this mean? I believe that Jesus Christ, true God, begotten of the Father from eternity, and also true man, born of the Virgin Mary, is my Lord, who has redeemed me, a lost and condemned person, purchased and won me from all sins, from death, and from the power of the devil; not with gold or silver, but with His holy, precious blood and with His innocent suffering and death, that I may be His own and live under Him in His kingdom and serve Him in everlasting righteousness, innocence, and blessedness, just as He is risen from the dead, lives and reigns to all eternity.
This is most certainly true.

The Third Article—Sanctification

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the holy Christian church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and the life everlasting. Amen.
What does this mean? I believe that I cannot by my own reason or strength believe in Jesus Christ, my Lord, or come to Him; but the Holy Spirit has called me by the Gospel, enlightened me with His gifts, sanctified and kept me in the true faith.
In the same way He calls, gathers, enlightens, and sanctifies the whole Christian church on earth, and keeps it with Jesus Christ in the one true faith.

In this Christian church He daily and richly forgives all my sins and the sins of all believers.
On the Last Day He will raise me and all the dead, and give eternal life to me and all believers in Christ.
This is most certainly true.

The Lord's Prayer

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever and ever. Amen.
Our Father in heaven, hallowed be Your name, Your kingdom come, Your will be done on earth as in heaven. Give us today our daily bread. Forgive us our sins as we forgive those who sin against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For the kingdom, the power, and the glory are Yours now and forever. Amen.

The Introduction

Our Father who art in heaven.
Our Father in heaven.
What does this mean? With these words God tenderly invites us to believe that He is our true Father and that we are His true children, so that with all boldness and confidence we may ask Him as dear children ask their dear father.

The First Petition

Hallowed be Thy name.
Hallowed be Your name.

What does this mean? God's name is certainly holy in itself, but we pray in this petition that it may be kept holy among us also.
How is God's name kept holy? God's name is kept holy when the Word of God is taught in its truth and purity, and we, as the children of God, also lead holy lives according to it. Help us to do this, dear Father in heaven! But anyone who teaches or lives contrary to God's Word profanes the name of God among us. Protect us from this, heavenly Father!

The Second Petition

Thy kingdom come.

Your kingdom come.
What does this mean? The kingdom of God certainly comes by itself without our prayer, but we pray in this petition that it may come to us also.
How does God's kingdom come? God's kingdom comes when our heavenly Father gives us His Holy Spirit, so that by His grace we believe His holy Word and lead godly lives here in time and there in eternity.

The Third Petition

Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

Your will be done on earth as in heaven.
What does this mean? The good and gracious will of God is done even without our prayer, but we pray in this petition that it may be done among us also.
How is God's will done? God's will is done when He breaks and hinders every evil plan and purpose of the devil, the world, and our sinful nature, which do not want us to hallow God's name or let His kingdom come; and when He strengthens and keeps us firm in His Word and faith until we die. This is His good and gracious will.

The Fourth Petition

Give us this day our daily bread.

Give us today our daily bread.
What does this mean? God certainly gives daily bread to everyone without our prayers, even to all evil people, but we pray in this petition that God would lead us to realize this and to receive our daily bread with thanksgiving.

What is meant by daily bread? Daily bread includes everything that has to do with the support and needs of the body, such as food, drink, clothing, shoes, house, home, land, animals, money, goods, a devout husband or wife, devout children, devout workers, devout and faithful rulers, good government, good weather, peace, health, self-control, good reputation, good friends, faithful neighbors, and the like.

The Fifth Petition

And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.

Forgive us our sins as we forgive those who sin against us.

What does this mean? We pray in this petition that our Father in heaven would not look at our sins, or deny our prayer because of them. We are neither worthy of the things for which we pray, nor have we deserved them, but we ask that He would give them all to us by grace, for we daily sin much and surely deserve nothing but punishment. So we too will sincerely forgive and gladly do good to those who sin against us.

The Sixth Petition

And lead us not into temptation.

Lead us not into temptation.

What does this mean? God tempts no one. We pray in this petition that God would guard and keep us so that the devil, the world, and our sinful nature may not deceive us or mislead us into false belief, despair, and other great shame and vice. Although we are attacked by these things, we pray that we may finally overcome them and win the victory.

The Seventh Petition

But deliver us from evil.

But deliver us from evil.

What does this mean? We pray in this petition, in summary, that our Father in heaven would rescue us from every evil of body and soul, possessions and reputation, and finally, when our last hour comes, give us a blessed end, and graciously take us from this valley of sorrow to Himself in heaven.

The Conclusion

For Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever and ever.* Amen.

*For the kingdom, the power, and the glory are Yours now and forever. Amen.
What does this mean? This means that I should be certain that these petitions are pleasing to our Father in heaven, and are heard by Him; for He Himself has commanded us to pray in this way and has promised to hear us. Amen, amen means "yes, yes, it shall be so."

The Sacrament of Holy Baptism

As the head of the family should teach it in a simple way to his household

First
What is Baptism?
Baptism is not just plain water, but it is the water included in God's command and combined with God's word.
Which is that word of God?
Christ our Lord says in the last chapter of Matthew: "Therefore go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." [Mt 28:19]

Second
What benefits does Baptism give?
It works forgiveness of sins, rescues from death and the devil, and gives eternal salvation to all who believe this, as the words and promises of God declare.
Which are these words and promises of God?
Christ our Lord says in the last chapter of Mark: "Whoever believes and is baptized will be saved, but whoever does not believe will be condemned." [Mk 16:16]

Third
How can water do such great things?
Certainly not just water, but the word of God in and with the water does these things, along with the faith which trusts this word of God in the water.

For without God's word the water is plain water and no Baptism. But with the word of God it is a Baptism, that is, a life-giving water, rich in grace, and a washing of the new birth in the Holy Spirit, as St. Paul says in Titus, chapter three:
"He saved us through the washing of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit, whom He poured out on us generously through Jesus Christ our Savior, so that, having been justified by His grace, we might become heirs having the hope of eternal life. This is a trustworthy saying." [Ti 3:5–8]

Fourth
What does such baptizing with water indicate?
It indicates that the Old Adam in us should by daily contrition and repentance be drowned and die with all sins and evil desires, and that a new man should daily emerge and arise to live before God in righteousness and purity forever.
Where is this written?
St. Paul writes in Romans chapter six: "We were therefore buried with Him through baptism into death in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, we too may live a new life." [Rm 6:4]

Confession

How Christians should be taught to confess

[The practice of Confession and Absolution is from Mt 16:19; 18:15; etc.]
What is Confession?
Confession has two parts.
First, that we confess our sins, and second, that we receive absolution, that is, forgiveness, from the pastor as from God Himself, not doubting, but firmly believing that by it our sins are forgiven before God in heaven.
What sins should we confess?
Before God we should plead guilty of all sins, even those we are not aware of, as we do in the Lord's Prayer; but before the pastor we should confess only those sins which we know and feel in our hearts.

Which are these?
Consider your place in life according to the Ten Commandments: Are you a father, mother, son, daughter, husband, wife, or worker? Have you been disobedient, unfaithful, or lazy? Have you been hot-tempered, rude, or quarrelsome? Have you hurt someone by your words or deeds? Have you stolen, been negligent, wasted anything, or done any harm?
*What is the Office of the Keys?
The Office of the Keys is that special authority which Christ has given to His church on earth to forgive the sins of repentant sinners, but to withhold forgiveness from the unrepentant as long as they do not repent.
*Where is this written?
This is what St. John the Evangelist writes in chapter twenty: The Lord Jesus breathed on His disciples and said, "Receive the Holy Spirit. If you forgive anyone his sins, they are forgiven; if you do not forgive them, they are not forgiven." [Jn 20:22–23]
What do you believe according to these words?
I believe that when the called ministers of Christ deal with us by His divine command, in particular when they exclude openly unrepentant sinners from the Christian congregation and absolve those who repent of their sins and want to do better, this is just as valid and certain, even in heaven, as if Christ our dear Lord dealt with us Himself.
*This question may not have been composed by Luther himself but reflects his teaching and was included in editions of the catechism during his lifetime.

The Sacrament of the Altar

As the head of the family should teach it in a simple way to his household

What is the Sacrament of the Altar?
It is the true body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ under the bread and wine, instituted by Christ Himself for us Christians to eat and to drink.
Where is this written?
The holy Evangelists Matthew, Mark, Luke, and St. Paul write:

Our Lord Jesus Christ, on the night when He was betrayed, took bread, and when He had given thanks, He broke it and gave it to the disciples and said: "Take, eat; this is My body, which is given for you. This do in remembrance of Me."
In the same way also He took the cup after supper, and when He had given thanks, He gave it to them, saying, "Drink of it, all of you; this cup is the new testament in My blood, which is shed for you for the forgiveness of sins. This do, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of Me."
What is the benefit of this eating and drinking?
These words, "Given and shed for you for the forgiveness of sins," show us that in the Sacrament forgiveness of sins, life, and salvation are given us through these words. For where there is forgiveness of sins, there is also life and salvation.
How can bodily eating and drinking do such great things?
Certainly not just eating and drinking do these things, but the words written here: "Given and shed for you for the forgiveness of sins." These words, along with the bodily eating and drinking, are the main thing in the Sacrament. Whoever believes these words has exactly what they say: "forgiveness of sins."
Who receives this sacrament worthily?
Fasting and bodily preparation are certainly fine outward training. But that person is truly worthy and well prepared who has faith in these words: "Given and shed for you for the forgiveness of sins."
But anyone who does not believe these words or doubts them is unworthy and unprepared, for the words "for you" require all hearts to believe.

SECTION 2

Daily Prayers

How the head of the family should teach his household to pray morning and evening

Morning Prayer

In the morning when you get up, make the sign of the holy cross and say: In the name of the Father and of the ✣ Son and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.
Then, kneeling or standing, repeat the Creed and the Lord's Prayer. If you choose, you may also say this little prayer:

> I thank You, my heavenly Father, through Jesus Christ, Your dear Son, that You have kept me this night from all harm and danger; and I pray that You would keep me this day also from sin and every evil, that all my doings and life may please You. For into Your hands I commend myself, my body and soul, and all things. Let Your holy angel be with me, that the evil foe may have no power over me. Amen.

Then go joyfully to your work, singing a hymn, like that of the Ten Commandments, or whatever your devotion may suggest.

Evening Prayer

In the evening when you go to bed, make the sign of the holy cross and say: In the name of the Father and of the ✣ Son and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.
Then kneeling or standing, repeat the Creed and the Lord's Prayer. If you choose, you may also say this little prayer:

> I thank You, my heavenly Father, through Jesus Christ, Your dear Son, that You have graciously kept me this day; and I pray that You would forgive me all my sins where I have done wrong, and graciously keep me this night. For into Your hands I commend myself, my body and soul, and all things. Let Your holy angel be with me, that the evil foe may have no power over me. Amen.

Then go to sleep at once and in good cheer.

How the head of the family should teach his household to ask a blessing and return thanks

Asking a Blessing

The children and members of the household shall go to the table reverently, fold their hands, and say:

> The eyes of all look to You, [O Lord,] and You give them their food at the proper time. You open Your hand and satisfy the desires of every living thing. [Ps 145:15–16]

Then shall be said the Lord's Prayer and the following:

> Lord God, heavenly Father, bless us and these Your gifts which we receive from Your bountiful goodness, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Returning Thanks

Also, after eating, they shall, in like manner, reverently and with folded hands say:

> Give thanks to the Lord, for He is good. His love endures forever. [He] gives food to every creature. He provides food for the cattle and for the young ravens when they call. His pleasure is not in the strength of the horse, nor His delight in the legs of a man; the Lord delights in those who fear Him, who put their hope in His unfailing love. [Ps 136:1, 25; 147:9–11]

Then shall be said the Lord's Prayer and the following:

> We thank You, Lord God, heavenly Father, for all Your benefits, through Jesus Christ, our Lord, who lives and reigns with You and the Holy Spirit forever and ever. Amen.

SECTION 3

Table of Duties

Certain passages of Scripture for various holy orders and positions, admonishing them about their duties and responsibilities

To Bishops, Pastors, and Preachers

The overseer must be above reproach, the husband of but one wife, temperate, self-controlled, respectable, hospitable, able to teach, not given to drunkenness, not violent but gentle, not quarrelsome, not a lover of money. He must manage his own family well and see that his children obey him with proper respect. 1Tm 3:2–4

He must not be a recent convert, or he may become conceited and fall under the same judgment as the devil. 1Tm 3:6

He must hold firmly to the trustworthy message as it has been taught, so that he can encourage others by sound doctrine and refute those who oppose it. Ti 1:9

What the Hearers Owe Their Pastors

The Lord has commanded that those who preach the gospel should receive their living from the gospel. 1Co 9:14

Anyone who receives instruction in the word must share all good things with his instructor. Do not be deceived: God cannot be mocked. A man reaps what he sows. Gal 6:6–7

The elders who direct the affairs of the church well are worthy of double honor, especially those whose work is preaching and teaching. For the Scripture says, "Do not muzzle the ox while it is treading out the grain," and "The worker deserves his wages." 1Tm 5:17–18

We ask you, brothers, to respect those who work hard among you, who are over you in the Lord and who admonish you. Hold them in the highest regard in love because of their work. Live in peace with each other. 1Th 5:12–13

Obey your leaders and submit to their authority. They keep watch over you as men who must give an account. Obey them so that their work will be a joy, not a burden, for that would be of no advantage to you. Heb 13:17

Of Civil Government

Everyone must submit himself to the governing authorities, for there is no authority except that which God has established. The authorities that exist have been established by God. Consequently, he who rebels against the authority is rebelling against what God has instituted, and those who do so will bring judgment on themselves. For rulers hold no terror for those who do right, but for those who do wrong. Do you want to be free from fear of the one in authority? Then do what is right and he will commend you. For he is God's servant to do you good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword for nothing. He is God's servant, an agent of wrath to bring punishment on the wrongdoer. Rm 13:1–4

Of Citizens

Give to Caesar what is Caesar's, and to God what is God's. Mt 22:21

It is necessary to submit to the authorities, not only because of possible punishment but also because of conscience. This is also why you pay taxes, for the authorities are God's servants, who give their full time to governing. Give everyone what you owe him: If you owe taxes, pay taxes; if revenue, then revenue; if respect, then respect; if honor, then honor. Rm 13:5–7

I urge, then, first of all, that requests, prayers, intercession and thanksgiving be made for everyone—for kings and all those in authority, that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness. This is good, and pleases God our Savior. 1Tm 2:1–3

Remind the people to be subject to rulers and authorities, to be obedient, to be ready to do whatever is good. Ti 3:1

Submit yourselves for the Lord's sake to every authority instituted among men: whether to the king, as the supreme authority, or to governors, who are sent by him to punish those who do wrong and to commend those who do right. 1Pt 2:13–14

To Husbands

Husbands, in the same way be considerate as you live with your wives, and treat them with respect as the weaker partner and as heirs with you of the gracious gift of life, so that nothing will hinder your prayers. 1Pt 3:7

Husbands, love your wives and do not be harsh with them. Col 3:19

To Wives

Wives, submit to your husbands as to the Lord. Eph 5:22

They were submissive to their own husbands, like Sarah, who obeyed Abraham and called him her master. You are her daughters if you do what is right and do not give way to fear. 1Pt 3:5–6

To Parents

Fathers, do not exasperate your children; instead, bring them up in the training and instruction of the Lord. Eph 6:4

To Children

Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. "Honor your father and mother"—which is the first commandment with a promise—"that it may go well with you and that you may enjoy long life on the earth." Eph 6:1–3

To Workers of All Kinds

Slaves, obey your earthly masters with respect and fear, and with sincerity of heart, just as you would obey Christ. Obey them not only to win their favor when their eye is on you, but like slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from your heart. Serve wholeheartedly, as if you were serving the Lord, not men, because you know that the Lord will reward everyone for whatever good he does, whether he is slave or free. Eph 6:5–8

To Employers and Supervisors

Masters, treat your slaves in the same way. Do not threaten them, since you know that he who is both their Master and yours is in heaven, and there is no favoritism with Him. Eph 6:9

To Youth

Young men, in the same way be submissive to those who are older. All of you, clothe yourselves with humility toward one another, because, "God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble." Humble yourselves, therefore, under God's mighty hand, that He may lift you up in due time. 1Pt 5:5–6

To Widows

The widow who is really in need and left all alone puts her hope in God and continues night and day to pray and to ask God for help. But the widow who lives for pleasure is dead even while she lives. 1Tm 5:5–6

To Everyone

The commandments … are summed up in this one rule: "Love your neighbor as yourself." Rm 13:9

I urge … that requests, prayers, intercession and thanksgiving be made for everyone. 1Tm 2:1

Let each his lesson learn with care, and all the household well shall fare.

The Unity of Scripture

The unity of Scripture is not imposed upon Scripture but found there.

—Robert D. Preus, Doctrine Is Life

Our English word Bible comes from the Greek word for "a book." It came into English by way of medieval Latin, when book technology allowed all the Sacred Scripture to be gathered under one cover—the Bible as we think of it today. But the idea that the Sacred Scripture is unified and, indeed, one book is hardly a medieval or modern notion. The unity of Scripture is already taught in the Scripture itself as the following points will reveal.

The Chief Character of the Scripture

While teaching beside the Bethesda pool in Jerusalem, Jesus told a group of Judeans, “You search the Scriptures because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is they that bear witness about Me” (Jn 5:39). Like other rabbis, Jesus spoke of the Old Testament Scripture as a united testimony.[1] But unlike other rabbis, Jesus joined the purpose of the Scripture—salvation for eternal life—to the key character of the Scripture, Himself as the promised Savior (cf Lk 24:44–47). Since all the Scripture bears witness to Jesus, Jesus understood and taught that the Scripture was unified.

The One Author of the Scripture

St Paul also taught this unity of Scripture. Shortly before his execution under Emperor Nero (AD 68), Paul wrote to his son in the faith, Timothy, a younger Christian leader:

> From childhood you have been acquainted with the sacred writings, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be competent, equipped for every good work. (2Tm 3:15–17)

Paul attributes all the Sacred Scripture to the work of God and understands the Scripture as focused on salvation through Jesus. He demonstrates the early Christian belief that the Scripture is unified in its teaching (cf 2Tm 1:13–14 about Christian doctrine generally).

The Fulfillment of Prophecy

The unity of the Scripture is graphically illustrated by the way it is interconnected through promises and fulfillments as well as commentary on earlier texts. The chart on p xlvii lists places where the Scripture builds on other passages of Scripture. The sheer number of such examples speaks to the unity of the Scripture. The writers saw themselves as teaching in continuity with what God had previously revealed (cf 2Tm 3:15–17).

The Unity of the Covenants

Scripture itself teaches that the revelation of God was delivered under a "covenant," or "testament," first given to Abraham and confirmed/renewed through Moses (Gn 17:9; Ex 2:24; chs 3–6; Lv 26:42; Dt 1:8; 29:12–13; Jsh 24; see p 127). Although many covenants are described in the Old Testament, Jeremiah saw the covenant given to Abraham and confirmed through Moses as the covenant (Jer 31:32), which the people of Israel broke. He then prophesied a second covenant, or "new covenant" (Jer 31:31–33; cf Is 59:20–21; Gal 3:17).

When Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper, He proclaimed the establishment of this new covenant (Mt 26:28; Mk 14:24; Lk 22:20). Paul refers explicitly to an old covenant (2Co 3:14) and a new covenant established in Christ (1Co 11:25; 2Co 3:6). The writer to the Hebrews affirms this understanding of God's revelation by citing Jeremiah (Heb 8:8; 9:15; 12:24; cf Jn 1:17).

The two great covenants of Scripture—the old and the new—relate to each other as prophecy and fulfillment. The first covenant pointed forward to the second, which would fulfill God's plan of redemption. This relationship of old and new, of prophecy and fulfillment, likewise reveals the unity of the Scripture.

A comment should be added about the enduring usefulness of the Old Testament. What is true and good always applies. When Jesus fulfilled the laws and promises of the Old Testament, He did not abolish them (Mt 5:17–18; Rm 3:31). They are not now useless to us, for God still uses them for our instruction (1Co 10:11).

In Christ, our relationship to the Old Testament has changed. Christ fulfilled the laws and the ordinances so that they can no longer condemn those who live by faith in Christ (Rm 7:6; Gal 3:23–26; see note, Rm 10:4). The ministry of the new covenant outshines the glory of the old (2Co 3:7–18). The civil and ceremonial laws and ordinances of the Old Testament no longer apply to us as laws and ordinances (Eph 2:11–22; see note, Eph 2:15), but they still stand as testimonies of God's holiness and mercy. They teach us about the goal, or "end," of the ministry of salvation: the deliverance from evil that God brought about in Christ.

Law and Gospel

Interpreting and applying the Scripture as a unified body of teaching is perhaps best understood through the study of Law and Gospel (see pp xxxi–xxxii). God's Law condemns our sin and drives us to despair of our own righteousness. Yet this harsh message of the Law prepares us for God's other great message: the forgiveness of sins in Christ. Although the Law and the Gospel are very different teachings and must be distinguished, they drive toward a unified purpose: our salvation.

As demonstrated in our notes on Ex 34:6–7, Law and Gospel are the enduring themes of all the Scripture. They are the ways of God with mankind. Their constant use unifies the Scripture (see p 320).

Speak, Lord, for Your Servant Hears

Whenever you study a passage of Scripture, keep these broad truths and themes in mind. They will help you understand the meaning of the passage and how it applies to your life. Treasure the Holy Bible as God's dear gift to you. It is His message of your personal salvation.

Scripture Written in View of Scripture

Some ancient and modern teachers have been confused about the relationship between the books of Scripture. For example, Marcion of Sinope (c 110–c 160) taught that the God of the Old Testament was a different God from that proclaimed by the New Testament. He and his followers did not regard the Old Testament as applying to them. The controversy Marcion raised was an important factor in driving early Christians to list carefully which books they regarded as Holy Scripture and which they rejected (see pp 1559–61).

Modern critics of the Bible have regarded the Old Testament as a diffuse collection of national literature, one that lacks true unity. For example, the History of Religions School (nineteenth and twentieth centuries) was an approach to the Bible that compared the beliefs and practices of ancient Israel with the beliefs and practices of other ancient religions. It argued that the religion of Israel more or less developed out of the religions of the ancient Near East. In this view, the Scripture is just part of the evolution of religion. This view has greatly undermined biblical teaching among liberal Christians, who increasingly pick and choose which parts of Scripture they will believe and follow.

The modern evangelical preacher Alexander Campbell (1788–1866) held that the Old Testament was valuable to read but no longer applied to Christians. Other writers have similarly dismissed one part of the Old Testament or another as alien to the Christian faith (e.g., C. S. Lewis).

Scripture Interprets Scripture

Each view described above has failed to understand how the Bible was written and how the Early Christians viewed the Old Testament. The Old Testament was the Holy Scripture of the New Testament Church, what they turned to and looked to when seeking God's will, since the New Testament was not yet written. Early Christians did not typically ask, "Does the Old Testament still apply?" Instead, they asked, "How does it apply?" assuming it was fully relevant to their lives. In many ways, the New Testament is a commentary on that truth.

The following chart draws together examples from Scripture that demonstrate Scripture's surpassing unity. This is only a sampling of the evidence.

[1] Collection and canonization of Scripture began already in the OT with the Law of Moses (see pp 335–37). The Law, Psalms, and Prophets were read, studied, and explained together at the temple and in Jewish synagogues, as early Jewish and Christian testimony shows (e.g., 1Macc 12:9; 2Macc 2:13; 15:9; 4 Maccabees 18:10; Ecclus Prologue; Jos, Ag Ap 1:38–40; Philo, On the Contemplative Life 75, 78; Mishnah Yadayim 3:5; Letter of Aristeas 155, 317–18; Mt 22:23–46; Lk 24:44; Ac 13:15; 28:23). Jesus and the disciples continued this practice, focusing on the fulfillment of OT prophecies in the person and work of Jesus (Mt 5:17; 11:13–15; Lk 16:16; Jn 1:45; Ac 13:15; Rm 3:21–22). The NT teachers and writers assumed the unity of the OT Scripture. The NT is more or less a commentary on the OT in view of the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. For more on the transition from early Judaism to early Christianity, see Oskar Skarsaune, In the Shadow of the Temple: Jewish Influences on Early Christianity (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2002), 279–93.

The Lectionaries

The following lectionaries are drawn from Lutheran Service Book, pp xiv–xxiii, and include Bible Readings from Sundays, festivals, and occasions. A lectionary may be read devotionally in the following manner:
Monday: OT/First Reading
Tuesday: Epistle/Second Reading
Wednesday: Holy Gospel
Thursday: OT/First Reading
Friday: Epistle/Second Reading
Saturday: Holy Gospel

In this way, a person would hear/read the appointed readings three times during the week in a meditative way, a good approach for those who are new to reading and studying the Bible (see p xxx). (Pastors may wish to read the lectionary devotionally a week or two in advance to facilitate their preparation for preaching.)

Dates of Easter

Easter Day is always the Sunday after the full moon that occurs on or after the spring equinox on March 21. This full moon may happen on any date between March 21 and April 18 inclusive. If the full moon falls on a Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday following. Easter Day cannot be earlier than March 22 or later than April 25.

Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, falls in the seventh week before Easter. The Ascension of Our Lord occurs on a Thursday, forty days after Easter Day. The Day of Pentecost is seven weeks, or the fiftieth day, after Easter Day.

[1] Because the date of Easter changes from year to year, its place on the calendar during a particular year determines whether there will be a greater or lesser number of Sundays during the season after Pentecost.

For the Three-Year Lectionary, each set of appointed readings is assigned to a specific seven-day period during the season after Pentecost and given a "proper" number. When Easter falls late, the proper numbers immediately following Trinity Sunday are skipped, and the readings resume with the proper number appropriate to the seven-day period. For the One-Year Lectionary, the propers appointed for the Trinity Season follow immediately after Trinity Sunday, and the Sundays immediately prior to the Last Sunday of the Church Year are skipped.

A Two-Year Reading Plan

A life goal for every mature Christian should be to read the entire Holy Bible. To read The Lutheran Study Bible devotionally, bookmark this page and adopt the steps below:

1. Recite the "Prayer to Abide by God's Revealed Will" or another prayer about God's Word (see the inside front and back covers or pp 2374–77).
2. Read the assigned Bible passage in the reading plan below.
3. Read the Law and Gospel Application Note(s) for the assigned passage.
4. Add your daily prayer concerns, beginning with the brief prayer(s) in the application notes.

Options:

- Supplement your readings with a psalm as described on p 845.
- Read the Bible passages in conjunction with other devotional resources.
- Journal your insights and prayer concerns.

Using this devotional plan will guide you through the entire Bible in two years. (You do not have to start at the beginning of the year; you can start immediately with Week 1.)

Reference Guide

This reference guide will lead you to Bible passages and study resources about faith, life, and eternal life in Christ. When you have questions about the Christian faith or face adversity, use the topical portion of this reference guide to lead you to biblical answers and comfort (pp lxxix–xci). The reference guide also includes abbreviations; Greek and Hebrew transliteration guidelines; complete lists of articles and charts, maps, and place-names; and a biblical chronology.

As a one-volume reference work, a study Bible contains an overwhelming wealth of information. Based on discussions with study Bible users, we placed this reference guide and other material prominently at the beginning of the book so that they are easier to discover and access. The concordance is at the end of the book (pp 2243–2372), as in other Bibles.

References to the Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek texts of the Bible appear at various places in TLSB, especially in the key terms lists. Transliterated terms were included to support indepth study of the text. Readers who do not desire to study a foreign term or phrase may skip over it just as one may skip over etymological information in an English dictionary.

A transliterated word in TLSB is usually a lexical form, but may also be (1) a form in a specific text, or (2) a form found in English usage (e.g., Baal).

Place-Names of the Bible and Ancient Empires

The place-names below are found on one or more maps in TLSB. However, this list provides only a selection of references in most cases, with preference for the general color maps at the beginning of the book.

More than 880 references to maps and their captions are also found throughout the introductions, study notes, and articles. (We used cross-referencing rather than more maps so that we would have more space for commentary.) In some cases, archaeologists cannot locate places in the Bible with certainty. This may be due to general references in the Bible, lack of inscriptions at a site, or disruption of a site. For those desiring more geographical information, we recommend the Oxford Bible Atlas, 4th ed. (Oxford University Press, 2007).

Biblical Chronology and World History

Calculations based on the biblical record make it possible to date many events and the lives of people who participated in those events. Biblical history did not merely occur "once upon a time" as storytellers say. Biblical and Christian religion is historical, since God's supernatural revelation entered ordinary space and time. (See "History and God's People," pp 336–37.)

Stone Age culture shows some evidence of record keeping. (See the interesting overview of research in Richard Rudgley, The Lost Civilizations of the Stone Age [New York: The Free Press, 1999].) However, historians and archaeologists typically date the development of writing as we know and use it today to the end of the fourth millennium BC and associate early writing with Mesopotamia and Egypt. The genealogies of Genesis 5; 10–11 are incomplete, so historians cannot effectively calculate dates from them (see p 9). The first dateable person in the Bible is Abram (Abraham), who was born in Mesopotamia near the end of the third millennium BC and later traveled to Egypt (Gn 12).

Calculating Dates

The following chronology allows the reader to compare the biblical record of events with parallel records of events in world history, with special attention to the civilizations that most often interacted with the people of Israel. Users should be aware that scholars of history may differ considerably when dating specific kings and events (e.g., dates proposed for the early dynasties of Egypt often differ by as much as 50 years). Although historians may fix some dates on the basis of astronomical events described in ancient texts, they estimate most dates by comparing lists of kings and events.

Historians sometimes have difficulty determining the dates for biblical persons and events after Abram. (E.g., dates for the exodus and conquest are hotly debated in academic circles.) Dating usually grows easier and clearer as one moves forward in history (e.g., for Israel, dates from the kingdom period and forward are more easily calculated). The editors of TLSB are grateful to Andrew Steinmann, whose research on the dates of biblical persons and events was especially helpful for the development of the tables below. Bracketed notes represent a proposed construction based on biblical and historical contexts.

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

BIBLICAL RECORD: Creation in six days (Gn 1–2)

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

RECORDS OF OTHER CIVILIZATIONS: Creation accounts in Mesopotamia and other cultures have similarities with biblical themes but differ markedly in theology.

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

BIBLICAL RECORD: Fall into sin (Gn 3)

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

BIBLICAL RECORD: Children of Adam and Eve (Gn 4–5; 10). Moses may refer to an earlier resource for his information: The Book of the Generations of Adam (see note, Gn 5:1; see also pp 3–4).

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

BIBLICAL RECORD: Noah called to build the ark (Gn 6)

The flood (Gn 7–8)

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

RECORDS OF OTHER CIVILIZATIONS: Flood accounts in various world cultures describe a great worldwide flood during which a hero rescues animals and mankind (e.g., Sumerian Kings List, Atrahasis Epic, Eridu Flood Story, and Epic of Gilgamesh). Such flood accounts are not limited to Mesopotamia.

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

BIBLICAL RECORD: The tower of Babel (Gn 11)

EVENTS FROM CREATION TO THE FLOOD

RECORDS OF OTHER CIVILIZATIONS: The Sumerian Epic of Enmerkar refers to a common language spoken by all people.

Although writing began at an earlier date (e.g., Sumerian records of commerce may date to c 3300 BC), recorded history began when the Egyptians used hieroglyphs to describe the unification of Upper and Lower Egypt under Menes in c 3100 BC. After this point, it becomes possible to calculate dates for persons and events, though many difficulties still result because of the variety of calendars, writing systems, and styles used by ancient people.

THE OLD TESTAMENT

The righteous in Israel were simply called from faith to the same faith. For the same Spirit, the same faith, the same grace was always given through Christ. … What was given before differed only in measure, not in kind, from what was to come.

—Tyconius, The Book of Rules

The New Testament is hidden in the Old Testament, and the Old Testament is made clear in the New Testament.

—Augustine, Questions on the Seven Books

The deeds of the Old Testament have shown those things that are accomplished in the New Testament, just as the apostle says in 1 Corinthians 10, "All of these things happened as examples."

—Nicholas of Lyra, Prolog to the Glossa Ordinaria

There are some who have little regard for the Old Testament. … But Christ says in John 5[:39], "Search the Scriptures, for it is they that bear witness to me." … The Scriptures of the Old Testament are not to be despised, but diligently read. For [the apostles] base the New Testament upon them mightily.

—Martin Luther, Prefaces to the Old Testament

The Old Testament is the basis of the New. … The fathers and teachers of the Church in all ages have studied the Old Testament Scriptures, and have expounded the revelations of God under the Old Covenant in learned and edifying works, unfolding to the Christian community the riches of the wisdom and knowledge of God which they contain, and impressing them upon the heart, for doctrine, for reproof, for improvement, for instruction in righteousness.

—C. F. Keil, Commentary on the Old Testament

GENESIS THROUGH DEUTERONOMY

The Books of Moses

According to long-standing tradition in Judaism and Christianity, the first five books of Holy Scripture (Gn; Ex; Lv; Nu; Dt) are attributed to the prophet Moses. In fact, Jesus attributed these books to Moses (Mt 19:8; Mk 7:10; 12:26; Jn 7:19). In Luther's Bible translation, he titled them "the Books of Moses."

Critical Views of the Books of Moses

In the eighteenth century, scholars such as Richard Simon (1638–1712) began to wonder whether Moses simply edited these books, wrote parts of them, or perhaps did not write them at all. A French scholar, Jean Astruc (1685–1766), noticed that in some parts of Genesis a certain Hebrew word for "God" is used (Elohim), but in other parts a word for "Lord" is used (Yahweh; see p 1227). Astruc proposed that this hap-pened because Moses used different sources, which had different names for God. Biblical critic J. G. Eichhorn (1752–1827) and other German scholars (e.g., K. H. Graf and J. Wellhausen) developed Astruc's ideas more radically. Their documentary hypothesis, or JEDP theory, assumed that Moses did not write the books. They concluded that a much later editor drew the books together from four sources: the Jahwist, Elohist, Deuteronomist, and Priestly writers. Their views became standard in liberal schools of theology and are still taught today.

However, in the twentieth century, scholars such as J. F. H. Gunkel (1862–1932) began to question aspects of the JEDP theory. Others rejected it altogether. Now, in the twenty-first century, most scholars have abandoned the JEDP theory in favor of methods that interpret large sections or entire books as whole literary compositions. Conservative biblical scholars have always attributed these five books to Moses. Archaeology and study of the texts have affirmed the antiquity of the books.

Evidence of Sources in the Bible

The Bible itself clearly teaches that Moses used other sources—written and oral—for composing the first five books of Scripture. Moses' most important source was God Himself; God dictated portions of the books to him (cf Ex 24:3). But Moses also mentioned or quoted the following potential sources:

The Book of the Generations of Adam (Gn 5:1)
The Saying about Nimrod (Gn 10:9)
The Saying about the Mount of the Lord (Gn 22:14)
The Tradition of the Sinew (Gn 32:32)
The Statute of Joseph (Gn 47:26)
The Song of Moses (Ex 15:1–18)
The Song of Miriam (Ex 15:20–21)
The Memorial for Joshua (Ex 17:14)
The Book of the Covenant (Ex 24:7)
The Tablets of the Testimony (Ex 24:12; 25:16)
The Registration of Elders (Nu 11:26)
The Book of the Wars of the Lord (Nu 21:14–15)
The Song of the Well (Nu 21:17–18)
The Song of Heshbon (Nu 21:27–30)
The Book of the Law (Dt 29:21; 30:10; 31:26)

When giving place-names, Moses also may have drawn on written or oral sources (cf Gn 11:9; 16:14; 26:33; 33:17; 35:20; Dt 3:14). A few passages possibly indicate later editing to provide clarity (see notes, Gn 14:14; 36:31).

Luther believed God's people always passed down teachings across the generations. He wrote,

> Can there be any doubt that the holy fathers always had their gatherings and meetings, where they instructed the youth, where they preached, prayed, prophesied, and praised God? The church cannot exist without the constant use of the Word. … Thus Abel and Cain … [and] Shem had meetings, sermons, forms of worship, sacrifices, and other ceremonies, which continued in existence up to the time of Abraham. (AE 2:197)

Moses did not fully explain the nature of his potential sources or how he used them (see notes for the references above). A number of Moses' sources are poetic, which interests historians. Since poems in Genesis "retain more archaic forms of the Hebrew language" (Hummel, p 55), this has led some scholars to conclude that Moses created portions of Genesis by recasting earlier Israelite poems or stories. This is possible but certainly not proven (see p 777; see also Luther's comment on the writing of Job, AE 54:79).

Moses Wrote God's Word

That Moses used other sources for writing the first five books of Scripture is not surprising. In fact, the evangelist Luke mentioned using sources (Lk 1:1–4), and the apostle Paul commonly quoted earlier Christian hymns and even Greek poets in his letters and sermons. The Holy Spirit blessed, guided, and directed the "research" of Moses just as surely as He guided the writers of the New Testament (see notes, Lk 1:2; 2Pt 1:21).

Because the evidence for Moses' sources is so fragmentary, scholars will no doubt continue to debate this issue. However, faithful students of Scripture should resist the urge to discover "new sources" that Moses did not explicitly reference, as advocates of the discredited JEDP theory attempted to do.

Literary Styles in the Books of Moses

As noted previously, Moses included a broad variety of literary styles in his books. Of particular note is the well-plotted account of the patriarch Joseph (Gn 37–50), which must be regarded as one of the greatest compositions of world literature. Consider also the following literary styles:

1. Genealogies (see p 9)
2. Historical accounts of people cursed and blessed (see pp 335–37)
3. Covenants of laws and promises (see p 127)
4. Construction plans (see diagram, p 159)
5. Censuses (see p 213)
6. Sermons (see pp 274–75)
7. Songs, poems, and liturgical texts (see pp 777–78)

Joshua, Moses' assistant, or others may have helped Moses in organizing, writing, and compiling this broad variety of materials (see note, Ex 24:13).

The Purpose of the Books of Moses

The broad array of literary styles Moses used within his writings and the traditional name for his books have led to confusion about the books' character and purpose. Though the Books of Moses are commonly called the "Law of Moses," they are much more than Law. The Hebrew term translated "law" (torah) embraces things such as rules and commandments but has a much broader meaning. The confusion arose when the Bible was translated into Greek (LXX) and the translators chose the Greek nomos to translate the Hebrew torah. The Greek term greatly narrowed the understanding and use of Moses' writings.

Torah is "instruction" (see "Law," p 971), which includes God's Law, His covenant promises, and the history of His people as examples. St Paul often noted the importance of the Books of Moses as instruction.

> I want you to know, brothers, that our fathers were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, and all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea. … Now these things took place as examples for us, that we might not desire evil as they did. (1Co 10:1–2, 6)
> For whatever was written in former days was written for our instruction, that through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures we might have hope. (Rm 15:4)
> Continue in what you have learned and have firmly believed, knowing from whom you learned it and how from childhood you have been acquainted with the sacred writings, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be competent, equipped for every good work. (2Tm 3:14–17)

As you read and study the Books of Moses, certainly look for the Law they proclaim, but recognize also how they proclaim the encouragement, hope, and promise of the Gospel, which the apostle Paul describes.

Despite the great variety of styles, at the heart of the Books of Moses is a running historical record of God's ways with His people, admonishing them through His Law and blessing them through His Gospel promises. In these two ways, Moses' prophetic ministry anticipates and announces the ministry of a greater prophet (Dt 18:18), which is fulfilled in the appearing of Jesus of Nazareth (cf Ac 7:37). Jesus came to fulfill the Law of Moses (Mt 5:17), to remove the curse of the Law (Gal 3:13), and to impart the blessings of God's gracious promises in the Gospel for all nations (2Co 1:20).

Ritual and Devotion

The Books of Moses demonstrate close unity between the ritual acts of religion and sincere devotion. The ritual is devotion. For example, consider the close relationships between the following: (1) covenant ritual with loyalty, love, and trust; (2) ritual vows with peace; (3) ritual sacrifices with forgiveness and atonement; and (4) ritual cleanliness with holiness. These features illustrate the unity and antiquity of the Books of Moses as well as their relationship to later biblical writings. (The Books of Moses do not raise great concerns about empty ritual, later raised by Joshua [24:15–25] and decried by the prophets [e.g., Is 1:10–17; 29:13; 66:3–4; Am 4:4–5; 5:21–24; Mal 1:6–14].)

Radical criticism of the Books of Moses, which chopped them up into primitive religion and later, priestly religion, failed to recognize this essential unity between ritual and devotion. In part, the critical approach can be traced to extreme Protestant revulsion toward ritual, tradition, and legalism. The attitude that attacked medieval Christianity for its outward, ritual expressions of faith became secularized during the Enlightenment. This critical attitude was then turned on the Scriptures, giving birth to radical criticism of the Bible and the destruction of Christianity in much of Europe. (See Hummel, pp 19–31, 156–62.)

Sincere Christians should recognize the roots and the dangers of radically dividing between outward expressions of faith and inward devotion. God made us body and soul, and His Word applies to us body and soul. God's people need both sincere faith and sincere ways to express that faith in the services of the Church. They likewise always need both of God's messages: Law and Gospel.

Key Terms and Phrases in the Books of Moses

The Lutheran Study Bible contains lists of terms used in the Books of Moses, the Psalms (see pp 842–44), the Prophets (see pp 1078–80), and the Pauline Epistles (see pp 1901–4). These terms were compiled on the basis of frequency of use, importance, and precedence. The definitions are general, not comprehensive. The terms are rarely exclusive to one biblical author or type of literature. Therefore, references to these lists appear throughout all notes.

angel. Hbr mal'ak, "messenger." A spiritual being that serves God (e.g., Gn 19:1; 28:12), often as a messenger or warrior. The OT speaks most often of good angels but does refer to evil angels or spirits (e.g., Lv 16:8; 17:7; Dt 32:17). Moses uses the term most often for the "angel of the LORD." See p 1227; see also the note at Ezk 10:1 regarding cherubim.

atonement. Hbr kaphar, "ransom, reconciliation." The word may be related to the idea of covering something, a sense that appears in other Semitic languages. However, Moses closely relates atonement to the idea of redemption (see "redeem," p 843), where an innocent life is offered as a substitute for a guilty life (e.g., the transfer of guilt to the sacrificial animal in Lv 1:4; 4:4; 16:21). Also, Jacob is described as reconciling with his brother, Esau, by offering him a gift as atonement (Gn 32:20). Atonement brought cleansing (Lv 16:30). It was the focus of a major annual ritual, the Day of Atonement (see p 136), when the blood of a sacrifice was sprinkled on the "place of atonement," the cover of the ark of the covenant. See diagram, p 203.

be with. Found in numerous Hbr expressions of encouragement for God's people, which often also threaten defeat or punishment for enemies of God's people. See p 495. In biblical theology, God fills the whole universe with His presence (Jer 23:23) and providential goodness (Mt 5:45; Ac 17:24–28; Rm 1:20). However, God is specially present with His saving power and grace where He promises to be present, in His Word (Ex 3:12; cf Jsh 1:5). These promises anticipate the greater day of Immanuel, which means "God with us" (Is 7:14; Mt 1:23; cf Mt 28:20). Jesus is present according to His grace wherever His Gospel and Sacraments are present.

Book of the Law. Used at the close of Deuteronomy, referring to all or part of that Book (Dt 29:21). However, in later Scripture, it may refer to the five books written by Moses. See pp 3–4; see also "Law," p 971.

choose. Hbr bachar, "select." Root may mean "to look at carefully." Moses uses this term often in Deuteronomy, where the Lord explains that He chose Israel to be His holy people (Dt 14:2; see note, Gn 12:1). His choice was based on His great love, not on Israel's merits (Dt 7:6–8). See "chosen," p 1901.

clean. Hbr tahor, "pure, genuine." The Lord gave Israel specific laws, customs, and rituals that distinguished it from other nations. These practices often involved washing or eating things that were regarded as clean and avoiding things that were regarded as unclean. However, the laws were not exclusively devoted to hygiene. These matters receive special attention in Lv 11–15. See holy; see also p 300. (Modern Hbr uses "kosher" ["legal, permitted"] to describe this idea.)

congregation. See "great congregation," p 842.

consecrate. See holy.

covenant. Hbr berith. Root term never appears as a verb in the OT. The noun commonly appears with the verb "cut." The idea of covenant has been falsely associated with "dispensations," as though God worked differently with people at different times in history. Although the OT covenants with God have different stipulations, they are always based on God's two ways with mankind: Law and Gospel (see note, Ex 34:6–7; see also pp xxi–xxii). See p 127.

curse. Translated from several Hbr terms, two in particular: (1) Hbr 'arar, "to bind" or "restrict," as with a law or spell. This term pronounces punishments, threats, and restrictions. (2) Hbr qelalah, from a word for "light" or "slight," which describes lowering of status from favored or blessed to cursed. All ancient people used curses (e.g., 1Sm 17:43) but typically regarded them as magic formulas that, if pronounced properly, would obligate the gods to harm someone. The Lord uses the curse terms especially to describe applications of His Law and its penalties. See p 127.

devote to destruction. Hbr charam, "to give over to the Lord by totally destroying" (Nu 21:2–3; Dt 7:2–6; 13:12–15). The related noun is cherem, "that which is to be given over to the Lord by destruction." The Lord declared the idolatrous Canaanites and some of their cities as cherem. The idea is related to but not the same as holiness (Lv 27:28–29) because both involve bans and restrictions. Things and persons associated with evil are forbidden to Israel and therefore destroyed; holy things may also be forbidden to Israel generally, yet are preserved for the priests and Levites. See holy. The command to devote the Canaanites to destruction has offended many modern interpreters who insist that a God of love would never give such a command. Such interpreters usually falsely conclude that the Bible does not describe real history at this point and must be interpreted allegorically, or the OT promotes bad ethics and should not be believed or followed. To be sure, war raises the greatest ethical issues, involving battle, refugees, prisoners, and occupation of conquered communities. See the issues raised by Midianite prisoners in Nu 31 (see esp note, Nu 31:15–16). Every modern military or police force wrestles with these issues. However, readers should also note that "pure" pacificism raises similar ethical issues, such as toleration for tyranny, murder, abuse, slavery, and moral compromise. Biblical history shows God advocating proactive resistance of evil, including the use of force at times. (Note that alongside the command to destroy the Canaanites, God also promises to drive out the Canaanites. So the command to destroy also services the purpose of driving the Canaanites away [cf Ex 23:27–31]). Interpreters who proudly dismiss the OT accounts fail to appreciate the depth of the issues and responsibilities for delivering people from evil. See p 376.

favor. Hbr chen, "approval" or "affection," related to the idea of grace (see "grace," p 1902; see also "gracious," p 842). Often used in the Hbr expression "found favor in someone's eyes" (cf Gn 6:8; 39:21; Ex 3:21; 11:3; 12:36; 33:12). Common also in the writings of Solomon, especially Proverbs. See choose.

firstborn. The firstborn son was privileged to receive a double portion of the inheritance (Dt 21:16–17) and leadership over the family. In Abraham's family, the blessing to carry on the covenant promise was also a matter of inheritance (Gn 27:4, 27–29; 28:4). During the exodus, Israel is called God's firstborn (see note, Ex 4:22), and firstborn Israelites and the firstborn of their cattle had to be redeemed by sacrifice (Ex 12:5; 13:2, 13; Dt 15:19). Among the Israelites, the Lord designated the Levites as His firstborn (Nu 3:12). The privileges and service of the firstborn provide important background for NT teaching about Jesus (see note, Rm 8:29.) See portion.

firstfruits. The first produce harvested each year was offered to the Lord with thanksgiving (Ex 23:16; 34:22; Lv 19:23–25; Nu 15:20–21; Dt 18:4; 2Ch 31:5). The presentation of the firstfruits during the Feast of Weeks (Pentecost) included a liturgy (Dt 26:1–11). See pp 200–201, 1835.

flowing with milk and honey. Common OT expression encompassing both animal husbandry and agriculture. Describes the Promised Land as having every good quality in abundance.

freewill. See note, Ex 35:29.

glory of the LORD. Hbr kebod yahweh. The term kebod refers to the "weight" or "weightiness" of something, and thereby its impressive appearance or "honor." Moses introduces the expression during the exodus (Ex 16:7) to contrast the Lord's majesty with that of Pharaoh and Egypt. It comes to describe the visible manifestation of God's presence in the cloud and fire of the exodus. See p 39. It is the splendor of God's presence that belongs now to believers in the promise, and that by His advanced preparation will be revealed to them and in them.

heritage. See portion.

holy. Hbr qodesh, "set apart." God, uncreated and unique, is the only source of holiness. He hallows time (feasts), place (tabernacle/temple), people (priests/Levites/Israel), and the things and rituals that belong to them. In other words, these things belong to God because He selects them, not because of their own qualities. In the OT, there are degrees of holiness; what stands closest to God is "most holy" (see note, Lv 2:3). What is not holy is "common" or "unclean." These truths stand behind NT teaching about salvation as (1) purification from sin and (2) election by grace. See "holy" and "chosen," pp 1902, 1901.

inherit. See portion.

Israel. See note, Gn 32:28. See also p 1079.

know. Verb used in a polite Hbr expression for sexual intercourse (e.g., Gn 4:1).

law. Hbr torah; commonly translated "law," but in many passages that translation is inadequate and "instruction" is preferable. See pp 4–5, 971.

oath. Hbr 'alah; typically a solemn promise (Gn 24:41; 26:28; Lv 5:1; Nu 5:21); became a part of the covenant (Dt 29:12, 14–21). See curse and vow.

offering. See pp 170–71.

peace. Hbr shalom; a state of wholeness and unity; may include reconciliation (Gn 15:15; 26:29; cf Ps 50:14). Most often this is a blessing from God (cf Nu 6:26; 25:12). See "Peace offering," p 171.

portion. The tribes of Israel were each given a portion of the Promised Land, though the priestly clan of the Levites was given God Himself, not land, as their inheritance (Dt 10:9; see note, Ps 119:57). Inheritance is an important expression of God's graciousness in the OT. He gives lovingly and freely to His people as a father lovingly provides for his children. God's chosen people are His portion and treasured possession (Dt 32:9).

purified. See holy.

sanctuary. Lit, "holy place." See diagram, p 139.

servant of the LORD. A title, more than a description of someone's function. Based on Nu 12:7–8, where God speaks of Moses' office. Other "servants of the LORD" include Abraham, David, and the prophets. Most significantly, the title belongs to the Messiah in the Servant Songs in Isaiah (Is 42:1–9; 49:1–13; 50:4–11; 52:13–53:12).

set apart. See holy.

swear. See vow.

tabernacle. See diagram, p 139.

tithe. Ten percent of a person's harvest or income, the OT standard for yearly donations to the tabernacle/temple (Lv 27:30–32). These offerings supported the services of the priests and Levites (Nu 18:21–28) and were regarded as their inheritance (see portion). See p 1092.

vow. Hbr neder; a peace offering (Lv 7:16; Nu 30:3–4) by which a worshiper is bound to God with a promise; a thank offering (Nu 21:1–3; cf Na 1:15) requesting God's favor and praising Him for success in fulfilling a promise (Ps 22:25; 50:14; 116:17–18). A vow and its offering are not distinguished (see concluding paragraphs). See pp 170–71. Clean animals or even service was offered with a vow. Both men and women made such vows (Nu 30). Related vows include the Nazirite vow (Nu 6) and "devotion to destruction" (see above). See oath.

walk. Hbr halak, a common term that can describe one's life or way of life (Gn 17:1). See "way," p 844.

The Creation of the World

1 [1]†‡† In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth.
[2]†‡† The earth was without form and void, and darkness was over the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God was hovering over the face of the waters.
[3]† And God said, “Let there be light,” and there was light. [4]† And God saw that the light was good. And God separated the light from the darkness.
[5]† God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And there was evening and there was morning, the first day.
[6]† And God said, “Let there be an expanse[1] in the midst of the waters, and let it separate the waters from the waters.” [7]† And God made[2] the expanse and separated the waters that were under the expanse from the waters that were above the expanse. And it was so. [8]† And God called the expanse Heaven.[3] And there was evening and there was morning, the second day.
[9]†† And God said, “Let the waters under the heavens be gathered together into one place, and let the dry land appear.” And it was so. [10]† God called the dry land Earth,[4] and the waters that were gathered together he called Seas.
And God saw that it was good.
[11]† And God said, “Let the earth sprout vegetation, plants[5] yielding seed, and fruit trees bearing fruit in which is their seed, each according to its kind, on the earth.” And it was so. [12]† The earth brought forth vegetation, plants yielding seed according to their own kinds, and trees bearing fruit in which is their seed, each according to its kind. And God saw that it was good. [13]And there was evening and there was morning, the third day.
[14]† And God said, “Let there be lights in the expanse of the heavens to separate the day from the night. And let them be for signs and for seasons,[6] and for days and years, [15]and let them be lights in the expanse of the heavens to give light upon the earth.” And it was so. [16]† And God made the two great lights—the greater light to rule the day and the lesser light to rule the night—and the stars. [17]And God set them in the expanse of the heavens to give light on the earth, [18]to rule over the day and over the night, and to separate the light from the darkness. And God saw that it was good. [19]And there was evening and there was morning, the fourth day.

[20]†And God said, “Let the waters swarm with swarms of living creatures, and let birds[7] fly above the earth across the expanse of the heavens.” [21]†So God created the great sea creatures and every living creature that moves, with which the waters swarm, according to their kinds, and every winged bird according to its kind. And God saw that it was good. [22]†And God blessed them, saying, “Be fruitful and multiply and fill the waters in the seas, and let birds multiply on the earth.” [23]And there was evening and there was morning, the fifth day.

[24]†And God said, “Let the earth bring forth living creatures according to their kinds—livestock and creeping things and beasts of the earth according to their kinds.” And it was so. [25]And God made the beasts of the earth according to their kinds and the livestock according to their kinds, and everything that creeps on the ground according to its kind. And God saw that it was good.

[26]†Then God said, “Let us make man[1] in our image, after our likeness. And let them have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the birds of the heavens and over the livestock and over all the earth and over every creeping thing that creeps on the earth.”

[27]† So God created man in his own image,
in the image of God he created him;
male and female he created them.

[28]†And God blessed them. And God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth and subdue it and have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the birds of the heavens and over every living thing that moves on the earth.” [29]†And God said, “Behold, I have given you every plant yielding seed that is on the face of all the earth, and every tree with seed in its fruit. You shall have them for food. [30]†And to every beast of the earth and to every bird of the heavens and to everything that creeps on the earth, everything that has the breath of life, I have given every green plant for food.” And it was so. [31]† And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good. And there was evening and there was morning, the sixth day.

The Seventh Day, God Rests

2 [1]†††Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. [2]†And on the seventh day God finished his work that he had done, and he rested on the seventh day from all his work that he had done. [3]†So God blessed the seventh day and made it holy, because on it God rested from all his work that he had done in creation.

The Creation of Man and Woman

4 ‡†† These are the generations of the heavens and the earth when they were created,
in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens.

5 †When no bush of the field[1] was yet in the land[2] and no small plant of the field had yet sprung up—for the Lord God had not caused it to rain on the land, and there was no man to work the ground, 6 †and a mist[1] was going up from the land and was watering the whole face of the ground—7 †then the Lord God formed the man of dust from the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man became a living creature.
8 †And the Lord God planted a garden in Eden, in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed. 9 †And out of the ground the Lord God made to spring up every tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food. The tree of life was in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

10 ‡A river flowed out of Eden to water the garden, and there it divided and became four rivers. 11 †The name of the first is the Pishon. It is the one that flowed around the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold. 12 †And the gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stone are there. 13 †The name of the second river is the Gihon. It is the one that flowed around the whole land of Cush. 14 †And the name of the third river is the Tigris, which flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

15 †The Lord God took the man and put him in the garden of Eden to work it and keep it. 16 †And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, “You may surely eat of every tree of the garden, 17 †but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil you shall not eat, for in the day that you eat[1] of it you shall surely die.”

18 †Then the Lord God said, “It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a helper fit for[2] him.” 19 † Now out of the ground the Lord God had formed[3] every beast of the field and every bird of the heavens and brought them to the man to see what he would call them. And whatever the man called every living creature, that was its name. [20]†The man gave names to all livestock and to the birds of the heavens and to every beast of the field. But for Adam[4] there was not found a helper fit for him. [21]†So the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon the man, and while he slept took one of his ribs and closed up its place with flesh. [22]†And the rib that the Lord God had taken from the man he made[5] into a woman and brought her to the man. [23]†Then the man said,

> “This at last is bone of my bones > and flesh of my flesh;
> she shall be called Woman,
> because she was taken out of Man.”[6]

[24]† Therefore a man shall leave his father and his mother and hold fast to his wife, and they shall become one flesh. [25]†And the man and his wife were both naked and were not ashamed.

The Fall

3 [1]†Now the serpent was more crafty than any other beast of the field that the Lord God had made.
He said to the woman, “Did God actually say, ‘You[7] shall not eat of any tree in the garden’?” [2]And the woman said to the serpent, “We may eat of the fruit of the trees in the garden, [3]†but God said, ‘You shall not eat of the fruit of the tree that is in the midst of the garden, neither shall you touch it, lest you die.’” [4]† But the serpent said to the woman, “You will not surely die. [5]†For God knows that when you eat of it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil.” [6]†So when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was a delight to the eyes, and that the tree was to be desired to make one wise,[1] she took of its fruit and ate, and she also gave some to her husband who was with her, and he ate. [7]†
Then the eyes of both were opened, and they knew that they were naked.
And they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves loincloths.
[8]†And they heard the sound of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool[2] of the day, and the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God among the trees of the garden. [9]†But the Lord God called to the man and said to him, “Where are you?”[3] [10]†And he said, “I heard the sound of you in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked, and I hid myself.” [11]†He said, “Who told you that you were naked? Have you eaten of the tree of which I commanded you not to eat?” [12]†The man said, “The woman whom you gave to be with me, she gave me fruit of the tree, and I ate.” [13]†Then the Lord God said to the woman, “What is this that you have done?” The woman said, “The serpent deceived me, and I ate.” [14]†The Lord God said to the serpent,

> “Because you have done this, > cursed are you above all livestock > and above all beasts of the field;
> on your belly you shall go,

and dust you shall eat
all the days of your life.
15† I will put enmity between you and the woman,
and between your offspring[1] and her offspring;
he shall bruise your head,
and you shall bruise his heel.”

16†To the woman he said,

“I will surely multiply your pain in childbearing;
in pain you shall bring forth children.
Your desire shall be for[2] your husband, and he shall rule over you.”

17†And to Adam he said,

“Because you have listened to the voice of your wife and have eaten of the tree of which I commanded you, ‘You shall not eat of it,’ cursed is the ground because of you;
in pain you shall eat of it all the days of your life;
18 thorns and thistles it shall bring forth for you;
and you shall eat the plants of the field.
19† By the sweat of your face
you shall eat bread,
till you return to the ground,
for out of it you were taken;
for you are dust,
and to dust you shall return.”

20†The man called his wife’s name Eve, because she was the mother of all living.[3] 21†And the Lord God made for Adam and for his wife garments of skins and clothed them.

22 † Then the Lord God said, “Behold, the man has become like one of us in knowing good and evil. Now, lest he reach out his hand and take also of the tree of life and eat, and live forever—” 23 † therefore the Lord God sent him out from the garden of Eden to work the ground from which he was taken. 24 † He drove out the man, and at the east of the garden of Eden he placed the cherubim and a flaming sword that turned every way to guard the way to the tree of life.

Cain and Abel

4 [1]†Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain, saying, “I have gotten[1] a man with the help of the Lord.” [2]†And again, she bore his brother Abel. Now Abel was a keeper of sheep, and Cain a worker of the ground. [3]†In the course of time Cain brought to the Lord an offering of the fruit of the ground, [4]†and Abel also brought of the firstborn of his flock and of their fat portions. And the Lord had regard for Abel and his offering, [5]†but for Cain and his offering he had no regard. So Cain was very angry, and his face fell. [6]†The Lord said to Cain, “Why are you angry, and why has your face fallen? [7]† If you do well, will you not be accepted?[2] And if you do not do well, sin is crouching at the door. Its desire is for[3] you, but you must rule over it.”

[8]†Cain spoke to Abel his brother.[4] And when they were in the field, Cain rose up against his brother Abel and killed him. [9]†Then the Lord said to Cain, “Where is Abel your brother?” He said, “I do not know; am I my brother’s keeper?” [10]And the Lord said, “What have you done? The voice of your brother’s blood is crying to me from the ground. [11]†And now you are cursed from the ground, which has opened its mouth to receive your brother’s blood from your hand. [12]†When you work the ground, it shall no longer yield to you its strength. You shall be a fugitive and a wanderer on the earth.” [13]†Cain said to the Lord, “My punishment is greater than I can bear.[1] [14]†Behold, you have driven me today away from the ground, and from your face I shall be hidden. I shall be a fugitive and a wanderer on the earth, and whoever finds me will kill me.” [15]†Then the Lord said to him, “Not so! If anyone kills Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him sevenfold.”
And the Lord put a mark on Cain, lest any who found him should attack him. [16]†Then Cain went away from the presence of the Lord and settled in the land of Nod,[2] east of Eden.

[17]†Cain knew his wife, and she conceived and bore Enoch. When he built a city, he called the name of the city after the name of his son, Enoch. [18]To Enoch was born Irad, and Irad fathered Mehujael, and Mehujael fathered Methushael, and Methushael fathered Lamech. [19]†And Lamech took two wives. The name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah.

20 †Adah bore Jabal; he was the father of those who dwell in tents and have livestock. 21 †His brother's name was Jubal; he was the father of all those who play the lyre and pipe. 22 †Zillah also bore Tubal-cain; he was the forger of all instruments of bronze and iron. The sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah.
23 ††Lamech said to his wives:

"Adah and Zillah, hear my voice;
you wives of Lamech, listen to what I say:
I have killed a man for wounding me,
a young man for striking me.

24 † If Cain's revenge is sevenfold, then Lamech's is seventy-sevenfold."

25 †And Adam knew his wife again, and she bore a son and called his name Seth, for she said, "God has appointed[1] for me another offspring instead of Abel, for Cain killed him." 26 †To Seth also a son was born, and he called his name Enosh. At that time people began to call upon the name of the LORD.

Adam's Descendants to Noah

5 [1]†This is the book of the generations of Adam. When God created man, he made him in the likeness of God. [2]†Male and female he created them, and he blessed them and named them Man[2] when they were created.
[3]†When Adam had lived 130 years, he fathered a son in his own likeness, after his image, and named him Seth. [4]† The days of Adam after he fathered Seth were 800 years; and he had other sons and daughters. [5]†Thus all the days that Adam lived were 930 years, and he died.

[6]When Seth had lived 105 years, he fathered Enosh. [7]Seth lived after he fathered Enosh 807 years and had other sons and daughters. [8]Thus all the days of Seth were 912 years, and he died.

[9]†When Enosh had lived 90 years, he fathered Kenan. [10]Enosh lived after he fathered Kenan 815 years and had other sons and daughters. [11]Thus all the days of Enosh were 905 years, and he died.

[12]When Kenan had lived 70 years, he fathered Mahalalel. [13]Kenan lived after he fathered Mahalalel 840 years and had other sons and daughters.
[14]Thus all the days of Kenan were 910 years, and he died.

[15]When Mahalalel had lived 65 years, he fathered Jared. [16]Mahalalel lived after he fathered Jared 830 years and had other sons and daughters. [17]Thus all the days of Mahalalel were 895 years, and he died.

[18]†When Jared had lived 162 years he fathered Enoch. [19]Jared lived after he fathered Enoch 800 years and had other sons and daughters. [20]Thus all the days of Jared were 962 years, and he died.

[21]When Enoch had lived 65 years, he fathered Methuselah. [22]†Enoch walked with God[3] after he fathered Methuselah 300 years and had other sons and daughters. [23]Thus all the days of Enoch were 365 years. [24]† Enoch walked with God, and he was not,[4] for God took him.

[25] † When Methuselah had lived 187 years, he fathered Lamech.
[26]Methuselah lived after he fathered Lamech 782 years and had other sons and daughters. [27]†Thus all the days of Methuselah were 969 years, and he died.

[28]When Lamech had lived 182 years, he fathered a son [29]† and called his name Noah, saying, “Out of the ground that the Lord has cursed this one shall bring us relief[1] from our work and from the painful toil of our hands.” [30]Lamech lived after he fathered Noah 595 years and had other sons and daughters. [31]Thus all the days of Lamech were 777 years, and he died.

[32] † After Noah was 500 years old, Noah fathered Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

Increasing Corruption on Earth

6 [1] When man began to multiply on the face of the land and daughters were born to them, [2] the sons of God saw that the daughters of man were attractive. And they took as their wives any they chose. [3] Then the Lord said, “My Spirit shall not abide in[2] man forever, for he is flesh: his days shall be 120 years.” [4] The Nephilim[3] were on the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God came in to the daughters of man and they bore children to them. These were the mighty men who were of old, the men of renown.

[5] The Lord saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every intention of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. [6] And the Lord was sorry that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him to his heart. [7] So the Lord said, “I will blot out man whom I have created from the face of the land, man and animals and creeping things and birds of the heavens, for I am sorry that I have made them.” [8] But Noah found favor in the eyes of the Lord.

Noah and the Flood

9 ‡ † These are the generations of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, blameless in his generation. Noah walked with God. 10 †And Noah had three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
11 ‡ †Now the earth was corrupt in God's sight, and the earth was filled with violence. 12 †And God saw the earth, and behold, it was corrupt, for all flesh had corrupted their way on the earth. 13 †And God said to Noah, "I have determined to make an end of all flesh,[1] for the earth is filled with violence through them. Behold, I will destroy them with the earth. 14 †Make yourself an ark of gopher wood.[2] Make rooms in the ark, and cover it inside and out with pitch. 15 †This is how you are to make it: the length of the ark 300 cubits,[3] its breadth 50 cubits, and its height 30 cubits. 16 †Make a roof[4] for the ark, and finish it to a cubit above, and set the door of the ark in its side. Make it with lower, second, and third decks. 17 † For behold, I will bring a flood of waters upon the earth to destroy all flesh in which is the breath of life under heaven. Everything that is on the earth shall die.
18 †But I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall come into the ark, you, your sons, your wife, and your sons' wives with you. 19 ‡ †And of every living thing of all flesh, you shall bring two of every sort into the ark to keep them alive with you. They shall be male and female. 20 †Of the birds according to their kinds, and of the animals according to their kinds, of every creeping thing of the ground, according to its kind, two of every sort shall come in to you to keep them alive. 21 †Also take with you every sort of food that is eaten, and store it up. It shall serve as food for you and for them." 22 † Noah did this; he did all that God commanded him.

7 1 †Then the Lord said to Noah, "Go into the ark, you and all your household, for I have seen that you are righteous before me in this generation. 2 †Take with you seven pairs of all clean animals,[5] the male and his mate, and a pair of the animals that are not clean, the male and his mate, 3 †and seven pairs[6] of the birds of the heavens also, male and female, to keep their offspring alive on the face of all the earth. 4 †For in seven days I will send rain on the earth forty days and forty nights, and every living thing[7] that I have made I will blot out from the face of the ground.” 5† And Noah did all that the Lord had commanded him.

6†Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters came upon the earth. 7†And Noah and his sons and his wife and his sons’ wives with him went into the ark to escape the waters of the flood. 8†Of clean animals, and of animals that are not clean, and of birds, and of everything that creeps on the ground, 9† two and two, male and female, went into the ark with Noah, as God had commanded Noah. 10†And after seven days the waters of the flood came upon the earth.

11†In the six hundredth year of Noah’s life, in the second month, on the seventeenth day of the month, on that day all the fountains of the great deep burst forth, and the windows of the heavens were opened. 12†And rain fell upon the earth forty days and forty nights. 13†On the very same day Noah and his sons, Shem and Ham and Japheth, and Noah’s wife and the three wives of his sons with them entered the ark, 14† they and every beast, according to its kind, and all the livestock according to their kinds, and every creeping thing that creeps on the earth, according to its kind, and every bird, according to its kind, every winged creature. 15†They went into the ark with Noah, two and two of all flesh in which there was the breath of life. 16†And those that entered, male and female of all flesh, went in as God had commanded him. And the Lord shut him in.

17The flood continued forty days on the earth. The waters increased and bore up the ark, and it rose high above the earth. 18†The waters prevailed and increased greatly on the earth, and the ark floated on the face of the waters. 19†And the waters prevailed so mightily on the earth that all the high mountains under the whole heaven were covered. 20†The waters prevailed above the mountains, covering them fifteen cubits[1] deep. 21†And all flesh died that moved on the earth, birds, livestock, beasts, all swarming creatures that swarm on the earth, and all mankind. 22†Everything on the dry land in whose nostrils was the breath of life died. 23†He blotted out every living thing that was on the face of the ground, man and animals and creeping things and birds of the heavens. They were blotted out from the earth. Only Noah was left, and those who were with him in the ark. 24†And the waters prevailed on the earth 150 days.

The Flood Subsides

8 [1] ‡ † But God remembered Noah and all the beasts and all the livestock that were with him in the ark. And God made a wind blow over the earth, and the waters subsided. [2] † The fountains of the deep and the windows of the heavens were closed, the rain from the heavens was restrained, [3] ‡ and the waters receded from the earth continually. At the end of 150 days the waters had abated, [4] † and in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, the ark came to rest on the mountains of Ararat. [5] † And the waters continued to abate until the tenth month; in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, the tops of the mountains were seen.

[6] † At the end of forty days Noah opened the window of the ark that he had made [7] † and sent forth a raven. It went to and fro until the waters were dried up from the earth. [8] † Then he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters had subsided from the face of the ground. [9] † But the dove found no place to set her foot, and she returned to him to the ark, for the waters were still on the face of the whole earth. So he put out his hand and took her and brought her into the ark with him. [10] † He waited another seven days, and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark. [11] † And the dove came back to him in the evening, and behold, in her mouth was a freshly plucked olive leaf. So Noah knew that the waters had subsided from the earth. [12] † Then he waited another seven days and sent forth the dove, and she did not return to him anymore.

[13] † In the six hundred and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried from off the earth. And Noah removed the covering of the ark and looked, and behold, the face of the ground was dry.
[14] † In the second month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, the earth had dried out. [15] † Then God said to Noah, [16] † "Go out from the ark, you and your wife, and your sons and your sons' wives with you. [17] † Bring out with you every living thing that is with you of all flesh—birds and animals and every creeping thing that creeps on the earth—that they may swarm on the earth, and be fruitful and multiply on the earth." [18] So Noah went out, and his sons and his wife and his sons' wives with him. [19]† Every beast, every creeping thing, and every bird, everything that moves on the earth, went out by families from the ark.

God's Covenant with Noah

20 ‡ † Then Noah built an altar to the Lord and took some of every clean animal and some of every clean bird and offered burnt offerings on the altar.
21 † And when the Lord smelled the pleasing aroma, the Lord said in his heart, "I will never again curse[1] the ground because of man, for the intention of man's heart is evil from his youth. Neither will I ever again strike down every living creature as I have done. 22 † While the earth remains, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night, shall not cease."

9 1 † And God blessed Noah and his sons and said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth. 2 † The fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth and upon every bird of the heavens, upon everything that creeps on the ground and all the fish of the sea. Into your hand they are delivered. 3 ‡ † Every moving thing that lives shall be food for you. And as I gave you the green plants, I give you everything. 4 † But you shall not eat flesh with its life, that is, its blood. 5 † And for your lifeblood I will require a reckoning: from every beast I will require it and from man.
From his fellow man I will require a reckoning for the life of man.

6 † "Whoever sheds the blood of man,
by man shall his blood be shed,
for God made man in his own image.

7 † And you,[1] be fruitful and multiply, teem on the earth and multiply in it."
8 † Then God said to Noah and to his sons with him, 9 † "Behold, I establish my covenant with you and your offspring after you, 10 † and with every living creature that is with you, the birds, the livestock, and every beast of the earth with you, as many as came out of the ark; it is for every beast of the earth. 11 † I establish my covenant with you, that never again shall all flesh be cut off by the waters of the flood, and never again shall there be a flood to destroy the earth." 12 † And God said, "This is the sign of the covenant that I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for all future generations: 13 † I have set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be a sign of the covenant between me and the earth. 14 †When I bring clouds over the earth and the bow is seen in the clouds, 15 † I will remember my covenant that is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh.

And the waters shall never again become a flood to destroy all flesh.
16 †When the bow is in the clouds, I will see it and remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is on the earth." 17 †God said to Noah, "This is the sign of the covenant that I have established between me and all flesh that is on the earth."

Noah's Descendants

18 ‡ † The sons of Noah who went forth from the ark were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. (Ham was the father of Canaan.) 19 These three were the sons of Noah, and from these the people of the whole earth were dispersed.[1] 20 † Noah began to be a man of the soil, and he planted a vineyard.[2] 21 † He drank of the wine and became drunk and lay uncovered in his tent. 22 † And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father and told his two brothers outside. 23 † Then Shem and Japheth took a garment, laid it on both their shoulders, and walked backward and covered the nakedness of their father. Their faces were turned backward, and they did not see their father's nakedness. 24 † When Noah awoke from his wine and knew what his youngest son had done to him, 25 † he said,

"Cursed be Canaan;
a servant of servants shall he be to his brothers."

26 † He also said,

"Blessed be the Lord, the God of Shem;
and let Canaan be his servant.
27 † May God enlarge Japheth,[3]
and let him dwell in the tents of Shem,
and let Canaan be his servant."

28 ‡ † After the flood Noah lived 350 years. 29 † All the days of Noah were 950 years, and he died.

Nations Descended from Noah

10 [1]†These are the generations of the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Sons were born to them after the flood.

[2]‡† The sons of Japheth: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. [3]†The sons of Gomer: Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah. [4]†The sons of Javan: Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim. [5]† From these the coastland peoples spread in their lands, each with his own language, by their clans, in their nations.

[6]‡† The sons of Ham: Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. [7]†The sons of Cush: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The sons of Raamah: Sheba and Dedan. [8]† Cush fathered Nimrod; he was the first on earth to be a mighty man.[1] [9]† He was a mighty hunter before the Lord. Therefore it is said, “Like Nimrod a mighty hunter before the Lord.” [10]†The beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech, Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. [11]† From that land he went into Assyria and built Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, and [12]†Resen between Nineveh and Calah; that is the great city. [13]† Egypt fathered Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, [14]† Pathrusim, Casluhim (from whom[2] the Philistines came), and Caphtorim.

[15]† Canaan fathered Sidon his firstborn and Heth, [16]†and the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites, [17]‡ the Hivites, the Arkites, the Sinites, [18]the Arvadites, the Zemarites, and the Hamathites. Afterward the clans of the Canaanites dispersed. [19]†And the territory of the Canaanites extended from Sidon in the direction of Gerar as far as Gaza, and in the direction of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim, as far as Lasha. [20]†These are the sons of Ham, by their clans, their languages, their lands, and their nations.

[21]†To Shem also, the father of all the children of Eber, the elder brother of Japheth, children were born. [22]† The sons of Shem: Elam, Asshur, Arpachshad, Lud, and Aram. [23]†The sons of Aram: Uz, Hul, Gether, and Mash. [24]†Arpachshad fathered Shelah; and Shelah fathered Eber. [25]† To Eber were born two sons: the name of the one was Peleg,[3] for in his days the earth was divided, and his brother’s name was Joktan. [26]Joktan fathered Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah, [27]Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, [28]†Obal, Abimael, Sheba, [29]† Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab; all these were the sons of Joktan. [30]†The territory in which they lived extended from Mesha in the direction of Sephar to the hill country of the east. [31]†These are the sons of Shem, by their clans, their languages, their lands, and their nations.

[32] † These are the clans of the sons of Noah, according to their genealogies, in their nations, and from these the nations spread abroad on the earth after the flood.

The Tower of Babel

11 [1]†† Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.
[2]† And as people migrated from the east, they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. [3]† And they said to one another, “Come, let us make bricks, and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone, and bitumen for mortar. [4]† Then they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower with its top in the heavens, and let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be dispersed over the face of the whole earth.” [5]† And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of man had built. [6]† And the Lord said, “Behold, they are one people, and they have all one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. And nothing that they propose to do will now be impossible for them. [7]† Come, let us go down and there confuse their language, so that they may not understand one another’s speech.” [8]† So the Lord dispersed them from there over the face of all the earth, and they left off building the city. [9]† Therefore its name was called Babel, because there the Lord confused[1] the language of all the earth. And from there the Lord dispersed them over the face of all the earth.

Shem’s Descendants

10 ‡†† These are the generations of Shem. When Shem was 100 years old, he fathered Arpachshad two years after the flood. 11 †And Shem lived after he fathered Arpachshad 500 years and had other sons and daughters.
12 †When Arpachshad had lived 35 years, he fathered Shelah. 13 †And Arpachshad lived after he fathered Shelah 403 years and had other sons and daughters.
14 †When Shelah had lived 30 years, he fathered Eber. 15 And Shelah lived after he fathered Eber 403 years and had other sons and daughters.
16 When Eber had lived 34 years, he fathered Peleg. 17 And Eber lived after he fathered Peleg 430 years and had other sons and daughters.
18 When Peleg had lived 30 years, he fathered Reu. 19 And Peleg lived after he fathered Reu 209 years and had other sons and daughters.
20 When Reu had lived 32 years, he fathered Serug. 21 And Reu lived after he fathered Serug 207 years and had other sons and daughters.
22 When Serug had lived 30 years, he fathered Nahor. 23 And Serug lived after he fathered Nahor 200 years and had other sons and daughters.
24 When Nahor had lived 29 years, he fathered Terah. 25 And Nahor lived after he fathered Terah 119 years and had other sons and daughters.
26 †When Terah had lived 70 years, he fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

Terah’s Descendants

27 Now these are the generations of Terah. Terah fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran fathered Lot. 28 Haran died in the presence of his father Terah in the land of his kindred, in Ur of the Chaldeans. 29 And Abram and Nahor took wives. The name of Abram’s wife was Sarai, and the name of Nahor’s wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran the father of Milcah and Iscah. 30 Now Sarai was barren; she had no child.

31 Terah took Abram his son and Lot the son of Haran, his grandson, and Sarai his daughter-in-law, his son Abram’s wife, and they went forth together from Ur of the Chaldeans to go into the land of Canaan, but when they came to Haran, they settled there. 32 The days of Terah were 205 years, and Terah died in Haran.

The Call of Abram

12 [1]†‡Now the Lord said[1] to Abram, “Go from your country and your kindred and your father’s house to the land that I will show you. [2]†
And I will make of you a great nation, and I will bless you and make your name great, so that you will be a blessing. [3]† I will bless those who bless you, and him who dishonors you I will curse, and in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed.”[1]

[4]†So Abram went, as the Lord had told him, and Lot went with him.
Abram was seventy-five years old when he departed from Haran. [5]†And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother’s son, and all their possessions that they had gathered, and the people that they had acquired in Haran, and they set out to go to the land of Canaan. When they came to the land of Canaan, [6]†Abram passed through the land to the place at Shechem, to the oak[2] of Moreh. At that time the Canaanites were in the land. [7]†Then the Lord appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” So he built there an altar to the Lord, who had appeared to him.
[8]†From there he moved to the hill country on the east of Bethel and pitched his tent, with Bethel on the west and Ai on the east. And there he built an altar to the Lord and called upon the name of the Lord. [9]And Abram journeyed on, still going toward the Negeb.

Abram and Sarai in Egypt

10 ‡ † Now there was a famine in the land. So Abram went down to Egypt to sojourn there, for the famine was severe in the land. 11 † When he was about to enter Egypt, he said to Sarai his wife, “I know that you are a woman beautiful in appearance, 12 and when the Egyptians see you, they will say, ‘This is his wife.’ Then they will kill me, but they will let you live.
13 † Say you are my sister, that it may go well with me because of you, and that my life may be spared for your sake.” 14 When Abram entered Egypt, the Egyptians saw that the woman was very beautiful. 15 † And when the princes of Pharaoh saw her, they praised her to Pharaoh. And the woman was taken into Pharaoh’s house. 16 † And for her sake he dealt well with Abram; and he had sheep, oxen, male donkeys, male servants, female servants, female donkeys, and camels.

17 † But the Lord afflicted Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai, Abram’s wife. 18 So Pharaoh called Abram and said, “What is this you have done to me? Why did you not tell me that she was your wife? 19 † Why did you say, ‘She is my sister,’ so that I took her for my wife?
Now then, here is your wife; take her, and go.” 20 And Pharaoh gave men orders concerning him, and they sent him away with his wife and all that he had.

Abram and Lot Separate

13 [1]So Abram went up from Egypt, he and his wife and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the Negeb.

[2]† Now Abram was very rich in livestock, in silver, and in gold. [3]And he journeyed on from the Negeb as far as Bethel to the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Bethel and Ai, [4]†to the place where he had made an altar at the first. And there Abram called upon the name of the Lord. [5]And Lot, who went with Abram, also had flocks and herds and tents, [6]† so that the land could not support both of them dwelling together; for their possessions were so great that they could not dwell together, [7]† and there was strife between the herdsmen of Abram's livestock and the herdsmen of Lot's livestock. At that time the Canaanites and the Perizzites were dwelling in the land.

[8]†Then Abram said to Lot, "Let there be no strife between you and me, and between your herdsmen and my herdsmen, for we are kinsmen.[1] [9] Is not the whole land before you? Separate yourself from me. If you take the left hand, then I will go to the right, or if you take the right hand, then I will go to the left." [10]†And Lot lifted up his eyes and saw that the Jordan Valley was well watered everywhere like the garden of the Lord, like the land of Egypt, in the direction of Zoar. (This was before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah.) [11]So Lot chose for himself all the Jordan Valley, and Lot journeyed east. Thus they separated from each other. [12]Abram settled in the land of Canaan, while Lot settled among the cities of the valley and moved his tent as far as Sodom. [13]Now the men of Sodom were wicked, great sinners against the Lord.

[14]†The Lord said to Abram, after Lot had separated from him, "Lift up your eyes and look from the place where you are, northward and southward and eastward and westward, [15]for all the land that you see I will give to you and to your offspring forever. [16] I will make your offspring as the dust of the earth, so that if one can count the dust of the earth, your offspring also can be counted. [17]Arise, walk through the length and the breadth of the land, for I will give it to you." [18]†So Abram moved his tent and came and settled by the oaks[2] of Mamre, which are at Hebron, and there he built an altar to the LORD.

Abram Rescues Lot

14 [1]In the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of Goiim, [2]these kings made war with Bera king of Sodom, Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar). [3]And all these joined forces in the Valley of Siddim (that is, the Salt Sea). [4]Twelve years they had served Chedorlaomer, but in the thirteenth year they rebelled. [5]In the fourteenth year Chedorlaomer and the kings who were with him came and defeated the Rephaim in Ashteroth-karnaim, the Zuzim in Ham, the Emim in Shaveh-kiriathaim, [6]and the Horites in their hill country of Seir as far as El-paran on the border of the wilderness. [7]Then they turned back and came to En-mishpat (that is, Kadesh) and defeated all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites who were dwelling in Hazazon-tamar.

[8]Then the king of Sodom, the king of Gomorrah, the king of Admah, the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar) went out, and they joined battle in the Valley of Siddim [9]with Chedorlaomer king of Elam, Tidal king of Goiim, Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar, four kings against five. [10]Now the Valley of Siddim was full of bitumen pits, and as the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, some fell into them, and the rest fled to the hill country. [11]So the enemy took all the possessions of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their provisions, and went their way. [12]They also took Lot, the son of Abram's brother, who was dwelling in Sodom, and his possessions, and went their way.

[13]Then one who had escaped came and told Abram the Hebrew, who was living by the oaks[1] of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol and of Aner. These were allies of Abram. [14]When Abram heard that his kinsman had been taken captive, he led forth his trained men, born in his house, 318 of them, and went in pursuit as far as Dan. [15]And he divided his forces against them by night, he and his servants, and defeated them and pursued them to Hobah, north of Damascus. [16]Then he brought back all the possessions, and also brought back his kinsman Lot with his possessions, and the women and the people.

Abram Blessed by Melchizedek

17 ‡† After his return from the defeat of Chedorlaomer and the kings who were with him, the king of Sodom went out to meet him at the Valley of Shaveh (that is, the King's Valley). 18 † And Melchizedek king of Salem brought out bread and wine. (He was priest of God Most High.) 19 † And he blessed him and said,

"Blessed be Abram by God Most High,
Possessor[1] of heaven and earth;
20 ‡ and blessed be God Most High, who has delivered your enemies into your hand!"

And Abram gave him a tenth of everything. 21 And the king of Sodom said to Abram, "Give me the persons, but take the goods for yourself." 22 † But Abram said to the king of Sodom, "I have lifted my hand[2] to the LORD, God
Most High, Possessor of heaven and earth, 23 † that I would not take a thread or a sandal strap or anything that is yours, lest you should say, 'I have made Abram rich.' 24 † I will take nothing but what the young men have eaten, and the share of the men who went with me. Let Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre take their share."

God's Covenant with Abram

15 [1] †After these things the word of the Lord came to Abram in a vision: "Fear not, Abram, I am your shield; your reward shall be very great." [2] †But Abram said, "O Lord God, what will you give me, for I continue[3] childless, and the heir of my house is Eliezer of Damascus?" [3] †And Abram said, "Behold, you have given me no offspring, and a member of my household will be my heir." [4] †And behold, the word of the Lord came to him: "This man shall not be your heir; your very own son[4] shall be your heir." [5] †And he brought him outside and said, "Look toward heaven, and number the stars, if you are able to number them." Then he said to him, "So shall your offspring be." [6] †And he believed the Lord, and he counted it to him as righteousness.

[7] And he said to him, "I am the Lord who brought you out from Ur of the Chaldeans to give you this land to possess." [8] †But he said, "O Lord God, how am I to know that I shall possess it?" [9] ‡He said to him, "Bring me a heifer three years old, a female goat three years old, a ram three years old, a turtledove, and a young pigeon." [10] And he brought him all these, cut them in half, and laid each half over against the other. But he did not cut the birds in half. [11] And when birds of prey came down on the carcasses, Abram drove them away.

[12] †As the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell on Abram. And behold, dreadful and great darkness fell upon him. [13] ‡Then the Lord said to Abram,
"Know for certain that your offspring will be sojourners in a land that is not theirs and will be servants there, and they will be afflicted for four hundred years. [14] But I will bring judgment on the nation that they serve, and afterward they shall come out with great possessions. [15] †As for yourself, you shall go to your fathers in peace; you shall be buried in a good old age.
[16] †And they shall come back here in the fourth generation, for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet complete."

[17] †When the sun had gone down and it was dark, behold, a smoking fire pot and a flaming torch passed between these pieces. [18] †On that day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, "To your offspring I give[1] this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates, [19] the land of the Kenites, the Kenizzites, the Kadmonites, [20] the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaim, [21] the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites and the Jebusites."

Sarai and Hagar

16 [1]†Now Sarai, Abram's wife, had borne him no children. She had a female Egyptian servant whose name was Hagar. [2]† And Sarai said to Abram, "Behold now, the Lord has prevented me from bearing children. Go in to my servant; it may be that I shall obtain children[2] by her." And Abram listened to the voice of Sarai. [3]†So, after Abram had lived ten years in the land of Canaan, Sarai, Abram's wife, took Hagar the Egyptian, her servant, and gave her to Abram her husband as a wife. [4]†And he went in to Hagar, and she conceived. And when she saw that she had conceived, she looked with contempt on her mistress.[1] [5]† And Sarai said to Abram, "May the wrong done to me be on you! I gave my servant to your embrace, and when she saw that she had conceived, she looked on me with contempt. May the Lord judge between you and me!" [6]†But Abram said to Sarai, "Behold, your servant is in your power; do to her as you please." Then Sarai dealt harshly with her, and she fled from her.

[7]†The angel of the Lord found her by a spring of water in the wilderness, the spring on the way to Shur. [8]And he said, "Hagar, servant of Sarai, where have you come from and where are you going?" She said, "I am fleeing from my mistress Sarai." [9]† The angel of the Lord said to her, "Return to your mistress and submit to her." [10]†The angel of the Lord also said to her, "I will surely multiply your offspring so that they cannot be numbered for multitude." [11]And the angel of the Lord said to her,

"Behold, you are pregnant and shall bear a son.
You shall call his name Ishmael,[2] because the Lord has listened to your affliction.
[12]† He shall be a wild donkey of a man,
his hand against everyone
and everyone's hand against him, and he shall dwell over against all his kinsmen."

13 † So she called the name of the Lord who spoke to her, “You are a God of seeing,”[3] for she said, “Truly here I have seen him who looks after me.”[4] 14 Therefore the well was called Beer-lahai-roi;[5] it lies between Kadesh and Bered.

15 And Hagar bore Abram a son, and Abram called the name of his son, whom Hagar bore, Ishmael. 16 Abram was eighty-six years old when Hagar bore Ishmael to Abram.

Abraham and the Covenant of Circumcision

17 [1]‡†When Abram was ninety-nine years old the Lord appeared to Abram and said to him, “I am God Almighty;[6] walk before me, and be blameless, [2]†that I may make my covenant between me and you, and may multiply you greatly.” [3]†Then Abram fell on his face. And God said to him, [4]“Behold, my covenant is with you, and you shall be the father of a multitude of nations. [5]†No longer shall your name be called Abram,[7] but your name shall be Abraham,[8] for I have made you the father of a multitude of nations. [6]I will make you exceedingly fruitful, and I will make you into nations, and kings shall come from you. [7]†And I will establish my covenant between me and you and your offspring after you throughout their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be God to you and to your offspring after you. [8]†And I will give to you and to your offspring after you the land of your sojournings, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God.”

[9]And God said to Abraham, “As for you, you shall keep my covenant, you and your offspring after you throughout their generations. [10]†This is my covenant, which you shall keep, between me and you and your offspring after you: Every male among you shall be circumcised. [11]† You shall be circumcised in the flesh of your foreskins, and it shall be a sign of the covenant between me and you. [12]†He who is eight days old among you shall be circumcised. Every male throughout your generations, whether born in your house or bought with your money from any foreigner who is not of your offspring, [13]†both he who is born in your house and he who is bought with your money, shall surely be circumcised. So shall my covenant be in your flesh an everlasting covenant. [14]†Any uncircumcised male who is not circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin shall be cut off from his people; he has broken my covenant.”

Isaac's Birth Promised

15 ††And God said to Abraham, "As for Sarai your wife, you shall not call her name Sarai, but Sarah[1] shall be her name. 16 †I will bless her, and moreover, I will give[2] you a son by her. I will bless her, and she shall become nations; kings of peoples shall come from her." 17 †Then Abraham fell on his face and laughed and said to himself, "Shall a child be born to a man who is a hundred years old? Shall Sarah, who is ninety years old, bear a child?" 18 †And Abraham said to God, "Oh that Ishmael might live before you!" 19 †God said, "No, but Sarah your wife shall bear you a son, and you shall call his name Isaac.[3] I will establish my covenant with him as an everlasting covenant for his offspring after him. 20 †As for Ishmael, I have heard you; behold, I have blessed him and will make him fruitful and multiply him greatly. He shall father twelve princes, and I will make him into a great nation. 21 But I will establish my covenant with Isaac, whom Sarah shall bear to you at this time next year."

22 When he had finished talking with him, God went up from Abraham.
23 †Then Abraham took Ishmael his son and all those born in his house or bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house, and he circumcised the flesh of their foreskins that very day, as God had said to him. 24 Abraham was ninety-nine years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. 25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. 26 That very day Abraham and his son Ishmael were circumcised. 27 And all the men of his house, those born in the house and those bought with money from a foreigner, were circumcised with him.

18 1 And the Lord appeared to him by the oaks[1] of Mamre, as he sat at the door of his tent in the heat of the day. 2 †He lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, three men were standing in front of him. When he saw them, he ran from the tent door to meet them and bowed himself to the earth 3 †and said, "O Lord,[2] if I have found favor in your sight, do not pass by your servant. 4 †Let a little water be brought, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree, 5 †while I bring a morsel of bread, that you may refresh yourselves, and after that you may pass on— since you have come to your servant." So they said, "Do as you have said." 6 †And Abraham went quickly into the tent to Sarah and said, "Quick! Three seahs[3] of fine flour! Knead it, and make cakes." 7 †And Abraham ran to the herd and took a calf, tender and good, and gave it to a young man, who prepared it quickly. 8 †Then he took curds and milk and the calf that he had prepared, and set it before them. And he stood by them under the tree while they ate.

9 †They said to him, "Where is Sarah your wife?" And he said, "She is in the tent." 10 The Lord said, "I will surely return to you about this time next year, and Sarah your wife shall have a son." And Sarah was listening at the tent door behind him. 11 †Now Abraham and Sarah were old, advanced in years. The way of women had ceased to be with Sarah. 12 † So Sarah laughed to herself, saying, "After I am worn out, and my lord is old, shall I have pleasure?" 13 The Lord said to Abraham, "Why did Sarah laugh and say, 'Shall I indeed bear a child, now that I am old?' 14 † Is anything too hard[4] for the Lord? At the appointed time I will return to you, about this time next year, and Sarah shall have a son." 15 †But Sarah denied it,[5] saying, "I did not laugh," for she was afraid. He said, "No, but you did laugh."

16 † Then the men set out from there, and they looked down toward Sodom. And Abraham went with them to set them on their way. 17 The Lord said, "Shall I hide from Abraham what I am about to do, 18 ††seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him? 19 For I have chosen[6] him, that he may command his children and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord by doing righteousness and justice, so that the Lord may bring to Abraham what he has promised him." 20 †Then the Lord said, "Because the outcry against Sodom and Gomorrah is great and their sin is very grave, 21 † I will go down to see whether they have done altogether[1] according to the outcry that has come to me. And if not, I will know."

Abraham Intercedes for Sodom

22 So the men turned from there and went toward Sodom, but Abraham still stood before the Lord. 23 Then Abraham drew near and said, “Will you indeed sweep away the righteous with the wicked? 24 Suppose there are fifty righteous within the city. Will you then sweep away the place and not spare it for the fifty righteous who are in it? 25 Far be it from you to do such a thing, to put the righteous to death with the wicked, so that the righteous fare as the wicked! Far be that from you! Shall not the Judge of all the earth do what is just?” 26 And the Lord said, “If I find at Sodom fifty righteous in the city, I will spare the whole place for their sake.”

27 Abraham answered and said, “Behold, I have undertaken to speak to the Lord, I who am but dust and ashes. 28 Suppose five of the fifty righteous are lacking. Will you destroy the whole city for lack of five?” And he said, “I will not destroy it if I find forty-five there.” 29 Again he spoke to him and said, “Suppose forty are found there.” He answered, “For the sake of forty I will not do it.” 30 Then he said, “Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak. Suppose thirty are found there.” He answered, “I will not do it, if I find thirty there.” 31 He said, “Behold, I have undertaken to speak to the Lord. Suppose twenty are found there.” He answered, “For the sake of twenty I will not destroy it.” 32 Then he said, “Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak again but this once. Suppose ten are found there.” He answered, “For the sake of ten I will not destroy it.” 33 And the Lord went his way, when he had finished speaking to Abraham, and Abraham returned to his place.

God Rescues Lot

19 [1]‡† The two angels came to Sodom in the evening, and Lot was sitting in the gate of Sodom. When Lot saw them, he rose to meet them and bowed himself with his face to the earth [2]† and said, “My lords, please turn aside to your servant’s house and spend the night and wash your feet. Then you may rise up early and go on your way.” They said, “No; we will spend the night in the town square.” [3]† But he pressed them strongly; so they turned aside to him and entered his house. And he made them a feast and baked unleavened bread, and they ate.

[4]But before they lay down, the men of the city, the men of Sodom, both young and old, all the people to the last man, surrounded the house. [5]† And they called to Lot, “Where are the men who came to you tonight? Bring them out to us, that we may know them.” [6]Lot went out to the men at the entrance, shut the door after him, [7]and said, “I beg you, my brothers, do not act so wickedly. [8]† Behold, I have two daughters who have not known any man. Let me bring them out to you, and do to them as you please. Only do nothing to these men, for they have come under the shelter of my roof.” [9]†But they said, “Stand back!” And they said, “This fellow came to sojourn, and he has become the judge! Now we will deal worse with you than with them.” Then they pressed hard against the man Lot, and drew near to break the door down. [10]But the men reached out their hands and brought Lot into the house with them and shut the door. [11]And they struck with blindness the men who were at the entrance of the house, both small and great, so that they wore themselves out groping for the door.

[12]Then the men said to Lot, “Have you anyone else here? Sons-in-law, sons, daughters, or anyone you have in the city, bring them out of the place.
[13]† For we are about to destroy this place, because the outcry against its people has become great before the Lord, and the Lord has sent us to destroy it.” [14]† So Lot went out and said to his sons-in-law, who were to marry his daughters, “Up! Get out of this place, for the Lord is about to destroy the city.” But he seemed to his sons-in-law to be jesting.

15 As morning dawned, the angels urged Lot, saying, “Up! Take your wife and your two daughters who are here, lest you be swept away in the punishment of the city.” 16 † But he lingered. So the men seized him and his wife and his two daughters by the hand, the Lord being merciful to him, and they brought him out and set him outside the city. 17 † And as they brought them out, one said, “Escape for your life. Do not look back or stop anywhere in the valley. Escape to the hills, lest you be swept away.” 18 And Lot said to them, “Oh, no, my lords. 19 Behold, your servant has found favor in your sight, and you have shown me great kindness in saving my life. But I cannot escape to the hills, lest the disaster overtake me and I die.
20 † Behold, this city is near enough to flee to, and it is a little one. Let me escape there—is it not a little one?—and my life will be saved!” 21 † He said to him, “Behold, I grant you this favor also, that I will not overthrow the city of which you have spoken. 22 Escape there quickly, for I can do nothing till you arrive there.” Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.[1]

God Destroys Sodom

23 †The sun had risen on the earth when Lot came to Zoar. 24 †Then the Lord rained on Sodom and Gomorrah sulfur and fire from the Lord out of heaven. 25 †And he overthrew those cities, and all the valley, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and what grew on the ground. 26 †But Lot's wife, behind him, looked back, and she became a pillar of salt.

27 †And Abraham went early in the morning to the place where he had stood before the Lord. 28 And he looked down toward Sodom and Gomorrah and toward all the land of the valley, and he looked and, behold, the smoke of the land went up like the smoke of a furnace.

29 †So it was that, when God destroyed the cities of the valley, God remembered Abraham and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow when he overthrew the cities in which Lot had lived.

Lot and His Daughters

30 ‡ † Now Lot went up out of Zoar and lived in the hills with his two daughters, for he was afraid to live in Zoar. So he lived in a cave with his two daughters. 31 † And the firstborn said to the younger, “Our father is old, and there is not a man on earth to come in to us after the manner of all the earth. 32 † Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we may preserve offspring from our father.” 33 † So they made their father drink wine that night. And the firstborn went in and lay with her father. He did not know when she lay down or when she arose.

34 The next day, the firstborn said to the younger, “Behold, I lay last night with my father. Let us make him drink wine tonight also. Then you go in and lie with him, that we may preserve offspring from our father.” 35 So they made their father drink wine that night also. And the younger arose and lay with him, and he did not know when she lay down or when she arose.
36 ‡ Thus both the daughters of Lot became pregnant by their father. 37 † The firstborn bore a son and called his name Moab.[1] He is the father of the Moabites to this day. 38 † The younger also bore a son and called his name Ben-ammi.[2] He is the father of the Ammonites to this day.

Abraham and Abimelech

20 [1] † From there Abraham journeyed toward the territory of the Negeb and lived between Kadesh and Shur; and he sojourned in Gerar.
[2] † And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, “She is my sister.” And Abimelech king of Gerar sent and took Sarah. [3] † But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night and said to him, “Behold, you are a dead man because of the woman whom you have taken, for she is a man’s wife.” [4] † Now Abimelech had not approached her. So he said, “Lord, will you kill an innocent people?
[5] Did he not himself say to me, ‘She is my sister’? And she herself said, ‘He is my brother.’ In the integrity of my heart and the innocence of my hands I have done this.” [6] † Then God said to him in the dream, “Yes, I know that you have done this in the integrity of your heart, and it was I who kept you from sinning against me. Therefore I did not let you touch her. [7] † Now then, return the man’s wife, for he is a prophet, so that he will pray for you, and you shall live. But if you do not return her, know that you shall surely die, you and all who are yours.”

[8] So Abimelech rose early in the morning and called all his servants and told them all these things. And the men were very much afraid. [9] Then Abimelech called Abraham and said to him, “What have you done to us?
And how have I sinned against you, that you have brought on me and my kingdom a great sin? You have done to me things that ought not to be done.” [10] And Abimelech said to Abraham, “What did you see, that you did this thing?” [11] † Abraham said, “I did it because I thought, There is no fear of God at all in this place, and they will kill me because of my wife.
[12] † Besides, she is indeed my sister, the daughter of my father though not the daughter of my mother, and she became my wife. [13] And when God caused me to wander from my father’s house, I said to her, ‘This is the kindness you must do me: at every place to which we come, say of me, He is my brother.’”

[14] † Then Abimelech took sheep and oxen, and male servants and female servants, and gave them to Abraham, and returned Sarah his wife to him.
[15] And Abimelech said, “Behold, my land is before you; dwell where it pleases you.” [16] † To Sarah he said, “Behold, I have given your brother a thousand pieces of silver. It is a sign of your innocence in the eyes of all[1] who are with you, and before everyone you are vindicated.” [17] ‡ Then Abraham prayed to God, and God healed Abimelech, and also healed his wife and female slaves so that they bore children. [18] For the Lord had closed all the wombs of the house of Abimelech because of Sarah, Abraham’s wife.

The Birth of Isaac

21 [1] ‡ ‡The Lord visited Sarah as he had said, and the Lord did to Sarah as he had promised. [2] †And Sarah conceived and bore Abraham a son in his old age at the time of which God had spoken to him. [3] †Abraham called the name of his son who was born to him, whom Sarah bore him, Isaac.[2] [4] †And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac when he was eight days old, as God had commanded him. [5] † Abraham was a hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him. [6] †And Sarah said, “God has made laughter for me; everyone who hears will laugh over me.” [7]And she said, “Who would have said to Abraham that Sarah would nurse children? Yet I have borne him a son in his old age.”

God Protects Hagar and Ishmael

8 ‡† And the child grew and was weaned. And Abraham made a great feast on the day that Isaac was weaned. 9 † But Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, whom she had borne to Abraham, laughing.[3] 10 † So she said to Abraham, “Cast out this slave woman with her son, for the son of this slave woman shall not be heir with my son Isaac.” 11 And the thing was very displeasing to Abraham on account of his son. 12 † But God said to Abraham, “Be not displeased because of the boy and because of your slave woman.
Whatever Sarah says to you, do as she tells you, for through Isaac shall your offspring be named. 13 † And I will make a nation of the son of the slave woman also, because he is your offspring.” 14 † So Abraham rose early in the morning and took bread and a skin of water and gave it to Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, along with the child, and sent her away. And she departed and wandered in the wilderness of Beersheba.

15 † When the water in the skin was gone, she put the child under one of the bushes. 16 Then she went and sat down opposite him a good way off, about the distance of a bowshot, for she said, “Let me not look on the death of the child.” And as she sat opposite him, she lifted up her voice and wept.
17 † And God heard the voice of the boy, and the angel of God called to Hagar from heaven and said to her, “What troubles you, Hagar? Fear not, for God has heard the voice of the boy where he is. 18 Up! Lift up the boy, and hold him fast with your hand, for I will make him into a great nation.” 19 † Then God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water. And she went and filled the skin with water and gave the boy a drink. 20 † And God was with the boy, and he grew up. He lived in the wilderness and became an expert with the bow. 21 He lived in the wilderness of Paran, and his mother took a wife for him from the land of Egypt.

A Treaty with Abimelech

22 ‡ † At that time Abimelech and Phicol the commander of his army said to Abraham, “God is with you in all that you do. 23 † Now therefore swear to me here by God that you will not deal falsely with me or with my descendants or with my posterity, but as I have dealt kindly with you, so you will deal with me and with the land where you have sojourned.” 24 And Abraham said, “I will swear.”

25 When Abraham reproved Abimelech about a well of water that Abimelech’s servants had seized, 26 Abimelech said, “I do not know who has done this thing; you did not tell me, and I have not heard of it until today.” 27 So Abraham took sheep and oxen and gave them to Abimelech, and the two men made a covenant. 28 Abraham set seven ewe lambs of the flock apart. 29 And Abimelech said to Abraham, “What is the meaning of these seven ewe lambs that you have set apart?” 30 † He said, “These seven ewe lambs you will take from my hand, that this[1] may be a witness for me that I dug this well.” 31 Therefore that place was called Beersheba,[2] because there both of them swore an oath. 32 † So they made a covenant at Beersheba. Then Abimelech and Phicol the commander of his army rose up and returned to the land of the Philistines. 33 † Abraham planted a tamarisk tree in Beersheba and called there on the name of the Lord, the Everlasting God. 34 And Abraham sojourned many days in the land of the Philistines.

The Sacrifice of Isaac

22 [1] † After these things God tested Abraham and said to him, "Abraham!" And he said, "Here am I." [2] † He said, "Take your son, your only son Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains of which I shall tell you."
[3] † So Abraham rose early in the morning, saddled his donkey, and took two of his young men with him, and his son Isaac. And he cut the wood for the burnt offering and arose and went to the place of which God had told him.
[4] On the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes and saw the place from afar.
[5] † Then Abraham said to his young men, "Stay here with the donkey; I and the boy[1] will go over there and worship and come again to you." [6] † And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering and laid it on Isaac his son.
And he took in his hand the fire and the knife. So they went both of them together. [7] And Isaac said to his father Abraham, "My father!" And he said, "Here am I, my son." He said, "Behold, the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" [8] † Abraham said, "God will provide for himself the lamb for a burnt offering, my son." So they went both of them together.

[9] When they came to the place of which God had told him, Abraham built the altar there and laid the wood in order and bound Isaac his son and laid him on the altar, on top of the wood. [10] Then Abraham reached out his hand and took the knife to slaughter his son. [11] † But the angel of the Lord called to him from heaven and said, "Abraham, Abraham!" And he said, Here am I." [12] † He said, "Do not lay your hand on the boy or do anything to him, for now I know that you fear God, seeing you have not withheld your son, your only son, from me." [13] † And Abraham lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, behind him was a ram, caught in a thicket by his horns. And Abraham went and took the ram and offered it up as a burnt offering instead of his son. [14] † So Abraham called the name of that place, "The Lord will provide";[2] as it is said to this day, "On the mount of the Lord it shall be provided."[3]

15 And the angel of the Lord called to Abraham a second time from heaven 16 † and said, “By myself I have sworn, declares the Lord, because you have done this and have not withheld your son, your only son, 17 † I will surely bless you, and I will surely multiply your offspring as the stars of heaven and as the sand that is on the seashore. And your offspring shall possess the gate of his[4] enemies, 18 † and in your offspring shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because you have obeyed my voice.” 19 So Abraham returned to his young men, and they arose and went together to Beersheba.
And Abraham lived at Beersheba.

20 Now after these things it was told to Abraham, “Behold, Milcah also has borne children to your brother Nahor: 21 Uz his firstborn, Buz his brother, Kemuel the father of Aram, 22 Chesed, Hazo, Pildash, Jidlaph, and Bethuel.” 23 † (Bethuel fathered Rebekah.) These eight Milcah bore to Nahor, Abraham’s brother. 24 † Moreover, his concubine, whose name was Reumah, bore Tebah, Gaham, Tahash, and Maacah.

Sarah’s Death and Burial

23 [1]†Sarah lived 127 years; these were the years of the life of Sarah.
[2]And Sarah died at Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron) in the land of Canaan, and Abraham went in to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her. [3]†And Abraham rose up from before his dead and said to the Hittites,[1] [4]† “I am a sojourner and foreigner among you; give me property among you for a burying place, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.” [5]The Hittites answered Abraham, [6]†“Hear us, my lord; you are a prince of God[2] among us. Bury your dead in the choicest of our tombs. None of us will withhold from you his tomb to hinder you from burying your dead.” [7]Abraham rose and bowed to the Hittites, the people of the land. [8]†And he said to them, “If you are willing that I should bury my dead out of my sight, hear me and entreat for me Ephron the son of Zohar, [9]that he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he owns; it is at the end of his field. For the full price let him give it to me in your presence as property for a burying place.”

[10]†Now Ephron was sitting among the Hittites, and Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the hearing of the Hittites, of all who went in at the gate of his city, [11]†“No, my lord, hear me: I give you the field, and I give you the cave that is in it. In the sight of the sons of my people I give it to you. Bury your dead.” [12]Then Abraham bowed down before the people of the land. [13]And he said to Ephron in the hearing of the people of the land, “But if you will, hear me: I give the price of the field. Accept it from me, that I may bury my dead there.” [14]Ephron answered Abraham, [15]†“My lord, listen to me: a piece of land worth four hundred shekels[3] of silver, what is that between you and me? Bury your dead.” [16]Abraham listened to Ephron, and Abraham weighed out for Ephron the silver that he had named in the hearing of the Hittites, four hundred shekels of silver, according to the weights current among the merchants.

[17]†So the field of Ephron in Machpelah, which was to the east of Mamre,
the field with the cave that was in it and all the trees that were in the field, throughout its whole area, was made over [18]†to Abraham as a possession in the presence of the Hittites, before all who went in at the gate of his city.

[19] † After this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah east of Mamre (that is, Hebron) in the land of Canaan. [20] The field and the cave that is in it were made over to Abraham as property for a burying place by the Hittites.

Isaac and Rebekah

24 [1]†Now Abraham was old, well advanced in years. And the Lord had blessed Abraham in all things. [2]†And Abraham said to his servant, the oldest of his household, who had charge of all that he had, "Put your hand under my thigh, [3]† that I may make you swear by the Lord, the God of heaven and God of the earth, that you will not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell, [4]† but will go to my country and to my kindred, and take a wife for my son Isaac." [5]The servant said to him, "Perhaps the woman may not be willing to follow me to this land. Must I then take your son back to the land from which you came?" [6]Abraham said to him, "See to it that you do not take my son back there. [7]†The Lord, the God of heaven, who took me from my father's house and from the land of my kindred, and who spoke to me and swore to me, 'To your offspring I will give this land,' he will send his angel before you, and you shall take a wife for my son from there. [8]But if the woman is not willing to follow you, then you will be free from this oath of mine; only you must not take my son back there." [9]So the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master and swore to him concerning this matter.

[10]†Then the servant took ten of his master's camels and departed, taking all sorts of choice gifts from his master; and he arose and went to Mesopotamia[1] to the city of Nahor. [11]And he made the camels kneel down outside the city by the well of water at the time of evening, the time when women go out to draw water. [12]†And he said, "O Lord, God of my master Abraham, please grant me success today and show steadfast love to my master Abraham. [13]Behold, I am standing by the spring of water, and the daughters of the men of the city are coming out to draw water. [14]†Let the young woman to whom I shall say, 'Please let down your jar that I may drink,' and who shall say, 'Drink, and I will water your camels'—let her be the one whom you have appointed for your servant Isaac. By this[2] I shall know that you have shown steadfast love to my master."

with her water jar on her shoulder. [16]†The young woman was very attractive in appearance, a maiden[3] whom no man had known. She went down to the spring and filled her jar and came up. [17]Then the servant ran to meet her and said, “Please give me a little water to drink from your jar.” [18]She said, “Drink, my lord.” And she quickly let down her jar upon her hand and gave him a drink. [19]When she had finished giving him a drink, she said, “I will draw water for your camels also, until they have finished drinking.” [20]So she quickly emptied her jar into the trough and ran again to the well to draw water, and she drew for all his camels. [21]The man gazed at her in silence to learn whether the Lord had prospered his journey or not.

[22]When the camels had finished drinking, the man took a gold ring weighing a half shekel,[4] and two bracelets for her arms weighing ten gold shekels, [23]†and said, “Please tell me whose daughter you are. Is there room in your father’s house for us to spend the night?” [24]She said to him, “I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, whom she bore to Nahor.” [25]She added, “We have plenty of both straw and fodder, and room to spend the night.” [26] The man bowed his head and worshiped the Lord [27]†and said, “Blessed be the Lord, the God of my master Abraham, who has not forsaken his steadfast love and his faithfulness toward my master. As for me, the Lord has led me in the way to the house of my master’s kinsmen.” [28]†Then the young woman ran and told her mother’s household about these things.

[29]Rebekah had a brother whose name was Laban. Laban ran out toward the man, to the spring. [30]As soon as he saw the ring and the bracelets on his sister’s arms, and heard the words of Rebekah his sister, “Thus the man spoke to me,” he went to the man. And behold, he was standing by the camels at the spring. [31]†He said, “Come in, O blessed of the Lord. Why do you stand outside? For I have prepared the house and a place for the camels.” [32]So the man came to the house and unharnessed the camels, and gave straw and fodder to the camels, and there was water to wash his feet and the feet of the men who were with him. [33]†Then food was set before him to eat. But he said, “I will not eat until I have said what I have to say.” He said, “Speak on.”

[34]So he said, “I am Abraham’s servant. [35]†The Lord has greatly blessed my master, and he has become great. He has given him flocks and herds, silver and gold, male servants and female servants, camels and donkeys.

[36]And Sarah my master's wife bore a son to my master when she was old, and to him he has given all that he has. [37] My master made me swear, saying, 'You shall not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell, [38]† but you shall go to my father's house and to my clan and take a wife for my son.' [39]I said to my master, 'Perhaps the woman will not follow me.' [40]But he said to me, 'The Lord, before whom I have walked, will send his angel with you and prosper your way.
You shall take a wife for my son from my clan and from my father's house.
[41]Then you will be free from my oath, when you come to my clan. And if they will not give her to you, you will be free from my oath.'

[42]†"I came today to the spring and said, 'O Lord, the God of my master Abraham, if now you are prospering the way that I go, [43]behold, I am standing by the spring of water. Let the virgin who comes out to draw water, to whom I shall say, "Please give me a little water from your jar to drink," [44] and who will say to me, "Drink, and I will draw for your camels also," let her be the woman whom the Lord has appointed for my master's son.'

[45]"Before I had finished speaking in my heart, behold, Rebekah came out with her water jar on her shoulder, and she went down to the spring and drew water. I said to her, 'Please let me drink.' [46]She quickly let down her jar from her shoulder and said, 'Drink, and I will give your camels drink also.' So I drank, and she gave the camels drink also. [47]Then I asked her,
'Whose daughter are you?' She said, 'The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bore to him.' So I put the ring on her nose and the bracelets on her arms. [48] Then I bowed my head and worshiped the Lord and blessed the Lord, the God of my master Abraham, who had led me by the right way[1] to take the daughter of my master's kinsman for his son. [49]Now then, if you are going to show steadfast love and faithfulness to my master, tell me; and if not, tell me, that I may turn to the right hand or to the left."

[50]†Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, "The thing has come from the Lord; we cannot speak to you bad or good. [51]Behold, Rebekah is before you; take her and go, and let her be the wife of your master's son, as the Lord has spoken."

[52]†When Abraham's servant heard their words, he bowed himself to the earth before the Lord. [53]†And the servant brought out jewelry of silver and of gold, and garments, and gave them to Rebekah. He also gave to her brother and to her mother costly ornaments. 54And he and the men who were with him ate and drank, and they spent the night there. When they arose in the morning, he said, “Send me away to my master.” 55Her brother and her mother said, “Let the young woman remain with us a while, at least ten days; after that she may go.” 56But he said to them, “Do not delay me, since the Lord has prospered my way. Send me away that I may go to my master.” 57They said, “Let us call the young woman and ask her.” 58† And they called Rebekah and said to her, “Will you go with this man?” She said, “I will go.” 59† So they sent away Rebekah their sister and her nurse, and Abraham’s servant and his men. 60† And they blessed Rebekah and said to her,

“Our sister, may you become thousands of ten thousands, and may your offspring possess
the gate of those who hate him!”[2]

61† Then Rebekah and her young women arose and rode on the camels and followed the man. Thus the servant took Rebekah and went his way.

62Now Isaac had returned from Beer-lahai-roi and was dwelling in the Negeb. 63And Isaac went out to meditate in the field toward evening. And he lifted up his eyes and saw, and behold, there were camels coming. 64And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she dismounted from the camel 65† and said to the servant, “Who is that man, walking in the field to meet us?” The servant said, “It is my master.” So she took her veil and covered herself. 66And the servant told Isaac all the things that he had done. 67Then Isaac brought her into the tent of Sarah his mother and took Rebekah, and she became his wife, and he loved her. So Isaac was comforted after his mother’s death.

Abraham's Death and His Descendants

25 [1]‡†Abraham took another wife, whose name was Keturah. [2] She bore him Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah. [3]Jokshan fathered Sheba and Dedan. The sons of Dedan were Asshurim, Letushim, and Leummim. [4]The sons of Midian were Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abida, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah. [5]† Abraham gave all he had to Isaac. [6]†But to the sons of his concubines Abraham gave gifts, and while he was still living he sent them away from his son Isaac, eastward to the east country.

[7]These are the days of the years of Abraham's life, 175 years. [8]†Abraham breathed his last and died in a good old age, an old man and full of years, and was gathered to his people. [9]Isaac and Ishmael his sons buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, east of Mamre, [10]the field that Abraham purchased from the Hittites. There Abraham was buried, with Sarah his wife. [11]After the death of Abraham, God blessed Isaac his son. And Isaac settled at Beer-lahai-roi.

[12]†These are the generations of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's servant, bore to Abraham. [13] These are the names of the sons of Ishmael, named in the order of their birth: Nebaioth, the firstborn of Ishmael; and Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, [14]Mishma, Dumah, Massa, [15]Hadad, Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah. [16]†These are the sons of Ishmael and these are their names, by their villages and by their encampments, twelve princes according to their tribes. [17] † (These are the years of the life of Ishmael: 137 years. He breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his people.) [18]† They settled from Havilah to Shur, which is opposite Egypt in the direction of Assyria. He settled[1] over against all his kinsmen.

The Birth of Esau and Jacob

19 ‡†These are the generations of Isaac, Abraham's son: Abraham fathered Isaac, 20 and Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah, the daughter of Bethuel the Aramean of Paddan-aram, the sister of Laban the Aramean, to be his wife. 21 †And Isaac prayed to the Lord for his wife, because she was barren. And the Lord granted his prayer, and Rebekah his wife conceived.
22 †The children struggled together within her, and she said, "If it is thus, why is this happening to me?"[1] So she went to inquire of the Lord. 23 †And the Lord said to her,

"Two nations are in your womb, and two peoples from within you[2] shall be divided;
the one shall be stronger than the other,
the older shall serve the younger."

24 When her days to give birth were completed, behold, there were twins in her womb. 25 †The first came out red, all his body like a hairy cloak, so they called his name Esau. 26 † Afterward his brother came out with his hand holding Esau's heel, so his name was called Jacob.[3] Isaac was sixty years old when she bore them.

27 †When the boys grew up, Esau was a skillful hunter, a man of the field, while Jacob was a quiet man, dwelling in tents. 28 †Isaac loved Esau because he ate of his game, but Rebekah loved Jacob.

Esau Sells His Birthright

29 ‡†Once when Jacob was cooking stew, Esau came in from the field, and he was exhausted. 30 †And Esau said to Jacob, “Let me eat some of that red stew, for I am exhausted!” (Therefore his name was called Edom.[4]) 31 †Jacob said, “Sell me your birthright now.” 32 †Esau said, “I am about to die; of what use is a birthright to me?” 33 Jacob said, “Swear to me now.” So he swore to him and sold his birthright to Jacob. 34 †Then Jacob gave Esau bread and lentil stew, and he ate and drank and rose and went his way. Thus Esau despised his birthright.

God’s Promise to Isaac

26 [1]‡‡Now there was a famine in the land, besides the former famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went to Gerar to Abimelech king of the Philistines. [2]And the Lord appeared to him and said, “Do not go down to Egypt; dwell in the land of which I shall tell you. [3]‡ Sojourn in this land, and I will be with you and will bless you, for to you and to your offspring I will give all these lands, and I will establish the oath that I swore to Abraham your father. [4] I will multiply your offspring as the stars of heaven and will give to your offspring all these lands. And in your offspring all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, [5]because Abraham obeyed my voice and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.”

Isaac and Abimelech

6 ‡So Isaac settled in Gerar. 7 †When the men of the place asked him about his wife, he said, “She is my sister,” for he feared to say, “My wife,” thinking, “lest the men of the place should kill me because of Rebekah,” because she was attractive in appearance. 8 †When he had been there a long time, Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out of a window and saw Isaac laughing with[1] Rebekah his wife. 9 So Abimelech called Isaac and said, “Behold, she is your wife. How then could you say, ‘She is my sister’?” Isaac said to him, “Because I thought, ‘Lest I die because of her.’” 10 †Abimelech said, “What is this you have done to us? One of the people might easily have lain with your wife, and you would have brought guilt upon us.” 11 So Abimelech warned all the people, saying, “Whoever touches this man or his wife shall surely be put to death.”

12 † And Isaac sowed in that land and reaped in the same year a hundredfold. The Lord blessed him, 13 †and the man became rich, and gained more and more until he became very wealthy. 14 He had possessions of flocks and herds and many servants, so that the Philistines envied him.
15 †(Now the Philistines had stopped and filled with earth all the wells that his father’s servants had dug in the days of Abraham his father.) 16 And Abimelech said to Isaac, “Go away from us, for you are much mightier than we.”

17 So Isaac departed from there and encamped in the Valley of Gerar and settled there. 18 †And Isaac dug again the wells of water that had been dug in the days of Abraham his father, which the Philistines had stopped after the death of Abraham. And he gave them the names that his father had given them. 19 But when Isaac’s servants dug in the valley and found there a well of spring water, 20 †the herdsmen of Gerar quarreled with Isaac’s herdsmen, saying, “The water is ours.” So he called the name of the well Esek,[2] because they contended with him. 21 Then they dug another well, and they quarreled over that also, so he called its name Sitnah.[3] 22 And he moved from there and dug another well, and they did not quarrel over it. So he called its name Rehoboth,[4] saying, “For now the Lord has made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land.”

[23]From there he went up to Beersheba. [24]†And the Lord appeared to him the same night and said, “I am the God of Abraham your father. Fear not, for I am with you and will bless you and multiply your offspring for my servant Abraham’s sake.” [25]†So he built an altar there and called upon the name of the Lord and pitched his tent there. And there Isaac’s servants dug a well.

[26]†When Abimelech went to him from Gerar with Ahuzzath his adviser and Phicol the commander of his army, [27]†Isaac said to them, “Why have you come to me, seeing that you hate me and have sent me away from you?” [28]††They said, “We see plainly that the Lord has been with you. So we said, let there be a sworn pact between us, between you and us, and let us make a covenant with you, [29]†that you will do us no harm, just as we have not touched you and have done to you nothing but good and have sent you away in peace. You are now the blessed of the Lord.” [30]†So he made them a feast, and they ate and drank. [31]In the morning they rose early and exchanged oaths. And Isaac sent them on their way, and they departed from him in peace. [32]That same day Isaac’s servants came and told him about the well that they had dug and said to him, “We have found water.” [33]He called it Shibah;[1] therefore the name of the city is Beersheba to this day.

[34]†When Esau was forty years old, he took Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite to be his wife, and Basemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite, [35]†and they made life bitter[2] for Isaac and Rebekah.

Isaac Blesses Jacob

27 [1]When Isaac was old and his eyes were dim so that he could not see, he called Esau his older son and said to him, “My son”; and he answered, “Here I am.” [2]He said, “Behold, I am old; I do not know the day of my death. [3] Now then, take your weapons, your quiver and your bow, and go out to the field and hunt game for me, [4]† and prepare for me delicious food, such as I love, and bring it to me so that I may eat, that my soul may bless you before I die.”

[5]Now Rebekah was listening when Isaac spoke to his son Esau. So when Esau went to the field to hunt for game and bring it, [6]Rebekah said to her son Jacob, “I heard your father speak to your brother Esau, [7]‘Bring me game and prepare for me delicious food, that I may eat it and bless you before the Lord before I die.’ [8]†Now therefore, my son, obey my voice as I command you. [9]Go to the flock and bring me two good young goats, so that I may prepare from them delicious food for your father, such as he loves.
[10]And you shall bring it to your father to eat, so that he may bless you before he dies.” [11]But Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, “Behold, my brother Esau is a hairy man, and I am a smooth man. [12]Perhaps my father will feel me, and I shall seem to be mocking him and bring a curse upon myself and not a blessing.” [13]†His mother said to him, “Let your curse be on me, my son; only obey my voice, and go, bring them to me.”

[14]So he went and took them and brought them to his mother, and his mother prepared delicious food, such as his father loved. [15]†Then Rebekah took the best garments of Esau her older son, which were with her in the house, and put them on Jacob her younger son. [16]And the skins of the young goats she put on his hands and on the smooth part of his neck. [17]And she put the delicious food and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

[18]So he went in to his father and said, “My father.” And he said, “Here I am. Who are you, my son?” [19]†Jacob said to his father, “I am Esau your firstborn. I have done as you told me; now sit up and eat of my game, that your soul may bless me.” [20]†But Isaac said to his son, “How is it that you have found it so quickly, my son?" He answered, "Because the LORD your God granted me success." [21]Then Isaac said to Jacob, "Please come near, that I may feel you, my son, to know whether you are really my son Esau or not." [22]So Jacob went near to Isaac his father, who felt him and said, "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau." [23]†And he did not recognize him, because his hands were hairy like his brother Esau's hands. So he blessed him. [24]He said, "Are you really my son Esau?" He answered, "I am." [25]Then he said, "Bring it near to me, that I may eat of my son's game and bless you." So he brought it near to him, and he ate; and he brought him wine, and he drank.

[26]†Then his father Isaac said to him, "Come near and kiss me, my son." [27]‡†So he came near and kissed him. And Isaac smelled the smell of his garments and blessed him and said,

"See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field that the LORD has blessed!
[28]† May God give you of the dew of heaven and of the fatness of the earth and plenty of grain and wine.
[29]† Let peoples serve you,
and nations bow down to you.
Be lord over your brothers, and may your mother's sons bow down to you.
Cursed be everyone who curses you,
and blessed be everyone who blesses

[30]As soon as Isaac had finished blessing Jacob, when Jacob had scarcely gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, Esau his brother came in from his hunting. [31]He also prepared delicious food and brought it to his father. And he said to his father, "Let my father arise and eat of his son's game, that you may bless me." [32]†His father Isaac said to him, "Who are you?" He answered, "I am your son, your firstborn, Esau." [33]†Then Isaac trembled very violently and said, "Who was it then that hunted game and brought it to me, and I ate it all before you came, and I have blessed him? Yes, and he shall be blessed.” 34As soon as Esau heard the words of his father, he cried out with an exceedingly great and bitter cry and said to his father, “Bless me, even me also, O my father!” 35 ‡ But he said, “Your brother came deceitfully, and he has taken away your blessing.” 36 † Esau said, “Is he not rightly named Jacob?[1] For he has cheated me these two times. He took away my birthright, and behold, now he has taken away my blessing.” Then he said, “Have you not reserved a blessing for me?” 37 † Isaac answered and said to Esau, “Behold, I have made him lord over you, and all his brothers I have given to him for servants, and with grain and wine I have sustained him. What then can I do for you, my son?” 38Esau said to his father, “Have you but one blessing, my father? Bless me, even me also, O my father.” And Esau lifted up his voice and wept.

39 ‡ Then Isaac his father answered and said to him:

“Behold, away from[2] the fatness of the earth shall your dwelling be,
and away from[3] the dew of heaven on high.
40 By your sword you shall live,
and you shall serve your brother;
but when you grow restless
you shall break his yoke from your neck.”

41 † Now Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing with which his father had blessed him, and Esau said to himself, “The days of mourning for my father are approaching; then I will kill my brother Jacob.” 42But the words of Esau her older son were told to Rebekah. So she sent and called Jacob her younger son and said to him, “Behold, your brother Esau comforts himself about you by planning to kill you. 43Now therefore, my son, obey my voice. Arise, flee to Laban my brother in Haran 44 † and stay with him a while, until your brother’s fury turns away— 45 † until your brother’s anger turns away from you, and he forgets what you have done to him. Then I will send and bring you from there. Why should I be bereft of you both in one day?”

46 † Then Rebekah said to Isaac, “I loathe my life because of the Hittite women.[1] If Jacob marries one of the Hittite women like these, one of the women of the land, what good will my life be to me?”

Jacob Sent to Laban

28 [1] ‡ † Then Isaac called Jacob and blessed him and directed him, “You must not take a wife from the Canaanite women. [2] Arise, go to Paddan-aram to the house of Bethuel your mother’s father, and take as your wife from there one of the daughters of Laban your mother’s brother. [3] † God Almighty[2] bless you and make you fruitful and multiply you, that you may become a company of peoples. [4] † May he give the blessing of Abraham to you and to your offspring with you, that you may take possession of the land of your sojournings that God gave to Abraham!” [5] Thus Isaac sent Jacob away. And he went to Paddan-aram, to Laban, the son of Bethuel the Aramean, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob’s and Esau’s mother.

Esau Marries an Ishmaelite

6 ✝✝Now Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him away to Paddan-aram to take a wife from there, and that as he blessed him he directed him, “You must not take a wife from the Canaanite women,” 7and that Jacob had obeyed his father and his mother and gone to Paddan-aram.
8So when Esau saw that the Canaanite women did not please Isaac his father, 9✝Esau went to Ishmael and took as his wife, besides the wives he had, Mahalath the daughter of Ishmael, Abraham’s son, the sister of Nebaioth.

Jacob’s Dream

10 ✝ Jacob left Beersheba and went toward Haran. 11 And he came to a certain place and stayed there that night, because the sun had set. Taking one of the stones of the place, he put it under his head and lay down in that place to sleep. 12 ✝ And he dreamed, and behold, there was a ladder[3] set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven. And behold, the angels of God were ascending and descending on it! 13 ✝ ✝ And behold, the Lord stood above it[1] and said, “I am the Lord, the God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac. The land on which you lie I will give to you and to your offspring. 14 ✝ Your offspring shall be like the dust of the earth, and you shall spread abroad to the west and to the east and to the north and to the south, and in you and your offspring shall all the families of the earth be blessed.
15 Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land. For I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised you.” 16 ✝ Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, “Surely the Lord is in this place, and I did not know it.” 17 ✝ And he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is none other than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.”

18 ✝ So early in the morning Jacob took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up for a pillar and poured oil on the top of it. 19 ✝ He called the name of that place Bethel,[2] but the name of the city was Luz at the first.
20 Then Jacob made a vow, saying, “If God will be with me and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat and clothing to wear, 21 so that I come again to my father’s house in peace, then the Lord shall be my God, 22 ✝ and this stone, which I have set up for a pillar, shall be God’s house. And of all that you give me I will give a full tenth to you.”

Jacob Marries Leah and Rachel

29 [1]‡†Then Jacob went on his journey and came to the land of the people of the east. [2]As he looked, he saw a well in the field, and behold, three flocks of sheep lying beside it, for out of that well the flocks were watered. The stone on the well's mouth was large, [3]and when all the flocks were gathered there, the shepherds would roll the stone from the mouth of the well and water the sheep, and put the stone back in its place over the mouth of the well.

[4]† Jacob said to them, "My brothers, where do you come from?" They said, "We are from Haran." [5]He said to them, "Do you know Laban the son of Nahor?" They said, "We know him." [6]He said to them, "Is it well with him?" They said, "It is well; and see, Rachel his daughter is coming with the sheep!" [7]He said, "Behold, it is still high day; it is not time for the livestock to be gathered together. Water the sheep and go, pasture them." [8]But they said, "We cannot until all the flocks are gathered together and the stone is rolled from the mouth of the well; then we water the sheep."

[9]While he was still speaking with them, Rachel came with her father's sheep, for she was a shepherdess. [10]†Now as soon as Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, Jacob came near and rolled the stone from the well's mouth and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother. [11]†Then Jacob kissed Rachel and wept aloud. [12]And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's kinsman, and that he was Rebekah's son, and she ran and told her father.

[13]As soon as Laban heard the news about Jacob, his sister's son, he ran to meet him and embraced him and kissed him and brought him to his house.
Jacob told Laban all these things, [14]†and Laban said to him, "Surely you are my bone and my flesh!" And he stayed with him a month.

[15]Then Laban said to Jacob, "Because you are my kinsman, should you therefore serve me for nothing? Tell me, what shall your wages be?" [16]Now Laban had two daughters. The name of the older was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel. [17]† Leah's eyes were weak,[1] but Rachel was beautiful in form and appearance. 18 †Jacob loved Rachel. And he said, “I will serve you seven years for your younger daughter Rachel.” 19Laban said, “It is better that I give her to you than that I should give her to any other man; stay with me.” 20 †So Jacob served seven years for Rachel, and they seemed to him but a few days because of the love he had for her.

21 †Then Jacob said to Laban, “Give me my wife that I may go in to her, for my time is completed.” 22So Laban gathered together all the people of the place and made a feast. 23 †But in the evening he took his daughter Leah and brought her to Jacob, and he went in to her. 24 †(Laban gave[2] his female servant Zilpah to his daughter Leah to be her servant.) 25 † And in the morning, behold, it was Leah! And Jacob said to Laban, “What is this you have done to me? Did I not serve with you for Rachel? Why then have you deceived me?” 26Laban said, “It is not so done in our country, to give the younger before the firstborn. 27 † Complete the week of this one, and we will give you the other also in return for serving me another seven years.” 28 † Jacob did so, and completed her week. Then Laban gave him his daughter Rachel to be his wife. 29(Laban gave his female servant Bilhah to his daughter Rachel to be her servant.) 30So Jacob went in to Rachel also, and he loved Rachel more than Leah, and served Laban for another seven years.

Jacob's Children

31 ‡ † When the Lord saw that Leah was hated, he opened her womb, but Rachel was barren. 32 And Leah conceived and bore a son, and she called his name Reuben,[3] for she said, "Because the Lord has looked upon my affliction; for now my husband will love me." 33 She conceived again and bore a son, and said, "Because the Lord has heard that I am hated, he has given me this son also." And she called his name Simeon.[4] 34 Again she conceived and bore a son, and said, "Now this time my husband will be attached to me, because I have borne him three sons." Therefore his name was called Levi.[5] 35 And she conceived again and bore a son, and said,
"This time I will praise the Lord." Therefore she called his name Judah.[6]
Then she ceased bearing.

30 1 † When Rachel saw that she bore Jacob no children, she envied her sister. She said to Jacob, "Give me children, or I shall die!" 2 Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel, and he said, "Am I in the place of God, who has withheld from you the fruit of the womb?" 3 † Then she said, "Here is my servant Bilhah; go in to her, so that she may give birth on my behalf, [1] that even I may have children[2] through her." 4 † So she gave him her servant Bilhah as a wife, and Jacob went in to her. 5 And Bilhah conceived and bore Jacob a son. 6 † Then Rachel said, "God has judged me, and has also heard my voice and given me a son." Therefore she called his name Dan.[3] 7 Rachel's servant Bilhah conceived again and bore Jacob a second son. 8 † Then Rachel said, "With mighty wrestlings[4] I have wrestled with my sister and have prevailed." So she called his name Naphtali.[5]

9 † When Leah saw that she had ceased bearing children, she took her servant Zilpah and gave her to Jacob as a wife. 10 Then Leah's servant Zilpah bore Jacob a son. 11 And Leah said, "Good fortune has come!" so she called his name Gad.[6] 12 Leah's servant Zilpah bore Jacob a second son. 13 And Leah said, "Happy am I! For women have called me happy." So she called his name Asher.[7]

14 † In the days of wheat harvest Reuben went and found mandrakes in the field and brought them to his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah,

“Please give me some of your son’s mandrakes.” 15†But she said to her, “Is it a small matter that you have taken away my husband? Would you take away my son’s mandrakes also?” Rachel said, “Then he may lie with you tonight in exchange for your son’s mandrakes.” 16When Jacob came from the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him and said, “You must come in to me, for I have hired you with my son’s mandrakes.” So he lay with her that night. 17And God listened to Leah, and she conceived and bore Jacob a fifth son. 18Leah said, “God has given me my wages because I gave my servant to my husband.” So she called his name Issachar.[8]

19And Leah conceived again, and she bore Jacob a sixth son. 20†Then Leah said, “God has endowed me with a good endowment; now my husband will honor me, because I have borne him six sons.” So she called his name Zebulun.[9] 21†Afterward she bore a daughter and called her name Dinah.

22†Then God remembered Rachel, and God listened to her and opened her womb. 23She conceived and bore a son and said, “God has taken away my reproach.” 24And she called his name Joseph,[10] saying, “May the Lord add to me another son!”

Jacob’s Prosperity

25 † As soon as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob said to Laban, “Send me away, that I may go to my own home and country. 26 † Give me my wives and my children for whom I have served you, that I may go, for you know the service that I have given you.” 27 † But Laban said to him, “If I have found favor in your sight, I have learned by divination that[11] the Lord has blessed me because of you. 28 Name your wages, and I will give it.” 29 Jacob said to him, “You yourself know how I have served you, and how your livestock has fared with me. 30 † For you had little before I came, and it has increased abundantly, and the Lord has blessed you wherever I turned. But now when shall I provide for my own household also?” 31 He said, “What shall I give you?” Jacob said, “You shall not give me anything. If you will do this for me, I will again pasture your flock and keep it: 32 † let me pass through all your flock today, removing from it every speckled and spotted sheep and every black lamb, and the spotted and speckled among the goats, and they shall be my wages. 33 † So my honesty will answer for me later, when you come to look into my wages with you. Every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats and black among the lambs, if found with me, shall be counted stolen.” 34 Laban said, “Good! Let it be as you have said.” 35 † But that day Laban removed the male goats that were striped and spotted, and all the female goats that were speckled and spotted, every one that had white on it, and every lamb that was black, and put them in the charge of his sons. 36 And he set a distance of three days’ journey between himself and Jacob, and Jacob pastured the rest of Laban’s flock.

37 Then Jacob took fresh sticks of poplar and almond and plane trees, and peeled white streaks in them, exposing the white of the sticks. 38 He set the sticks that he had peeled in front of the flocks in the troughs, that is, the watering places, where the flocks came to drink. And since they bred when they came to drink, 39 † the flocks bred in front of the sticks and so the flocks brought forth striped, speckled, and spotted. 40 † And Jacob separated the lambs and set the faces of the flocks toward the striped and all the black in the flock of Laban. He put his own droves apart and did not put them with Laban’s flock. 41 † Whenever the stronger of the flock were breeding, Jacob would lay the sticks in the troughs before the eyes of the flock, that they might breed among the sticks, [42]but for the feebler of the flock he would not lay them there. So the feebler would be Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's. [43]†Thus the man increased greatly and had large flocks, female servants and male servants, and camels and donkeys.

Jacob Flees from Laban

31 [1]Now Jacob heard that the sons of Laban were saying, “Jacob has taken all that was our father’s, and from what was our father’s he has gained all this wealth.” [2]†And Jacob saw that Laban did not regard him with favor as before. [3]†Then the Lord said to Jacob, “Return to the land of your fathers and to your kindred, and I will be with you.”

[4]†So Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah into the field where his flock was [5]and said to them, “I see that your father does not regard me with favor as he did before. But the God of my father has been with me. [6] You know that I have served your father with all my strength, [7]†yet your father has cheated me and changed my wages ten times. But God did not permit him to harm me. [8]If he said, ‘The spotted shall be your wages,’ then all the flock bore spotted; and if he said, ‘The striped shall be your wages,’ then all the flock bore striped. [9]†Thus God has taken away the livestock of your father and given them to me. [10]†In the breeding season of the flock I lifted up my eyes and saw in a dream that the goats that mated with the flock were striped, spotted, and mottled. [11]†Then the angel of God said to me in the dream, ‘Jacob,’ and I said, ‘Here I am!’ [12]And he said, ‘Lift up your eyes and see, all the goats that mate with the flock are striped, spotted, and mottled, for I have seen all that Laban is doing to you. [13]†I am the God of Bethel, where you anointed a pillar and made a vow to me. Now arise, go out from this land and return to the land of your kindred.’” [14]†Then Rachel and Leah answered and said to him, “Is there any portion or inheritance left to us in our father’s house? [15]†Are we not regarded by him as foreigners?
For he has sold us, and he has indeed devoured our money. [16]All the wealth that God has taken away from our father belongs to us and to our children.
Now then, whatever God has said to you, do.”

[17]So Jacob arose and set his sons and his wives on camels. [18]He drove away all his livestock, all his property that he had gained, the livestock in his possession that he had acquired in Paddan-aram, to go to the land of Canaan to his father Isaac. [19]† Laban had gone to shear his sheep, and Rachel stole her father’s household gods. [20]And Jacob tricked[1] Laban the Aramean, by not telling him that he intended to flee. 21 †He fled with all that he had and arose and crossed the Euphrates, and set his face toward the hill country of Gilead.

22 When it was told Laban on the third day that Jacob had fled, 23 he took his kinsmen with him and pursued him for seven days and followed close after him into the hill country of Gilead. 24 † But God came to Laban the Aramean in a dream by night and said to him, “Be careful not to say anything to Jacob, either good or bad.”
25 And Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the hill country, and Laban with his kinsmen pitched tents in the hill country of Gilead. 26 † And Laban said to Jacob, “What have you done, that you have tricked me and driven away my daughters like captives of the sword?
27 † Why did you flee secretly and trick me, and did not tell me, so that I might have sent you away with mirth and songs, with tambourine and lyre?
28 † And why did you not permit me to kiss my sons and my daughters farewell? Now you have done foolishly. 29 It is in my power to do you harm.
But the God of your[2] father spoke to me last night, saying, ‘Be careful not to say anything to Jacob, either good or bad.’ 30 And now you have gone away because you longed greatly for your father’s house, but why did you steal my gods?” 31 Jacob answered and said to Laban, “Because I was afraid, for I thought that you would take your daughters from me by force. 32 † Anyone with whom you find your gods shall not live. In the presence of our kinsmen point out what I have that is yours, and take it.” Now Jacob did not know that Rachel had stolen them.
33 So Laban went into Jacob’s tent and into Leah’s tent and into the tent of the two female servants, but he did not find them. And he went out of Leah’s tent and entered Rachel’s. 34 † Now Rachel had taken the household gods and put them in the camel’s saddle and sat on them. Laban felt all about the tent, but did not find them. 35 † And she said to her father, “Let not my lord be angry that I cannot rise before you, for the way of women is upon me.” So he searched but did not find the household gods.
36 Then Jacob became angry and berated Laban. Jacob said to Laban, “What is my offense? What is my sin, that you have hotly pursued me?
37 For you have felt through all my goods; what have you found of all your household goods? Set it here before my kinsmen and your kinsmen, that they may decide between us two. 38These twenty years I have been with you. Your ewes and your female goats have not miscarried, and I have not eaten the rams of your flocks. 39 † What was torn by wild beasts I did not bring to you. I bore the loss of it myself. From my hand you required it, whether stolen by day or stolen by night. 40 † There I was: by day the heat consumed me, and the cold by night, and my sleep fled from my eyes. 41These twenty years I have been in your house. I served you fourteen years for your two daughters, and six years for your flock, and you have changed my wages ten times. 42 † If the God of my father, the God of Abraham and the Fear of Isaac, had not been on my side, surely now you would have sent me away empty-handed. God saw my affliction and the labor of my hands and rebuked you last night."

43 † Then Laban answered and said to Jacob, "The daughters are my daughters, the children are my children, the flocks are my flocks, and all that you see is mine. But what can I do this day for these my daughters or for their children whom they have borne? 44 † Come now, let us make a covenant, you and I. And let it be a witness between you and me." 45 † So Jacob took a stone and set it up as a pillar. 46And Jacob said to his kinsmen, "Gather stones." And they took stones and made a heap, and they ate there by the heap. 47 † Laban called it Jegar-sahadutha,[1] but Jacob called it Galeed.[2] 48Laban said, "This heap is a witness between you and me today." Therefore he named it Galeed, 49 † and Mizpah,[3] for he said, "The Lord watch between you and me, when we are out of one another's sight. 50If you oppress my daughters, or if you take wives besides my daughters, although no one is with us, see, God is witness between you and me."

51Then Laban said to Jacob, "See this heap and the pillar, which I have set between you and me. 52 † This heap is a witness, and the pillar is a witness, that I will not pass over this heap to you, and you will not pass over this heap and this pillar to me, to do harm. 53 † The God of Abraham and the God of Nahor, the God of their father, judge between us." So Jacob swore by the Fear of his father Isaac, 54 † and Jacob offered a sacrifice in the hill country and called his kinsmen to eat bread. They ate bread and spent the night in the hill country.

55 [4] Early in the morning Laban arose and kissed his grandchildren and his daughters and blessed them. Then Laban departed and returned home.

Jacob Fears Esau

32 [1]†Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him. [2]†And when Jacob saw them he said, “This is God’s camp!” So he called the name of that place Mahanaim.[5]

[3]†And Jacob sent[6] messengers before him to Esau his brother in the land of Seir, the country of Edom, [4]instructing them, “Thus you shall say to my lord Esau: Thus says your servant Jacob, ‘I have sojourned with Laban and stayed until now. [5]I have oxen, donkeys, flocks, male servants, and female servants. I have sent to tell my lord, in order that I may find favor in your sight.’”

[6]And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, “We came to your brother Esau, and he is coming to meet you, and there are four hundred men with him.” [7]†Then Jacob was greatly afraid and distressed. He divided the people who were with him, and the flocks and herds and camels, into two camps, [8]thinking, “If Esau comes to the one camp and attacks it, then the camp that is left will escape.”

[9]And Jacob said, “O God of my father Abraham and God of my father Isaac, O Lord who said to me, ‘Return to your country and to your kindred, that I may do you good,’ [10] I am not worthy of the least of all the deeds of steadfast love and all the faithfulness that you have shown to your servant, for with only my staff I crossed this Jordan, and now I have become two camps. [11]Please deliver me from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau, for I fear him, that he may come and attack me, the mothers with the children. [12]† But you said, ‘I will surely do you good, and make your offspring as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.’”

[13]†So he stayed there that night, and from what he had with him he took a present for his brother Esau, [14]two hundred female goats and twenty male goats, two hundred ewes and twenty rams, [15]thirty milking camels and their calves, forty cows and ten bulls, twenty female donkeys and ten male donkeys. [16]†These he handed over to his servants, every drove by itself, and said to his servants, “Pass on ahead of me and put a space between drove and drove.” [17]He instructed the first, “When Esau my brother meets you and asks you, ‘To whom do you belong? Where are you going? And whose are these ahead of you?’ 18then you shall say, ‘They belong to your servant Jacob. They are a present sent to my lord Esau. And moreover, he is behind us.’” 19He likewise instructed the second and the third and all who followed the droves, “You shall say the same thing to Esau when you find him, 20† and you shall say, ‘Moreover, your servant Jacob is behind us.’” For he thought, “I may appease him[1] with the present that goes ahead of me, and afterward I shall see his face. Perhaps he will accept me.”[2] 21So the present passed on ahead of him, and he himself stayed that night in the camp.

Jacob Wrestles with God

22 ‡ † The same night he arose and took his two wives, his two female servants, and his eleven children,[3] and crossed the ford of the Jabbok. 23 He took them and sent them across the stream, and everything else that he had.
24 † And Jacob was left alone. And a man wrestled with him until the breaking of the day. 25 † When the man saw that he did not prevail against Jacob, he touched his hip socket, and Jacob's hip was put out of joint as he wrestled with him. 26 † Then he said, "Let me go, for the day has broken."
But Jacob said, "I will not let you go unless you bless me." 27 † And he said to him, "What is your name?" And he said, "Jacob." 28 † Then he said, "Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel,[4] for you have striven with God and with men, and have prevailed." 29 † Then Jacob asked him, "Please tell me your name." But he said, "Why is it that you ask my name?" And there he blessed him. 30 † So Jacob called the name of the place Peniel,[5] saying, "For I have seen God face to face, and yet my life has been delivered." 31 † The sun rose upon him as he passed Penuel, limping because of his hip. 32 † Therefore to this day the people of Israel do not eat the sinew of the thigh that is on the hip socket, because he touched the socket of Jacob's hip on the sinew of the thigh.

Jacob Meets Esau

33 [1]And Jacob lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, Esau was coming, and four hundred men with him. So he divided the children among Leah and Rachel and the two female servants. [2]And he put the servants with their children in front, then Leah with her children, and Rachel and Joseph last of all. [3]†He himself went on before them, bowing himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

[4]† But Esau ran to meet him and embraced him and fell on his neck and kissed him, and they wept. [5]And when Esau lifted up his eyes and saw the women and children, he said, "Who are these with you?" Jacob said, "The children whom God has graciously given your servant." [6]Then the servants drew near, they and their children, and bowed down. [7]Leah likewise and her children drew near and bowed down. And last Joseph and Rachel drew near, and they bowed down. [8] † Esau said, "What do you mean by all this company[1] that I met?" Jacob answered, "To find favor in the sight of my lord." [9]But Esau said, "I have enough, my brother; keep what you have for yourself." [10]†Jacob said, "No, please, if I have found favor in your sight, then accept my present from my hand. For I have seen your face, which is like seeing the face of God, and you have accepted me. [11]†Please accept my blessing that is brought to you, because God has dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough." Thus he urged him, and he took it.

[12]†Then Esau said, "Let us journey on our way, and I will go ahead of[2] you." [13]†But Jacob said to him, "My lord knows that the children are frail, and that the nursing flocks and herds are a care to me. If they are driven hard for one day, all the flocks will die. [14]†Let my lord pass on ahead of his servant, and I will lead on slowly, at the pace of the livestock that are ahead of me and at the pace of the children, until I come to my lord in Seir."

[15]So Esau said, "Let me leave with you some of the people who are with me." But he said, "What need is there? Let me find favor in the sight of my lord." [16]So Esau returned that day on his way to Seir. [17] † But Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built himself a house and made booths for his livestock. Therefore the name of the place is called Succoth.[3]

18 † And Jacob came safely[4] to the city of Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, on his way from Paddan-aram, and he camped before the city.
19 † And from the sons of Hamor, Shechem's father, he bought for a hundred pieces of money[5] the piece of land on which he had pitched his tent.
20 † There he erected an altar and called it El-Elohe-Israel.[6]

The Defiling of Dinah

34 [1]Now Dinah the daughter of Leah, whom she had borne to Jacob, went out to see the women of the land. [2]†And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, the prince of the land, saw her, he seized her and lay with her and humiliated her. [3]And his soul was drawn to Dinah the daughter of Jacob. He loved the young woman and spoke tenderly to her. [4]†So Shechem spoke to his father Hamor, saying, "Get me this girl for my wife."

[5]Now Jacob heard that he had defiled his daughter Dinah. But his sons were with his livestock in the field, so Jacob held his peace until they came.
[6]And Hamor the father of Shechem went out to Jacob to speak with him.
[7]The sons of Jacob had come in from the field as soon as they heard of it, and the men were indignant and very angry, because he had done an outrageous thing in Israel by lying with Jacob's daughter, for such a thing must not be done.

[8]But Hamor spoke with them, saying, "The soul of my son Shechem longs for your[1] daughter. Please give her to him to be his wife. [9]†Make marriages with us. Give your daughters to us, and take our daughters for yourselves. [10]You shall dwell with us, and the land shall be open to you.
Dwell and trade in it, and get property in it." [11]Shechem also said to her father and to her brothers, "Let me find favor in your eyes, and whatever you say to me I will give. [12]†Ask me for as great a bride price[2] and gift as you will, and I will give whatever you say to me. Only give me the young woman to be my wife."

[13] † The sons of Jacob answered Shechem and his father Hamor deceitfully, because he had defiled their sister Dinah. [14]†They said to them,
"We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one who is uncircumcised, for that would be a disgrace to us. [15]†Only on this condition will we agree with you—that you will become as we are by every male among you being circumcised. [16]Then we will give our daughters to you, and we will take your daughters to ourselves, and we will dwell with you and become one people. [17]†But if you will not listen to us and be circumcised, then we will take our daughter, and we will be gone."

[18]Their words pleased Hamor and Hamor's son Shechem. [19]And the young man did not delay to do the thing, because he delighted in Jacob's daughter. Now he was the most honored of all his father's house. [20]† So Hamor and his son Shechem came to the gate of their city and spoke to the men of their city, saying, [21]"These men are at peace with us; let them dwell in the land and trade in it, for behold, the land is large enough for them. Let us take their daughters as wives, and let us give them our daughters. [22]Only on this condition will the men agree to dwell with us to become one people —when every male among us is circumcised as they are circumcised. [23]† Will not their livestock, their property and all their beasts be ours? Only let us agree with them, and they will dwell with us." [24]And all who went out of the gate of his city listened to Hamor and his son Shechem, and every male was circumcised, all who went out of the gate of his city.

[25]† On the third day, when they were sore, two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brothers, took their swords and came against the city while it felt secure and killed all the males. [26]They killed Hamor and his son Shechem with the sword and took Dinah out of Shechem's house and went away. [27]The sons of Jacob came upon the slain and plundered the city, because they had defiled their sister. [28]They took their flocks and their herds, their donkeys, and whatever was in the city and in the field. [29]† All their wealth, all their little ones and their wives, all that was in the houses, they captured and plundered.

[30]† Then Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, "You have brought trouble on me by making me stink to the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites and the Perizzites. My numbers are few, and if they gather themselves against me and attack me, I shall be destroyed, both I and my household." [31]† But they said, "Should he treat our sister like a prostitute?"

God Blesses and Renames Jacob

35 [1]†† God said to Jacob, “Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there. Make an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you fled from your brother Esau.” [2]† So Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, “Put away the foreign gods that are among you and purify yourselves and change your garments. [3]Then let us arise and go up to Bethel, so that I may make there an altar to the God who answers me in the day of my distress and has been with me wherever I have gone.” [4]† So they gave to Jacob all the foreign gods that they had, and the rings that were in their ears. Jacob hid them under the terebinth tree that was near Shechem.

[5]† And as they journeyed, a terror from God fell upon the cities that were around them, so that they did not pursue the sons of Jacob. [6]And Jacob came to Luz (that is, Bethel), which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people who were with him, [7]† and there he built an altar and called the place El-bethel,[1] because there God had revealed himself to him when he fled from his brother. [8]And Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse, died, and she was buried under an oak below Bethel. So he called its name Allon-bacuth.[2]

[9]God appeared[3] to Jacob again, when he came from Paddan-aram, and blessed him. [10]† And God said to him, “Your name is Jacob; no longer shall your name be called Jacob, but Israel shall be your name.” So he called his name Israel. [11]† And God said to him, “I am God Almighty:[4] be fruitful and multiply. A nation and a company of nations shall come from you, and kings shall come from your own body.[5] [12]† The land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you, and I will give the land to your offspring after you.” [13]Then God went up from him in the place where he had spoken with him. [14]† And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where he had spoken with him, a pillar of stone. He poured out a drink offering on it and poured oil on it. [15]So Jacob called the name of the place where God had spoken with him Bethel.

The Deaths of Rachel and Isaac

16 † Then they journeyed from Bethel. When they were still some distance[6] from Ephrath, Rachel went into labor, and she had hard labor.
17 †And when her labor was at its hardest, the midwife said to her, “Do not fear, for you have another son.” 18 †And as her soul was departing (for she was dying), she called his name Ben-oni;[7] but his father called him Benjamin.[8] 19 †So Rachel died, and she was buried on the way to Ephrath (that is, Bethlehem), 20 †and Jacob set up a pillar over her tomb. It is the pillar of Rachel’s tomb, which is there to this day. 21 †Israel journeyed on and pitched his tent beyond the tower of Eder.

22 †While Israel lived in that land, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father’s concubine. And Israel heard of it.

Now the sons of Jacob were twelve. 23The sons of Leah: Reuben (Jacob’s firstborn), Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun. 24The sons of Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin. 25The sons of Bilhah, Rachel’s servant: Dan and Naphtali. 26The sons of Zilpah, Leah’s servant: Gad and Asher. These were the sons of Jacob who were born to him in Paddan-aram.

27 †And Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre, or Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had sojourned. 28Now the days of Isaac were 180 years. 29 † And Isaac breathed his last, and he died and was gathered to his people, old and full of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Esau’s Descendants

36 [1]†These are the generations of Esau (that is, Edom). [2]†Esau took his wives from the Canaanites: Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite, Oholibamah the daughter of Anah the daughter[1] of Zibeon the Hivite, [3]and Basemath, Ishmael’s daughter, the sister of Nebaioth. [4]And Adah bore to Esau, Eliphaz; Basemath bore Reuel; [5]and Oholibamah bore Jeush, Jalam, and Korah. These are the sons of Esau who were born to him in the land of Canaan.

[6]Then Esau took his wives, his sons, his daughters, and all the members of his household, his livestock, all his beasts, and all his property that he had acquired in the land of Canaan. He went into a land away from his brother Jacob. [7] For their possessions were too great for them to dwell together. The land of their sojournings could not support them because of their livestock. [8]†So Esau settled in the hill country of Seir. (Esau is Edom.)

[9]These are the generations of Esau the father of the Edomites in the hill country of Seir. [10]These are the names of Esau’s sons: Eliphaz the son of Adah the wife of Esau, Reuel the son of Basemath the wife of Esau. [11]The sons of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gatam, and Kenaz. [12](Timna was a concubine of Eliphaz, Esau’s son; she bore Amalek to Eliphaz.) These are the sons of Adah, Esau’s wife. [13]These are the sons of Reuel: Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah. These are the sons of Basemath, Esau’s wife.
[14]These are the sons of Oholibamah the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon, Esau’s wife: she bore to Esau Jeush, Jalam, and Korah.

[15]These are the chiefs of the sons of Esau. The sons of Eliphaz the firstborn of Esau: the chiefs Teman, Omar, Zepho, Kenaz, [16]Korah, Gatam, and Amalek; these are the chiefs of Eliphaz in the land of Edom; these are the sons of Adah. [17]These are the sons of Reuel, Esau’s son: the chiefs Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah; these are the chiefs of Reuel in the land of Edom; these are the sons of Basemath, Esau’s wife. [18]These are the sons of Oholibamah, Esau’s wife: the chiefs Jeush, Jalam, and Korah; these are the chiefs born of Oholibamah the daughter of Anah, Esau’s wife.
[19]These are the sons of Esau (that is, Edom), and these are their chiefs.

[20] These are the sons of Seir the Horite, the inhabitants of the land: Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, [21]Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan; these are the chiefs of the Horites, the sons of Seir in the land of Edom. [22]The sons of Lotan were Hori and Hemam; and Lotan's sister was Timna. [23]These are the sons of Shobal: Alvan, Manahath, Ebal, Shepho, and Onam. [24]These are the sons of Zibeon: Aiah and Anah; he is the Anah who found the hot springs in the wilderness, as he pastured the donkeys of Zibeon his father. [25]These are the children of Anah: Dishon and Oholibamah the daughter of Anah. [26]These are the sons of Dishon: Hemdan, Eshban, Ithran, and Cheran. [27]These are the sons of Ezer: Bilhan, Zaavan, and Akan. [28]These are the sons of Dishan:
Uz and Aran. [29]These are the chiefs of the Horites: the chiefs Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, [30]Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan; these are the chiefs of the Horites, chief by chief in the land of Seir.

[31]† These are the kings who reigned in the land of Edom, before any king reigned over the Israelites. [32]Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom, the name of his city being Dinhabah. [33]Bela died, and Jobab the son of Zerah of Bozrah reigned in his place. [34]Jobab died, and Husham of the land of the Temanites reigned in his place. [35]Husham died, and Hadad the son of Bedad, who defeated Midian in the country of Moab, reigned in his place, the name of his city being Avith. [36]Hadad died, and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his place. [37] † Samlah died, and Shaul of Rehoboth on the Euphrates[1] reigned in his place. [38] Shaul died, and Baal-hanan the son of Achbor reigned in his place. [39]Baal-hanan the son of Achbor died, and Hadar reigned in his place, the name of his city being Pau; his wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, daughter of Mezahab.

[40]These are the names of the chiefs of Esau, according to their clans and their dwelling places, by their names: the chiefs Timna, Alvah, Jetheth, [41]Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, [42]Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, [43]Magdiel, and Iram; these are the chiefs of Edom (that is, Esau, the father of Edom), according to their dwelling places in the land of their possession.

Joseph’s Dreams

37 [1]†Jacob lived in the land of his father’s sojournings, in the land of Canaan.

[2]†These are the generations of Jacob.

Joseph, being seventeen years old, was pasturing the flock with his brothers. He was a boy with the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah, his father’s wives. And Joseph brought a bad report of them to their father. [3]†Now Israel loved Joseph more than any other of his sons, because he was the son of his old age. And he made him a robe of many colors.[2] [4]But when his brothers saw that their father loved him more than all his brothers, they hated him and could not speak peacefully to him.

[5]†Now Joseph had a dream, and when he told it to his brothers they hated him even more. [6]He said to them, “Hear this dream that I have dreamed: [7]†Behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and behold, my sheaf arose and stood upright. And behold, your sheaves gathered around it and bowed down to my sheaf.” [8]His brothers said to him, “Are you indeed to reign over us? Or are you indeed to rule over us?” So they hated him even more for his dreams and for his words.

[9]†Then he dreamed another dream and told it to his brothers and said, “Behold, I have dreamed another dream. Behold, the sun, the moon, and eleven stars were bowing down to me.” [10]†But when he told it to his father and to his brothers, his father rebuked him and said to him, “What is this dream that you have dreamed? Shall I and your mother and your brothers indeed come to bow ourselves to the ground before you?” [11]And his brothers were jealous of him, but his father kept the saying in mind.

Joseph Sold by His Brothers

12 ‡ † Now his brothers went to pasture their father's flock near Shechem.
13 And Israel said to Joseph, "Are not your brothers pasturing the flock at Shechem? Come, I will send you to them." And he said to him, "Here I am." 14 † So he said to him, "Go now, see if it is well with your brothers and with the flock, and bring me word." So he sent him from the Valley of Hebron, and he came to Shechem. 15 And a man found him wandering in the fields. And the man asked him, "What are you seeking?" 16 † "I am seeking my brothers," he said. "Tell me, please, where they are pasturing the flock." 17 † And the man said, "They have gone away, for I heard them say, 'Let us go to Dothan.'" So Joseph went after his brothers and found them at Dothan.

18 † They saw him from afar, and before he came near to them they conspired against him to kill him. 19 † They said to one another, "Here comes this dreamer. 20 † Come now, let us kill him and throw him into one of the pits.[1] Then we will say that a fierce animal has devoured him, and we will see what will become of his dreams." 21 † But when Reuben heard it, he rescued him out of their hands, saying, "Let us not take his life." 22 And Reuben said to them, "Shed no blood; throw him into this pit here in the wilderness, but do not lay a hand on him"— that he might rescue him out of their hand to restore him to his father. 23 So when Joseph came to his brothers, they stripped him of his robe, the robe of many colors that he wore. 24 † And they took him and threw him into a pit. The pit was empty;
there was no water in it.

25 † Then they sat down to eat. And looking up they saw a caravan of Ishmaelites coming from Gilead, with their camels bearing gum, balm, and myrrh, on their way to carry it down to Egypt. 26 † Then Judah said to his brothers, "What profit is it if we kill our brother and conceal his blood?
27 Come, let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him, for he is our brother, our own flesh." And his brothers listened to him.
28 † Then Midianite traders passed by. And they drew Joseph up and lifted him out of the pit, and sold him to the Ishmaelites for twenty shekels[2] of silver. They took Joseph to Egypt.

[29] † When Reuben returned to the pit and saw that Joseph was not in the pit, he tore his clothes [30] † and returned to his brothers and said, “The boy is gone, and I, where shall I go?” [31] Then they took Joseph’s robe and slaughtered a goat and dipped the robe in the blood. [32] And they sent the robe of many colors and brought it to their father and said, “This we have found; please identify whether it is your son’s robe or not.” [33] And he identified it and said, “It is my son’s robe. A fierce animal has devoured him. Joseph is without doubt torn to pieces.” [34] † Then Jacob tore his garments and put sackcloth on his loins and mourned for his son many days. [35] † All his sons and all his daughters rose up to comfort him, but he refused to be comforted and said, “No, I shall go down to Sheol to my son, mourning.” Thus his father wept for him. [36] † Meanwhile the Midianites had sold him in Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, the captain of the guard.

Judah and Tamar

38 [1]†It happened at that time that Judah went down from his brothers and turned aside to a certain Adullamite, whose name was Hirah. [2]†There Judah saw the daughter of a certain Canaanite whose name was Shua. He took her and went in to her, [3]†and she conceived and bore a son, and he called his name Er. [4]She conceived again and bore a son, and she called his name Onan. [5]†Yet again she bore a son, and she called his name Shelah.
Judah[1] was in Chezib when she bore him.

[6]†And Judah took a wife for Er his firstborn, and her name was Tamar.
[7]†But Er, Judah's firstborn, was wicked in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord put him to death. [8]†Then Judah said to Onan, "Go in to your brother's wife and perform the duty of a brother-in-law to her, and raise up offspring for your brother." [9]†But Onan knew that the offspring would not be his. So whenever he went in to his brother's wife he would waste the semen on the ground, so as not to give offspring to his brother. [10]And what he did was wicked in the sight of the Lord, and he put him to death also. [11]†Then Judah said to Tamar his daughter-in-law, "Remain a widow in your father's house, till Shelah my son grows up"—for he feared that he would die, like his brothers. So Tamar went and remained in her father's house.

[12]†In the course of time the wife of Judah, Shua's daughter, died. When Judah was comforted, he went up to Timnah to his sheepshearers, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite. [13]And when Tamar was told, "Your father-in-law is going up to Timnah to shear his sheep," [14]†she took off her widow's garments and covered herself with a veil, wrapping herself up, and sat at the entrance to Enaim, which is on the road to Timnah. For she saw that Shelah was grown up, and she had not been given to him in marriage. [15]†When Judah saw her, he thought she was a prostitute, for she had covered her face.
[16]He turned to her at the roadside and said, "Come, let me come in to you," for he did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. She said, "What will you give me, that you may come in to me?" [17]†He answered, "I will send you a young goat from the flock." And she said, "If you give me a pledge, until you send it—" [18]†He said, "What pledge shall I give you?" She replied, “Your signet and your cord and your staff that is in your hand.” So he gave them to her and went in to her, and she conceived by him. 19Then she arose and went away, and taking off her veil she put on the garments of her widowhood.

20†When Judah sent the young goat by his friend the Adullamite to take back the pledge from the woman’s hand, he did not find her. 21†And he asked the men of the place, “Where is the cult prostitute[1] who was at Enaim at the roadside?” And they said, “No cult prostitute has been here.” 22So he returned to Judah and said, “I have not found her. Also, the men of the place said, ‘No cult prostitute has been here.’” 23†And Judah replied, “Let her keep the things as her own, or we shall be laughed at. You see, I sent this young goat, and you did not find her.”

24†About three months later Judah was told, “Tamar your daughter-in-law has been immoral.[2] Moreover, she is pregnant by immorality.”[3] And Judah said, “Bring her out, and let her be burned.” 25†As she was being brought out, she sent word to her father-in-law, “By the man to whom these belong, I am pregnant.” And she said, “Please identify whose these are, the signet and the cord and the staff.” 26†Then Judah identified them and said, “She is more righteous than I, since I did not give her to my son Shelah.” And he did not know her again.

27†When the time of her labor came, there were twins in her womb. 28†And when she was in labor, one put out a hand, and the midwife took and tied a scarlet thread on his hand, saying, “This one came out first.” 29†But as he drew back his hand, behold, his brother came out. And she said, “What a breach you have made for yourself!” Therefore his name was called Perez. [4] 30†Afterward his brother came out with the scarlet thread on his hand, and his name was called Zerah.

Joseph and Potiphar's Wife

39 [1]†Now Joseph had been brought down to Egypt, and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, the captain of the guard, an Egyptian, had bought him from the Ishmaelites who had brought him down there. [2]† The Lord was with Joseph, and he became a successful man, and he was in the house of his Egyptian master. [3]†His master saw that the Lord was with him and that the Lord caused all that he did to succeed in his hands. [4]So Joseph found favor in his sight and attended him, and he made him overseer of his house and put him in charge of all that he had. [5]From the time that he made him overseer in his house and over all that he had the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; the blessing of the Lord was on all that he had, in house and field. [6]†So he left all that he had in Joseph's charge, and because of him he had no concern about anything but the food he ate.

Now Joseph was handsome in form and appearance. [7]†And after a time his master's wife cast her eyes on Joseph and said, "Lie with me." [8]†But he refused and said to his master's wife, "Behold, because of me my master has no concern about anything in the house, and he has put everything that he has in my charge. [9]†He is not greater in this house than I am, nor has he kept back anything from me except yourself, because you are his wife. How then can I do this great wickedness and sin against God?" [10]And as she spoke to Joseph day after day, he would not listen to her, to lie beside her or to be with her.

[11]†But one day, when he went into the house to do his work and none of the men of the house was there in the house, [12]† she caught him by his garment, saying, "Lie with me." But he left his garment in her hand and fled and got out of the house. [13]†And as soon as she saw that he had left his garment in her hand and had fled out of the house, [14]†she called to the men of her household and said to them, "See, he has brought among us a Hebrew to laugh at us. He came in to me to lie with me, and I cried out with a loud voice. [15]And as soon as he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried out, he left his garment beside me and fled and got out of the house." [16]Then she laid up his garment by her until his master came home, [17]and she told him the same story, saying, “The Hebrew servant, whom you have brought among us, came in to me to laugh at me. 18But as soon as I lifted up my voice and cried, he left his garment beside me and fled out of the house.”

19 † As soon as his master heard the words that his wife spoke to him, “This is the way your servant treated me,” his anger was kindled. 20 † And Joseph’s master took him and put him into the prison, the place where the king’s prisoners were confined, and he was there in prison. 21 † But the Lord was with Joseph and showed him steadfast love and gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison. 22And the keeper of the prison put Joseph in charge of all the prisoners who were in the prison. Whatever was done there, he was the one who did it. 23 † The keeper of the prison paid no attention to anything that was in Joseph’s charge, because the Lord was with him. And whatever he did, the Lord made it succeed.

Joseph Interprets Two Prisoners' Dreams

[5]†And one night they both dreamed—the cupbearer and the baker of the king of Egypt, who were confined in the prison—each his own dream, and each dream with its own interpretation. [6]†When Joseph came to them in the morning, he saw that they were troubled. [7]So he asked Pharaoh's officers who were with him in custody in his master's house, "Why are your faces downcast today?" [8]†They said to him, "We have had dreams, and there is no one to interpret them." And Joseph said to them, "Do not interpretations belong to God? Please tell them to me."

[9]So the chief cupbearer told his dream to Joseph and said to him, "In my dream there was a vine before me, [10]and on the vine there were three branches. As soon as it budded, its blossoms shot forth, and the clusters ripened into grapes. [11]†Pharaoh's cup was in my hand, and I took the grapes and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup and placed the cup in Pharaoh's hand." [12]Then Joseph said to him, "This is its interpretation: the three branches are three days. [13]In three days Pharaoh will lift up your head and restore you to your office, and you shall place Pharaoh's cup in his hand as formerly, when you were his cupbearer. [14]Only remember me, when it is well with you, and please do me the kindness to mention me to Pharaoh, and so get me out of this house. [15]†For I was indeed stolen out of the land of the Hebrews, and here also I have done nothing that they should put me into the pit."

[16]When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was favorable, he said to Joseph, "I also had a dream: there were three cake baskets on my head, [17]† and in the uppermost basket there were all sorts of baked food for Pharaoh, but the birds were eating it out of the basket on my head.” [18]And Joseph answered and said, “This is its interpretation: the three baskets are three days. [19]† In three days Pharaoh will lift up your head—from you!—and hang you on a tree. And the birds will eat the flesh from you.”

[20]†On the third day, which was Pharaoh’s birthday, he made a feast for all his servants and lifted up the head of the chief cupbearer and the head of the chief baker among his servants. [21] He restored the chief cupbearer to his position, and he placed the cup in Pharaoh’s hand. [22]But he hanged the chief baker, as Joseph had interpreted to them. [23]Yet the chief cupbearer did not remember Joseph, but forgot him.

Joseph Interprets Pharaoh's Dreams

41 [1]After two whole years, Pharaoh dreamed that he was standing by the Nile, [2] and behold, there came up out of the Nile seven cows attractive and plump, and they fed in the reed grass. [3]And behold, seven other cows, ugly and thin, came up out of the Nile after them, and stood by the other cows on the bank of the Nile. [4]And the ugly, thin cows ate up the seven attractive, plump cows. And Pharaoh awoke. [5]And he fell asleep and dreamed a second time. And behold, seven ears of grain, plump and good, were growing on one stalk. [6]And behold, after them sprouted seven ears, thin and blighted by the east wind. [7]And the thin ears swallowed up the seven plump, full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and behold, it was a dream.
[8]So in the morning his spirit was troubled, and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt and all its wise men. Pharaoh told them his dreams, but there was none who could interpret them to Pharaoh.

[9]Then the chief cupbearer said to Pharaoh, "I remember my offenses today. [10]When Pharaoh was angry with his servants and put me and the chief baker in custody in the house of the captain of the guard, [11] we dreamed on the same night, he and I, each having a dream with its own interpretation. [12] A young Hebrew was there with us, a servant of the captain of the guard. When we told him, he interpreted our dreams to us, giving an interpretation to each man according to his dream. [13]And as he interpreted to us, so it came about. I was restored to my office, and the baker was hanged."

[14] Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they quickly brought him out of the pit. And when he had shaved himself and changed his clothes, he came in before Pharaoh. [15]And Pharaoh said to Joseph, "I have had a dream, and there is no one who can interpret it. I have heard it said of you that when you hear a dream you can interpret it." [16]Joseph answered Pharaoh,
"It is not in me; God will give Pharaoh a favorable answer."[1] [17]Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, "Behold, in my dream I was standing on the banks of the Nile. [18]Seven cows, plump and attractive, came up out of the Nile and fed in the reed grass. [19]Seven other cows came up after them, poor and very ugly and thin, such as I had never seen in all the land of Egypt. [20]And the thin, ugly cows ate up the first seven plump cows, [21]but when they had eaten them no one would have known that they had eaten them, for they were still as ugly as at the beginning. Then I awoke. [22]I also saw in my dream seven ears growing on one stalk, full and good. [23]Seven ears, withered, thin, and blighted by the east wind, sprouted after them, [24]and the thin ears swallowed up the seven good ears. And I told it to the magicians, but there was no one who could explain it to me."

[25]† Then Joseph said to Pharaoh, "The dreams of Pharaoh are one; God has revealed to Pharaoh what he is about to do. [26]The seven good cows are seven years, and the seven good ears are seven years; the dreams are one. [27]† The seven lean and ugly cows that came up after them are seven years, and the seven empty ears blighted by the east wind are also seven years of famine. [28]It is as I told Pharaoh; God has shown to Pharaoh what he is about to do. [29]There will come seven years of great plenty throughout all the land of Egypt, [30]† but after them there will arise seven years of famine, and all the plenty will be forgotten in the land of Egypt. The famine will consume the land, [31]and the plenty will be unknown in the land by reason of the famine that will follow, for it will be very severe. [32]And the doubling of Pharaoh's dream means that the thing is fixed by God, and God will shortly bring it about. [33]Now therefore let Pharaoh select a discerning and wise man, and set him over the land of Egypt. [34]Let Pharaoh proceed to appoint overseers over the land and take one-fifth of the produce of the land[2] of Egypt during the seven plentiful years. [35]And let them gather all the food of these good years that are coming and store up grain under the authority of Pharaoh for food in the cities, and let them keep it. [36]That food shall be a reserve for the land against the seven years of famine that are to occur in the land of Egypt, so that the land may not perish through the famine."

Joseph Rises to Power

37 ‡This proposal pleased Pharaoh and all his servants. 38 ‡And Pharaoh said to his servants, “Can we find a man like this, in whom is the Spirit of God?”[1] 39Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Since God has shown you all this, there is none so discerning and wise as you are. 40 † You shall be over my house, and all my people shall order themselves as you command.[2] Only as regards the throne will I be greater than you.” 41And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “See, I have set you over all the land of Egypt.” 42 †Then Pharaoh took his signet ring from his hand and put it on Joseph’s hand, and clothed him in garments of fine linen and put a gold chain about his neck. 43 †And he made him ride in his second chariot. And they called out before him, “Bow the knee!”[3] Thus he set him over all the land of Egypt. 44 †Moreover, Pharaoh said to Joseph, “I am Pharaoh, and without your consent no one shall lift up hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.” 45 †And Pharaoh called Joseph’s name Zaphenath-paneah. And he gave him in marriage Asenath, the daughter of Potiphera priest of On. So Joseph went out over the land of Egypt.

46 †Joseph was thirty years old when he entered the service of Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh and went through all the land of Egypt. 47During the seven plentiful years the earth produced abundantly, 48 †and he gathered up all the food of these seven years, which occurred in the land of Egypt, and put the food in the cities.
He put in every city the food from the fields around it. 49And Joseph stored up grain in great abundance, like the sand of the sea, until he ceased to measure it, for it could not be measured.

50Before the year of famine came, two sons were born to Joseph. Asenath, the daughter of Potiphera priest of On, bore them to him. 51Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasseh. “For,” he said, “God has made me forget all my hardship and all my father’s house.”[4] 52 †The name of the second he called Ephraim, “For God has made me fruitful in the land of my affliction.”[5]

53The seven years of plenty that occurred in the land of Egypt came to an end, 54 †and the seven years of famine began to come, as Joseph had said.
There was famine in all lands, but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

[55]When all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread. Pharaoh said to all the Egyptians, “Go to Joseph. What he says to you, do.”

[56]So when the famine had spread over all the land, Joseph opened all the storehouses[6] and sold to the Egyptians, for the famine was severe in the land of Egypt. [57]Moreover, all the earth came to Egypt to Joseph to buy grain, because the famine was severe over all the earth.

Joseph's Brothers Go to Egypt

42 [1]†When Jacob learned that there was grain for sale in Egypt, he said to his sons, "Why do you look at one another?" [2]And he said, "Behold, I have heard that there is grain for sale in Egypt. Go down and buy grain for us there, that we may live and not die." [3]So ten of Joseph's brothers went down to buy grain in Egypt. [4]†But Jacob did not send Benjamin, Joseph's brother, with his brothers, for he feared that harm might happen to him. [5]†Thus the sons of Israel came to buy among the others who came, for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

[6]†Now Joseph was governor over the land. He was the one who sold to all the people of the land. And Joseph's brothers came and bowed themselves before him with their faces to the ground. [7]Joseph saw his brothers and recognized them, but he treated them like strangers and spoke roughly to them. "Where do you come from?" he said. They said, "From the land of Canaan, to buy food." [8]†And Joseph recognized his brothers, but they did not recognize him. [9]†And Joseph remembered the dreams that he had dreamed of them. And he said to them, "You are spies; you have come to see the nakedness of the land." [10]They said to him, "No, my lord, your servants have come to buy food. [11]†We are all sons of one man. We are honest men. Your servants have never been spies."

[12]He said to them, "No, it is the nakedness of the land that you have come to see." [13]†And they said, "We, your servants, are twelve brothers, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan, and behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is no more." [14]But Joseph said to them, "It is as I said to you. You are spies. [15]†By this you shall be tested: by the life of Pharaoh, you shall not go from this place unless your youngest brother comes here. [16]Send one of you, and let him bring your brother, while you remain confined, that your words may be tested, whether there is truth in you. Or else, by the life of Pharaoh, surely you are spies." [17]†And he put them all together in custody for three days.

[18]†On the third day Joseph said to them, "Do this and you will live, for I fear God: [19]if you are honest men, let one of your brothers remain confined where you are in custody, and let the rest go and carry grain for the famine of your households, [20] † and bring your youngest brother to me. So your words will be verified, and you shall not die." And they did so. [21] † Then they said to one another, "In truth we are guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the distress of his soul, when he begged us and we did not listen. That is why this distress has come upon us." [22] † And Reuben answered them, "Did I not tell you not to sin against the boy? But you did not listen. So now there comes a reckoning for his blood." [23] They did not know that Joseph understood them, for there was an interpreter between them. [24] † Then he turned away from them and wept. And he returned to them and spoke to them. And he took Simeon from them and bound him before their eyes. [25] † And Joseph gave orders to fill their bags with grain, and to replace every man's money in his sack, and to give them provisions for the journey. This was done for them.

[29] When they came to Jacob their father in the land of Canaan, they told him all that had happened to them, saying, [30] "The man, the lord of the land, spoke roughly to us and took us to be spies of the land. [31] But we said to him, 'We are honest men; we have never been spies. [32] We are twelve brothers, sons of our father. One is no more, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.' [33] Then the man, the lord of the land, said to us, 'By this I shall know that you are honest men: leave one of your brothers with me, and take grain for the famine of your households, and go your way. [34] † Bring your youngest brother to me. Then I shall know that you are not spies but honest men, and I will deliver your brother to you, and you shall trade in the land.'"

[35] † As they emptied their sacks, behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack. And when they and their father saw their bundles of money, they were afraid. [36] † And Jacob their father said to them, "You have bereaved me of my children: Joseph is no more, and Simeon is no more, and now you would take Benjamin. All this has come against me.” [37]†Then Reuben said to his father, “Kill my two sons if I do not bring him back to you. Put him in my hands, and I will bring him back to you.” [38]†But he said, “My son shall not go down with you, for his brother is dead, and he is the only one left. If harm should happen to him on the journey that you are to make, you would bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to Sheol.”

Joseph's Brothers Return to Egypt

43 [1]Now the famine was severe in the land. [2]And when they had eaten the grain that they had brought from Egypt, their father said to them, "Go again, buy us a little food." [3]† But Judah said to him, "The man solemnly warned us, saying, 'You shall not see my face unless your brother is with you.' [4]If you will send our brother with us, we will go down and buy you food. [5]But if you will not send him, we will not go down, for the man said to us, 'You shall not see my face, unless your brother is with you.'" [6]Israel said, "Why did you treat me so badly as to tell the man that you had another brother?" [7]They replied, "The man questioned us carefully about ourselves and our kindred, saying, 'Is your father still alive? Do you have another brother?' What we told him was in answer to these questions. Could we in any way know that he would say, 'Bring your brother down'?" [8]†And Judah said to Israel his father, "Send the boy with me, and we will arise and go, that we may live and not die, both we and you and also our little ones. [9]†I will be a pledge of his safety. From my hand you shall require him. If I do not bring him back to you and set him before you, then let me bear the blame forever. [10]† If we had not delayed, we would now have returned twice."

[11]†Then their father Israel said to them, "If it must be so, then do this: take some of the choice fruits of the land in your bags, and carry a present down to the man, a little balm and a little honey, gum, myrrh, pistachio nuts, and almonds. [12]†Take double the money with you. Carry back with you the money that was returned in the mouth of your sacks. Perhaps it was an oversight. [13]Take also your brother, and arise, go again to the man. [14]†May God Almighty[1] grant you mercy before the man, and may he send back your other brother and Benjamin. And as for me, if I am bereaved of my children, I am bereaved."

[15]†So the men took this present, and they took double the money with them, and Benjamin. They arose and went down to Egypt and stood before Joseph.

16 † When Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the steward of his house, “Bring the men into the house, and slaughter an animal and make ready, for the men are to dine with me at noon.” 17 The man did as Joseph told him and brought the men to Joseph’s house. 18 And the men were afraid because they were brought to Joseph’s house, and they said, “It is because of the money, which was replaced in our sacks the first time, that we are brought in, so that he may assault us and fall upon us to make us servants and seize our donkeys.” 19 So they went up to the steward of Joseph’s house and spoke with him at the door of the house, 20 and said, “Oh, my lord, we came down the first time to buy food. 21 † And when we came to the lodging place we opened our sacks, and there was each man’s money in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight. So we have brought it again with us, 22 and we have brought other money down with us to buy food. We do not know who put our money in our sacks.” 23 † He replied, “Peace to you, do not be afraid. Your God and the God of your father has put treasure in your sacks for you. I received your money.” Then he brought Simeon out to them. 24 And when the man had brought the men into Joseph’s house and given them water, and they had washed their feet, and when he had given their donkeys fodder, 25 † they prepared the present for Joseph’s coming at noon, for they heard that they should eat bread there.

26 † When Joseph came home, they brought into the house to him the present that they had with them and bowed down to him to the ground.
27 And he inquired about their welfare and said, “Is your father well, the old man of whom you spoke? Is he still alive?” 28 They said, “Your servant our father is well; he is still alive.” And they bowed their heads and prostrated themselves. 29 † And he lifted up his eyes and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother’s son, and said, “Is this your youngest brother, of whom you spoke to me? God be gracious to you, my son!” 30 Then Joseph hurried out, for his compassion grew warm for his brother, and he sought a place to weep. And he entered his chamber and wept there. 31 Then he washed his face and came out. And controlling himself he said, “Serve the food.” 32 † They served him by himself, and them by themselves, and the Egyptians who ate with him by themselves, because the Egyptians could not eat with the Hebrews, for that is an abomination to the Egyptians. 33 † And they sat before him, the firstborn according to his birthright and the youngest according to his youth. And the men looked at one another in amazement. [34]† Portions were taken to them from Joseph's table, but Benjamin's portion was five times as much as any of theirs. And they drank and were merry[2] with him.

Joseph Tests His Brothers

44 [1]†Then he commanded the steward of his house, “Fill the men’s sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put each man’s money in the mouth of his sack, [2]†and put my cup, the silver cup, in the mouth of the sack of the youngest, with his money for the grain.” And he did as Joseph told him.

[3]As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away with their donkeys. [4]†They had gone only a short distance from the city. Now Joseph said to his steward, “Up, follow after the men, and when you overtake them, say to them, ‘Why have you repaid evil for good?[1] [5]†Is it not from this that my lord drinks, and by this that he practices divination? You have done evil in doing this.’”

[6]When he overtook them, he spoke to them these words. [7]†They said to him, “Why does my lord speak such words as these? Far be it from your servants to do such a thing! [8]†Behold, the money that we found in the mouths of our sacks we brought back to you from the land of Canaan. How then could we steal silver or gold from your lord’s house? [9] Whichever of your servants is found with it shall die, and we also will be my lord’s servants.” [10]†He said, “Let it be as you say: he who is found with it shall be my servant, and the rest of you shall be innocent.” [11]Then each man quickly lowered his sack to the ground, and each man opened his sack. [12]And he searched, beginning with the eldest and ending with the youngest. And the cup was found in Benjamin’s sack. [13]†Then they tore their clothes, and every man loaded his donkey, and they returned to the city.

[14]†When Judah and his brothers came to Joseph’s house, he was still there. They fell before him to the ground. [15]†Joseph said to them, “What deed is this that you have done? Do you not know that a man like me can indeed practice divination?” [16]†And Judah said, “What shall we say to my lord? What shall we speak? Or how can we clear ourselves? God has found out the guilt of your servants; behold, we are my lord’s servants, both we and he also in whose hand the cup has been found.” [17]But he said, “Far be it from me that I should do so! Only the man in whose hand the cup was found shall be my servant. But as for you, go up in peace to your father."

18 †Then Judah went up to him and said, "Oh, my lord, please let your servant speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not your anger burn against your servant, for you are like Pharaoh himself. 19My lord asked his servants, saying, 'Have you a father, or a brother?' 20†And we said to my lord, 'We have a father, an old man, and a young brother, the child of his old age. His brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother's children, and his father loves him.' 21Then you said to your servants, 'Bring him down to me, that I may set my eyes on him.' 22We said to my lord, 'The boy cannot leave his father, for if he should leave his father, his father would die.' 23Then you said to your servants, 'Unless your youngest brother comes down with you, you shall not see my face again.'

24"When we went back to your servant my father, we told him the words of my lord. 25And when our father said, 'Go again, buy us a little food,' 26we said, 'We cannot go down. If our youngest brother goes with us, then we will go down. For we cannot see the man's face unless our youngest brother is with us.' 27Then your servant my father said to us, 'You know that my wife bore me two sons. 28†One left me, and I said, Surely he has been torn to pieces, and I have never seen him since. 29†If you take this one also from me, and harm happens to him, you will bring down my gray hairs in evil to Sheol.'

30†"Now therefore, as soon as I come to your servant my father, and the boy is not with us, then, as his life is bound up in the boy's life, 31as soon as he sees that the boy is not with us, he will die, and your servants will bring down the gray hairs of your servant our father with sorrow to Sheol. 32For your servant became a pledge of safety for the boy to my father, saying, 'If I do not bring him back to you, then I shall bear the blame before my father all my life.' 33†Now therefore, please let your servant remain instead of the boy as a servant to my lord, and let the boy go back with his brothers. 34†For how can I go back to my father if the boy is not with me? I fear to see the evil that would find my father."

Joseph Provides for His Brothers and Family

45 [1]†Then Joseph could not control himself before all those who stood by him. He cried, “Make everyone go out from me.” So no one stayed with him when Joseph made himself known to his brothers. [2]And he wept aloud, so that the Egyptians heard it, and the household of Pharaoh heard it. [3]†And Joseph said to his brothers, “I am Joseph! Is my father still alive?” But his brothers could not answer him, for they were dismayed at his presence.

[4]So Joseph said to his brothers, “Come near to me, please.” And they came near. And he said, “I am your brother, Joseph, whom you sold into Egypt. [5]†And now do not be distressed or angry with yourselves because you sold me here, for God sent me before you to preserve life. [6]For the famine has been in the land these two years, and there are yet five years in which there will be neither plowing nor harvest. [7]And God sent me before you to preserve for you a remnant on earth, and to keep alive for you many survivors. [8]†So it was not you who sent me here, but God. He has made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house and ruler over all the land of Egypt. [9]†Hurry and go up to my father and say to him, ‘Thus says your son Joseph, God has made me lord of all Egypt. Come down to me; do not tarry. [10]† You shall dwell in the land of Goshen, and you shall be near me, you and your children and your children’s children, and your flocks, your herds, and all that you have. [11] There I will provide for you, for there are yet five years of famine to come, so that you and your household, and all that you have, do not come to poverty.’ [12]And now your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin see, that it is my mouth that speaks to you. [13]You must tell my father of all my honor in Egypt, and of all that you have seen. Hurry and bring my father down here.” [14]†Then he fell upon his brother Benjamin’s neck and wept, and Benjamin wept upon his neck. [15]†And he kissed all his brothers and wept upon them. After that his brothers talked with him.

[16]When the report was heard in Pharaoh’s house, “Joseph’s brothers have come,” it pleased Pharaoh and his servants. [17]And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Say to your brothers, ‘Do this: load your beasts and go back to the land of Canaan, [18]†and take your father and your households, and come to me, and I will give you the best of the land of Egypt, and you shall eat the fat of the land.' [19]†And you, Joseph, are commanded to say, 'Do this: take wagons from the land of Egypt for your little ones and for your wives, and bring your father, and come. [20]†Have no concern for[1] your goods, for the best of all the land of Egypt is yours.'"

[21]The sons of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the command of Pharaoh, and gave them provisions for the journey. [22]†To each and all of them he gave a change of clothes, but to Benjamin he gave three hundred shekels[2] of silver and five changes of clothes. [23]To his father he sent as follows: ten donkeys loaded with the good things of Egypt, and ten female donkeys loaded with grain, bread, and provision for his father on the journey. [24]†Then he sent his brothers away, and as they departed, he said to them, "Do not quarrel on the way."

[25]So they went up out of Egypt and came to the land of Canaan to their father Jacob. [26]†And they told him, "Joseph is still alive, and he is ruler over all the land of Egypt." And his heart became numb, for he did not believe them. [27]†But when they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said to them, and when he saw the wagons that Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of their father Jacob revived. [28]†And Israel said, "It is enough; Joseph my son is still alive. I will go and see him before I die."

Joseph Brings His Family to Egypt

46 [1]†So Israel took his journey with all that he had and came to Beersheba, and offered sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac. [2]†And God spoke to Israel in visions of the night and said, "Jacob, Jacob." And he said, "Here am I." [3]†Then he said, "I am God, the God of your father. Do not be afraid to go down to Egypt, for there I will make you into a great nation. [4]†I myself will go down with you to Egypt, and I will also bring you up again, and Joseph's hand shall close your eyes."

[5]Then Jacob set out from Beersheba. The sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, their little ones, and their wives, in the wagons that Pharaoh had sent to carry him. [6]They also took their livestock and their goods, which they had gained in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, Jacob and all his offspring with him, [7]his sons, and his sons' sons with him, his daughters, and his sons' daughters. All his offspring he brought with him into Egypt.

[8]† Now these are the names of the descendants of Israel, who came into Egypt, Jacob and his sons. Reuben, Jacob's firstborn, [9]and the sons of Reuben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. [10]The sons of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul, the son of a Canaanite woman. [11]The sons of Levi: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. [12]The sons of Judah: Er, Onan, Shelah, Perez, and Zerah (but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan); and the sons of Perez were Hezron and Hamul. [13] The sons of Issachar: Tola, Puvah, Yob, and Shimron. [14]The sons of Zebulun: Sered, Elon, and Jahleel. [15]These are the sons of Leah, whom she bore to Jacob in Paddan-aram, together with his daughter Dinah; altogether his sons and his daughters numbered thirty-three.

[16]The sons of Gad: Ziphion, Haggi, Shuni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi, and Areli. [17] The sons of Asher: Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, Beriah, with Serah their sister. And the sons of Beriah: Heber and Malchiel. [18]† These are the sons of Zilpah, whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter; and these she bore to Jacob—sixteen persons.

[19]†The sons of Rachel, Jacob's wife: Joseph and Benjamin. [20]†And to Joseph in the land of Egypt were born Manasseh and Ephraim, whom Asenath, the daughter of Potiphera the priest of On, bore to him. [21]And the sons of Benjamin: Bela, Becher, Ashbel, Gera, Naaman, Ehi, Rosh, Muppim, Huppim, and Ard. [22]These are the sons of Rachel, who were born to Jacob—fourteen persons in all.

[23]The sons of Dan: Hushim. [24] The sons of Naphtali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Shillem. [25] These are the sons of Bilhah, whom Laban gave to Rachel his daughter, and these she bore to Jacob—seven persons in all.

[26]All the persons belonging to Jacob who came into Egypt, who were his own descendants, not including Jacob's sons' wives, were sixty-six persons in all. [27]†And the sons of Joseph, who were born to him in Egypt, were two. All the persons of the house of Jacob who came into Egypt were seventy.

Jacob and Joseph Reunited

[28] †He had sent Judah ahead of him to Joseph to show the way before him in Goshen, and they came into the land of Goshen. [29] †Then Joseph prepared his chariot and went up to meet Israel his father in Goshen. He presented himself to him and fell on his neck and wept on his neck a good while.
[30] †Israel said to Joseph, “Now let me die, since I have seen your face and know that you are still alive.” [31] Joseph said to his brothers and to his father’s household, “I will go up and tell Pharaoh and will say to him, ‘My brothers and my father’s household, who were in the land of Canaan, have come to me. [32] And the men are shepherds, for they have been keepers of livestock, and they have brought their flocks and their herds and all that they have.’ [33] When Pharaoh calls you and says, ‘What is your occupation?’ [34] †you shall say, ‘Your servants have been keepers of livestock from our youth even until now, both we and our fathers,’ in order that you may dwell in the land of Goshen, for every shepherd is an abomination to the Egyptians.”

Jacob's Family Settles in Goshen

47 [1]So Joseph went in and told Pharaoh, "My father and my brothers, with their flocks and herds and all that they possess, have come from the land of Canaan. They are now in the land of Goshen." [2]And from among his brothers he took five men and presented them to Pharaoh. [3]Pharaoh said to his brothers, "What is your occupation?" And they said to Pharaoh, "Your servants are shepherds, as our fathers were." [4]†They said to Pharaoh, "We have come to sojourn in the land, for there is no pasture for your servants' flocks, for the famine is severe in the land of Canaan. And now, please let your servants dwell in the land of Goshen." [5]Then Pharaoh said to Joseph,
"Your father and your brothers have come to you. [6]†The land of Egypt is before you. Settle your father and your brothers in the best of the land. Let them settle in the land of Goshen, and if you know any able men among them, put them in charge of my livestock."

[7]†Then Joseph brought in Jacob his father and stood him before Pharaoh, and Jacob blessed Pharaoh. [8]And Pharaoh said to Jacob, "How many are the days of the years of your life?" [9]†And Jacob said to Pharaoh, "The days of the years of my sojourning are 130 years. Few and evil have been the days of the years of my life, and they have not attained to the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their sojourning." [10]And Jacob blessed Pharaoh and went out from the presence of Pharaoh. [11]†Then Joseph settled his father and his brothers and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded.
[12]And Joseph provided his father, his brothers, and all his father's household with food, according to the number of their dependents.

Joseph and the Famine

13 †Now there was no food in all the land, for the famine was very severe, so that the land of Egypt and the land of Canaan languished by reason of the famine. 14† And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, in exchange for the grain that they bought. And Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house. 15And when the money was all spent in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came to Joseph and said, "Give us food. Why should we die before your eyes? For our money is gone." 16†And Joseph answered, "Give your livestock, and I will give you food in exchange for your livestock, if your money is gone." 17So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them food in exchange for the horses, the flocks, the herds, and the donkeys. He supplied them with food in exchange for all their livestock that year. 18†And when that year was ended, they came to him the following year and said to him, "We will not hide from my lord that our money is all spent. The herds of livestock are my lord's. There is nothing left in the sight of my lord but our bodies and our land. 19†Why should we die before your eyes, both we and our land? Buy us and our land for food, and we with our land will be servants to Pharaoh. And give us seed that we may live and not die, and that the land may not be desolate."

20So Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh, for all the Egyptians sold their fields, because the famine was severe on them. The land became Pharaoh's. 21†As for the people, he made servants of them[1] from one end of Egypt to the other. 22† Only the land of the priests he did not buy, for the priests had a fixed allowance from Pharaoh and lived on the allowance that Pharaoh gave them; therefore they did not sell their land.

23Then Joseph said to the people, "Behold, I have this day bought you and your land for Pharaoh. Now here is seed for you, and you shall sow the land. 24†And at the harvests you shall give a fifth to Pharaoh, and four fifths shall be your own, as seed for the field and as food for yourselves and your households, and as food for your little ones." 25†And they said, "You have saved our lives; may it please my lord, we will be servants to Pharaoh." 26†So Joseph made it a statute concerning the land of Egypt, and it stands to this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth; the land of the priests alone did not become Pharaoh's.

27 Thus Israel settled in the land of Egypt, in the land of Goshen. And they gained possessions in it, and were fruitful and multiplied greatly. 28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years. So the days of Jacob, the years of his life, were 147 years.

29 † And when the time drew near that Israel must die, he called his son Joseph and said to him, "If now I have found favor in your sight, put your hand under my thigh and promise to deal kindly and truly with me. Do not bury me in Egypt, 30 † but let me lie with my fathers. Carry me out of Egypt and bury me in their burying place." He answered, "I will do as you have said." 31 † And he said, "Swear to me"; and he swore to him. Then Israel bowed himself upon the head of his bed.[1]

Jacob Blesses Ephraim and Manasseh

48 [1]After this, Joseph was told, “Behold, your father is ill.” So he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim. [2]And it was told to Jacob, “Your son Joseph has come to you.” Then Israel summoned his strength and sat up in bed. [3]† And Jacob said to Joseph, “God Almighty[2] appeared to me at Luz in the land of Canaan and blessed me, [4]and said to me, ‘Behold, I will make you fruitful and multiply you, and I will make of you a company of peoples and will give this land to your offspring after you for an everlasting possession.’ [5]† And now your two sons, who were born to you in the land of Egypt before I came to you in Egypt, are mine; Ephraim and Manasseh shall be mine, as Reuben and Simeon are. [6]† And the children that you fathered after them shall be yours. They shall be called by the name of their brothers in their inheritance. [7]As for me, when I came from Paddan, to my sorrow Rachel died in the land of Canaan on the way, when there was still some distance[3] to go to Ephrath, and I buried her there on the way to Ephrath (that is, Bethlehem).”

[8]When Israel saw Joseph’s sons, he said, “Who are these?” [9]Joseph said to his father, “They are my sons, whom God has given me here.” And he said, “Bring them to me, please, that I may bless them.” [10]Now the eyes of Israel were dim with age, so that he could not see. So Joseph brought them near him, and he kissed them and embraced them. [11]And Israel said to Joseph, “I never expected to see your face; and behold, God has let me see your offspring also.” [12]† Then Joseph removed them from his knees, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth. [13]† And Joseph took them both, Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel’s left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel’s right hand, and brought them near him. [14]† And Israel stretched out his right hand and laid it on the head of Ephraim, who was the younger, and his left hand on the head of Manasseh, crossing his hands (for Manasseh was the firstborn). [15]† And he blessed Joseph and said,

“The God before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac walked,
the God who has been my shepherd all my life long to this day, 16 † the angel who has redeemed me from all evil, bless the boys;

and in them let my name be carried on, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac;
and let them grow into a multitude[4] in the midst of the earth.”

17 When Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand on the head of Ephraim, it displeased him, and he took his father’s hand to move it from Ephraim’s head to Manasseh’s head. 18 And Joseph said to his father, “Not this way, my father; since this one is the firstborn, put your right hand on his head.” 19 But his father refused and said, “I know, my son, I know. He also shall become a people, and he also shall be great. Nevertheless, his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his offspring shall become a multitude[5] of nations.” 20 So he blessed them that day, saying,

“By you Israel will pronounce blessings, saying,
‘God make you as Ephraim and as Manasseh.’”

Thus he put Ephraim before Manasseh. 21 † Then Israel said to Joseph, “Behold, I am about to die, but God will be with you and will bring you again to the land of your fathers. 22 † Moreover, I have given to you rather than to your brothers one mountain slope[1] that I took from the hand of the Amorites with my sword and with my bow.”

Jacob Blesses His Sons

49 [1] ‡ ‡ † Then Jacob called his sons and said, Gather yourselves together, that I may tell you what shall happen to you in days to come.

[2] “Assemble and listen, O sons of Jacob, listen to Israel your father.

[3] ‡ ‡ “Reuben, you are my firstborn,
my might, and the firstfruits of my strength,
preeminent in dignity and preeminent in power.
[4] † Unstable as water, you shall not have preeminence, because you went up to your father’s bed;
then you defiled it—he went up to my couch!
[5] † “Simeon and Levi are brothers;
weapons of violence are their swords.
[6] † Let my soul come not into their council;
O my glory, be not joined to their company.
For in their anger they killed men,
and in their willfulness they hamstrung oxen.
[7] † Cursed be their anger, for it is fierce,
and their wrath, for it is cruel!
I will divide them in Jacob and scatter them in Israel.

[8] ‡ ‡ “Judah, your brothers shall praise you;
your hand shall be on the neck of your enemies;
your father’s sons shall bow down before you.
[9] † Judah is a lion’s cub;

from the prey, my son, you have gone up.
He stooped down; he crouched as a lion and as a lioness; who dares rouse him?
10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff from between his feet,
until tribute comes to him;[1]
and to him shall be the obedience of the peoples.
11 Binding his foal to the vine
and his donkey's colt to the choice vine, he has washed his garments in wine
and his vesture in the blood of grapes.
12 His eyes are darker than wine,
and his teeth whiter than milk.

13 "Zebulun shall dwell at the shore of the sea;
he shall become a haven for ships,
and his border shall be at Sidon.

14 "Issachar is a strong donkey, crouching between the sheepfolds.[2] 15 He saw that a resting place was good,
and that the land was pleasant,
so he bowed his shoulder to bear,
and became a servant at forced labor.

16 "Dan shall judge his people
as one of the tribes of Israel.
17 Dan shall be a serpent in the way,
a viper by the path,
that bites the horse's heels
so that his rider falls backward.
18 I wait for your salvation, O Lord.

19† “Raiders shall raid Gad,[3]
but he shall raid at their heels.

20† “Asher’s food shall be rich,
and he shall yield royal delicacies.

21† “Naphtali is a doe let loose that bears beautiful fawns.[4]

22† “Joseph is a fruitful bough,
a fruitful bough by a spring;
his branches run over the wall.[5] 23† The archers bitterly attacked him, shot at him, and harassed him severely, 24† yet his bow remained unmoved;
his arms[6] were made agile
by the hands of the Mighty One of Jacob (from there is the Shepherd,[7] the Stone of Israel),
25 by the God of your father who will help you, by the Almighty[1] who will bless you with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that crouches beneath,
blessings of the breasts and of the womb.
26† The blessings of your father are mighty beyond the blessings of my parents,
up to the bounties of the everlasting hills.[2]
May they be on the head of Joseph, and on the brow of him who was set apart from his brothers.

27 † “Benjamin is a ravenous wolf, in the morning devouring the prey and at evening dividing the spoil.”

Jacob's Death and Burial

28 All these are the twelve tribes of Israel. This is what their father said to them as he blessed them, blessing each with the blessing suitable to him.
29 Then he commanded them and said to them, "I am to be gathered to my people; bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite, 30 in the cave that is in the field at Machpelah, to the east of Mamre, in the land of Canaan, which Abraham bought with the field from Ephron the Hittite to possess as a burying place. 31 There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife. There they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife, and there I buried Leah— 32 the field and the cave that is in it were bought from the Hittites." 33 When Jacob finished commanding his sons, he drew up his feet into the bed and breathed his last and was gathered to his people.

50 1 Then Joseph fell on his father's face and wept over him and kissed him. 2 And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father. So the physicians embalmed Israel. 3 Forty days were required for it, for that is how many are required for embalming. And the Egyptians wept for him seventy days.

4 And when the days of weeping for him were past, Joseph spoke to the household of Pharaoh, saying, "If now I have found favor in your eyes, please speak in the ears of Pharaoh, saying, 5 My father made me swear, saying, 'I am about to die: in my tomb that I hewed out for myself in the land of Canaan, there shall you bury me.' Now therefore, let me please go up and bury my father. Then I will return." 6 And Pharaoh answered, "Go up, and bury your father, as he made you swear." 7 So Joseph went up to bury his father. With him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his household, and all the elders of the land of Egypt, 8 as well as all the household of Joseph, his brothers, and his father's household. Only their children, their flocks, and their herds were left in the land of Goshen. 9 And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen. It was a very great company. 10 When they came to the threshing floor of Atad, which is beyond the Jordan, they lamented there with a very great and grievous lamentation, and he made a mourning for his father seven days. 11 When the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning on the threshing floor of Atad, they said, “This is a grievous mourning by the Egyptians.” Therefore the place was named Abel-mizraim;[3] it is beyond the Jordan. 12Thus his sons did for him as he had commanded them, 13for his sons carried him to the land of Canaan and buried him in the cave of the field at Machpelah, to the east of Mamre, which Abraham bought with the field from Ephron the Hittite to possess as a burying place. 14After he had buried his father, Joseph returned to Egypt with his brothers and all who had gone up with him to bury his father.

God’s Good Purposes

15 ‡† When Joseph’s brothers saw that their father was dead, they said, “It may be that Joseph will hate us and pay us back for all the evil that we did to him.” 16 † So they sent a message to Joseph, saying, “Your father gave this command before he died, 17 ‘Say to Joseph, Please forgive the transgression of your brothers and their sin, because they did evil to you.’ And now, please forgive the transgression of the servants of the God of your father.”
Joseph wept when they spoke to him. 18 † His brothers also came and fell down before him and said, “Behold, we are your servants.” 19 † But Joseph said to them, “Do not fear, for am I in the place of God? 20 † As for you, you meant evil against me, but God meant it for good, to bring it about that many people[1] should be kept alive, as they are today. 21 † So do not fear; I will provide for you and your little ones.” Thus he comforted them and spoke kindly to them.

The Death of Joseph

22 †So Joseph remained in Egypt, he and his father's house. Joseph lived 110 years. 23 †And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation.
The children also of Machir the son of Manasseh were counted as Joseph's own.[2] 24 †And Joseph said to his brothers, "I am about to die, but God will visit you and bring you up out of this land to the land that he swore to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob." 25 †Then Joseph made the sons of Israel swear, saying, "God will surely visit you, and you shall carry up my bones from here." 26 †So Joseph died, being 110 years old. They embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

Introduction to Genesis

Reading Genesis

Bright orange, purple, and red fruit droop from branches like heavy drops of morning dew. The trees bow with the weight, welcoming the glorious face of the sun. Light glimmers through the branches stirring in the breeze, which rouses two figures: Adam and Eve. For our first parents, eating is as easy as reaching up. They simply take and eat the fruit given by the Lord, who sheds His love upon them and pours out His grace each day. The trees of Eden nourish Adam and Eve like sacraments of creation, mediating God's blessing, a never-ending feast for the first family.

However, the feast did end. After the fall into sin, the ground dried up. Thorns raked the brows and pierced the hands and feet of our first parents (3:17–19). Cherubim and a flaming sword blocked the way to the garden, lest they eat of the "tree of life" and live in this way forever (3:22–24). The family suffered lasting heartbreak (4:1–16) as families have ever since. As you read Genesis—the book of generations—consider how it focuses on family life, the struggle for daily bread, and the hope of salvation. These are the very things that occupy our hearts and lives today.

Luther on Genesis

In his first book [Genesis] Moses teaches how all creatures were created, and (as the chief cause for his writing) whence sin and death came, namely by Adam's fall, through the devil's wickedness. But immediately thereafter, before the coming of the law of Moses, he teaches whence help is to come for the driving out of sin and death, namely, not by the law or men's own works (since there was no law as yet), but by "the seed of the woman," Christ, promised to Adam and Abraham, in order that throughout the Scriptures from the beginning faith may be praised above all works and laws and merits. Genesis, therefore, is made up almost entirely of illustrations of faith and unbelief, and of the fruits that faith and unbelief bear. It is an exceedingly evangelical book. (AE 35:237)

We assert that Moses spoke in the literal sense, not allegorically or figuratively [about the creation], i.e., that the world, with all its creatures, was created within six days, as the words read. If we do not comprehend the reason for this, let us remain pupils and leave the job of teacher to the Holy Spirit. (AE 1:5)

The line of descent was traced from Adam, through many patriarchs, down to Noah, and from there down to Abraham. During this time the church suffered great damage, for ungodliness had increased to such an extent that even the descendants of the saints were carried away into error. Therefore it was necessary for Moses to point out how in this great peril God accomplished the rebirth of the church, lest it collapse entirely and true religion be utterly blotted out.

This account deserves our attention as an extraordinary example of mercy. It should encourage and persuade us that God will preserve the church also in our own time, when everything is threatening religion with destruction. Despite the great importance of their content the preceding accounts are very brief [chs 1–11]. In these which follow, however, the Holy Spirit will speak at greater length and will discuss everything in greater detail. Accordingly, up to this point the church looks like a brook that is flowing along peacefully; but now it receives accessions and rushes along with the roar of a real river until, through the marvelous blessing of God, the holy nation expands into a vast ocean and fills the world with its name. (AE 2:245)

For more of Luther's insights on this Book, see Lectures on Genesis (AE 1–8).

Challenges for Readers

Dating in Chs 1–11. The events described before the time of Abraham (2166 BC) cannot be dated. Well-intentioned efforts to date the creation of the world, the flood, and other historical events by adding up the years recorded in chs 5 and 11 have failed to appreciate the character of Israelite genealogies, which do not necessarily provide complete information from generation to generation. (See "Genealogies and Ages," below.) Also, attempts to discover when the world came into existence by using carbon dating, radioactive depletion dating, and geological theories are likewise unsatisfactory. Such methods assume that natural processes have not changed over time (uniformitarianism), a theory that cannot be falsified or proven. This leads to conflict with basic scientific method. Moses describes what may be called a "young" earth, but little can be said beyond this.

Creation versus Evolution. See pp 9–10.

Source Criticism. See pp 3–5.

Form Criticism. Scholars have noticed that storytelling and forms of literature repeat themselves (e.g., basic plots, poetic styles, literary types). Similar events may be described in similar ways (e.g., Gn 12:10–20; 20:1–18; 26:6–11). In the early twentieth century, attempts were made to determine the supposed history behind the accounts in Genesis and other parts of the Bible by studying the forms of various passages. Though careful comparison of passages can reveal helpful points about an author's consistency or distinctive style, such study has proved unhelpful for learning the sources or ages of biblical passages. The problem is that history tends to repeat itself just as storytellers tend to repeat one another.

Salvation History. Some modern interpreters regard Genesis as an apology, or defense, for the existence and territorial rights of ancient Israel. They read Genesis as justifying Israel's efforts to eliminate, expel, or dominate the Canaanites, Edomites, Moabites, and Ammonites who likewise struggled in the region. Though the struggles between the patriarchs and their neighbors do feature prominently in Genesis, readers must thoughtfully consider why this is so. The struggles in Genesis—as demonstrated by the earliest chapters—are never simply tribal. Genesis describes the appearance of good and evil and the struggle that develops as good and evil manifest themselves in people's lives. Special emphasis is placed throughout on God's promise of creating, delivering, and sustaining a good people through faith in His redemption. In this way, Genesis constantly points to the appearing of Christ, the Savior, who will bless all nations.

Genealogies and Ages. Some ages in chs 5 and 11 appear to have symbolic significance (e.g., Enoch's 365 years [5:23] are the number of days in a year). Some interpreters have suggested that the numbers of years should be understood symbolically. However, this is unlikely because most of the numbers are specific and lack any obvious and consistent pattern for symbolism. Also, while the life span of these patriarchs exceeds that of humans today, it is far shorter than some of the very large ages given in other ancient Near Eastern genealogical lists (see note, 5:27). For these reasons, it seems best to understand these numbers in the normal literal sense. Another question is whether the genealogies given in chs 5 and 11 make it possible to calculate the date (or at least the year) of creation. The most famous effort to use the text this way is the Lightfoot/Ussher chronology, which dates the creation of the world to 4004 BC. The fact that each of the genealogical lists in these chapters contains exactly 10 generations suggests that these lists have been arranged for effect rather than to document a continuous chronology. This arrangement implies that there are gaps between some of the generations in the list, which would make the date of creation earlier than 4004 BC. See notes, Ru 4:18–22; 1Ch 1:4; 2:15–3:24. Some scholars suggest that the figures describe clans and not individuals. But there is no clear means of deciding or demonstrating such a suggestion.

Genesis and Theories of Evolution

Tension exists between what Moses recorded in Genesis and some modern theories about the origins of life. Many physicists, mathematicians, and chemists remain creationists of one type or another. However, since the nineteenth century, some biologists and anthropologists have rejected belief in a powerful or all-powerful being who created all things. This rejection has happened because of two influential theories in those fields of study: methodological naturalism and the theory of evolution.

Modern Theories

Methodological naturalism assumes that the modern scientific method, which considers only natural causes and effects, can capably describe the origin of life and events in the world. This theory leaves no place for describing supernatural events such as miracles or acts of God.

Theories of evolution assume that life developed over long periods of time through natural selection. In other words, living things with favorable traits tended to survive and to develop into newer, more advanced, and better-adapted species of life.

Evolution and other attempts to explain life apart from faith have led to horrible, murderous, and even genocidal practices. Modern theories of eugenics and racial superiority—based on evolutionary ideas—contributed in shocking ways to the debasement and destruction of human life in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries (e.g., the genocidal beliefs of National Socialists; the decimation of Tasmanian Aborigines, who were regarded as an inferior species of humans, and whose skeletons were collected by naturalists in their search for the "missing link").

Moses' Teaching

God's acts of creation, as described by Moses, directly conflict with the above theories and the worldviews they assume. Please note the following:

God exists. Moses begins with the belief that there is a God and that He made all things. Moses does not offer arguments for God's existence. Instead, he describes personal encounters with God, who revealed His Word to Moses (e.g., Ex 3).

Kinds. Though Moses observed that selective breeding changes animals (see notes, Gn 30:40–41), he also observed that creatures breed only with members of their own kind (cf 2:18–24). Each kind of life reproduces itself (1:11–12) without developing into other kinds of life. "Kind" as Moses used it (Hbr min) is far broader than the modern biological term "species," since the modern term often describes unique breeds of creatures. (For Moses, the "kinds" that entered the ark in Gn 6 are breeding pairs from which all present varieties have descended. See notes, 6:19–20.)

Sin corrupted creation. Unlike Moses, evolutionists consider death as natural and the means by which living things advance—unfit varieties die out, and fit varieties successfully breed and survive. In other words, evolutionists often view life as "progressing." Moses' descriptions take changes and varieties of life into account but do not show life as progressing. Moses describes death as a consequence and curse brought by sin. He sees life growing worse and more difficult as sin advances in corrupting life, leading human beings and animals to attack and destroy one another (see notes, 2:17; 4:8).

Notes in TLSB

The notes for Genesis are written from the perspective that Moses accurately described the events of creation based on God's revelations to him. The scientific method of "observe, analyze, and report" is a helpful but limited tool for understanding the world. Scientists should certainly exercise sound reason in investigating God's world. But spiritual matters and the events of creation are beyond the scope of modern scientific observation and investigation (whether by creationists or evolutionists).

The notes in TLSB make no attempt to reconcile Moses' teaching with modern theories, which are constantly changing and can never be proven satisfactorily. Instead, the notes emphasize that faith in God, which He creates and sustains in us by His Word, remains the most relevant way to approach the issues of life and its origin.

Blessings for Readers

Genesis lays the foundation for all the events and doctrines of Holy Scripture. Studying its characters and events will prepare you for a much broader understanding of God's ways with humankind. Throughout Genesis, Moses emphasizes that these records apply not simply to Israel but to all nations and families of the earth. See in the patriarchs' weaknesses, struggles, and joys a mirror of families today. The Lord, through promise and faith, makes all the difference for the patriarchs, and He will likewise bless and lead you.

Feasting and Fellowship with God in Eden

Think of the place of food in human life and culture. In the most basic way, food sustains life. But it also provides much more. When people want to get to know one another, they go out to eat. They cut business deals while they cut their entrees. They mark moments of joy, like birthdays and weddings, by eating. They console one another at funeral dinners. Human life depends on and revolves around eating.

God's first recorded words to Adam in Gn 2 were about food, what he should eat and what he should not eat (vv 16–17). No doubt curiosity and craving drove Adam to explore his new home, to eat his way through Eden. God prepared a banquet for Adam and gave him the freedom to eat "of every tree of the garden."

Forbidden Fruit

However, God also set a boundary for Adam. He reserved one tree from which Adam could not eat: “the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.” This tree has perplexed interpreters through the centuries. Some have wondered whether its fruit was poison. Others have wondered why a loving God would create an obvious temptation. Still others have asked why eating fruit should cause so great a rift between Adam and Eve and their Maker.

A closer look at the name of the tree may help us answer these questions. Another way to translate the name of the tree is “the tree by which good and evil are known.” In other words, the tree stood as a testimony to show what was good (eating from the trees God provided) and what was evil (eating from the forbidden tree). The tree marked a boundary between obedience and rebellion, between life as the Creator intended it and existence without His blessing.

There was much more at stake than a mouthful of food. God created Adam and Eve for fellowship with Him. He gave them the garden and its fruit to sustain them. Eating the forbidden fruit spurned God’s generosity and poisoned every relationship in the garden. A curse fell upon the food supply, and God warned Adam and Eve that the ground would one day devour them (Gn 3:19).

Hunger and Thirst

Today, the pursuit of daily bread still pits people and nations against one another. We live under Charles Darwin's vicious doctrine: survival of the fittest. The feasts that bring our families together also whet the appetites of those who hunger for what we have. In some ways, technology has distanced us from the thorns and dust of the curse in Gn 3. The modern farm makes food readily available in ways that would make the ancients salivate. But even the most wholesome food cannot rescue us from envy or from the earth's hungry jaws. Sin still corrupts every man-made paradise.

As Jesus broke bread with His disciples, He urged them to hunger and thirst for something more (Mt 5:6). As you study the Bible, anticipate this blessing from the Lord. Your gracious Savior—the bread of life—will satisfy your every need. By His holy, precious blood and His innocent suffering and death, Jesus has made the cross into a tree of life for you. Its fruit is righteousness. In the Sacrament of the Altar, you enjoy a special feast as your Lord and Savior provides you with His own true body and blood (Mt 26:26; Ps 34:8) under the bread and wine, for the forgiveness of your sins and the strengthening of your faith. All the feasting recorded in the Scriptures brings to mind the ultimate feast in heaven, where we will enjoy eternal fellowship with God—an experience our Lord Jesus describes frequently as a great banquet (cf Lk 14:7–24).

The History of Humanity

Genesis 1, in its comprehensive presentation of the origin of the entire universe, includes the creation of human beings. This sets the stage for the history of humanity, which begins in Gn 2:4. The remaining verses of chapter 2 elaborate on the creation of humanity as male and female (1:27) and delineate the relationship of the created earth and animals to human beings, who have "dominion … over all the earth" (1:26).

But above all, humanity's relationship to the Creator is clearly set forth in chapter 2. Adam's communion with the life-giving God will continue unless he oversteps the bounds of his creatureliness by disobedience to God and aspires to be equal with God.

Chapter 3 tells the sad story of the first couple's rebellion against their Creator. It is not an abstract treatise on the origin of evil per se. Rather, it tells us that Adam and Eve did evil and so became subject to death. The eating of the forbidden fruit was the declaration and the signal of their rebellion against the limitations of their creatureliness. It was their attempt to be like the omniscient God, "knowing good and evil." This baleful act the Bible later calls "sin." It disrupted Adam's and Eve's blissful relationship with God, with each other, with the animals, and with nature itself. This total corruption and estrangement, an uncontrollable disposition to defy God and His will, we call original sin, because every offspring of Adam is like Seth, the son of Adam, begotten "in his [Adam's] own likeness, after his image" (Gn 5:3).

Genesis 3 shows the need for all subsequent chapters and books of the Bible, where (as already in Gn 3:15) God promises to deliver us from sin and death and records what He did to remove these barriers that exclude us from life with Him. The message of all Scripture is that God Himself, in the Seed of the woman, will crush the head of "that ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world" (Rv 12:9).

Theophanies in Genesis

When the Lord visited Adam and Eve, they heard God "walking in the garden" (Gn 3:8). Later we read that "the word of the Lord came to Abram in a vision" (Gn 15:1). When we read such passages, it is only natural for us to wonder what the prophets heard, saw, or felt in these encounters with God. Also, Scripture passages like "No one has ever seen God" (Jn 1:18) leap to mind.

These special appearances of God among human beings are called "theophanies," which means "manifestations of God." These theophanies try to describe for us what the prophets experienced in God's presence. Theophanies remind us that God sustains His creation and that His personal, active participation in human history continued after the fall.

Although God's involvement with creation was often subtle (through nature, historic events, and people), God sometimes revealed Himself in a more personal way. The ultimate theophany was the coming of Jesus Christ in the flesh; He "is at the Father's side, [and] has made Him known" (Jn 1:18). The following table summarizes types of theophanies found in Genesis.

Peace and Blessing

The Gospel proclaims the biblical term "shalom" as holistic blessing. The starting point of the biblical conception of blessing is as a gift of God. … Blessing, beginning with creation (Gen. 1:22, 28), encompasses the Noahic (Gen. 9:1) and Abrahamic covenants (Gen. 12:1–3), and culminates in the Cross of Jesus Christ as the gift of grace (Eph. 2:5–8). … The God of blessing asks proper worship, not because this worship manipulates God as in Shamanistic worship but because worship itself is one manifestation of God's blessing. The word brk [barak, Hbr "bless"] in the sense of worship is an acknowledgement of God's lordship and power as well as His benefaction. …

The New Testament affirms that the most blessed of all is the Messiah Himself. The people welcome Him with jubilant cries of His entry into Zion in Mk. 11:9 f; Mt. 21:9; Lk. 19:38; Jn. 12:13. It means that blessing basically relates to the Messianic redemption. He who comes and His kingdom are blessed by God to whom they belong.

One of the most conspicuous characteristics of Jesus' ministry on the earth is that Jesus Himself is the One who blesses His people directly, like the children in Mk. 10:16 or the disciples at the ascension. … Paul, too, can journey to Rome in the fullness of the blessing brought by Christ (Rom. 15:29). While the curse brings eternal death, the blessed will enjoy life and entry into the kingdom of God.

Paul's view of blessing can be found in its new decisive Christological form. In Gal. 3:8 Paul cites Gen. 12:3b: "All nations shall be blessed in you." For Paul the fulfillment of the blessing promised to Abraham is now seen as God's redeeming act in Christ.

Family Life in Israel

The word family used to be easily defined: a father, a mother, and their children. But today we talk about nuclear families, cohabiting families, single-parent families, blended families, and foster families. The family situation seems to become more complicated with each generation! The ancient Israelites did not talk about "family" as we do today. They thought in terms of the household, which included not only blood relatives but also servants.

As you read the Book of Genesis, you may expect to see a clear picture of family values and caring relationships. However, Genesis shows the opposite! Like many households today, family life for the patriarchs and Israelites could be confusing and dysfunctional. (Though this article cites examples from throughout Scripture, it focuses primarily on Genesis.)

Israelite Marriage Customs

Marriage, the foundation of family in all cultures, appears quite different in the Bible than it does for people today. Western marriage customs owe more to ancient Rome than to ancient Israel. For example: June, named after Juno, the Roman queen of heaven and goddess of femininity and marriage, was for the Romans the most popular month for marriages. The exchange of rings is not biblical, but Roman. When a young woman and her family accepted a man's offer of marriage, she would receive gifts and a ring for the third finger of her left hand. Joining of right hands and kissing go back to the Romans, not the Bible. Even holding marriage ceremonies in a place of worship, with the exchange of vows, goes back to Rome and not to biblical customs.

Parents almost always arranged marriages in ancient Israel, as Abraham arranged the marriage of Isaac (Gn 24). When Isaac's son Jacob left home, Isaac emphasized the importance of marrying within his own clan or tribe: "You must not take a wife from the Canaanite women. … Take as your wife … one of the daughters of Laban your mother's brother" (28:1–2). Isaac intentionally sent Jacob to seek a wife among his first cousins!

Although we might find the practice of arranged marriages odd or even cold, in fact, such marriages often lead to love. This is what could be expected, since loving parents would choose the best spouse for their child. In Isaac's case, we read, "[Rebekah] became his wife, and he loved her" (24:67). Love came after the marriage.

Courtship or marriage on the basis of "love" was not part of normal life at the time of the patriarchs. Parents from different families did not leave boys and girls alone together. However, young people might meet in the early morning or late afternoon, when girls went to the village well to get water for their families (Jacob met Rachel at the well, ch 29). Although many of the patriarchs married late in life, it was common for people to marry in their midteens.

Marriage as Contract

The contract of marriage, or betrothal, was as binding as marriage itself. Once the families agreed on that commitment, the couple was considered married. The New Testament story of Joseph and Mary provides an example of this. Although they were only pledged to be married, Joseph would have had to "divorce" Mary to break off the relationship (Mt 1:18–19).

Ancient Israelites also had a practice called mohar, that is, a price paid to the bride's father to compensate him for the loss of his daughter. A common fee was 50 silver shekels, but in some cases the mohar was not paid in money. For example, Jacob exchanged 14 years of labor to obtain Leah and Rachel from their father, Laban (Gn 29:20, 27, 30). On occasion, the bride would receive some of the mohar as a gift from her parents; this was called the mattan, or dowry.

Israelite Weddings

On the wedding day, the bridegroom would dress in wedding garments, and his friends would escort him to the house of the bride (cf Gn 2:24). The bride would come out to meet them with her friends. The Song of Solomon beautifully depicts a wedding procession and the meeting of a bride and groom (Sg 3:6–5:1; this is the context of Jesus' parable of the 10 virgins in Mt 25:1–13).

The whole group would joyously parade to the home that the groom had prepared. Jesus used this imagery to describe His relationship to the Church: "In My Father's house are many rooms. … I go to prepare a place for you. … If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and will take you to Myself" (Jn 14:2–3). The Christian life is like a betrothal. Heaven will be like marriage!

Whereas marriage in the patriarchal period would have been arranged by oral agreement, later in Israelite history, the fathers of the two families and the groom would sign a marriage document. The couple would drink wine from a common cup to seal the marriage covenant and to signify the joy of their new life together. This may have taken place under a marriage canopy, the chuppah. The term occurs in Jl 2:16, where it is translated "chamber." A weeklong marriage feast often followed the ceremony (e.g., Jn 2). The meals were as elaborate as the family could afford.

In some of these ancient customs, we might trace present-day practices. Though customs come and go, God's ideal remains constant. Based on the creation and union of Adam and Eve in Eden, the essence of marriage remains the same. It is a commitment wherein a man and a woman become one (Gn 2:20–25; Mt 19:4–6).

Aberrations from God's Ideal

Adam and Eve's sin forever altered the loving commitment of marriage and the full blessing of family life that God intended for us. Counselors today speak of "dysfunctional" marriages or families. Because of sin, every human relationship is more or less dysfunctional. In Genesis, we see three aberrations by which the dysfunction of sin severed the bonds of love:

Polygamy. Not trusting fully in God's promise, Abraham agreed to take Sarah's servant Hagar and have a child by her. From this union came Ishmael—and a great deal of discord. Hagar eventually despised Sarah, and Sarah had her dismissed (Gn 16:1–6). Strictly speaking, this was not polygamy because Hagar was a concubine and did not have the full status of a wife. Yet both women were rivals within the same household.

Isaac led a relatively quiet life, married to only one woman. But with the next generation, it was an entirely different matter. Jacob had two wives and two concubines. He loved Rachel most of all, and this became a source of unending pain for her sister, Leah. When Leah was able to have children and Rachel could not, Rachel became jealous. Both women ended up giving their maidservants to Jacob in what became a contest to see who could provide the most heirs.

Polygamy was the source of a great deal of rivalry, jealousy, and hurt. In modern times, groups such as the Mormons have tried to revive the practice. Today's easy divorce and remarriage laws make polygamy a frequent reality, though we may not recognize it as such. Tiring of one spouse, people quickly move on to the next.

Prostitution. The second aberration in patriarchal times was prostitution. The most famous case involved Judah and Tamar. This unhappy incident came about because of unusual circumstances involving ancient familial rights and obligations.

Judah had married Shua, a Canaanite woman to whom three sons were born: Er, Onan, and Shelah (38:1–5). Er married Tamar, but God put Er to death for his wickedness. Judah then told Onan to fulfill his "duty of a brother-in-law to [Tamar], and raise up offspring for your brother" (38:8).

In later Israelite history, the practice of a man conceiving children for his deceased brother was known as "levirate marriage." Legally, the offspring were considered the children of the dead brother and would inherit his property. When Onan refused to carry out his duty, God put him to death also. This may have been because Onan wanted to keep his brother's property and not pass it on to any heirs.

Judah then urged Tamar to wait for the third son to grow up. But when it became clear that Judah would prevent her from marrying the third son, Tamar devised a plan. Disguising herself as a prostitute, Tamar seduced Judah himself. (According to Hittite law, when there was no brother-in-law to perform the levirate duty, the father-in-law was responsible to do so.) As a pledge of future payment, Judah gave her his seal and staff. When news of Tamar's pregnancy reached Judah, he hypocritcally demanded that she be burned to death (38:24). At that time, promiscuity by men was tolerated but promiscuity by women was not.

Tamar quickly exposed Judah's hypocrisy by producing his seal and staff. Judah could only reply, "She is more righteous than I, since I did not give her to my son Shelah" (38:26).

Despite this knot of sins, God was gracious. Tamar gave birth to twin boys, Perez and Zerah. Perez fathered the leading clan in Judah, thus becoming an ancestor of King David (Ru 4:18–22) and of Jesus (Mt 1:1–16). Human sin and weakness could not prevent God from fulfilling His promise of sending the Savior into the world for you!

Intermarriage. A third aberration from God's ideal was intermarriage with unbelievers. Genesis stresses the passing along of God's precious promises, especially the promise of the Savior, from one generation to the next. The patriarchs recognized that faith in God would not survive if God's chosen people married spouses who cared nothing about God's promises. Still, intermarriage with pagans happened on many occasions. For example, Ishmael's mother, Hagar, "took a wife for him from the land of Egypt" (Gn 21:21). "Esau took his wives from the Canaanites" (36:2). Judah married a Canaanite. And Joseph married "Asenath, the daughter of Potiphera priest of On" (41:50), who bore him two sons.

The spiritual attitude of one's spouse is vitally important, especially when it comes to the training of children. Although many of God's people in ancient Israel were indifferent to the faith (or lack of faith) of their spouses, God kept His chosen nation intact. He still works wonders for divided families today. He can loose every knot of sin that binds us.

This brings us to our last comparison between family life then and now—the gift of children.

Children of the Patriarchs

The Bible says that "children are a heritage from the Lord … a reward" (Ps 127:3). The Lord "gives the barren woman a home, making her the joyous mother of children" (Ps 113:9). Not surprisingly, women in ancient Israel who bore no children experienced severe emotional distress, as evidenced by Sarah and Rachel before God gave them children.

Today, we often consider companionship as the first, and frequently the only, purpose of marriage. But in the ancient Near East, people tended to look at marriage chiefly as the means to secure the survival of the family by providing male descendants. This is evident in the practice of levirate marriage, discussed above. Moreover, some ancient marriage contracts would contain the stipulation that a childless wife must provide a maidservant for her husband. Both Sarah and Rachel followed this practice. Although a mother might welcome the birth of a daughter as a blessing, she was especially happy when she could present her husband with his firstborn son. This boy would continue the family line as well as provide strength and support for his parents in their old age.

As with every blessing, the gift of children—both girls and boys—was also misused. As noted above, children could become the pawns of feuding wives and concubines. Another fault among the patriarchal families was showing favoritism. Isaac "loved Esau … but Rebekah loved Jacob" (Gn 25:28). This resulted in strife and, eventually, in Esau's desire to kill his brother. Similarly, Jacob's favoring of Joseph led to hatred between brothers.

Children of God

At the end of Genesis, Joseph looked back on the sinful decisions that had affected his family. Despite the many bad memories, Joseph saw God at work. “You meant evil against me,” Joseph explained to his brothers, “but God meant it for good, to bring it about that many people should be kept alive” (50:20).

By God’s grace, Joseph and his family found forgiveness and reconciliation. Ishmael and Isaac came together for the burial of their father, Abraham (25:9). Esau and Jacob met in a tearful reunion (33:4). Despite their many problems, God worked with them and through them, even sending His Son, Jesus, to be one of their descendants and the Savior of all families.

Your family needs to experience this same grace, which is found only in Christ. Because He loves and forgives us, we can love and forgive one another. Through Christ, we live as God’s dearly loved children.

Genesis, Book of Dreams

The following chart lists the numerous dreams recorded in Genesis by which God communicated with patriarchs, tribal leaders, and kings. They show how God met people at their level of understanding, revealing His Word in ways they recognized.

You will have many dreams during your life. Be careful about interpreting them. In Genesis, God used dreams especially to reveal His will. But today, we have God's will recorded in the Bible for us. While interpreting the Book of Genesis, Luther noted, "I, too, at times have dreams that move me somewhat, but I despise them and have come to this understanding with my Lord God that I will believe Moses and the prophets" (WLS § 1278).

Cords of Love

Tent cords literally held together the households of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. What holds your household together? What binds your family members together? As you care for your household, consider the following examples from Genesis.

Examples: Loving commitment of Isaac and Rebekah (24:62–67)

Application: Unlike some of the other marriages in Genesis, the relationship between Isaac and Rebekah was largely one of genuine love and commitment. They did not complicate their relationship by adding other spouses or concubines. In marriage today, God calls us to a life of loving commitment and lasting devotion. Just as God bound the hearts of Isaac and Rebekah together for life, through the love of Christ He will bind your heart to your spouse and family.

Examples: Calling on God in prayer by Isaac's household (26:16–25)

Application: In times of transition and difficulty, Isaac prayerfully led his household by calling on the name of the Lord. No matter where life takes you, you can joyfully and confidently take your concerns to your heavenly Father and lead your family in prayer.

Examples: Making peace between Jacob and Esau (33:1–11)

Application: When Jacob and Esau last saw each other, Esau held a death grudge against his brother. However, by God's grace, the two brothers were able to make peace.

Examples: Purification of Jacob's household (35:1–5)

Application: At God's command, Jacob purified his household of everything that dishonored God, especially false religious practices. Through the Holy Spirit's call of repentance today, God cleanses our households and prepares us for greater service to Him and one another.

Examples: Forgiveness by Joseph (45:1–5; 50:15–21)

Application: When Joseph recognized the sorrow of his brothers over their sin, he could not help but forgive them. Despite all his suffering, Joseph recognized how God worked through the situation to deal mercifully with his entire family. In Christ, God has acted with even greater compassion on our behalf: "While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Rm 5:8).

Examples: Sharing by Joseph (45:6–11)

Application: Joseph invited his entire family to come and share in the prosperity of Egypt during the famine. Questions about property frequently cause tension in households today. As God blesses you with prosperity, share His blessings with others.

Reflecting on the state of Israel 1,200 years after the time of the patriarchs, God told the prophet Hosea, "I led them with cords of kindness, with the bands of love" (Hos 11:4). God does not just watch over us. He binds Himself to us with "bands of love." Even when the children of Israel rebelled against Him, He continued to care for them, sending them salvation and forgiveness in His Son, Jesus Christ.

If your household lacks the characteristics described above, do not give up hope! Call on your heavenly Father for help. By His love, bind yourself to your household and share God's everlasting compassion with them. Through Christ, He will bind your broken heart with cords of compassion (Is 61:1).

Study Notes

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:1–2:3 God's creation of the world is presented in three stages: declaration of the creation of matter out of nothingness (1:1–2); the ordering of creation (days 1 and 2, 1:3–8); and the filling of creation (days 3 through 6, 1:9–31). Chem: "On the first day He created the earth in order that on the third day He might … mould and prepare it for the use of man" (LTh 1:163). God fills creation in two steps: inanimate objects first (days 3 and 4, 1:9–19), then animate beings (days 5 and 6, 1:20–31). The account concludes with God's rest on the seventh day (2:1–3). The text is written in prose, though several aspects, such as the repetition of the formula "God saw that it was good," give the text a heightened rhetorical feel.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:1 In the beginning. The ESV reflects the traditional translation of the opening phrase, which establishes the point in time at which the action occurs. (Some critical scholars translate the Hbr text similarly to two Babylonian epics, the Enuma Elish and the Epic of Atra-Khasis. Their translation allows denial of the important biblical teaching that God created the world out of nothing [ex nihilo] and argues instead that matter is eternal.) The Bible affirms that God created the world (Ps 90:2; Jer 10:16) and that He created it out of nothing through Jesus Christ (Rm 4:17; Heb 1:2). Ter: "By not mentioning [a source of material], [Scripture] has given us a clear proof that there was no such thing" (ANF 3:489). created. Hbr bara' is never used with a subject other than God in the OT. God alone has the power to create (bring into existence from nothing). Humans make (or "create") things only by rearranging what God has created. That God alone is the Creator of all that exists affirms that He is the only true God. the heavens and the earth. This first "couple" did not arise by any natural process but came into being as a result of God's direct and unique creative activity. In addition, these terms together refer to the whole of God's creation, the details of which follow. Throughout ch 1, "heavens" refers to the sky and the cosmos beyond the boundaries of the earth, not to the abode of God.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:1 God's first act, the creation, is an act of grace. God acts freely to reflect His character, making the world "very good" (1:31). Even after the fall and the coming of sin, much of the goodness that God built into creation remains. Philosophers debate why evil exists, and people ask how a good God could allow bad things to happen. But it is not the existence of evil and suffering that requires an explanation; it is the existence of goodness and beauty and love that is most remarkable. A world without God cannot explain such things. The persistence of goodness reminds us of what we have lost, but it also offers us a glimpse of God's grace and the everlasting glory to which God has called us through Christ. • "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me" (Ps 51:10). Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:2–8 Describes matter at the first moment of creation (v 2) and then describes how God arranged the matter He created. First, God separated light from darkness (vv 3–5). Next, God separated what is below the sky from what is above it (vv 6–8). These arrangements established what we call "time" (expressed in the sequence of days and nights) and "space" (expressed in the separation of the waters above and below the sky). This work was the first two days of creation. Scripture does not explicitly state when God made the angels. Ancient rabbinic and Christian interpreters commonly held that angels were created during the first days, though their opinions and reasons varied widely.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:2 without form and void. God's initial creative act resulted in shapeless matter that God proceeded to arrange, or order, in several stages. the deep … the waters. Formlessness is pictured as a watery mixture; neither the sky nor the dry land has been distinguished. Israelites understood water as a formless material. deep. Wordplay: "without form" (Hbr tohu) and "deep" (Hbr tehom) sound similar. "Deep" not the everyday term for water or the oceans; suggests the vast inaccessible and formless depths of the seas. Image of the undefined matter of creation as a limitless ocean is suggested by the formlessness of the underwater world, which was unknown, and, therefore, mysterious (cf Jb 38:16). Elsewhere, God's power to control the depths of the sea is a sign of His supremacy over both creation (cf Ps 77:16; 135:6) and other gods (see parting of the Red Sea in Ex 15:5, 8; cf Ps 106:9; Is 51:10; 63:13). See note, Mk 4:39. the Spirit of God. God's active presence in creation. hovering. The Spirit's activity is pictured as a bird or butterfly fluttering over the waters. Bas: "By the Spirit of God, he means the Holy Spirit" (NPNF 2 8:62). Mel: "The Father, by speaking, begets the Word who is the image of the eternal Father. And of the Holy Spirit it is expressly said, 'And the Spirit …' " (Chem, LTh 1:50).

God was directly involved in not only the action of creating (bringing into existence out of nothing) but also in the work of bringing form and order to that which He had created. There is no place in the biblical view of creation for the abstract and impersonal process of evolution. The Bible affirms that the Father directly and intentionally called the order of the cosmos into being through the Son (Pr 8:22–36; Jn 1:3; Heb 1:2).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:3 And God said. Note well: In pagan religions of the ancient Near East, nature and the realm of the gods were blended together; material things, such as the sun and moon, or trees and stones, were thought to be divine. (In the Babylonian Epic of Atra-Khasis, the material world was formed when the gods mixed the blood of a slain god with dirt. In the Enuma Elish, the material world was formed out of the body parts of a slain goddess. By these literary devices, ancient mythology communicated the idea that matter itself was formed of the essence of divinity.) In contrast, the Bible makes clear that God is distinct from the material world. The cosmos is not divine, made up of elements of the gods. Rather, the one true God called the cosmos into being out of nothingness and arranged it by the power of His Word alone. God's Word is "performative"—it does not merely state something, but it accomplishes, or brings about, that which it declares. See notes, Rm 10:17; Is 55:11. light. Not natural sunlight, but light called into being by God's Word to contrast the unbroken darkness that was the setting for God's initial creative act (v 2). This anticipates the restored creation at the end of time, in which God's presence will enlighten all things, and there will no longer be a need for the sun or the moon (Rv 21:23; 22:5). Jesus embodied the light of God's presence (Jn 8:12), and God shines this light in us to create faith in Him. For these reasons, lights (lamps or candles) are used in Christian worship to symbolize God's active faith-creating and faith-sustaining presence among His people. See "seven," p 217.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:4 good. God judged that this first step in ordering His creation conformed to His will. In the same way, all that God creates is good (vv 10, 12, 18, 21, 25), and the whole of His creation is summarized by the phrase "very good" (v 31). God separated. See note, vv 2–8.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:5 God called. Hbr idiom used to assign a name. Lit, "God called to the light: day." Though God allowed Adam to name the living things with which He filled creation (2:19–20), God Himself assigned names to the fundamental distinctions He made as He ordered His creation. the first day. Lit, "day 1." The first cycle of time, initiated by the distinction of light from darkness. first. Lit, "one." Moses used the cardinal number here instead of the ordinal form "first"; his time-related words make it quite clear that we are to understand this day 1 as a normal 24-hour day, bounded by an evening and a morning. See note, Lv 23:32. With the six days to follow, it makes up a single week. See note, v 14. day. Hbr yom; not always used to designate a 24-hour day (e.g., refers to only the daylight portion of a 24-hour day in vv 5, 16), but that is by far its most basic use.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:6 God's ordering activity changes. See note, vv 2–8. God introduced three fundamental distinctions in the physical world, as the Israelites understood it: sky, sea, and dry land. expanse. Difficult term. Hbr raqia', translated "Heaven" in v 8, suggests a metal plate made flat through hammering. The point of the image is the function rather than the substance: the sky serves as a divider. The Israelites often used figurative terms to describe the cosmos as it appeared to them (cf Is 40:22, where the sky is described as a "curtain" and a "tent"). let it separate the waters from the waters. The expanse separates the waters that are above from the waters that are below (v 7). This was the first step in organizing the spatial aspect of creation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:7 God … separated the waters. World is described in terms of human experience. To the Israelites, a blue sky and falling rain indicated that there was water above the layer of the air. The seas and the water that emerges from the ground in springs and wells indicated that there was water below (cf Ps 24:2). The layer of air serves to divide these two sources of water.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:8 Heaven. Not God's abode beyond the realm of creation, but the layer of air that separates the water above from the water below (v 7). the second day. The text now switches to the ordinal number "second" to refer to the ongoing sequence. See note, v 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:9–31 God fills what He has created (v 1) and arranged (vv 2–8).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:9 one place. Having separated the waters (see note, v 7), God then began to fill the space beneath the sky by drawing the waters below the sky together into one place, allowing dry land to emerge.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:10 called … Earth … Seas. See note, v 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:11 Let the earth sprout. Filling the space beneath the expanse with inanimate things continues from lesser to greater. Though today we think of plants as "living" (they grow and reproduce), Israelites thought plants lacked the unique life force that qualifies a living creature. See note, v 20. plants yielding seed … fruit trees. Text appears to distinguish two main types of vegetation, trees that produce fruit and other plants that propagate their seed without fruit. This is a general distinction, not an attempt to establish a complete scientific categorization of plants. according to its kind. Phrase here and in following passages indicates that ch 1 talks not only about creation of specific individuals but of classes (or kinds) of things. God does not make one plant, but many plants of different kinds. This is also true of the animals referred to later in ch 1. See p 10.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:12 earth brought forth. Earth responds to God's commands as He works to fill His creation. Throughout the Bible, God controls and directs the course of history and the forces of nature by His Word.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:14 Let there be lights. Sources of light above the expanse. Just as God gathered the waters into a consolidated place (the sea), God joined the light that He had previously created (vv 3–5) to natural sources. These sources of light will now govern the cycles of time that He established until they are no longer needed at the end of time (see note, v 3). signs. Movement of stars helps us keep track of months, seasons, and years. Stars do not control humankind's destiny or predict the future. days. Hbr plural for "day," but in the context it appears to refer to what we call a month (not otherwise mentioned here). It is unlikely that "days" here refers to a week because that period of time is not indicated by the movement of the sun, moon, or stars, but comes into being when God establishes every seventh day as a day of rest (cf 2:1–3). To sustain the argument that day 1 does not refer to a normal 24-hour day, one would have to show that all these other time-related terms are being used in some figurative, or extended, sense. This is not the case. Here the sun, moon, and stars govern normal days, nights, months, seasons, and years. See note, v 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:16 greater light. Sun. Words "sun" and "moon" are likely omitted to exclude the possibility of understanding them as deities, as was common throughout the ancient Near East. lesser light. Moon.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:20 living creatures. Hbr nephesh chayyah applies to animals and humans, but not to inanimate things (as understood by the Israelites) that fill creation: plants and the sources of light in the skies. expanse of the heavens. See note, v 6.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:21 great sea creatures. Hbr tanninim, used in mythology to refer to divine or semidivine sea monsters. By contrast, the Bible uses this word to refer to snakes or serpents, sometimes to crocodiles, and sometimes, as here, to any of the mysterious and unknown animals that inhabit the depths of the seas.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:22 God blessed them. First explicit blessing in the Bible. As seen in v 3, God's Word performs that which it speaks. By pronouncing a blessing, God granted the power of procreation to the animals He had created. The granting of procreative powers to provide for the ongoing welfare of His creation demonstrates God's care. See p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:24 Let the earth bring forth. God's previous activity had filled the sea and sky with living creatures. God then began to fill the landmass with living creatures and with three general types of land animals. livestock. Word commonly used for domesticated animals such as cattle or oxen but also for animals in general. creeping things. May refer here specifically to reptiles, but is also at times used to refer to animals in general (9:3). beasts. General term (lit, "living things"); may be used here as a kind of catchall for everything that does not fall into the other two categories, perhaps implying wild animals as opposed to the domesticated animals of the first group.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:26 Let Us make. While affirming the singularity of God, it is not unusual for the OT to use the plural when speaking of God and His activities. This anticipates the doctrine of the Holy Trinity (though some interpreters understand it to be a grammatical device, a plural of majesty or an honorific plural, with no specific theological significance). Iren: "With Him were always present the Word and Wisdom, the Son and the Spirit, by whom and in whom, freely and spontaneously, He made all things, to whom also He speaks" (ANF 1:487–88). Ter: "If the number of the Trinity also offends you, … with whom did He make man? and to whom did He make him like? (The answer must be), the Son on the one hand, who was one day to put on human nature; and the Spirit on the other, who was to sanctify man. With these did He then speak, in the Unity of the Trinity, as with His ministers and witnesses" (ANF 3:606–7). Luth: "Here both appear: 'Let Us make' and 'He made,' in the plural and in the singular; thereby Moses clearly and forcibly shows us that within and in the very Godhead and the Creating Essence there is one inseparable and eternal plurality" (AE 1:58). image. Hbr tselem means something more than mere physical resemblance. An image, in ancient Near Eastern thought, was that which manifested the presence of the gods within the material realm. Created in God's image, Adam not only reflected God's character but also was His representative in the world, His steward over all that He had made. "They had God's Law written into their hearts, because they were created in God's image" (FC Ep VI 2). Gr Nys: "Painters transfer human forms to their pictures by the means of certain colors … our Maker also, painting the portrait to resemble His own beauty, by the addition of virtues, as it were with colors, shows in us His own sovereignty: … purity, freedom from passion, blessedness, alienation from all evil, and all those attributes of the like kind which help to form in men the likeness of God" (NPNF 2 5:391). Gr Naz: "[God] will reason with us, and oppose us, and set before us those bitter accusers, our sins … the image [of God in us] … has been blurred and spoiled by wickedness" (NPNF 2 7:250). have dominion. To rule over something. The order that God imposed upon His creation extends to the beings with which He filled it, whether in the air or in the sea or on land. As God's steward and representative, Adam is placed over all that God has made, to rule over it as God Himself would rule it. Luth: "Man is a creature far superior to the rest of the living beings that live a physical life, especially since as yet his nature had not become depraved" (AE 1:56).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:27 God created. See note, v 1. Here and in the following chapters, some verses have been set as poetry, reflecting a literary judgment by the ESV editors based on the heightened rhetorical sense that the repetition in the passage suggests. See pp 777–78. male and female. Moses gives a summary statement of the creation of mankind and details about it in ch 2. Luth: "Moses puts the two sexes together and says that God created male and female in order to indicate that Eve, too, was made by God as a partaker of the divine image and of the divine similitude, likewise of the rule over everything. Thus even today the woman is the partaker of the future life, just as Peter says that they are joint heirs of the same grace (1 Peter 3:7). In the household the wife is a partner in the management and has a common interest in the children and the property, and yet there is a great difference between the sexes" (AE 1:69).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:28 God blessed them. God extended to humankind the blessing of procreative power that He had given to animals.

But here He added an additional element: instructions to subdue the earth and have dominion over all the other beings that God has made. These additional instructions reflect the special role that humankind plays in God's creation. See p 842. Be fruitful and multiply. See note, v 22. Sex and childbearing are blessed by God in holy wedlock. Cf Ps 127–28. "Genesis 1:28 teaches that people were created to be fruitful, and that one sex should desire the other in a proper way. We are not speaking about lustful desire, which is sin, but about that appetite that was in nature in its perfection. They call this physical love. This love of one sex for the other is truly a divine ordinance" (Ap XXIII 7).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:29 I have given you … food. God shows His care by providing food and allowing the man and woman to eat everything that is not categorized as a living being (see note, v 20). In the more detailed account of Gn 2, we learn that this general permission is restricted by the prohibition that they may not eat the fruit from one specific tree (2:16–17).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:30 everything that has the breath of life. "Living creatures" in v 20 (see note). God extended the gift of food to everything that has the character of life.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:31 very good. Creation is summarized by stating that it conformed to God's intentions in the best possible way. Bas: "All [creatures] bear the marks of the wisdom of the Creator" (NPNF 2 8:104). Chem: "The word tob refers to something which is beautiful or pleasant, which delights the eye of the beholder or the mind of one who considers it, as Gen. 3:6 says of Eve" (LTh 1:190). See use described in note, Est 2:7. As a result of the fall (ch 3), the introduction of sin into the world, and our rejection of God and His will, we do not experience all of creation as "very good."

GENESIS—NOTE ON 1:2–31 God makes all things good. He takes great care to place man and woman in the garden to care for the things that He created. Sin has placed the things God created, including us, in bondage to death and decay. Yet Jesus' death and resurrection has restored the things of God's creation just as it has restored us (Rm 8:19–23). Indeed, God even used His creation to accomplish our salvation: a cross made of wood; the water of Baptism; the bread and wine of the Eucharist; the printed words on the page in, with, and under which He reveals His Word of life to us. • Lord, You have reclaimed all that is Your own, redeemed and restored all of Your creation to Yourself. Preserve me and Your creation, O Lord, by Your grace. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:1–3 In the conclusion of the creation account, God rests on the seventh day and then sets the seventh day aside to commemorate His work of creation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:1 heavens and the earth. See note, 1:1. host. The things with which God had filled the earth, sea, and sky. See p 1291.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:2 He rested. Hbr verb yishboth is related to the noun shabbath. Ancient Near Eastern creation accounts to which Gn is sometimes compared lack any parallel to the account of God resting after His creative activity. Here God rests because His creative work is complete, not because He is weary.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:3 holy. Hbr qadash, verb used in its basic sense of setting something aside for special use, in this case the commemoration of the completion of God's creative work. See p 7. God anticipates His later commandment (Ex 20:8–11) both here by His own actions and also when His people are on the way to Mount Sinai (Ex 16:22–30). Unlike the other cycles of time mentioned in the creation account, the cycle of a week (bounded by the day of rest) is determined not by the movement of the heavenly bodies but is established only by God's special command. Given this, it is not surprising that there is no equivalent to the OT Sabbath in any other ancient Near Eastern religion. There is also no evidence that Israel's neighbors observed a calendar period equivalent to the week.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:1–3 God creates (sets aside) the Sabbath. In the OT, Saturday is the Rest (Sabbath) Day. When Christ fulfilled the whole Law (Mt 5:17), He liberated God's people from the obligation to observe the Sabbath given to the people of Israel in the OT (Col 2:16–17). All days belong equally to God (Rm 14:5–6). Nevertheless, faith in Christ moves God's people to respond to His grace in worship: to hear His Word, to receive His gifts in the Sacraments, to praise Him and give thanks to Him for His mighty works, and to call on Him in prayer. Such worship is the constant response of faith to God's grace. Because God has called Christians together into one Body, the Church, through which He gives His gifts of Word and Sacrament, it is proper for Christians to gather together to worship Him. See note, 1Co 16:2. Sunday, then, symbolically represents the first day of the new rest into which God's people have been called in Christ. (As the first day of this "new creation," Sunday is sometimes referred to as "the eighth day.") • We praise You, O Lord, for the day of rest that our bodies need. We exalt You, O Christ, for the eternal rest that You have won for us! Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:4–4:26 In ch 1, Moses presents an eloquent overview of creation that stands as an introduction to all his books. The next section begins the stories (narratives) of Genesis, and of the Books of Moses and the Bible as a whole. This section offers a more detailed narrative account in three parts, focusing on the creation of man (ch 2), the fall (ch 3), and the fall's aftermath (ch 4). Luth: "These, then, are all historical facts. This is something to which I carefully call attention, lest the unwary reader be led astray by the authority of the fathers, who give up the idea that this is history and look for allegories" (AE 1:93).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:4 These are the generations. Literary device used throughout Gn to introduce the next stage in the unfolding of the story (see outline, pp 10–11). heavens and the earth. Here the heavens and the earth are treated, for literary purposes, as the first generation of God's creation; humankind is presented as the descendants of this couple. See note, 1:1. in the day that. Not a specific day in the creation account, but meaning "when" (in accordance with its common use in Hbr). the LORD God. See p 1227.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:5 no bush … no small plant. Not a reference to the plants of the third day of creation (1:11–12), but to those that would arise subsequently from the normal process of growth and tillage. "Small plant" refers to grass and other flora that do not have a woody stalk. God had not caused. Throughout Scripture, processes of nature, and esp rain, are under God's control. Power to give and withhold rain symbolizes God's ability to control nature according to His will (e.g., Dt 11:13–17; 1Sm 12:17–18). Ultimately, the biblical teaching of God's omnipotence is intended for our comfort, assuring us that God has the power to accomplish His will, esp to save those whom He has called to faith in Himself. to rain. Before the flood, plants were sustained by water in the soil itself (cf v 6, probably including what we would think of as dew, which appears to the eye to rise from the ground, though technically it condenses from the air), and by the river that flowed through and out of Eden (v 10). The Bible first mentions rain falling at the time of the flood (7:12).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:6 mist. Some regard this to be a unique subterranean watering method that was a special feature of the world before the fall; others regard this as simply dew. See note, v 5. Regardless of the specific form, the point is that the garden (v 10) had sufficient water to sustain the plants God had made on the third day (cf 1:29–30, sustenance for living beings). Some cultures could count on sufficient water, but drought became a lasting concern for the people in the ancient Near East.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:7 formed. Hbr yatsar, related to the word for a potter, emphasizes the fact that God did not make man out of nothing, but shaped him from the existing material of the created world. (Cf Is 29:15–16; 45:4–12; 64:8; Jer 18:1–11.) man … ground. Man is called 'adam (Hbr) because he comes from the 'adamah (earth). Both terms refer to the reddish brown color of clay soil. living creature. See note, 1:20. Despite the fact that humans and animals share this characteristic, they are not the same. Unlike animals, God shaped man in His image and breathed into him the breath of His own life. Ter: "First comes a prefatory statement [1:27], then follow the details in full [2:7–25]; first the subject is named, then it is described" (ANF 3:492).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:8 planted. Summarizes the creative, filling activity of God described in ch 1. a garden in Eden. The garden was only a part of the region called Eden. in the east. Presumably refers to an area east of the Israelites at the time of Moses (i.e., east of Sinai and Canaan). For a fuller discussion of the location of the garden, see note, vv 10–14.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:9 tree of life. Mentioned also in 3:22, 24; Rv 2:7; 22:2, 14, 19. Also used in Pr 3:18; 11:30; 13:12; 15:4 as a metaphor for a source of life. In Gn, the tree of life is the means by which the life that God gave to man would become sealed as a permanent characteristic (cf 3:22). That God did not forbid Adam and Eve to eat of this tree (vv 16–17) suggests that God intended immortality for them from the beginning. good and evil. Could be a shorthand expression for "everything" (i.e., that it would bestow omniscience). More literally, it is a precise statement referring to the acquisition of moral knowledge and judgment. Hus: "In the tree … the law was placed by God. … To eat, therefore, of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil after the prohibitive command was given, was an absolute evil" (The Church, pp 243–44). Luth: "There is now created a new tree for the distinguishing of good and evil, so that Adam might have a definite way to express his worship and reverence toward God. After everything had been entrusted to him to make use of it according to his will, whether he wished to do so for necessity or for pleasure, God finally demands from Adam that at this tree of the knowledge of good and evil he demonstrate his reverence and obedience toward God and that he maintain this practice, as it were, of worshiping God by not eating anything from it" (AE 1:94).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:10–14 There has been much speculation on the location of Eden, including (1) marshlands around the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in southeastern Iraq (the name Eden may be related to an ancient Sumerian word used for this region); (2) headwaters of the Tigris and Euphrates in the mountainous area of eastern Turkey, in the region of Lake Van (location of a kingdom known as Beth-eden in northeast Syria in the eighth and ninth centuries BC; also, the association of Noah with Mount Ararat in the same area); (3) Jerusalem, due to the mention of the Gihon Spring (2:13; cf Ezk 47; Rv 21:1–2). The lack of any clear candidates for two of the rivers (v 11) suggests that the topography of Eden was so altered by the great flood that any attempt to locate Eden based on current topography can never be more than futile speculation. Life in God's presence is not limited to an earthly place but comes by grace through faith in Jesus Christ alone (Jn 18:36).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:11 Pishon … Havilah. Origin and identification of these names is uncertain. Pishon is related to Hbr for "push," meaning to "spring up." Suggestions for these locations include the Indus, the Ganges, and a dry riverbed in east Arabia, the Kuwait River. Such identifications are no more than speculation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:12 bdellium. Uncertain meaning. Cf Nu 11:7. Plant associated with this name in the Arabian Peninsula strengthens the association of Havilah with Arabia (cf v 11). Resin gum associated with bdellium is a yellowish color. Because the context implies a reference to a precious stone such as gold and onyx, some have suggested bdellium be translated "pearl." onyx. Quartzlike stone striated with black and white bands, often used to make beads and cameos. Another closely related substance (sometimes called sardonyx) has red and white bands. The Hbr term connotes redness. The LXX translates this phrase as "the green stone," apparently referring either to emerald or perhaps the green and black striated stone known as malachite. Cf Ex 28:9.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:13 Gihon. From Hbr verb meaning to "bubble up" or "burst forth." Elsewhere, it refers to a spring in the Kidron Valley that provided the major water source for the city of Jerusalem. See note, vv

10–14. Cush. Usually refers to the lands of Nubia that today make up southern Egypt, Sudan, and Ethiopia. See map, p 33. This led some commentators to identify the Gihon with the Nile (e.g., LXX Jer 2:18).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:14 Tigris. Identification with Tigris River seems fairly certain. Assyria. Major kingdom in northern Mesopotamia (today, part of northern Iraq). Its major cities in biblical times were Asshur and Nineveh. See map, p 33. Euphrates. Also known as "the great river" (cf Gn 15:18) or more simply "the river" (cf Hbr of Ex 23:31). The Euphrates was the largest and most important waterway in western Asia, dominating trade and travel through the ancient Near East for more than 1,700 mi.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:15 to work it and keep it. In accordance with his role as God's image (1:26), the man is placed in the garden to tend it as God's steward and manager of creation (cf 1:28). This work is neither punishment nor toilsome. Work only becomes a source of hardship and suffering as a result of the fall (3:17–19).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:16 every tree. God did not prohibit Adam and Eve from eating from the tree of life (v 9).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:17 in the day. See note, v 4. He will die as a result of eating from the tree. Gr Nys: "By the fact of his alienation from the true life, the sentence of death was ratified against him that self-same day" (NPNF 2 5:127). die. The Bible views a person as a whole being—physical and spiritual together—and not as a soul inhabiting a body, a concept borrowed from Greek philosophy. (For this reason, throughout the Bible spiritual and physical health are seen as belonging together, so that physical impairment may be interpreted as a sign of sin, and healing as a sign of forgiveness [Mt 9:5]. For this reason also, St Paul speaks of the danger of taking the Lord's Supper without recognizing it as Christ's true body and blood in physical terms [1Co 11:27–30].) There could be no death before sin entered the world. Thus, when God tells Adam that he shall surely die, He means both physically and spiritually.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:18 not good … alone. Being alone is the first thing that God describes as "not good." Not moral fault (or evil) but incompleteness. At this point, God's work of creation was not complete with respect to man. He had no mate appropriate to him and no means of procreation. helper. Hbr 'ezer; elsewhere has sense of "assistant" or even "ally" and is applied to God (see note, Ps 70:5). It implies no inferiority, but it does reinforce the significance of the order of creation. See p 1291.

Accordingly, Adam was the more responsible party (Gn 3; Rm 5). Some have seized on this passage to accuse the Bible of being hostile to women. However, the Bible is the only piece of religious literature from the ancient Near East that gives a full account of the creation of woman; also, the Bible has more significant women figures presented in a positive light than any other body of religious literature from the ancient world. fit for him. Lit, "like his opposite." There was no appropriate mate for him. Cf v 20.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:19 Text could be misunderstood to imply a different sequence in creation than that suggested by 1:20–27, where man is created after the animals. (E.g., some ancient versions have the phrase "formed again," indicating that after creating man, God made additional animals.) formed. Or, "had formed," meaning that the animals God had already formed were now brought before Adam.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:20 The man gave names. Sign that Adam exercised authority over animals as God's steward of His creation (1:28; 2:15). helper. See note, v 18.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:21 deep sleep. Hbr implies something more than normal sleep. God sometimes brought a special sleep upon a person for a specific purpose (cf Is 29:10). ribs. Hbr word is commonly used for a structural component related to the side of something. When used of a building, it may mean a pillar, beam, or plank of wood. When used of a person, it generally means a rib bone.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:22 made. Lit, "built." Only instance in creation account that this verb is used, underscoring its distinction in the story. God did not make Eve out of nothing or form her directly out of the dust of the ground. By making her from something taken from Adam, God both establishes their relationship within the order of creation and ensures that she will be a helper appropriate to Adam.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:23 she shall be called Woman. First name Adam gives to his wife. Like the name of the man ('adam), the name of his wife ('ishshah) is a classification. In his role as God's steward (see note, 1:26), Adam gives a name to this category of created beings, just as he has given names to the rest of God's creation. See note, 3:20.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:24 a man shall leave. Marriage, childbirth, and growth of the human community were a part of God's plan for humankind from before the fall (1:28). one flesh. The coming together of man and woman in marriage is pictured here as the reuniting of what was separated at the creation of woman.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:25 not ashamed. Such was the union of man and woman with God and with each other before the fall that there was no awareness of separation that produces shame. Only after their eyes were opened and they became aware of their separateness from each other and from God did they feel the need to cover themselves and to hide from God.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 2:4–25 Ch 2 is a more detailed account of creation, focusing on the creation of humankind. It ends by emphasizing that Adam and Eve are not ashamed—they have nothing to be ashamed of. Too often, we are not ashamed because in our spiritual pride we refuse to acknowledge the shamefulness of our thoughts, words, and deeds. One of the reasons that God gave His Law was to teach us shame, to show us our sinfulness and need of forgiveness. There can be no true repentance without the experience of shame. However, in Jesus Christ, God heals our shame, not by allowing us to deny it but by taking our shamefulness upon Himself and declaring us to be without shame in Him (1Jn 2:28). • Jesus, cover my shame with the robe of Your righteousness, that I may serve my family with joy and confidence. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:1 serpent. Common Hbr word for "snake." Snakes would have been among either the general group of "creeping things" or among the "beasts of the earth" (1:24) that God created. There is nothing inherently evil in snakes. In this instance, Satan has either possessed one of these animals or appeared in their form. crafty. In Pr, this word is used with a positive connotation ("prudent," Pr 12:16, 23; 13:16; 14:8, 15, 18; 22:3; 27:12). In Jb, it is used with a negative connotation ("crafty," Jb 5:12; 15:5). Here in Gn, the usage appears to be neutral. The main reason for the choice of this word ('arum) appears to be that it forms a play on words with the word "naked" ('arom) in 2:25. Did God actually say. First temptation was (and remains) the temptation to doubt God's Word. Satan implies God has selfish motives, but there is no hint from Moses that God had ill motives toward Adam and Eve or planned their fall. Moses makes clear that the destructive effects of sin only grieved God (6:6). "[The devil] turned Adam and Eve into enthusiasts. He led them away from God's outward Word to spiritualizing and self-pride" (SA III VIII 5). Cf v 4.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:3 neither shall you touch it. Woman adds this provision to the instructions that God had given to Adam (2:16–17). See notes on spiritualizing, vv 1, 4–5.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:4 You will not surely die. Satan moves from doubting God's Word to outright denial and rejection of it. Luth: "When Satan sees these beginnings [of temptation], he now exerts himself with his utmost power, as though against a leaning wall, in order to overwhelm her altogether" (AE 1:155).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:5 God knows. The serpent does not challenge the woman's understanding of God's instructions, but calls God's integrity into doubt, suggesting that the real reason God does not want them to eat of the fruit is that He wants to keep them from becoming like Him. you will be like God. Note the progress of temptation: having begun with doubt about God's Word, he then moved to rejection of it, and now the serpent offers Eve the power to establish her own standard of right and wrong, to define truth for herself. The temptation to which the serpent exposed the woman, and to which all humankind has been subject since the first disobedience, is the desire to become godlike, the desire to determine our own standards of good and evil and to direct our own affairs according to our will. knowing good and evil. God does know evil, not because it is part of His character, but in the sense that He understands the destructive nature of evil. So far, man and woman had known only the good of God's very good creation. In view of this, the serpent spoke the truth: by disobeying God they will come to know evil as well as good. For the man and the woman, however, the only way to come to know evil is by doing evil through the breaking of God's command.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:6 the tree was to be desired to make one wise. In her desire to gain wisdom, the woman lost sight of the fundamental truth about wisdom: to be truly wise is to believe and trust in God and to obey His teachings. This truth is summarized in the OT saying that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom (see note, Pr 1:7; see also p 1001). Temptation frequently consists of desiring something that God says is wrong. she also gave some to her husband. To impart the new "wisdom" to him. with her. Adam joined her in disobedience; she did not trick him into eating. It is not clear that he stood with her throughout the temptation.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:7 they knew that they were naked. The immediate result of their disobedience was a new experience of self-consciousness that resulted from the breaking of the union that formerly characterized their relationship with each other and with God. This feeling of separateness produced a shame that had not been a part of their experience (2:25). Luth: "It is as if [Moses] were saying: 'Satan had closed not only the eyes but also the heart of Eve through the unbelief and disobedience of all her members within and without. But after sin was allowed to enter and was committed, he blithely allows their eyes to be opened that they may see what they had done.' Here Satan seeks to make another gain, namely, that those who have sinned should perish in despair" (AE 1:164).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:8 Lord God walking. See p 39. cool of the day. Hbr indicates that it was the time of the day when the breeze blows, probably evening. hid themselves. Just as covering themselves gave physical expression to their awareness of separation from each other, so their attempt to hide from God gives physical expression to their awareness of separation from Him (cf v 10, Adam's response to God).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:9 God called to the man. God addressed Adam. As the head and steward of God's creation, Adam is responsible for what has happened, even though the woman was the first to disobey God's command (cf Rm 5:12, 15–17). Where are you? Rhetorical, as with the questions God later asks of Adam (v 11) and Cain (4:9). God knows what has been done in secret (cf Ps 90:8; Is 29:15; Jer 23:24).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:10 the sound of You. Sound of God walking in the garden (v 8; see p 39). I was afraid … naked. His shame at being naked, not guilt because of his sin, moved Adam to hide. This revealed a consciousness of self as a being separated from God, which was new to human experience, parallel to the experience of separateness from each other that the man and woman experienced (v 7).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:11 Who told you. Rhetorical. God already knows the answer, as the next question makes clear.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:12 You gave … she gave. Adam's answer attempts to make both God and the woman responsible for his disobedience.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:13 deceived. Hbr implies that the serpent had given her a false hope, an accurate description of events.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:14 dust you shall eat. Implies humiliation and defeat in an ancient Near Eastern context, where defeated rulers were often forced to do obeisance by placing their faces on the ground.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:15 Note movement in the text, which begins with conflict between the woman and the serpent. It then moves to conflict between the descendant of the woman and the descendant of the serpent. But, unusually, it concludes with conflict between the woman's descendant and the serpent himself. Clearly this verse is not simply about the origin of the conflict between humans and snakes, but about a conflict that will culminate with the defeat of the serpent by One who will descend from the woman. This points to Christ and His defeat of Satan on the cross, and for this reason this verse is often called the "protevangelium" (the first promise of the Gospel). her offspring. Hbr zera', "seed" (singular form can refer to one seed or to an entire group; e.g., Eng, "bag of seed," not "bag of seeds"). It refers to all the descendants of Eve, but most significantly to Christ as the Second Adam, i.e., all humanity reduced to one. He. Presence of other masculine grammatical forms makes it clear that Hbr intends the subject to be masculine, not feminine. Vulg inaccurately translates this as a feminine form (she), leading some to interpret this as referring to the Virgin Mary. bruise. Some commentators argue that the two forms of the verb used of the actions of the seed and the serpent are actually from two different Hbr words (e.g., crush … strike in NIV). While there is some support for this among languages related to Hbr, most scholars prefer to take these two forms as being from the same Hbr word. The difference in the degree of injury inflicted does not depend on having two different verbs here but on the differing parts of the body being struck. Luth: "Satan understood this threat well; therefore he has continued to rage against human nature with such great hatred. Adam and Eve were encouraged by this promise. Wholeheartedly they grasped the hope of their restoration; and, full of faith, they saw that God cared about their salvation, since He clearly declares that the male Seed of the woman would prostrate this enemy" (AE 1:193). Chem: "The Son of God announced to our first parents the mystery of the promise of the Gospel which had been hidden from eternity in the bosom of the Father, [when] He gave a brief summary of the doctrine of the Gospel in Gen. 3:15" (LTh 1:37).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:16 childbearing. Entire pregnancy, not only giving birth. desire. Despite the pain associated with pregnancy, women will not cease to desire marital relations. he shall rule. The order God established in creation has not been altered by the fall. Together, Adam and Eve will continue to rule over the rest of creation (1:28). God also intends that Adam remain His steward, responsible for cultivating creation (vv 17, 23), and that the husband remain the head of the family. All of these relationships will be stained by the effects of the fall. That women may experience this order as troublesome and a source of suffering is a direct result of the fall.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:17 listened to. Adam's sin included his failure to act as head of the human community, the role God had given him. cursed is the ground. Adam's role as steward of creation is not taken away. Rather, the curse God places on the ground means that man will suffer in performing his function as husband, even as woman will suffer in her function as wife.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:19 to dust you shall return. Tacit condemnation to death, as God warned Adam initially (2:17), fulfilling the promise that Adam would die after eating from the tree. "Human nature is subjected not only to death and other bodily evils, but also to the devil's kingdom" (Ap II 46).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:20 The man called. Adam gave his wife a new name befitting her role as childbearer. By this name, Adam expresses hope for the future through the promised Seed of the woman. In giving her a new name, he continues his role as steward of God's creation. Eve. Hbr chawwah, "life," hence the explanatory phrase accompanying the name. The Eng "Eve" is a distortion of the way it was transliterated by the Vulg (Hava).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:21 Some commentators argue that God killed animals to provide a covering for Adam and Eve, thus anticipating the introduction of the sacrificial system (as providing a covering for sins), and so ultimately pointing to Christ. However, nothing in this verse necessarily implies that God killed the animals whose skins were used; they could have died of natural causes after the fall. Moreover, this verse is never treated as messianic elsewhere in the Bible. While it may be read by Christians as an allegory pointing to Christ, it is probably more accurate in this context to suggest that the verse demonstrates God's continuing care for Adam and Eve (and ultimately for all creation) despite the judgment that He had pronounced on them. Luth: "Here Adam and Eve are dressed in garments by the Lord God Himself. Whenever they looked at their garments, these were to serve as a reminder to them to give thought to their wretched fall from supreme happiness into the utmost misfortune and trouble. Thus they were to be constantly afraid of sinning, to repent continually, and to sigh for the forgiveness of sins through the promised Seed. This is also why He clothed them, not in foliage or in cotton but in the skins of slain animals, for a sign that they are mortal and that they are living in certain death" (AE 1:221).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:22 like one of Us. See note, 1:26. knowing good and evil. God acknowledged the truth of what the serpent said to the woman: having done evil by disobeying God, Adam and Eve now know both good and evil. tree of life. See note, 2:9.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:23 to work. God intends that Adam's role as steward of creation should continue, even after expulsion from the garden.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 3:24 cherubim. Angels. See note, Ezk 10:1. flaming sword. Lit, "the flame of the sword." Probably refers to flashes of light reflecting from the sword as it is swung by the cherubim. guard the way. Cherubim prevent Adam from returning to the garden. Judgment upon sin cannot be undone by a human's choice. God alone can undo the effects of disobedience. This is the first clear indication that if people were to be saved, salvation would have to come from God alone and from what God would do in the future.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 3 With the words that God speaks to the serpent, to Eve, and to Adam after their disobedience, He sets the course for the rest of biblical history. Here there is judgment for sin, but also the first hint that the effects of the fall will one day be undone. There is no way back to Eden. The only way for Adam and Eve and their descendants is forward to the cross. The long story culminates in Jesus Christ, the Seed of the woman, but it does not end there. Today, we are part of the unfolding story. We have received God's grace through the Seed of the woman, and now we are sent out to the ends of the earth to bear witness to the completion of God's plan of redemption and to offer His grace in Jesus Christ to all the descendants of Adam and Eve. • O Savior, write our names into Your story, into the Lamb's Book of Life. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:1 I have gotten. Hbr phrase (qanithi) is wordplay on the name Cain (qayin). with the help of. Unusual grammar. Some interpreters, including Luther (AE 1:242), understand Hbr to mean that Eve thought Cain was the Lord incarnate, the fulfillment of the promise of the seed in 3:15. Eve's statement more likely recognizes that the fulfillment of her role as mother is a gift from God and that God has seen her through the pain of childbirth (3:16).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:2 Cain tended the soil that God had given his father. See note, 2:15. Abel tended their flocks, which is probably implied in the distinction between "beasts of the earth" and "livestock" mentioned in the creation account (1:24–25), but this is the first time domestication is specifically mentioned in the Bible.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:3 course of time. Lit, "end of days," implying the end of the growing season. Cain's offering is apparently intended as a thanksgiving offering for the harvest. The text does not record God commanding offerings of any kind, so we must assume that this is either a spontaneous offering of thanks or that God's command was not recorded.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:4 firstborn of his flock. Like Cain's gift, Abel's gift was a thank offering, in this case for the fruitfulness of his flock. had regard. Hbr "look at," "gaze upon," "pay attention to." God favored Abel's sacrifice.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:5 had no regard. God did not pay attention to Cain's offering. Abel's offering was not inherently superior to Cain's offering. Both were proper thank offerings. Throughout the OT, God looks with favor on offerings of grain and other produce, just as He does on offerings of animals. See pp 170–71. God regarded Abel's offering because it was given in true faith (Heb 11:4). Although the text does not say so directly, the language implies that the offerings were accompanied by prayer requests, and that Abel received that for which he prayed but Cain did not. his face fell. Disappointment. Contrast to note at v 7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:6 Why are you angry. Cain made the common mistake of thinking that God can be influenced by means of our offerings. God repeatedly reminds His people that He will be gracious to whom He will be gracious and will show mercy upon whom He will show mercy (Ex 33:19). Iren: "God is not appeased by sacrifice. … He who thus cherishes secret sin does not deceive God by that sacrifice which is offered correctly as to outward appearance" (ANF 1:485).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:7 Several aspects of this verse are difficult. will you not be accepted? Suggests that doing good should be its own satisfaction. See ESV note. Hbr "lifting up" suggests a smile (cf Nu 6:26). crouching. Cain should resist the attempt of sin to rule him. The dominating power of sin does not come from God. desire … rule. He warns Cain to resist the temptation to take out his anger and disappointment on his brother. Cf 3:16 on the issues of "desire" and "rule" that confronted Eve. Mel: "[God's statement] teaches the difference between inward righteousness and external sacrifices. … There is [also] a warning concerning the coming judgment" (Chem, LTh 1:311).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:8 Cain did not heed God's warning. He gave in to the domination of sin and exercised his angry desire by killing his brother. Cain spoke. See ESV note. Other Hbr texts support the reading in the note. The substance of Cain's conversation with Abel may have been accidentally omitted from the Masoretic Hbr text used as the basis of most modern translations.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:9 Where is Abel your brother? Rhetorical (see note, 3:9). God asked the question to give Cain the opportunity to confess his sin (cf 3:11).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:11 cursed from the ground. Adam, driven from the garden for his sin, was forced to toil to get the earth to produce fruit. Now Cain, as a result of his further sin, will be driven off the soil entirely. It will produce no fruit for him (v 12). its mouth. Grave in which Cain buried Abel is pictured as the mouth of the land, which has opened to swallow the dead from the killer's hand.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:12 its strength. Its produce. You shall be a fugitive and a wanderer. As Cain will not be able to earn his living by tending the soil, he will have to search for sustenance.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:13 greater than I can bear. Cain's punishment is twofold: expulsion from the land so that he must wander the earth (v 12) and separation from God (v 14). His selfish response shows a lack of true repentance. Cain demonstrates no guilt or remorse over his sin; rather, he complains about the harshness of his punishment.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:14 from Your face I shall be hidden. Just as Adam was expelled from God's presence when he was forced out of the Garden of Eden, so Cain interprets his being forced off the land as an expulsion from God's presence. Separation from God is the most severe aspect of divine judgment. See "be with," p 5. whoever finds me. Cain expects to encounter his other siblings in his wanderings. They are not mentioned in this account because they are not important to the story of Cain killing his brother. The Bible does not attempt to give us a complete, detailed history of everything, but focuses on events most important to its theological purpose. See note, v

17. will kill me. Following the biblical principle that the punishment should fit the crime, Cain expects that God's judgment against him for killing his brother will eventually lead to his own death.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:15 a mark. Never described and not important. What is important is that God continued to care for Cain even after pronouncing judgment on him, just as He provided clothes for Adam and Eve to show His ongoing care for them after the fall (3:21). Chem: "God … clearly prohibits private revenge" (LTh 2:353).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:16 away from the presence of the LORD. See note, v 14. Nod. Wordplay on Hbr nad, translated "wanderer" (v 14); general description of Cain's situation. This word does not occur elsewhere in the Bible or other ancient Near Eastern literature as a place-name.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:17 As is the practice throughout Gn, the line of Cain's descendants is terminated with a brief genealogical summary because he does not inherit the promise (3:15) given to his parents. The main story resumes with those through whom the promise will be transmitted, starting in v 25. his wife. Apparently from among the other descendants of Adam and Eve to which Cain had previously referred (v 14; cf 12:13, Abram's marriage to his half-sister, Sarai). Such marriages were likely common in this earliest period of history. The Lord would later prohibit marriages to close kin (Lv 18). Enoch. First of several OT people by this name. Aug: "It does not follow that we are to believe this to have been [Cain's] first-born; for we cannot suppose that this is proved by the expression 'he knew his wife,' as if then for the first time he had had intercourse with her. … Scripture employs this expression neither always when a birth is recorded nor then only when the birth of a first-born is mentioned" (NPNF 1 2:290). he built a city, he called. Different interpretations of Hbr are possible. Likely, Enoch built the city and named it after his son Irad. It is the first city mentioned in the Bible. That it is built by a descendant of Cain, who was no longer able to earn a living by tilling the soil, is appropriate. The term "city" may be misleading to modern readers. The earliest permanent settlements in the ancient Near East were extremely small, often with dwellings for just a few families.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:19 two wives. First polygamy in OT, which strongly suggests that it was a deviation from the norm at the time, and that this was the first instance among Adam's descendants. Though God did not specifically prohibit polygamy, it contradicted His design for marriage from the beginning, which consisted of the permanent union of one man and one woman. See pp 54–55.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:20 have livestock. See note, v 2. Jabal was likely the father of those who engage in transhumance, the agrarian lifestyle characterized by tending livestock while moving from place to place according to the seasons, thus living in tents.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:21 lyre and pipe. Archaeologists have found evidence of musical instruments dating back to at least 3000 BC. lyre. Forerunner of modern harp, but may have been more like a modern zither (a wooden soundbox with strings stretched across the top that may be plucked or strummed). Whatever its configuration, the lyre here is a stringed instrument. pipe. See p 993.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:22 forger. Modern archaeology dates the beginning of metalworking (in copper) in the ancient Near East at c 4000 BC; this fits within the Gn chronology. instruments. Not musical instruments but tools made of bronze or iron. bronze. Hbr nechosheth may refer to copper or bronze. iron. See note, Jb 28:2. Apparently, Tubal-cain developed the first technology of metalworking in copper, which led to work in bronze and iron (i.e., that he was the "father" of those who forged; see wording in v 21).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:23–24 Lamech's boast illustrates the depth of the effects of sin on Cain's descendants. Lamech intimidates his wives by bragging of his violence, which exceeds both the accepted social norms of justice and Cain's sinful vengeance inflicted on his brother. The fact that Lamech stands at the end of Cain's genealogy and that he exceeds Cain's violence by multiples of the number seven suggest the logical outcome of Cain's violence. Thus, in both his polygamy and his violence, Lamech personifies the descent into sin that leads ultimately to the flood (6:5–8). The extended reference here not only emphasizes the reason that the line of Cain cannot inherit the promise that God had given to Eve but also serves as a fitting conclusion to ch 4's overall theme about the effects of Adam and Eve's disobedience.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:23 I have killed … for wounding … for striking. The ancient Near Eastern (and OT) standard of proportional justice ("an eye for an eye") limits the punishment for an injury to the equivalent of the injury received. Lamech bragged of going beyond this and killing those who have merely injured him.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:24 Cain's revenge. So pervasive is sin's effect that Cain's revenge on Abel is presented as a positive model to be emulated, and Lamech boasts that his vengeance exceeds Cain's. By contrast, God teaches His people to avoid private vengeance and to trust in God to balance the scales of justice in His time and in His way (cf v 15; Lv 19:18; Rm 12:19). Christ teaches that we should be generous in our forgiveness (Mt 18:21–22).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:25 Seth. Hbr sheth, play on Hbr shath, translated "appointed." Fitting name because this son is also appointed to bear the promise given to Eve for future generations (see note, 3:15).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 4:26 call upon the name. See p 842. the LORD. See p 1227. Phrase has caused much debate about Moses' use of sources. See pp 3–5; see also note, Ex 6:3. Wording could mean people began to worship God, whose name was later revealed to be "Yahweh," in an organized fashion. "The descendants of the well-respected patriarchs, and the patriarchs themselves, called to mind constantly how in the beginning a person had been created righteous and holy by God. They know that through the fraud of the Serpent, Adam transgressed God's command, became a sinner, and corrupted and cast himself with all his descendants into death and eternal condemnation. They encouraged and comforted themselves again by the preaching about the woman's seed, who would bruise the Serpent's head" (SD V 23).

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 4 Gn 4 begins with a murder and traces how the shadow of violence lengthens until Lamech perverts God's intention for marriage by taking two wives and boasting that he is 77 times more violent than his murderous ancestor Cain. But we also learn of the birth of Seth, through whom God's promise (3:15) will continue. God's plan is not stopped by murder. God appoints another seed of the woman to receive the promise and to carry the story forward. The promise continues to unfold until it comes at last to the cross. There, Satan tries to derail God's plan by killing the seed of the woman. Once again, God prevails, not by appointing another, but by raising Jesus from the dead in declaration that the work is finished, creation is redeemed, and death itself—the chief effect of the fall—is put to death. • Derail for me, O Lord, the devil's evil plans. Grant me Your help and salvation in Christ. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:1 book of the generations. Second "toledoth" heading (see pp 10–11) presents the genealogy of Adam's descendants through whom the promises pass until they come to Noah. See pp 3–5. The genealogical summary in ch 5 speeds the history toward the next major event, the flood. When God created man. Basic fact of the creation of man in God's image is stated, but the fall and its consequences are omitted.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:2 Man. Hbr 'adam, used as the class name for all mankind. See note, 2:7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:3 Cain and Abel are not mentioned here because they are not part of the genealogical line through whom the promise passes down to Noah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:4 other sons and daughters. The son mentioned in the genealogy is not necessarily the father's firstborn child. In addition to Cain and Abel, some of these other sons and daughters may have been born before Seth. See note, 4:17.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:5 The long life spans attributed to the patriarchs and the careful articulation of their ages at the time of the birth of heirs have raised questions about how the numbers in this text should be understood. See pp 8–11.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:9 Kenan. Alternate form of "Cain" in Hbr. Together with Tubal-cain (4:22), suggests that the name of Adam's firstborn may have become common.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:18 Enoch. Not Cain's son by the same name (4:17).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:22 walked with God. The phrase, used elsewhere in the Bible only of Noah (6:9), suggests an esp close relationship that explains the remarkable favor shown toward these two men. See p 7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:24 God took him. Unique in the Bible. The only other place that God is said to "take" someone deals with God taking Adam and placing him in the garden (2:15). In this instance, God took Enoch into heaven. The uniqueness of this event inspired considerable interest in Enoch in later generations. During the intertestamental period, some writers used Enoch as a character in a number of speculative works, which they pretended he had written. These were eventually collected into a work known today as 1 Enoch (see note, Jude 14–15). Other works in Enoch's name (2 Enoch and 3 Enoch) date from even later periods. See p 1560.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:25 Lamech. Not Cain's descendant by the same name (4:18–24).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:27 Methusaleh is the longest-living person recorded in Scripture. Though ages attributed to pre-flood persons seem long by our standards, a list of Sumerian kings attributes a 43,200-year reign to the ruler Enmenluanna. Both texts point to the idea that the earliest people lived longer. he died. In the year of the flood, at the time of Noah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:29 Noah. Wordplay between the form of the name noach and "[he] shall bring us relief" (yenachmehu). relief. Or, "comfort." Apparently, Lamech believed that Noah was the promised seed of Eve who would restore the fallen world and undo the curse God placed on the earth in judgment for Adam and Eve's disobedience (3:17–19). Noah does comfort mankind. Though he is not the Messiah, Noah delivers mankind through the flood, which points toward the salvation that will come by the Messiah. See note, 1Pt 3:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 5:32 After Noah was 500 years old. Hbr text departs from the formula used throughout ch 5 ("when X had lived Y years"). Apparently Moses wanted to mention all three sons because all are important to the account that follows. The change of formula has led some to suggest that Shem, Ham, and Japheth were triplets. Though possible, such an interpretation is not specifically indicated or required. Noah may have had other children in the first 500 years of his life who are not mentioned in this account because they are no longer living with Noah and are not part of the household who go with him into the ark. The Bible regularly omits historical details that are not significant to the unfolding story. See note, 4:14.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 5 The genealogical summary advances the story to the next major development—the flood. Genealogies teach an important theological lesson: God perseveres in the fulfillment of His promises. God does not become bored with His plan or discouraged by Satan's efforts to derail it. Like God's people before us, we often wander from God's path. Yet, God works patiently to set the course right again and to draw us back to Himself. For this reason, the genealogies that may seem boring actually proclaim "The Lord is not slow to fulfill His promise as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance" (2Pt 3:9). • Lord, fulfill Your good purpose for me in Christ, as You have promised. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:1 daughters. Specifically mentioned because of their role in the following verses.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:2 sons of God. Godly believers, Sethites, through whom the promised Messiah would come (3:15). Some interpreters have considered the "sons of God" angels, based on the expression in Jb 38:7. However, such a conclusion directly contradicts Jesus' teaching about the nature of angels (Mt 22:30) and Moses' teaching about "kinds" (see pp 9–10). daughters of man. Godless unbelievers, Cainites. any they chose. The "sons of God" looked longingly upon Sethite and Cainite women, interested only in the attractive ones.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:3 My Spirit shall not abide. Despite the presence of God's Spirit, people's conduct continually demonstrated that they were weak and sinful. flesh. Hbr basar; usually means musculature of a body. Here it is contrasted with the uncreated and divine Spirit, which lasts forever. People had degenerated to the point of being mere flesh. See p 1902.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:4 Nephilim. Thugs, tyrants. sons of God. See note, v 2. mighty men … the men of renown. First nobility of the world was a group of tyrants, who were admired nonetheless. They were sinners ripe for judgment in God's eyes.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:5 Both the indifference of the Sethites to their heritage and the high-handed violence of the Cainites made clear the magnitude of the wickedness that engulfed the earth. Humankind was incapable of doing good, due to the condition of their hearts. See note, Ps 51:5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:6 sorry … grieved. Human emotions are used to express the pain that God experienced when He reflected on the total corruption of humankind by sin. Man's sin is God's sorrow.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:7 animals … creeping things … birds. Originally created for the use of humankind, other living things will share in the consequences of man's evil. Cf 3:17–18.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:8 found favor. See p 6. The Lord's favor, found and not won, is present even in the midst of the most severe judgments.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:1–8 Seth's descendants increasingly participate in the evil that overwhelms God's creation, preferring their own inclinations toward beauty and power over God's clear will for their lives. Recognizing that the human heart is a continual source of evil, God's patience is about to give way to judgment. But God also plans to have mercy. Even as Noah finds favor in the eyes of the Lord, so also the faithful of all times have God's favor on account of the promised Savior. • We thank You, O Lord, that You look upon us with favor because of Christ Jesus, our Savior. Keep us ever in this faith. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:9 generations of Noah. Focus is not on the great disaster of the flood but on the deliverance God provided to and through Noah. righteous man. See p 843. blameless in his generation. See note, Jb 1:1. Noah's character and conduct were quite different from that of his contemporaries. However, he was not sinless (9:21). walked with God. Noah was publicly known to worship the Lord. See p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:10 A major part of Noah's walk with God was the rearing of three God-fearing sons during godless times. See note, 5:32.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:11–12 V 8 closes the second section of the history recorded in Gn, a history of humankind's degeneration and the Lord's pronouncement that He will destroy the world. These verses again briefly describe conditions in the world to inform the reader of their cause.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:11 corrupt. Term used elsewhere of idolatry and of perverted worship (Ex 32:7; Jgs 2:19). violence. Denial of the true God leads to cruelty toward fellow human beings. See note, 4:23–24.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:12 And God saw. Anticipates God's action. Corruption and violence had become so conspicuous and outrageous that God could not refrain from enacting punishment.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:13 an end of all flesh. With the exception of Noah and his family, the whole human race, which had resisted the influence of God's Spirit, was marked for destruction.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:14 ark. Hbr word occurring only here and in Ex 2:3, 5 (where it is the basket into which Moses was placed). Likely it was shaped more like a barge than a boat. When the flood story in the ancient Epic of Gilgamesh was discovered in the 1800s, some scholars regarded this as proof that the Israelites had simply copied or adapted Mesopotamian legends for writing the story of Noah. However, subsequent research has demonstrated the universality of the flood story, which is told in various forms by numerous cultures across several continents. gopher wood. Resinous wood, possibly cypress, used for shipbuilding. pitch. Caulking, probably asphalt, used also by Moses' mother to make his basket watertight (Ex 2:3, 2).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:15 cubits. See p cx. The ark was c 450 ft long, 75 ft wide, and 45 ft high.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:16 to a cubit above. Probably refers to openings for light and air around the entire structure, a cubit from the roof.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:17 breath of life. See note, 2:7. Humans and animals would be destroyed, with the exception of aquatic animals for whom breath is not essential to life (cf 7:22).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:18 covenant. God assures Noah that he will live through the coming flood to receive His covenant (9:9). See p 127.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:19–20 The ark was large enough to carry two of every "sort" of animal and still leave ample room for food.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:19 two of every sort. God's interest in the preservation of a remnant included the animal world.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:20 according to their kinds. Not species as described by modern biology. See pp 9–10. creeping thing. See note, 1:24. shall come in to you. The instruction to "bring two of every sort" (v 19) is facilitated by the animals making themselves available.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:21 every sort of food. Noah and his family would stay busy providing more than a year's supply of food for thousands of mouths.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:22 Noah responded with willing obedience as one who walks with God (v 9).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:1 righteous. See p 843. in this generation. Noah's righteousness was exceptional in his generation. There were no others left, though Noah did warn his contemporaries of the coming judgment.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:2 seven pairs. Animals likely to be used for sacrifice, an exception to the general rule regarding pairs (6:19). clean … not clean. The law distinguishing between clean and unclean animals would be clearly established at Mount Sinai, but the difference between clean and unclean animals was known long before, also by Noah. See p 300.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:3 seven pairs of the birds. Clean birds. See note, Lv 11:13–19.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:4 Significance of the number 40 elsewhere in Scripture begins here (e.g., Ex 24:18; Nu 14:33; Mt 4:2; Ac 1:3). It is often a length of time characterizing a critical period in redemptive history (cf v 12; Dt 9:11; Mt 4:1–11). See p 217.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:5 Noah did all. Repeated (cf 6:22) as the most important detail. Luth: "The particular praise of Noah's faith is that he stays on the royal road; he adds nothing, changes nothing, and takes nothing away from God's directive" (AE 2:77).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:6 Despite Noah's advanced age, he lived nearly a third of his life after the flood.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:7 his wife and his sons' wives. Eight persons survived the flood. Noah and his family did not participate in the polygamy of the Cainites (see note, 4:19). to escape the waters. Lit, "from the face of the waters," suggesting a fearsome moment as the waters began to burst forth (v 11).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:8 clean … not clean. Noah executed the divine instructions he had received (see note, v 2; cf 6:22). See p 300.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:9 went into the ark. The animals continued to cooperate; divine impulse effected their timely and orderly boarding of the huge vessel.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:10 The seven days mentioned in v 4 had now elapsed.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:11 second month … seventeenth day. A day fixed in the annals of time and one that the survivors would never forget. fountains of the great deep. See note, 2:6. Currents caused by upheavals of the earth created onslaughts of water and waves. windows of the heavens. Violent, torrential rains burst from the clouds.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:12 As predicted in v 4.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:13 entered the ark. Luth: "God could indeed have preserved [Noah] by countless other methods. … But in this way the faith and obedience of Noah are praised" (AE 2:90).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:14 according to its kind. Repeated (cf 6:20). Luth: "The Holy Spirit is not wordy without purpose. … By this procedure Moses wanted to thrust a goad, as it were, into the minds of his readers, to keep them from thinking that his message dealt with some unimportant matter" (AE 2:91).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:15 breath of life. Used earlier to refer to the objects of God's wrath (6:17); here it refers to those who were the objects of His grace. See note, 2:7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:16 the LORD shut him in. Act of mercy to protect Noah and his family from assault and to protect them from any inclination to show mercy to last-minute penitents. No power in heaven or on earth will break the door down in order to touch those whom God is protecting.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:18 ark floated. The waters that destroyed the earth also bore up the ark and saved Noah and his family. Peter used this image to speak of Baptism (1Pt 3:20–21).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:19 waters prevailed. Nothing stands in the way of turbulent floodwaters and tidal waves. Vast geological changes were certain to take place. (Consider the kind of geological erosion exhibited in the Washington State Scablands.) all the high mountains … were covered. Indicates a global flood (2Pt 3:6).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:20 fifteen cubits deep. Seems to be a detail only God would know, rather than a measurement taken by Noah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:21 all flesh died. God's words of 6:17 are fulfilled. all mankind. Climax of death.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:22 breath of life. See note, 2:7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:23 He blotted out … They were blotted out. No natural catastrophe; this was God's wrath.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 7:24 The waters are now calm after the storm; the flood has crested.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 6:9–7:24 Faithful Noah and his family experience the greatest horror this earth has known, but the ark carries them up and away from the destruction and total devastation of the great flood. Although dwarfed by Noah's experience, all Christians experience turbulence in their lives that can lead them to the brink of despair. But through Noah, God has demonstrated that He will lift up and save His faithful people whom He has cleansed in Holy Baptism. • Lord, give to Your people today the confidence in Your salvation that Noah demonstrated when he willingly placed himself and the welfare of his family into Your gracious care. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:1 God remembered Noah. Describes God's intention to act kindly. When God remembers His people, He does so "for good" (Ne 5:19; 13:31). See p 843. beasts … livestock. Wild and domestic animals were also remembered. made a wind blow. Start of drying process. First of a series of parallels to the creation events of ch 1 (cf 1:2, "Spirit").
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:2 closed … restrained. Cessation of currents from below are necessary for the waters to abate.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:3–4 Their mission accomplished, the waters returned to their places above or below the earth. The grounding of the ark after 150 days was the first measure of progress.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:4 mountains of Ararat. Exact location uncertain; probably the mountainous region north of Mesopotamia and east of modern Turkey. See map, p 609.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:5 mountains were seen. Although the tops of mountains were visible, Noah was not eager to leave the ark.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:6 window. See note, 6:16.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:7 raven. Noah used birds to secure information. The failure of the scavenger bird to return tells Noah that there is more than a blank waste of water outside the ark. to and fro. Perhaps from carcass to carcass. until the waters were dried up. The raven stayed in the area of the ark until conditions improved.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:8 dove. More particular than a raven about a place to land.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:9 no place to set her foot. Wet and muddy ground would not be a good a place for a dove to land, nor would high altitudes.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:10 seven days. Same length of time allotted for entering the ark (7:4, 10).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:11 in the evening. Delayed return indicated dry ground on which the dove could land. freshly plucked olive leaf. The dove brought a new leaf from a species that prefers lower altitudes. (Olive seeds would have had a few months to sprout after the waters began to recede.) This was God's sign that the land could welcome and sustain Noah and the animals.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:12 another seven days. Remarkable patience! she did not return. Testimony that the waters had for the most part subsided.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:13 six hundred and first year … first month … first day. Based on Noah's life. Emphasis on "first" signals a new beginning for humankind. the covering. Noah, though cautious as ever, concluded that the ark's roof could be removed.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:14 dried out. After one year and 11 days, the earth was dry enough for occupation.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:15 Then God said. Just as he entered the ark when instructed, Noah waited for word to leave it.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:16 Go out from the ark. The ark was intended to be a shelter, not a home.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:17 swarm. To "breed abundantly," a word ordinarily used of insects. be fruitful and multiply. God's words of 1:22 are repeated for a new day on earth.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:19 The exiting from the ark was as orderly as the entering.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:1–19 Noah demonstrates extraordinary patience and willingness to listen and obey God while confined in the ark for more than a year. People of faith do not always demonstrate such patience and often act on their own, even under less trying circumstances than those of Noah. But God is patient when His people are not; in Christ, He provides forgiveness and deliverance when His people do not have the patience of Noah. • Thank You, gracious Lord, for Your patience and forgiveness when we do not trust as we should and when we act on our own without patience. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:20 clean animal … clean bird. See notes, 7:2, 3. burnt offerings. Only offerings that used entire animals, indicating joyful thanks and complete dedication to God. See pp 170–71.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:21 pleasing aroma. Pleasant because it was offered in faith and sincerity (see notes, 4:5; Eph 5:2). Mel: "He was pleased with the sacrifice of Noah, his prayer, his thanksgiving, his praise, and his teaching" (Chem, LTh 2:569). curse. Never again will there be a worldwide catastrophe through flood. See note, 9:11; cf 2Pt 3:7. evil from his youth. See note, 6:5. "There is a distinction between man's nature and original sin. This applied not only when he was originally created by God pure and holy and without sin [Genesis 1:31], but it also applies to the way we have that nature now after the fall" (FC Ep I 2). Chem: "There were not in the world at that time any other humans than righteous Noah with his family, and yet even of them he says [this word about evil]. … He is speaking not only of the thoughts, but of the make-up or imagination of the human heart" (LTh 1:288).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:22 Positive side of God's promise (v 21). Normal succession of times and seasons will continue until the Day of Judgment.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:1 Be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth. What God blesses, He also enables. See note, 1:28.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:2 fear of you and the dread. The relationship of humans and animals would be different from that experienced by Adam at creation (2:18) and by Noah in the ark. Into your hand they are delivered. People will have dominion to hunt or tame the animals.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:3–4 Humans will eat animals. The Lord enacts dietary rules, which Moses later repeated and amplified (Lv 11:1–31). The decreasing fruitfulness of the earth (3:17–19) perhaps made it necessary for the animals to serve this purpose. In extremely cold or arid regions, humans could not survive without animals for food.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:3 Every moving thing. While meat would now supplement humans' diet, only freshly killed animals were to be consumed. green plants. Although meat likely was eaten before the flood, now it may be eaten with divine sanction. Chem: "The Fifth Commandment is not talking about beasts or birds or fish. … Beasts were to be eaten. … But he who beats a pack of animals to death sins against the Seventh Commandment. God has willed that, in the very act of killing, all cruelty be avoided" (LTh 2:408–9).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:4 life, that is, its blood. Blood was regarded as the seat and soul of life. God's people were not to emulate the pagan practice of eating blood. See note, Ac 15:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:5 reckoning. Killing animals for food would be permissible, but not the killing of humans—by man or beast. God will demand an account. This passage is a clear proclamation that human life is different from animal life.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:6 by man shall his blood be shed. God uses human agents to punish evildoers, the beginning of court justice and capital punishment (cf Rm 13:4). image. Murder strikes at humanity's dignity and God's majesty. See note, 1:26. Chem: "We must distinguish between public officials to whom has been given the commandment to kill (Ex. 22:18–20; Gen. 9:6) and private individuals to whom the commandment is given, 'Thou shalt not kill' " (LTh 2:405).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:7 More than a repetition of v 1, this accompanies v 6 as a basic ordinance that will be binding upon humankind as long as the earth stands. Cf Ps 127–28.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:8 and to his sons. God included a word of assurance to future generations.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:9 I establish My covenant. God's covenants are unilateral; He obligates Himself to observe the terms of His own contract (here, a reassurance to the flood's survivors after their fearsome experience). See p 127.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:10 with every living creature. Animals also benefited from God's covenant.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:11 Regions may be devastated; people and animals may be swept away by floods. But never again will a flood be universal. See note, 8:21.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:12 A rainbow is a visible seal and reminder of God's covenant commitments (vv 13–17). See p 127.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:13 My bow in the cloud. When the marvelous rainbow appears, believers will recall with joy its God-given significance. Rainbows may not have existed until this time (AE 2:148).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:14 bring clouds over the earth. Perhaps a new occurrence as a result of atmospheric changes from the flood.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:15 God will be faithful to the covenant He has made. See "remember," p 843.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:16 bow. Natural laws that produce rainbows were already in existence, but now they would work their giant wonders in the sky with particular significance. everlasting covenant. While this covenant will last only until the end of time, it is also associated with God's everlasting covenant relationship with His chosen people.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:17 This is the sign. Sight of a magnificent rainbow may even have accompanied this summary statement.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 8:20–9:17 After the fearsome yearlong experience on the ark, God reassures Noah and his family that He will never again send a universal flood. As time would soon tell and continues to tell, no amount of amazing rescues and rainbow sightings can keep humankind, including God's own people, from falling into sin. But God is faithful to His covenants, even when people are not. The message of every rainbow tells us He is faithful to His promise to provide a Savior. • O God, for Jesus' sake, grant that every sighting of a rainbow may bring to mind Your promises of grace and mercy. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:18 Ham was the father of Canaan. Because God's chosen people would in due time possess Canaan, the origin of its early inhabitants is noted. This anticipates the story in vv 21–22, where Ham acted as the father of the Canaanites, known for their immorality.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:20 man of the soil. Noah returned to farming (5:29) for his livelihood.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:21 drunk. Scripture's first reference to wine associates it with drunkenness and immodest behavior. See note, Pr 23:29–35. uncovered in his tent. Noah threw aside the garment that had covered him.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:22 saw the nakedness. Expression and incident are confusing, perhaps due to modesty in the description. Hbr expression could imply more than Ham seeing his father uncovered (see note, Lv 18:6). At the very least, the incident had grave consequences for the family and Ham's descendants. told. He broadcast, rather than covered, the immodesty.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:23 Shem and Japheth took extra measures to avoid further disgrace to their father.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:24 knew. Perhaps Noah remembered the event or wondered about the garment that covered him.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:25 Cursed be Canaan. Third pronouncement of a curse in Scripture (3:14–19; 4:11), a prediction of the future subjugation of the Canaanites. See p 6. servant of servants. Hbr superlative indicates lowest of slaves. "Canaan" comes from the verb for stooping or submitting. As the son of Ham, Noah's youngest son (v 24), Canaan would be last in authority and inheritance, not only because of birth order, but esp because of alienation from the family due to his father's immorality.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:26 Blessed be the LORD , the God of Shem. The Lord is blessed as the source of Shem's blessings. He is also the God of Shem in a special sense, because Shem's descendants included the Israelites. See "blessed," p 842.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:27 dwell in the tents of Shem. Share in the blessings bestowed on Shem's descendants.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:28–29 Continues genealogy of 5:32, which had been postponed for the flood story.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:28 350 years. Noah lived a third of his life after the great flood.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:29 and he died. The 10th and last member of Seth's genealogy (5:3–32), Noah's obituary ends like that of his worthy ancestors.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 9:18–29 Noah's sinful drunkenness results in more sinful behavior and tragic consequences for one of his sons. God's faithful people, past and present, are never free from temptations that often lead them to sin, at times with adverse consequences for generations. The biblical heroes were sinful men and women who lived by faith in the forgiveness of sins. God has been faithful to His promises and has provided forgiveness of sins and everlasting life through the salvation gained by His Son. • Thank You, O Lord, for the warning that accompanies the encouragement that You have given us through Your servant Noah. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:1 generations. See pp 8–11. Known as the Table of Nations, this account fills the gap in history between Noah and Abraham, emphasizes the brotherhood of man, shows the relation of the Semitic nations in the broader region, and builds on this foundation for the history of redemption. More attention is given to those nations with closer relationships to Israel. born … after the flood. Noah's sons likely had no children until after the flood. For locations in ch 10, see map, p 33.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:2–5 sons of Japheth. List is from least to greatest (in terms of importance to the descendants of Shem; see note, v 21).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:2 Gomer. The Assyrian Gimmirrai people, located north of the Black Sea, instrumental in the fall of the Assyrian Empire. Magog. Scythians, mentioned in Ezk 39:6 as a heathen menace threatening to engulf God's people (Rv 20:8–9). Madai. Hbr for the Medes, located in mountainous country bordering the Caspian Sea. Javan. Hbr name for the Ionian Greeks (Is 66:19; Ezk 27:13). Tubal. Opponents of Assyria who lived northeast of Cilicia in Asia Minor (Ezk 38:2). Meshech. Associated with and living east of Tubal, finally settling in the vicinity of the Black Sea. Tiras. Pirates of the sea, possibly associated with the region/people of Thrace of later times.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:3 Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah. Peoples located in the Upper Euphrates region.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:4 Elishah. People whose region of settlement is unclear. Tarshish. People of southern Spain and Gibraltar country. Kittim. Kition, a settlement in Cyprus. Dodanim. Related to the Ionians and possibly located in Rhodes (a Greek isle).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:5 Descendants of Japheth settled along and north of the Great Sea. Each had their own country, language, and tribal divisions. References to various languages in vv 5, 20, and 31 show that the situation described in ch 10 developed after the events of ch 11, when only one language prevailed (11:1). Ch 10 gives the setting for Abram in ch 12 and following.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:6–20 Descendants of Ham were located in southwestern Asia and northeast Africa. Greater detail indicates greater involvement with Shem's descendants, the line of promise.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:6 Cush. The Upper Nile region, today's Ethiopia. Egypt. Hbr mitsraim. Lit, "two Egypts," Upper and Lower. Put. Associated with Egypt and Africa, either Libya or the land of the ancient Egyptians called Punt, Africa's Somali country. Canaan. Originally the low costal plain northeast of Egypt, later extended to include the Jordan Valley and the whole region west of the river.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:7 Descendants of Cush settled in Arabia.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:8 first … mighty man. Powerful warrior or community leader. See note, Ru 2:1. Nimrod was the first after the flood to move early civilization in a new direction (cf v 9), which Scripture does not well define.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:9 mighty hunter. Hunting or warrior activities were the first steps toward dominating men and using them for conquest. Large, well-organized hunting parties may be in mind. it is said. Nimrod's reputation was widespread and emulated by others. See pp 3–5. before the LORD. His conduct may have defied God. The expression speaks of being in the presence of God, who determined to judge the actions of humankind (cf 9:5–6). Early rabbinic and Christian interpreters often attributed the building of the tower of Babel to Nimrod.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:10 kingdom. Earth's first empire, the product of aggression. Cities listed were great postflood cities. Babel. Ancient city of Babylon. Erech. Hbr for Uruk, one of the important cities of ancient Mesopotamia. Accad. Became chief center of Semites in Babylon. Calneh. Exact location unknown. Shinar. Babylon, possibly associated with Shumir of the Sumerians.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:11 Nineveh. Most famous of the three Assyrian capitals. Rehoboth-Ir. Possibly a suburb of Nineveh. Calah. Chief Assyrian center southeast of Nineveh.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:12 the great city. Nineveh, a metropolis with all its surrounding cities.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:13 Ludim. In northern Africa, west of the Nile (cf Jer 46:9; Ezk 27:10; 30:5). Anamim. In north Africa, west of Egypt near Cyrene. Lehabim. Early Libyans; desert tribes. Naphtuhim. People of lower Egypt.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:14 Pathrusim. Inhabitants of Pathros; its capital, Thebes. Casluhim. Possibly inhabitants of Casiotis on the Great Sea. Philistines. Indo-European invaders of Egypt who migrated to southwest Canaan and troubled Israel until the time of David.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:15 Sidon. People of ancient Canaanite seacoast city by the same name. Heth. Origin of Hittites, who for centuries occupied the region from near Sidon to the Euphrates.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:16 Jebusites. Ancient inhabitants of Jerusalem. Amorites. Occupants of the hill country of Canaan prior to its conquest by the Israelites. Girgashites. Relatively unimportant tribe of Canaan.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:17–18 dispersed. Along with Girgashites, tribes listed inhabited relatively small city-states and in due time went out of existence upon arrival of Israelites.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:19 territory of the Canaanites. Parameters of Canaanite presence reached north as far as Sidon, south as far as Gaza, and east as far as the Salt Sea area.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:20 Descendants of Ham settled east and south of the Great Sea. Each had their country, separate language, and tribal divisions.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:21 children of Eber. Specifically mentioned here because the Hebrews were descendants of Eber. elder brother. Most significant history, that of Shem, is reserved for last. The writer clarifies that Shem was the oldest brother; Ham was the youngest. Cf 9:24.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:22 Elam. Elam's descendants inhabited the region beyond the Tigris, east of Babylon. Asshur. Early name for Assyria in northern Mesopotamia. Arpachshad. Usually identified with the mountainous region northeast of Nineveh. Lud. Descendants are thought to be Lydians in western Asia Minor. Aram. Comprehensive name for the plain occupied by the Arameans, extending from the mountains of Lebanon to beyond the Euphrates.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:23 Uz. Home of Job (Jb 1:1). See pp 779–82.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:24 Shelah. Mentioned again in 11:12–15; significant because of his son, Eber, ancestor of the Hebrews.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:25 Peleg … divided. He lived at the time when the earth was divided by the confusion of tongues (ch 11). Joktan. Father of the 13 tribes of South Arabia (vv 26–29), of whom little is known.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:28 Sheba. Territory in southwest Arabia; the home of the queen who visited King Solomon (1Ki 10:1–13).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:29 Ophir. Located south of Canaan; source of much of King Solomon's gold. See note, Jb 22:24.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:30 Mesha … Sephar … hill country. Its general location is in southern Arabia. Too little is known to locate this region precisely.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:31 Repetition of vv 5, 20, distinguishing between the descendants of each of the sons of Noah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 10:32 Summary statement to bind together the three branches of the human race after the flood. No further information is provided regarding the origin of races. Given their geographical and historical interrelationships, these various groups intermarried even as groups do today. clans. See pp 54–55.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 10 The Table of Nations describes the origins and interrelationships of many nations of the world. The list is important because it is the only document of its kind in existence and demonstrates the common descent of all human beings from Noah. Most important to the list are the Canaanites and Shemites, around whom the stories of the OT will revolve. From the Shemites would come the good news that God was remembering His promise of the Seed that would crush the head of the evil one (3:15). • Thank You, O God, that You have been faithful to Your promises of a Savior from sin and death, despite our constant straying into temptation. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:1 All people on earth at the earliest time were direct descendants of Noah; therefore, the whole world had the same language. Ch 11 describes events that happened prior to the division of nations described in ch 10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:2 migrated from the east. Until now, all events have been consistently identified with "the east." Now, Noah's early descendants journeyed down the Tigris-Euphrates Valley of Mesopotamia.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:3 brick for stone. On the plain near the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, stones were scarce, while clay was plentiful. The process of "burning" bricks was unique to the region; it was not used in Egypt until much later. bitumen for mortar. Use of "slime" (tar from coal or oil) with bricks for construction well describes the historical setting of the account.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:4 tower. Ziggurat pyramids are known from Ur, Babylon, and other Mesopotamian cities. This architecture dates back to the third millennium BC. make a name for ourselves, lest we be dispersed. Noah's descendants were to be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth (9:1). Their intention to create a focal point that would keep them in one place was proof that they intended to break God's command.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:5 the LORD came down. God is described in human terms, intervening in the affairs of humankind (cf Ps 144:5).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:6 nothing … impossible. Refers to their sinful conceits. If the human race remained united in self-interested pride, there would be no limit to people's rebellion against God.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:7 let Us go down. See note, 1:26. confuse their language. Direct manifestation of divine power appears to have altered their thought processes, making it impossible to communicate and trust one another.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:8 over the face of all the earth. God not only caused them to desist from their evil purposes but also to "fill the earth" as He intended (9:1).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:9 Babel. Hbr verb balal means "to confuse"; a form of the verb, when contracted, results in Babel, the name of the city.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:1–9 To curtail the pride and evil design of early humankind, God intervenes to make it difficult for family groups and tribes to communicate with one another, thereby causing them to disperse to different regions of the Near East and beyond. Like the story of the fall, the story of Babel shows that rebellion against God ultimately leads to divisions among people. People are driven away from paradise and from one another. Yet the Lord was preparing to gather and bless all nations in the birth of the living Word from the line of Shem. • We praise You, O God, that You enable Your Church to overcome language barriers with the Gospel of salvation in Christ Jesus. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:10–26 Genealogical list is a continuation of ch 5, recording further development of the human race, emphasizing the lineage that would stand in special relation to God, and introducing the genealogy of Terah and Abram.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:10 two years after the flood. Establishes the point in time for reckoning the following genealogy.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:11 daughters. Although daughters are mentioned, they are not listed by name, perhaps because they were not essential in describing the messianic line.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:12 lived 35 years. Two catastrophes, the flood and the confusion of tongues, perhaps shortened people's lives. Childbearing is likewise recorded as occurring at younger ages.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:13 other sons and daughters. The human population, despite the shortening life span, increased in size dramatically during these generations. One could calculate that if each family of the 10 generations averaged 10 children, the population by the time of the 11th generation would have totaled nearly 300 million.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:14 Eber. Ancestor of the Hebrews; the name is associated with the act of "crossing over" the Euphrates and migrating southward. If there were no gaps in the genealogies, Eber could actually have outlived Abraham.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:26 Abram, Nahor, and Haran. Three sons of Terah who had important roles in subsequent history: Abram ("the father is exalted") as the father of the chosen family line, Nahor as the ancestor of Rebekah, and Haran as the father of Lot. Abram would be named Abraham in ch 17.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:10–26 Sin weighs heavily on the human race as spans of life are drastically shortened. Yet this section assures us that the promised messianic line continues through human history. • Thank You, O Lord, that You never abandon Your people, that they may hold fast to the hope of everlasting life. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:27 generations of Terah. Record is narrowed to one family, the family of Terah and the patriarchs Abraham (Abram), Isaac, and Jacob. Haran fathered Lot. Lot is mentioned specifically because of his role in Abraham's life (chs 13–14; 19).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:28 Haran died. The reason Lot would go with Abram. Ur of the Chaldeans. Archaeological discoveries have situated Ur on the west bank of the Euphrates in southern Babylon. See map, p 33. This city was the center of the cult of the Mesopotamian moon god Sin.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:29 Milcah, the daughter of Haran. Later, marriage with a half sister or niece would be forbidden by Mosaic Law. See note, 4:17. Cf Lv 18.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:30 Because Sarai's inability to conceive a child would play prominently in future events, advance attention is called to her condition.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:31 go into the land of Canaan. Canaan was familiar to the inhabitants of the Tigris and Euphrates valleys. Haran. Mesopotamian city in the north; a commercial center. See map, p 33. Like Ur, it was a seat of worship for the Mesopotamian moon god Sin. Terah, an idolater, probably felt at home settling there.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:32 Terah's death ended his plan of reaching Canaan, but Abram would fulfill the plan because of the heavenly Father's call.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 11:27–32 After the human race has again turned away from God, the history of salvation and the messianic promise is narrowed to one man, Abram, the son of Terah of the line of Shem. Terah adopts heathen superstition and idolatry, a common practice in every age. But God identifies Abram as the father of the line by which all nations of the earth would be blessed. God will call Abram to leave all and follow Him, first to Haran and, in due time, to Canaan. • Thank You, gracious Lord, for Your patience in working out the details necessary for our salvation in Christ Jesus, and for Your patience and forgiveness when we succumb to this world's attractions and fall into sin. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:1 Go from. The Lord called Abram out of idolatry (Jsh 24:2), in which he deserved nothing but condemnation and eternal death. This was not because Abram merited God's favor. Instead, God demonstrated His mercy and grace in calling an idolater out of pagan surroundings and affiliations, setting him apart from the world of false belief to live by the promise of His grace. By choosing Abram, an idolater, God demonstrated that it is not by works but by grace that we are saved. I will show you. Though Abram did not know where he was going, he followed the direction God provided by His Word. How the Word of God came to Abram is not specified, but Luther writes, "I am convinced that he was not called directly by God without the ministry" (AE 2:249). See note, 4:26, for more about such ministry of the Word.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:2 great nation. God's promise was given to a man who was resigned to being childless (11:30). Here, God promises that from Abram will come not only the people of Israel but also the Church of Christ, which encompasses baptized disciples of Jesus from all nations (Mt 28:19). bless. See p 842. God blessed Adam and Eve, telling them to be fruitful and multiply (1:28). God blessed Abram, indicating that his descendants would fill the earth and that all nations would be blessed through him. name great. Even the heathen speak well of God's people Israel (Dt 4:6–7) because of God's faithfulness in keeping His promise to them. St Paul calls Christians the offspring of Abraham (Gal 3:29), indicating how widely God has extended the patriarch's name on account of the Gospel. blessing. See p 842. Ultimately fulfilled in Christ, but also in various temporal ways, as when God blessed the Egyptians through Joseph, the Ninevites through Jonah, and even the Babylonians during Israel's exile (cf Dn 2:48; 6:28).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:3 bless … curse. See pp 842, 8–11. The Lord promises that the gates of hell shall not prevail against His people (Mt 16:18). No effort on Satan's part would undermine God's promise to redeem the world in the promised Savior. Thus, Pharaoh's threat was drowned in the Red Sea (Ex 14:28), kings Sihon and Og were destroyed (Dt 2:33; 3:3), and even world powers such as Babylon, Greece, and Rome suffered defeat, while God faithfully upheld His people and the promise of the Gospel. On the other hand, those who befriended His people, such as the midwives in Egypt (Ex 1:20) and Rahab the harlot (Jsh 6:25), were blessed. in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed. Not merely a promise of temporal blessings, but the promise of the Gospel that, in Christ Jesus—Abraham's Seed (Gal 3:29)—people of all nations and times will have the eternal blessing of God's forgiveness. There is no greater blessing than that "in Christ God was reconciling the world to Himself, not counting their trespasses against them" (2Co 5:19).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:4 Abram went. Luth: "Promise and faith belong together" (AE 2:266). What God promised to Abram worked faith in him and caused him to act in faith. See p 2016; cf Rm 10:17.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:5 people that they had acquired. Servants, laborers, and children and relatives of the same. Luth: "Not simply his household but the true and holy church, in which Abraham was the high priest" (AE 2:280). land of Canaan. See note, 9:25.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:6 At that time the Canaanites were in the land. Moses reminds us that God's people, though called to be separate, are still in the world, surrounded by enemies against which the Lord protects His elect (Jn 15:18–19; 17:11–21).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:7 Lord appeared. No one can see God and live (Ex 33:20), and "no one has ever seen God" (1Jn 4:12; cf 1Tm 6:16). Nv: "It was not the Father who was seen … but the Son, who has both been accustomed to descend, and to be seen because He has descended. For He is the image of the invisible God" (ANF 5:628; cf Col 1:15). See p 39. altar to the Lord. Abram established an altar there because the Lord appeared to him. Abram does this throughout his life.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:8 called upon the name of the Lord. See p 842. "[Prayer] includes the entire ministry" (AE 2:287). See note, 4:26. Hbr allows the translation "He proclaimed in the name of the Lord." Luther proposed that Abram may have learned of the Lord more fully through the ministry established by the patriarch Shem. See "Lord," p 1227.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:1–9 God calls an idolater to faith, giving him a promise that God Himself would fulfill for all people. God's Spirit works faith, when and where He pleases, through the Word. He is faithful to do as He has said. He made Abram into a great nation, blessing all the world through the Son. As Abram's offspring by faith, we have the blessing of God's forgiveness and life without end. • Heavenly Father, call us to trust the Word of God in the water of Holy Baptism, to cling to everything You command, and to live by the blessing of Your Word. In Jesus' name. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:10 famine. The Lord disciplines His children by way of crosses and troubles (Heb 12:6). Here, a famine forced Abram to leave the Promised Land in search of food. A painting in the tomb of Khnumhotep II (c 1870 BC) depicts 37 people from the East (Canaan), who visited Egypt. In c 1944 BC, a shepherd rescued an Egyptian named Sinuhe who had fled into Canaan. Such accounts illustrate early interaction between people of Egypt and Canaan near the time of Abraham.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:11 woman beautiful in appearance. Though Sarai was more than 65 years old at the time (12:4; 17:17), her beauty was still both notable and desirable. The aging of people described in Gn does not seem to correspond directly with aging as we experience it today. See pp 8–11.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:13 my sister. A half-truth, as the two were, in fact, related (26:7). Abram sought to preserve his own life, even at the risk of his wife's chastity. Aug: "Now he did not deny that she was his wife, but held his peace about it, committing to God the defense of his wife's chastity" (NPNF 2 1:322).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:15 Pharaoh. Egyptian royal title meaning "the great house." Originally, it was applied to the king's palace, but was later applied to rulers of Egypt. taken into Pharaoh's house. Into the palace of the king, where he took Sarai as one of his wives (v 19). See note, 1Ki 3:1–2.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:16 dealt well. The Lord blessed Abram with worldly wealth, keeping His promise to make Abram's name great, to bless those who bless him, and to curse those who curse him. camels. Evidence for the early domestication of camels had been scant, but is now confirmed.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:17 the LORD afflicted Pharaoh. Affliction was sufficient to make the king aware of God's displeasure. How Pharaoh realized his circumstances were due to taking someone else's wife is not clear. plagues. Not like those God would later bring on Egypt through Moses (Ex 11:1), but severe enough to trouble the king's conscience.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:19 I took her for my wife? Text may imply that Abram had little choice over the matter, though Pharaoh assigns him blame. When a king claimed a woman, family members often had little recourse.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 12:10–20 Although God promises Abram that he will possess the land that God will give him, Abram still finds no secure place in which to dwell. At times, we also find ourselves in circumstances that show the opposite of what God says. In Abram's case, he went forth—even out of the land of promise—trusting that God would fulfill His Word. God returned Abram and Sarai, in time, to Canaan, and there kept all that He had promised to them. In the fullness of time, He even brought forth the Son by whom all nations would be blessed. Though the hour of Jesus' agony and death was dark, God was keeping His promise. • Lord God, when all we see appears to contradict what You have promised, teach us to rely on Your unfailing Word. Defend us in Christ Jesus, our Lord. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:2 Abram came to Canaan with apparent wealth (12:5), which increased during his sojourn in Egypt (12:16).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:4 called upon the name of the LORD. See note, 12:8.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:6 the land could not support both. As in other nomadic cultures, the wealth of Abram and Lot was in their herds. More and more pasture was needed.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:7 herdsmen. Shepherds (cf Ps 23:1). Canaanites and the Perizzites. Reminder of perils Abram and Lot faced.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:8–9 Abram showed that he was a man of peace, yielding his right to his younger nephew. Abram permitted himself to be disadvantaged for the sake of good relations (cf 21:22–34; 23).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:10 like the garden of the LORD. Lush, verdant, amply supplied with water. Cf 2:8–14; see "Census Figures," p 213. before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. Implies that readers know the story. Moses provides a clarifying reference for the benefit of readers and hearers who would know the southern end of the Salt Sea, the region of Zoar, as anything but a paradise (cf 19:18–26). See map, p 33.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:14–17 After Lot departed to live among wicked men, the Lord reminded Abram of His promise. The Lord repeats and further expounds what He has told Abram (12:7), which was a great comfort to the patriarch after he had given the choice to Lot, who seemingly now had the better part. God is also teaching Abram that he will sojourn in the Promised Land as in a foreign land (Heb 11:9–10).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 13:18 altar to the LORD. Abram had already built an altar at Shechem, where the Lord had appeared to him (12:7). He had also built an altar at Bethel ("house of God," 12:8). Then, he built an altar by the oaks of Mamre. He, who would sojourn all his days as a foreigner, made sure that the land in which he dwelt always had a witness to God's Word and promises, through the worship of God's people.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 13 Conflict arises between Abram's and Lot's herdsmen. Abram—for the sake of peace within the clan—decides they need to part and relinquishes to Lot the right of first choice. What an example Abram sets for true, godly living, an example Christ Himself shows. Though Christ was God, He counted humanity better than Himself, taking the form of a servant that we might be treated like kings and queens! By His self-sacrificing, humble service in our place, we are reconciled with God. • Lord God, teach us, by Abram's example, how to love as we have been loved and how to serve as we have been served. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:1–7 Four invading kings were met by a coalition of five kings from the region that Lot had chosen for himself. That Mesopotamians had invaded the region is recorded by the ruler of Mari, Yakhdun-Lim, who describes a military campaign to Syria, Lebanon, and the Mediterranean coast during the nineteenth century BC.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:1 None of these kings can be identified with certainty. Amraphel. Not likely the Babylonian king Hammurabi, as once thought. Elam. East of the Tigris River. Goiim. Common noun in Hbr for "nations" or "gentiles."
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:2 these kings made war. Five kings in the region of the Salt Sea had been vassals of Chedorlaomer (v 4). Their rebellion incurred swift punishment from the four invading kings of Mesopotamia. At this time, Mesopotamia controlled the region that would become Israel. See note, 10:10. kings. Hbr term can describe everything from a warlord/chieftain to an emperor. Sodom … Gomorrah. Remains of ancient cities have been discovered near the southeastern end of the Salt Sea, though it is not clear whether any of these ruins are ancient Sodom and Gomorrah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:4 rebelled. Refused to pay the tribute owed.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:5–7 Kings from the east dispersed the border tribes that served as the Jordan River Valley's first line of defense.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:5 fourteenth year. Since the five kings of the lower Jordan River Valley had come under Chedorlaomer's lordship.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:10 bitumen pits. Pits of asphalt or tar. The Salt Sea is known for having chunks of asphalt floating in it; in Roman times Josephus called it "Asphaltites Lacus." hill country. Highlands in the region of Moab, east of the Salt Sea.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:11 enemy. Translators' term to indicate the four invading kings who plundered Sodom and Gomorrah. possessions. Movable property and goods, particularly cattle. provisions. Food.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:12 They also took Lot. Lot had separated himself from Abram, choosing what seemed to be the better portion. The invaders abducted Lot and took other captives as spoils of war.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:13 Hebrew. Hbr 'ibri. Abram is the first biblical figure to be so designated (cf 39:14, 17; 40:15; 43:32; Ex 1:15; 2:11). The word could derive from Eber, of whose lineage was Abram (see note, 11:14), and may be related to the verb meaning "to pass over or through," perhaps referring to migration and nomadic life. It is a matter of debate whether the word is connected with the wandering, nomadic people known as Habiru. allies. From Hbr berith, "covenant"; those confederated with Abram. The fact that they received a portion of the spoils (v 24) indicates that they were faithful to their alliance.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:14 trained men. Hbr term used only here in the OT. We may consider the men a testimony to the wealth God had given Abram. 318. Such a low number of men against perhaps much greater odds emphasizes that the victory is God's, not man's. See note, v 24. as far as Dan. Northern city of Dan received its name much later than Moses' era, indicating here a scribal updating for later readers who would no longer have called the city by its earlier name, Laish.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:15 A night attack, during which the forces were divided, was a tactic later employed also by Gideon in Jgs 7:16. Such a stratagem has the element of surprise and confusion. Multiple forces attack from various directions under the cover of darkness.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:1–16 The land of Canaan is torn by marauding invaders, who sweep up Lot in their conquest. But God in His grace provides deliverance. As God rescued Lot through Abram and his 318 well-trained men, so He watches over and cares for us. He sent a Redeemer to rescue us. When your enemies surround you, revealing just how weak your faith is and how great your sins are, call on the Lord and come quickly to the Lord's Supper, for He sets His Table before you in the presence of your enemies and gives you the victory in Christ. • Dear Lord, You rescued us from sin, death, and the power of the devil when You baptized us in Jesus. By the Gospel of Your Son, pluck us daily from the hands of our enemies, that we may overcome them and finally win the victory. In Jesus' name. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:17 King's Valley. Apparently near Jerusalem; mentioned again only in 2Sm 18:18.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:18 Melchizedek. Name means "the king of righteousness" or "my king is righteousness." Receiving a tithe from Abram, this priest-king was a type of the eternal and universal priesthood of Jesus Christ (Heb 6:20–7:19). Salem. "Peace." bread and wine. Essential parts of a celebratory meal. See pp 200–201. priest of God Most High. "Most High" is used elsewhere, particularly in the psalms (e.g., Ps 7:17; 9:2; 18:13; 46:4). It indicates that He is above all others, the one and only true God. The Early Church Fathers and Luther associated Melchizedek with Shem, the son of Noah (AE 2:381–83). Whether or not this association is correct, the "priest of God Most High" certainly continued in the righteousness preached by Noah (2Pt 2:5) and would have learned of the promise through the faithful testimony and worship of those who had come before (see Luth, pp 3–5).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:19 Blessed. See p 842. God called Abram with the promise and blessed him (12:2). Here, through His priest, the Most High (v 18) does as God said and blessed Abram again. Possessor. Hbr qoneh; commonly used to describe a purchase of property, and thereby, ownership. See "portion," p 7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:20 blessed be God. See p 842. God is blessed when people confess Him as the One who gives blessing. Abram gave him a tenth. Hbr does not include "Abram" but simply says that "he" gave him a tithe. Cf Heb 7:2, 4 to understand that it was Abram who gave the tithe to Melchizedek.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:22 lifted my hand. To lift up or raise the hand is to swear or make an oath. See "oath," p 7; see also p 1276.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:23 I have made Abram rich. Though the offer was generous, Abram displayed none of the avarice that often drives people and desired no profit from the venture. The credit belonged only to God.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:24 Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre. Allies who accompanied Abram and his men. We are not told how many troops this added to the 318 that Abram mustered against the invaders. See note, v 14.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 14:17–24 The Lord fulfills His promise to bless Abram, doing so through the ministry of Melchizedek, the priest of God Most High, who presents him with a feast. The Lord's blessings come through His gifts, His means, His ministers. The Lord confirmed this ultimately by sending His Son, who gave the eternal sacrifice, once for all, of His body and His blood on the cross. He continues to bless us, even setting a feast before us as He gives His body and His blood in bread and wine. • Lord, bless us daily to live in Your pleasure, which is ours for the sake of Jesus, our great High Priest. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:1 vision. Earlier, the Lord "said to Abram" (12:1). After that, He "appeared to Abram" (12:7). Luth: "[Abram] not only heard the word; but the word was represented by a certain likeness of the Speaker" (AE 3:12). Cf Nu 12:6–8; see p 39. I am your shield. Comforting word to calm Abram's fears, for he will soon express his worries over remaining childless, without a proper heir (v 2). See note, Ps 28:7. Luth: "A mighty fortress is our God, A trusty shield and weapon" (LSB 656:1).

reward. A reward is paid, not only because it is earned, but also because it is promised, and the Lord had promised Abram richly!
GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:2 continue. Hbr means "to go or walk," and may carry the sense of departure, even death, as in Simeon's song: "Lord, now You are letting Your servant depart in peace" (Lk 2:29). house. Used broadly to encompass Abram's entire estate. Eliezer of Damascus? A servant born and raised in Abram's household (v 3); may be the loyal servant in ch 24. Despite his qualifications as someone Abram might adopt as heir, Eliezer is by no means preferable to the natural-born son God promised. (Babylonian documents describe laws regulating adoption of heirs.) GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:3 member. Lit, a "son of the house," a servant born and raised in Abram's household, but not of blood descent.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:4 your very own son. Lit, "out of your inward parts," out of Abram's body, his natural-born son.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:5 stars. That Abram is able to walk outside indicates that this is a waking vision. See note, v 1. offspring. Hbr is singular, sometimes translated "seed." Christ is ultimately the promised Seed (Gal 3:16), who points to the abundance He produces by His death and resurrection (cf Jn 12:24). See note, Gn 3:15.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:6 believed. Hbr 'aman, "to be faithful," "to trust." See "faithfulness," p 842. Bern: "[The elect] had … been set free by their faith in a future Deliverer, as of Abraham it is written" (SLSB, p 285). counted. To think, reckon, or account. Because of God's mercy and grace, for Jesus' sake, He considers our sins forgiven. righteousness. See p 1904. Luth: "Righteousness is nothing else than believing God when He makes a promise" (AE 3:20). "Abraham was justified before God through faith alone, for the sake of the Mediator, without the cooperation of his works. This was true not only when Abraham was first converted from idolatry and had no good works, but also afterward, when he had been renewed by the Holy Spirit and adorned with many excellent good works" (FC SD III 33). See p 2016.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:8 how am I to know. Faith is often fleeting and in need of shoring up. At times, even the saints asked for something to stand with God's Word. For us, also, God has provided the Sacraments with His spoken Word.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:9–10 A covenant was literally "cut." The participants cut animals in half, then walked between them as a pledge that such a fate would befall the maker of the covenant should he breach it (cf Jer 34:18). However, here the Lord alone walks between the halves! Abram is a passive and sleeping beneficiary of God's promise (cf vv 12–21). See p 127.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:12 sun was going down. As vv 1–6 took place at night, in vv 7–21 God has visited Abram a second time. deep sleep. As God made Adam slumber when He drew forth the rib to make the woman, so God made Abram slumber as He passed through the severed pieces of the sacrifice. Abram merely received what God had promised. dreadful and great darkness. When sinners find themselves before great and holy revelations, fear and trepidation often fall upon them. Thus, Isaiah trembled (Is 6:5), and Peter, James, and John were afraid (Mt 17:5–6). Further, what Abram saw in his dream was still remote. In his slumber, he saw darkly what would later be revealed fully.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:13–14 four hundred years. A round figure indicating the time Israel would spend in Egypt, ultimately in subjugation. (They would stray from the Lord as hinted in Ex 4:31; Jsh 24:14.) possessions. God would bring judgment on Egypt, delivering His people, Israel, who would plunder their Egyptian neighbors of their riches as they departed (Ex 12:35–36).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:15 See note, 1Ki 2:10. Luth: "Since Abraham had been enlightened by the Holy Spirit, he realized that these words referred to the resurrection of the dead and to the life of the future world" (AE 3:38).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:16 iniquity … not yet complete. Luth: "[A statement] to point out the patience of God" (AE 3:40). Chem: "God does not cause wills to be evil nor does He produce evil in the hearts of the ungodly, but he only permits it. …

God determines the boundaries when He is going to give permission, as to when and where He will restrain the ungodly" (LTh 1:200).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:17 smoking fire pot and a flaming torch. By these emblems of God's presence, He passed through the severed pieces of the animals. It is God, not Abram, who assumes the burden if the covenant is broken. Ultimately, it is God's own Son who will assume the burden of our breaking God's Law, being sacrificed on the cross to atone for our offenses.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:18 covenant. See p 127.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 15:19–21 Israel would not hold the land described here until the time of King David (2Sm 8:1–15). Not all of the tribes mentioned here are identifiable, but they were those who inhabited the land of Canaan prior to Israel's conquest and reception of the Promised Land. See p 345.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 15 God credits righteousness to Abram simply on the basis of His covenant promise and faith. To the promise, He adds the visible sign of the slaughtered animals, the fire pot, and the torch by which God shows Abram that He is committed. Today, rest in God's promises given to you in Jesus and delivered to you in His Word and Sacraments. They are enough, because Jesus was enough. • Dear Father, rescue us from our enemies by Your promise made sure in Your Son, who delivers our inheritance to us in the New Testament of His blood. In Jesus' name. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:1 Egyptian servant. Sarai may have acquired Hagar while she and Abram sojourned in Egypt. Ironically, the Israelites later become slaves to Egyptians.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:2 obtain children by her. Lit, "be built up by her." The OT saints sometimes obtained children through means that Holy Scripture describes but does not advocate. However, they were recognized legal practices of the day and shared many of the same benefits and complications realized in today's fertility options (e.g., surrogacy).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:3 as a wife. For conjugal relations, as would be normal between husband and wife. See pp 54–55.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:4 contempt on her mistress. Sarai became slighted or demeaned in Hagar's eyes. Hagar was guilty of judging by appearances, assuming that because Abram's seed took root in her, while Sarai remained barren, it meant she, not Sarai, had God's and Abram's favor. Later, St Paul would use Hagar and Sarai as types of the two religions known to man—those teaching justification by the Law and those teaching justification by the Gospel. See note, Gal 4:22–23.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:5 wrong … be on you! Although Sarai gave occasion for the contempt that Hagar showed her, Abram may have contributed to the problems, thus giving rise to Sarai's complaint. May the LORD judge between you and me! Assertion of innocence.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:6 do to her as you please. In prudence, Abram sided with his barren wife over the pregnant maidservant. she fled. Hagar would not receive the discipline of her mistress. By fleeing, she also took away the couple's hope of an heir.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:7 angel of the LORD. See p 1227; see also note, v 13.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:9 Return … and submit. Lit, "put yourself under her hands." Sarai, in her harsh treatment of Hagar, was disciplining her servant, who had become arrogant on account of God's gift. To this, Hagar should have submitted in the first place (cf Heb 12:11).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:10 God's promise to Hagar was different from His promise to Abram. The children of the slave woman are separate from the children of the free woman (cf Gal 4:21–31). On an earthly level, God promised to multiply a people from Hagar (Arabs), who even now contend with those born from Sarai (Israelites).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:12 a wild donkey of a man. Unbridled, wild in temperament and spirit, and given to war and bloodshed. This prophetically describes Ishmael. (Cf 25:12–18.) dwell over against all. Live in opposition to all.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 16:13 Hagar recognized in the Angel of the Lord a manifestation of the Lord Himself. Hagar confessed that God sees and takes care of her, or that she saw God and He had not destroyed her. Hbr is difficult, comparable to Ex 33:23, where God graciously promised to allow Moses to see His "back."
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 16 Sarai seeks alternative means for fulfilling God's promise. When God provides a son to Hagar, discord and strife arise because of jealousy and pride. How often our own households and marriages are torn asunder when we devise ways and means that God has not commanded! Consider how willing our Lord was to submit Himself to everything the Father willed, even when that meant suffering at the hands of evil men and dying in their place. He has seen your suffering, and has taken it upon Himself. By His dying and His rising, He makes sure the God who sees all is now graciously disposed toward you. • Dear Lord, though You see all, You promise now to see us only in Jesus. Tenderly work among us by Your means of grace, exercising Your fatherly care. In Jesus' name. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:1 the LORD appeared to Abram. See note, 12:7. Abram is 99, and 13 years have passed since the birth of Ishmael. God Almighty. See p 1227. Nothing is impossible with God. walk before Me. See pp 7, 39. blameless. See note, Jb 1:1. Luth: "What else did God want than that Abraham should continue in the righteousness and faith because of which he had been declared righteous and that he should be uncorrupted, blameless, and perfect?" (AE 3:78).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:2 covenant. God's blessings and promises are always new. He had already made His covenant with Abram. He added a name (v 5) and a sign (vv 10–11) by which Abram is to be sure that the original promise has not been forgotten. See p 127.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:3 fell on his face. See p 1276.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:5 Abraham. "Abram" means "exalted father," but "Abraham" means "father of many nations." God added a new name to the patriarch, that by it he might be ever mindful of the promise.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:7 everlasting covenant. Lasting in Christ Jesus, who sent forth His apostles to "make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit" (Mt 28:19). In Christ, the promise God gave to Abraham extends to all nations. See also p 127. God to you. God is not merely the Almighty; He is the Almighty for His people, i.e., for their life, forgiveness, and salvation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:8 an everlasting possession. Temporal promise of land was fulfilled when God gave His OT people their inheritance in Canaan. True Israel is no longer merely of earthly lineage, but includes those who are true sons of Abraham in Christ Jesus (Gal 3:7). Their true citizenship is not of this earth but in heaven (Php 3:20), even as was Abraham's citizenship (Heb 11:10). See "portion," p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:10 circumcised. By removal of the foreskin, males received a visible sign (v 11) of God's promise to send a Savior, born of the woman (Gal 4:4–5). No Hebrew male could live a day without being reminded of the promise God had made long before, and every conjugal act between a husband and wife would illustrate the hope that God was working to restore creation and redeem all people. Finally, the shedding of blood pointed to our final redemption by the shedding of Christ's blood. See note, Ex 4:25.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:11 sign. Pledge or token—something that does not have to exist for itself, but points to something greater. The Word, not the mere removal of flesh from the body, was the chief thing in circumcision.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:12 eight days old. Such infant circumcision points to God's inclusion of His people in the covenant promise even at a tender age. It also anticipated when circumcision would end and Baptism would become the sign of the new covenant (Col 2:11–12). God finished the work of the original creation on the sixth day, and on the seventh He rested. The eighth day represented a new beginning. Christ finished the work of the new creation by redeeming us with His blood on the sixth day, Good Friday. On the Sabbath, He rested in the tomb. On Easter Sunday, Christ arose, starting the new creation on what may be referred to as the "eighth day." bought with your money. Slavery; see p 101. Regarding money, see note, Jsh 24:32.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:13 covenant … in your flesh. Physical sign illustrated the blood basis of the covenant (15:8–10) and its intensely personal character.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:14 cut off from his people. To refuse the sign of the covenant displayed unbelief. Instead of losing a piece of skin, the entire person would be cut off from God's covenant people and from the promise. See note, Ex 12:15.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:1–14 Abraham receives both a new name and the sign of the covenant promise God had given His people. The Lord received the same sign of circumcision, shedding His infant blood and receiving the name "Jesus," proving Himself to be our dear Savior. • Lord, lead us to treasure the precious Word and Sacraments, which mark and sign us as Your beloved children. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:15 Sarah. Means "princess," an indication that as Abraham would be the father of many nations, Sarah would be the mother of the same.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:16 bless. As God blessed Adam and Eve, saying, "Be fruitful and multiply" (1:28). See p 842. become nations. Ultimately fulfilled by our Lord as He made disciples of all nations through Baptism and teaching (Mt 28:19–20).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:17 He prostrated Himself in worship and laughter, perhaps in disbelief for joy (cf Lk 24:41), or because faith and unbelief often go together in sinners (cf Mt 28:17; Mk 9:24). Likely it seemed unreasonable to him that he and Sarah should have a child at their age (18:12). See p 1276.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:18 Abraham wrongly believed that Ishmael was the child of promise. This still seemed not only reasonable to him but perhaps also preferable to fathering a child with Sarah at such an old age. The patriarch no doubt had great fondness for his firstborn and did not want him excluded from God's favor.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:19 call his name Isaac. Isaac means "he laughs," reflecting not only the incredulous laughter of Abraham but also that of Sarah, who laughed at hearing that she would bear a son (18:12). everlasting covenant for his offspring. Fulfilled in Christ. See note, 12:3.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:20 Ishmael … blessed. God did not forget Ishmael, but would multiply him greatly as He had promised Hagar (16:10). twelve princes. Fulfilled in 25:13–16. Ishmael was the father of the Arabian tribes.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:23 Circumcision was practiced by cultures before this time (see note, Ex 4:25), as washings, ablutions, and cultic meals were practiced before Moses and before Christ instituted Holy Baptism and Holy Communion. Here, God takes a known practice and transforms it by the promise.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:2 three men. The Lord (the Son of God) and two angels appear in human form. Cyr Jer: "What strange thing do we announce in saying that God was made Man, when [you Jews] yourselves say that Abraham received the Lord as a guest?" (NPNF 2 7:76). See notes, 19:24; Jn 8:56; see also p 39.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:3 Your servant. Expressions of humility were normal, but Abraham recognized he had a special guest.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:4 wash your feet. First step of proper hospitality. Because there were few inns, people placed high importance on hospitality. Neglect or mistreatment of travelers was regarded as a great social evil. Ambr: "A man ought therefore to be hospitable, kind, upright, not desirous of what belongs to another. … Such is the favor in which hospitality stands with God, that not even the draught of cold water shall fail of getting a reward. You see that Abraham, in looking for guests, received God Himself to entertain" (NPNF 2 10:59–60).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:5 morsel of bread. Abraham described his hospitality as meager, typical of humble Near Eastern manners.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:6 Three seahs. Extremely large amount for only three men. See p cx. cakes. Round, unleavened cakes (resembling pancakes) hastily baked on hot stones or on a metal "camp oven" that could heat up rapidly.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:7 young man. A servant.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:8 stood by. Abraham honored his guests by waiting on them rather than sitting with them. See p 1277.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:9 Where is Sarah your wife? This time, Sarah had to hear the promise "from the mouth of God Himself" (Luth, AE 3:176). in the tent. Women may have eaten separately, after the men, a custom still observed in some Near Eastern cultures.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:11 The way of women had ceased. Sarah could no longer conceive children.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:12 shall I have pleasure? Of having her own child. Though she laughed in doubt, she later believed. Cf Heb 11:11.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:14 Ter: "For a barren woman to have a child against nature was no difficulty with God; nor was it for a virgin to conceive" (ANF 3:605).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:15 The Lord kindly but decisively rebuked Sarah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:16 to set them on their way. Hbr implies Abraham accompanied them for quite a while.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:18–19 God chose Abraham to establish true religion through him and to fulfill the messianic promises.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:18 blessed in him? God graciously promised that Abraham's descendants would become a great nation. From this nation would come the Messiah, from whom all nations can receive God's blessing through faith in Him. See note, 12:3.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:20 outcry. Sodom's wickedness, already well known, cried out for God's judgment.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:21 I will go down to see. See note, 11:5.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 17:15–18:21 Divine messengers, on their way to Sodom to deliver judgment, visit Abraham and Sarah to announce that Sarah will bear the child of promise. Like Sarah, we may doubt and even laugh at God's purposes for us. Despite such moments of weakness, the Lord reassures His saints not only of His omnipotence but also of His forgiveness, as Sarah realized when she gave birth to Isaac in her old age. • Lord Jesus Christ, Son of God, nothing is too hard for You. Thank You for patiently bearing with us and forgiving us when we are of little faith. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:23 Abraham correctly guessed that the Lord planned to destroy Sodom. He pleaded for mercy on behalf of the few righteous people there. See "righteous," p 843.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:24 fifty righteous. Already a small number, given that there were five cities associated with Sodom. Cf 14:8.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:25 Abraham believed there was greater injustice in destroying even 50 righteous people than in sparing a great multitude of the wicked. Abraham appealed to justice, knowing that the Lord is perfectly just. Judge of all the earth. Unlike other religions, whose tribal gods were limited in power or extent of dominion, Abraham confessed God as Lord of all.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:27 Abraham spoke with full realization of his sinfulness; his origin, dust; his destination, ashes. Gr Nys: "Dust and ashes seem to denote what is lifeless and barren; and so there arises a law of faith for the life to come, teaching those who would come to God, by this history of Abraham, that it is impossible to draw near to God, unless faith mediate, and bring the seeking soul into union with the incomprehensible nature of God" (NPNF 2 5:259). Luth: "Consider this example whenever you pray, and learn that persistence is needed in praying. It does not offend God; it pleases Him" (AE 3:236).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:32 Perhaps considering that God had not spared the world from the flood for the sake of eight people (Noah's household), Abraham did not press his defense further.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 18:22–33 Abraham begs the Lord to spare the wicked cities for the sake of the righteous. The evils of Sodom remind us of our own time, with evil that also cries out for divine intervention. Intercede in prayer for those who have not yet repented of their wickedness. Take comfort in the truth that God spares the wicked for the sake of one righteous man—Jesus Christ. • O Lord, spare us who live in this world of wickedness, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:1 two angels. The two "men" of 18:22. the gate. Focal point for community activity. See p 792.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:2 lords. Unlike Abraham, Lot recognized the visitors only as men. See note, 18:3. spend the night. Lot knew the danger of spending the night in the city.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:3 unleavened bread. Bread of the simplest kind. See note, 18:6.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:5 know them. Have sex with them. Homosexual lust burned among many of the men of Sodom. Cf Lv 18:22; Rm 1:27. See p 1911.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:8 who have not known any man. Unmarried, though betrothed to Sodomites (v 14). do to them as you please. Culture of hospitality (see note, 18:4) made it unthinkable for Lot to abandon his guests. Yet righteous Lot's proposal was horribly wrong. Perhaps he sought what he regarded as the lesser of two evils (heterosexual rape instead of homosexual rape), but his suggestion was evil nonetheless. shelter. Protection and hospitality.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:9 judge! Like Moses would be (Ex 2:14), Lot was an outsider accused of setting himself up as judge. Cf 2Pt 2:7–8.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:13 outcry … great before the LORD. See note, 18:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:14 jesting. They did not believe Lot's warning. Luth: "The nearer the world is to destruction, the smugger it is" (AE 3:268).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:16 he lingered. Lot's faith is weak. He hesitates to leave his possessions. the LORD being merciful to him. Lot required special treatment because of his weakness.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:17 hills. Higher elevations to the east. See map, p 33.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:20 this city. Zoar. Lit, "tiny place"; a small settlement at the southern end of the Salt Sea. Cf v 22. little one. Lot pleaded that the small city be spared because the evil there was small.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:21 grant you this favor. Lit, "lift up your face"; to cheer him with kindness. Luth: "Here one can see how great the power of prayer is, inasmuch as Lot rejects that last command—about ascending the hills—when he pleads his exigency [urgency]. … To be sure, God gives all things out of free mercy; yet He wants to be entreated" (AE 3:287). See note, Nu 6:26.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:1–22 Lot and his small family are spared the destruction of Sodom, but the deliverance clearly is due to divine mercy and not human righteousness, as Lot's behavior shows. Just as Lot's rescue makes sense only when contrasted with Sodom's destruction, so also our salvation by Christ's death makes sense only when contrasted with the threats of God's Law. • Lord God, thank You for Your long-suffering when we, like Lot, are weak in faith. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:24 the LORD rained … from the LORD out of heaven. The Son of God, who spoke with Abraham (18:22–33), rained down from His heavenly Father, the First Person of the Godhead. Ambr: "The Lord rains down from the Lord; the Lord grants mercy from the Lord. The Lord is neither divided when He rains from the Lord, nor is there a separation when He grants mercy from the Lord, but in each case the oneness of the Lordship is expressed" (NPNF 2 10:150). Chem: "Wherever you read in Scripture that God is speaking about God, as a person about a person, there you are safe in affirming that the three persons of the Deity are indicated" (LTh 1:67). Sodom and Gomorrah. See note, 14:2. God also destroyed Admah and Zeboiim, other cities of the region. sulfur and fire. Perhaps burning brimstone or pitch falling from the sky, lightning igniting coal-enriched soil, or a volcanic eruption.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:25 overthrew. Lit, "turned over," as with a griddle cake. Perhaps an earthquake was also involved.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:26 she became a pillar of salt. Reluctant to leave, falling behind, and disobeying clear instructions, Lot's wife was engulfed by the devastation. 1 Clem: "Those who are of a double mind, and who distrust the power of God, bring down judgment on themselves" (ANF 1:8).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:27 Abraham went to see whether Lot's household had perished.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:29 God remembered Abraham. God rescued Lot and his family for Abraham's sake (cf 18:32–33). See "remember," p 843.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:23–29 God grants Abraham's prayer by preserving the lives of Lot and his daughters. In the destruction of Sodom and the neighboring cities, we see that wicked behavior on earth cries out to God for judgment. This judgment sometimes comes by catastrophic events. But just as clearly, we see God's patient love for His children on earth, even when their response to His grace is weak and pitiful, as in the case of Lot and his family. • Heavenly Father, thank You for Your patience. Deliver us from evil, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:30 Although God had granted Zoar as an asylum, Lot went to the hills that originally were to be his destination.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:31 not a man. In their little world of fear, the daughters became convinced that prospects of marriage and childbearing no longer existed. come in to us. Cf v 32.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:32 wine. The family had spent sufficient time in Zoar to gather provisions for a long stay in the cave. preserve offspring from our father. Caught up with fear, they felt compelled to preserve what remained of their family line. Their scheme of incest is one fitting for the depraved Sodomites, who clearly influenced them.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:33 He did not know. Lot's role, though inexcusable, was passive, carried out in a drunken stupor. See Noah's sin and its consequences, 9:20–27.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:36–38 See ESV notes. Lot's daughters felt no shame. They gave names to their sons that would memorialize their conception.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:37 Moabites. The Lord later ordered the Israelites not to touch Moabite territory because of their descent from Lot (Dt 2:9).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:38 Ammonites. See note, Nu 21:24; cf Dt 23:3–5.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 19:30–38 Lot and his daughters, driven by weakness and fear, resort to evil means to preserve the family line. They demonstrate no regret, as if the end justifies the means. And still God is patient, even granting protection to their offspring. Weak Christians often resort to an "end justifies the means" solution when they feel they must take matters into their own hands, disregarding God's clear will. God calls us to repent of this. In His grace, through the perfect life, death, and resurrection of His Son, God has provided us with the means to the best of ends: eternal life and blessedness. • "Remove the pow'r of sin from me And cleanse all my impurity That I may have the strength and will Temptations of the flesh to still." Amen. (LSB 704:2)

GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:1 Negeb … Kadesh and Shur … Gerar. See map, p 33.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:2 She is my sister. Abraham essentially made the same mistake he had made 20 years before (12:13). sent and took Sarah. He took Sarah for his harem, to make an alliance with rich and powerful Abraham. See note, 1Ki 3:1–2.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:3 dream. See p 74. dead man. Abimelech may already have been ill as a result of taking Sarah (cf v 17).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:4 had not approached her. Perhaps due to his illness (cf v 17), Abimelech had left Sarah alone. Thus, when Sarah later conceived, her child was clearly Abraham's son.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:6 I who kept you from sinning. Perhaps by means of Abimelech's illness (cf v 17).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:7 he is a prophet. Abraham was the first man to bear this title. See pp 1081–83. Abraham was truly a prophet because God revealed Himself to him and he preached God's Word. he will pray for you. Another role of a prophet.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:11 no fear of God at all. Without fear of God, there is less respect for human rights. Practically speaking, genuine fear of God is nearly always necessary for sound public morality. See p 1001.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:12 indeed my sister. Half-sister. Abraham and Sarah were both fathered by Terah but had different mothers.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:14 In strong contrast to Abraham's fearfulness and deception, Abimelech gave goodwill gifts to God's prophet, gifts fitting for a nomad prince.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:16 sign of your innocence. Generous gift removed any doubt regarding Sarah's moral conduct.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 20:17–18 God went to great lengths to assure that the parenthood of the promised Seed was kept safe: He allowed a disease to afflict the king and his entire household, making it impossible for them to conceive until Abraham prayed for their healing.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 20 Abraham is deceptive in pretending that Sarah is only his sister, but God intervenes to protect him from the harm of his own doing. Left to our own devices, our scheming makes a mess of our lives and brings affliction to those around us. For Abraham and his promised offspring, a dream and an accompanying illness set matters straight again. For us and for the entire world, the future promised Offspring, Christ, set matters straight again, reconciling us to God. • Gracious God, thank You for intervening in our lives in Your promised Offspring, our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:1 When God draws near, it is in mercy or in judgment. He drew near to Sarah in mercy with the blessing He had promised.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:2 old age. See note, v 5. God had spoken to him. God's powerful Word gave Abraham (and Sarah) the strength to bring forth a child in their old age. See note, 1:3, for the power of God's Word in creation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:3 Isaac. See note, 17:19.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:4 See notes, 17:11, 12.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:5 It had been 25 years since the promise was made. Cf 12:2; Rm 4:18–20.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:6 Sarah's laughter has been changed from disbelief to joy. Cf Heb 11:11.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:1–7 Twenty-five years after the promise was given, a child is born to Abraham and Sarah. His name is Isaac, "he laughs," calling to mind the past laughter of his parents and describing their joy upon his birth. The parents needed patience and faith as those 25 years came and went. How impatient we can become when things do not go as we think they should, even over short periods of time, even when God has clearly promised that all things will work together for good. But God is faithful, even when our patience and faith fall short. He has delivered the greatest of His promises, to give salvation and everlasting life to all who believe in the Lord Jesus. • Heavenly Father, keep us patient and faithful while You carry out Your plan for our lives and our salvation. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:8 weaned. Customary at age 2 or 3. feast. Weaning was celebrated as an early rite of passage. See note, 1Sm 1:22. Everything associated with Isaac was an occasion for celebration.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:9 son of Hagar. Ishmael. See note, v 14; cf 16:15–16.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:10 heir. Ordinarily, the oldest son becomes the heir. Sarah wanted to prevent Ishmael from taking Isaac's inheritance. See "portion," p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:12 do as she tells you. Though Sarah's motives may have been mixed, God approved of her counsel. named. The true spiritual descendants and the messianic Seed, or Offspring, were to be found in the line of Isaac. Cf Gal 3:16.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:13 make a nation. To make Ishmael's dismissal easier, God reminded Abraham of His promise regarding this son (see note, 17:20).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:14 on her shoulder. Hagar carried the provisions. child. Ishmael was now c 14 years old (cf 16:16; 21:5).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:15 When Ishmael collapsed from the heat and thirst, Hagar left him to die in the shade of desert brush.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:17 God heard. Ishmael groaned but likely also prayed.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:19 God in His providence had guided Hagar to this well and permitted her to see it.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:20 God was with the boy. Because Ishmael was a son of Abraham, God watched over him as he grew and blessed him with possessions and success. See "be with," p 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:8–21 When Sarah becomes alarmed at Ishmael's behavior toward Isaac, Abraham determines to dismiss Ishmael and Hagar from his household. Despite clear promises from God, we also become overly concerned about matters in our lives that irritate us or cause us to doubt His promises. But as with Abraham and Sarah, God takes our human weakness into consideration. God has promised to forgive us and adopt us as His children for the sake of Christ's sacrifice. Through faith in Him, we are the children of promise, the children of God. • Heavenly Father, thank You for adopting me in Your only-begotten Son, Jesus. Teach me patience and compassion toward others. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:22 Phicol. The name is neither Hebrew nor Egyptian but may derive from a region of the Aegean or Asia Minor, indicating early settlement of Sea Peoples in Canaan. This would explain the reference to Philistines in vv 32, 34. See note, Jgs 10:7. God is with you. This was clear to them from Isaac's miraculous birth and Abraham's prosperity. See "be with," p 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:23 swear to me. Abimelech wished to preserve friendly relations with Abraham by a covenant. Covenants always involved oaths. See "oath," p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:30 Abraham wished to protect the well by a gift and an oath, in case the Canaanites would claim the well in the future.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:32 land of the Philistines. See color map 2.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:33 tamarisk tree. Hearty, desert shrub with tiny leaves. called there on the name of the LORD. Luth: "Whenever this little statement is made—that the patriarchs called or cried out in the name of the Lord, or that they built an altar—it denotes that a certain place was appointed for teaching and hearing the Word of God. For if the church is to be preserved, there must be some pious prince to provide quarters for it and grant it room and peace, so that the doctrine and the Word of God can be spread" (AE 4:89). See "call," p 842.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 21:22–34 Abraham agrees to a covenant and works out his differences with the government so that he might live in peace. Good and orderly government is always helpful for the mission of the Church, and God's people are required to support their government with proper citizenship. At the same time, the salvation God provides does not depend on good governments like that of Abimelech, for God will continue to save His elect by the power of Gospel preaching and Sacraments, at times despite evil governments. • O Lord, give good government throughout the world so that the Gospel of Christ's cross may be preached without obstacle or persecution. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:1 tested. Verb is translated "tempt" elsewhere, but that is not the sense here. (See SC, Sixth Petition, pp xxxviii–xxxix.) One way that faith is strengthened is through trial and hardship. See p 837.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:2 land of Moriah. Where Jerusalem and the temple would later be built. offer him there as a burnt offering. Human sacrifices were likely common among the Canaanites. God's command seemed to contradict His promise to give many descendants through Isaac.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:3 his young men. Servants.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:5 I and the boy will … come again to you. Abraham believed God would raise Isaac from the dead (Heb 11:19).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:6 laid it on Isaac. See note, v 13.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:8 God will provide. Abraham's words were first fulfilled by the ram (v 13). Their ultimate and true fulfillment was the Lamb.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:11 angel of the LORD. This messenger is the Son of God. See notes, v 12; 16:13.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:12 now I know. By faith, Abraham completed the test. Hil: "God certainly was not ignorant of the faith of Abraham, which He had already reckoned to him for righteousness" (NPNF 2 9:242). you fear God. Luth: "The statement refers not only to his faith but also to his entire worship" (AE 4:134). See p 1001. you have not withheld … from Me. Angel identified Himself as God.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:13 ram, caught in a thicket by his horns. Ram became the sacrifice. Often seen as a foreshadowing of Christ with His crown of thorns. Ter: "Christ … in His times, carried His 'wood' on His own shoulders, adhering to the horns of the cross, with a thorny crown encircling His head" (ANF 3:171).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:14 to this day. Up to the time of Moses, who wrote Gn. See pp 3–5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:16 By myself I have sworn. As certainly as He is God, so certainly shall He fulfill His promise. See "vow," p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:17 I will surely bless. Luth: "There is a twofold blessing: a blessing in words and a blessing in actuality. The blessing in words consists of praises and commendation. … The blessing in actuality is truly divine; for when God blesses, the result is the thing itself or that which is said. … He is One who blesses with effect and does all things through what He says" (AE 4:155). See "bless," p 842. possess the gate. Control the city gate, i.e., conquer enemy strongholds.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:18 in your offspring. Or, "in your Seed," i.e., in Jesus Christ (Gal 3:16). shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. Luth: "For the promise does not depend on my merits or works; it depends on the Seed of Abraham. By Him I am blessed when I apprehend Him in faith; and the blessing clings to me in turn and permeates my entire body and soul, so that even the body itself is made alive and saved through the same Seed" (AE 4:158). because you have obeyed. God blessed Abraham out of His free mercy through faith (15:6), not because Abraham merited the blessing by his works. Nevertheless, his obedience was an external sign of true faith, of which God approved. See note, v 12.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:23 Bethuel fathered Rebekah. Rebekah, future wife of Isaac, was the daughter of Nahor's youngest son.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 22:24 concubine. See pp 54–55.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 22 The climax of Abraham's life of faith comes when he who loves his son so much is willing to offer him as a sacrifice to his Lord. Surely Abraham finds great relief when God provides the ram in the thicket. Often we fail tests of faith that do not begin to compare to Abraham's. Thankfully, there was an even greater sacrifice when God the Father in heaven offered the sacrifice of His beloved Son to secure forgiveness for our failures. • Lamb of God, You take away the sin of the world; have mercy on us. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:1 Sarah is the only woman whose age at death is recorded in the Bible.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:3 Hittites. Held the city of Hebron; descendants of Heth, a son of Canaan. See note, 26:34; see also map, p 33.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:4 Abraham possessed no land in the country.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:6 prince of God. He is a prophet of the Lord (20:7), a friend of God. The Hittites honored him as a holy, honorable man because God had blessed him. None … will withhold. Haggling, to hold out for more money. They were not eager to give away their land.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:8 entreat for me Ephron. A ruler who had a city (v 10). Abraham was seeking allies to support the transaction.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:10 at the gate of his city. Where men of the town gathered and official business was transacted. See p 792.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:11 More haggling. I give it to you. Apparently the land was for Abraham's use, but not for him to possess.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:15 four hundred shekels of silver. The asking price finally comes out. what is that between you and me? Despite a pretense of generosity, Ephron asked an exorbitant price for a field. Cf Jer 32:9.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:17 cave … all the trees. A legal contract required naming all that was on the field.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:18 a possession. Abraham made certain that his wife's and his remains would rest in the Promised Land, a testimony to his descendants that he believed God's promises. Hebron is on the highest elevation in Canaan from which one may view all the land that Israel would come to possess. Proper care for the bodies of departed believers was important.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 23:19 In due time, the cave would also hold Abraham's remains and those of Isaac, Rebekah, Jacob, and Leah. A clear title to the land was important.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 23 Sarah's death is the occasion for a significant development: Abraham purchases a plot of ground in the Promised Land, a testimony to his confidence in God's promises and to his concern for his wife's remains. At times of death, it is important to give clear testimony to our faith in God's promises, even as God Himself did. God's testimony at the time of His Son's death was clear. By raising Him from the dead on the third day, He assured bodily resurrection and eternal life in heaven for all who believe in Him. • O Lord, grant us confidence in Your promises like that of Abraham, a confidence that is reflected in all we do. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:1 Abraham was c 140 years old. blessed. Spiritually and physically. See p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:2 oldest of his household. Identification of honor; possibly Eliezer. charge. Manager of the household. under my thigh. Cultural gesture to accompany the oath. The loin and thigh, the body's largest muscles, represented one's physical and reproductive strength (cf 1Ki 12:10; Ps 147:10). The oath testified to their faith in the coming Messiah, who would be born of Abraham's line. See "oath," p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:3 take a wife for my son. Because of Abraham's advanced age, the servant was asked to assume this parental responsibility. daughters of the Canaanites. Despite potential political advantages, the servant was not to look among the heathen Canaanites. Cf Ex 34:10–16; 1Co 7:39. See pp 54–55.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:4 my country. Ur of the Chaldeans. Cf 11:28. to my kindred, and take a wife. Abraham placed great emphasis on the cultural compatibility of the marriage, perhaps because of the immoral culture he witnessed among the Canaanites, who were cursed (9:25). See pp 54–55.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:7 this land. Isaac was the God-intended heir of Canaan, the Promised Land.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:10 camels. Needed to bear gifts for the bride and to carry the bride and her company on the return trip. See note, 12:16. choice gifts. Presents for the bride and her parents. See note, 34:12.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:12–14 The servant began his search with prayer and ended it with thanksgiving (vv 26–27), a practice worthy of imitation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:14 appointed. The servant was confident that God had someone in mind, since He had promised to give Abraham many children through Isaac. See pp 54–55.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:15 born to Bethuel. Rebekah was Isaac's second cousin.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:16 spring. Wells often were springs accessible by steps. See note, 2Sm 2:13.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:23 for us. Apparently the servant did not travel alone.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:27 See note, vv 12–14.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:28 her mother's household. Wives in the polygamous society had their own tents and households.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:31 Come in, O blessed. Luth: "From those most eminent patriarchs Shem, Nahor, and Terah they learned that guests should be received with a ready and willing heart" (AE 4:281). See note, 18:4.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:33 I will not eat. Ordinarily the guest would eat first, but first the servant wanted to negotiate the betrothal.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:35 blessed my master. Complete statement of the master's wealth and the son's financial prospects was essential for a marriage proposition because a wedding was a covenant. See "blessed," p 842; see also p 127.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:38 See note, v 4.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:42–49 See notes, vv 10–28. The servant told the story of the encounter at the well, enhancing it when helpful: Rebekah is called a virgin instead of a young woman, and the instruction not to take Isaac to Mesopotamia is omitted. The servant's prayer describes his personal reflections on the matter.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:50 They saw that the Lord had taken this matter out of their hands.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:52 bowed … before the LORD. To show his thanks. See p 1276.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:53 Betrothal gifts concluded the engagement covenant. See note, 34:12.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:58 Will you go. Luth: "A marriage should be brought about in such a way that we have God present. He established marriage for countless good purposes, and He Himself joins the spouses. Nor does He only join them; He also blesses them. But He requires the consent of the parents as well as of the girl, in order that there may be a lawful and truly divine union" (AE 4:298). See pp 54–55; see also note, Nu 36:6. Cf Pr 31:10–31 for a married woman's prerogatives in Israelite society.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:59 her nurse. Deborah, who helped raise her. Some servants also accompanied her (v 61).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:60 possess the gate. See note, 22:17.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:61 rode on the camels. See note, v 10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 24:65 covered herself. Sign of modesty and respect. Cf 1Co 11:7–10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 24 Abraham sends his servant to find a wife for his son Isaac. Rebekah and her parents consent to the proposal. Though they have not met, Isaac and Rebekah consent to a marriage that will be filled with God's blessing and love. Many people today wrongly see romance and emotion as the basis of marriage. Instead, God wants marriage (lifelong faithfulness vowed publicly) to be the basis for the love of husband and wife. Such love is a picture of Christ's love for the Church. He sought us from afar and promises His faithfulness to us. • O Christ, our heavenly Bridegroom, help us to trust the Word spoken by Your servants, the Word that calls us to be joined to You. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:1 took another wife. Or, "had taken another wife." The order of events here is thematic, not chronological. Keturah was Abraham's concubine (v 6; see pp 54–55).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:5 Isaac was the sole legal heir. The Lord promised to give him the offspring through whom the Savior would come (17:19).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:6 concubines. Keturah (1Ch 1:32), Reumah (Gn 22:24), and likely Hagar (16:1). See pp 54–55. sent them away. To secure Isaac's place as legal heir and focus of the Lord's gracious promise.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:8 Abraham breathed his last and died. Although physically dead, Abraham still lives and enjoys Christ's glorious presence (Mt 22:32). gathered to his people. See note, 1Ki 2:10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:12 generations of Ishmael. Gn is divided into 10 "generations" (genealogies). See pp 8–11. Ishmael's is the seventh. Although God's promise rested chiefly on Isaac and his line, Ishmael and his line nonetheless received the Lord's special blessing for a time (cf 16:10).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:16 villages. Often protected by walls. encampments. Nomadic communities without walls.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:17 See note, 1Ki 2:10. As a member of Abraham's household until his dismissal (cf 21:14; 25:6, 9), Ishmael heard of the Lord's grace and the promised Offspring (3:15). Because Ishmael was "gathered to his people" as Abraham was, Ishmael also enjoys Christ's eternal blessings among the saints, though his descendants rejected that blessing (AE 4:327–29).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:18 Havilah to Shur. Barren region of the Sinai Peninsula. See map, p 60. settled over against all his kinsmen. The Ishmaelites caused ongoing conflict with Israel.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:1–18 Abraham grows old, being blessed with many children. Yet he makes clear that Isaac alone is his heir. Finally, Abraham dies a blessed death and is given a proper burial by his sons Isaac and Ishmael. Children are a blessing from the Lord that husband and wife should celebrate. Like Abraham, we should instruct our children about the Lord and should bury the bodies of the faithful departed with honor. Such burial is a confession of the resurrection, that Christ will return and raise us from the dead to be gathered to Him. • Lord, continue to give us the blessings of Your cross and the empty tomb as we daily die to sin in our Baptism and await the glorious resurrection with all the saints. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:19 generations of Isaac. Gn is divided into 10 "generations" (genealogies). Isaac's is the eighth. See pp 8–11.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:21 God graciously intervenes to preserve the line of the coming Savior.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:22 she went to inquire of the LORD. Perhaps through her father-in-law, Abraham, who was a prophet of the Lord (20:7) and lived another 15 years after these events. See "call," p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:23 the older shall serve the younger. Contrary to ancient custom and family right, Esau would be subservient to his younger twin, Jacob. By this favor for Jacob, the Lord emphasized that the promise does not come by obligation, rights, or works, but by miraculous, undeserved grace. Cf Rm 9:10–12.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:25 "Red" in Hbr sounds like Esau's alternate name, Edom.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:26 holding Esau's heel. As though trying to prevent Esau from being born first. At this birth, Isaac was 60 years old; Abraham was 160 years old. Abraham died when the twins were 15 years old and Isaac was 75 years old.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:27 a quiet man. Or, "a man of integrity."

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:28 Isaac preferred Esau as the firstborn and as an excellent hunter who provided food. Thus, Isaac forgot how the Lord's favor is not given by right of birth order (v 23). Rebekah, however, remembered the Lord's words and gave preference to Jacob (AE 4:386–90).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:19–28 God's ways are not our ways. The Lord chooses to give His special blessing to Jacob, who does not deserve this gift either by birth order or by virtue. When we come before God on the basis of rights, claims, and human justice, we fall into the mind-set of Isaac, who wrongfully favored his firstborn, Esau, despite God's promise concerning Jacob. Thankfully, God does not deal with us on the basis of what we deserve for our sin. He chose us from eternity to be His people. Christ bore all our deserved punishment on the cross. • We thank You, Lord Jesus, that Your ways are not our ways. You have given us undeserved pardon and peace in Your cross. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:29 stew. See p 236. Ter: "To you [false teachers] your belly is god, and your lungs a temple, and your paunch a sacrificial altar, and your cook the priest, and your fragrant smell the Holy Spirit, and your condiments spiritual gifts, and your belching prophecy. … If I offer you a paltry lentil dyed red … forthwith you will sell all your 'primacies'" (ANF 4:113).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:30 red. Because of the brown-red lentils, which resemble split peas in size and shape. See p 236. called Edom. Esau's descendants were called "Edomites." See note, v 25.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:31 Sell me your birthright. Jacob wanted to acquire the privileges of the firstborn by trickery. These privileges included a double portion of the inheritance (Dt 21:17), leadership over the family, and the blessing to carry on the covenant promise (Gn 27:4, 27–29; 28:4). See "portion," p 7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:32 Esau's ongoing speech shows that he is not near death. Rather, he demonstrated an overdramatic and careless disregard for the right to be the firstborn. See note, Heb 12:16.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:34 birthright. Included supervision of true worship and preaching of the Messiah, who was to come from Abraham's line.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 25:29–34 Esau disdains his birthright, and Jacob schemes against his brother. Neither is worthy of the Lord's favor and the honor to carry on the promise. By our sinful nature and our actions, we are unworthy of any blessing of this life, especially the gift of forgiveness and eternal life with Christ. Yet, in His mercy, we receive a great inheritance because Christ has made us a part of His family in Baptism. We are heirs of the promise made to the patriarchs and fulfilled in Christ. • Praise be to our Savior, who has granted us an inheritance among the saints! Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:1 Abimelech. C 97 years have passed since Abraham's encounter with an Abimelech of the Philistines. Either "Abimelech" was a dynastic title, or this king was a descendant with the same name. king of the Philistines. See p 345.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:3–5 The Lord renewed the promises He previously made to Abraham. Isaac was blessed to carry on the covenant (AE 5:16–18).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:1–5 When a severe famine forces Isaac to relocate his family, the Lord appears to him with words of comfort. In this adversity, the Lord promises to Isaac the same favor He did to Abraham: His caring presence, land, offspring, and blessedness to all people. In times of adversity, we should not doubt the Lord's care for us. He promises that nothing will separate us from His love. • Thanks be to God that the blessing of the cross covers even our sins of doubt and forgetfulness! Lord, we praise You for Your boundless love. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:7 She is my sister. Like his father, Abraham, Isaac doubted the Lord's protection and hid the truth regarding his wife. Cf 12:10–20; 20:1–18.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:8 laughing. Polite expression for intimate teasing or flirting appropriate for married people. "Laughing" is reminiscent of Isaac's name (cf 17:17; 18:12–13; 21:9).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:10 lain with your wife. Not knowing she was married, somebody else could have taken Rebekah to be his wife. guilt upon us. Since Abimelech knew that Isaac had the Lord's favor, Abimelech assumed that such adultery would result in guilt before God. Isaac's sin almost caused a curse rather than a blessing to all people. In contrast to Isaac, Abimelech demonstrated thoughtfulness.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:12 sowed in that land. Unlike Abraham, Isaac planted and harvested crops, signaling an important change in the family's life. The abundant harvest is a sign of God's favor and blessing.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:13 rich. In this way, the Lord demonstrated faithfulness to His promise of vv 2–5. See "blessed," p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:15 Ancient nomadic groups would fill in the wells of adversaries in order to drive them away (cf 2Ki 3:25).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:18 names. By reassigning the names given by Abraham, Isaac honored his father and indicated that God's promise to Abraham continued with him.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:20 Cf 13:7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:24 appeared. The Lord had appeared to Abraham to confirm His covenant promises after he separated from Lot in a water dispute (13:14–17). Now, to assure continuity and equal favor in this uncertain time, the Lord renewed these promises to Isaac after a similar, contentious water dispute. See p 39. I am with you. See "be with," p 5. bless … multiply. See note, 1:28.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:25 built an altar. After God revealed Himself, the patriarchs often built altars to the Lord in response to His gracious care (cf 35:7). called upon the name of the LORD. Where the Lord locates His name, there is grace. See "call," p 842. Luth: "For wherever mention is made of the erection of an altar and the building of a tabernacle, there the establishment of a little church is pointed out—a church in which people came together to teach and hear the Word of God, to pray, to praise God, and to sacrifice" (AE 5:78). See note, 4:26.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:26 Phicol the commander. Either an official title or a family name that a descendant bears here. See note, v 1.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:27 hate. Isaac thus interpreted his expulsion from Gerar.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:28–29 Abimelech acknowledged the superiority of Isaac because of the Lord's favor for him.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:28 sworn pact … covenant. Initial oath in which participants invoke a curse on themselves. See note, 15:9–10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:29 blessed of the LORD. By declaring Isaac to be blessed of the Lord, Abimelech also hoped for blessing because he acted kindly toward Isaac. He recognized and confessed that the Lord was fulfilling His promises to Isaac. See "blessed," p 842.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:30–31 feast … exchanged oaths. This sworn pact is a binding, mutual agreement often ratified by an oath and a meal of friendship (cf 31:53–54; Ex 24:11).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:34 Esau was forty years old. Isaac would have been age 100. Hittite. See note, 23:3. The Hittites were a powerful, diverse people whose kingdom's center was in Asia Minor. See pp xciv–xcvii. Their religion included a pantheon of deities, foremost of which were a weather god and a sun goddess. The Canaanite names of these women (Judith and Basemath) likely indicate that this Hittite clan had adapted to Canaanite culture. See p 345.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:35 made life bitter for Isaac and Rebekah. By marrying Hittite women, Esau openly defied the tradition of the family and corrupted the line of Isaac. Cf 24:4.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 26:6–35 Although Isaac doubts the Lord's protection and lies to Abimelech, the Lord provides Isaac with agricultural prosperity and the respect of local rulers. When Isaac is displaced because of a water dispute, the Lord shows His care by promising His presence. Although we sometimes lack confidence in the Lord's providential care, He daily and richly provides for all our needs of body and soul. He is richly present with us because He has placed His name on us in Baptism and feeds us with the true body and blood of Christ in the bread and wine of the Lord's Supper. • For all Your gifts we thank You, dear Savior! Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:4 my soul. Emphasizes Isaac's earnest wish to bless Esau despite the Lord's words (25:23) and Esau's false conduct (25:29–34; 26:34–35). By asking for a tasty meal in the midst of poor judgment, Isaac acted like Esau, who foolishly traded his birthright for stew.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:8 Rebekah remembered the Lord's promise (25:23) and acted to secure the blessing for Jacob. Seeing that Isaac was acting against the Lord's will, she deemed any means appropriate, even deceiving her husband.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:13 Rebekah did not directly address Jacob's concern (v 12). She merely demonstrated conviction regarding the Lord's word, even at the risk of Isaac's curse. See note, 12:3.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:15 best garments. Suggests an important religious ceremony. house. Hbr can generically refer to a household or a tent.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:19 your firstborn. Merely the false statement "I am Esau" would have been sufficient. Sensing Isaac's suspicion, Jacob overreacted and tried to strengthen his lie. The Hbr for "firstborn" resembles "blessing." Jacob sought the blessing of the firstborn. See note, 25:31.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:20 the LORD your God. Cf 31:5, 42; 32:9. Jacob did not confess Yahweh to be his own God until he returned from Haran (28:20–22; 33:18–20). See p 1227.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:23 So he blessed him. Here, "bless" refers to the beginning of the ritual and all its parts: the kiss, meal, and pronounced words of blessing. See p 842.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:26 kiss me. A kiss is part of the final blessing ritual. This physical touch indicates the transfer of authority from the dying father to the son.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:27–40 Although Isaac wished to undo the Lord's favor to Jacob, the Lord worked through their shortcomings to fulfill His promise. Jacob indeed was blessed undeservedly to receive earthly gifts and to be the vessel to carry on the family line leading to Christ. In contrast, Esau received the misfortune he deserved. Cf Heb 12:16–17.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:27 blessed. Specific pronouncement of blessing, in contrast to the wider use of the term in v 23. the smell of a field that the LORD has blessed! Isaac intended this blessing for Esau, whose venue was the open field, where flocks would feed and he would hunt. In true faith, Isaac looked forward to the promised Messiah. However, the Messiah would be born from the offspring of Jacob. smell. Used also to describe the Messiah, who would sacrifice Himself as a fragrant offering (Eph 5:2). Cf Heb 11:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:28 Luth: "The godly should acknowledge that they have their earthly things because God gives and blesses. Nor should they dream, as the heathen and the unbelievers do, that either the good or the evil things in this life come about by chance. On the contrary, they should acknowledge that these great gifts come from God" (AE 5:138).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:29 Cursed … blessed. Isaac promised that Jacob and his offspring would dwell in the fruitful land of Canaan, have temporal wealth, dominion over many nations, the right and honor of the firstborn, the high priestly and royal honor, and God's constant favor. God would be a friend to those who intended good to Jacob and his offspring. God would be a foe to those who opposed them. But above all, Isaac looked to the coming Messiah in this blessing. It is He who would be born from Jacob's offspring, who is the true firstborn, the King of kings, the one High Priest, from whom all blessing comes and whom all nations must serve. See note, 12:3.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:32 your firstborn, Esau. Cf v 19. Esau ironically called himself the firstborn, though he had sold this right to Jacob.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:33 Yes, and he shall be blessed. The gifts and calling of God had been promised and would remain on the line of Jacob. Cf Rm 11:29. Isaac seems to have sensed that the right son has, in fact, received the blessing. Luth: "Such statements cannot and must not be changed, for God does not change His gifts. He does not revoke Baptism, absolution, and the other gifts He bestows through His Word. If He forgives me my sins, then they have truly been forgiven" (AE 5:149).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:35–36 deceitfully … cheated. While the Lord does not approve of sin, He works even through human frailty to carry out His gracious will.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:36 reserved a blessing. Cf Heb 12:17.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:37 I have made him lord over you. Luth: "Jacob's blessing includes the three hierarchies: the domestic, the royal, and the priestly. For the purpose of administering these three he also gives him the goods of the world. In the state he has the rule and government among the people; in the church he has the stewardship of the forgiveness of sins and of eternal life" (AE 5:155). all his brothers. Hbr term used broadly for family members (e.g., the Shemites); may refer to Israel's conquests during the time of Joshua's conquest or of the monarchy.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:39–40 Just as both Cain and Ishmael were estranged from the land of their families, so also Esau would live in Edom, away from the more prosperous Israelite region. See map, p 60. Edom and Israel would become long-standing rivals. Cf 1Ki 11:14–22; Ob 10–14; see note, Mt 2:3.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:41 days of mourning. Seven-day period of mourning after his father's imminent death.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:44 a while. Lit, "a few days." Cf 29:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:45 anger turns away … and he forgets. Knowing Esau's erratic nature, Rebekah hoped his anger would pass. bereft of you both. If Esau killed Jacob, the nearest relative would be obligated to kill Esau. Thus, she feared the loss of both her sons. See note, 1Ki 2:31.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 27:46 Hittite women. Rebekah feared that Jacob, like Esau, would be estranged from God's people by Hittite wives. See notes, 26:34, 35.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 27 Esau received the misfortune he deserved Deceptive Jacob, scheming Rebekah, unwitting Isaac, and impulsive Esau all fall short of the Lord's perfect standard. Our hope cannot rest on human nature or accomplishments. We share in this fallen humanity and often act like these biblical figures. Despite this sorry state, Christ became our substitute. He loved us and gave Himself up for us, a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God. He was cursed so we may be blessed (Gal 3:13). Through the means of grace (Gospel and Sacraments), we receive the blessings of Christ's saving acts. • Lord, we thank You for providing a salvation that does not rely on our virtue or accomplishments. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:1 blessed him. Distinct from 27:28–29. This is a blessing of Abraham (v 4). a wife from the Canaanite women. Possibly referring to Hittites, like the wives of Esau, who became acclimated to Canaanite culture (see note, 26:34). Or, it may refer more generally to Canaanites.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:3 God Almighty. See p 1227. make you fruitful and multiply you. The covenant promise includes many descendants (see note, 1:28). This promise leads ultimately to Christ, Jacob's greatest descendant.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:4 blessing of Abraham. This blessing to Jacob passes on the promises that Yahweh made to Abraham (Gn 12:7; 13:15, 17; 15:18; 17:1–2, 6, 16; 22:17).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:1–5 Isaac gives Jacob a command and a blessing: Jacob must leave home, go to his relatives, and not marry a Canaanite wife. Before he departs, Isaac gives Jacob the blessing of Abraham, a blessing that includes the land of Canaan, many descendants, and ultimately the dignity of being an ancestor of the Messiah. Parents today should carefully raise their children to seek a godly, Christian spouse, and children should honor and obey their parents according to God's Word. This is God's command. But He also has a blessing for us. In Christ Jesus, the blessing of Abraham comes to all nations, so that we might receive the promised Spirit through faith (Gal 3:14). • Heavenly Father, keep us in Your Son, Jesus, that we may retain the Holy Spirit to the end of our days. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:6 Paddan-aram. See map, p 60. as he blessed him. Cf 27:1–4. How hard this experience must have been for Esau. It seems normal that all close male relatives would attend the final blessing of a dying man. However, Isaac recovered and died later (35:29).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:9 besides the wives he had. Cf 26:34; 36:1–5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:6–9 Esau chooses a wife from Abraham's family (Ishmael) in order to please Isaac, which may indicate repentance for previously dishonoring his parents. In opposition to the Fourth Commandment, we have often disrespected our parents and others in authority. God's Law condemns our disobedience and calls us to sincere repentance. We are also recipients of His blessing in Christ. • We praise You, O Lord Jesus, that You paid for all our sins with Your bitter suffering and death. Grant us sound marriages and sincere repentance. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:12 dreamed. See p 74. ascending and descending. The stairway (or ladder) links heaven and earth. See note, v 13. Bern: "Was any one of them either sitting, or standing still? It was not for angels to stand still on the uncertain rounds of a frail ladder; nor can anything remain fixed in the same condition during the uncertain period of this mortal life. Here have we no continuing city; nor do we yet possess, but always seek for, that which is to come. Of necessity you either ascend or descend, and if you try to stand still you cannot but fall" (SLSB, pp 119–20). Luth: "This dream signified that infinite, inexpressible, and wondrous mystery of the incarnation of Christ, who was to descend from the patriarch Jacob. … This is a wonderful ascent and descent of the angels, to see the highest and the lowest completely united in one and the same Person, the highest God lying in the manger" (AE 5:217–18).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:13–15 Here the Lord Himself renewed His covenant as it had passed from Abraham to Isaac, and now to Jacob.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:13 the LORD stood above it. Christ interpreted this vision as a preincarnate appearance of Himself with His glorious angels (Jn 1:51). See p 39.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:14 all the families of the earth be blessed. The fulfillment of this promise is in Christ, the greatest descendant of Jacob, in whom all people are blessed by the fruit of His cross. Cf Gal 3:16.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:16 the LORD is in this place. He revealed Himself here. See p 39.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:17 gate of heaven. A place where heaven and earth meet through God's revelation. For where God's Word is, there heaven is open with all graces. See p 792.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:18 pillar. Hbr matsebah (spelled massebah in archaeological literature; plural is massebot). An elongated stone set in the ground like a short pillar, for cultural or religious purposes. The raising of such stones is ancient. They appear much like grave markers with rounded tops. At Canaanite temple sites, the stones could represent worshipers or gods, whose images are carved on the faces of some stones. Such stones could also serve as markers (cf 31:52; 35:20). Jacob used the pillar in this way, to mark the spot where God appeared to him. He would later build an altar from this stone and others, and he would preach God's name and sacrifice at this altar (v 22). See notes, Jsh 24:26, 27. poured oil. To show that God had hallowed it to become part of the altar.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:19 Bethel. Using an ancient, common Semitic name for God, Hbr 'el. See "God," p 1227. One evidence for the antiquity of the stories in Gn is the fact that they never refer to the Canaanite god Baal, which Moses first mentions in Nu 25:3 when the Israelites are traveling toward the Promised Land. These circumstances accord well with evidence outside of Scripture that shows the emergence of devotion to the storm god Baal (earlier called Hadad) c 1500 BC. Luz. Original Canaanite name.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:22 God's house. Jacob would build an altar here. a full tenth. A tithe.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 28:10–22 Long before becoming man, the Second Person of the Godhead appears to Jacob in a vision with ascending and descending angels. The Son of God tells how all nations will be blessed in Him through the line of Jacob. In thankfulness, Jacob vows to build an altar for the worship of the true God and to tithe. Even now, such promises are pleasing to God, if made in faith without superstition. We have much to be thankful for. Christ is our gateway to heaven. To forgive sins and strengthen our faith, Christ descends to us in His Word and Sacraments. • We praise You, Lord, for Your promises and mercy. Be with us as we ascend and descend in service to others. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:1 people of the east. Nomads residing on the eastern part of Canaan and across the Jordan, known for prosperity in flocks, herds, and camels. Cf Jb 1:3.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:4 Haran. See map, p 60.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:10 rolled the stone. Jacob must have had amazing strength.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:11 Jacob saw the hand of God in this event.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:14 my bone and my flesh! Laban acknowledged Jacob as his kin.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:17 eyes were weak. Hbr expression is unclear. Leah's eyes were apparently dull and lacking luster in comparison to Rachel's beautiful eyes.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:18 serve you seven years. One would ratify the betrothal through a bride price. See note, 34:12. Jacob could not ask his immediate family to pay this price, and he had no other means, so he offered his labor. Seven years would equal an extravagant amount of money and thus indicated his deep love for Rachel.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:20 seemed … few days. See note, 27:44.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:21 my wife. Jacob had paid the bride price of labor to have Rachel as his wife. go in to her. To consummate the marriage.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:23 Luth: "Without consent, agreements, and discussion the daughter is seized by the father and placed on the nuptial bed of Jacob. … If these were the customs of those people, they certainly were very bad" (AE 5:301).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:24 his female servant. Customarily, the bride's father would give a dowry to the bride. Although Laban did not give the usual clothing, money, or furniture, he gave the important gift of a maidservant.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:25 deceived. Cf 27:35.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:27 the other also. See pp 54–55.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:28 After the week was over, Jacob married Rachel. He did not have to wait another seven years, but he was now obliged to serve Laban 14 years.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:1–30 Jacob's sin falls back upon him. Just as he deceived his brother Esau, the firstborn, so also Laban deceives Jacob regarding a firstborn. When people are engaged and married, falsehood and deceit leads to great harm, though the love of husband and wife can make hard work light. Thanks be to God, the Church's Bridegroom deals faithfully. He covers our debt with the sacrifice of His life and love so that we may be His. • Lord Jesus, we praise You for Your extravagant love. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:31 hated. Rejected. Jacob did not show as much love to her as he did to Rachel.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:1 When Rachel saw. Presumably when Leah was pregnant yet again. Give me children, or I shall die! In her desperate desire for children, Rachel blamed Jacob for infertility, forgetting the Lord is the source of such blessing.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:3 Here is my servant … on my behalf. Like Sarah and later Leah (30:9–13), Rachel allowed a surrogate to bear a child in her place. The practice of having surrogate mothers is well attested in laws from the second millennium BC at Anatolian Kanesh, Babylon, and Nuzi. Although reported in Gn, nowhere in Scripture does the Lord condone this behavior.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:4 Bilhah as a wife. See pp 54–55.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:6 God has judged me. The Lord had given her justice by answering her prayer.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:8 wrestled … prevailed. In her competition to produce children, Rachel succeeded by a surrogate mother. Cf 32:28, "striven … prevailed."
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:9 ceased bearing children. After bearing four sons in close succession. as a wife. See note, v 3; see also pp 54–55.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:14 days of wheat harvest. In May. See calendar, p 262. mandrakes. Roots used to make perfume. The ancients ascribed to them aphrodisiac qualities and fertility powers.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:15 taken away my husband? Perhaps Jacob was denying conjugal rights to Leah, the less-favored wife. lie with you. Sexual intercourse.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:20 honor. Leah hoped that in bearing Jacob many sons, he would prize her as a beloved wife.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:21 After Jacob's seven years of service for Rachel, or perhaps even later.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:22 God remembered Rachel. Around the time that Leah was pregnant with her sixth son. See "remember," p 843. God listened. Rachel finally relied on the Lord instead of trying to take matters into her own hands. Cf vv 1–3, 15.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 29:31–30:24. As Leah and Rachel contend with each other regarding childbearing and Jacob's affection, they degrade the marriage relationship. As the sole giver of all good gifts, the Lord finally grants Rachel a child and thus removes her reproach (30:23). In many cases, modern technology allows people to turn God's gift of childbearing into a product they can obtain or refuse at will. Such manipulative attitudes are as old as Leah and Rachel. As Jacob suggests (30:2), we cannot stand in the place of God in these matters, but we must entrust them to His wisdom. In any case, the Lord has given us a child—His only-begotten Son (Is 9:6–7)—to save us and bring salvation to the world. • Lord, grant us patience and trust in matters beyond our control. Bless marriages and families with Your forgiving love. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:26 Give me my wives. Jacob served the contracted 14 years for the bride price, so the women are rightfully his wives. See note, 29:18.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:27 learned by divination. See ESV note. Laban sought information by supernatural means, such as the interpretation of omens. Later, God forbade this practice in Israel because such practices arise from paganism and seek to access evil powers for aid. Cf Lv 19:26; Dt 18:10, 14. See note, 1Sm 15:23.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:30 wherever I turned. Lit, "at my foot," upon which one steps and turns. The expression's use here seems derogatory, making Laban dependent on Jacob's foot. See note, Ru 4:7.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:32 speckled … spotted … black. To distinguish Jacob's livestock from Laban's.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:33 my honesty will answer for me later. Jacob will be vindicated whenever Laban inspects his wages. stolen. Any sheep or goat outside the stated parameters would be considered dishonest gain. Through hard lessons, Jacob had learned the virtue of honesty and clarity.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:35 Laban removed. Laban dishonestly removed the sheep and goats that would have been Jacob's.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:39 bred in front of the sticks. Jacob assumed that what the sheep saw while breeding would affect their offspring. This may have been the conventional wisdom of the day. However, see note, v 40. This plan succeeded by a miracle of the Lord.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:40 set the faces of the flocks. Along with the use of the mottled sticks, Jacob seems to have understood the basic principles of selective breeding. He intentionally paired animals to breed for the desired traits. Jacob adhered to the agreement but also acted shrewdly.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:41 stronger … breeding. Jacob used his method among the strong, whereas the weak would mate without his care and continue to be weak. breed among the sticks. See note, v 39.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:43 the man increased greatly. Jacob recognized that neither the sticks nor his methods alone could have produced such great wealth. He credited the Lord for his prosperity. Cf 31:6–10. flocks, female servants and male servants, and camels and donkeys. Such items are still a measure of wealth in herding cultures. See note, Ex 20:17.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 30:25–43 Laban deceives Jacob by taking away the livestock he promised. Nonetheless, the Lord blesses Jacob by miraculously prospering his livestock and granting him shrewdness with honesty. In business, you will be tempted to act dishonestly, as Laban did. Instead, pray for wisdom and shrewdness. In all cases, remember and give thanks that the Lord daily and richly provides for your needs of body and soul. In His faithfulness, He gives us the blessings of His cross in Word and Sacraments and will set all things right at His second coming. • Come, Lord Jesus, and grant us Your wholesome wisdom. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:2 Laban did not regard him with favor. Lit, "the face of Laban was no longer with him." Laban's face showed that his attitude toward Jacob had changed. See notes, Nu 6:25, 26.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:3 Return. Luth: "Because the Word orders it, he is not fearful but proceeds in the name of the Lord, for these are the words of God, who is liberating Jacob from distress and promising to defend him in the future" (AE 6:11). I will be with you. See "be with," p 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:4 sent and called Rachel and Leah into the field. To make sure they were ready to leave their homeland.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:7 ten times. Expression meaning "constantly." See p 217.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:9 God has … given them to me. God gave them (see note, 30:43). Jacob did not steal them, as Laban's sons said (v 1).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:10 saw in a dream. As at Bethel (28:12–16), God used a dream to reveal His gracious will to Jacob. See p 74. mottled. Having irregular patterns of color in their coats.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:11 the angel of God. Cf v 13. Elsewhere called "the angel of the LORD" (e.g., 16:7). God is the speaker. See p 1227.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:13 I am the God of Bethel. At Bethel, the Lord identified Himself as "the God of Abraham … [and] Isaac" (28:13). Since Jacob had been living among people who worshiped false gods, he needed this reminder of who the true God is.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:14 portion or inheritance. See p 7. Luth: "According to God's command it is the duty of a mother or wife to assist her husband in nourishing and bringing up the children and in attending to the administration of the household. These two wives complain … about the cruelty of their father, in as much as they are already the mothers of 12 children and they are still deprived … of the things necessary for nourishing such a numerous household" (AE 6:15).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:15 devoured our money. Laban used up his daughters' portion and inheritance for his own purposes.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:19 shear his sheep. Usually done in spring. See calendar, p 262. Laban had put a distance of three days' journey between his flocks and Jacob's (30:36). household gods. Hbr teraphim. Rachel may have stolen her father's idols out of anger, or she may have thought that they would grant protection. Neither motive was right.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:21 crossed the Euphrates. This river marked the northern boundary of the land promised to Abraham (15:18). set his face. Suggests Jacob's determination to move away from Laban rapidly. He would cover a great distance. Gilead. See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:24 either good or bad. LXX, "anything bad." Luth: "In your heart you have thought up a huge mass of accusations and charges to vomit out against him. But I order you not only to keep your hands off him but not to offend him even by a word" (AE 6:39).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:26 like captives of the sword? Laban's words are filled with anger. He disregarded the Lord's command (v 24) by comparing his daughters to prisoners of war.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:27 Hypocritical statement.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:28 my sons. Grandsons.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:32 our kinsmen. Relatives who were present.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:34 camel's saddle. Apparently, the saddle could be removed from the camel and serve as a convenient seat for travelers. sat on them. That Rachel would sit on "gods" shows that idolatry is ridiculous.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:35 the way of women is upon me. Rachel claims to be menstruating but may not be telling the truth.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:39 I bore the loss. Under some ancient law codes (e.g., Code of Hammurabi), a shepherd was not held responsible for losses incurred from attacks of wild beasts.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:40 my sleep fled from my eyes. Jacob was deprived of sleep because he faithfully tended Laban's flocks.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:42 the Fear of Isaac. He whom Isaac trusted. See p 1001. rebuked. In the dream (v 24).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:43 all that you see is mine. All that Jacob had originally came from Laban.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:44 make a covenant. Peace agreement in which Jacob also pledged to be faithful to his wives (v 50). See p 127. witness. Laban had often gone back on his word. This formal covenant was meant to testify that this time both he and Jacob could be trusted.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:45 stone … pillar. As a sign of the covenant. See note, 28:18.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:47 Jegar-sahadutha … Galeed. See ESV notes. Different languages of the names show the persistent cultural boundaries between the two men.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:49 Mizpah. Several other locations in Israel were named Mizpah. See map, p 451.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:52 I will not pass over this heap … to do harm. The pillar and stones served as boundary markers.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:53 God of Nahor, the God of their father. Nahor, Laban's grandfather (24:15, 29), served "other gods" (Jsh 24:2). Notwithstanding Laban's oath in v 50, it is quite clear that he worshiped multiple gods. judge between us. Laban called on the gods to be the guardian of this covenant. swore by the Fear of his father Isaac. Jacob bound himself to the agreement in the name of the true God. See note, v 42.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 31:54 offered a sacrifice … ate bread. It was customary to end a covenant ceremony with a sacrifice and meal. his kinsmen. Luth: "It is likely that Jacob had many relatives in his household from the house of Laban who worked for him" (AE 6:66).

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 31 Deception leads to dispute between relatives, which threatens to break out into open warfare. Such an outcome is avoided because God steps in. Family feuds, often fueled by deceit, continue to plague relationships today. We need God to step into our lives, into our families. In Him and in His Word there is no deceit. Trust Him to forgive the contrite sinner and to quiet the angry heart. Go to Christ for pardon and for peace. • "Grant peace in mercy, Lord, we pray, Peace in our time, O send us! For there is none on earth but thee, None other to defend us. Only thou, Lord, canst fight for us." Amen. (AE 53:287)

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:2 Jacob saw … God's camp! Jacob called this company of angels "God's camp" (Hbr machaneh), from which comes the place-name Mahanaim.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:3 Seir … Edom. See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:7 afraid and distressed. Jacob forgot about God's company of angels. divided. Tactic used by ancient merchants and caravans to ensure that some of their livestock and goods would survive a raid.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:12 God's promise was the basis for Jacob's prayer.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:13 present. That Jacob sought to turn away Esau's anger with this gift does not mean he lacked trust. Luth: "Although we have God's promises and commandments, nevertheless, God must not be tempted, that is, means must not be neglected, but we must use these things we can use since, indeed, God has not given us reason and the counsels and help of reason that we should despise them" (AE 6:104).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:16 drove. Herd or flock of animals being driven in a body.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:20 he will accept me. See ESV note. When Jacob finally does see Esau face-to-face, he hopes to be able to smile (lit, "he will lift my face").
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:1–21 Faced with possible death, Jacob turns to the Lord in prayer, then makes preparations to aid his family's safety. His prayer is a model for ours: address God, confess who God is and what He has done, confess our unworthiness, petition Him, and remember God's promises, which are the basis for our prayers. God's promise is to bless and pardon us for the sake of Christ, the Offspring of Jacob. • Lord, teach us so to pray!
Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:22 female servants. Bilhah and Zilpah. crossed the ford of the Jabbok. Eastern tributary of the Jordan River, 25 mi N of the Salt Sea. See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:24 a man wrestled with him. Jacob may have thought at first that his rival was Esau. However, cf v 30. Luth: "The wrestler is the Lord of glory, God Himself, or God's Son, who was to become incarnate and who appeared and spoke to the fathers. For God in His boundless goodness dealt very familiarly with His chosen patriarch Jacob and disciplined him as though playing with him in a kindly manner" (AE 6:130).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:25 hip was put out of joint. Hints that Jacob's opponent was more than human.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:26 bless me. Jacob recognized that his adversary was no mere man, but God Himself. See "bless," p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:27 What is your name? He asked not because He did not know it, but in order to give Jacob a new name.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:28 Israel. Luth: "Israel [means] a prince or God's fighter, that is, he who wrestles with God and wins. This happens through that faith which holds so firmly to God's Word, until it overcomes God's wrath and obtains God as the gracious Father" (WA DB 8:137).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:29 Why is it that you ask My name? Jacob wanted absolute proof of his rival's identity. Apart from the revealed Word, we should not ask for or seek a hidden name of God. He blessed him. He repeated the blessing He gave Jacob earlier (28:13–15).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:30 Peniel. Luth: "For through faith, in the struggle of the cross, one learns to recognize and experience God rightly" (WA DB 8:137). See map, p 60. seen God face to face. In His assumed human form. See p 39. yet my life has been delivered. The sight of God is usually a destroying fire (cf Heb 12:29).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:31 Penuel. Variant of Peniel. Cf Jgs 8:8–9.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:32 do not eat the sinew. Evidently a self-imposed practice; no such law is found in the OT. See pp 3–5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 32:22–32 Alone and faced with danger, Jacob finds God to be his adversary. Yet faithful Jacob wrestles and receives a new name and God's blessing. It does not always seem that God is on our side. Sometimes He causes Christians to bear trials, temptations, and suffering—i.e., the cross. Yet, this is not to destroy us, but to strengthen us and finally bless us. Christian faith clings to God's Word of mercy in Jesus Christ. • Lord, in Baptism, You have promised to be my God. Grant to me what You see that I need. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:3 bowing … seven times. Servant's act of respect for his lord. See p 1276.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:4 they wept. With joy.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:8 all this company. The flocks Jacob had sent to Esau. find favor. So that Esau would be favorable toward Jacob and his family. See "favor," p 6.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:10 like seeing the face of God. An experience of mercy. Probably also alludes to the fact that Jacob saw God and lived. Here, Esau could have wiped Jacob out.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:11 my blessing. Jacob's gift for Esau. he took it. By accepting the present, Esau showed that he accepted Jacob.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:12 I will go ahead of you. To accompany and protect Jacob's household.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:13 children are frail. Jacob's oldest son, Reuben, was c 13.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:14 until I come to my lord in Seir. Jacob changed his mind about going to Seir at this time, though he might have visited Esau later. Together, they buried their father, Isaac (35:29).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:17 Succoth was nearby, located along the Jabbok River. See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:18 Shechem was across the Jordan, due west of Succoth, in Canaan.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:19 Purchase of property suggests that Jacob planned to settle here. money. See note, Jsh 24:32.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 33:20 altar … El-Elohe-Israel. See ESV note. Jacob used his new name to confess his faith in the mighty God of heaven and earth.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 33 God turns Jacob's fear into joy as Esau approaches and the two brothers are reconciled. Jacob humbles himself, and Esau forgives. As much as possible, without compromising Christian doctrine and morality, we should make peace with those who oppose us—especially family members. This takes mutual humility and forgiveness. God took the lead here. While we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son (Rm 5:10). • Lord God, in Christ You have dealt graciously with me, and in Him I have enough. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:2 Hivite. See p 345. prince. Master, tribal chief. lay with her and humiliated her. Raped her.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:4 Get me this girl for my wife. God later forbade the Israelites from marrying foreigners (Dt 7:1–5).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:9–10 Hamor's interest was more than in his son's marriage. He wanted Jacob's house to be assimilated to the Hivite culture and economy. See note, Ezr 9:12.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:12 bride price. Hbr mohar, compensation for the loss of a daughter. The bride price would be given to Jacob. gift. Given to Dinah as a dowry.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:13 deceitfully. Jacob's sons probably resorted to deception because they thought themselves outnumbered. Luth: "They made pretense and lied in word and deed … for the destruction and ruin of the Shechemites. This assuredly was a mortal sin" (AE 6:202).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:14 uncircumcised. See note, 17:11. The Hivites, like some other Near Eastern groups, did not practice circumcision. See note, Ex 4:25.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:15 every male … circumcised. By demanding that the Hivites be circumcised, Jacob's sons treated this sign of God's sacred covenant flippantly. They used God's holy institution for a secular, even sinful, purpose.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:17 we will take our daughter. The brothers assumed the role of their father when referring to their sister.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:20 the gate. Where the political business of many ancient cities was transacted. See p 792.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:23 Will not their livestock … be ours? Through marriage.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:25 sore. Pain from a surgery such as circumcision is often most intense on the third day. Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brothers. All were children of Leah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:29 In biblical times, conquering armies often enslaved the women and children of captured cities. See notes, Dt 21:10–14. Sometimes the slaves would later be sold (cf 37:28).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:30 making me stink. This cruel deed might give Jacob an evil reputation. Canaanites … Perizzites. See p 345.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 34:31 Question implies that Jacob did not care how Dinah was treated.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 34 One sin leads to another. Shechem rapes Dinah, and Jacob's sons abuse God's holy institution of circumcision so they could massacre the men of Shechem. Christians, beware! Those who treat God's holy things carelessly and who nurture vengeance prepare for themselves lasting misery. Zeal for a right cause is good, but moderation and due process are also required. The same Savior who died for us also died for sinners such as Shechem and Jacob's sons. • Lord Jesus, grant me wisdom and patience. Help me to love others as You have loved me. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:1 God said … to the God who appeared to you. He wanted Jacob to see distinctly that the God addressing him now in Canaan is the same God who appeared to him on the other side of the Jordan, though the manifestation may be different. See note, 2Ki 17:26. God spoke to Jacob in this way not because a different god had appeared to him then (28:13) but because of the distinction of persons in the one, undivided Godhead.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:2 foreign gods. Plunder from Shechem (34:28–29) likely included statues of false gods. purify yourselves. Possibly included bathing and sexual abstinence, as well as repentance and faith in the promised Messiah. See "holy," p 7. change your garments. Cf Eph 4:22–24.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:4 hid. Buried.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:5 terror. God used this to protect Jacob's family. The cities would have wanted to kill Jacob and his family for what his sons did at Shechem (34:25–30).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:7 called the place El-bethel. See ESV note. God twice revealed Himself here to Jacob; hence the name, which means "God of the house of God." See note, v 1.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:10 Israel shall be your name. God confirmed the name He gave Jacob previously. Luth: "God is speaking about the chief name, concerning the promises. … He has to be Israel … on account of these promises. But he was also called Jacob [i.e., deceiver] … on account of his works" (AE 6:263).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:11 God Almighty. See p 1227. be fruitful and multiply. The man Israel was already the father of many children; this command was meant also for his descendants. See note, 1:28.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:12 Abraham and Isaac. The Lord confirmed His promise to the fathers.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:14 pillar. Jacob had built the previous pillar into an altar (v 7). Here, he set up another pillar. See note, 28:18. drink offering … oil. Luth: "It was the rite for initiating and anointing and was also taken up later by Moses, for he anoints the priests and their clothing, etc., just as Jacob anoints the stone that the place may be consecrated and dedicated to God and that the church might come together in this place to hear the Word of God, to pray, and to give thanks" (AE 6:266).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:1–15 There was little mention of God in ch 34. Now, He again takes center stage, and Jacob responds. Jacob gets rid of the false gods. He journeys to Bethel, the "house of God." He again hears God's promises. He worships. Where God's people assemble around Word and Sacrament, God Himself is present to forgive those who repent. • "My soul, now praise your Maker! Let all within me bless His name Who makes you full partaker Of mercies more than you dare claim." Amen. (LSB 820:1)

GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:17 another son. Benjamin. Joseph was Rachel's firstborn.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:18 soul. Hbr nephesh. When the soul leaves the body, death occurs. See note, 2:7. Ben-oni … Benjamin. See ESV notes. Jacob called his son Benjamin lest the name Ben-oni become a constant reminder of Rachel's death.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:19 Bethlehem. May refer to the whole region, not just the city. See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:20 pillar. See note, 28:18. Rachel's tomb. She was buried at Ramah, along the road running down to Bethlehem. See note, Mt 2:18; see also map, p 451.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:21 Eder. Exact location unknown; near Edom.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:22 Bilhah his father's concubine. Bilhah, Rachel's maid, was also called Jacob's wife (30:4). See pp 54–55. Reuben's sin of incest caused him to lose the birthright. See note, 49:4.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:27 Isaac. Jacob's father was still living, though he was prepared to die many years earlier (27:4). Hebron. See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:29 See note, 1Ki 2:10. Isaac was buried near Mamre with his parents and wife, Rebekah. Mention of both Esau and Jacob shows that they were reconciled. Cf ch 33.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 35:16–29 Sorrows surround Jacob. He learns of his son's incest with his concubine and also the death of his wife and of his father. God-fearing people such as Jacob sometimes have children who fall into great sin and shame. And even those who receive God's promises, such as Rachel and Isaac, are still subject to death. Mourning is a part of life in a sin-broken world. When sorrows surround you, call on the Lord in prayer. Remember and celebrate His promises, which are guaranteed to you in Jesus' death and resurrection. Because Jesus conquered death and sin, we have comfort in the midst of all troubles. • O Lord, forgive our sins, and bring us to eternal life for Jesus' sake. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 36 Though we may not understand why, God caused the names of some 200 Edomite noblemen and noblewomen to be written in His Word. See pp 8–11, 628–31.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 36:1 generations of Esau. Gn is divided into 10 "generations" (genealogies). Esau's is the ninth.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 36:2 wives. The names of Esau's wives differ from those given in 26:34; 28:9. Possibly death, alternate names, or additional wives account for this. Canaanites … Hittite … Hivite. See p 345.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 36:8 settled in the hill country of Seir. Where he had already moved before Jacob's return home. Cf Dt 2:12. Thus Jacob had Canaan to himself (37:1), so that God's promise would be fulfilled. Cf Jsh 24:4. The territory that Esau settled came to be called Edom (Idumea in the NT). See map, p 60.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 36:31 before any king reigned over the Israelites. Before the Israelites had a king. Cf 35:11; Dt 17:14. Either Moses the prophet wrote these words foreseeing that Israel would one day be ruled by kings, or this is an editorial update written after Moses' time. See notes, Dt 17:15–20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 36:37 Rehoboth on the Euphrates. Or, "Rehoboth-hannahar" ("open space of the river"). See ESV note.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 36 God shows us that for the sake of devout parents such as Isaac and Rebekah, He will give good things to their children, the Edomites, even though the children do not imitate their parents' faith and life. By doing so, God would lead them and their descendants to repentance. Though the Edomites were often rivals of Israel, the Lord made provision for their salvation (Dt 23:7–8). How great is God's mercy! • Lord Jesus, have mercy on all generations that stray. Call them back to You. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:2 generations of Jacob. The 10th and last section of the Book of Genesis, each of which is introduced with the term "generations." See pp 10–11. with the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah. These sons would have been closer in age to Joseph than the older offspring of Jacob's wife Leah. wives. Concubines. See pp 54–55. bad report. Of something evil they had done.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:3 the son of his old age. Joseph was born to Jacob when he was old, of his favorite wife, Rachel. he made. Women carded wool and spun thread from wool and from flax. In Egypt, men usually did the weaving, so Jacob may have actually woven Joseph's garment. Later biblical texts describe women weaving (Pr 31). robe of many colors. See ESV note. Mentioned elsewhere only at 2Sm 13:18. It became a source of his brothers' envy.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:5 Joseph had a dream. Luth: "So far as dreams are concerned, there is the well-known rule that such revelations must be scrutinized with respect to their relation to the Word and to faith. If they are not in harmony with the Word or destroy faith, they are of Satan" (AE 3:330). Today, we ought not expect God to reveal Himself in dreams, since we have the full revelation of Scripture. See p 74.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:7 binding sheaves. Like Isaac, Jacob's family was partly nomadic and partly agricultural (see note, 26:12). At harvesttime, the men would tie up the stalks of plants into bundles. bowed down. Years later in Egypt, this dream was fulfilled when Joseph's family bowed down to him (see note, 42:6).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:9 another dream. Although these dreams were the source of great tension, they would comfort Joseph in his future trials with the knowledge that he was part of God's plan.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:10 his father rebuked him. Knowing that children should honor and serve their parents (Ex 20:12; Dt 5:16), Jacob rebuked Joseph for predicting that he would rule over the rest of the family. your mother. Probably refers to Leah, Joseph's stepmother, since Rachel had already died (35:19).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:1–11 Joseph is favored by his father but hated by his brothers. Joseph's prophetic dreams only raise tensions in the family. We can expect that those who love virtue will be hated and envied by the wicked. Yet we should also pursue humility and avoid arrogance. Thanks be to God, His favored Son died to redeem His people, though they hated Him. In righteous humility, He redeemed us too. • Almighty God, in this world of division and family strife, bless us with the healing love of Your Son, Jesus. Forgive us our jealousies and hatred. In the Savior's name. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:12 Shechem. See map, p 60.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:14 Valley of Hebron … to Shechem. C 50 mi through the rocky hills that run along the spine of Canaan, no slight journey for a young man of 17 to venture alone. See map, p 60.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:16 seeking my brothers. No doubt word of the presence of a sizable group of men with their substantial flock would circulate in the region, so it is not surprising that the man would know of the brothers' whereabouts.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:17 Dothan. Another 16–17 mi from Shechem. See color map 1.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:18 Joseph could have been identified from afar by his robe of many colors (v 3).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:19 this dreamer. Lit, "master of dreams." Sarcasm.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:20 pits. People dug cisterns to collect rain water. At this time of year, the pit would be dry (v 24). See note, Jer 2:13. fierce animal. In ancient times, lions and other dangerous animals roamed the region. Cf 1Sm 17:34.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:21 Reuben. Jacob's oldest son (35:22–23).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:24 See note, v 20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:25 sat down to eat. Detail shows how callous the brothers had become. They ignored the cries and pleas of their brother and were undisturbed by their wicked deed. caravan of Ishmaelites. Desert-dwelling descendants of Abraham's first son, Ishmael. balm. Probably the legendary balm of Gilead, which may have been made from terebinth resin.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:26 Judah. Cf 49:10. This brother appears several times in the following chapters of Gn, both as a bad example (ch 38) and a noble one (44:18–34). conceal his blood? Cover up his death. Cf 4:10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:28 Midianite traders … sold him to the Ishmaelites. Midianites were desert-dwelling descendants of Abraham through his wife (or concubine) Keturah. The relation here with the Ishmaelites is unclear. Perhaps the Midianites and Ishmaelites intermingled, or there were both Midianite and Ishmaelite traders in the group to which Joseph was sold. At times, the two terms seem to be used interchangeably, as in Jgs 8:22–28. twenty shekels of silver. Typical price for a male slave during this era, attesting to the early second millennium context of the story. The price for slaves went up over time, as demonstrated in Scripture (cf Ex 21:32; 2Ki 15:20) and ancient literature. Coined money was not yet used, so this passage refers to the weight of silver paid. See ESV note; see also note, Jsh 24:32.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:29 tore his clothes. See note, Jb 1:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:30 where shall I go? As in, "How can I escape my grief?" Reuben wondered how he would explain Joseph's disappearance to Jacob. His brothers had put him into a difficult situation. He felt he had to join in their deception.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:34 tore his garments. See note, Jb 1:20. In this case, the tearing parallels what Jacob assumed happened to Joseph. Jacob's lament goes far beyond that of Reuben. sackcloth. See note, Jb 16:15. mourned … many days. Usually public displays of grief lasted a week, or on occasion a month, as for Moses (Dt 34:8). Jacob declared that his grief for his son would last until he died (v 35).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:35 Since they knew Joseph was alive, the brothers' comfort was hypocritical. Sheol. Here, "death." See p 792.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:36 Midianites had sold. See note, v 28. an officer of Pharaoh, the captain of the guard. Office of high rank.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 37:12–36 Joseph is betrayed by his brothers and sold into slavery. Yet God spares Joseph's life in order to fulfill His plan and the dreams He had revealed. When sin is not dealt with, it breeds even more wickedness. Joseph's brothers let their hatred lead to betrayal and lies. Many years later, God's Son was betrayed by His friend, not for 20 shekels but for 30 pieces of silver. Yet this also took place so that God could fulfill His plan for our salvation. • Heavenly Father, enable us to help those in need. Turn us away from self-pity and worry to compassion and sympathy. Send Your Holy Spirit to strengthen our faith in times of trial. In the Savior's name we pray. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 38 A digression from the Joseph story.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:1 at that time. I.e., about the time Joseph was sold. Adullamite. A man from the city of Adullam, c 10 mi W of Jacob's home at this time. See map, p 534. Hirah. Later referred to as Judah's friend (v 12). This incident shows that Jacob's family lived at peace with the inhabitants of the land.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:2 Canaanite. Simeon also had a Canaanite wife, though later this was forbidden (Dt 7:1–3). He took her. Likely in marriage. The woman is not named, only referred to as the daughter of Shua.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:3 Er. Name might mean "watchful" or "vigilant," but the text does not specify any significance.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:5 Shelah. Perhaps means "drooping," since he may have been less robust than his brothers. Chezib. Probably the same as Achzib (Jsh 15:44), c 3 mi W of Adullam. All the places mentioned here would later be in the territory given to the tribe of Judah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:6 Judah took a wife for Er. The father usually selected a bride for his son. See pp 54–55. Tamar. Means "palm tree." Probably a Canaanite. See note, Ps 92:12–13.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:7 wicked in the sight of the LORD. "Er erred"; in Hbr, there is a pun on the name, since to do evil is "Er" spelled backward.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:8 duty of a brother-in-law to her. The ancient custom, known as levirate marriage (from the Lat for "brother-in-law"), was that a brother would take his deceased brother's widow if she had not borne a male heir. Later, this would become part of Mosaic Law. See note, Ru 1:11.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:9 not be his. The first male offspring would belong to the line of the deceased brother, not to Onan. whenever. Hbr implies that Onan did this repeatedly. waste the semen on the ground. Means of birth control, sometimes called onanism. not to give offspring. He did not want the family inheritance to be divided up further. Yet if this was all he desired, he could have abstained from intercourse altogether. Instead, Onan wanted to enjoy sexual intercourse while intentionally depriving Tamar of a family and inheritance. Imagine how this hurt and offended her at each encounter. Luth: "Onan must have been a malicious and incorrigible scoundrel. This is a most disgraceful sin. … We call it unchastity, yes, a Sodomitic sin. For Onan goes in to her; that is, he lies with her and copulates, and when it comes to the point of insemination, spills the semen, lest the woman conceive. Surely at such a time the order of nature established by God in procreation should be followed" (AE 7:20–21).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:11 a widow in your father's house. Though subject to her father-in-law, Tamar could live with her parents.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:12 In the course of time. Long enough to make it clear that Judah had no intention of giving Shelah to Tamar. When Judah was comforted. At the end of his time of mourning. Timnah. Town in the hill country of what would later be southern Judah, perhaps east of Debir. See color map 1. sheepshearers. Time of sheepshearing was festive and given to drinking of wine. See calendar, p 262. friend Hirah. See note, v 1.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:14 veil, wrapping herself up. To conceal her identity. entrance. The gate was typically the place of business and activities in ancient walled towns (see p 792). She may have been at the wayside leading up to the town. Enaim. Probably the same as the village of Enam (Jsh 15:34). Shelah was grown up. Tamar's motive is clear: Judah had failed to give Shelah to Tamar.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:15 prostitute. Her appearance and place gave this impression. Ter: "Provision must be made in every way against all immodest associations and suspicions. … Why does not my garb pre-announce my character?" (ANF 4:24–25). she had covered her face. Judah did not recognize her because of her veil.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:17 young goat. Seems to have been the typical payment. Cf Jgs 15:1. pledge. Judah had nothing with him to pay for the transaction, an indication that his act was spontaneous rather than premeditated. She asked for some kind of security that he would pay later.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:18 Tamar shrewdly asked for things she could later use as evidence. signet. A seal engraved with Judah's personal sign, which left its mark when pressed into soft clay. Usually worn on a cord around the neck or as a ring. See note, Jer 32:10. went in to her. Mosaic Law would later make clear that sexual relations between a man and his daughter-in-law are immoral (Lv 18:15).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:20 sent the young goat by his friend. Hirah seems to have been a partying friend who would support Judah in this type of behavior. woman's. Judah had not bothered to find out her name.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:21 cult prostitute. Hbr refers to a prostitute who practiced her trade in the service of a false deity, often in connection with a fertility cult. This may have been a more socially acceptable prostitute than the term used in v 15. Hirah may have used the term in embarrassment for seeking out a mere harlot.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:23 Although what Judah had left with Tamar was valuable, he did not want to pursue the matter and let his deed be made public.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:24 Tamar was living with her family (v 11), but word reached Judah. Bring her out. To the city gate, where justice was carried out. See p 792. let her be burned. Later, this became the legal punishment for prostitution, but only in the case of a priest's daughter. Perhaps it was the law among the Canaanites at the time.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:25 Tamar confronted Judah with the evidence by sending it to him (cf v 18). Judah's immorality contrasts sharply with Joseph's chaste conduct in the next chapter.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:26 Confronted with the facts, Judah confessed his guilt. He had withheld his son Shelah from Tamar and had illegitimate sexual relations with his daughter-in-law. This admission of sin may have been a turning point for Judah. Later, he showed strong character and selflessness (44:30–34). righteous. See p 843.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:27–30 The birth of twins parallels that of Jacob and Esau (25:24–26). In both cases, the older twin takes second place. Perez later became the father of the leading clan of Judah, an ancestor of David (Ru 4:18–22), and eventually an ancestor of Christ (Mt 1:1–6).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:28 midwife. A woman who assisted in childbirth. See note, Ex 1:15. scarlet thread. To identify the firstborn. first. The midwife was sure the one who put out a hand would be born first.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:29 Perez. "Breach" or "opening," i.e., one who breaks or bursts out.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 38:30 Zerah. "Brightness," probably an allusion to the scarlet thread. From Zerah would come another clan of Judah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 38 The sins of Onan, Judah, and Tamar make this one of the most sordid chapters of the Bible. Yet despite human sinfulness, God is at work. Through Judah's son Perez, the line that would eventually give birth to the Savior was preserved (cf Mt 1:3). Sexual sins lead to trouble and heartache in this life. Yet God does not cast away those who were conceived and born out of wedlock, but He preserves those who fear Him, just as He preserved Perez. So let us flee from sexual immorality, being mindful that God punishes unchastity. And let us confess our sins as Judah did, knowing that God, for the sake of Jesus Christ, will forgive all who repent. • Holy God, forgive us our sins. Fill our hearts with the sober and chaste love of Jesus Christ. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:1 Joseph. Potiphar's servant. Potiphar's wife likely had her own personal servants, but Joseph, as a slave in the house, was subject to her as well. See p 101.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:2 The LORD was with Joseph. According to His special, gracious presence. God directed all that Joseph did and gave him success. See "be with," p 5.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:3 His master saw that the LORD was with him. Potiphar saw Joseph's good qualities, such as his trustworthiness and success. There is no reason to think that Potiphar feared the Lord.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:6 The only thing in the household not under Joseph's direction was the food. Apparently Egyptians did not entrust these matters to foreigners and would not eat with them (43:32).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:7 cast her eyes. With longing, desire. Lie with me. Having failed to break Joseph's faith in 10 years of trials, the devil now comes from a new angle, tempting Joseph with lust and pleasure. Luth:

"Through the working of the Holy Spirit [Joseph] listened to and retained the teaching of his father with the greatest faithfulness and diligence. Accordingly, there shines in him the most ardent faith when in his early, blooming youth he is assailed not only by the worst misfortunes but also by the greatest allurements of pleasure. Yet he cannot be subdued or overcome. Young people should set this example before themselves" (AE 7:54).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:8 Joseph did not want to fall short of his master's trust. As a slave, Joseph's predicament was difficult, because he also had to worry about offending his master's wife.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:9 He is not greater in this house than I am. Although Potiphar was the master in charge of his household, he had complete confidence in Joseph's management. sin against God? Joseph's argument for resisting the temptation goes from the lesser to the greater motivation. After saying he did not want to offend his master, Joseph showed he did not want to offend God, who strictly forbids adultery.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:11 men of the house. Either Potiphar's wife arranged for the other male servants to be gone, or she waited for an opportune time. Luth: "This temptation is one of the most violent of all on account of the excellent and completely safe occasion and opportunity for sinning. … Indeed, you should know that he who holds himself aloof from such a woman can control his way of living" (AE 7:76).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:12 garment. Loose outer garment.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:13–14 Humiliated and angered by Joseph's rebuff, the wife now had material evidence, his garment, that she could use to get revenge.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:14 he has brought … to laugh at us. She blames her husband for bringing Joseph into the house in order to mock and seduce her. Cf v 17; see note, 26:8.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:19 his anger was kindled. At Joseph. Or, perhaps he suspected his wife was lying and was upset about having to let go his gifted servant.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:20 prison … the king's prisoners. The punishment could have been much worse—execution. No trial was involved. It was the wife's word against Joseph's.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:21 keeper of the prison. Warden or prison governor.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 39:23 paid no attention. Joseph was trustworthy.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 39 With steadfast faith, Joseph resists the temptation of Potiphar's wife. Yet in return for his godly life, Joseph loses his job and is thrown into prison. Today, pursue chastity and flee fornication, as Joseph did. Mark and avoid the bad example of Potiphar's wife, who slandered Joseph. And take comfort: whenever the Lord places the cross and suffering on His people, He also gives consolation and help, as He gave Joseph in Potiphar's house and in prison. • Lord Jesus Christ, You were tempted in every way, just as we are, yet You were without sin (Heb 4:15). Be with us in our temptations, free us from the prison of sin, and by Your cross bring us to eternal life. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:1 Some time after this. Joseph was 17 when sold into slavery (37:2) and 30 when freed from jail (41:46). cupbearer … baker. High Egyptian court officials with authority over the drinks and food of Pharaoh's household. Besides handling these official duties, they often were influential in the royal court.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:3 captain of the guard. Potiphar's title (37:36), so this prison was under his authority. The prisoners here were high-ranking. Some were reinstated but others executed (vv 21–22).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:4 he attended them. Waited on them. This was not mere menial service. some time. Lit, "some days," an indefinite period that could even mean a year.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:5 each dream with its own interpretation. Unlike other pairs of dreams (e.g., ch 41), in which both have the same interpretation.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:6 troubled. The men did not know what their dreams meant. Luth: "Through the dreams from God an impression of such a nature is made on the hearts that not only the intellect but also the will is troubled beyond normal" (AE 3:11). But not all dreams are from God. See p 74.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:8 no one to interpret. They could not consult anyone in the prison. Luth: "Since certain instances strongly prove that dreams may be meaningful, they are not to be entirely rejected. However, to be of value, dreams must, as Paul says of prophesying in Rom. 12:7, be according to the analogy of faith. But how to know whether God or the devil inspired a dream cannot be taught by rules. Experience must reveal it" (WLS § 1273). See p 74.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:11 Pharaoh's cup was in my hand. The cupbearer saw himself in his former position.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:15 stolen. Or, "kidnapped," "forcibly carried off." pit. Same term as in 37:20. Here it means "dungeon."
GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:17 birds were eating it. In the cupbearer's dream, he had control over the grapes. But the baker, in his dream, was unable to get the food to Pharaoh. In his eagerness for a favorable outcome, the baker did not notice this disturbing difference.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:19 from you! Probably by beheading. hang you on a tree. Or, "wood." The corpse of the baker would be impaled and exposed for the birds to eat.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 40:20 Pharaoh's birthday. Egyptian texts say that on a pharaoh's birthday, pardon was given to some prisoners. lifted up the head. Restored the cupbearer to honor and took off the baker's head.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 40 The dreams of the two prisoners mean death for the baker and life for the cupbearer. Yet the chief cupbearer forgot Joseph. Once people are free from danger or troubling situations, they so easily forget those who helped them, and they neglect to honor God, who delivered them. Although others may forget us, even if our father and mother forsake us, the Lord will take care of His people and remember them in His mercy (Ps 27:10). • Lord God, You have said, "I will not forget you," and Your Word is true. Remember us in mercy for the sake of Your Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:1 Pharaoh dreamed. See p 74.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:2 Central to Egypt's agriculture and economy, the Nile River represented Egypt's power and wealth. fed in the reed grass. Land flooded by the Nile was used as pastureland after the water receded.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:5 The second dream complements the first, as in ch 37. See note, 40:5. growing. Same Hbr word as used for the cows that "came up" (vv 2, 3). on one stalk. Symbol of abundance. Like the cows, the grain depended on the Nile for life.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:6 thin. Same Hbr word as used for the cows (vv 3, 4).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:8 magicians. Term used only for Egyptian and Babylonian men who specialized in occult practices. Cf Dt 18:10–14. wise men. In this context, the term refers to pagan diviners skilled in magic and the occult.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:12 young Hebrew. At the time he interpreted the dreams, Joseph was c 28 years old. Cf v 46.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:14 pit. Or, "dungeon," same Hbr word used for the pit Joseph was in before being sold into slavery (37:20). Thus his 13 years of misery began by being thrown into a pit and ended by being brought out of one. shaved … and changed his clothes. Egyptian men shaved their heads and beards. Joseph dressed in appropriate clothing.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:16 It is not in me. Luth: "He means to say, 'I am not the one who has interpreted or could interpret the dream. It is God who can do for you as He has done for me.' He gives glory to God, but nevertheless does not deny his [i.e., Joseph's] ministry" (WA DB 8:165). God will give Pharaoh a favorable answer. Lit, "an answer of peace." I.e., the interpretation will satisfy Pharaoh.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:25 one. The dreams have the same meaning. God has revealed. In Hbr, "the" precedes "God," emphasizing the one true God.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:27 seven years of famine. Egypt suffered when the flow and flood of the Nile abated, as described in some Egyptian texts.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:30 famine will consume the land. All the food supplies would be used up.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:1–36 Pharaoh's fortune-tellers and sorcerers cannot help him understand the dreams that God sent. Therefore, Joseph is brought up from the dungeon. Giving all the glory to God, he interprets the dreams and warns of the coming famine. The devil's tools—fortune-tellers and sorcerers—are powerless in divine matters. Like Joseph, we should praise God for any good thing we have. Let us also not be afraid to share good advice in a spirit of humility when such words would help our neighbor. The best thing we have is God Himself—speaking to us through His Word, redeeming us through His Son, and bringing us to Himself through His Sacraments and Spirit. • O Lord, our times are in Your hands. When the opportunity comes for us to help others, give us wisdom and strength to do so. We praise You for Your mercy, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:38–39 Spirit of God? Pharaoh likely recognized that Joseph's God had great power. Although Pharaoh may have converted to true faith (AE 7:163), he probably counted the true God as one among many and did not get rid of his idols.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:40 Joseph became the highest ranking official, master not only in the royal palace, but throughout Egypt. as regards the throne. Supreme authority remained with Pharaoh.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:42 With several ceremonial acts, Pharaoh conferred power on Joseph. These gifts well fit the Egyptian context during this era. signet ring. Official seal for validating documents. See note, 38:18. garments of fine linen. Clothing of the finest quality. gold chain. One of Egypt's highest distinctions.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:43 second chariot. Beside the royal chariot.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:44 I am Pharaoh. Stating his authority to confer this power on Joseph. lift up hand or foot. No one could take any action without Joseph's permission.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:45 Zaphenath-paneah. Possibly means "revealer of hidden things" or, more likely, "the god speaks and he lives." Asenath. Means "belonging to [the goddess] Neith." Potiphera. Not to be confused with Potiphar. Means "he whom [the sun god] Ra has given." priest of On. May have been the high priest in the worship of Ra (also written Re). The city of On was later called Heliopolis, "city of the sun." See map, p 60. Joseph's connection with this idol-worshiping family did not mean he was involved in such worship. His role in the kingdom was political and economic. Centuries later, Pharaoh Akhenaton (1379–1362 BC) declared the god Aton, earlier known as Re-Akhenaton, to be the only true god (monotheism). However, the pharaoh after Akhenaton overturned this belief.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:46 thirty years old. C 13 years had passed since Joseph was sold into slavery (cf 37:2). went through all the land. To arrange the gathering of grain during the years of plenty (v 47).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:48 put the food in the cities. In granaries.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:52 land of my affliction. Even in his prosperity, Joseph spoke of Egypt in this way, an indication that he longed for the Promised Land.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:54 Ancient records refer to seven-year famines, usually because of drought. To affect all Egypt, the drought would have included the Upper Nile, minimizing yearly floods downstream. Grain disease may also have caused the famine, as not all livestock and pastureland were destroyed (see notes, 42:1; 45:18).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 41:37–57 After years of frustration, Joseph is exalted to oversee the storage and distribution of Egypt's great harvests. As the years of famine begin to take their toll, there is enough surplus to share with those in need throughout all the earth. In hard times, those who have should share with those who have not. Here is comfort: after long periods of suffering, at just the right time, the Lord will give help to His people, just as He did for Joseph. Through His Son, Jesus, God rules over us and gives us what we need: pardon, provision, and peace. • Heavenly Father, give us this day our daily bread, and deliver us from evil, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:1 grain … in Egypt. The flooding of the Nile normally kept Egypt fertile even in droughts. Inscriptions show Canaanites coming for food during famine. See note, 12:10. grain. Such as barley and wheat; dietary staples. look at one another? Failing to take action.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:4 Benjamin. At least age 22. Cf 46:21. feared that harm. Having lost both Rachel and Joseph.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:5 See note, 41:54.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:6 governor. "Vizier," chief administrator, who developed and implemented Pharaoh's policies. sold. As overseer. God providentially ensured that Joseph would notice the arrival of his brothers. bowed. Joseph's dream is fulfilled. See note, 37:7.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:8 not recognize. Now 22 years later, Joseph was a ruler in Egyptian royal garb, speaking a foreign language.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:9 nakedness. Weak and vulnerable spots.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:11 honest. Though they had lied about Joseph for decades.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:13 youngest. Benjamin. no more. They did not know Joseph's fate.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:15 tested. To prove their honesty and character. Cf 22:1. life of Pharaoh. Oath by one greater than himself adds weight to the test (Heb 6:16).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:17 custody. Imprisoned, like Joseph (40:3). three days. Time for a genuine change of heart to begin (see note, v 21).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:18 I fear God. Denotes Joseph's faith and awe before God—a clue to Joseph's character that the brothers did not notice. See p 1001.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:20 verified. See note, v 15.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:21 guilty. Repentance begins. Luth: "They confess that they are debtors; they acknowledge the cruelty with which they have despised the pitiful plea of their brother." However, "it was indeed an atrocious crime … and they have not yet come to a full realization and knowledge of its hideousness" (AE 7:259).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:22 reckoning. Innocent blood seeks justice. Cf 4:10; 9:6.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:24 wept. Reveals love and recognition of their repentance. Simeon. The oldest of the brothers who had sold him had caused trouble before. Cf 34:25, 30. Reuben, the oldest brother, tried to spare Joseph and was not present when he was sold (cf 37:29–30).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:25 money. Lit, "silver." Measured by weight. See note, Jsh 24:32.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:27 mouth. Top of the bag.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:28 hearts failed. Luth: "[The expression] points out that confidence, wisdom, and all courage failed them. They were terrified, not only when they saw the money in the sack but also when they were confronted with the sin they had committed. … As yet, however, they do not grieve; as yet they do not acknowledge their crime" (AE 7:271). God has done. Luth: "But they ascribe this to God, the Judge. … And this came from the terror and anguish of conscience which, with great grief and anguish of heart, are wont to follow sin" (AE 7:271).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:34 trade. Or, "travel freely," which was necessary for business.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:35 afraid. Because they feared they would be accused of theft, and their brother Simeon, still bound in Egypt, would have to suffer for it.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:36 bereaved me. Either Jacob suspected the brothers had something to do with Joseph's demise, or he just meant that they brought him the news of it.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:37 Kill my two sons. Reuben futilely and crudely offered his sons as hostages to assuage Jacob's fear. Luth: "[Jacob] prefers saving Benjamin to saving Reuben and Simeon, and it seems that he regarded Simeon as lost" (AE 7:289).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 42:38 Sheol. Here, "death." See p 792.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 42 The sons of Israel enter Egypt for food and unknowingly fulfill the dream they had resented (37:5–8). Joseph, though harsh, was motivated by the fear of the Lord, and began a test to determine his brothers' treatment of his father and Benjamin, and to encourage repentance and a renewed relationship with God. Luth: "In trials God conducts Himself toward His saints just as Joseph conducts himself toward his brothers" (AE 7:225). Unrepentant sin is not resolved by time or forgetfulness, but by true repentance and forgiveness. Joseph's tears reveal affection. Luth: "Christ is our completely friendly Joseph, who died for us and shed His blood for the remission of our sins" (AE 7:256). • O Lord, no matter how high I sit, You are able to cast me down, and no matter how deep I have fallen, You are able to lift me up. To You be glory, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:3 Judah. The next oldest son after Reuben, Simeon, and Levi. Reuben failed to convince his father to send Benjamin with them (42:37–38); Simeon was imprisoned (42:24); Jacob distrusted Levi (34:30). Judah is next. Despite glaring sins, Judah had had a change of heart (37:26–27; 38:26).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:8 the boy. Benjamin, the youngest of the brothers, was an adult, over 20 years old (cf 42:4; 46:21).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:9 bear the blame. Judah offered to bear whatever penalty Jacob would impose for failure.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:10 returned twice. They could have made two trips to Egypt, perhaps over two years' time.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:11 choice fruits. Harvested before the famine, or indicating the famine had causes other than drought (see note, 41:54). Jacob sought to appease Joseph as he had Esau (32:20). balm. Medicinal salve (cf Jer 8:22). honey. Either from bees or a syrup from grapes or dates. gum. Aromatic gum of tragacanth. myrrh. Medicinal, anesthetic aromatic (cf Ps 45:8; Mk 15:23). pistachio nuts … almonds. Plentiful in Canaan. All items were valuable. See p 236. Luth: "In this way the father honors his son and pays him homage according to the dream" (AE 7:323; cf Gn 37:10).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:12 double the money. For both prior and current purchases.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:14 God Almighty. See p 1227. I am bereaved. If he must be robbed of his children, in patience he will commit the matter to God.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:15 stood before Joseph. To purchase grain.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:16 steward. Servant with complete authority. See notes, 44:4, 10. slaughter an animal. Eating meat implies a special occasion. See p 236; cf Lk 15:23.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:21 full weight. See note, 42:25.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:23 God of your father. Joseph must have told him of the God of Israel. Luth: "It is evident that he was imbued with the doctrine of godliness by his master" (AE 7:333). received your money. Joseph probably paid for the grain.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:25 present. See note, v 11. eat bread. Eat a meal (cf 31:54; Mt 6:11).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:26–28 bowed. Cf 37:7–8; see p 1276.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:29 lifted up his eyes. Focused intently. his mother's. Rachel's (30:22). Benjamin is the focus of Joseph's further actions.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:32 abomination. See note, Pr 6:16. Ancient historians record similar instances of Egyptian aversion to eating with foreigners.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:33 amazement. Not knowing how Joseph or his servants could have known their birth order.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 43:34 from Joseph's table. Suggests three tables: Joseph's, from which the food is served; one for the Egyptians; a third for Joseph's brothers. five times. To see if his generosity would make the brothers jealous, as Jacob's had long ago (cf 37:3–4). drank and were merry. See ESV note. Not as if they had become fully drunk, but because they had had somewhat more to drink due to the happy occasion. Cf Ps 104:15.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 43 Joseph—motivated by love for Benjamin and his other brothers—tests his brothers to learn whether they will be jealous or abandon their youngest brother, as they had Joseph. Joseph's conduct is like God's. He displays both generosity and severity, seeking repentance. The brothers' fear comes from the alienating power of sin. When we do not rightly fear God, we fear other things more (Mt 10:28). Joseph's banquet displays kindness and generosity, independent of his brothers' recognition of his love. So also God blesses His people, even when they doubt His goodness. Jesus, like His earthly ancestor, Judah, offered Himself to His Father for us. • Holy God, give us grace to endure Your tests and to recognize Your kindness, in Jesus' name. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:1 mouth of his sack. See note, 42:27.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:2 youngest. Benjamin.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:4 steward. He had Joseph's authority to arrest the brothers. See note, 43:16.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:5 practices divination? Just as Joseph presented himself as an Egyptian in his speech, clothing, and manners, he also presented himself as if he were a fortune-teller. This was a pretense, used as the reason Joseph and his servant knew about the "theft." Divination was later forbidden in the Law (Lv 19:26; Dt 18:10). Old Babylonian tablets and Egyptian statues show that oil for divination was dripped into a cup of water. The pattern of the oil in the cup could then be interpreted.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:7 my lord. They addressed the steward so, because he held Joseph's authority.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:8 your lord's house? The steward was still subject to Joseph.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:10 my servant. The steward could speak of Joseph's servant as his own because the steward bore Joseph's authority.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:13 tore their clothes. Gesture of grief or great distress. See note, Jb 1:20.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:14 Judah. Now the leader of the brothers. fell before. Total obeisance.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:15 practice divination? See note, v 5.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:16 the guilt. Though innocent of this charge, Judah knew that before God, he and his brothers were guilty. The threat of slavery reminded them of their sin of selling Joseph. my lord's servants. Judah insisted that all would accept punishment, but Joseph refused, keeping the test focused on Benjamin (v 17).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:18 like Pharaoh. See note, 42:6.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:20 father loves him. Jacob loved Benjamin more than his other children.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:28 One left me. See note, 42:36.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:29 in evil. In the greatest grief and sadness. Sheol. Here, "death." See p 792.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:30 his life is bound up in the boy's life. The father loves him as if he were his own soul.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:33 servant remain. Judah offered himself, proving a new and right spirit (Ps 51:10–12).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 44:34 fear … the evil. Judah could not stand to see the misery that would afflict his father. Luth: "[Joseph] cannot contain himself any longer after he sees that their heart is sincere, that their prayer is steadfast, and that the love of Judah and his brothers for Benjamin is not feigned but is joined with true penitence. For this is an example not only of prayer but of true and very great penitence" (AE 7:376).
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 44 Joseph prepares a final test to determine whether his brothers will allow Benjamin to be enslaved and bring further grief to their father. Their refusal to leave Benjamin behind, and Judah's sacrificial offer of himself to spare both brother and father, show that their hearts have genuinely changed. Like Joseph, God often tests what is in our hearts. He reminds us to humbly acknowledge and take responsibility for our sin. When Judah mediates with his father and with Joseph, and shows himself willing to be enslaved in place of his brother, this prefigures the saving work of his descendant, Jesus, who gave Himself as mediator, ransom, and sacrifice for the world. • Jesus, You gave Yourself for us and made known the Father's loving heart. Turn us from sin, selfishness, and alienation to live for You, as You have died for us. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:1 no one stayed. So that Joseph could protect his own reputation with the Egyptians, speak candidly with his brothers, and protect his brothers' reputation regarding their sale of Joseph into slavery.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:3 dismayed. The brothers feared vengeance.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:5 to preserve life. Joseph's Egyptian journey was a purposeful act of God, who sent him to Egypt to save thousands. God used the brothers' sin to do His saving work (Rm 8:28; cf Jn 17:12).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:8 not you … but God. The brothers were not the chief actors in Joseph's coming to Egypt. See note, v 5. father. Intimate adviser to Pharaoh. lord. Chief servant within Pharaoh's immediate circle of family and leaders (42:6; 44:18). ruler. Having authority over the country (41:40).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:9 lord of all Egypt. See note, 42:6.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:10 land of Goshen. Perhaps the primary Egyptian region for livestock.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:14 fell upon his … neck. The brothers embraced, with the head pressed against the other's neck.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:15 talked. After they had recovered from their fear and were assured of his brotherly love.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:18 best of the land. Some food was available, despite the famine. See note, 41:54.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:19 are commanded. Pharaoh's authority ensured the family's welfare. wagons. Most people traveled by walking or by riding animals. The wagons would spare Jacob and the little children much difficulty.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:20 Have no concern. Luth: "Do not let your possessions hinder you. Whatever you cannot sell because of this famine, leave it behind" (WA DB 8:183).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:22 three hundred … five changes. Joseph expressed special love for Benjamin, without any fear of brotherly resentment.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:24 Do not quarrel. Although forgiven, the brothers had to take care not to fall into such sins once again.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:26 heart became numb. Disbelief and shock deny him joy.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:27 spirit … revived. Jacob's sorrow over the loss of his sons brought him to the point of death. Cf 42:38. But when he saw that his 11 sons had come back, and learned that Joseph was alive, it was as though he had come back to life.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 45:28 see. See note, 46:4. before I die. See note, 47:9.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 45 Joseph reveals himself, reassuring his brothers. With Pharaoh's full support, he sends for his father and family. Jacob is finally convinced that his son is alive. God rules the world and brings evil to a good end for the sake of His people, as He did with Joseph's slavery. Let us pursue Joseph's virtues—humility, wisdom, forgiveness, care for parents and family. And let us not quarrel in our Christian journey, but hold fast to the mercy and doctrine that God has revealed. In Christ, our sin is forgiven, and God gives us the joy of reconciliation and new life. • Lord Jesus, the evil that happened to You on the cross was for our good. Give us the benefits of Your death, and form our lives to Your cross. Amen.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:1 Beersheba. Where Abraham worshiped and where the Lord reaffirmed His covenant with Isaac. See color map 1. offered sacrifices. Luth: "He preached the Gospel about the Son of God and exhorted his hearers to fear God, to believe and hope in Him, to live saintly and honorable lives, to pray, to give thanks, and to hope for a future life" (AE 8:76).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:2 spoke … in visions. Probably in dreams.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:3 God assured Jacob this was not contrary to His promise that Jacob's descendants would inherit the land of Canaan, and that He would protect him.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:4 I Myself will go. Most people assumed gods had power only in certain places. Here, the Lord showed that He is the God of all the earth, present with His people wherever they are. See note, 2Ki 17:26. bring you up again. These words were fulfilled in Jacob's offspring, at the time of the exodus. Joseph's hand shall close your eyes. Jacob would die in Egypt, and Joseph would provide honorable burial for his body.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:8–25 descendants of Israel. The 12 sons are listed not by birth order but according to mothers, with all children and grandchildren, living or deceased: Leah (33 descendants, vv 8–15), Zilpah (16 descendants, vv 16–18), Rachel (14 descendants, vv 19–22), and Bilhah (7 descendants, vv 23–25). Two other women are listed: Dinah, Jacob's daughter by Leah (v 15), and Serah, Jacob's granddaughter through Asher (v 17).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:18 persons. Lit, "souls."
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:19 Jacob's wife. His most beloved; the wife with the highest status. See pp 54–55.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:20 See note, 41:45; cf 48:5–6; Heb 11:21.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:27 two. LXX: "nine." seventy. LXX: "seventy-five." The discrepancy may have come about by differences in how Joseph's children were counted. Cf v 20; 48:5–6.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:28 Judah continued to be the leader of the 11. See notes, 43:3, 9; 44:14.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:29 fell … wept. See note, 45:14.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:30 let me die. He can now depart in peace and joy.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 46:34 shepherd … an abomination. See note, Pr 6:16. Various explanations are offered. E.g., bulls frequently symbolized pharaohs. A bull and a cow represented the Egyptian god Apis and the goddess Hathor, respectively, which might make those who cared for sheep or lesser creatures religiously and culturally offensive. Also, Egyptians had a caste system in which shepherds were lowly ranked.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 46 Jacob leaves Canaan for Egypt only when he knows it is the Lord's will. The Lord is not limited by geography. He will fulfill His promise to make Abraham's Seed a great nation in Egypt. Israel's children are called by name as they journey to Egypt. Like Jacob, we should seek the Lord's guidance and blessing for our plans. He has revealed His will for our deeds and our salvation in His Word. Where He has not spoken, He gives us freedom to make reasonable choices. The tearful reunion of Jacob and Joseph is a pattern of the reunion that God seeks with His children. The Lord knows our name, and in the Sacrament of Holy Baptism, His name has been given to us. • Lord God, give us courage to follow You each new day, especially when You call us to paths unknown; through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:4 sojourn. The request is first defined as temporary, affirming that Canaan, not Egypt, is their home.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:6 Settle. Or, "dwell" (same verb as in v 4b). Pharaoh welcomed Joseph's family to stay permanently. best of the land. Goshen is probably the grazing marshes of northern Egypt. See map, p 60.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:7 Jacob blessed Pharaoh. In Gn, the inferior is blessed by the superior (Heb 7:7). Pharaoh seems to have recognized that having Jacob in Egypt was a benefit. Humans may "bless" God by praising Him. See p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:9 Few. 130 years is old by our standards, but Abraham died at age 175, and Isaac, at age 180. evil. Jacob's life was a series of crises; he expresses pessimism elsewhere (cf 43:6; 44:28).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:11 possession. Pharaoh's promise (v 6) allowed Joseph to give ownership of land in Goshen to his family. land of Rameses. In the region of the land of Goshen, where the city of Rameses would later be built.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:13 Now. Third year of famine.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:14 The people's financial resources were depleted. With Pharaoh's stores of grain, virtually all Egypt's financial assets were in his hands. Ambr: "[Joseph] preferred to sell the corn rather than to give it to the hungry … lest if they received it for nothing, they should give up cultivating the ground. … He did not wish to deprive all of them of their property, but to support them in it" (NPNF 2 10:55–56).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:16 food. Grain. See note, 42:1. in exchange for your livestock. Grazing animals were better able to survive this drought than humans.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:18 following year. Fourth year of famine.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:19 Buy us and our land. They asked to become sharecroppers, not common slaves who could be separated from their land. Cf v 24.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:21 he made servants of them. So that Pharaoh could deal with his subjects as with his personal slaves and with their possessions as with his own property. See p 101. one end … to the other. Egypt extended along the Nile from the Great Sea to Cush (Ethiopia). See map, p 33.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:22 The priests of Egypt were civil servants, supported by Pharaoh.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:24 give a fifth to Pharaoh. The same percentage required during the years of plenty. Sharecropping often would demand a third or more for the landlord. Moreover, the people were guaranteed food during the famine. The terms were merciful.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:25 saved our lives. Literally so, because of the food provisions.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:26 to this day. To the time of Moses, who wrote Gn. See pp 8–10.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:29 hand under my thigh. See note, 24:2.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:30 their burying place. In the family burial place at Machpelah (23:9; 25:8–9). Jacob had not forgotten Canaan. He exacted this promise to help his descendants remember their true homeland, despite current prosperity in Egypt. Joseph shows exemplary obedience, respect, and care for his aged father, which serves as a great example to us today.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 47:31 Swear. See p 7. Israel bowed himself. Perhaps due to weariness, Jacob could not hold himself upright. Or, he turned to God in prayer, thanking Him for granting his request. upon the head of his bed. See ESV note. He bowed toward the top part of the bed, where Joseph was standing, and thus toward him and his scepter—partially because Joseph was the current ruler, and partially because through him God had brought salvation to His people.
GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 47 Powerful, wealthy Pharaoh humbly receives the blessing of Jacob, a lowly Hebrew, whose son addresses the famine by centralizing all Egypt's resources in a sharecropping system. Like Pharaoh, we should realize that spiritual blessings take precedence over temporal ones. People who put earthly security and temporal blessings first often take desperate measures to keep things that death will someday take from them. Just as blessing came to mighty Pharaoh through a lowly shepherd, so also the kingdom of God and His righteousness come to believers in humble forms—an infant in a manger, a man dying on a cross; words, water, bread, wine—yet in them are hidden God's majesty. • "Be present at our table, Lord; Be here and ev'rywhere adored; Thy creatures bless, and grant that we May feast in paradise with Thee." Amen. (LSB 775)

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:3 God Almighty. See p 1227. appeared to me at Luz. See note, 28:13.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:5 your two sons … are mine. There would be no tribe of Joseph. Jacob's adoption of Joseph's two sons gave Joseph a double share when Canaan was later divided (Jsh 13–22) and allowed 12 divisions in the land of Canaan, even though the priestly tribe (Levi) would be landless. See note, Jsh 14:4.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:6 children … after them. Though Jacob had adopted Ephraim and Manasseh, he did not adopt Joseph's other children or grant them a special inheritance. Descendants of Joseph's other children would live in the territories of Ephraim and Manasseh.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:12 removed them from his knees. Luth: "It is strange that those two men of such size and age were in the embrace of Joseph's father. I think, however, that the sons sat beside Jacob while he was lying on his bed. Moses calls this sitting in his embrace or at his knees, namely, at his side or at his feet. Therefore Joseph orders them to rise from the side and falls on his knees with both of them before Jacob, who is sitting on his bed. For this was the custom; they received the blessing on bended knees and with the gesture of worshipers" (AE 8:159). See "bless," p 842.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:13 Joseph placed his older son, Manasseh, by Jacob's right hand and the younger son, Ephraim, by the left, anticipating the greater blessing for the older son.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:14 laid it on the head. Luth: "The custom of the laying on of hands is very ancient and was also transferred by the fathers into the New Testament. … This has been employed as a ceremony of the fathers, the prophets, and the whole church at all times when they entrusted an office or some administration to a person" (AE 8:159). crossing his hands. His crossed hands gave priority to the younger Ephraim. Luth: "According to this rule, the first-born remains the first-born on the basis of legal justice and the command of God. But God, who is the Author and Lord of the Law, sets bounds to it or breaks it and appoints Jacob and Isaac as the first-born after rejecting Esau and Ishmael. Jacob does the same thing here with the two sons" (AE 8:160).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:15 blessed Joseph. He blessed the two sons of Joseph.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:16 the angel. Parallel with "God … God" in v 15. The Son of God, the uncreated Messenger of the Lord. See p 1227. name be carried on. Although Joseph's sons by birth, they would be identified as adopted sons of Jacob.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:21 God will be with you. With His grace, consolation, and help. See "be with," p 5.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 48:22 slope. See ESV note. Joseph himself would later be buried at Shechem. Cf 33:18–19; 34:25–27.

GENESIS—NOTE ON Ch 48 Jacob (Israel) adopts and blesses Joseph's sons. Though born in Egypt to an Egyptian mother, they have full status as "children of Israel," people through whom God will bless the world. Like their father, Joseph, we must learn not to value human convention over God's Word and purposes. As Jacob adopted Ephraim and Manasseh, God has graciously adopted us in Holy Baptism (Gal 3:27–4:7).

• "Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, You who lead Joseph like a flock! You who are enthroned upon the cherubim, shine forth. Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh, stir up Your might and come to save us! Restore us, O God; let Your face shine, that we may be saved!" (Ps 80:1–3). Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:1–27 With failing breath, Jacob prophesied what would befall his sons in days to come (lit, "at the end of days"). The character of the sons would live on in the 12 tribes and determine their role in the history of salvation. In directing the lives of the patriarchs and their descendants, God had in view a final fulfillment "at the end of days." His promise envisioned a "fullness of time," "the end of the ages," when His Son would be born of a woman to redeem all nations (Gal 4:4; 1Co 10:11). It looked to the end of time, when all God's people would be gathered about the throne of the Lamb (Rv 7:1–10). 1 Clem: "Whosoever will candidly consider each particular, will recognize the greatness of the gifts which were given by [Jacob]. … All these [sons], therefore, were highly honored, and made great, not for their own sake, or for their own works, or for the righteousness which they wrought, but through the operation of His will. And we, too, being called by His will in Christ Jesus, are not justified by ourselves … but by that faith through which, from the beginning, Almighty God has justified all men; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen" (ANF 1:13).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:1 Cf v 28. Jacob's blessing included predictive prophecy of the things God would do.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:3–4 Hbr here is difficult to translate. Luth: "Reuben should have had the honor of being first-born, namely, the priesthood and the kingdom. But now both are taken from him, and to Levi the priesthood is given, and to Judah the kingdom" (WA DB 8:193).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:3 firstfruits of my strength. He was born at the height of Jacob's physical prowess.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:4 Unstable as water. Or, "like water's foam," i.e., he had a weak nature, as can be seen in his incest with Bilhah (35:22), his failure to rescue Joseph (37:22, 29) and his craven offer of his sons (42:37). not have preeminence. Though the oldest son, Reuben's tribe became insignificant.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:5 brothers … violence. They had the same mother and were cohorts in the Shechem slaughter.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:6 Let my soul come not into their council. Jacob had no part in their decision to slay the Shechemites, and he took no pleasure in it. glory. One's life and reputation. Cf Ps 30:12. hamstrung oxen. They destroyed Shechem the prince. In Scripture, a ruler's might is often compared to strong oxen. Cf Dt 33:17; Ps 22:12; 68:30. They may have literally crippled the oxen when they attacked Shechem.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:7 divide … scatter. Tribe of Simeon was later absorbed into Judah, and the tribe of Levi was scattered throughout Israel in priestly communities (Jsh 13:33).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:8–12 When blessing Judah, the forefather of King David and of the Messiah (cf Mt 1:1–17), Jacob prophesies about the future age of the kingdom of God. Judah and his offspring are described with contrasting images of war (vv 8–10a) and peace (vv 10b–12). See pp 1565–66.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:8 on the neck. His enemies cannot escape. He is the victor. bow down. They will acknowledge Judah (or rather, his offspring) as their head. From Judah will come Israel's kings and the Messiah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:9 lion's cub. Like a young lion in might and bravery. The mature lion of Judah would show his strength in David (cf 1Ch 5:2) and ultimately in the coming Messiah.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:10–12 Judah is like a ruler mounted on a donkey, bringing peace to the nations he rules. He stops, ties up his mount, and walks the people's vineyard, tasting the wine and smiling joyfully. His garments are dyed scarlet purple, the color of wealth and rulership.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:10 scepter. Symbol of royal authority. ruler's staff. Or, "lawgiver," i.e., there will always be a ruler from Judah's line. until … comes. Because this is a prophecy of what will happen with Judah's descendants, we must think of the Coming One as being from the lineage of Judah. At the same time, it says that He "comes," as if from elsewhere. The prophet Micah spoke of Him more clearly as He who would be both from Judah and at the same time from the beginning, from eternal days (Mi 5:2). Chem: "The promise is not repeated but the promise of God concerning the Seed is beautifully illuminated. For it refers to the time of the coming of the Seed, and the new name of Shiloh is applied to the Seed. The preaching of the Gospel is metaphorically described" (LTh 2:457). tribute. ESV follows LXX here. Hbr shiloh, "rest, peace," i.e., the Prince of Peace. See note, Is 9:6; see also ESV note. Judah will have royal authority until the coming of the One whom all nations will obey. Contrary to the war images (victor, lion, ruler) in vv 8–10a, this is an image of peace. Cf Lk 2:14. Luth: "Today, thanks to the blessing of God, we enjoy the completely clear light of the Gospel by which the word [Shiloh] is cleared up and explained as meaning the Son of a virgin and of God at the same time" (AE 8:243). obedience of the peoples. When the kingdom of God comes, the Prince of Peace will rule over all nations, not just the people of Israel. See pp 1565–66.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:11 The coming kingdom of Israel is pictured as a feast of celebration. Binding his foal to the vine. Normally animals are kept out of vineyards by a fence, wall, or hedge so as not to harm the valuable grapes. But the peace and joy of the coming kingdom will be so deep that no one will be able to harm them. Therefore, there is no need for a fence around the vine, nor will humans need coercion, fear, and the law.

washed his garments in wine. Imagery of feasting, wealth, and joy; kingly Judah will enjoy his success. Cf Ps 104:15.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:12 darker than wine … whiter than milk. Grape and wine imagery is common in describing the joyful salvation of the messianic age. Cf Is 25:6–9; Jl 3:18; Am 9:13. The kingdom of God is unveiled as a fellowship of joy.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:13 the shore … a haven. The tribe of Zebulun later settled near Sidon and the coast of the Great Sea. See color map 1.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:14–15 Issachar's image is of a resting donkey, lying either between sheepfolds or its saddlebags (see ESV note), implying that Issachar's tribe will not reach its potential and will fall into servitude.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:16 judge. Samson was from the tribe of Dan (cf Jgs 13:2). Luth: "Samson fulfilled the blessing of Dan" (WA DB 8:195).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:17 serpent in the way. Refers to Samson cunningly overthrowing the Philistines (Jgs 16).
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:18 I wait for Your salvation, O LORD. Jacob's brief prayer for salvation interjected here implies that his salvation is bound up in the future of his sons. The Offspring of Abraham (the Messiah), through whom Israel and the world are saved, would come from this family. salvation. See "salvation," p 843.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:19 See ESV note. Gad, on the border of Israel, would be the first line of defense against enemy raids.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:20 royal delicacies. Asher would occupy a fertile area of Canaan.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:21 doe … beautiful fawns. See ESV note. Implies that the tribe of Naphtali would have freedom and bear good fruit.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:22 fruitful bough. Joseph's descendants were promised continuing fruitfulness, like a well-watered plant.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:23 attacked. Veiled reference to his brothers' jealous conduct (ch 37) or to Ephraim's future warfare.
GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:24 from there is the Shepherd. See ESV note. Luth: "The blessing of Joseph refers to the kingdom of Israel, and is said completely of bodily government. … Thus the spiritual blessing and kingdom remains on Judah and the bodily kingdom on Ephraim" (WA DB 8:195). Shepherd … Stone. God is Joseph's strength (cf Ps 18:1). God singled out Joseph for blessings beyond his brothers: bountiful agriculture, large families, etc. As Joseph was richly blessed, so his descendants (esp Ephraim) would be rich and powerful, rivaled only by Judah.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:26 bounties … on the head … brow. Perhaps precious stones, implying crown or rule. set apart. Great leaders will come from Joseph (e.g., Joshua, Gideon, Jeroboam).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:27 Benjamin's future would be characterized by battle (e.g., Jgs 3:15–30) and warriors (e.g., King Saul).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:1–27 The blessing (testament) of Jacob is a prophecy about each son and his tribe. All 12 sons are blessed as participants in the promise that began with Abraham, emphasizing return to the land. Jacob concentrates on Reuben, Simeon, Judah, and Joseph—the first two negatively, the latter two positively. Jacob's testament promises great blessings, including the height of God's goodness: messianic kingship for Judah's line. Jacob's predictions are not uniformly happy. The reality of sin includes judgment (Simeon and Levi), oppression (Issachar), warfare (Gad, Benjamin), and other distress. Though Joseph will prosper in many ways, the greatest gift to Jacob's descendants is Judah's scepter. The Seed of Abraham culminates in an eternal kingdom for Judah's descendants, fulfilled in the Messiah, Jesus (Shiloh). • "I wait for Your salvation, O LORD" (v 18). Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:29–32 Jacob reminded his sons that Canaan, not Egypt, was the Promised Land.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:1–3 fell on his father's face … kissed. Shows Joseph's great love for Jacob; a fulfillment of 46:4. embalm. Egyptian custom of embalming involved removal of organs and packing the chest cavity with mixtures of salt, spices, and herbs to prevent decay. seventy days. 40 days of embalming plus 30 days of mourning. The extended time emphasizes the importance of Jacob and of Joseph's family in Egypt (Pharaoh received 72 days of mourning).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:8 children … flocks … herds were left. Cf Ex 12:32.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:10–12 threshing floor … beyond the Jordan. Near Jericho. Implies that the procession approached Israel on a route like the one the children of Israel would later travel when approaching the Promised Land (cf Nu 22:1; Jsh 2:1).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 49:28–50:14 Jacob insists on burial in Canaan, Israel's permanent home. He receives the most ornate funeral in the Bible, which also shows Joseph's importance. The grief at Jacob's death reflects the reality of sin, death's cause (cf 2:17), and yet also the dignity of the human body. Our funeral customs are a way of confessing that God has promised to raise the dead. Christ Jesus has conquered death for our sake (1Co 15:55–57). • Lord Jesus, we praise You for Your resurrection, which conquered sin and death. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:15 The brothers, still troubled by their sin, doubted Joseph's forgiveness. Luth: "For it is not without great difficulty that the heart longs for the kindness and pardon of God, from whom it flees and turns away by nature when it feels that He has been offended by many great and enormous sins. Then it is hard to grant admittance to consolation, and it is difficult for remission to cling to the heart, no matter with how many promises and with how many signs of God's goodwill it has been confirmed. From this one can gather what a sharp poison sin is in man's nature" (AE 8:324).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:16 sent a message. They were afraid to approach Joseph. Your father gave this command. Either the brothers were lying, or this fact was not mentioned earlier.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:18 brothers … fell down. The brothers joined the messengers, gratefully and repentantly acknowledging Joseph. See "fall," p 1276. your servants. They did not assume rights of brotherhood but rather of servitude (cf Lk 15:19).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:19 am I in the place of God? Vengeance belongs to God alone (Rm 12:19). As a brother, Joseph is to pardon and forgive.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:20 God meant it for good. Luth: "God causes good to result from evil, not that He wants evil to be done, but His goodness is so great even in our wickedness that He cannot do otherwise than forgive sin if the sinner sobs and implores His mercy. If this happens the sin shall be forgiven" (AE 8:330).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:21 comforted … kindly. Luth: "You should not sin rashly, confident of obtaining God's pardon; but you should rely on this pardon and find rest in it only when you are in despair. And here the pastor and the ministers of the church should give assistance; and mercy, which is far greater than sin, should be glorified" (AE 8:331–32).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:15–21 Jacob's sons fear that only their father's presence prevented Joseph's revenge for their earlier hatred and violence. But Joseph consoles them and speaks kindly to them.

Reconciliation should come from the heart and be confirmed by our deeds, just as Joseph provided for his brothers' families in addition to forgiving them. Sin penetrates flesh and spirit and can lead people to despair. To console despairing sinners, God causes the Gospel of reconciliation in Christ to be preached, and He confirms this message with the comforting Sacraments of Baptism and the Holy Supper. • O Lord, though humans meant to do evil to You with the cross, You meant it for good, to bring about eternal salvation. Praise to You, O Christ. Amen.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:23 were counted as Joseph's own. See ESV note. May mean adoption. Or, Joseph simply lived long enough to hold his great-grandchildren on his lap.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:24 his brothers. Either his brothers outlived him, or this refers to the tribes bearing his brothers' names.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:25 carry … bones. Although Joseph, as the vizier of Egypt, would initially be buried there, Joseph knew the Promised Land was Canaan (see note, 49:29–32).

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:26 110 years old. In the 80th year of service to Pharaoh. See note, Ps 90:10. embalmed … coffin. See note, vv 1–3. The coffin would allow Joseph's remains to be moved to Canaan.

GENESIS—NOTE ON 50:22–26 The death of Joseph after 93 years in Egypt closes the first Book of Moses, but his request for final burial in Canaan reminds us that the story has only begun. Joseph's life illustrates one of God's promises for obedience to the Law—prosperous, long life (Ex 20:12). Despite his long, prosperous life, Joseph looks forward, not back: "God will surely visit you" (v 25). Egypt's material prosperity is not God's ultimate blessing for His people. The coming gift is the Lord Himself, His visitation, fulfilled in part in the exodus from Egypt. But even the exodus pales before God's final visitation in the Messiah (Lk 1:68) and its culmination when the bones of Joseph and all the redeemed are raised to immortality (1Co 15:53–57). • "Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, You who lead Joseph like a flock!" (Ps 80:1). Give us hearts that long for Your return to lead us out of the Egypt of this world to Yourself in heaven. Amen.

Israel Increases Greatly in Egypt

1 [1] ‡‡These are the names of the sons of Israel who came to Egypt with Jacob, each with his household: [2]Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah, [3]Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin, [4]Dan and Naphtali, Gad and Asher. [5]†All the descendants of Jacob were seventy persons; Joseph was already in Egypt. [6] † Then Joseph died, and all his brothers and all that generation.
[7] † But the people of Israel were fruitful and increased greatly; they multiplied and grew exceedingly strong, so that the land was filled with them.

Pharaoh Oppresses Israel

8 Now there arose a new king over Egypt, who did not know Joseph.
9 And he said to his people, “Behold, the people of Israel are too many and too mighty for us. 10 Come, let us deal shrewdly with them, lest they multiply, and, if war breaks out, they join our enemies and fight against us and escape from the land.” 11 Therefore they set taskmasters over them to afflict them with heavy burdens. They built for Pharaoh store cities, Pithom and Raamses. 12 But the more they were oppressed, the more they multiplied and the more they spread abroad. And the Egyptians were in dread of the people of Israel. 13 So they ruthlessly made the people of Israel work as slaves 14 and made their lives bitter with hard service, in mortar and brick, and in all kinds of work in the field. In all their work they ruthlessly made them work as slaves.

15 Then the king of Egypt said to the Hebrew midwives, one of whom was named Shiphrah and the other Puah, 16 “When you serve as midwife to the Hebrew women and see them on the birthstool, if it is a son, you shall kill him, but if it is a daughter, she shall live.” 17 But the midwives feared God and did not do as the king of Egypt commanded them, but let the male children live. 18 So the king of Egypt called the midwives and said to them, “Why have you done this, and let the male children live?” 19 The midwives said to Pharaoh, “Because the Hebrew women are not like the Egyptian women, for they are vigorous and give birth before the midwife comes to them.” 20 So God dealt well with the midwives. And the people multiplied and grew very strong. 21 And because the midwives feared God, he gave them families. 22 Then Pharaoh commanded all his people, “Every son that is born to the Hebrews[1] you shall cast into the Nile, but you shall let every daughter live.”

The Birth of Moses

2 [1]‡‡‡Now a man from the house of Levi went and took as his wife a Levite woman. [2]†The woman conceived and bore a son, and when she saw that he was a fine child, she hid him three months. [3]†When she could hide him no longer, she took for him a basket made of bulrushes[1] and daubed it with bitumen and pitch. She put the child in it and placed it among the reeds by the river bank. [4]And his sister stood at a distance to know what would be done to him. [5]†Now the daughter of Pharaoh came down to bathe at the river, while her young women walked beside the river. She saw the basket among the reeds and sent her servant woman, and she took it. [6]†When she opened it, she saw the child, and behold, the baby was crying. She took pity on him and said, “This is one of the Hebrews’ children.” [7]†Then his sister said to Pharaoh’s daughter, “Shall I go and call you a nurse from the Hebrew women to nurse the child for you?” [8]And Pharaoh’s daughter said to her, “Go.” So the girl went and called the child’s mother. [9]† And Pharaoh’s daughter said to her, “Take this child away and nurse him for me, and I will give you your wages.” So the woman took the child and nursed him. [10]†When the child grew up, she brought him to Pharaoh’s daughter, and he became her son. She named him Moses, “Because,” she said, “I drew him out of the water.”[2]

Moses Flees to Midian

11 ‡ † One day, when Moses had grown up, he went out to his people and looked on their burdens, and he saw an Egyptian beating a Hebrew, one of his people.[3] 12 † He looked this way and that, and seeing no one, he struck down the Egyptian and hid him in the sand. 13 † When he went out the next day, behold, two Hebrews were struggling together. And he said to the man in the wrong, “Why do you strike your companion?” 14 † He answered, “Who made you a prince and a judge over us? Do you mean to kill me as you killed the Egyptian?” Then Moses was afraid, and thought, “Surely the thing is known.” 15 † When Pharaoh heard of it, he sought to kill Moses. But Moses fled from Pharaoh and stayed in the land of Midian. And he sat down by a well.

16 † Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters, and they came and drew water and filled the troughs to water their father’s flock. 17 † The shepherds came and drove them away, but Moses stood up and saved them, and watered their flock. 18 † When they came home to their father Reuel, he said, “How is it that you have come home so soon today?” 19 They said, “An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds and even drew water for us and watered the flock.” 20 † He said to his daughters, “Then where is he? Why have you left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread.” 21 † And Moses was content to dwell with the man, and he gave Moses his daughter Zipporah. 22 † She gave birth to a son, and he called his name Gershom, for he said, “I have been a sojourner[1] in a foreign land.”

God Hears Israel's Groaning

23 During those many days the king of Egypt died, and the people of Israel groaned because of their slavery and cried out for help. Their cry for rescue from slavery came up to God. 24 And God heard their groaning, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.
25 God saw the people of Israel—and God knew.

The Burning Bush

3 [1]†Now Moses was keeping the flock of his father-in-law, Jethro, the priest of Midian, and he led his flock to the west side of the wilderness and came to Horeb, the mountain of God. [2]†And the angel of the Lord appeared to him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush. He looked, and behold, the bush was burning, yet it was not consumed. [3]And Moses said, "I will turn aside to see this great sight, why the bush is not burned." [4]†When the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called to him out of the bush, "Moses, Moses!" And he said, Here I am." [5]†Then he said, "Do not come near; take your sandals off your feet, for the place on which you are standing is holy ground." [6]†And he said, "I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob." And Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to look at God.

[7]†Then the Lord said, "I have surely seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt and have heard their cry because of their taskmasters. I know their sufferings, [8]†and I have come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up out of that land to a good and broad land, a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. [9]†And now, behold, the cry of the people of Israel has come to me, and I have also seen the oppression with which the Egyptians oppress them. [10]†Come, I will send you to Pharaoh that you may bring my people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt." [11]But Moses said to God, "Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh and bring the children of Israel out of Egypt?" [12]†He said, "But I will be with you, and this shall be the sign for you, that I have sent you:
when you have brought the people out of Egypt, you shall serve God on this mountain."

[13]†Then Moses said to God, "If I come to the people of Israel and say to them, 'The God of your fathers has sent me to you,' and they ask me, 'What is his name?' what shall I say to them?" [14]†God said to Moses, "I am who I am."[1] And he said, "Say this to the people of Israel, 'I am has sent me to you.'" [15]†God also said to Moses, "Say this to the people of Israel, 'The Lord,[2] the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has sent me to you.' This is my name forever, and thus I am to be remembered throughout all generations. 16 † Go and gather the elders of Israel together and say to them, 'The Lord, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, has appeared to me, saying, "I have observed you and what has been done to you in Egypt, 17 †and I promise that I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt to the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, a land flowing with milk and honey."' 18 † And they will listen to your voice, and you and the elders of Israel shall go to the king of Egypt and say to him, 'The Lord, the God of the Hebrews, has met with us; and now, please let us go a three days' journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God.' 19 But I know that the king of Egypt will not let you go unless compelled by a mighty hand.[3] 20 † So I will stretch out my hand and strike Egypt with all the wonders that I will do in it; after that he will let you go. 21 † And I will give this people favor in the sight of the Egyptians; and when you go, you shall not go empty, 22 † but each woman shall ask of her neighbor, and any woman who lives in her house, for silver and gold jewelry, and for clothing. You shall put them on your sons and on your daughters. So you shall plunder the Egyptians."

Moses Given Powerful Signs

4 [1]‡‡Then Moses answered, “But behold, they will not believe me or listen to my voice, for they will say, ‘The Lord did not appear to you.’”
[2]†The Lord said to him, “What is that in your hand?” He said, “A staff.”
[3]†And he said, “Throw it on the ground.” So he threw it on the ground, and it became a serpent, and Moses ran from it. [4]†But the Lord said to Moses, “Put out your hand and catch it by the tail”—so he put out his hand and caught it, and it became a staff in his hand— [5]†“that they may believe that the Lord, the God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has appeared to you.” [6]Again, the Lord said to him, “Put your hand inside your cloak.”[1] And he put his hand inside his cloak, and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous[2] like snow. [7]Then God said, “Put your hand back inside your cloak.” So he put his hand back inside his cloak, and when he took it out, behold, it was restored like the rest of his flesh. [8]†“If they will not believe you,” God said, “or listen to the first sign, they may believe the latter sign. [9]†If they will not believe even these two signs or listen to your voice, you shall take some water from the Nile and pour it on the dry ground, and the water that you shall take from the Nile will become blood on the dry ground.”

[10]†But Moses said to the Lord, “Oh, my Lord, I am not eloquent, either in the past or since you have spoken to your servant, but I am slow of speech and of tongue.” [11]† Then the Lord said to him, “Who has made man’s mouth? Who makes him mute, or deaf, or seeing, or blind? Is it not I, the Lord? [12]†Now therefore go, and I will be with your mouth and teach you what you shall speak.” [13]†But he said, “Oh, my Lord, please send someone else.” [14]†Then the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses and he said, “Is there not Aaron, your brother, the Levite? I know that he can speak well.
Behold, he is coming out to meet you, and when he sees you, he will be glad in his heart. [15]†You shall speak to him and put the words in his mouth, and I will be with your mouth and with his mouth and will teach you both what to do. [16]†He shall speak for you to the people, and he shall be your mouth, and you shall be as God to him. [17]†And take in your hand this staff, with which you shall do the signs.”

Moses Returns to Egypt

18 ‡† Moses went back to Jethro his father-in-law and said to him, “Please let me go back to my brothers in Egypt to see whether they are still alive.”
And Jethro said to Moses, “Go in peace.” 19 And the Lord said to Moses in Midian, “Go back to Egypt, for all the men who were seeking your life are dead.” 20 † So Moses took his wife and his sons and had them ride on a donkey, and went back to the land of Egypt. And Moses took the staff of God in his hand.

21 † And the Lord said to Moses, “When you go back to Egypt, see that you do before Pharaoh all the miracles that I have put in your power. But I will harden his heart, so that he will not let the people go. 22 † Then you shall say to Pharaoh, ‘Thus says the Lord, Israel is my firstborn son, 23 † and I say to you, “Let my son go that he may serve me.” If you refuse to let him go, behold, I will kill your firstborn son.’”

24 † At a lodging place on the way the Lord met him and sought to put him to death. 25 † Then Zipporah took a flint and cut off her son’s foreskin and touched Moses’[1] feet with it and said, “Surely you are a bridegroom of blood to me!” 26 † So he let him alone. It was then that she said, “A bridegroom of blood,” because of the circumcision.

27 † The Lord said to Aaron, “Go into the wilderness to meet Moses.” So he went and met him at the mountain of God and kissed him. 28 And Moses told Aaron all the words of the Lord with which he had sent him to speak, and all the signs that he had commanded him to do. 29 † Then Moses and Aaron went and gathered together all the elders of the people of Israel.
30 † Aaron spoke all the words that the Lord had spoken to Moses and did the signs in the sight of the people. 31 † And the people believed; and when they heard that the Lord had visited the people of Israel and that he had seen their affliction, they bowed their heads and worshiped.

Making Bricks Without Straw

5 [1]†Afterward Moses and Aaron went and said to Pharaoh, “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold a feast to me in the wilderness.’” [2]†But Pharaoh said, “Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice and let Israel go? I do not know the Lord, and moreover, I will not let Israel go.” [3]†Then they said, “The God of the Hebrews has met with us. Please let us go a three days’ journey into the wilderness that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God, lest he fall upon us with pestilence or with the sword.” [4]†But the king of Egypt said to them, “Moses and Aaron, why do you take the people away from their work? Get back to your burdens.” [5]And Pharaoh said, “Behold, the people of the land are now many,[1] and you make them rest from their burdens!” [6]† The same day Pharaoh commanded the taskmasters of the people and their foremen, [7]†“You shall no longer give the people straw to make bricks, as in the past; let them go and gather straw for themselves. [8]But the number of bricks that they made in the past you shall impose on them, you shall by no means reduce it, for they are idle. Therefore they cry, ‘Let us go and offer sacrifice to our God.’ [9]†Let heavier work be laid on the men that they may labor at it and pay no regard to lying words.”

[10]So the taskmasters and the foremen of the people went out and said to the people, “Thus says Pharaoh, ‘I will not give you straw. [11]†Go and get your straw yourselves wherever you can find it, but your work will not be reduced in the least.’” [12]†So the people were scattered throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble for straw. [13]The taskmasters were urgent, saying, “Complete your work, your daily task each day, as when there was straw.” [14]† And the foremen of the people of Israel, whom Pharaoh’s taskmasters had set over them, were beaten and were asked, “Why have you not done all your task of making bricks today and yesterday, as in the past?”

[15]Then the foremen of the people of Israel came and cried to Pharaoh, “Why do you treat your servants like this? [16]†No straw is given to your servants, yet they say to us, ‘Make bricks!’ And behold, your servants are beaten; but the fault is in your own people.” [17]†But he said, “You are idle, you are idle; that is why you say, ‘Let us go and sacrifice to the Lord.’ [18]Go now and work. No straw will be given you, but you must still deliver the same number of bricks.” [19]†The foremen of the people of Israel saw that they were in trouble when they said, “You shall by no means reduce your number of bricks, your daily task each day.” [20]They met Moses and Aaron, who were waiting for them, as they came out from Pharaoh; [21]†and they said to them, “The Lord look on you and judge, because you have made us stink in the sight of Pharaoh and his servants, and have put a sword in their hand to kill us.”

[22]†Then Moses turned to the Lord and said, “O Lord, why have you done evil to this people? Why did you ever send me? [23]†For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in your name, he has done evil to this people, and you have not delivered your people at all.”

God Promises Deliverance

6 [1]†But the Lord said to Moses, “Now you shall see what I will do to Pharaoh; for with a strong hand he will send them out, and with a strong hand he will drive them out of his land.”
[2]†God spoke to Moses and said to him, “I am the Lord. [3]†I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, as God Almighty,[2] but by my name the Lord I did not make myself known to them. [4]† I also established my covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan, the land in which they lived as sojourners. [5]†Moreover, I have heard the groaning of the people of Israel whom the Egyptians hold as slaves, and I have remembered my covenant. [6]†Say therefore to the people of Israel, ‘I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will deliver you from slavery to them, and I will redeem you with an outstretched arm and with great acts of judgment. [7]†I will take you to be my people, and I will be your God, and you shall know that I am the Lord your God, who has brought you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians. [8]†I will bring you into the land that I swore to give to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. I will give it to you for a possession. I am the Lord.’” [9]†Moses spoke thus to the people of Israel, but they did not listen to Moses, because of their broken spirit and harsh slavery.
[10]So the Lord said to Moses, [11]†“Go in, tell Pharaoh king of Egypt to let the people of Israel go out of his land.” [12]† But Moses said to the Lord, “Behold, the people of Israel have not listened to me. How then shall Pharaoh listen to me, for I am of uncircumcised lips?” [13]† But the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron and gave them a charge about the people of Israel and about Pharaoh king of Egypt: to bring the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

The Genealogy of Moses and Aaron

14 These are the heads of their fathers' houses: the sons of Reuben, the firstborn of Israel: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi; these are the clans of Reuben. 15 The sons of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul, the son of a Canaanite woman; these are the clans of Simeon. 16 These are the names of the sons of Levi according to their generations: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari, the years of the life of Levi being 137 years. 17 The sons of Gershon: Libni and Shimei, by their clans.
18 The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, the years of the life of Kohath being 133 years. 19 The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi.
These are the clans of the Levites according to their generations. 20 Amram took as his wife Jochebed his father's sister, and she bore him Aaron and Moses, the years of the life of Amram being 137 years. 21 The sons of Izhar:
Korah, Nepheg, and Zichri. 22 The sons of Uzziel: Mishael, Elzaphan, and Sithri. 23 Aaron took as his wife Elisheba, the daughter of Amminadab and the sister of Nahshon, and she bore him Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 24 The sons of Korah: Assir, Elkanah, and Abiasaph; these are the clans of the Korahites. 25 Eleazar, Aaron's son, took as his wife one of the daughters of Putiel, and she bore him Phinehas. These are the heads of the fathers' houses of the Levites by their clans.

26 These are the Aaron and Moses to whom the Lord said: "Bring out the people of Israel from the land of Egypt by their hosts." 27 It was they who spoke to Pharaoh king of Egypt about bringing out the people of Israel from Egypt, this Moses and this Aaron.

28 On the day when the Lord spoke to Moses in the land of Egypt, 29 the Lord said to Moses, "I am the Lord; tell Pharaoh king of Egypt all that I say to you." 30 But Moses said to the Lord, "Behold, I am of uncircumcised lips. How will Pharaoh listen to me?"

Moses and Aaron Before Pharaoh

7 [1]‡‡And the Lord said to Moses, “See, I have made you like God to Pharaoh, and your brother Aaron shall be your prophet. [2]You shall speak all that I command you, and your brother Aaron shall tell Pharaoh to let the people of Israel go out of his land. [3]‡But I will harden Pharaoh’s heart, and though I multiply my signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, [4]‡Pharaoh will not listen to you. Then I will lay my hand on Egypt and bring my hosts, my people the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt by great acts of judgment. [5]‡The Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch out my hand against Egypt and bring out the people of Israel from among them.” [6]‡Moses and Aaron did so; they did just as the Lord commanded them. [7]‡Now Moses was eighty years old, and Aaron eighty-three years old, when they spoke to Pharaoh.

[8]Then the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, [9]‡“When Pharaoh says to you, ‘Prove yourselves by working a miracle,’ then you shall say to Aaron, ‘Take your staff and cast it down before Pharaoh, that it may become a serpent.’” [10]So Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and did just as the Lord commanded. Aaron cast down his staff before Pharaoh and his servants, and it became a serpent. [11]‡Then Pharaoh summoned the wise men and the sorcerers, and they, the magicians of Egypt, also did the same by their secret arts. [12]‡For each man cast down his staff, and they became serpents.
But Aaron’s staff swallowed up their staffs. [13]‡Still Pharaoh’s heart was hardened, and he would not listen to them, as the Lord had said.

The First Plague: Water Turned to Blood

14 ‡‡Then the Lord said to Moses, “Pharaoh’s heart is hardened; he refuses to let the people go. 15 †Go to Pharaoh in the morning, as he is going out to the water. Stand on the bank of the Nile to meet him, and take in your hand the staff that turned into a serpent. 16 †And you shall say to him, ‘The Lord, the God of the Hebrews, sent me to you, saying, “Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness. But so far, you have not obeyed.” 17 †Thus says the Lord, “By this you shall know that I am the Lord: behold, with the staff that is in my hand I will strike the water that is in the Nile, and it shall turn into blood. 18 †The fish in the Nile shall die, and the Nile will stink, and the Egyptians will grow weary of drinking water from the Nile.”’” 19 †And the Lord said to Moses, “Say to Aaron, ‘Take your staff and stretch out your hand over the waters of Egypt, over their rivers, their canals, and their ponds, and all their pools of water, so that they may become blood, and there shall be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, even in vessels of wood and in vessels of stone.’”

20 †Moses and Aaron did as the Lord commanded. In the sight of Pharaoh and in the sight of his servants he lifted up the staff and struck the water in the Nile, and all the water in the Nile turned into blood. 21 †And the fish in the Nile died, and the Nile stank, so that the Egyptians could not drink water from the Nile. There was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.
22 † But the magicians of Egypt did the same by their secret arts. So Pharaoh’s heart remained hardened, and he would not listen to them, as the Lord had said. 23 †Pharaoh turned and went into his house, and he did not take even this to heart. 24 †And all the Egyptians dug along the Nile for water to drink, for they could not drink the water of the Nile.

25 †Seven full days passed after the Lord had struck the Nile.

The Second Plague: Frogs

8 [1] † † [1] Then the Lord said to Moses, “Go in to Pharaoh and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord, “Let my people go, that they may serve me. [2] †But if you refuse to let them go, behold, I will plague all your country with frogs. [3]The Nile shall swarm with frogs that shall come up into your house and into your bedroom and on your bed and into the houses of your servants and your people,[1] and into your ovens and your kneading bowls. [4]The frogs shall come up on you and on your people and on all your servants.”’” [5] †[2]
And the Lord said to Moses, “Say to Aaron, ‘Stretch out your hand with your staff over the rivers, over the canals and over the pools, and make frogs come up on the land of Egypt!’” [6]So Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt, and the frogs came up and covered the land of Egypt. [7] †But the magicians did the same by their secret arts and made frogs come up on the land of Egypt.

[8] † †Then Pharaoh called Moses and Aaron and said, “Plead with the Lord to take away the frogs from me and from my people, and I will let the people go to sacrifice to the Lord.” [9] †Moses said to Pharaoh, “Be pleased to command me when I am to plead for you and for your servants and for your people, that the frogs be cut off from you and your houses and be left only in the Nile.” [10]And he said, “Tomorrow.” Moses said, “Be it as you say, so that you may know that there is no one like the Lord our God. [11] †The frogs shall go away from you and your houses and your servants and your people.
They shall be left only in the Nile.” [12] †So Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh, and Moses cried to the Lord about the frogs, as he had agreed with Pharaoh.[3] [13] †And the Lord did according to the word of Moses. The frogs died out in the houses, the courtyards, and the fields. [14]And they gathered them together in heaps, and the land stank. [15] †But when Pharaoh saw that there was a respite, he hardened his heart and would not listen to them, as the Lord had said.

The Third Plague: Gnats

16 ‡ ‡Then the Lord said to Moses, “Say to Aaron, ‘Stretch out your staff and strike the dust of the earth, so that it may become gnats in all the land of Egypt.’” 17And they did so. Aaron stretched out his hand with his staff and struck the dust of the earth, and there were gnats on man and beast. All the dust of the earth became gnats in all the land of Egypt. 18 †The magicians tried by their secret arts to produce gnats, but they could not. So there were gnats on man and beast. 19 †Then the magicians said to Pharaoh, “This is the finger of God.” But Pharaoh’s heart was hardened, and he would not listen to them, as the Lord had said.

The Fourth Plague: Flies

20 † Then the Lord said to Moses, “Rise up early in the morning and present yourself to Pharaoh, as he goes out to the water, and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord, “Let my people go, that they may serve me. 21 †Or else, if you will not let my people go, behold, I will send swarms of flies on you and your servants and your people, and into your houses. And the houses of the Egyptians shall be filled with swarms of flies, and also the ground on which they stand. 22 †But on that day I will set apart the land of Goshen, where my people dwell, so that no swarms of flies shall be there, that you may know that I am the Lord in the midst of the earth.[1] 23 Thus I will put a division[2] between my people and your people. Tomorrow this sign shall happen.”’” 24 †And the Lord did so. There came great swarms of flies into the house of Pharaoh and into his servants’ houses. Throughout all the land of Egypt the land was ruined by the swarms of flies.

25 †Then Pharaoh called Moses and Aaron and said, “Go, sacrifice to your God within the land.” 26 †But Moses said, “It would not be right to do so, for the offerings we shall sacrifice to the Lord our God are an abomination to the Egyptians. If we sacrifice offerings abominable to the Egyptians before their eyes, will they not stone us? 27 †We must go three days’ journey into the wilderness and sacrifice to the Lord our God as he tells us.” 28 † So Pharaoh said, “I will let you go to sacrifice to the Lord your God in the wilderness; only you must not go very far away. Plead for me.” 29 †Then Moses said, “Behold, I am going out from you and I will plead with the Lord that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, tomorrow. Only let not Pharaoh cheat again by not letting the people go to sacrifice to the Lord.” 30 So Moses went out from Pharaoh and prayed to the Lord. 31 †And the Lord did as Moses asked, and removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; not one remained. 32 †But Pharaoh hardened his heart this time also,
and did not let the people go.

The Fifth Plague: Egyptian Livestock Die

9 [1]‡‡Then the Lord said to Moses, “Go in to Pharaoh and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, “Let my people go, that they may serve me. [2]‡For if you refuse to let them go and still hold them, [3]‡behold, the hand of the Lord will fall with a very severe plague upon your livestock that are in the field, the horses, the donkeys, the camels, the herds, and the flocks. [4]But the Lord will make a distinction between the livestock of Israel and the livestock of Egypt, so that nothing of all that belongs to the people of Israel shall die.”’” [5]‡And the Lord set a time, saying, “Tomorrow the Lord will do this thing in the land.” [6]‡And the next day the Lord did this thing. All the livestock of the Egyptians died, but not one of the livestock of the people of Israel died. [7]‡And Pharaoh sent, and behold, not one of the livestock of Israel was dead. But the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

The Sixth Plague: Boils

8 ‡‡‡And the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, “Take handfuls of soot from the kiln, and let Moses throw them in the air in the sight of Pharaoh. 9 ‡It shall become fine dust over all the land of Egypt, and become boils breaking out in sores on man and beast throughout all the land of Egypt.”
10 So they took soot from the kiln and stood before Pharaoh. And Moses threw it in the air, and it became boils breaking out in sores on man and beast. 11 †And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils, for the boils came upon the magicians and upon all the Egyptians.
12 †But the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he did not listen to them, as the Lord had spoken to Moses.

The Seventh Plague: Hail

13 ‡ ‡ † Then the Lord said to Moses, “Rise up early in the morning and present yourself before Pharaoh and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, “Let my people go, that they may serve me. 14 † For this time I will send all my plagues on you yourself,[1] and on your servants and your people, so that you may know that there is none like me in all the earth. 15 † For by now I could have put out my hand and struck you and your people with pestilence, and you would have been cut off from the earth.
16 † But for this purpose I have raised you up, to show you my power, so that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth. 17 † You are still exalting yourself against my people and will not let them go. 18 † Behold, about this time tomorrow I will cause very heavy hail to fall, such as never has been in Egypt from the day it was founded until now. 19 † Now therefore send, get your livestock and all that you have in the field into safe shelter, for every man and beast that is in the field and is not brought home will die when the hail falls on them.”’” 20 † Then whoever feared the word of the Lord among the servants of Pharaoh hurried his slaves and his livestock into the houses, 21 † but whoever did not pay attention to the word of the Lord left his slaves and his livestock in the field.

22 Then the Lord said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand toward heaven, so that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, on man and beast and every plant of the field, in the land of Egypt.” 23 Then Moses stretched out his staff toward heaven, and the Lord sent thunder and hail, and fire ran down to the earth. And the Lord rained hail upon the land of Egypt. 24 † There was hail and fire flashing continually in the midst of the hail, very heavy hail, such as had never been in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation. 25 † The hail struck down everything that was in the field in all the land of Egypt, both man and beast. And the hail struck down every plant of the field and broke every tree of the field. 26 Only in the land of Goshen, where the people of Israel were, was there no hail.

27 † Then Pharaoh sent and called Moses and Aaron and said to them, “This time I have sinned; the Lord is in the right, and I and my people are in the wrong. 28 Plead with the Lord, for there has been enough of God’s thunder and hail. I will let you go, and you shall stay no longer.” 29Moses said to him, “As soon as I have gone out of the city, I will stretch out my hands to the Lord. The thunder will cease, and there will be no more hail, so that you may know that the earth is the Lord’s. 30†But as for you and your servants, I know that you do not yet fear the Lord God.” 31†(The flax and the barley were struck down, for the barley was in the ear and the flax was in bud. 32†But the wheat and the emmer[1] were not struck down, for they are late in coming up.) 33So Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh and stretched out his hands to the Lord, and the thunder and the hail ceased, and the rain no longer poured upon the earth. 34But when Pharaoh saw that the rain and the hail and the thunder had ceased, he sinned yet again and hardened his heart, he and his servants. 35So the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people of Israel go, just as the Lord had spoken through Moses.

The Eighth Plague: Locusts

10 [1]†‡Then the Lord said to Moses, “Go in to Pharaoh, for I have hardened his heart and the heart of his servants, that I may show these signs of mine among them, [2]†and that you may tell in the hearing of your son and of your grandson how I have dealt harshly with the Egyptians and what signs I have done among them, that you may know that I am the Lord.”
[3]†So Moses and Aaron went in to Pharaoh and said to him, “Thus says the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, ‘How long will you refuse to humble yourself before me? Let my people go, that they may serve me. [4]†For if you refuse to let my people go, behold, tomorrow I will bring locusts into your country, [5]and they shall cover the face of the land, so that no one can see the land. And they shall eat what is left to you after the hail, and they shall eat every tree of yours that grows in the field, [6]and they shall fill your houses and the houses of all your servants and of all the Egyptians, as neither your fathers nor your grandfathers have seen, from the day they came on earth to this day.’” Then he turned and went out from Pharaoh.
[7]†Then Pharaoh’s servants said to him, “How long shall this man be a snare to us? Let the men go, that they may serve the Lord their God. Do you not yet understand that Egypt is ruined?” [8]†So Moses and Aaron were brought back to Pharaoh. And he said to them, “Go, serve the Lord your God. But which ones are to go?” [9]†Moses said, “We will go with our young and our old. We will go with our sons and daughters and with our flocks and herds, for we must hold a feast to the Lord.” [10]†But he said to them, “The Lord be with you, if ever I let you and your little ones go! Look, you have some evil purpose in mind.[2] [11]†No! Go, the men among you, and serve the Lord, for that is what you are asking.” And they were driven out from Pharaoh’s presence.
[12]Then the Lord said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, so that they may come upon the land of Egypt and eat every plant in the land, all that the hail has left.” [13]†So Moses stretched out his staff over the land of Egypt, and the Lord brought an east wind upon the land all that day and all that night. When it was morning, the east wind had brought the locusts. [14]†The locusts came up over all the land of Egypt and settled on the whole country of Egypt, such a dense swarm of locusts as had never been before, nor ever will be again. [15]†They covered the face of the whole land, so that the land was darkened, and they ate all the plants in the land and all the fruit of the trees that the hail had left. Not a green thing remained, neither tree nor plant of the field, through all the land of Egypt. [16]Then Pharaoh hastily called Moses and Aaron and said, “I have sinned against the Lord your God, and against you. [17]†Now therefore, forgive my sin, please, only this once, and plead with the Lord your God only to remove this death from me.” [18]So he went out from Pharaoh and pleaded with the Lord. [19]†And the Lord turned the wind into a very strong west wind, which lifted the locusts and drove them into the Red Sea. Not a single locust was left in all the country of Egypt. [20]† But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he did not let the people of Israel go.

The Ninth Plague: Darkness

21 ‡ ‡ Then the Lord said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, a darkness to be felt.”
22 So Moses stretched out his hand toward heaven, and there was pitch darkness in all the land of Egypt three days. 23 They did not see one another, nor did anyone rise from his place for three days, but all the people of Israel had light where they lived. 24 † Then Pharaoh called Moses and said, “Go, serve the Lord; your little ones also may go with you; only let your flocks and your herds remain behind.” 25 But Moses said, “You must also let us have sacrifices and burnt offerings, that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God. 26 † Our livestock also must go with us; not a hoof shall be left behind, for we must take of them to serve the Lord our God, and we do not know with what we must serve the Lord until we arrive there.” 27 † But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he would not let them go. 28 † Then Pharaoh said to him, “Get away from me; take care never to see my face again, for on the day you see my face you shall die.” 29 † Moses said, “As you say! I will not see your face again.”

A Final Plague Threatened

11 [1]†The Lord said to Moses, “Yet one plague more I will bring upon Pharaoh and upon Egypt. Afterward he will let you go from here. When he lets you go, he will drive you away completely. [2]†Speak now in the hearing of the people, that they ask, every man of his neighbor and every woman of her neighbor, for silver and gold jewelry.” [3]†And the Lord gave the people favor in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover, the man Moses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh’s servants and in the sight of the people.

[4]†So Moses said, “Thus says the Lord: About midnight I will go out in the midst of Egypt, [5]†and every firstborn in the land of Egypt shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sits on his throne, even to the firstborn of the slave girl who is behind the handmill, and all the firstborn of the cattle.
[6]†There shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there has never been, nor ever will be again. [7]†But not a dog shall growl against any of the people of Israel, either man or beast, that you may know that the Lord makes a distinction between Egypt and Israel. [8]†And all these your servants shall come down to me and bow down to me, saying, ‘Get out, you and all the people who follow you.’ And after that I will go out.” And he went out from Pharaoh in hot anger. [9]† Then the Lord said to Moses, “Pharaoh will not listen to you, that my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.”

[10]Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh, and the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he did not let the people of Israel go out of his land.

The Passover

12 [1]‡ ‡The Lord said to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, [2]†“This month shall be for you the beginning of months. It shall be the first month of the year for you. [3]†Tell all the congregation of Israel that on the tenth day of this month every man shall take a lamb according to their fathers’ houses, a lamb for a household. [4]And if the household is too small for a lamb, then he and his nearest neighbor shall take according to the number of persons; according to what each can eat you shall make your count for the lamb. [5]†Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male a year old.
You may take it from the sheep or from the goats, [6]†and you shall keep it until the fourteenth day of this month, when the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill their lambs at twilight.[1] [7]†“Then they shall take some of the blood and put it on the two doorposts and the lintel of the houses in which they eat it. [8]‡ ‡They shall eat the flesh that night, roasted on the fire; with unleavened bread and bitter herbs they shall eat it. [9]†Do not eat any of it raw or boiled in water, but roasted, its head with its legs and its inner parts. [10]†And you shall let none of it remain until the morning; anything that remains until the morning you shall burn.
[11]†In this manner you shall eat it: with your belt fastened, your sandals on your feet, and your staff in your hand. And you shall eat it in haste. It is the Lord’s Passover. [12]†For I will pass through the land of Egypt that night, and I will strike all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and on all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgments: I am the Lord. [13]†The blood shall be a sign for you, on the houses where you are. And when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and no plague will befall you to destroy you, when I strike the land of Egypt.
[14]†“This day shall be for you a memorial day, and you shall keep it as a feast to the Lord; throughout your generations, as a statute forever, you shall keep it as a feast. [15]†Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread. On the first day you shall remove leaven out of your houses, for if anyone eats what is leavened, from the first day until the seventh day, that person shall be cut off from Israel. [16]†On the first day you shall hold a holy assembly, and on the seventh day a holy assembly. No work shall be done on those days. But what everyone needs to eat, that alone may be prepared by you. 17 †And you shall observe the Feast of Unleavened Bread, for on this very day I brought your hosts out of the land of Egypt. Therefore you shall observe this day, throughout your generations, as a statute forever. 18 †In the first month, from the fourteenth day of the month at evening, you shall eat unleavened bread until the twenty-first day of the month at evening. 19 †For seven days no leaven is to be found in your houses. If anyone eats what is leavened, that person will be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he is a sojourner or a native of the land. 20 You shall eat nothing leavened; in all your dwelling places you shall eat unleavened bread."

21 †Then Moses called all the elders of Israel and said to them, "Go and select lambs for yourselves according to your clans, and kill the Passover lamb. 22 †Take a bunch of hyssop and dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and touch the lintel and the two doorposts with the blood that is in the basin. None of you shall go out of the door of his house until the morning. 23 †For the Lord will pass through to strike the Egyptians, and when he sees the blood on the lintel and on the two doorposts, the Lord will pass over the door and will not allow the destroyer to enter your houses to strike you. 24 †You shall observe this rite as a statute for you and for your sons forever. 25 †And when you come to the land that the Lord will give you, as he has promised, you shall keep this service. 26 And when your children say to you, 'What do you mean by this service?' 27 †you shall say, 'It is the sacrifice of the Lord's Passover, for he passed over the houses of the people of Israel in Egypt, when he struck the Egyptians but spared our houses.'" And the people bowed their heads and worshiped.

28 †Then the people of Israel went and did so; as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron, so they did.

The Tenth Plague: Death of the Firstborn

29 ‡ † At midnight the Lord struck down all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sat on his throne to the firstborn of the captive who was in the dungeon, and all the firstborn of the livestock.
30 † And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he and all his servants and all the Egyptians. And there was a great cry in Egypt, for there was not a house where someone was not dead. 31 † Then he summoned Moses and Aaron by night and said, “Up, go out from among my people, both you and the people of Israel; and go, serve the Lord, as you have said. 32 † Take your flocks and your herds, as you have said, and be gone, and bless me also!”

The Exodus

33 ‡The Egyptians were urgent with the people to send them out of the land in haste. For they said, “We shall all be dead.” 34 †So the people took their dough before it was leavened, their kneading bowls being bound up in their cloaks on their shoulders. 35 ‡†The people of Israel had also done as Moses told them, for they had asked the Egyptians for silver and gold jewelry and for clothing. 36 †And the Lord had given the people favor in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they let them have what they asked. Thus they plundered the Egyptians.

37 †And the people of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about six hundred thousand men on foot, besides women and children. 38 †A mixed multitude also went up with them, and very much livestock, both flocks and herds. 39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough that they had brought out of Egypt, for it was not leavened, because they were thrust out of Egypt and could not wait, nor had they prepared any provisions for themselves.

40 †The time that the people of Israel lived in Egypt was 430 years. 41 †At the end of 430 years, on that very day, all the hosts of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt. 42 †It was a night of watching by the Lord, to bring them out of the land of Egypt; so this same night is a night of watching kept to the Lord by all the people of Israel throughout their generations.

Institution of the Passover

43 ‡ ‡ † And the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, “This is the statute of the Passover: no foreigner shall eat of it, 44 † but every slave that is bought for money may eat of it after you have circumcised him. 45 † No foreigner or hired servant may eat of it. 46 † It shall be eaten in one house; you shall not take any of the flesh outside the house, and you shall not break any of its bones. 47 † All the congregation of Israel shall keep it. 48 † If a stranger shall sojourn with you and would keep the Passover to the Lord, let all his males be circumcised. Then he may come near and keep it; he shall be as a native of the land. But no uncircumcised person shall eat of it. 49 † There shall be one law for the native and for the stranger who sojourns among you.” 50 ‡ All the people of Israel did just as the Lord commanded Moses and Aaron. 51 And on that very day the Lord brought the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt by their hosts.

Consecration of the Firstborn

13 [1]‡†The Lord said to Moses, [2]†“Consecrate to me all the firstborn.
Whatever is the first to open the womb among the people of Israel, both of man and of beast, is mine.”

The Feast of Unleavened Bread

3 ‡ † Then Moses said to the people, “Remember this day in which you came out from Egypt, out of the house of slavery, for by a strong hand the Lord brought you out from this place. No leavened bread shall be eaten.
4 † Today, in the month of Abib, you are going out. 5 † And when the Lord brings you into the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he swore to your fathers to give you, a land flowing with milk and honey, you shall keep this service in this month.
6 ‡ Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be a feast to the Lord. 7 Unleavened bread shall be eaten for seven days; no leavened bread shall be seen with you, and no leaven shall be seen with you in all your territory. 8 † You shall tell your son on that day, ‘It is because of what the Lord did for me when I came out of Egypt.’ 9 † And it shall be to you as a sign on your hand and as a memorial between your eyes, that the law of the Lord may be in your mouth. For with a strong hand the Lord has brought you out of Egypt. 10 † You shall therefore keep this statute at its appointed time from year to year.

11 ‡ † “When the Lord brings you into the land of the Canaanites, as he swore to you and your fathers, and shall give it to you, 12 † you shall set apart to the Lord all that first opens the womb. All the firstborn of your animals that are males shall be the Lord’s. 13 † Every firstborn of a donkey you shall redeem with a lamb, or if you will not redeem it you shall break its neck.
Every firstborn of man among your sons you shall redeem. 14 † And when in time to come your son asks you, ‘What does this mean?’ you shall say to him, ‘By a strong hand the Lord brought us out of Egypt, from the house of slavery. 15 † For when Pharaoh stubbornly refused to let us go, the Lord killed all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both the firstborn of man and the firstborn of animals. Therefore I sacrifice to the Lord all the males that first open the womb, but all the firstborn of my sons I redeem.’ 16 † It shall be as a mark on your hand or frontlets between your eyes, for by a strong hand the Lord brought us out of Egypt.”

Pillars of Cloud and Fire

17 ‡ † When Pharaoh let the people go, God did not lead them by way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near. For God said, “Lest the people change their minds when they see war and return to Egypt.” 18 † But God led the people around by the way of the wilderness toward the Red Sea. And the people of Israel went up out of the land of Egypt equipped for battle. 19 † Moses took the bones of Joseph with him, for Joseph[1] had made the sons of Israel solemnly swear, saying, “God will surely visit you, and you shall carry up my bones with you from here.” 20 † And they moved on from Succoth and encamped at Etham, on the edge of the wilderness.
21 † And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of cloud to lead them along the way, and by night in a pillar of fire to give them light, that they might travel by day and by night. 22 † The pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night did not depart from before the people.

Crossing the Red Sea

14 [1]†Then the Lord said to Moses, [2]†"Tell the people of Israel to turn back and encamp in front of Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, in front of Baal-zephon; you shall encamp facing it, by the sea. [3]†For Pharaoh will say of the people of Israel, 'They are wandering in the land; the wilderness has shut them in.' [4]†And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and he will pursue them, and I will get glory over Pharaoh and all his host, and the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord." And they did so.

[5]†When the king of Egypt was told that the people had fled, the mind of Pharaoh and his servants was changed toward the people, and they said,
"What is this we have done, that we have let Israel go from serving us?"
[6]†So he made ready his chariot and took his army with him, [7]†and took six hundred chosen chariots and all the other chariots of Egypt with officers over all of them. [8]†And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued the people of Israel while the people of Israel were going out defiantly. [9]†The Egyptians pursued them, all Pharaoh's horses and chariots and his horsemen and his army, and overtook them encamped at the sea, by Pi-hahiroth, in front of Baal-zephon.

[10]†When Pharaoh drew near, the people of Israel lifted up their eyes, and behold, the Egyptians were marching after them, and they feared greatly.
And the people of Israel cried out to the Lord. [11]‡†They said to Moses, "Is it because there are no graves in Egypt that you have taken us away to die in the wilderness? What have you done to us in bringing us out of Egypt? [12]†Is not this what we said to you in Egypt: 'Leave us alone that we may serve the Egyptians'? For it would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness." [13]‡†And Moses said to the people, "Fear not, stand firm, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will work for you today. For the Egyptians whom you see today, you shall never see again.
[14]†The Lord will fight for you, and you have only to be silent."

[15]†The Lord said to Moses, "Why do you cry to me? Tell the people of Israel to go forward. [16]†Lift up your staff, and stretch out your hand over the sea and divide it, that the people of Israel may go through the sea on dry ground. [17]†And I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians so that they shall go in after them, and I will get glory over Pharaoh and all his host, his chariots, and his horsemen. [18]†And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I have gotten glory over Pharaoh, his chariots, and his horsemen."

[19]†Then the angel of God who was going before the host of Israel moved and went behind them, and the pillar of cloud moved from before them and stood behind them, [20]†coming between the host of Egypt and the host of Israel. And there was the cloud and the darkness. And it lit up the night[1] without one coming near the other all night.

[21]†Then Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and the Lord drove the sea back by a strong east wind all night and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided. [22]†And the people of Israel went into the midst of the sea on dry ground, the waters being a wall to them on their right hand and on their left. [23]†The Egyptians pursued and went in after them into the midst of the sea, all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen. [24]†And in the morning watch the Lord in the pillar of fire and of cloud looked down on the Egyptian forces and threw the Egyptian forces into a panic, [25]† clogging[2] their chariot wheels so that they drove heavily. And the Egyptians said, "Let us flee from before Israel, for the Lord fights for them against the Egyptians."

[26]†Then the Lord said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand over the sea, that the water may come back upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen." [27]†So Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to its normal course when the morning appeared. And as the Egyptians fled into it, the Lord threw[3] the Egyptians into the midst of the sea. [28]†The waters returned and covered the chariots and the horsemen; of all the host of Pharaoh that had followed them into the sea, not one of them remained. [29]‡But the people of Israel walked on dry ground through the sea, the waters being a wall to them on their right hand and on their left.

[30]†Thus the Lord saved Israel that day from the hand of the Egyptians, and Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the seashore. [31]†Israel saw the great power that the Lord used against the Egyptians, so the people feared the Lord, and they believed in the Lord and in his servant Moses.

The Song of Moses

15 [1]‡‡†Then Moses and the people of Israel sang this song to the Lord, saying,

"I will sing to the Lord, for he has triumphed
gloriously;
the horse and his rider[1] he has thrown into the sea.
[2]† The Lord is my strength and my song,
and he has become my salvation;
this is my God, and I will praise him,
my father's God, and I will exalt him.
[3]† The Lord is a man of war;
the Lord is his name.
[4]†"haraoh's chariots and his host he cast into
the sea,
and his chosen officers were sunk in the Red Sea.
[5]† The floods covered them;
they went down into the depths like a stone.
[6]† Your right hand, O Lord, glorious in power,
your right hand, O Lord, shatters the enemy.
[7]† In the greatness of your majesty you overthrow your adversaries;
you send out your fury; it consumes them like stubble.
[8]† At the blast of your nostrils the waters piled up;
the floods stood up in a heap;
the deeps congealed in the heart of the sea.
[9]† The enemy said, 'I will pursue, I will overtake,
I will divide the spoil, my desire shall have its fill of them.

I will draw my sword; my hand shall destroy
them.'
10† You blew with your wind; the sea covered
them;
they sank like lead in the mighty waters.

11†"Who is like you, O LORD, among the gods?
Who is like you, majestic in holiness, awesome in glorious deeds, doing wonders?
12† You stretched out your right hand;
the earth swallowed them.

13†"You have led in your steadfast love the people whom you have redeemed;
you have guided them by your strength to your holy abode.
14†† The peoples have heard; they tremble;
pangs have seized the inhabitants of Philistia.
15 Now are the chiefs of Edom dismayed;
trembling seizes the leaders of Moab;
all the inhabitants of Canaan have melted away.
16† Terror and dread fall upon them;
because of the greatness of your arm, they are still as a stone, till your people, O LORD, pass by, till the people pass by whom you have purchased.
17† You will bring them in and plant them on your own mountain,
the place, O LORD, which you have made for your abode,
the sanctuary, O Lord, which your hands

have established.
18 † The Lord will reign forever and ever.”

19 †For when the horses of Pharaoh with his chariots and his horsemen went into the sea, the Lord brought back the waters of the sea upon them, but the people of Israel walked on dry ground in the midst of the sea. 20 †Then Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a tambourine in her hand, and all the women went out after her with tambourines and dancing. 21 †And Miriam sang to them:

“Sing to the Lord, for he has triumphed
gloriously;
the horse and his rider he has thrown into the sea.”

Bitter Water Made Sweet

22 ‡† Then Moses made Israel set out from the Red Sea, and they went into the wilderness of Shur. They went three days in the wilderness and found no water. 23 † When they came to Marah, they could not drink the water of Marah because it was bitter; therefore it was named Marah.[1] 24 † And the people grumbled against Moses, saying, “What shall we drink?” 25 ‡† And he cried to the Lord, and the Lord showed him a log,[2] and he threw it into the water, and the water became sweet.

There the Lord [3] made for them a statute and a rule, and there he tested them, 26 † saying, “If you will diligently listen to the voice of the Lord your God, and do that which is right in his eyes, and give ear to his commandments and keep all his statutes, I will put none of the diseases on you that I put on the Egyptians, for I am the Lord, your healer.”

27 † Then they came to Elim, where there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees, and they encamped there by the water.

Bread from Heaven

16 [1]†They set out from Elim, and all the congregation of the people of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after they had departed from the land of Egypt. [2]†And the whole congregation of the people of Israel grumbled against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness, [3]†and the people of Israel said to them, "Would that we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the meat pots and ate bread to the full, for you have brought us out into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger."

[4]†Then the Lord said to Moses, "Behold, I am about to rain bread from heaven for you, and the people shall go out and gather a day's portion every day, that I may test them, whether they will walk in my law or not. [5]†On the sixth day, when they prepare what they bring in, it will be twice as much as they gather daily." [6]†So Moses and Aaron said to all the people of Israel,
"At evening you shall know that it was the Lord who brought you out of the land of Egypt, [7]†and in the morning you shall see the glory of the Lord, because he has heard your grumbling against the Lord. For what are we, that you grumble against us?" [8]†And Moses said, "When the Lord gives you in the evening meat to eat and in the morning bread to the full, because the Lord has heard your grumbling that you grumble against him—what are we? Your grumbling is not against us but against the Lord."

[9]†Then Moses said to Aaron, "Say to the whole congregation of the people of Israel, 'Come near before the Lord, for he has heard your grumbling.'" [10]And as soon as Aaron spoke to the whole congregation of the people of Israel, they looked toward the wilderness, and behold, the glory of the Lord appeared in the cloud. [11]And the Lord said to Moses, [12]†"I have heard the grumbling of the people of Israel. Say to them, 'At twilight you shall eat meat, and in the morning you shall be filled with bread. Then you shall know that I am the Lord your God.'"

[13]†In the evening quail came up and covered the camp, and in the morning dew lay around the camp. [14]†And when the dew had gone up, there was on the face of the wilderness a fine, flake-like thing, fine as frost on the ground. [15]When the people of Israel saw it, they said to one another, "What is it?”[1] For they did not know what it was. And Moses said to them, “It is the bread that the Lord has given you to eat. 16This is what the Lord has commanded: ‘Gather of it, each one of you, as much as he can eat. You shall each take an omer,[2] according to the number of the persons that each of you has in his tent.’” 17And the people of Israel did so. They gathered, some more, some less. 18But when they measured it with an omer, whoever gathered much had nothing left over, and whoever gathered little had no lack. Each of them gathered as much as he could eat. 19And Moses said to them, “Let no one leave any of it over till the morning.” 20But they did not listen to Moses. Some left part of it till the morning, and it bred worms and stank. And Moses was angry with them. 21Morning by morning they gathered it, each as much as he could eat; but when the sun grew hot, it melted.

22On the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers each. And when all the leaders of the congregation came and told Moses, 23he said to them, “This is what the Lord has commanded: ‘Tomorrow is a day of solemn rest, a holy Sabbath to the Lord; bake what you will bake and boil what you will boil, and all that is left over lay aside to be kept till the morning.’” 24So they laid it aside till the morning, as Moses commanded them, and it did not stink, and there were no worms in it. 25Moses said, “Eat it today, for today is a Sabbath to the Lord; today you will not find it in the field. 26Six days you shall gather it, but on the seventh day, which is a Sabbath, there will be none.”

27On the seventh day some of the people went out to gather, but they found none. 28And the Lord said to Moses, “How long will you refuse to keep my commandments and my laws? 29See! The Lord has given you the Sabbath; therefore on the sixth day he gives you bread for two days. Remain each of you in his place; let no one go out of his place on the seventh day.” 30So the people rested on the seventh day.

31Now the house of Israel called its name manna. It was like coriander seed, white, and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey. 32Moses said, “This is what the Lord has commanded: ‘Let an omer of it be kept throughout your generations, so that they may see the bread with which I fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you out of the land of Egypt.’” 33And Moses said to Aaron, “Take a jar, and put an omer of manna in it, and place it before the LORD to be kept throughout your generations.” 34 †As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron placed it before the testimony to be kept. 35 †The people of Israel ate the manna forty years, till they came to a habitable land. They ate the manna till they came to the border of the land of Canaan. 36 †(An omer is the tenth part of an ephah.)[1]

Water from the Rock

17 [1]‡†All the congregation of the people of Israel moved on from the wilderness of Sin by stages, according to the commandment of the Lord, and camped at Rephidim, but there was no water for the people to drink.
[2]‡Therefore the people quarreled with Moses and said, “Give us water to drink.” And Moses said to them, “Why do you quarrel with me? Why do you test the Lord?” [3]†But the people thirsted there for water, and the people grumbled against Moses and said, “Why did you bring us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our livestock with thirst?” [4]†So Moses cried to the Lord, “What shall I do with this people? They are almost ready to stone me.” [5]†And the Lord said to Moses, “Pass on before the people, taking with you some of the elders of Israel, and take in your hand the staff with which you struck the Nile, and go. [6]†Behold, I will stand before you there on the rock at Horeb, and you shall strike the rock, and water shall come out of it, and the people will drink.” And Moses did so, in the sight of the elders of Israel. [7]†And he called the name of the place Massah[2] and Meribah,[3] because of the quarreling of the people of Israel, and because they tested the Lord by saying, “Is the Lord among us or not?”

Israel Defeats Amalek

8 ‡ † Then Amalek came and fought with Israel at Rephidim. 9 † So Moses said to Joshua, “Choose for us men, and go out and fight with Amalek.
Tomorrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the staff of God in my hand.” 10 So Joshua did as Moses told him, and fought with Amalek, while Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill. 11 † Whenever Moses held up his hand, Israel prevailed, and whenever he lowered his hand, Amalek prevailed. 12 † But Moses’ hands grew weary, so they took a stone and put it under him, and he sat on it, while Aaron and Hur held up his hands, one on one side, and the other on the other side. So his hands were steady until the going down of the sun. 13 And Joshua overwhelmed Amalek and his people with the sword.

14 † Then the Lord said to Moses, “Write this as a memorial in a book and recite it in the ears of Joshua, that I will utterly blot out the memory of Amalek from under heaven.” 15 † And Moses built an altar and called the name of it, The Lord Is My Banner, 16 † saying, “A hand upon the throne[1] of the Lord! The Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.”

Jethro's Advice

18 [1]†Jethro, the priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law, heard of all that God had done for Moses and for Israel his people, how the Lord had brought Israel out of Egypt. [2]†Now Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, had taken Zipporah, Moses' wife, after he had sent her home, [3]†along with her two sons. The name of the one was Gershom (for he said, "I have been a sojourner[2] in a foreign land"), [4]and the name of the other, Eliezer[3] (for he said, "The God of my father was my help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh"). [5]†Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, came with his sons and his wife to Moses in the wilderness where he was encamped at the mountain of God. [6]And when he sent word to Moses, "I,[4] your father-in-law Jethro, am coming to you with your wife and her two sons with her," [7]†Moses went out to meet his father-in-law and bowed down and kissed him. And they asked each other of their welfare and went into the tent. [8]†Then Moses told his father-in-law all that the Lord had done to Pharaoh and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, all the hardship that had come upon them in the way, and how the Lord had delivered them. [9]†And Jethro rejoiced for all the good that the Lord had done to Israel, in that he had delivered them out of the hand of the Egyptians.

[10]†Jethro said, "Blessed be the Lord, who has delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians and out of the hand of Pharaoh and has delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians. [11]†Now I know that the Lord is greater than all gods, because in this affair they dealt arrogantly with the people."[5] [12]†And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, brought a burnt offering and sacrifices to God; and Aaron came with all the elders of Israel to eat bread with Moses' father-in-law before God.

[13]†The next day Moses sat to judge the people, and the people stood around Moses from morning till evening. [14]†When Moses' father-in-law saw all that he was doing for the people, he said, "What is this that you are doing for the people? Why do you sit alone, and all the people stand around you from morning till evening?" [15]†And Moses said to his father-in-law, "Because the people come to me to inquire of God; [16]†when they have a dispute, they come to me and I decide between one person and another, and I make them know the statutes of God and his laws." [17]Moses' father-in-law said to him, "What you are doing is not good. [18]You and the people with you will certainly wear yourselves out, for the thing is too heavy for you.

You are not able to do it alone. [19]†Now obey my voice; I will give you advice, and God be with you! You shall represent the people before God and bring their cases to God, [20]†and you shall warn them about the statutes and the laws, and make them know the way in which they must walk and what they must do. [21]‡‡Moreover, look for able men from all the people, men who fear God, who are trustworthy and hate a bribe, and place such men over the people as chiefs of thousands, of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens. [22]And let them judge the people at all times. Every great matter they shall bring to you, but any small matter they shall decide themselves. So it will be easier for you, and they will bear the burden with you. [23]†If you do this, God will direct you, you will be able to endure, and all this people also will go to their place in peace."

[24]†So Moses listened to the voice of his father-in-law and did all that he had said. [25]†Moses chose able men out of all Israel and made them heads over the people, chiefs of thousands, of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens.
[26]And they judged the people at all times. Any hard case they brought to Moses, but any small matter they decided themselves. [27]†Then Moses let his father-in-law depart, and he went away to his own country.

Israel at Mount Sinai

19 [1]†On the third new moon after the people of Israel had gone out of the land of Egypt, on that day they came into the wilderness of Sinai.
[2]†They set out from Rephidim and came into the wilderness of Sinai, and they encamped in the wilderness. There Israel encamped before the mountain, [3]†while Moses went up to God. The Lord called to him out of the mountain, saying, "Thus you shall say to the house of Jacob, and tell the people of Israel: [4]†You yourselves have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I bore you on eagles' wings and brought you to myself. [5]†Now therefore, if you will indeed obey my voice and keep my covenant, you shall be my treasured possession among all peoples, for all the earth is mine; [6]†and you shall be to me a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.
These are the words that you shall speak to the people of Israel."

[7]†So Moses came and called the elders of the people and set before them all these words that the Lord had commanded him. [8]† All the people answered together and said, "All that the Lord has spoken we will do." And Moses reported the words of the people to the Lord. [9]†And the Lord said to Moses, "Behold, I am coming to you in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with you, and may also believe you forever."

When Moses told the words of the people to the Lord, [10]†the Lord said to Moses, "Go to the people and consecrate them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their garments [11]†and be ready for the third day. For on the third day the Lord will come down on Mount Sinai in the sight of all the people.
[12]†And you shall set limits for the people all around, saying, 'Take care not to go up into the mountain or touch the edge of it. Whoever touches the mountain shall be put to death. [13]No hand shall touch him, but he shall be stoned or shot;[1] whether beast or man, he shall not live.' When the trumpet sounds a long blast, they shall come up to the mountain." [14]†So Moses went down from the mountain to the people and consecrated the people; and they washed their garments. [15]†And he said to the people, "Be ready for the third day; do not go near a woman."

16 ✝On the morning of the third day there were thunders and lightnings and a thick cloud on the mountain and a very loud trumpet blast, so that all the people in the camp trembled. 17Then Moses brought the people out of the camp to meet God, and they took their stand at the foot of the mountain.
18 ✝Now Mount Sinai was wrapped in smoke because the Lord had descended on it in fire. The smoke of it went up like the smoke of a kiln, and the whole mountain trembled greatly. 19And as the sound of the trumpet grew louder and louder, Moses spoke, and God answered him in thunder.
20The Lord came down on Mount Sinai, to the top of the mountain. And the Lord called Moses to the top of the mountain, and Moses went up.

21And the Lord said to Moses, "Go down and warn the people, lest they break through to the Lord to look and many of them perish. 22✝Also let the priests who come near to the Lord consecrate themselves, lest the Lord break out against them." 23And Moses said to the Lord, "The people cannot come up to Mount Sinai, for you yourself warned us, saying, 'Set limits around the mountain and consecrate it.'" 24✝And the Lord said to him, "Go down, and come up bringing Aaron with you. But do not let the priests and the people break through to come up to the Lord, lest he break out against them." 25So Moses went down to the people and told them.

The Ten Commandments

20 [1]‡‡And God spoke all these words, saying, [2]†“I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery.

[3]‡‡“You shall have no other gods before[2] me.

[4]†“You shall not make for yourself a carved image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. [5]†You shall not bow down to them or serve them, for I the Lord your God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children to the third and the fourth generation of those who hate me, [6]†but showing steadfast love to thousands[1] of those who love me and keep my commandments.

[8]†“Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. [9]Six days you shall labor, and do all your work, [10]but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the Lord your God. On it you shall not do any work, you, or your son, or your daughter, your male servant, or your female servant, or your livestock, or the sojourner who is within your gates. [11]†For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested on the seventh day. Therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy.

[12]‡‡“Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long in the land that the Lord your God is giving you.

[13]†“You shall not murder.[2]

[14]†“You shall not commit adultery.

[15]†“You shall not steal.

[17]†“You shall not covet your neighbor’s house; you shall not covet your neighbor’s wife, or his male servant, or his female servant, or his ox, or his donkey, or anything that is your neighbor’s.”

[18]Now when all the people saw the thunder and the flashes of lightning and the sound of the trumpet and the mountain smoking, the people were afraid[3] and trembled, and they stood far off [19]and said to Moses, “You speak to us, and we will listen; but do not let God speak to us, lest we die.” 20 † Moses said to the people, “Do not fear, for God has come to test you, that the fear of him may be before you, that you may not sin.” 21 † The people stood far off, while Moses drew near to the thick darkness where God was.

Laws About Altars

22 ‡ ‡ And the Lord said to Moses, “Thus you shall say to the people of Israel: ‘You have seen for yourselves that I have talked with you from heaven. 23 † You shall not make gods of silver to be with me, nor shall you make for yourselves gods of gold. 24 † An altar of earth you shall make for me and sacrifice on it your burnt offerings and your peace offerings, your sheep and your oxen. In every place where I cause my name to be remembered I will come to you and bless you. 25 † If you make me an altar of stone, you shall not build it of hewn stones, for if you wield your tool on it you profane it. 26 † And you shall not go up by steps to my altar, that your nakedness be not exposed on it.’

Laws About Slaves

21 [1]“Now these are the rules that you shall set before them. [2]When you buy a Hebrew slave, he shall serve six years, and in the seventh he shall go out free, for nothing. [3]If he comes in single, he shall go out single; if he comes in married, then his wife shall go out with him. [4]If his master gives him a wife and she bears him sons or daughters, the wife and her children shall be her master’s, and he shall go out alone. [5]But if the slave plainly says, ‘I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free,’ [6]then his master shall bring him to God, and he shall bring him to the door or the doorpost. And his master shall bore his ear through with an awl, and he shall be his slave forever.

[7]“When a man sells his daughter as a slave, she shall not go out as the male slaves do. [8]If she does not please her master, who has designated her[1] for himself, then he shall let her be redeemed. He shall have no right to sell her to a foreign people, since he has broken faith with her. [9]If he designates her for his son, he shall deal with her as with a daughter. [10]If he takes another wife to himself, he shall not diminish her food, her clothing, or her marital rights. [11]And if he does not do these three things for her, she shall go out for nothing, without payment of money.

[12]“Whoever strikes a man so that he dies shall be put to death. [13]But if he did not lie in wait for him, but God let him fall into his hand, then I will appoint for you a place to which he may flee. [14]But if a man willfully attacks another to kill him by cunning, you shall take him from my altar, that he may die.

[15]“Whoever strikes his father or his mother shall be put to death.

[16]“Whoever steals a man and sells him, and anyone found in possession of him, shall be put to death.

[17]“Whoever curses[2] his father or his mother shall be put to death.

[18]“When men quarrel and one strikes the other with a stone or with his fist and the man does not die but takes to his bed, [19]then if the man rises again and walks outdoors with his staff, he who struck him shall be clear;

only he shall pay for the loss of his time, and shall have him thoroughly healed.

20 † "When a man strikes his slave, male or female, with a rod and the slave dies under his hand, he shall be avenged. 21 † But if the slave survives a day or two, he is not to be avenged, for the slave is his money.

22 † "When men strive together and hit a pregnant woman, so that her children come out, but there is no harm, the one who hit her shall surely be fined, as the woman's husband shall impose on him, and he shall pay as the judges determine. 23 † But if there is harm,[3] then you shall pay life for life, 24 eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, 25 burn for burn, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26 "When a man strikes the eye of his slave, male or female, and destroys it, he shall let the slave go free because of his eye. 27 If he knocks out the tooth of his slave, male or female, he shall let the slave go free because of his tooth.

28 † "When an ox gores a man or a woman to death, the ox shall be stoned, and its flesh shall not be eaten, but the owner of the ox shall not be liable. 29 But if the ox has been accustomed to gore in the past, and its owner has been warned but has not kept it in, and it kills a man or a woman, the ox shall be stoned, and its owner also shall be put to death. 30 † If a ransom is imposed on him, then he shall give for the redemption of his life whatever is imposed on him. 31 If it gores a man's son or daughter, he shall be dealt with according to this same rule. 32 † If the ox gores a slave, male or female, the owner shall give to their master thirty shekels[4] of silver, and the ox shall be stoned.

Laws About Restitution

33 ‡ “When a man opens a pit, or when a man digs a pit and does not cover it, and an ox or a donkey falls into it, 34 the owner of the pit shall make restoration. He shall give money to its owner, and the dead beast shall be his.
35 “When one man’s ox butts another’s, so that it dies, then they shall sell the live ox and share its price, and the dead beast also they shall share. 36 Or if it is known that the ox has been accustomed to gore in the past, and its owner has not kept it in, he shall repay ox for ox, and the dead beast shall be his.

22 1 † [1] “If a man steals an ox or a sheep, and kills it or sells it, he shall repay five oxen for an ox, and four sheep for a sheep. 2 ‡ [2] If a thief is found breaking in and is struck so that he dies, there shall be no bloodguilt for him, 3 but if the sun has risen on him, there shall be bloodguilt for him.
He shall surely pay. If he has nothing, then he shall be sold for his theft. 4 † If the stolen beast is found alive in his possession, whether it is an ox or a donkey or a sheep, he shall pay double.
5 ‡ “If a man causes a field or vineyard to be grazed over, or lets his beast loose and it feeds in another man’s field, he shall make restitution from the best in his own field and in his own vineyard.
6 “If fire breaks out and catches in thorns so that the stacked grain or the standing grain or the field is consumed, he who started the fire shall make full restitution.
7 ‡ “If a man gives to his neighbor money or goods to keep safe, and it is stolen from the man’s house, then, if the thief is found, he shall pay double.
8 † If the thief is not found, the owner of the house shall come near to God to show whether or not he has put his hand to his neighbor’s property. 9 † For every breach of trust, whether it is for an ox, for a donkey, for a sheep, for a cloak, or for any kind of lost thing, of which one says, ‘This is it,’ the case of both parties shall come before God. The one whom God condemns shall pay double to his neighbor.
10 “If a man gives to his neighbor a donkey or an ox or a sheep or any beast to keep safe, and it dies or is injured or is driven away, without anyone seeing it, [11]† an oath by the Lord shall be between them both to see whether or not he has put his hand to his neighbor's property. The owner shall accept the oath, and he shall not make restitution. [12]But if it is stolen from him, he shall make restitution to its owner. [13]If it is torn by beasts, let him bring it as evidence. He shall not make restitution for what has been torn.

[14]"If a man borrows anything of his neighbor, and it is injured or dies, the owner not being with it, he shall make full restitution. [15]If the owner was with it, he shall not make restitution; if it was hired, it came for its hiring fee.[3]

Laws About Social Justice

16 ‡‡ “If a man seduces a virgin[4] who is not betrothed and lies with her, he shall give the bride-price[5] for her and make her his wife. 17 If her father utterly refuses to give her to him, he shall pay money equal to the brideprice for virgins.
18 ‡ “You shall not permit a sorceress to live.
19 “Whoever lies with an animal shall be put to death.
20 ‡ “Whoever sacrifices to any god, other than the Lord alone, shall be devoted to destruction.[1] 21 “You shall not wrong a sojourner or oppress him, for you were sojourners in the land of Egypt. 22 You shall not mistreat any widow or fatherless child. 23 If you do mistreat them, and they cry out to me, I will surely hear their cry, 24 and my wrath will burn, and I will kill you with the sword, and your wives shall become widows and your children fatherless.
25 “If you lend money to any of my people with you who is poor, you shall not be like a moneylender to him, and you shall not exact interest from him.
26 ‡ If ever you take your neighbor’s cloak in pledge, you shall return it to him before the sun goes down, 27 ‡ for that is his only covering, and it is his cloak for his body; in what else shall he sleep? And if he cries to me, I will hear, for I am compassionate.
28 ‡ “You shall not revile God, nor curse a ruler of your people.
29 ‡ “You shall not delay to offer from the fullness of your harvest and from the outflow of your presses. The firstborn of your sons you shall give to me. 30 You shall do the same with your oxen and with your sheep: seven days it shall be with its mother; on the eighth day you shall give it to me.
31 ‡ “You shall be consecrated to me. Therefore you shall not eat any flesh that is torn by beasts in the field; you shall throw it to the dogs.

23 1 “You shall not spread a false report. You shall not join hands with a wicked man to be a malicious witness. 2 You shall not fall in with the many to do evil, nor shall you bear witness in a lawsuit, siding with the many, so as to pervert justice, 3 ‡ nor shall you be partial to a poor man in his lawsuit.

4 “If you meet your enemy’s ox or his donkey going astray, you shall bring it back to him. 5 † If you see the donkey of one who hates you lying down under its burden, you shall refrain from leaving him with it; you shall rescue it with him.
6 “You shall not pervert the justice due to your poor in his lawsuit. 7 † Keep far from a false charge, and do not kill the innocent and righteous, for I will not acquit the wicked. 8 † And you shall take no bribe, for a bribe blinds the clear-sighted and subverts the cause of those who are in the right.
9 † “You shall not oppress a sojourner. You know the heart of a sojourner, for you were sojourners in the land of Egypt.

Laws About the Sabbath and Festivals

10 “For six years you shall sow your land and gather in its yield, 11 but the seventh year you shall let it rest and lie fallow, that the poor of your people may eat; and what they leave the beasts of the field may eat. You shall do likewise with your vineyard, and with your olive orchard.
12 “Six days you shall do your work, but on the seventh day you shall rest; that your ox and your donkey may have rest, and the son of your servant woman, and the alien, may be refreshed.
13 “Pay attention to all that I have said to you, and make no mention of the names of other gods, nor let it be heard on your lips.
14 “Three times in the year you shall keep a feast to me. 15 You shall keep the Feast of Unleavened Bread. As I commanded you, you shall eat unleavened bread for seven days at the appointed time in the month of Abib, for in it you came out of Egypt. None shall appear before me empty-handed. 16 You shall keep the Feast of Harvest, of the firstfruits of your labor, of what you sow in the field. You shall keep the Feast of Ingathering at the end of the year, when you gather in from the field the fruit of your labor. 17 Three times in the year shall all your males appear before the Lord God.
18 “You shall not offer the blood of my sacrifice with anything leavened, or let the fat of my feast remain until the morning.
19 “The best of the firstfruits of your ground you shall bring into the house of the Lord your God.
“You shall not boil a young goat in its mother’s milk.

Conquest of Canaan Promised

20 ‡ ‡ “Behold, I send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. 21 Pay careful attention to him and obey his voice; do not rebel against him, for he will not pardon your transgression, for my name is in him.
22 “But if you carefully obey his voice and do all that I say, then I will be an enemy to your enemies and an adversary to your adversaries.
23 † “When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites, the Hivites and the Jebusites, and I blot them out, 24 † you shall not bow down to their gods nor serve them, nor do as they do, but you shall utterly overthrow them and break their pillars in pieces. 25 † You shall serve the Lord your God, and he[1] will bless your bread and your water, and I will take sickness away from among you. 26 † None shall miscarry or be barren in your land; I will fulfill the number of your days. 27 I will send my terror before you and will throw into confusion all the people against whom you shall come, and I will make all your enemies turn their backs to you. 28 † And I will send hornets before you, which shall drive out the Hivites, the Canaanites, and the Hittites from before you. 29 ‡ I will not drive them out from before you in one year, lest the land become desolate and the wild beasts multiply against you. 30 Little by little I will drive them out from before you, until you have increased and possess the land. 31 And I will set your border from the Red Sea to the Sea of the Philistines, and from the wilderness to the Euphrates, for I will give the inhabitants of the land into your hand, and you shall drive them out before you. 32 † You shall make no covenant with them and their gods. 33 They shall not dwell in your land, lest they make you sin against me; for if you serve their gods, it will surely be a snare to you.”

The Covenant Confirmed

24 [1]†Then he said to Moses, “Come up to the Lord, you and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel, and worship from afar. [2]Moses alone shall come near to the Lord, but the others shall not come near, and the people shall not come up with him.”

[3]†Moses came and told the people all the words of the Lord and all the rules.[1] And all the people answered with one voice and said, “All the words that the Lord has spoken we will do.” [4]†And Moses wrote down all the words of the Lord. He rose early in the morning and built an altar at the foot of the mountain, and twelve pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel. [5]† And he sent young men of the people of Israel, who offered burnt offerings and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen to the Lord. [6]†And Moses took half of the blood and put it in basins, and half of the blood he threw against the altar. [7]†Then he took the Book of the Covenant and read it in the hearing of the people. And they said, “All that the Lord has spoken we will do, and we will be obedient.” [8]†And Moses took the blood and threw it on the people and said, “Behold the blood of the covenant that the Lord has made with you in accordance with all these words.”

[9]Then Moses and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel went up, [10]†and they saw the God of Israel. There was under his feet as it were a pavement of sapphire stone, like the very heaven for clearness. [11]†And he did not lay his hand on the chief men of the people of Israel; they beheld God, and ate and drank.

[12]†The Lord said to Moses, “Come up to me on the mountain and wait there, that I may give you the tablets of stone, with the law and the commandment, which I have written for their instruction.” [13]†So Moses rose with his assistant Joshua, and Moses went up into the mountain of God. [14]†And he said to the elders, “Wait here for us until we return to you. And behold, Aaron and Hur are with you. Whoever has a dispute, let him go to them.”

[15]† Then Moses went up on the mountain, and the cloud covered the mountain. [16]†The glory of the Lord dwelt on Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days. And on the seventh day he called to Moses out of the midst of the cloud. [17]†Now the appearance of the glory of the Lord was like a devouring fire on the top of the mountain in the sight of the people of Israel. [18]Moses entered the cloud and went up on the mountain. And Moses was on the mountain forty days and forty nights.

Contributions for the Sanctuary

25 [1]The Lord said to Moses, [2]“Speak to the people of Israel, that they take for me a contribution. From every man whose heart moves him you shall receive the contribution for me. [3]And this is the contribution that you shall receive from them: gold, silver, and bronze, [4]blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen, goats’ hair, [5]tanned rams’ skins, goatskins,[1] acacia wood, [6]oil for the lamps, spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense, [7]onyx stones, and stones for setting, for the ephod and for the breastpiece. [8]And let them make me a sanctuary, that I may dwell in their midst. [9]Exactly as I show you concerning the pattern of the tabernacle, and of all its furniture, so you shall make it.

The Ark of the Covenant

10 ‡ † “They shall make an ark of acacia wood. Two cubits[2] and a half shall be its length, a cubit and a half its breadth, and a cubit and a half its height. 11 † You shall overlay it with pure gold, inside and outside shall you overlay it, and you shall make on it a molding of gold around it. 12 You shall cast four rings of gold for it and put them on its four feet, two rings on the one side of it, and two rings on the other side of it. 13 ‡ You shall make poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold. 14 And you shall put the poles into the rings on the sides of the ark to carry the ark by them. 15 The poles shall remain in the rings of the ark; they shall not be taken from it. 16 † And you shall put into the ark the testimony that I shall give you.

17 † “You shall make a mercy seat[3] of pure gold. Two cubits and a half shall be its length, and a cubit and a half its breadth. 18 † And you shall make two cherubim of gold; of hammered work shall you make them, on the two ends of the mercy seat. 19 † Make one cherub on the one end, and one cherub on the other end. Of one piece with the mercy seat shall you make the cherubim on its two ends. 20 † The cherubim shall spread out their wings above, overshadowing the mercy seat with their wings, their faces one to another; toward the mercy seat shall the faces of the cherubim be. 21 † And you shall put the mercy seat on the top of the ark, and in the ark you shall put the testimony that I shall give you. 22 † There I will meet with you, and from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubim that are on the ark of the testimony, I will speak with you about all that I will give you in commandment for the people of Israel.

The Table for Bread

23 ✝ ✝ “You shall make a table of acacia wood. Two cubits shall be its length, a cubit its breadth, and a cubit and a half its height. 24You shall overlay it with pure gold and make a molding of gold around it. 25And you shall make a rim around it a handbreadth[1] wide, and a molding of gold around the rim. 26And you shall make for it four rings of gold, and fasten the rings to the four corners at its four legs. 27Close to the frame the rings shall lie, as holders for the poles to carry the table. 28You shall make the poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with gold, and the table shall be carried with these. 29✝ And you shall make its plates and dishes for incense, and its flagons and bowls with which to pour drink offerings; you shall make them of pure gold. 30✝ And you shall set the bread of the Presence on the table before me regularly.

The Golden Lampstand

31 ‡ † “You shall make a lampstand of pure gold. The lampstand shall be made of hammered work: its base, its stem, its cups, its calyxes, and its flowers shall be of one piece with it. 32 ‡ And there shall be six branches going out of its sides, three branches of the lampstand out of one side of it and three branches of the lampstand out of the other side of it; 33 † three cups made like almond blossoms, each with calyx and flower, on one branch, and three cups made like almond blossoms, each with calyx and flower, on the other branch—so for the six branches going out of the lampstand. 34 And on the lampstand itself there shall be four cups made like almond blossoms, with their calyxes and flowers, 35 and a calyx of one piece with it under each pair of the six branches going out from the lampstand. 36 Their calyxes and their branches shall be of one piece with it, the whole of it a single piece of hammered work of pure gold. 37 † You shall make seven lamps for it. And the lamps shall be set up so as to give light on the space in front of it. 38 † Its tongs and their trays shall be of pure gold. 39 It shall be made, with all these utensils, out of a talent[2] of pure gold. 40 † And see that you make them after the pattern for them, which is being shown you on the mountain.

The Tabernacle

26 [1]‡†“Moreover, you shall make the tabernacle with ten curtains of fine twined linen and blue and purple and scarlet yarns; you shall make them with cherubim skillfully worked into them. [2]† The length of each curtain shall be twenty-eight cubits,[1] and the breadth of each curtain four cubits; all the curtains shall be the same size. [3]Five curtains shall be coupled to one another, and the other five curtains shall be coupled to one another.
[4]And you shall make loops of blue on the edge of the outermost curtain in the first set. Likewise you shall make loops on the edge of the outermost curtain in the second set. [5]†Fifty loops you shall make on the one curtain, and fifty loops you shall make on the edge of the curtain that is in the second set; the loops shall be opposite one another. [6]†And you shall make fifty clasps of gold, and couple the curtains one to the other with the clasps, so that the tabernacle may be a single whole.

[7]† “You shall also make curtains of goats’ hair for a tent over the tabernacle; eleven curtains shall you make. [8]† The length of each curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of each curtain four cubits. The eleven curtains shall be the same size. [9]† You shall couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and the sixth curtain you shall double over at the front of the tent. [10]† You shall make fifty loops on the edge of the curtain that is outermost in one set, and fifty loops on the edge of the curtain that is outermost in the second set.

[11]“You shall make fifty clasps of bronze, and put the clasps into the loops, and couple the tent together that it may be a single whole. [12]† And the part that remains of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remains, shall hang over the back of the tabernacle. [13]† And the extra that remains in the length of the curtains, the cubit on the one side, and the cubit on the other side, shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle, on this side and that side, to cover it. [14]†And you shall make for the tent a covering of tanned rams’ skins and a covering of goatskins on top.

[15]† “You shall make upright frames for the tabernacle of acacia wood.
[16]Ten cubits shall be the length of a frame, and a cubit and a half the breadth of each frame. [17] † There shall be two tenons in each frame, for fitting together. So shall you do for all the frames of the tabernacle. [18] You shall make the frames for the tabernacle: twenty frames for the south side; [19] and forty bases of silver you shall make under the twenty frames, two bases under one frame for its two tenons, and two bases under the next frame for its two tenons; [20] and for the second side of the tabernacle, on the north side twenty frames, [21] and their forty bases of silver, two bases under one frame, and two bases under the next frame. [22] † And for the rear of the tabernacle westward you shall make six frames. [23] And you shall make two frames for corners of the tabernacle in the rear; [24] they shall be separate beneath, but joined at the top, at the first ring. Thus shall it be with both of them; they shall form the two corners. [25] And there shall be eight frames, with their bases of silver, sixteen bases; two bases under one frame, and two bases under another frame.

[26] "You shall make bars of acacia wood, five for the frames of the one side of the tabernacle, [27] and five bars for the frames of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the frames of the side of the tabernacle at the rear westward. [28] The middle bar, halfway up the frames, shall run from end to end. [29] You shall overlay the frames with gold and shall make their rings of gold for holders for the bars, and you shall overlay the bars with gold.
[30] † Then you shall erect the tabernacle according to the plan for it that you were shown on the mountain.

[31] † "And you shall make a veil of blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen. It shall be made with cherubim skillfully worked into it.
[32] And you shall hang it on four pillars of acacia overlaid with gold, with hooks of gold, on four bases of silver. [33] † And you shall hang the veil from the clasps, and bring the ark of the testimony in there within the veil. And the veil shall separate for you the Holy Place from the Most Holy. [34] † You shall put the mercy seat on the ark of the testimony in the Most Holy Place.
[35] And you shall set the table outside the veil, and the lampstand on the south side of the tabernacle opposite the table, and you shall put the table on the north side.

[36] † "You shall make a screen for the entrance of the tent, of blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen, embroidered with needlework. [37] † And you shall make for the screen five pillars of acacia, and overlay them with gold. Their hooks shall be of gold, and you shall cast five bases of bronze for them.

The Bronze Altar

27 [1]†††“You shall make the altar of acacia wood, five cubits[1] long and five cubits broad. The altar shall be square, and its height shall be three cubits. [2]†And you shall make horns for it on its four corners; its horns shall be of one piece with it, and you shall overlay it with bronze. [3]You shall make pots for it to receive its ashes, and shovels and basins and forks and fire pans. You shall make all its utensils of bronze. [4]You shall also make for it a grating, a network of bronze, and on the net you shall make four bronze rings at its four corners. [5]And you shall set it under the ledge of the altar so that the net extends halfway down the altar. [6]And you shall make poles for the altar, poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with bronze. [7]And the poles shall be put through the rings, so that the poles are on the two sides of the altar when it is carried. [8]†You shall make it hollow, with boards. As it has been shown you on the mountain, so shall it be made.

The Court of the Tabernacle

9 “You shall make the court of the tabernacle. On the south side the court shall have hangings of fine twined linen a hundred cubits long for one side. 10 Its twenty pillars and their twenty bases shall be of bronze, but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver. 11 And likewise for its length on the north side there shall be hangings a hundred cubits long, its pillars twenty and their bases twenty, of bronze, but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver. 12 And for the breadth of the court on the west side there shall be hangings for fifty cubits, with ten pillars and ten bases. 13 The breadth of the court on the front to the east shall be fifty cubits.
14 The hangings for the one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and three bases. 15 On the other side the hangings shall be fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and three bases. 16 For the gate of the court there shall be a screen twenty cubits long, of blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen, embroidered with needlework. It shall have four pillars and with them four bases. 17 All the pillars around the court shall be filleted with silver. Their hooks shall be of silver, and their bases of bronze. 18 The length of the court shall be a hundred cubits, the breadth fifty, and the height five cubits, with hangings of fine twined linen and bases of bronze. 19 All the utensils of the tabernacle for every use, and all its pegs and all the pegs of the court, shall be of bronze.

Oil for the Lamp

[20] “You shall command the people of Israel that they bring to you pure beaten olive oil for the light, that a lamp may regularly be set up to burn. [21] In the tent of meeting, outside the veil that is before the testimony, Aaron and his sons shall tend it from evening to morning before the Lord. It shall be a statute forever to be observed throughout their generations by the people of Israel.

The Priests’ Garments

28 [1]†“Then bring near to you Aaron your brother, and his sons with him, from among the people of Israel, to serve me as priests—Aaron and Aaron’s sons, Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. [2]†And you shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother, for glory and for beauty. [3]†You shall speak to all the skillful, whom I have filled with a spirit of skill, that they make Aaron’s garments to consecrate him for my priesthood. [4]†These are the garments that they shall make: a breastpiece, an ephod, a robe, a coat of checker work, a turban, and a sash. They shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother and his sons to serve me as priests. [5]They shall receive gold, blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and fine twined linen.

[6]“And they shall make the ephod of gold, of blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and of fine twined linen, skillfully worked. [7]It shall have two shoulder pieces attached to its two edges, so that it may be joined together.
[8]†And the skillfully woven band on it shall be made like it and be of one piece with it, of gold, blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and fine twined linen. [9]†You shall take two onyx stones, and engrave on them the names of the sons of Israel, [10]†six of their names on the one stone, and the names of the remaining six on the other stone, in the order of their birth. [11]†As a jeweler engraves signets, so shall you engrave the two stones with the names of the sons of Israel. You shall enclose them in settings of gold filigree. [12]†And you shall set the two stones on the shoulder pieces of the ephod, as stones of remembrance for the sons of Israel. And Aaron shall bear their names before the Lord on his two shoulders for remembrance.
[13]You shall make settings of gold filigree, [14]and two chains of pure gold, twisted like cords; and you shall attach the corded chains to the settings.

[15]‡†“You shall make a breastpiece of judgment, in skilled work. In the style of the ephod you shall make it—of gold, blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and fine twined linen shall you make it. [16]†It shall be square and doubled, a span[1] its length and a span its breadth. [17]‡You shall set in it four rows of stones. A row of sardius,[1] topaz, and carbuncle shall be the first row; [18]and the second row an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond; [19]and the third row a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst; [20]and the fourth row a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. They shall be set in gold filigree. [21]There shall be twelve stones with their names according to the names of the sons of Israel.

They shall be like signets, each engraved with its name, for the twelve tribes. [22]You shall make for the breastpiece twisted chains like cords, of pure gold. [23]And you shall make for the breastpiece two rings of gold, and put the two rings on the two edges of the breastpiece. [24]And you shall put the two cords of gold in the two rings at the edges of the breastpiece. [25]The two ends of the two cords you shall attach to the two settings of filigree, and so attach it in front to the shoulder pieces of the ephod. [26]You shall make two rings of gold, and put them at the two ends of the breastpiece, on its inside edge next to the ephod. [27]And you shall make two rings of gold, and attach them in front to the lower part of the two shoulder pieces of the ephod, at its seam above the skillfully woven band of the ephod. [28]And they shall bind the breastpiece by its rings to the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, so that it may lie on the skillfully woven band of the ephod, so that the breastpiece shall not come loose from the ephod. [29]†So Aaron shall bear the names of the sons of Israel in the breastpiece of judgment on his heart, when he goes into the Holy Place, to bring them to regular remembrance before the Lord. [30]†And in the breastpiece of judgment you shall put the Urim and the Thummim, and they shall be on Aaron's heart, when he goes in before the Lord. Thus Aaron shall bear the judgment of the people of Israel on his heart before the Lord regularly.

[31]"You shall make the robe of the ephod all of blue. [32]It shall have an opening for the head in the middle of it, with a woven binding around the opening, like the opening in a garment,[2] so that it may not tear. [33]†On its hem you shall make pomegranates of blue and purple and scarlet yarns, around its hem, with bells of gold between them, [34]a golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, around the hem of the robe.
[35]†And it shall be on Aaron when he ministers, and its sound shall be heard when he goes into the Holy Place before the Lord, and when he comes out, so that he does not die.

[36]† "You shall make a plate of pure gold and engrave on it, like the engraving of a signet, 'Holy to the Lord.' [37]†And you shall fasten it on the turban by a cord of blue. It shall be on the front of the turban. [38]†It shall be on Aaron's forehead, and Aaron shall bear any guilt from the holy things that the people of Israel consecrate as their holy gifts. It shall regularly be on his forehead, that they may be accepted before the LORD.

39 † "You shall weave the coat in checker work of fine linen, and you shall make a turban of fine linen, and you shall make a sash embroidered with needlework.

40 † "For Aaron's sons you shall make coats and sashes and caps. You shall make them for glory and beauty. 41 † And you shall put them on Aaron your brother, and on his sons with him, and shall anoint them and ordain them and consecrate them, that they may serve me as priests. 42 † You shall make for them linen undergarments to cover their naked flesh. They shall reach from the hips to the thighs; 43 † and they shall be on Aaron and on his sons when they go into the tent of meeting or when they come near the altar to minister in the Holy Place, lest they bear guilt and die. This shall be a statute forever for him and for his offspring after him.

Consecration of the Priests

29 [1]†“Now this is what you shall do to them to consecrate them, that they may serve me as priests. Take one bull of the herd and two rams without blemish, [2]†and unleavened bread, unleavened cakes mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers smeared with oil. You shall make them of fine wheat flour. [3]†You shall put them in one basket and bring them in the basket, and bring the bull and the two rams. [4]‡†You shall bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the tent of meeting and wash them with water. [5]Then you shall take the garments, and put on Aaron the coat and the robe of the ephod, and the ephod, and the breastpiece, and gird him with the skillfully woven band of the ephod. [6]And you shall set the turban on his head and put the holy crown on the turban. [7]You shall take the anointing oil and pour it on his head and anoint him. [8]Then you shall bring his sons and put coats on them, [9]‡†and you shall gird Aaron and his sons with sashes and bind caps on them. And the priesthood shall be theirs by a statute forever. Thus you shall ordain Aaron and his sons.

[10]†“Then you shall bring the bull before the tent of meeting. Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands on the head of the bull. [11]Then you shall kill the bull before the Lord at the entrance of the tent of meeting, [12]†and shall take part of the blood of the bull and put it on the horns of the altar with your finger, and the rest of[1] the blood you shall pour out at the base of the altar. [13]†And you shall take all the fat that covers the entrails, and the long lobe of the liver, and the two kidneys with the fat that is on them, and burn them on the altar. [14]†But the flesh of the bull and its skin and its dung you shall burn with fire outside the camp; it is a sin offering.

[15]“Then you shall take one of the rams, and Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands on the head of the ram, [16]†and you shall kill the ram and shall take its blood and throw it against the sides of the altar. [17]Then you shall cut the ram into pieces, and wash its entrails and its legs, and put them with its pieces and its head, [18]†and burn the whole ram on the altar. It is a burnt offering to the Lord. It is a pleasing aroma, a food offering[2] to the Lord.

19 “You shall take the other ram, and Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands on the head of the ram, 20 and you shall kill the ram and take part of its blood and put it on the tip of the right ear of Aaron and on the tips of the right ears of his sons, and on the thumbs of their right hands and on the great toes of their right feet, and throw the rest of the blood against the sides of the altar. 21 Then you shall take part of the blood that is on the altar, and of the anointing oil, and sprinkle it on Aaron and his garments, and on his sons and his sons’ garments with him. He and his garments shall be holy, and his sons and his sons’ garments with him.
22 “You shall also take the fat from the ram and the fat tail and the fat that covers the entrails, and the long lobe of the liver and the two kidneys with the fat that is on them, and the right thigh (for it is a ram of ordination), 23 and one loaf of bread and one cake of bread made with oil, and one wafer out of the basket of unleavened bread that is before the Lord. 24 You shall put all these on the palms of Aaron and on the palms of his sons, and wave them for a wave offering before the Lord. 25 Then you shall take them from their hands and burn them on the altar on top of the burnt offering, as a pleasing aroma before the Lord. It is a food offering to the Lord.
26 “You shall take the breast of the ram of Aaron’s ordination and wave it for a wave offering before the Lord, and it shall be your portion. 27 And you shall consecrate the breast of the wave offering that is waved and the thigh of the priests’ portion that is contributed from the ram of ordination, from what was Aaron’s and his sons’. 28 It shall be for Aaron and his sons as a perpetual due from the people of Israel, for it is a contribution. It shall be a contribution from the people of Israel from their peace offerings, their contribution to the Lord.
29 “The holy garments of Aaron shall be for his sons after him; they shall be anointed in them and ordained in them. 30 The son who succeeds him as priest, who comes into the tent of meeting to minister in the Holy Place, shall wear them seven days.
31 “You shall take the ram of ordination and boil its flesh in a holy place.
32 And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram and the bread that is in the basket in the entrance of the tent of meeting. 33 They shall eat those things with which atonement was made at their ordination and consecration, but an outsider shall not eat of them, because they are holy. 34 And if any of the flesh for the ordination or of the bread remain until the morning, then you shall burn the remainder with fire. It shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

35 “Thus you shall do to Aaron and to his sons, according to all that I have commanded you. Through seven days shall you ordain them, 36 † and every day you shall offer a bull as a sin offering for atonement. Also you shall purify the altar, when you make atonement for it, and shall anoint it to consecrate it. 37 † Seven days you shall make atonement for the altar and consecrate it, and the altar shall be most holy. Whatever touches the altar shall become holy.

38 † “Now this is what you shall offer on the altar: two lambs a year old day by day regularly. 39 One lamb you shall offer in the morning, and the other lamb you shall offer at twilight. 40 † And with the first lamb a tenth seah[1] of fine flour mingled with a fourth of a hin[2] of beaten oil, and a fourth of a hin of wine for a drink offering. 41 † The other lamb you shall offer at twilight, and shall offer with it a grain offering and its drink offering, as in the morning, for a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the Lord. 42 † It shall be a regular burnt offering throughout your generations at the entrance of the tent of meeting before the Lord, where I will meet with you, to speak to you there. 43 † There I will meet with the people of Israel, and it shall be sanctified by my glory. 44 † I will consecrate the tent of meeting and the altar. Aaron also and his sons I will consecrate to serve me as priests. 45 † I will dwell among the people of Israel and will be their God. 46 † And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt that I might dwell among them. I am the Lord their God.

The Altar of Incense

30 [1]‡‡“You shall make an altar on which to burn incense; you shall make it of acacia wood. [2]† A cubit[1] shall be its length, and a cubit its breadth. It shall be square, and two cubits shall be its height. Its horns shall be of one piece with it. [3]You shall overlay it with pure gold, its top and around its sides and its horns. And you shall make a molding of gold around it. [4]And you shall make two golden rings for it. Under its molding on two opposite sides of it you shall make them, and they shall be holders for poles with which to carry it. [5]You shall make the poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold. [6]†And you shall put it in front of the veil that is above the ark of the testimony, in front of the mercy seat that is above the testimony, where I will meet with you. [7]†And Aaron shall burn fragrant incense on it. Every morning when he dresses the lamps he shall burn it, [8]†and when Aaron sets up the lamps at twilight, he shall burn it, a regular incense offering before the Lord throughout your generations. [9]†You shall not offer unauthorized incense on it, or a burnt offering, or a grain offering, and you shall not pour a drink offering on it. [10]† Aaron shall make atonement on its horns once a year. With the blood of the sin offering of atonement he shall make atonement for it once in the year throughout your generations. It is most holy to the Lord.”

The Census Tax

11 ‡‡‡The Lord said to Moses, 12 †“When you take the census of the people of Israel, then each shall give a ransom for his life to the Lord when you number them, that there be no plague among them when you number them.
13 †Each one who is numbered in the census shall give this: half a shekel[2] according to the shekel of the sanctuary (the shekel is twenty gerahs),[3] half a shekel as an offering to the Lord. 14 †Everyone who is numbered in the census, from twenty years old and upward, shall give the Lord’s offering.
15 ‡‡The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less, than the half shekel, when you give the Lord’s offering to make atonement for your lives. 16 †You shall take the atonement money from the people of Israel and shall give it for the service of the tent of meeting, that it may bring the people of Israel to remembrance before the Lord, so as to make atonement for your lives.”

The Bronze Basin

17 ✝✝✝ The Lord said to Moses, 18 “You shall also make a basin of bronze, with its stand of bronze, for washing. You shall put it between the tent of meeting and the altar, and you shall put water in it, 19 ✝ with which Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet. 20 ✝ When they go into the tent of meeting, or when they come near the altar to minister, to burn a food offering[1] to the Lord, they shall wash with water, so that they may not die.
21 ✝ They shall wash their hands and their feet, so that they may not die. It shall be a statute forever to them, even to him and to his offspring throughout their generations.”

The Anointing Oil and Incense

22 ‡ ‡ ‡ The Lord said to Moses, 23 ‡ “Take the finest spices: of liquid myrrh 500 shekels, and of sweet-smelling cinnamon half as much, that is, 250, and 250 of aromatic cane, 24 ‡ and 500 of cassia, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, and a hin[2] of olive oil. 25 ‡ And you shall make of these a sacred anointing oil blended as by the perfumer; it shall be a holy anointing oil.
26 ‡ With it you shall anoint the tent of meeting and the ark of the testimony, 27 ‡ and the table and all its utensils, and the lampstand and its utensils, and the altar of incense, 28 and the altar of burnt offering with all its utensils and the basin and its stand. 29 ‡ You shall consecrate them, that they may be most holy. Whatever touches them will become holy. 30 You shall anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may serve me as priests. 31 And you shall say to the people of Israel, ‘This shall be my holy anointing oil throughout your generations. 32 It shall not be poured on the body of an ordinary person, and you shall make no other like it in composition. It is holy, and it shall be holy to you. 33 ‡ Whoever compounds any like it or whoever puts any of it on an outsider shall be cut off from his people.’”

34 ‡ ‡ The Lord said to Moses, “Take sweet spices, stacte, and onycha, and galbanum, sweet spices with pure frankincense (of each shall there be an equal part), 35 and make an incense blended as by the perfumer, seasoned with salt, pure and holy. 36 ‡ You shall beat some of it very small, and put part of it before the testimony in the tent of meeting where I shall meet with you. It shall be most holy for you. 37 ‡ And the incense that you shall make according to its composition, you shall not make for yourselves. It shall be for you holy to the Lord. 38 Whoever makes any like it to use as perfume shall be cut off from his people.”

Oholiab and Bezalel

31 [1]The Lord said to Moses, [2]“See, I have called by name Bezalel the son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, [3]and I have filled him with the Spirit of God, with ability and intelligence, with knowledge and all craftsmanship, [4] to devise artistic designs, to work in gold, silver, and bronze, [5]in cutting stones for setting, and in carving wood, to work in every craft. [6] And behold, I have appointed with him Oholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan. And I have given to all able men ability, that they may make all that I have commanded you: [7]the tent of meeting, and the ark of the testimony, and the mercy seat that is on it, and all the furnishings of the tent, [8]the table and its utensils, and the pure lampstand with all its utensils, and the altar of incense, [9]and the altar of burnt offering with all its utensils, and the basin and its stand, [10]and the finely worked garments,[1] the holy garments for Aaron the priest and the garments of his sons, for their service as priests, [11]and the anointing oil and the fragrant incense for the Holy Place. According to all that I have commanded you, they shall do.”

The Sabbath

12 ‡ † And the Lord said to Moses, 13 † “You are to speak to the people of Israel and say, ‘Above all you shall keep my Sabbaths, for this is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that you may know that I, the Lord, sanctify you. 14 † You shall keep the Sabbath, because it is holy for you. Everyone who profanes it shall be put to death. Whoever does any work on it, that soul shall be cut off from among his people. 15 Six days shall work be done, but the seventh day is a Sabbath of solemn rest, holy to the Lord. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath day shall be put to death.
16 † Therefore the people of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, observing the Sabbath throughout their generations, as a covenant forever. 17 † It is a sign forever between me and the people of Israel that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed.’” 18 † And he gave to Moses, when he had finished speaking with him on Mount Sinai, the two tablets of the testimony, tablets of stone, written with the finger of God.

The Golden Calf

32 [1]†When the people saw that Moses delayed to come down from the mountain, the people gathered themselves together to Aaron and said to him, “Up, make us gods who shall go before us. As for this Moses, the man who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.” [2]†So Aaron said to them, “Take off the rings of gold that are in the ears of your wives, your sons, and your daughters, and bring them to me.” [3]So all the people took off the rings of gold that were in their ears and brought them to Aaron. [4]†And he received the gold from their hand and fashioned it with a graving tool and made a golden[1] calf. And they said, “These are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt!” [5]†When Aaron saw this, he built an altar before it. And Aaron made proclamation and said, “Tomorrow shall be a feast to the Lord.” [6]†And they rose up early the next day and offered burnt offerings and brought peace offerings. And the people sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play.

[7]†And the Lord said to Moses, “Go down, for your people, whom you brought up out of the land of Egypt, have corrupted themselves. [8]They have turned aside quickly out of the way that I commanded them. They have made for themselves a golden calf and have worshiped it and sacrificed to it and said, These are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt!’” [9]†And the Lord said to Moses, “I have seen this people, and behold, it is a stiff-necked people. [10]†Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may burn hot against them and I may consume them, in order that I may make a great nation of you.”

[11]†But Moses implored the Lord his God and said, “O Lord, why does your wrath burn hot against your people, whom you have brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and with a mighty hand? [12]†Why should the Egyptians say, ‘With evil intent did he bring them out, to kill them in the mountains and to consume them from the face of the earth’? Turn from your burning anger and relent from this disaster against your people.
[13]†Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, your servants, to whom you swore by your own self, and said to them, ‘I will multiply your offspring as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have promised I will give to your offspring, and they shall inherit it forever.’” 14 † And the Lord relented from the disaster that he had spoken of bringing on his people.

15 † Then Moses turned and went down from the mountain with the two tablets of the testimony in his hand, tablets that were written on both sides;
on the front and on the back they were written. 16 † The tablets were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, engraved on the tablets.
17 † When Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said to Moses, “There is a noise of war in the camp.” 18 † But he said, “It is not the sound of shouting for victory, or the sound of the cry of defeat, but the sound of singing that I hear.” 19 † And as soon as he came near the camp and saw the calf and the dancing, Moses’ anger burned hot, and he threw the tablets out of his hands and broke them at the foot of the mountain. 20 † He took the calf that they had made and burned it with fire and ground it to powder and scattered it on the water and made the people of Israel drink it.

21 And Moses said to Aaron, “What did this people do to you that you have brought such a great sin upon them?” 22 † And Aaron said, “Let not the anger of my lord burn hot. You know the people, that they are set on evil.
23 For they said to me, ‘Make us gods who shall go before us. As for this Moses, the man who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.’ 24 † So I said to them, ‘Let any who have gold take it off.’ So they gave it to me, and I threw it into the fire, and out came this calf.”

25 † And when Moses saw that the people had broken loose (for Aaron had let them break loose, to the derision of their enemies), 26 † then Moses stood in the gate of the camp and said, “Who is on the Lord’s side? Come to me.”
And all the sons of Levi gathered around him. 27 † And he said to them, “Thus says the Lord God of Israel, ‘Put your sword on your side each of you, and go to and fro from gate to gate throughout the camp, and each of you kill his brother and his companion and his neighbor.’” 28 † And the sons of Levi did according to the word of Moses. And that day about three thousand men of the people fell. 29 † And Moses said, “Today you have been ordained for the service of the Lord, each one at the cost of his son and of his brother, so that he might bestow a blessing upon you this day.”

30 † The next day Moses said to the people, “You have sinned a great sin.
And now I will go up to the Lord; perhaps I can make atonement for your sin.” 31 † So Moses returned to the Lord and said, “Alas, this people has sinned a great sin. They have made for themselves gods of gold. 32 † But now, if you will forgive their sin—but if not, please blot me out of your book that you have written.” 33 † But the Lord said to Moses, “Whoever has sinned against me, I will blot out of my book. 34 † But now go, lead the people to the place about which I have spoken to you; behold, my angel shall go before you. Nevertheless, in the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them.”

35 † Then the Lord sent a plague on the people, because they made the calf, the one that Aaron made.

The Command to Leave Sinai

33 [1]†The Lord said to Moses, “Depart; go up from here, you and the people whom you have brought up out of the land of Egypt, to the land of which I swore to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying, ‘To your offspring I will give it.’ [2]†I will send an angel before you, and I will drive out the Canaanites, the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. [3]†Go up to a land flowing with milk and honey; but I will not go up among you, lest I consume you on the way, for you are a stiff-necked people.”

[4]†When the people heard this disastrous word, they mourned, and no one put on his ornaments. [5]For the Lord had said to Moses, “Say to the people of Israel, ‘You are a stiff-necked people; if for a single moment I should go up among you, I would consume you. So now take off your ornaments, that I may know what to do with you.’” [6]†Therefore the people of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments, from Mount Horeb onward.

The Tent of Meeting

7 ‡†Now Moses used to take the tent and pitch it outside the camp, far off from the camp, and he called it the tent of meeting. And everyone who sought the Lord would go out to the tent of meeting, which was outside the camp. 8 †Whenever Moses went out to the tent, all the people would rise up, and each would stand at his tent door, and watch Moses until he had gone into the tent. 9 † When Moses entered the tent, the pillar of cloud would descend and stand at the entrance of the tent, and the Lord [1] would speak with Moses. 10 †And when all the people saw the pillar of cloud standing at the entrance of the tent, all the people would rise up and worship, each at his tent door. 11 †Thus the Lord used to speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his friend. When Moses turned again into the camp, his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, would not depart from the tent.

Moses' Intercession

12 ‡‡‡Moses said to the Lord, "See, you say to me, 'Bring up this people,' but you have not let me know whom you will send with me. Yet you have said, 'I know you by name, and you have also found favor in my sight.' 13 †Now therefore, if I have found favor in your sight, please show me now your ways, that I may know you in order to find favor in your sight.
Consider too that this nation is your people." 14 †And he said, "My presence will go with you, and I will give you rest." 15 And he said to him, "If your presence will not go with me, do not bring us up from here. 16 †For how shall it be known that I have found favor in your sight, I and your people? Is it not in your going with us, so that we are distinct, I and your people, from every other people on the face of the earth?"

17 †And the Lord said to Moses, "This very thing that you have spoken I will do, for you have found favor in my sight, and I know you by name." 18 †Moses said, "Please show me your glory." 19 ‡†And he said, "I will make all my goodness pass before you and will proclaim before you my name
'The Lord.' And I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will show mercy on whom I will show mercy. 20 †But," he said, "you cannot see my face, for man shall not see me and live." 21 †And the Lord said, "Behold, there is a place by me where you shall stand on the rock, 22 †and while my glory passes by I will put you in a cleft of the rock, and I will cover you with my hand until I have passed by. 23 †Then I will take away my hand, and you shall see my back, but my face shall not be seen."

Moses Makes New Tablets

34 [1]The Lord said to Moses, “Cut for yourself two tablets of stone like the first, and I will write on the tablets the words that were on the first tablets, which you broke. [2]Be ready by the morning, and come up in the morning to Mount Sinai, and present yourself there to me on the top of the mountain. [3]No one shall come up with you, and let no one be seen throughout all the mountain. Let no flocks or herds graze opposite that mountain.” [4]So Moses cut two tablets of stone like the first. And he rose early in the morning and went up on Mount Sinai, as the Lord had commanded him, and took in his hand two tablets of stone. [5]The Lord descended in the cloud and stood with him there, and proclaimed the name of the Lord. [6]The Lord passed before him and proclaimed, “The Lord, the Lord, a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness, [7]keeping steadfast love for thousands,[1] forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, but who will by no means clear the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children and the children’s children, to the third and the fourth generation.” [8]And Moses quickly bowed his head toward the earth and worshiped. [9]And he said, If now I have found favor in your sight, O Lord, please let the Lord go in the midst of us, for it is a stiff-necked people, and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for your inheritance.”

The Covenant Renewed

10 ‡ ‡ † And he said, “Behold, I am making a covenant. Before all your people I will do marvels, such as have not been created in all the earth or in any nation. And all the people among whom you are shall see the work of the Lord, for it is an awesome thing that I will do with you.
11 † “Observe what I command you this day. Behold, I will drive out before you the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. 12 † Take care, lest you make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land to which you go, lest it become a snare in your midst. 13 † You shall tear down their altars and break their pillars and cut down their Asherim 14 † (for you shall worship no other god, for the Lord, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God), 15 † lest you make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and when they whore after their gods and sacrifice to their gods and you are invited, you eat of his sacrifice, 16 † and you take of their daughters for your sons, and their daughters whore after their gods and make your sons whore after their gods.
17 † “You shall not make for yourself any gods of cast metal.
18 † “You shall keep the Feast of Unleavened Bread. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, as I commanded you, at the time appointed in the month Abib, for in the month Abib you came out from Egypt. 19 ‡ All that open the womb are mine, all your male[1] livestock, the firstborn of cow and sheep. 20 The firstborn of a donkey you shall redeem with a lamb, or if you will not redeem it you shall break its neck. All the firstborn of your sons you shall redeem. And none shall appear before me empty-handed.
21 † “Six days you shall work, but on the seventh day you shall rest. In plowing time and in harvest you shall rest. 22 † You shall observe the Feast of Weeks, the firstfruits of wheat harvest, and the Feast of Ingathering at the year’s end. 23 † Three times in the year shall all your males appear before the Lord God, the God of Israel. 24 † For I will cast out nations before you and enlarge your borders; no one shall covet your land, when you go up to appear before the Lord your God three times in the year.
25 † “You shall not offer the blood of my sacrifice with anything leavened, or let the sacrifice of the Feast of the Passover remain until the morning.

[26] † The best of the firstfruits of your ground you shall bring to the house of the Lord your God. You shall not boil a young goat in its mother's milk."

[27] † And the Lord said to Moses, "Write these words, for in accordance with these words I have made a covenant with you and with Israel." [28] † So he was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights. He neither ate bread nor drank water. And he wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the Ten Commandments.[2]

The Shining Face of Moses

29 ‡ † When Moses came down from Mount Sinai, with the two tablets of the testimony in his hand as he came down from the mountain, Moses did not know that the skin of his face shone because he had been talking with God.[3] 30 † Aaron and all the people of Israel saw Moses, and behold, the skin of his face shone, and they were afraid to come near him. 31 † But Moses called to them, and Aaron and all the leaders of the congregation returned to him, and Moses talked with them. 32 † Afterward all the people of Israel came near, and he commanded them all that the Lord had spoken with him in Mount Sinai. 33 † And when Moses had finished speaking with them, he put a veil over his face.

34 † Whenever Moses went in before the Lord to speak with him, he would remove the veil, until he came out. And when he came out and told the people of Israel what he was commanded, 35 † the people of Israel would see the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face was shining. And Moses would put the veil over his face again, until he went in to speak with him.

Sabbath Regulations

35 [1] †Moses assembled all the congregation of the people of Israel and said to them, “These are the things that the Lord has commanded you to do. [2] †Six days work shall be done, but on the seventh day you shall have a Sabbath of solemn rest, holy to the Lord. Whoever does any work on it shall be put to death. [3] †You shall kindle no fire in all your dwelling places on the Sabbath day.”

Contributions for the Tabernacle

4 ‡Moses said to all the congregation of the people of Israel, “This is the thing that the Lord has commanded. 5 †Take from among you a contribution to the Lord. Whoever is of a generous heart, let him bring the Lord’s contribution: gold, silver, and bronze; 6 blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen; goats’ hair, 7 tanned rams’ skins, and goatskins;[1] acacia wood, 8 oil for the light, spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense, 9 and onyx stones and stones for setting, for the ephod and for the breastpiece.

10 †“Let every skillful craftsman among you come and make all that the Lord has commanded: 11 †the tabernacle, its tent and its covering, its hooks and its frames, its bars, its pillars, and its bases; 12 the ark with its poles, the mercy seat, and the veil of the screen; 13 the table with its poles and all its utensils, and the bread of the Presence; 14 the lampstand also for the light, with its utensils and its lamps, and the oil for the light; 15 and the altar of incense, with its poles, and the anointing oil and the fragrant incense, and the screen for the door, at the door of the tabernacle; 16 the altar of burnt offering, with its grating of bronze, its poles, and all its utensils, the basin and its stand; 17 the hangings of the court, its pillars and its bases, and the screen for the gate of the court; 18 the pegs of the tabernacle and the pegs of the court, and their cords; 19 †the finely worked garments for ministering[2] in the Holy Place, the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, for their service as priests.”

20 Then all the congregation of the people of Israel departed from the presence of Moses. 21 † And they came, everyone whose heart stirred him, and everyone whose spirit moved him, and brought the Lord’s contribution to be used for the tent of meeting, and for all its service, and for the holy garments. 22 †So they came, both men and women. All who were of a willing heart brought brooches and earrings and signet rings and armlets, all sorts of gold objects, every man dedicating an offering of gold to the Lord. 23 And every one who possessed blue or purple or scarlet yarns or fine linen or goats’ hair or tanned rams’ skins or goatskins brought them. 24 †Everyone who could make a contribution of silver or bronze brought it as the LORD's contribution. And every one who possessed acacia wood of any use in the work brought it. [25]†And every skillful woman spun with her hands, and they all brought what they had spun in blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen. [26]All the women whose hearts stirred them to use their skill spun the goats' hair. [27]†And the leaders brought onyx stones and stones to be set, for the ephod and for the breastpiece, [28]and spices and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the fragrant incense. [29]†All the men and women, the people of Israel, whose heart moved them to bring anything for the work that the LORD had commanded by Moses to be done brought it as a freewill offering to the LORD.

Construction of the Tabernacle

30 †Then Moses said to the people of Israel, “See, the Lord has called by name Bezalel the son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah; 31 †and he has filled him with the Spirit of God, with skill, with intelligence, with knowledge, and with all craftsmanship, 32 to devise artistic designs, to work in gold and silver and bronze, 33 in cutting stones for setting, and in carving wood, for work in every skilled craft. 34 †And he has inspired him to teach, both him and Oholiab the son of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan. 35 †He has filled them with skill to do every sort of work done by an engraver or by a designer or by an embroiderer in blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen, or by a weaver—by any sort of workman or skilled designer.

36 1 †Bezalel and Oholiab and every craftsman in whom the Lord has put skill and intelligence to know how to do any work in the construction of the sanctuary shall work in accordance with all that the Lord has commanded.”

2 †And Moses called Bezalel and Oholiab and every craftsman in whose mind the Lord had put skill, everyone whose heart stirred him up to come to do the work. 3 And they received from Moses all the contribution that the people of Israel had brought for doing the work on the sanctuary. They still kept bringing him freewill offerings every morning, 4 † so that all the craftsmen who were doing every sort of task on the sanctuary came, each from the task that he was doing, 5 †and said to Moses, “The people bring much more than enough for doing the work that the Lord has commanded us to do.” 6 So Moses gave command, and word was proclaimed throughout the camp, “Let no man or woman do anything more for the contribution for the sanctuary.” So the people were restrained from bringing, 7 † for the material they had was sufficient to do all the work, and more.

8 †And all the craftsmen among the workmen made the tabernacle with ten curtains. They were made of fine twined linen and blue and purple and scarlet yarns, with cherubim skillfully worked. 9 The length of each curtain was twenty-eight cubits,[1] and the breadth of each curtain four cubits. All the curtains were the same size.

[10]†He coupled five curtains to one another, and the other five curtains he coupled to one another. [11]He made loops of blue on the edge of the outermost curtain of the first set. Likewise he made them on the edge of the outermost curtain of the second set. [12]He made fifty loops on the one curtain, and he made fifty loops on the edge of the curtain that was in the second set. The loops were opposite one another. [13]And he made fifty clasps of gold, and coupled the curtains one to the other with clasps. So the tabernacle was a single whole.

[14]He also made curtains of goats' hair for a tent over the tabernacle. He made eleven curtains. [15]The length of each curtain was thirty cubits, and the breadth of each curtain four cubits. The eleven curtains were the same size. [16]He coupled five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves. [17]And he made fifty loops on the edge of the outermost curtain of the one set, and fifty loops on the edge of the other connecting curtain. [18]And he made fifty clasps of bronze to couple the tent together that it might be a single whole. [19]And he made for the tent a covering of tanned rams' skins and goatskins.

[20]Then he made the upright frames for the tabernacle of acacia wood. [21]Ten cubits was the length of a frame, and a cubit and a half the breadth of each frame. [22]Each frame had two tenons for fitting together. He did this for all the frames of the tabernacle. [23]The frames for the tabernacle he made thus: twenty frames for the south side. [24]And he made forty bases of silver under the twenty frames, two bases under one frame for its two tenons, and two bases under the next frame for its two tenons. [25]For the second side of the tabernacle, on the north side, he made twenty frames [26]and their forty bases of silver, two bases under one frame and two bases under the next frame. [27]For the rear of the tabernacle westward he made six frames. [28]He made two frames for corners of the tabernacle in the rear. [29]And they were separate beneath but joined at the top, at the first ring. He made two of them this way for the two corners. [30]There were eight frames with their bases of silver: sixteen bases, under every frame two bases.

[31]He made bars of acacia wood, five for the frames of the one side of the tabernacle, [32]and five bars for the frames of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the frames of the tabernacle at the rear westward. [33]And he made the middle bar to run from end to end halfway up the frames. [34]And he overlaid the frames with gold, and made their rings of gold for holders for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

[35]He made the veil of blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen; with cherubim skillfully worked into it he made it. [36]And for it he made four pillars of acacia and overlaid them with gold. Their hooks were of gold, and he cast for them four bases of silver. [37]He also made a screen for the entrance of the tent, of blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen, embroidered with needlework, [38]and its five pillars with their hooks. He overlaid their capitals, and their fillets were of gold, but their five bases were of bronze.

Making the Ark

37 [1]‡‡Bezalel made the ark of acacia wood. Two cubits[1] and a half was its length, a cubit and a half its breadth, and a cubit and a half its height. [2]†And he overlaid it with pure gold inside and outside, and made a molding of gold around it. [3]And he cast for it four rings of gold for its four feet, two rings on its one side and two rings on its other side. [4]‡And he made poles of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold [5]and put the poles into the rings on the sides of the ark to carry the ark. [6]And he made a mercy seat of pure gold. Two cubits and a half was its length, and a cubit and a half its breadth. [7]†And he made two cherubim of gold. He made them of hammered work on the two ends of the mercy seat, [8]one cherub on the one end, and one cherub on the other end. Of one piece with the mercy seat he made the cherubim on its two ends. [9]The cherubim spread out their wings above, overshadowing the mercy seat with their wings, with their faces one to another; toward the mercy seat were the faces of the cherubim.

Making the Table

10 He also made the table of acacia wood. Two cubits was its length, a cubit its breadth, and a cubit and a half its height. 11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made a molding of gold around it. 12 And he made a rim around it a handbreadth[2] wide, and made a molding of gold around the rim.
13 He cast for it four rings of gold and fastened the rings to the four corners at its four legs. 14 Close to the frame were the rings, as holders for the poles to carry the table. 15 He made the poles of acacia wood to carry the table, and overlaid them with gold. 16 And he made the vessels of pure gold that were to be on the table, its plates and dishes for incense, and its bowls and flagons with which to pour drink offerings.

Making the Lampstand

17 ††He also made the lampstand of pure gold. He made the lampstand of hammered work. Its base, its stem, its cups, its calyxes, and its flowers were of one piece with it. 18 And there were six branches going out of its sides, three branches of the lampstand out of one side of it and three branches of the lampstand out of the other side of it; 19 three cups made like almond blossoms, each with calyx and flower, on one branch, and three cups made like almond blossoms, each with calyx and flower, on the other branch—so for the six branches going out of the lampstand. 20 †And on the lampstand itself were four cups made like almond blossoms, with their calyxes and flowers, 21 and a calyx of one piece with it under each pair of the six branches going out of it. 22 Their calyxes and their branches were of one piece with it. The whole of it was a single piece of hammered work of pure gold. 23 And he made its seven lamps and its tongs and its trays of pure gold.
24 †He made it and all its utensils out of a talent[1] of pure gold.

Making the Altar of Incense

25 He made the altar of incense of acacia wood. Its length was a cubit, and its breadth was a cubit. It was square, and two cubits was its height. Its horns were of one piece with it. 26 He overlaid it with pure gold, its top and around its sides and its horns. And he made a molding of gold around it, 27 and made two rings of gold on it under its molding, on two opposite sides of it, as holders for the poles with which to carry it. 28 And he made the poles of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold.

29 He made the holy anointing oil also, and the pure fragrant incense, blended as by the perfumer.

Making the Altar of Burnt Offering

38 [1] He made the altar of burnt offering of acacia wood. Five cubits[2] was its length, and five cubits its breadth. It was square, and three cubits was its height. [2]He made horns for it on its four corners. Its horns were of one piece with it, and he overlaid it with bronze. [3]And he made all the utensils of the altar, the pots, the shovels, the basins, the forks, and the fire pans. He made all its utensils of bronze. [4]And he made for the altar a grating, a network of bronze, under its ledge, extending halfway down. [5]He cast four rings on the four corners of the bronze grating as holders for the poles. [6]He made the poles of acacia wood and overlaid them with bronze. [7]And he put the poles through the rings on the sides of the altar to carry it with them. He made it hollow, with boards.

Making the Bronze Basin

8 ††He made the basin of bronze and its stand of bronze, from the mirrors of the ministering women who ministered in the entrance of the tent of meeting.

Making the Court

[9] And he made the court. For the south side the hangings of the court were of fine twined linen, a hundred cubits; [10] their twenty pillars and their twenty bases were of bronze, but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver. [11] And for the north side there were hangings of a hundred cubits, their twenty pillars, their twenty bases were of bronze, but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver. [12] And for the west side were hangings of fifty cubits, their ten pillars, and their ten bases; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver. [13] And for the front to the east, fifty cubits. [14] The hangings for one side of the gate were fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and three bases. [15] And so for the other side. On both sides of the gate of the court were hangings of fifteen cubits, with their three pillars and their three bases. [16] All the hangings around the court were of fine twined linen. [17] And the bases for the pillars were of bronze, but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver. The overlaying of their capitals was also of silver, and all the pillars of the court were filleted with silver. [18] And the screen for the gate of the court was embroidered with needlework in blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen. It was twenty cubits long and five cubits high in its breadth, corresponding to the hangings of the court. [19] And their pillars were four in number. Their four bases were of bronze, their hooks of silver, and the overlaying of their capitals and their fillets of silver. [20] And all the pegs for the tabernacle and for the court all around were of bronze.

Materials for the Tabernacle

21 ‡ † These are the records of the tabernacle, the tabernacle of the testimony, as they were recorded at the commandment of Moses, the responsibility of the Levites under the direction of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest. 22 †Bezalel the son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the LORD commanded Moses; 23 †and with him was Oholiab the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver and designer and embroiderer in blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen.
24 ‡All the gold that was used for the work, in all the construction of the sanctuary, the gold from the offering, was twenty-nine talents and 730 shekels,[1] by the shekel of the sanctuary. 25 The silver from those of the congregation who were recorded was a hundred talents and 1,775 shekels, by the shekel of the sanctuary: 26 †a beka[2] a head (that is, half a shekel, by the shekel of the sanctuary), for everyone who was listed in the records, from twenty years old and upward, for 603,550 men. 27 †The hundred talents of silver were for casting the bases of the sanctuary and the bases of the veil; a hundred bases for the hundred talents, a talent a base. 28 And of the 1,775 shekels he made hooks for the pillars and overlaid their capitals and made fillets for them. 29 The bronze that was offered was seventy talents and 2,400 shekels; 30 with it he made the bases for the entrance of the tent of meeting, the bronze altar and the bronze grating for it and all the utensils of the altar, 31 the bases around the court, and the bases of the gate of the court, all the pegs of the tabernacle, and all the pegs around the court.

Making the Priestly Garments

39 [1]From the blue and purple and scarlet yarns they made finely woven garments,[3] for ministering in the Holy Place. They made the holy garments for Aaron, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[2]He made the ephod of gold, blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and fine twined linen. [3]†And they hammered out gold leaf, and he cut it into threads to work into the blue and purple and the scarlet yarns, and into the fine twined linen, in skilled design. [4]They made for the ephod attaching shoulder pieces, joined to it at its two edges. [5]And the skillfully woven band on it was of one piece with it and made like it, of gold, blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and fine twined linen, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[6]They made the onyx stones, enclosed in settings of gold filigree, and engraved like the engravings of a signet, according to the names of the sons of Israel. [7]And he set them on the shoulder pieces of the ephod to be stones of remembrance for the sons of Israel, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

[8]He made the breastpiece, in skilled work, in the style of the ephod, of gold, blue and purple and scarlet yarns, and fine twined linen. [9]It was square. They made the breastpiece doubled, a span[4] its length and a span its breadth when doubled. [10]And they set in it four rows of stones. A row of sardius, topaz, and carbuncle was the first row; [11]and the second row, an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond; [12]and the third row, a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst; [13]and the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. They were enclosed in settings of gold filigree. [14]There were twelve stones with their names according to the names of the sons of Israel. They were like signets, each engraved with its name, for the twelve tribes. [15]And they made on the breastpiece twisted chains like cords, of pure gold. [16]And they made two settings of gold filigree and two gold rings, and put the two rings on the two edges of the breastpiece. [17]And they put the two cords of gold in the two rings at the edges of the breastpiece. [18]They attached the two ends of the two cords to the two settings of filigree. Thus they attached it in front to the shoulder pieces of the ephod. [19]Then they made two rings of gold, and put them at the two ends of the breastpiece, on its inside edge next to the ephod. [20]And they made two rings of gold, and attached them in front to the lower part of the two shoulder pieces of the ephod, at its seam above the skillfully woven band of the ephod. [21]And they bound the breastpiece by its rings to the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, so that it should lie on the skillfully woven band of the ephod, and that the breastpiece should not come loose from the ephod, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

[22]He also made the robe of the ephod woven all of blue, [23]and the opening of the robe in it was like the opening in a garment, with a binding around the opening, so that it might not tear. [24]On the hem of the robe they made pomegranates of blue and purple and scarlet yarns and fine twined linen. [25]They also made bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates all around the hem of the robe, between the pomegranates— [26]a bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate around the hem of the robe for ministering, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

[27]They also made the coats, woven of fine linen, for Aaron and his sons, [28]and the turban of fine linen, and the caps of fine linen, and the linen undergarments of fine twined linen, [29]and the sash of fine twined linen and of blue and purple and scarlet yarns, embroidered with needlework, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

[30]†They made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote on it an inscription, like the engraving of a signet, "Holy to the Lord." [31]And they tied to it a cord of blue to fasten it on the turban above, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

[32]†Thus all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of meeting was finished, and the people of Israel did according to all that the Lord had commanded Moses; so they did. [33]†Then they brought the tabernacle to Moses, the tent and all its utensils, its hooks, its frames, its bars, its pillars, and its bases; [34]† the covering of tanned rams' skins and goatskins, and the veil of the screen; [35]the ark of the testimony with its poles and the mercy seat; [36]the table with all its utensils, and the bread of the Presence; [37]†the lampstand of pure gold and its lamps with the lamps set and all its utensils, and the oil for the light; [38]†the golden altar, the anointing oil and the fragrant incense, and the screen for the entrance of the tent; [39]†the bronze altar, and its grating of bronze, its poles, and all its utensils; the basin and its stand; [40]the hangings of the court, its pillars, and its bases, and the screen for the gate of the court, its cords, and its pegs; and all the utensils for the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of meeting; [41]†the finely worked garments for ministering in the Holy Place, the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons for their service as priests. [42]According to all that the LORD had commanded Moses, so the people of Israel had done all the work. [43]†And Moses saw all the work, and behold, they had done it; as the LORD had commanded, so had they done it. Then Moses blessed them.

The Tabernacle Erected

40 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"On the first day of the first month you shall erect the tabernacle of the tent of meeting. [3]And you shall put in it the ark of the testimony, and you shall screen the ark with the veil. [4]And you shall bring in the table and arrange it, and you shall bring in the lampstand and set up its lamps. [5]And you shall put the golden altar for incense before the ark of the testimony, and set up the screen for the door of the tabernacle. [6]You shall set the altar of burnt offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of meeting, [7]and place the basin between the tent of meeting and the altar, and put water in it. [8]And you shall set up the court all around, and hang up the screen for the gate of the court.

[9]"Then you shall take the anointing oil and anoint the tabernacle and all that is in it, and consecrate it and all its furniture, so that it may become holy. [10]You shall also anoint the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils, and consecrate the altar, so that the altar may become most holy. [11]You shall also anoint the basin and its stand, and consecrate it. [12]Then you shall bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the tent of meeting and shall wash them with water [13]and put on Aaron the holy garments. And you shall anoint him and consecrate him, that he may serve me as priest. [14]You shall bring his sons also and put coats on them, [15]and anoint them, as you anointed their father, that they may serve me as priests. And their anointing shall admit them to a perpetual priesthood throughout their generations."

[16]This Moses did; according to all that the Lord commanded him, so he did. [17]In the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, the tabernacle was erected. [18]Moses erected the tabernacle. He laid its bases, and set up its frames, and put in its poles, and raised up its pillars.
[19]And he spread the tent over the tabernacle and put the covering of the tent over it, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [20]He took the testimony and put it into the ark, and put the poles on the ark and set the mercy seat above on the ark. [21]And he brought the ark into the tabernacle and set up the veil of the screen, and screened the ark of the testimony, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [22]He put the table in the tent of meeting, on the north side of the tabernacle, outside the veil, [23] † and arranged the bread on it before the Lord, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [24] † He put the lampstand in the tent of meeting, opposite the table on the south side of the tabernacle, [25] and set up the lamps before the Lord, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [26] † He put the golden altar in the tent of meeting before the veil, [27] † and burned fragrant incense on it, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [28] He put in place the screen for the door of the tabernacle. [29] † And he set the altar of burnt offering at the entrance of the tabernacle of the tent of meeting, and offered on it the burnt offering and the grain offering, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [30] † He set the basin between the tent of meeting and the altar, and put water in it for washing, [31] with which Moses and Aaron and his sons washed their hands and their feet. [32] When they went into the tent of meeting, and when they approached the altar, they washed, as the Lord commanded Moses. [33] † And he erected the court around the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the screen of the gate of the court. So Moses finished the work.

The Glory of the Lord

34 ‡ ‡ Then the cloud covered the tent of meeting, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. 35 ‡ And Moses was not able to enter the tent of meeting because the cloud settled on it, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. 36 ‡ Throughout all their journeys, whenever the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the people of Israel would set out. 37 But if the cloud was not taken up, then they did not set out till the day that it was taken up. 38 ‡ For the cloud of the Lord was on the tabernacle by day, and fire was in it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel throughout all their journeys.

Introduction to Exodus

Reading Exodus

Thin, cool ribbons of green vegetation border heavenly blue waters. They flow together amid a vast plain of parched yellow sand and dust. From a distance, they appear like a great serpent slithering through the desert, with its tail in Lake Victoria and its head 4,160 miles away on the shore of the Great Sea (see map, p 120). If you stand at the edge of this great serpent, the green vegetation stretches unbroken to the riverbank. But in the other direction, the yellow sand stretches as far as the eye can see. The coiling track of the Nile is life and civilization. It offers an abrupt escape from the desert. But its moisture and vigor also form a trap. One escapes its coils and crosses the desert only with the greatest effort.

After 430 years of sipping from the Nile, the children of Israel forgot their homeland in Canaan to the east. The Egyptians forgot God's mercy during the administration of Joseph, who delivered them from the dryness of the desert and settled the Israelites in the Nile Delta (Gn 47:13–31; c 1876 BC). Though the Egyptians enslaved the Israelites, mistreated them, and even forced them to cast their sons into the river, the Israelites could not walk away from the Nile. The great serpent trapped them in its coils.

Exodus describes how the Lord awakened the memory of Israel, caused them to call out to Him, and sent Moses to rescue Israel from the grip of the Nile and the dryness of the desert.

As you read Exodus, keep one foot on the Nile's cool green bank and the other foot on the scalding yellow sand. Feel the Israelites' dilemma. Recognize the immense obstacles and temptations from which the Lord rescued them. And call Him your deliverer amid the obstacles and temptations of your life.

Luther on Exodus

[In Exodus] when the world was now full and sunk in blindness so that men scarcely knew any longer what sin was or where death came from, God brings Moses forward with the law and selects a special people, in order to enlighten the world again through them, and by the law to reveal sin anew. He therefore organizes this people with all kinds of laws and separates it from all other peoples. He has them build a tent, and begins a form of worship. He appoints princes and officials, and provides his people splendidly with both laws and men, to rule them both in the body before the world and in the spirit before God….

For the law has three kinds of pupils. The first are those who hear the law and despise it, and who lead an impious life without fear. To these the law does not come. They are represented by the calf worshipers in the wilderness, on whose account Moses broke the tables of the law [Exod. 32:19]. To them he did not bring the law.

The second kind are those who attempt to fulfill the law by their own power, without grace…. For the law shows that our ability counts for nothing without Christ's grace.

> The third kind of pupils are those who see Moses clearly, without a veil. These are they who understand the intention of the law and how it demands impossible things…. For if Christ's glory did not come alongside this splendor of Moses, no one could bear the brightness of the law, the terror of sin and death. These [third kind of] pupils fall away from all works and presumption and learn from the law nothing else except to recognize sin and to yearn for Christ. This is the true office of Moses and the very nature of the law. (AE 35:237, 245–46)

Challenges for Readers

Date and Authorship. The traditional date for the exodus, based on biblical genealogies, chronicles, and reports about individuals' life spans, is April (15 Nisan) 1446 BC. Critical scholars have questioned this date, arguing against the reliability of Scripture and arguing that the archaeological data supports a later conquest of the Promised Land (c 1240 BC). See pp 338–40. Regarding authorship, see pp 3–5.

The 10 Wonders. Today, people tend to think of God as a gentle grandfather or a benign spiritual force. Exodus reveals the wrath of a personal God. For example, Moses describes how the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart during the 10 plagues (4:21; 7:3) so that He, as a "man of war," might punish Pharaoh (15:3). The Lord warns that sinful children will inherit the punishment of their sinful parents (34:6–7). Such events may challenge our sense of divine justice.

Liberation Theology. Some interpreters treat Exodus politically, as a tale about liberating slaves rather than a history of redemption. Critics have questioned the dates and places described in the Book. Debate has even arisen about the numbering of the Ten Commandments. Such approaches distract us from the Book's key messages and uses. The study notes will address these challenges and direct you to fruitful interpretation that reflects Exodus's true character.

The Covenant. Though the covenant is an important element of the Book of Exodus, it is not the key element, as some theologians have proposed. The Book's heart is God's redemptive action, rescuing His people through the exodus and atoning for their sins through the sacrifices. A key verse for Exodus, indeed for all of Scripture, is Ex 34:6–7, where the Lord reveals His ways to Israel. This passage—the "Jn 3:16" of the OT—is repeated throughout Scripture. See note, Ex 34:6–7.

Laws Given through Moses. The events from Ex 12 to Nu 8 (c one-third of the Books of Moses) encompass one year's time following the exodus. Most of this section (Ex 20–Nu 8) relates the moral, ceremonial, and civil laws for the nation. The chs of Gn 1–Ex 19 and Nu 9–Dt 34 are almost entirely historical rather than legislative. The Books of Moses—called the Torah ("instruction," see "Law," p 971)—are the story of how God graciously calls, redeems, and guides His people toward nationhood.

Through the leadership of Moses and Aaron, the Lord established a well organized nation from a people who had recently been slaves and had never had a permanent homeland. The Passover is the ritual “heart” of this creation, redemption, and sanctification story.

Blessings for Readers

Exodus describes the central redemptive event of the OT. Through the blood of the Passover lambs, the Lord delivered His people from slavery. This redemption becomes the most-mentioned event of Israelite history. Through the blood of the covenant, the Lord consecrated Israel as a kingdom of priests. He directed the building of the tabernacle as a place of worship and forgiveness.

Moses and the elders of Israel also enjoyed the splendor of seeing God (24:9–11) and learning the meaning of His name, Yahweh (3:14–17). They saw that God is not only holy but also merciful and patient. He remembers His people and His promises to their forefathers for a thousand generations (34:6–7; cf Dt 7:9). As you read Exodus, look for these important themes. See that the Lord still leads His people through the prophet like Moses (Dt 18:15–18; cf Ac 3:22) and redeems you by the blood of "the Lamb of God," Jesus (Jn 1:29, 36).

Slavery in the Bible

The Scriptures do not endorse or promote the practice of people holding other human beings as personal property. The Bible typically treats slavery in a negative light. “Freedom” through God’s saving grace is a dominant theme in both testaments.

Slavery in the Old Testament

Held captive for 430 years under the hand of a cruel oppressor (Ex 12:40–41), the Israelites cried to God for deliverance. God heard their cries and sent a leader—Moses—to aid in their release from Pharaoh. Speaking to Moses from the burning bush, God said:

> I have surely seen the affliction of My people who are in Egypt and have heard their cry because of their taskmasters. I know their sufferings, and I have come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up out of that land to a good and broad land, a land flowing with milk and honey…. Come, I will send you to Pharaoh that you may bring My people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt. (Ex 3:7–8, 10)

Where the Bible speaks of slavery continuing among God's people (who were themselves slaves for nearly five centuries), slavery appears as a temporary allowance for human weakness rather than a perpetual, God-given right. Following the exodus, the Law of Moses permitted the holding of even Israelite slaves, but only for a period of six years—slaves were to be released at the beginning of every seventh year (Ex 21:2). Bondage for life was to be only on a voluntary basis (Ex 21:5–6). God's personal interaction with slaves seems to be one of kindness and compassion (such as the story of Hagar and Ishmael in Gn 21:8–21 and Jesus' healing of the centurion's servant in Mt 8:5–13). God extended His grace, love, and forgiveness not only to free persons but also to slaves (as in the covenant of circumcision in Gn 17:1–14, especially v 13, and the Passover in Ex 12:44).

Slavery in the New Testament

In the New Testament, the Greek word for slave has a much broader meaning than what might be familiar to many readers today (see "minister," p 1903). In the Roman world, slaves could serve in a variety of positions (from chain gang to cook, from hairdresser to obstetrician). Roman slaves quite often held positions of great power and responsibility.

Slavery in the Roman world was not associated with the oppression of any particular race. Slaves were most often prisoners of war taken from foreign lands, or non-Roman individuals sold by their families to repay a debt. Fair-skinned Britons and blond Germanic peoples were included in their number.

Typical Roman slaves hoped for release (manumission) at age 30, the usual age for discharge. While in service to their master, slaves could earn wages, buy and sell property, enter into contracts, and own slaves themselves. Frequently, Roman free persons sold themselves into slavery in order to pay debts, while non-Roman persons sold themselves in order to eventually obtain Roman citizenship.

In Paul's Letter to Philemon, the slave Onesimus appears to be a high-ranking personal servant entrusted with caring for his master's temporal possessions (having access to his money), an enviable position to hold. Paul's tenor in this short Letter is one of reconciliation and forgiveness: the goal is restoring the slave to a right relationship with his brother in Christ, who is also his earthly master. Notably, in his First Letter to Timothy, Paul condemns those involved in "kidnapping" persons to be sold into slavery, listing "enslavers" among those especially deserving of the Law's condemnation (1Tm 1:10). (As Christianity spread throughout the Roman Empire, it undermined the practice of slavery.)

Work Today

With these things in mind, Paul's advice to slaves and to their masters does have application for contemporary Christians, particularly in regard to their workplace. Seen in the light of the modern employer/employee relationship, we find Paul encouraging workers to remain faithful in their God-given calling and to their God-given employer (1Co 7:17, 21, 24); discouraging believers from accepting unsuitable or demeaning work (v 23); advocating obedience and service to those in positions of authority (Eph 6:5–8; Ti 2:9); and reminding believers having temporal responsibility that they are not to abuse power over their subordinates but are to treat them kindly, remembering that they are accountable also to Christ (1Co 7:22; Eph 6:9).

Luther explains concerning the Fourth Commandment: "We should fear and love God so that we do not despise or anger our parents and other authorities, but honor them, serve and obey them, love and cherish them." God has given each one of us responsibilities of service so that we may be a blessing to others. Regrettably, we often forsake those responsibilities and do injury to those in authority over us by disobeying their reasonable requests or by stealing from our employer through laziness or shoddy work. When we act in these ways, we are not behaving as free persons, but rather as slaves—slaves to sin (Rm 6:16).

"But thanks be to God, that you who were once slaves of sin … having been set free from sin, have become slaves of righteousness" (Rm 6:17–18). In Christ, we have been delivered by God's mighty hand and outstretched arm, a hand and an arm that once were bound to a cross but are now raised in blessing. God heard our cry for mercy and sent us a deliverer, one "worthy of more glory than Moses" (Heb 3:3), who has crushed the chains of oppression under His feet. In God's Son, we are "free indeed" (Jn 8:36). Paul sums up who and what we are because of Christ in these words: "For freedom Christ has set us free; stand firm therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery" (Gal 5:1).

The Book of the Covenant

Archaeologists have discovered texts of many covenants from Mesopotamian, Syro-Palestinian, and Hittite culture that range in date from c 2500 BC to 650 BC. These covenants governed the relationships between stronger and weaker nations (suzerain-vassal covenants; royal grant covenants) or between equal nations (parity covenants). The form and content especially of Hittite covenants in the second millennium have many of the same elements and even the same order as God's covenant with Israel in Ex 19–24 (a suzerain-vassal covenant) and the renewals of that covenant in Lv 11–27; the Book of Deuteronomy; and Jsh 24. In other words, God's covenant with Moses and Israel clearly fits the time and setting described in the Bible (see chronology, pp xcii–cix).

When Israel moved into Egypt c 1876 BC, Pharaoh gave them land in exchange for their services as herdsmen (Gn 47:1–12). Their discussion has the elements of a brief, informal covenant (perhaps a formal agreement was also adopted). As Israel grew, their relationship with the pharaohs changed. The new pharaoh mentioned in Ex 1:8–22 radically altered the agreement between the two nations, resulting in Israel's enslavement. God's rescue of Israel and His renewal of the covenant first made with Abraham are the main themes of Exodus (see chart).

Other elements include blessings (Lv 26:3–13; Dt 28:1–14; Jsh 24:20c) and curses (Lv 26:14–43; Dt 28:15–68; Jsh 24:19–20), which also feature in other Near Eastern covenants.

The early Christians retained the old covenant patterns of promises, oath, washing, and an intimate meal in the service we know today as "confirmation." (Note this pattern in Ac 2:37–42; 16:29–34.) Ancient Christian documents such as the Didache (late first century) and the First Apology of Justin Martyr (second century) demonstrate this pattern of worship and covenant renewal. Remember how Christ called you to faith, renewed you in Baptism, and nurtures you still in His Holy Supper. Recognize in these actions the intimate, caring relationship that your Lord desires to have with you. Rejoice in the new covenant based upon the blood of Christ (Heb 12:18–24).

The Blood of the Covenant

Repulsed by the Old Testament sacrifice of animals, many people close their eyes to the truths in these portions of Scripture. They understand that the Old Testament points to the promised Savior of the New Testament, but the bloody stories of a warlike God offend some.

However, the old covenant embodies the discipline, divine nature, and dramatic revelation of a loving, trustworthy Lord. The Old Testament reveals

- the depth of humankind's depravity;
- the seriousness of people's sin;
- the extent of God's wrath;
- the depth of God's love;
- the need for a redeeming Savior.

Moses understood these issues. He told the Israelites that to cover human sin, blood must be shed. The power of the blood must accompany any approach to the Father. And as the blood of the old covenant spilled onto the altar and was sprinkled on the people, God revealed His redeeming grace and the forgiving power of His mercy.

The Blood

Why blood? Moses explained, “For the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it for you on the altar to make atonement for your souls, for it is the blood that makes atonement by the life” (Lv 17:11). The rituals of blood pointed to the seriousness of sin. Lifeblood must be given for atonement. Someone, or something, must give its life. God’s wrath needed satisfaction. Rather than require the death of the guilty parties, God offered grace by allowing the sacrifice of animals in their stead.

Yet in the deepest recesses of God’s heart, His delight was not in blood sacrifice but in the yielding and surrendering of His people’s lives in dedication to Him. As Samuel said to Saul, “Has the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to listen than the fat of rams” (1Sm 15:22). David also said, “For You will not delight in sacrifice, or I would give it; You will not be pleased with a burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart, O God, You will not despise” (Ps 51:16–17).

The blood, used to foreshadow the sacrifice of Christ, pointed to something deeper. The Lord yearned for reconciliation and fellowship—something blood sacrifice could only signify. He knew the blood spilled on the altar and sprinkled on the people was temporary. One blood sacrifice, greater than the blood of rams and goats, was needed to change the focus from the Law to the incomprehensible mercy of God. One blood sacrifice made on an altar of wood was still to come.

The Altar

Moses built an altar as his first sign of the covenant relationship to consecrate the people to God (Ex 24:4–5). At the foot of the mountain, he ordered the slaughter of animals. Although God had not yet fully described the importance of sacrifice in the Law, Moses knew what he must do. To the Israelites and other ancient peoples, an altar meant a place for putting something to death, not only physically but also in their hearts. The altar also represented God's presence.

The blood sprinkled on the altar represented a life offered, or poured out, to Him in sacrifice. Sacrifices were not wasteful or extravagant acts of worship. Most sacrifices were eaten. The altar was the point where the people, the priests, and God held a meal together to show their relationship of peace and fellowship.

As a place of fellowship, consecration, and sacrifice, the altar had to be sanctified through blood. The sanctified altar, then, became holy ground on which to lay the sin offerings of the people. The throwing of blood on the altar signified access to God; the blood of a chosen substitute replaced their own lives, now committed and dedicated to Him.

The Cross

Jesus' disciples understood the blood of the old covenant, but could they possibly comprehend the depth of Christ's words on Maundy Thursday evening when He lifted a cup and spoke of the blood of the new covenant (Mt 26:27–28)? Christ often foretold His suffering and death, yet no words could prepare the disciples for the events that followed.

Another altar rose above the earth that Good Friday, wooden and roughly cut. It would hold the Sacrifice, the One whose blood would redeem all people for all eternity. The Father in heaven observed Jesus' obedience and accepted the sacrifice. For in the heavenly tabernacle, an everlasting covenant—a new covenant—was made (Heb 9:11–14). By the cross, His disciples became partakers in His life and possessors of the heavenly inheritance (Heb 9:16–22).

The New Covenant and You

Just as a meal followed the sacrifices of the old covenant, so God's people commune with Him today at the Lord's Table. When you receive the body and blood of Christ, His fullness fills you. His mercy forgives you. His grace redeems you. You rest assured in the blotting out of all your sins (1Jn 1:7). With immediate deliverance and total justification, you know that God's wrath has been averted, for He no longer sees your sins but the covering of blood sprinkled on your behalf.

In this new life, dedicate yourself in service to Him, for God has revealed the redeeming grace of His love and the forgiving power of His mercy by the blood of the new covenant. That blood, spilled on the altar of the cross, now saves you. You are His forever.

The Materials of the Tabernacle

The items gathered for the tabernacle provided more than just building materials. Many of the items carried spiritual significance for the early Israelites and were part of the Lord's message to His people. Carefully read the chart to gain a fuller understanding of the symbolism. See also p 139.

No Graven Images?

Some Christian interpreters, Jewish rabbis, and Muslim clerics have misunderstood Ex 20:4 to mean that God's people cannot create three-dimensional figures of any kind. For example, since the eighth century, Eastern Orthodox Christians have insisted that religious artists restrict themselves to two-dimensional works such as paintings or mosaics. The radical German Reformer Andreas Karlstadt (c 1480–1541) led a movement to destroy statuary and remove all art from churches. His ideas influenced Swiss reformers Ulrich Zwingli (1484–1531) and John Calvin (1509–64), who stripped their area churches of art. They allowed illustrations of biblical stories to appear in people's homes, so long as the pictures were not used devotionally.

In contrast, God told Moses to create images of cherubim for the tabernacle (Ex 25:18–20). God's Word did not forbid the creation of such three-dimensional figures; it forbade the worship of such figures. It forbade the creation of an image to represent invisible Yahweh. (The word translated "graven image" in Ex 20:4 [KJV] comes from the Hebrew word for "carving." It does not refer to just any carving but is commonly used to describe an idol.)

The examples of the cherubim in the tabernacle and later works of art in Solomon's temple show that God did not restrict art to two dimensions (e.g., lilies and pomegranates in 1Ki 7:19–20; oxen in 1Ki 7:25; cherubim in 1Ki 6:23). Ultimately, God Himself took three-dimensional form in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ, who is the very "icon" or "image" of the invisible God (Col 1:15).

Study Notes

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:1–5 These are the names. Hbr links Ex to Gn; first six Hbr words of Ex are identical to those in Gn 46:8. Cf Gn 49:2–27. Ex begins with remembering.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:5 seventy. Same number as in Gn 46:27; descendants of one man and his 12 sons.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:6 Gn ends with the report of Joseph's death. The repeated obituary portends trouble for Israel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:7 people of Israel. Israel in v 1 refers to a person. In Egypt, Israel became a nation. fruitful … filled. Underscores the prolific fertility of Israel. What God promised Abraham (Gn 15:5; 17:6), and seemed impossible to him, came to pass.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:1–7 Israel emerges as a people. God's blessing and the fulfillment of God's promise gives growth and preserves His people in a foreign land. Consider how God provides for, supports, protects, and preserves His Church day by day. "For all this it is my duty to thank and praise, serve and obey Him" (SC, First Article, p xxxvi). God blesses us as He blessed Israel, yet He has also revealed to us His greatest blessings in His only-begotten Son. • O Lord, the multitude of Your blessings leads us to multiply thanks and praise to Your name. Fill Your Church with sons and daughters faithful to You. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:8 Now. C 300 years since Joseph's death. a new king. Circumstances changed for Israel with the advent of this king, whose name was unimportant to record. However, see chronology, pp xcv–xcvi. The Egyptian pharaoh was regarded as a divine son of the gods. The upcoming struggle is between the gods of Egypt, represented by Pharaoh, and the true God.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:10 The king's actions proved him a fool; attempting to prevent their "exodus," he provoked this very result. Some rabbinic traditions attributed this shrewd counsel to Jannes and Jambres. Cf 2Tm 3:8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:11 taskmasters. Supervisors who imposed a harsh workload. For the Old Kingdom of Egypt (third millennium BC), there is no evidence of foreign laborers enslaved for building projects. However, the New Kingdom of Egypt is known for such labor (from c 1870 BC). The tomb of the vizier Rekhmire shows slaves making mud bricks and Egyptians watching over them (Kitchen, p 247). store cities. For grain storage. Pithom and Raamses. Cities in the Nile Delta named in Egyptian historical records. Exact location unknown.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:12 the more they multiplied. What the king feared (v 10), happened. dread. Anxious fear of slaves not previously experienced fell on the Egyptians.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:13–14 work as slaves … work in the field. Hbr word for "service" or "work" appears five times, emphasizing the burden placed on God's people. Agricultural work was added to building projects.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:15 Hebrew midwives ... Shiphrah and ... Puah. Two representative Hebrew midwives are named, whereas the Egyptian pharaoh is unnamed. God exalts "those of humble estate" and brings down "the mighty" (Lk 1:52). These women served both Egyptians and Hebrews, though they would have had other midwives serving with them to care for such large populations.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:16 birthstool. Rare Hbr word (lit, "two stones") suggests items like modern medical stirrups used in childbirth. son ... kill him. Ancient empires could choose to kill, enslave/control, or assimilate foreign populations. Pharaoh's plan has elements of each approach. Eliminating daughters would be a surer form of population control. However, girls were better able to cross cultural boundaries through concubinage or marriage and therefore could be adapted to Egyptian life.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:17 feared God. See p 1001. Two obscure women frustrate a powerful ruler because they "obey God rather than men" (Ac 5:29).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:19 Hebrew women are ... vigorous. Midwives bravely stated the truth. Pharaoh showed his naïveté by failing to question the midwives further.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:20–21 God was pleased with Shiphrah and Puah, who now shared in the blessings of family. Perhaps they selflessly aided others but had not experienced this joy.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:22 Every son. Aaron, three years older than Moses (7:7), apparently escaped the threat imposed by this law. cast into the Nile. The Nile was regarded as the source of life, bringing fertility to the land. Now it became an agent of death.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 1:8–22 As a last resort to halt the growth of Israel, Pharaoh commands all his people to collaborate in the mass killing of Hebrew boys (v 22). Pharaoh imagines that he can thwart God's will, just as Herod does when he slaughters many infants while trying to slay Jesus (Mt 2:16). But "He who sits in the heavens laughs," and the Lord holds worldly rulers "in derision" (Ps 2:4). Luth: "Oh, how much strength of faith is demanded by these words!" (AE 14:321). When evil in this world seems to triumph and we struggle on account of our weakness, we can call to mind the women who feared God and were blessed by Him. By God's grace, we also shall persevere in faith because we will win the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ (1Co 15:57). • Lord, grant us brave faith like the midwives so that we faithfully serve You in the face of all opposition. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:1–2 What follows Pharaoh's order to kill is a report not of death but of marriage and conception.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:1 Levi. The Levites became the priestly tribe of Israel.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:2 fine. Hbr tob. Same word is used in Gn 1 to describe God's "good" creation.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:3 basket. Same Hbr word is used for Noah's ark. Many ancient cultures practiced infant exposure, or leaving unwanted children without care (e.g., the Mesopotamian "Legend of Sargon"). Pharaoh's ruling forced a version of this despicable practice on the Israelites. bulrushes. Papyrus, a tall stalk or reed used to construct small boats. bitumen and pitch. These tars made the basket watertight. This detail shows the mother's intense care. placed it among the reeds. Tall grass along the Nile hid the basket.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:5 bathe at the river. The princess may have bathed in the Nile believing the water imparted fruitfulness and long life. her young women. Attendants.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:6 Hbr indicates that Pharaoh's daughter knew she was breaking her father's law when she became Moses' protector. No explanation, apart from care, is given for her actions.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:7 nurse. A wet nurse, who suckles another's child.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:9 I will give you your wages. Moses' mother (v 2) is paid from Pharaoh's treasury to nurse her own son! This was not the only time Pharaoh was plundered to benefit God's people (cf 12:36).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:10 he became her son. Indicating adoption. Moses. Authentic Egyptian name found in historical records ("Mose"). drew him out of the water. Hbr mosheh (Moses) and mashah ("draw out") sound alike. The name worked in Hbr and Egyptian.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:1–10 Moses, born of believing Hebrew parents (Heb 11:23), is raised in Pharaoh's household and "instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians" (Ac 7:22), enjoying the best of two worlds. Although God is not mentioned, He is accomplishing His purposes to redeem Israel. Even when God does not seem to be at work in our lives, we can be certain that His good and gracious will is being done among us. • Lord, help us to provide well for our children and their instruction, especially in the Christian faith, and to celebrate Your redemption for us. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:11 his people. As an adult, Moses identified with his people when he saw their burdens and one of them brutally beaten. Moses may have grown up knowing his Hebrew heritage since he was nursed by his own mother. He may also have been circumcised.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:12 Moses tried to hide his deed because he had no authority for his action.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:13 Moses again became angry with someone "in the wrong" and demanded an explanation.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:14 prince and a judge. See notes, Jsh 20:4; Jgs 2:16.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:15 Pharaoh … sought to kill Moses. Pharaoh would not tolerate someone living in his palace and acting against his authority. land of Midian. The Midianites (cf Gn 25:4; 37:36) were nomadic tribes. Moses fled into the Sinai Peninsula, east of Egypt. See map, p 120; see also note, Jgs 6:1.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:16 priest of Midian. Just as Melchizedek, the king-priest of Salem (Gn 14:18; Heb 7:1), was a mysterious figure, so was this priest of Midian (cf Ex 18). The gods he worshiped are never described. See note, 18:11. water their father's flock. They had done the hard work of filling the water troughs, and then they were attacked (v 17).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:17 saved them. A third time, Moses stood up for people being wronged, acting as the rescuer of the weak and mistreated (cf vv 12–14). watered their flock. Moses showed further mercy.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:18 Reuel. The priest of Midian likely had more than one name; his more common name was Jethro.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:20 Their father showed irritation at their failure to show hospitality to a stranger. See note, Gn 18:4.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:21 gave … his daughter. In marriage (Hbr expression). Cf Gn 29:28.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:22 Gershom. Combining the Hbr words for "stranger" and "there." have been a sojourner. A Hebrew man, raised as an Egyptian, married a Midianite priest's daughter. Moses was a foreigner everywhere.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:11–22 God humbles Moses before calling him to lead Israel out of Egypt, letting him feel the sufferings of his people and making Moses realize how totally inadequate he is to save them. This former prince must live as a fugitive in the household of a Midianite priest. Luth: "God is the God of the humble, the miserable, the afflicted, the oppressed, the desperate, and of those who have been brought down to nothing at all" (AE 26:314). God humbles us as He humbled Moses. He does this so that at the proper time He may raise us up in Christ (1Pt 5:6). • Lord, teach me to trust Your guidance even when days are dark. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:23 many days. During Moses' absence from Egypt, the king died. groaned … and cried out for help. The change in rulers did nothing to change Israel's slavery.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:24–25 God heard … remembered … saw … knew. Four verbs catalog God's response to Israel's cry for rescue. God's knowing always brings about an effect. God understood what Israel felt. After seeming to be out of touch and unconcerned, He was about to act. See "remember," p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 2:23–25 God hears Israel's cry for deliverance. Sinful humans forget the promises they make, but God never forgets. He does not forget Israel but remembers His covenant with their fathers. In Holy Communion, we remember God's new covenant in Christ. Holy Communion is God's promise of forgiveness to us and assures us that He will never forget us. • Rescue us, dearest Jesus, from the slavery of sin, and deliver us to the Promised Land. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:1 Jethro, the priest of Midian. See notes, 2:16, 18. Horeb, the mountain of God. Elsewhere named Sinai (cf 19:11). God appeared to Moses and later to all Israel here (ch 19). The exact location is unknown but it is probably at the southern end of the Sinai Peninsula. See map, p 120.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:2 angel of the LORD. See p 1227. Just: "This same One alone who is called an Angel, and who is God, appeared to and communed with Moses" (ANF 1:227). flame. Caught Moses' attention. "God does not want to deal with us in any other way than through the spoken Word and the Sacraments. Whatever is praised as from the Spirit—without the Word and Sacraments—is the devil himself. God wanted to appear even to Moses through the burning bush and spoken Word [Exodus 3:2–15]. No prophet, neither Elijah nor Elisha, received the Spirit without the Ten Commandments 'or the spoken Word'" (SA III VIII 10–11).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:4 Lord … God. Refers to the angel (v 2), or messenger, who is here identified as God. Iren: "The Son of God is implanted everywhere throughout his writings … and speaks with Moses from the bush" (ANF 1:473).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:5 take your sandals off ... holy ground. God warned Moses not to keep on his everyday footwear and so defile ground sanctified by His presence. In Near Eastern culture, feet are esp associated with uncleanliness, which can lead to shame.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:6 your father. Amram (6:20). The Lord includes the patriarchal genealogy, Moses' ancestors with whom He established the covenant. afraid to look at God. Moses turned his eyes from the burning bush, the flaming symbol of God's presence, fearing that God's majesty would consume him.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:7 seen ... heard ... know. See note, 2:24–25.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:8 come down. See p 39. Iren: "It [was] customary from the beginning with the Word of God to ascend and descend for the purpose of saving those who were in affliction" (ANF 1:476). deliver. See p 842. flowing with milk and honey. Often used in the OT to describe the bounty of the Promised Land. See p 6. place of the Canaanites. See p 345.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:9 oppression. Cf v 7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:10–11 I will send you. In view of Moses' earlier flight from Egypt, Moses was shocked to learn that God was calling him to bring Israel out of Egypt. Who am I. Moses' first objection is that he is a nobody. He did not recognize that God had shaped him for leadership.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:12 I will be. Hbr verb ('ehyeh) is the same as in v 14, where it is translated "I AM." The I AM was with Moses. this … sign. The burning bush was the sign guaranteeing that Moses would later bring the people to this same mountain. serve God. To worship the Lord, who would descend again in fire.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:13 What is His name? Moses' second objection is raised more for his own sake than for the sake of the people who might ask. Jacob got no answer when he asked God the same question (Gn 32:29).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:14 I AM WHO I AM. God began His answer with a short sentence defining His uniqueness. There is no one like God. See "LORD," p 1227. I AM has sent me to you. See notes, vv 12, 15.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:15 The LORD ... has sent me. See ESV note. God revealed the special name that Israel was to use in worship and teaching. This name was likely pronounced "Yahweh" (YAH-way). See p 1227. My name forever … remembered throughout all generations. "I AM WHO I AM," pronounced Yahweh, and known as "LORD" was God's special name, which Israel was to keep holy by calling on it in prayer and in praise.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:16 elders. Heads of the families and clans, commonly listed in genealogies. See note, Zec 8:4. Moses was to utilize a leadership structure already in place. See pp 54–55.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:17 I promise. God wanted the Israelites to be certain that He would deliver them from Egypt. land of the Canaanites … milk and honey. See note, v 8.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:18 elders. See note, v 16. met with us. Moses would represent all Israel and bring the Lord's testimony to the elders, commissioning them as witnesses with him. three days' journey … sacrifice. The Lord knew that Egypt's king would reject even this modest request (v 19), leading to Egypt's punishment.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:20 strike Egypt with ... wonders. The Lord knew it would take the 10 plagues to compel Pharaoh to let Israel go. Luth: "The … people physically came out of the physical land of Egypt through many miracles, as is written in Exodus. This figure does not mean that we, too, should physically go out of Egypt. Rather, our souls should leave the sins and spiritual power of the devil through true faith" (AE 39:77–78).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:21 favor. See p 6. The Lord planned for the Egyptians to pay Israel back for their years of hard labor.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 3:22 neighbor. Egyptians and Israelites apparently lived closely but were separated both ethnically and economically. plunder. Victorious armies plundered the goods of the defeated enemy (cf 2Ch 20:25), so the Lord's triumph over the gods of Egypt allowed His people to plunder their enemy.

EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 3 What begins as just another day tending sheep changes dramatically when God confronts Moses at the burning bush on the holy mountain. I AM makes His presence known in fire and word. I AM discloses His special name. I AM sends Moses on what seems to him an impossible mission. Moses has absolutely no hope for success except through God's Word and promise, which assures him of God's presence. Luth: "Without God's Word we can have no God" (AE 13:386). What was true for Moses is true for us as well. God is present for us and speaks to us in His Word. We have no hope for salvation except through God's Word and promise. • "Lord, open now my heart to hear, And through Your Word to me draw near" (LSB 908:1). Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:1 they will not believe me. Moses' third objection contradicts God's statement that Israel "will listen to your voice" (3:18).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:2 staff. Shepherd's staff or rod; it became the symbol of God's power (7:15).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:3 serpent. Represented evil for Israel (cf Gn 3:1). Egyptians worshiped the serpent as a symbol of wisdom, fertility, and healing.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:4 A test of faith. It is dangerous to catch a serpent by the tail.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:5 that they may believe. Sign was to convince the people that God had appeared to Moses but also to convince Moses of God's power.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:8 If they will not believe. "If" anticipates the future unbelief and rebellion Israel would express for generations. Miracles do not necessarily lead to faith (Jn 12:37; 1Co 1:22–23).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:9 Moses could not perform the third sign in the arid wilderness, but it prefigured the first plague.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:10 I am slow of speech and of tongue. Moses still resisted God's call with a fourth objection, claiming to have a "heavy" (Hbr kabed) mouth and tongue. Perhaps he had a speech impediment. Ironically, the same Hbr root word can be used for "glory" and "honor," which Moses would later receive.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:11 Rhetorical questions, hinting at the Lord's irritation with Moses. mouth ... mute ... deaf ... seeing ... blind? God takes responsibility for all our abilities, which He may use for His purposes. See note, Jn 9:3.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:12 I will be with your mouth. I AM (see note, 3:12) would speak through Moses, making him a prophet.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:13 send someone else. Moses' last objection. He did not want to go back to Egypt, but he humbly left the decision to the Lord.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:14 anger … kindled. When God's anger flared against a person, usually punishment followed (Dt 29:27); yet here God provided Moses with a helper. Aaron … is coming out to meet you. First mention of Aaron, whom the Lord commanded to meet Moses (v 27). Aaron was three years older, and so would likely have known about his brother. See note, 6:20.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:15 Promise similar to v 12 but now includes the mouth of Aaron. This made Aaron a prophet. See pp 1081–83.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:16 you shall be as God to him. Human beings were sometimes called "gods" in the sense that they were mighty leaders (Ps 82:6; Jn 10:34). See "God," p 1227. Moses, not Aaron, remained the divine instrument through whom God spoke.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:17 staff. See note, v 2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:1–17 Moses resists the Lord's call to lead Israel out of Egypt because of his focus on his own shortcomings and the doubts of his people. Moses may not be the best speaker, but that does not matter because he will be speaking God's Word (v 12). Like Moses, we Christians have been called to speak God's Word. This is an important assignment because it is through the Word that God "works in people's hearts true repentance, knowledge of sins, and true faith in God's Son, Jesus Christ. By this means, and in no other way …, God desires to call people to eternal salvation" (FC SD II 50). • Lord, bless my mouth that I may speak Your Word clearly and with sincerity. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:18 Please let me go. Moses showed his willingness to obey God by requesting Jethro's permission to leave. Go in peace. Jethro blessed Moses.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:20 staff of God. See note, v 2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:21 I will harden his heart. The Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart only after the sixth plague. Prior to that, Pharaoh hardened his own heart against the Lord and continued to do so. God's action was a judgment against Pharaoh's sin. See note, 9:12.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:22 Israel is My firstborn son. God makes Himself the Father of the nation, attesting to the intimate Father-son relationship God had with Israel (cf Mt 2:15). See note, Hos 11:1. The firstborn had special rights of inheritance. See note, Gn 25:31. firstborn son. Lit, "my son, my firstborn is Israel." Hbr for "firstborn" is masculine.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:23 Pharaoh could save his firstborn son only if he freed the Lord's firstborn son (Israel; v 22). Pharaoh's dynasty would lose its heir. This ultimatum was not delivered immediately but was delayed until ch 11.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:24 lodging place. A night stop for Moses' family traveling to Egypt. Oases may have had shelters because of frequent visitors. met him ... put him to death. This episode is difficult to understand. The Lord may have sought Moses' death or the death of his uncircumcised son. The story implies that Moses should have circumcised his son before leaving for Egypt.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:25 Zipporah. Moses' wife (2:21) and the only person named in these verses (see below). flint. See note, Jsh 5:2. cut off her son's foreskin. They had two sons (18:3–4). Apparently, one was not circumcised but the other had been. By this time, the sons may have been grown men. Ter: "God, forseeing that He was about to give this circumcision to the people of Israel for 'a sign,' not for salvation, urges the circumcision of the son of Moses, their future leader, for this reason; that … the people should not despise [circumcision]" (ANF 3:153–54). touched Moses' feet. Lit, "and she touched [it] to his feet." A symbolic action may be involved. However, the Hbr verb can mean "to cast," as in some other passages (Is 25:12; 26:5), which could fit the context of a family dispute, ending with Zipporah throwing the foreskin at Moses' feet. Some rabbinic interpreters consider resistance by Jethro, the Midianite priest, as the reason the son was not circumcised. bridegroom of blood. Indicating family conflict. Zipporah did not circumcise her son until a life was in danger. Though circumcision was practiced by a number of western Semitic tribes, Zipporah's family may not have practiced it. The incident showed the importance of circumcision as a sign of God's covenant (Gn 17:9–14) and the setting apart of Moses' family as Israelites rather than Midianites.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:26 He let him alone. The Lord no longer sought to kill Moses or his son, but it seems that Moses went on to Egypt alone. He was later reunited with his wife and sons in Midian (18:2–3). because of the circumcision. Zipporah gained either Moses' life or his appeasement by shedding her son's blood in circumcision.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:27 The LORD said to Aaron. The Lord spoke to him as to a prophet (see note, v 15). Aaron was "glad in his heart" (v 14) to meet his brother again. kissed. Customary family greeting. See p 1276.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:29 gathered … the elders. Moses would stand before Pharaoh as an official representative of a large group of people. This explains why Pharaoh granted him an audience and considered his proposal. See note, 5:3. elders. See note, 3:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:30 Aaron and Moses worked so closely together that it made little difference who performed the signs.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:31 visited. Moses is received as God's representative both to Israel and Pharaoh and affirmed as Israel's representative to God. See notes, vv 1, 5. they bowed their heads and worshiped. First mention of worship in Ex but hardly the last. The Word of God brought them faith, which naturally prompted their worship. We do not know particulars about their beliefs or worship practices at this point. Clearly, some had knowledge of their ancestral faith, but others had fallen into idolatry (Jsh 24:14). See "bow," p 1276.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 4:18–31 Moses returns to Egypt as an act of faith. Confronting Pharaoh with God's demands and confronting the people whom he fears (4:1) proves a daunting assignment. Yet Moses obeys, and the people believe. Luther calls faith the "skill above all skills. It is the work of the Holy Spirit alone" (AE 14:59). There is no other way to explain the faith of Moses and of the people, and there is no other way to explain our faith. By our own reason and strength, we cannot believe in Jesus Christ. But because "the Holy Spirit has called me by the Gospel," I bow my head and worship (SC, Third Article, p xxxvii). • Lord, hear our prayer and lead us this day, no matter what challenges arise. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:1 Thus says the LORD. The Lord had directed Moses to use this prophetic introduction (4:22). See p 1080. Let My people go. Resounds repeatedly (9:1, 13; 10:3). A "property" dispute with Pharaoh. hold a feast. Cf 3:18; 5:3. A dispute about how and where to worship. Egyptian work registers record festival days when workers could make sacrifices. It seems Moses' request as a community representative was not exceptional.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:2 Pharaoh was not familiar with "Yahweh" as a god, nor did he recognize His authority. Later, he would come to know about the Lord very well (7:5, 17).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:3 Hebrews. See note, Gn 14:13. Please. Note Moses' humble regard for Pharaoh; the Lord had told him to use this word (3:18). three days' journey. See note, 8:27. lest He fall upon us. Moses argued that Pharaoh would lose his slaves if the Hebrews suffered death. pestilence. See note, 9:3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:4 Pharaoh regarded the request to worship the Lord simply as a way of avoiding work (vv 8, 17–18).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:6 taskmasters. See note, 1:11. foremen. Probably Israelites who served under Egyptians in the chain of command.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:7 straw to make bricks. Egyptians mixed clay, straw, and water, and shaped the mixture with brick molds. The bricks dried in the sun. An Egyptian scroll (c 1275 BC) at the Louvre, Paris, mentions brick making, overseers, and a complaint about the lack of straw for the bricks.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:9 lying words. See Moses' and Aaron's words, vv 1, 3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:11 Previously, the Egyptians provided straw, but now the slaves needed to search for it.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:12 stubble for straw. Chaff (cf Is 5:24; 40:24).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:14 foremen … were beaten. See note, v 6. The foremen were both despised as collaborators by their own people and abused by the Egyptians.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:16 the fault is in your own people. They boldly complained to Pharaoh about being beaten for the shortage when the Egyptians were at fault.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:17 You are idle. Pharaoh blamed the foremen for Moses' requests. Cf v 8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:19 in trouble. With their own people, because Pharaoh would not allow a reduction in the daily quota of bricks.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:21 stink in the sight. Mixed metaphor. The term for "smell" can also mean "reputation," which was in view. a sword in their hand to kill us. Hyperbole, indicating their anger and fear. At this point, they fear Pharaoh more than the Lord.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:22 done evil. A victim's accusation. Moses has the same questions as the foremen ("Why?"; v 15) and expresses utter frustration.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 5:23 Pharaoh ... has done evil. Moses softened the accusation by assigning the evil to Pharaoh. not delivered. Moses accused God of failing to fulfill His initial promise at the burning bush (3:8).

EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 5 The Lord sends Moses to deliver the people, but Pharaoh only makes their burdens heavier. Why does God wait and put people through such suffering? Luth: "Faith does not despair of the God who sends trouble. Faith does not consider Him angry or an enemy…. Faith rises above all this and sees God's fatherly heart behind His unfriendly exterior" (AE 14:59). • Lord, forgive my accusations and inaction in view of Your Word and the obstacles I face. Grant me confidence in Your fatherly heart. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:1 with a strong hand. The Lord's plan for delivering Israel called for Pharaoh himself to drive the people out of Egypt (12:31–32).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:2 I am the LORD. At the burning bush, God told Moses to use the name "LORD" when speaking to the people (3:15). This statement, expressing the Lord's authority, is repeated in vv 6, 29.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:3 God Almighty. See ESV note. The name God commonly used when He appeared to the patriarchs (Gn 28:3; 35:11; 43:14; 48:3). did not make Myself known to them. The name LORD (Yahweh) appears frequently in Gn and is even found in statements of the patriarchs. However, the name is never explained ("make Myself known"), as in ch 3 or 6:6; 20:2. In Ex, the name becomes strongly associated with the Lord as deliverer or savior. See "LORD," p 1227.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:4 The God who once established His covenant with Abraham (Gn 17:1–8) was the Lord who renewed His promise to the people of Israel (v 8). See p 127.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:5 I have remembered. See note, 2:24–25.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:6 I will bring you out … deliver … redeem. First-person verbs emphasized the Lord's promise to free His people from slavery. See "deliver" and "redeem," pp 842, 843. outstretched arm. Wielding a weapon or striking a blow. See "arm," p 842.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:7 My people. God chose Israel to be His very own people (Ezk 20:5). References to this election recur often (Lv 26:12; Jer 11:4; 24:7; 30:22; Ezk 14:11; 36:28; 37:23, 27; Zec 8:8).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:8 I am the LORD. God emphasized His authority at the beginning (v 2) and end of His message. The name encompasses His purpose of salvation. See note, v 3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:9 A change had come over the people (cf 4:31), now hopeless and unimpressed by words.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:11 Go in. The Lord instructed Moses to confront Pharaoh immediately, while still at the meeting place (cf 5:20).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:12 Moses is demoralized and begins to blame himself for the trouble, reverting to earlier excuses (see note, 4:10). uncircumcised lips. Not only lips but also ears and heart (Lv 26:41; Ac 7:51) are described as uncircumcised and therefore sinful (cf Is 6:5).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:13 charge. Hbr tsawah, "command," as in the commandments of the covenant. Rather than answer Moses' question, the Lord ordered him and Aaron to get on with their assignment.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:1–13 The Lord reveals the purpose attached to His sacred name: deliverance. Shakespeare's famous question "What's in a name?" dismisses the significance of names, but this does not apply to the name Yahweh! God says of His name: "You shall not take the name of the LORD your God in vain, for the LORD will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain" (Ex 20:7). This name is for worship and teaching and is not to be abused by cursing and lies. This "name has been revealed and given to us so that it may be of constant use and profit" (LC I 63). • Lord, sanctify my heart and tongue that my words may truly honor You and Your holy name. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:14–27 Offers only a brief summary of a family that lived in Egypt for 430 years (12:40). This genealogy interrupts the history to emphasize that Moses and Aaron deserve a hearing from the people. Israelite genealogies emphasized kinship responsibilities, privileges, and inheritance (see "Form and Use of Genealogies," p 629). At this low point of the story, Moses reminds his hearers of who he is and the importance of the Levites for Israel's future. Cf Nu 3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:14–16 Reuben … Simeon … Levi. Counting through the list of Jacob's sons, Moses reached the tribe he plans to describe. Such a memory device assists the listeners (or readers), who would likely know such kinship by heart.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:14 heads of their fathers' houses. Larger kinship groups. See note, 3:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:15 Shaul, the son of a Canaanite woman. Judah also fathered children by a Canaanite (Gn 38:2–5).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:16 Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. Only the descendants of Kohath, including Aaron and Moses, are listed in any detail.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:19 clans. Broader families. See p 54–55.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:20 Jochebed his father's sister. Amram's marriage to his aunt, as well as marriages between other family members, was later forbidden (Lv 18:9–18). Aaron and Moses. Aaron's four sons are named but not Moses' sons (18:3). Aaron's sons grew more important through their role as priests. Moses' descendants became temple treasurers.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:23 Elisheba. Aaron's wife from Judah. Her father and brother are named in David's family tree. The future priestly and royal tribes are joined in Aaron's household.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:24 clans of the Korahites. Korah later led a rebellion against Moses and was swallowed up by the earth (Nu 16) though his sons were spared (Nu 26:10–11). Some psalms are attributed to the sons of Korah. See p 840; see also note, 1Ch 9:19.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:25 Eleazar. Succeeded his father, Aaron, as high priest (Nu 20:25–28). Phinehas. Stood up for the Lord at Peor; therefore Israel's priests came from his family. See note, Nu 25:8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:26–27 Aaron ... Moses ... Moses ... Aaron. Repeated to stress their importance.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:26 by their hosts. Tribes were organized in battle array, which is how Israel marched through the wilderness. (Moses would have written Ex in the wilderness.)
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:28–29 tell Pharaoh ... all that I say to you. The story resumes from v 13 with the forceful reminder that Moses would be speaking the Word of the Lord.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:30 How will Pharaoh listen to me? Repeated from v 12. The Lord answers in ch 7. Moses knew and rightly feared Pharaoh's power. In 10:28, Pharaoh threatened Moses with death. Readers may wonder why Pharaoh didn't just get rid of Moses since he was a nuisance. God was at work to preserve Moses and Aaron. Pharaoh surely recognized the regard Moses quickly gained with both the Israelites and the Egyptians (11:3) on account of the wonders God worked through him. Pharaoh became divided from his counselors, who at first thought they could humiliate and dismiss Moses (7:11) but later learned they could not (9:11–12). By the eighth plague, the leadership of Egypt was clearly divided (10:7), and Moses recorded some of the backroom politics, which served God's purposes in punishing the Egyptians and delivering all of Israel.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 6:14–30 As a Levite, Moses has good family connections, but this does not translate into an eager willingness to serve the Lord. He continues to doubt that Pharaoh will ever let Israel go. How different is another Servant of the Lord with good family connections (Mt 1:1–17; Lk 3:23–38)! His attitude is spelled out in Luther's great hymn "Dear Christians, One and All, Rejoice" (LSB 556, especially st 1, 6). Jesus' willing obedience frees us from the eternal consequences of our sinful fears, doubts, and stubbornness. • Dear Father in heaven, my heart and voice sing Your wonders. I praise You for Your victory in Christ, who paid our ransom with His life. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:1 like God to Pharaoh. Moses would reveal the divine will to Aaron and act as executor of God's will to Pharaoh. Aaron shall be your prophet. See pp 1081–83. To announce to Pharaoh the revelations of Moses. Moses is also promised divine authority and power over Pharaoh, who would eventually bow before him.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:3 I will harden Pharaoh's heart. See notes, 4:21; 9:12. signs and wonders. Exponentially amplified natural events showed that God was true to His Word. Signs provided assurance (Jsh 2:12–13), gave testimony (Is 19:19–20) and warning (Nu 17:10), and encouraged faith.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:4 My hand. See "hand," p 842. My hosts. Israel was organized as an army, according to tribes (6:26; 12:51; Nu 1–2). See p 1291. judgment. Lit, plural. Judgments of condemnation for Egypt (Law) and salvation for Israel (Gospel). Cf 6:6.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:5 Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD. Here, the judgment is condemnation (however, cf 6:6). Later, the Lord will also plan to save Egyptians. See note, Is 19:19.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:6 God's Word affirmed Moses and Aaron in their calling. The Israelites will not express doubt again until 14:15.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:7 At birth and ages 40, 80, and 120, Moses experienced significant events in his life (Heb 11:24–29). At 80, Moses received the Lord's divine pledge to uphold all he was called to do.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:9 Prove yourselves by working a miracle. The divine mission will be attested by a sign. God's messengers confirmed their calling in the presence of the king (vv 10–13). serpent. Probably a cobra, the snake typically used by Egyptian charmers.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:11 wise men. They belonged to the priestly caste educated in human wisdom and sorcery. secret arts. Incantations and spells were used by the Egyptians. Sleight of hand could also have tricked people into believing a miracle took place.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:12 they became serpents. The magicians practiced the art of turning snakes into sticks by squeezing the nape of a snake's neck, compelling it to become rigid and appear dead. Here, they also turned their sticks into snakes, raising the suspicion that the sticks had been only rigid snakes. These acts could also have been the lying wonders of Satan (cf 2Th 2:9). Aaron's staff swallowed up their staffs. Demonstrated the supremacy of Yahweh over the gods of Egypt. Ter: "The verity of Moses swallowed up their lying deceit" (ANF 3:234).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:13 heart was hardened. See notes, 4:21; 9:12.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:1–13 According to God's divine plan of salvation, Moses and Aaron are His "god" and "prophet" who speak His Word before Pharaoh in order to rescue the Israelites from 430 years of bondage. God's plan continues through His greater prophet, Jesus, who fulfilled all of God's promises and became the living Word in order to rescue us from an eternity of bondage to sin. • Lord God, heavenly Father, through Your Holy Spirit, You call, gather, and enlighten Your children. Through the same Spirit, give us a right understanding of Your love toward us, even when our cross and sufferings are unbearable. Comfort and strengthen us, we pray, for the sake of Your Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:14–12:32 Egyptians worshiped creatures as deities, which were judged by the various plagues. Moses and Aaron were empowered by God to force the release of Israel by a series of miracles as penalties. While these plagues were not altogether unknown to the Egyptians, the fact that they came upon the land with overwhelming force and in close succession proved to Pharaoh that the Lord is the Lord of heaven and earth and He rules over the powers of creation, sin, and death with unrestricted freedom and omnipotence.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:15 Pharaoh went to the Nile to walk, bathe, check the water level, and present daily worship (cf 2:5).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:16 Hebrews. See note, Gn 14:13.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:17 my hand. Moses and Aaron are God's servants. turn into blood. The same sense as in Jl 2:31, where the moon is to be turned into blood; thus it was not a chemical change into real blood, but a change in appearance, possibly because of red algae. The Admonitions of an Egyptian Sage (late third millennium BC) refers to the Nile as being turned to blood.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:18 A natural chemical phenomenon was immediately intensified and precipitated by the hand of God and affected all the tributaries of the Nile. Dead fish made the river stink.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:19 even in vessels of wood and … stone. Used to filter, transport, and store water from the Nile for daily use. The appearance of "blood" here would prove that this was no ordinary natural event.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:20 The Egyptians may have seen the river's blood-red hue as portraying death and concluded that Israel's God had slain Hapi, the Nile god believed to be the giver of life and sustenance.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:21 all the land of Egypt. Bounded by Libya, the Great Sea, the Red Sea, and Cush. See map, p 33.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:22 See note, v 11. The magicians would have plied their arts on water that was unaffected, which is described in v 24.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:23 did not take even this to heart. Indicated a hardening against the basic needs of his people.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:24 Fine sediment along the river purified the water of its chemical instability, making it drinkable.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:25 Seven full days passed. Plagues did not come daily, though they did occur speedily.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 7:14–25 The Lord strikes at the very heart of Pharaoh's idolatry by striking the Nile and the resources provided by the river, which are associated with Egyptian gods. He begins to deliver His people from Egypt through water, by which He will later destroy Pharaoh's army and set Israel apart. Today, praise God, who has likewise delivered you through a water miracle: Holy Baptism. • Dear Father in heaven, guard us from the craftiness of the devil, who would seek to undo us and draw us away from Christ. In a world of idols and self-made "gods," remind us that Satan has been judged and his weapon of deceit will soon be fully extinguished, through Jesus Christ, Your Son, our Lord. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:1 If God's people are to serve and worship Him, they must be free from bondage. See note, 5:1.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:2–4 plague. Lit, "strike." See note, 9:3. frogs. Small Nile frogs. The Egyptian goddess Heqt was thought to take the form of a frog that helped women as they gave birth to children. This is the second plague. The first three plagues covered the whole land and fell upon both Israelites and Egyptians.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:5 Aaron. See note, 7:1.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:7 See note, 7:11.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:8–10:24 Note Pharaoh's responses: plead (8:8); sacrifice (8:25); I have sinned (9:27); only men may go (10:11); forgive my sin (10:17); only people may go (10:24). Over time, he recognized his inability to resist the Lord's purpose.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:8 Pharaoh regarded the God of Israel as the author of the plague and entreated Moses to intercede with God to remove it.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:9–10 Be pleased to command me. Showing humility, Moses placed himself under Pharaoh's authority. Ambr: "[Moses] knew that the king would not keep true to his promises, yet he thought it right and good to pray when asked to do so, to bless when wronged, to forgive when besought" (NPNF 2 10:82). cut off. Can mean they were restricted, but is also an expression for death. See note, 12:15. Tomorrow. Moses let Pharaoh set the time for the frogs to be removed. The timed conclusion of the plague would again demonstrate its miraculous character.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:11–13 The frogs shall go away … The frogs died. God may have used the red, putrid waters of the Nile (see note, 7:17) to kill the frogs.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:12 Moses cried to the LORD. Earnest prayer, after which God removed the plague, though perhaps not as Pharaoh expected. as … agreed. Moses acted in good faith. See note, v 15.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:13 the LORD did according to the word of Moses. The Lord hears and answers out of His divine, fatherly goodness and mercy.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:15 respite. Relief from overpowering pressure. would not listen. Pharaoh proved himself a liar, a sin he had charged to Moses (5:9).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:1–15 This sets a recurring theme of sin, oppression (the plagues), repentance, and deliverance. Magicians, sorcerers, and charlatans cannot stop the power of God. As the intensity of temporal punishment increases in terms of social and economic impact, God still remains slow to anger and desires to deliver sinners by His grace. • Lord, when I am weak in faith, strengthen me. When I am cold in love, warm me so that the love Christ first worked in me through His Word and Spirit may go out to my neighbor. Uphold me that I might remain in You even unto life everlasting. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:16–17 gnats. They usually breed in the flooded fields of Egypt in late autumn. But here they arise miraculously from the dust Aaron struck. Barely visible to the eye, they sting and cause painful skin irritation; they creep into eyes and noses.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:18 The magicians … could not. The Egyptian magicians displayed the impotence of their secret arts next to the creative power of the true God. See note, 7:11.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:19 the finger of God. Denotes creative omnipotence. Generic Hbr 'elohim is used here instead of the specific yahweh. See p 1227. The magicians realized their powers had been surpassed. Trickery was now out of the question.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:16–19 The plague of gnats is more intense than the previous plagues, and the magicians concede that there is a God greater than the ones they serve. God's judgment increases in magnitude as this plague drives Pharaoh and his magicians toward despair. People who trust Christ the Lord are drawn closer to Him in times of tribulation, seeking His forgiveness, comfort, strength, and healing for the sake of His cross and resurrection. • O God, our Father, what would we be if You would forsake us? What would we do if You would withdraw Your hand? How quickly the prudent become simple; the wise become fools. In Christ Jesus, daily increase our faith that we may recognize Your loving hand at work in our lives. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:21 flies. More aggressive than gnats, buzzing the ears and landing esp on the edges of the eyelids. The Egyptians venerated flies and beetles.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:22 The Lord condemned the Egyptians but delivered the Israelites from evil (9:4, 11, 26; 10:6, 23; 11:7). He proved that Israel had His blessing. Goshen. See map, p 120.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:24 the land was ruined. Flies killed plants and caused disfiguring swelling in humans.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:25 sacrifice to your God within the land. Pharaoh compromised.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:26 abomination. The sacrifices would not be pure according to the rites of the Egyptians. This would be blasphemy toward their gods, and they would likely stone the Israelites. See note, Pr 6:16. stone us? The penalty for blasphemy could be delivered by a mob, without Pharaoh's consent.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:27 three days' journey … wilderness. Where Israel is beyond Pharaoh's domination and oversight (cf Gn 30:36).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:28 you must not go very far. A counterproposal that still exerted Pharaoh's and Egypt's control and standards. Plead for me. That the swarms be removed. See note, v 8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:29 cheat again. See note, v 15.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:31 the LORD did as Moses asked. See note, v 13.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:32 Pharaoh hardened his heart. See notes, 4:21; 9:12.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 8:20–32 The Lord distinguishes between Egypt and Israel by protecting His people in Goshen from the plagues. Pharaoh wants the Israelites to sacrifice and worship according to his expectations, but Moses could never allow this. The means and character of worship must be subject to God's Word rather than the will of any government or mob. The Lord distinguishes us by His grace and redemption. • O dreadful and severe Judge, wonderful and mysterious are Your judgments. You are so jealous for Your people's pure praise, sanctified by the blood of Your beloved Son. Keep us in the one true faith. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:1 Hebrews. See note, Gn 14:13.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:2 Moses highlighted Pharaoh's obstinate resistance.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:3 the hand of the LORD will fall. See p 842. plague. Usually translated "pestilence" (5:3), it is any infectious outbreak. The Eng term came to describe all 10 wonders by which God struck the Egyptians. upon … livestock. Possibly murrain, similar to anthrax, which could affect the grazing cattle and other domestic animals, destroying the wealth of the Egyptians. God could have used the flies (8:21) to carry the bacteria now infecting the animals.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:5 the Lord set a time. To this plague, God adds a warning and a time for the Egyptians to respond. They could rescue their animals by trusting the Lord's word and segregating their livestock from animals in the fields (cf v 20). The protected cattle survived (vv 19–21).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:6 All … died. Those in the field (cf vv 3, 19). The sin of one man who thought he was a "god" had not only personal but also communal repercussions. Herds and flocks were equivalent to wealth.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:7 sent. Confidential messengers confirmed that the cattle of the Israelites had been spared. heart of Pharaoh was hardened. Threat, promise, judgment, and mercy made no impression on him (cf Ps 51).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:1–7 Despite the number of times Pharaoh goes through the cycle of sin, oppression, regret, and deliverance, God will not be mocked. God deals another detrimental blow to the Egyptian religious and economic systems. By God's grace, Israel is delivered from temporal judgment and destruction. The Lamb of God delivers us from sin, death, and the devil through His atoning blood. • Heavenly Father, many smile when Your precious Word of Law and Gospel is condemned. Many hear of redeeming grace in Your Son, Jesus Christ, and rail against Him in thought, word, and deed. Protect us as we bear witness to all who are hardened to Your Word. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:8–10 Soot blew like dust over the land, and God used it to make boils break out on people and animals.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:8 kiln. Smelting furnace or limekiln for firing the bricks the Israelites were forced to produce (1:14; 5:7–19). The kiln is now an instrument of chastisement against the Egyptians.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:9–10 boils. Skin swollen in abscesses and blisters as a result of disease (see note, v 3). land of Egypt. See note, 8:22.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:11 magicians could not stand. Boils and pustule abscesses seriously affected leg and joint movement (cf Dt 28:35).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:12 the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh. See note, 4:21. The Lord confirmed Pharaoh in his persistent unbelief. "Even Pharaoh perished in this way. (Of whom it is written [in Exodus 9:16; Romans 9:17], 'But for this purpose I have raised you up, to show you My power, so that My name may be proclaimed in all the earth.') This was not because God had begrudged him salvation or because it had been His good pleasure that Pharaoh should be damned and lost. For God is not willing that any should perish [2 Peter 3:9]; '[He also has] no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live' (Ezekiel 33:11)" (FC SD XI 84). them. Pharaoh's counselors. See note, 6:30.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:8–12 The magicians collapse under the Lord's chastisement; both people and animals are smitten by painful skin abscesses. The Lord again distinguishes His people in this plague by sparing the Israelites and their animals. The blessings God gives us should extend beyond us to bless even our animals! If the Lord shows such mercy to sheep, how much more shall He show mercy toward you? His Gospel rescues us from sin, death, and the devil. • Dear Father in heaven, You saved me by grace through faith in Christ, Your Son. As long as this corrupt nature clings to me like a dead corpse, teach me to say, "Forgive me, for I am a wretched sinner worthy of punishment." Free me, O Lord, for I am helpless without You. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:13 Hebrews. See note, Gn 14:13.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:13–10:29 These three preparatory plagues will be exponentially greater than the previous one and will prepare Pharaoh for the final plague of judgment. God did not destroy Pharaoh with just one act of judgment in order that (1) Pharaoh might glorify God, and (2) the name of the Lord might be declared to the ends of His kingdom.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:14 this time I will send all My plagues. Difference of degree. Previous plagues (blood, frogs, gnats, flies, livestock, and boils) failed to touch the hard heart of Pharaoh.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:15 pestilence. See note, v 3.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:16 I have raised you up. Kings reign by God's permission. See note, Rm 9:17. My name … proclaimed. See note, Jsh 2:10.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:17 still exalting yourself. Though the Lord had distinguished Israel, Pharaoh's attitude toward them had not changed.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:18 heavy hail. Hail of great size in awful volleys, accompanied by thunder and fire (lightning; v 23).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:19 See notes, vv 5, 20.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:20 whoever feared. Some of Pharaoh's servants had come to believe Moses. livestock into the houses. A sign of divine mercy and rescue. Herds of cattle were turned out to pasture between Jan and Apr, so this plague would have killed range cattle. Other plagues threatened the livestock as well.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:21 Those who ignored God's warning would reap the prophesied judgment (vv 22–26).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:24 fire flashing. Lightning intensified the threat (cf Ezk 1:4).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:25 every plant. Probably occurred in Jan or Feb, when the flax and barley were in flower but the wheat and emmer had not yet germinated (vv 31–33).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:27 This time I have sinned. The supernatural aspect of this plague, esp the terrible violence of the hailstorm, made a stronger impression upon Pharaoh than the previous plagues. Pharaoh finally admitted limited guilt.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:30 fear the LORD God. See p 1001.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:31 flax and the barley were struck down. Not yet ripe but in ear and in blossom. See note, v 25. flax. Used for Egyptian linen; a valuable crop.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:32 wheat and the emmer. Grain for making bread.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 9:13–35 Pharaoh mocks God with false repentance, but the Lord is unmoved. Sinners cannot bargain with God by conceding some of their sins or by amending behaviors. God sees through it all. Like the thief on the cross, we do not appeal to mockery but instead call on God's mercy. Jesus is always ready to forgive. • O Lord Christ, I am the worst evil; You are the highest good. But You took my sin and gave me Your righteousness. I am led to this confession through Your Law and Gospel-promises. O faithful God, my merciful Redeemer, grant that I trust in You alone. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:1 hardened his heart. See notes, 4:21; 9:12.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:2 tell … your son. Israelite children were taught the story and lessons of the exodus. Parents were obligated to teach the mighty works of God to their children. See note, Pr 1:8; cf 12:26–27; Ps 105:26–38; 106:7–12; 136:10–16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:3 Hebrews. See note, Gn 14:13. How long. The Lord demanded homage from Pharaoh, not just the worship of the Israelites.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:4 locusts. Swarms as never seen before in Egypt; the exceptional destruction showed that God was judging the people (cf Am 7:1–3).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:7 snare. Lethal trap for animals; figurative expression for ultimate destruction. Let the men go. Another compromise was considered.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:8 serve. Worship. But which ones ... ? Bargaining to prevent the loss of slaves.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:9 must hold a feast. A sacrificial feast to the Lord. Moses would not compromise.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:10 The Lord be with you. Not a blessing but a threat. Pharaoh took a divine prerogative by supposing that the Israelites were his slave people and as such were Egyptian property.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:11 This concession was not serious. The women and children would be held as hostages against the return of the men.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:13 The wind blew a day and a night, evidence that the locusts came from a great distance, proving to the Egyptians that the omnipotence of Yahweh extended beyond the borders of Egypt.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:14 never been before, nor … again. A miracle of magnitude. Cf Jl 1:1–4; Rv 9:3–10.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:15 darkened. A dense army, annihilating any vegetation that had remained after the hail.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:17 forgive my sin. See notes, 4:21; 9:12. remove this death. Locusts would bring utter ruin to Egypt's agriculture.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:19 turned the wind. By means of a strong west wind, the Lord cast the locusts into the Red Sea so that they would perish. Not a single locust. Yet another miracle.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:20 hardened Pharaoh's heart. See notes, 4:21; 9:12.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:1–20 Pharaoh seeks compromise and even forgiveness, but his pride still refuses to bend to the will of God. Sinners of the worst description are to be admonished by the Law, even if there is little hope of amendment. God strengthened Moses' faith by saying that the hardening of Pharaoh was according to His divine will so that the signs would confirm to Israel and all successive generations that the Lord is God (cf 7:3–5). Pharaoh's confession was only a pious platitude, but for us the gift of confession is beautiful—the Holy Spirit moves us to agree with God that we sin and deserve punishment, and for the sake of Christ, we receive the gift of absolution. • My God and my Lord, I know that when I confess my sins to You, You are faithful and just and will cleanse me from all my unrighteousness for the sake of Your Son, my Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:21 a darkness to be felt. Possibly, God caused a great, swelling sandstorm so that the sky was darkened (except where the Israelites lived). The Egyptians' sun god (Ra) could not grant them light.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:24 Yet another attempt at compromise. Pharaoh sensed that the conflict was ultimate and not just about a onetime trip for a worship festival.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:26 Moses was firm. The Lord would not negotiate with Pharaoh.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:27 hardened. See notes, 4:21; 9:12.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:28 you shall die. Pharaoh fell into such vengeful wrath that he sent Moses away under threat. Pharaoh's murderous intent would return against him in the last plague.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:29 I will not see your face again. Ironic statement during a plague of darkness! This marks a decisive turning point; the last blow would be followed by the release of the people. When people drive God's Word from their midst, He gives them over to their own delusions.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 10:21–29 The plague of darkness removes any ability to move freely, as was possible with the first several plagues. Sinners mock God's Word and in so doing deceive themselves. The Egyptians would soon be exposed to the destroyer and the death of the firstborn as a testimony that the Lord is patient and slow to anger, but at the proper time, judgment will come. Thanks be to God that by the vicarious sacrifice of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, we are His children through Holy Baptism, forgiven, cleansed, and protected from the final judgment. • O Lord, do not look upon me with condemnation. But look at the righteous face of Your dear Son, Jesus Christ, my Mediator, High Priest, and Savior. O Father, be gracious and merciful for His sake. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:1 Yet one plague more. The 10th plague is the final judgment of God, who revealed this to Moses during his last meeting with Pharaoh (10:28–29; 11:8).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:2 The Israelites were to ask the Egyptians for articles of silver and gold, which the Lord would make them willing to give.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:3 favor. See note, 3:21. Pharaoh's servants wanted God's wrath to end after so much suffering. Moses was very great in the land. Moses' fame in Egypt influenced Pharaoh's servants and people to give freely.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:4 I will go out. The continuation of Moses' brief answer in 10:29; at midnight of the Passover.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:5 every firstborn … shall die. Cf Ps 105:36; 135:8. On the great importance of a firstborn son, see "firstborn," p 6. The daughters were not killed in this plague (cf 4:22–23). behind the handmill. See note, Jgs 16:21. cattle. The plague was to fall upon the firstborn of both people and animals as God's judgment of Pharaoh's sinful conduct in imprisoning the Israelites and their cattle. See note, 9:20.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:6 a great cry. An oriental custom in the case of death.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:7 not a dog shall growl. Perhaps a proverbial expression. As a severe storm approaches, animals hide and are silent; dogs would be inconspicuous, not uttering a sound. Not the slightest injury would come to the Israelites. distinction. See note, 8:22. While Egypt was given into death, Israel would be saved through divine intervention.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:8 bow down. Pharaoh had lost his people's respect. See notes, v 3; 6:30. hot anger. Occasioned by the king's threat (10:28), Moses left Pharaoh in great wrath, pointing to the judgment of God.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 11:9–10 Ends Moses' negotiations with Pharaoh, which began in ch 7. All these events served God's plans for Israel and Egypt.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 11 God's final judgment is about to come upon Pharaoh and Egypt. The hardened king will see that God's patience has come to an end and His wrath is imminent. The 10th plague will bring judgment upon sin and its wages (Rm 6:23). In our stead, our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, took upon Himself the full punishment for all our sin so that we will not die an eternal death. • Dear Father, I commend my spirit into Your merciful hands. Receive my prayer because of the blood, sufferings, and death of Your only-begotten Son, Jesus Christ, my Lord and Savior. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:1–28 The institution of Passover took place at the Lord's command. The Lord established Israel as a nation by the Passover (cf Is 43:15).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:2 first month of the year for you. Nisan (Abib). See calendar, p 262. Starting the year with Passover reminded Israel that all its life as the people of God was grounded in God's redemptive act in the exodus.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:3 a lamb. Lit, "a young one," either a sheep or goat (v 5). The sight of the lamb provided the occasion for remembrance and instruction regarding God's mercy and deliverance from their oppressor. See note, 10:2. according to their fathers' houses. See note, 6:14; see also pp 54–55. Only the members of one family or family circle should gather together, not an indiscriminate company.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:5 without blemish. To be fit for sacrifice and as a symbol of the moral integrity of the person represented by the sacrifice. Cf 29:1; Lv 1:3; Nu 6:14; Dt 15:21. male. Taking the place of the firstborn males of Israel. year old. From the eighth day of its life to the end of its first year; a law that also applied to other sacrifices (22:29–30; Lv 22:27). sheep or … goats. At the time of Josiah, kids were still used as well as lambs (2Ch 35:7). The imagery here is frequently applied to Jesus (cf Jn 1:29; 1Co 5:7; 1Pt 1:19; Rv 5:6; 7:14; 12:11.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:6 Ritual slaughtering and dressing of the sacrifice took place at the same time for each household. twilight. See ESV note. From the moment the sun sinks below the horizon to the time of total darkness (cf 29:39, 41).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:7 blood. A sign for the Lord to spare the Israelite households and not permit the destroyer to enter them (vv 13, 23). doorposts … lintel. Blood surrounded the entry, marking the home as under the Lord's protection (cf Heb 9:22; 1Jn 1:7). By marking across from post to post and then from the lintel downward, a cross pattern is formed in the entryway. Jesus Christ is "the propitiation for our sins" (1Jn 2:2; 4:10). He is "our Passover lamb" (1Co 5:7).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:8–9 roasted. As shepherds cook; reminiscent of Israel's pastoral life during the patriarchal years.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:8 that night. The night of the 14th of Nisan. See calendar, p 262.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:9 its head with its legs and its inner parts. So a bone would not be broken (v 46). This, too, points to Christ (Jn 19:36).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:10 let none of it remain until the morning. A rule later given for all the sacrificial meals except the peace offering. The household was to eat and remember together (vv 26–27), with some urgency (v 11). Realizing our sin in bitterness and brokenness of heart, we eagerly feed upon Christ (Mt 26:26–29; Mk 14:22–25; Lk 22:17–20; 1Co 11:23–25).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:11 The Israelites were to be prepared for the flight from Egypt without terror or panic (Dt 20:3; Ps 31:24) and dressed in traveling garb. belt fastened. So walking would not be hindered. sandals on your feet. Prepared for rough terrain. staff in your hand. For protection and support. Passover. Hbr pesach; used for the holiday, the sacrifice, and the paschal (Passover) lamb (v 21; 2Ch 35:1, 13). The verb form also appears in v 27. The preparation of the lamb in accordance with divine instruction was later transferred to the whole seven-day observance of the Feast of Unleavened Bread (Lv 23:4–8), which began with this meal and the sacrifices that were to be offered at that feast (Dt 16:1–2; 2Ch 35:1, 7). See note, 13:6–7. Ter: "Even Moses prophesied … and added that 'it was the passover of the Lord,' that is, the passion of Christ" (ANF 3:167). See notes, 1Co 5:7–8.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:12 strike all the firstborn. See note, 11:5. on all the gods … judgments. See notes, 7:20; 8:2–4; 10:21. The Egyptians worshiped these gods through their kings and certain sacred animals such as the bull Apis and the goat Mendes, the firstborn of which all died. When animals sacred to the gods died, this demonstrated that the gods were powerless to resist the one true God. Cf Is 19:1. I am the LORD. See notes, 6:2, 8.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:13 a sign for you. God placed the Israelites under the sign of the blood on the houses in which they were assembled; this in turn was a sign of God's mercy that no plague should fall upon them. Cypr: "When the world shall begin to be desolated and smitten, whoever is found in the blood and the sign of Christ alone shall escape" (ANF 5:464). plague. See note, 9:3.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:14 Remembrance was to be maintained by repetition of the feast and the celebration of their new life of fellowship with the Lord (Nu 9:1–5; Jsh 5:10; 2Ch 30:1–27; 35:1–19; Jn 2:23; 6:4; 11:55).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:15 unleavened bread. Leavening was a symbol of sin (cf Lk 12:1). Abstaining from leaven symbolized the new life cleansed from the sinful nature (v 19). cut off from Israel. See notes, Gn 17:14; Lv 17:4; cf Ex 31:14; Lv 20:2–5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:16 a holy assembly. A call to the congregation by trumpet (Nu 10:2) to worship the Lord (Ezk 46:3, 9; Is 4:5). No work. Except for the preparation of food. On the Sabbath, even food preparation was prohibited (35:2–3).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:17 Feast of Unleavened Bread. Vv 18–19 explain the progress of this seven-day festival (cf Mk 14:12). See pp 200–201. hosts. A military term meaning army or multitude (see note, 7:4). this day. Israel was released from Egypt on the early morning of the 15th of Abib (Nisan). See calendar, p 262.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:18 fourteenth day of the month … twenty-first day of the month. Because the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt on the 15th of Abib, they were to keep the memorial of their creation as the people of the Lord as a seven-day feast to seal the covenant relationship (see note, v 2).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:19 no leaven … cut off. See note, v 15. sojourner. A non-Israelite living among the people but not circumcised. native of the land. Israel, after settlement in the Promised Land.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:21 elders. See note, 3:16. clans. See pp 54–55. Passover lamb. See notes, v 11; Jn 1:29; Heb 7:26; see also pp 170–71.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:22 hyssop. Probably wild marjoram or a kind of thyme, later used in atonement rituals. See note, Ps 51:7. Cf Lv 14:49–53; Nu 19:18–19. The plant's lengthiness is noted in Jn 19:29. dip it in the blood. Cf Heb 10:29; 12:24. blood. See note, v 7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:23 pass over the door. See note, v 7. destroyer. Refers to an angel that administers God's judgment through pestilence (2Sm 24:15–16; 2Ki 19:35; Ps 78:49; 1Co 10:10).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:24 rite. Lit, "word." statute. Something declared as fixed or established, such as a decree. See p 971.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:25 When dwelling in the Promised Land, they were to explain this service to their children through oral tradition. After the Passover recorded in Nu 9:1–5, Israel did not celebrate this feast until they crossed into the Promised Land (cf Jsh 5).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:27 bowed their heads and worshiped. Showing their faith and gratitude for the salvation they were to receive in the Passover.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:28 Emphasizes that Moses (prophet) and Aaron (priest) proclaimed God's Word.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:1–28 Passover marks a new era for the people of Israel and foreshadows the new, spiritual Israel in Christ, the perfect Lamb who takes away the sin of the world (1Co 5:7; Heb 7:27). • O Lord, I am in need of a Shepherd to seek and save me, for I am a straying sheep. You are the Good Shepherd, who seeks and saves the lost. Save me, O Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:29 midnight. All Egypt was asleep; Pharaoh and his people would be shocked out of their sleep of sin. firstborn. An earlier pharaoh had ordered the death of all newborn sons (1:22). Those who fashion a snare for the righteous often fall into the same pit (Pr 28:10). The Lord punished the Egyptians with the death of the firstborn only, which by comparison seems merciful.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:30 Pharaoh … all … all. A national tragedy. The sons who were to inherit the rule of Egypt and the leadership of their families were lost. See note, 11:5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:31 summoned. Or, "proclaimed to." Cf 10:28–29. A pronouncement rather than a face-to-face meeting seems likely. by night. Note the urgency. serve. Worship. as you have said. Pharaoh is not granting total independence, but the requested time for a festival (10:25–26).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:32 and bless me also! Prayer was requested at other departures (8:8, 28; 9:28; 10:17). This is a special plea, in view of the suffering.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:29–32 The final plague takes place at midnight, as all Egypt lies in deep sleep; every firstborn son dies. Pharaoh comprehends that this plague is certainly God's punishment. The exodus has begun; salvation has arrived by God's grace. Today the Lord desires our freedom from oppression, especially the oppression of sin, which is why He sent His only-begotten Son. • O Father, grant that we may be your heavenly children. Teach us to be mindful of our souls and our heavenly heritage so that our earthly pilgrimage and inheritance may not deceive, limit, or hinder us. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:34 before it was leavened. The Lord had anticipated this circumstance in His Passover instructions (cf v 15). Under pressure of necessity, the people were obliged to content themselves with unleavened bread; thus it was also called the bread of affliction. cloaks. Folded and knotted cloaks served as shoulder bags, as depicted in ancient art.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:35–36. See note, 11:2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:35 People attended sacred festivals wearing their best. The Israelites had been held captive to forced labor and poverty and were now paid in full.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:36 favor. See note, 3:21; cf Gn 39:21; Ezk 39:10. Dread also moved the Egyptians to compliance.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:37 Rameses to Succoth. See map, p 120. six hundred thousand men. Commentators calculate that there were more than two million Israelite men, women, and children. The number of men 20 years of age and older at Sinai was 603,550 (38:26; Nu 1:46), and there were 22,000 male Levites a month old and upward (Nu 3:39).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:38 A mixed multitude. A throng of foreign people attached themselves to the people of Israel. Cf Gn 12:3; Dt 29:11; Zec 8:23. They may have become a snare to Israel later. See note, Nu 11:4.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:40 430 years. The round number 400 is used in other places (e.g., Ac 7:6).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:41 on that very day. The day of the exodus (v 14). hosts. See note, 7:4.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:42 a night of watching by the LORD. The Lord passes over and preserves Israel to bring His people out of Egypt.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:33–42 After 430 years in Egypt, most of them spent in slavery, Israel begins its exodus into religious freedom, which centers on freedom to worship and sacrifice to the one true God. The troubles of Israel's departure from Egypt are merely the introduction to a new life of liberty, which comes with burdens and responsibilities. God Almighty preserves His people from the destroyer and brings Israel out of the land of bondage by grace alone. Teach about this salvation to your children. Also explain our exodus from sin and death granted through our Lord Jesus. • O Father and God of all comfort, through Your holy Word, grant us a firm faith that delivers us from sin, death, and the devil. By Your gift of faith, may we overcome every trial and realize what Your Son Himself says is true: "Take heart; I have overcome the world" (Jn 16:33). Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:43–49 Regulations concerning those who could partake of the Passover.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:43 foreigner. A dweller or settler who lived permanently among the Israelites without being received into their religious fellowship.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:44 slave … circumcised. By virtue of a divine call, not through biological descent, Israel became God's children, predestined to become a blessing to all nations (Gn 12:2–3). Slaves were to be included in the Passover celebration via circumcision.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:45 Visitors working for wages were not to eat of the Passover because they stood in an external and impermanent relationship to Israel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:46 outside the house. Cf vv 7–11; 22. you shall not break any of its bones. See notes, v 9; Jn 19:36.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:47 See note, v 14.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:48 If a foreigner living among the Israelites wished to keep the Passover, he was first to be spiritually incorporated into the nation through circumcision (Gn 17:9–14). Cf 1Co 11:28 for the parallel for participants in the Lord's Supper. See p 300.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:49 one law. No uncircumcised man was to partake (v 48).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:50–51 A summary of ch 12 and a bridge to ch 13.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 12:43–51 The Lord gives supplementary regulations concerning the Passover due to the fact that Egyptians and likely other persons (v 38) have joined themselves to the Israelites. As the Lord brought His people out of the prison of Egypt by His grace, so our Lord Christ, through His crucifixion in our stead, sets people of all nations free from the prison of sin, death, and the devil. • Christ, my Savior, You atoned for all of my sins with Your precious blood. In the Sacrament, You give me Your true body and blood for the forgiveness of sin. May I abide in this new freedom and the blessings of Your precious blood until I reach the promised land. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:1 The LORD said. The Lord will personally guide Israel by His Word on the journey ahead (vv 21–22).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:2 God claimed Israel's firstborn as His own because He rescued them from the 10th plague, making the firstborn a firstfruit offering to the Lord. See pp 170–71. This consecration, or setting aside, served two functions: (1) Collectively, the firstborn represented all Israel, whom God chose as His own firstborn among the nations (4:22–23). (2) As individuals, the firstborn were living reminders of this calling in every home (e.g., Joseph and Mary presented Jesus, Mary's firstborn, at the temple). Scripture describes firstborn sons as receiving a double portion of the inheritance, a special blessing, and headship of the family (see note, Gn 25:31).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:1–2 The firstborn of Israel belongs to the Lord. As our Creator and Savior, Jesus claims each of us as His own. This claim presents a formidable challenge. It means that we must yield our lives to Jesus, consecrating ourselves as living sacrifices to Him (Rm 12:1–2). We are not up to the task, but Jesus consecrates us by His precious sacrifice on the cross, which gives us amazing benefits: adoption into His family (Rm 8:15), opportunities to make a genuine difference in this world (Eph 2:10), and the grand expectation of eternity with Him (Php 3:20–21). • I praise You for Your salvation, O Lord, because You chose and consecrated me as Your own. Thank You for Your infinite grace and mercy. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:3 house of slavery. Phrase used here for the first time; the feast is now a celebration of freedom. No leavened bread. See notes, 12:15, 34.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:4 Abib. See notes, 12:17, 18; see also calendar, p 262.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:5 Amorites … Jebusites. See note, Gn 10:16, see also p 345. land flowing with milk and honey. See note, 3:8.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:6–7 Institution of annual seven-day celebration beginning the day after the Passover and ending with a feast. Israel ate bread without yeast all seven days. It became known as the Feast of Unleavened Bread. See note, 12:11; see also pp 200–201.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:8 tell your son. God furnished object lessons, such as the unleavened bread, for parents to use in teaching their children about God's salvation. Cf v 14; 10:2; see note, Pr 1:8. Luth: "The children of Israel, whenever they turned to repentance, remembered above all their exodus from Egypt, and remembering turned back to God who had brought them out. Moses impressed this memory and this protection upon them many times, and David afterwards did the same. How much more ought we to remember our exodus from Egypt, and by this remembrance turn back to him who led us through the washing of regeneration [Titus 3:5], remembrance of which is commended to us for this very reason!" (AE 36:60).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:9 as a sign … and as a memorial. A figure of speech telling the Israelites to keep the object lessons on hand and remember God's salvation. See notes, Dt 6:8, 9. Passages of Scripture in small boxes, called phylacteries, were discovered at Qumran. Devout Jews strapped them to their foreheads as an act of prayer. Over time, this practice became an empty ritual; Jesus criticized aspects of this practice in Mt 23:5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:10 appointed time. God directed Israel to observe the Passover and Feast of Unleavened Bread every year at this time.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:11–12 God repeated Himself (v 2) to underscore His promise of land and His requirement to set apart all the firstborn.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:11 When the LORD. Statement of certainty —"when," not "if." The promise points to a specific location—Canaan—and is linked to Israel's patriarchs. you. God made the promise personal.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:12 first opens the womb. See note, v 2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:13 donkey … man. Two special cases. First, the donkey was not acceptable as a sacrifice (Lv 22:19). The people were to redeem a firstborn male donkey by sacrificing a lamb or by breaking the donkey's neck to kill it without spilling blood (blood made it a sacrifice). Second, the Israelites were to consecrate their children to life rather than to death, so this command effectively prohibited human sacrifice. Cf Gn 22:13 and note. The offering of a lamb in place of a human points to Jesus Christ, the Lamb offered by God on our behalf. redeem. Buy back for a price. See p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:14 What does this mean? See note, v 8.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:15 I redeem. Stresses the personal nature of this instruction. See p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:16 See note, v 9.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:3–16 The Lord sets Israel apart by instituting observances that help them remember their freedom won in the exodus. Today, God gives us a new start and calls us into a life that is pure and set apart for Him. But we are unfit to come into God's presence unless someone provides a way. Jesus offered Himself as the perfect, "once for all" sacrifice (Heb 10:10). He purifies us from our sin and consecrates us so that God can call us His own. • Lord, let me grasp the magnitude of what You have done for me so that I may praise and thank You for giving me a new start! Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:17 by way of the land of the Philistines. A direct trade route to Canaan ran along the coast and passed a series of fortified Egyptian outposts and Philistine settlements. Egyptians called this the Way of Horus. It is also known as the Way of the Sea. See map, p 120. see war. Egyptians controlled this route and would obstruct Israel's journey. The Lord had earlier planned for Israel to worship at Sinai. Cf 3:1, 12.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:18 Israel traveled in an organized fashion, but as former slaves they would have had poor weaponry (probably only tools) and no military training. God's presence ultimately equipped them for battle (cf Eph 6:10–18). Red Sea. Hbr yam suph, "sea of reeds." Vegetation floats on the water and washes up to the shore. The name is broadly associated with waters of the Gulf of Suez and also the Gulf of Aqaba (cf Nu 21:4; 33:1–11; Dt 1:40; 2:1). It is not known precisely where they crossed. See note, 14:2; see also map, p 120.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:19 bones of Joseph. A man of faith, Joseph knew that God would bring His people out of Egypt, so he had asked that his embalmed body be taken for burial in the Promised Land.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:20 Succoth … Etham. See map, p 120.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:21 pillar of cloud … pillar of fire. Supernatural column of clouds. "Fire" can describe lightning (9:24; see notes, 19:18; Jb 1:16).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:22 did not depart. God was present with His people day and night.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 13:17–22 The Lord leads Israel out of Egypt 430 years after they entered it because of Joseph. Joseph had expected God to "visit" His people (Gn 50:25), but he might have been surprised and pleased to learn that God does not cut the visit short. The Lord has become Israel's traveling companion and guide. God meets Israel where they are, shows them the way, and brings them along by His grace. Similarly, He knows that we are not able to come into His presence on our own; in fact, we sometimes go the other direction altogether! He knows our situation, meets us where we are, and walks with us by day and night to bring us into His kingdom. • Lord, thank You for coming to us in Christ and for not leaving us to fend for ourselves. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:1 See note, 13:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:2 Pi-hahiroth. "Region of salt marshes." Location unknown. Migdol. "Watchtower." Any of several locations. Baal-zephon. "Baal of the north," suggesting a Canaanite influence on this area. Site unknown. See probable route on map, p 120.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:3 Because the area south and east of Egypt was a wilderness, Pharaoh would conclude that Israel missed the main road to Canaan and lost their way.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:4 harden. See notes, 4:21; 9:12. God used Pharaoh's arrogance to illustrate His care for His people. get glory over Pharaoh. The Lord plans a final blow. The conclusive defeat of Pharaoh would prove God's superiority. the Egyptians shall know. Cf Jsh 2:8–11; 1Sm 6:6. they did so. Cf 12:50. Luth: "The exodus of the Children of Israel from Egypt was not only physical. Indeed, it was spiritual at the same time, as the apostle states clearly in 1 Cor. 10:1–4" (AE 29:157).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:5 fled. Israel had not just gone out to worship, but had left with no intention to return to slavery in Egypt (see note, 12:31). Pharaoh and his servants. Now united in purpose. See note, 6:30. we have let Israel go. They would not admit that God had forced them to let Israel go.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:6 he made ready. Pharaoh personally led the pursuit of Israel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:7 The 600 chariots were probably an elite corps with special status and training, while the rest operated as part of the regular army. Each chariot usually carried a driver, an archer or weapons specialist, and an officer to coordinate their attack.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:8 going out defiantly. Not planning to return.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:9 God resolved this conflict at a place where Israel was trapped in a dead end.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:10 marching. Egypt's army and chariots were coming into view. cried out to the LORD. Israel responded as it should, by seeking the Lord's deliverance.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:11–12 Though Israel cried for help, they also attacked Moses and the Lord's motives. Neither the Egyptians nor most of the Israelites understood that God was in complete control of this situation. Moses had not told them God's plans (vv 3–4).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:11 no graves in Egypt. A sarcastic complaint against Moses and the Lord.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:12 Without eyes of faith, the Israelites could see only two alternatives—one bad, the other worse: slavery in Egypt or death in the wilderness. They did not consider that God would save them from disaster.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:13–14 Moses was confident of God's salvation but did not hesitate to turn to God with his concerns. Moses served as an intermediary between God and the people, speaking to God on behalf of the people and speaking to the people on behalf of God. This foreshadows Jesus Christ in His role as mediator for us.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:13 salvation of the LORD. See p 843. Israel would see God save them from the Egyptian army, which represented their old life of slavery (cf Is 52:10).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:14 The LORD will fight for you. Salvation does not depend on anything humans do or avoid doing; it is a gift from God. Israel did not need to save itself from the Egyptian army.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:15 Moses had been praying, but it was time for Israel to move. Luth: "One should not despise a Christian person…. He is precious in God's sight and his prayer is powerful and great, for he has been sanctified by Christ's blood and anointed with the Spirit of God. Whatever he sincerely prays for, especially in the unexpressed yearning of his heart, becomes a great, unbearable cry in God's ears. God must listen, as he did to Moses, Exodus 14 [:15], 'Why do you cry to me?' even though Moses couldn't whisper, so great was his anxiety and trembling in the terrible troubles that beset him. His sighs and the deep cry of his heart divided the Red Sea and dried it up, led the children of Israel across, and drowned Pharaoh with all his army, etc. This and even more can be accomplished by a true, spiritual longing. Even Moses did not know how or for what he should pray—not knowing how the deliverance would be accomplished—but his cry came from his heart" (AE 43:248).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:16 Lift … stretch … divide. The Lord worked through Moses, affirming his leadership. through the sea on dry ground. An unimaginable route with unimaginable conditions.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:17 harden. See note, v 4.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:18 know that I am the LORD. See note, v 4.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:19 angel of God. Separate from and guiding the cloud. See p 39. behind them. For defense.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:20 the darkness … lit up the night. By the cloud, the Lord protected Israel and provided them with light while leaving the Egyptians in darkness.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:21 Moses stretched out his hand. See note, v 16. a strong east wind. Blowing from behind the Israelites to push back the water and dry the exposed seafloor. Since the water parted in two directions (v 22), wind was only part of the miracle.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:22 sea. See note, 13:18.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:23 The pillar of cloud and fire now moved aside and allowed the Egyptian army to resume their pursuit.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:24 morning watch. Three to six a.m. the LORD in the pillar of fire and of cloud. See note, v 19; see also p 39.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:25 clogging their chariot wheels. The wheels began to sink into the sand and mud. the LORD fights for them. The Egyptians finally saw God's intervention, fulfilling v 18.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:26 Stretch out your hand. The water's return to its place was no accident.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:27 fled into. Cf v 25.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:28 host. The army, which Pharaoh assembled for pursuit (v 9). Troops stationed at other places would not have been included here. not one … remained. God's victory is complete. Pharaoh and some commanders may have survived if they were directing the army from the rear. Survival, though, meant living with defeat, which would be a fitting punishment for their arrogance.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:29–31 A summary of the miracle God orchestrated to save Israel and distinguish them as His people.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:30 the LORD saved Israel. The water killed the Egyptian army, which represented Israel's old life of slavery, but God miraculously brought Israel through the water and into a new life of freedom. See "salvation," p 843. These actions foreshadowed the deliverance promised in Holy Baptism (1Co 10:2). Egyptians dead on the seashore. An eyewitness confirmation that the old threat was gone.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 14:31 feared … believed in the LORD. When God demonstrated His power and righteous judgment, Israel could not help but realize their weakness and sin, so fear and belief were the appropriate response (cf Is 6:5). See p 1001.

EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 14 God miraculously brings Israel through the waters, but this is more than simply passing a geographic barrier. When Israel crosses through the sea, they leave behind slavery and a future of death in Egypt for freedom and a future of life with God. Israel is powerless to make this drastic change on its own, but God intervenes to provide the way. We need this kind of drastic change in our own life or we are doomed to slavery in sin and death. God has intervened for us in Baptism (1Co 10:1–2), saving us from our old slavery in sin and bringing us into the new freedom of the Gospel. • "The LORD is my strength and my song, and He has become my salvation; this is my God, and I will praise Him, my father's God, and I will exalt Him. The LORD is a man of war; the LORD is His name" (15:2–3). Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:1–18 A poetic celebration of God's saving Israel from the Egyptians (vv 1–12) and anticipating salvation from the Canaanites (vv 13–18).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:1 sang this song. A God-given, on-the-spot composition. his rider. Possibly cavalry riders, used as scouts, but most likely the riders in the chariots. See ESV note. thrown into the sea. Cf 14:27.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:2 my strength and my song. God sustains His people and inspires them to praise Him in song (cf Ps 118:14; Is 12:2; Rv 15:3). Luth: "If you want to be a maker of God, come here and listen. He wants to teach you the art so that you do not err and make an idol but make the true God as he really is. Not that you are to create his divine nature, for it is and remains eternally uncreated; rather, you are to make him God for you, so that he might also be for you a true God, as he is for himself a true God…. Learn to remember him, that is, as has been said, by preaching, praising, honoring, listening, and giving thanks for the grace revealed in Christ…. When this takes place, you have made him the true God for yourself, and by means of such a confession you have upheld his divine glory…. It is true that such worship takes place devoid of all splendor and does not appeal to the eye according to the flesh; but it fills the heart, which otherwise neither heaven nor earth could fill…. That praising and thanking God is the same as adorning and decorating God is plainly written in the Song of Moses, Exodus 15 [:2]: 'This is my God, and I will praise him, my father's God, and I will exalt him.' See, there you are told how you can make your God beautiful, embellish, adorn, and paint him in the nicest way, place a wreath and crown upon him, deck him out with brooches and chains, and you need no money or bronze for it; but you must believe with your heart and praise him with your mouth, listen to his praise and grace with your ears, and whatever else has been said above" (AE 38:107–8).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:3 The Lord is a man of war. God is a warrior fighting for His people (14:14). The Lord approves of and participates in just wars. See p 376.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:4 chosen officers. See note, 14:7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:5 This was the final punishment for Egypt's arrogance. Centuries later, Jeremiah would predict a similar punishment for Babylon's arrogance (Jer 51:63–64).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:6 right hand. See p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:7 consumes them like stubble. Quickly.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:8 blast of Your nostrils. A figurative description of God's wrath and of the east wind. congealed. God made the separated waters stand aside in their assigned place.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:9 I will. Repeated four times; reveals Egypt's arrogance.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:10 You blew. See note, v 8. mighty waters. Ambr: "Even then holy baptism was prefigured in that passage of the Hebrews, wherein the Egyptian perished, the Hebrew escaped. For what else are we daily taught in this sacrament but that guilt is swallowed up and error done away, but that virtue and innocence remain unharmed?" (NPNF 2 10:318).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:11 Who is like You. Repeated twice to emphasize God's unique status. majestic in holiness. The Lord is great and separate from all rivals. God's defeat of the Egyptians and their gods (idols) was obvious, and Israel witnessed this in the cloud and the battle action.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:12 right hand. See p 843. earth swallowed them. Refers to the grave.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:13 steadfast love. See p 843. redeemed. Rescued from Egypt. See p 843. guided … to Your holy abode. Looks forward to Israel's arrival at God's holy mountain, their entry into Canaan, and perhaps to the temple on Mount Zion (Gal 4:25).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:14–15 Prophetically lists the nations Israel would encounter on the way to the Promised Land, roughly in order.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:14 peoples have heard. See note, Jsh 2:10.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:16 pass by. One of the verbs used to describe God's "passing through" Egypt (12:12, 23). Israel would cross the territory of other nations on their way to Canaan. purchased. Hbr qanah, another expression for "redeemed." See "redeem," p 843.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:17 plant them on Your own mountain. See note, v 13. Mount Zion, Israel's spiritual home.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:18 Israel would become God's kingdom (19:6).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:19 Summary of events that prompted Moses' song of praise.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:20 Miriam the prophetess. Miriam was one of only a few prophetesses in the Bible. See p 389. dancing. Part of the celebration of God's victory. A "round" dance, performed in a circle; a typical dance for women (cf Jer 31:13).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:21 Miriam and the women apparently picked up the first phrase of Moses' song and sang it as a chorus.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:1–21 Moses praises the Lord for victory and anticipates future victories. The Israelites are just beginning to understand how badly they have needed God's rescue from Egypt and to see the life with God into which He is bringing them. In the light of God's Law, we begin to see how badly we need God's rescue. And in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, we can begin to see the humbling extravagance of God's grace. • "Who is like You, O LORD, among the gods? Who is like You, majestic in holiness, awesome in glorious deeds, doing wonders? You stretched out Your right hand; the earth swallowed them. You have led in Your steadfast love the people whom You have redeemed; You have guided them by Your strength to Your holy abode" (15:11–13). Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:22 wilderness of Shur. East of Egypt, in the northwest part of the Sinai Peninsula. See map, p 120. Nu 33:8 calls this the wilderness of Etham. Both mean "fortress wall" (shur is Hbr; etham is Egyptian).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:23 Marah. Probably modern Ain Hawarah, along the east side of the Gulf of Suez, 50 mi from its north end. See map caption, p 120. bitter. It probably contained dissolved minerals that gave the water a disagreeable taste. The people were used to a very different water source in Egypt.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:24 people grumbled. First of many instances in which Israel grumbled against Moses, a mark of unbelief (1Co 10:10).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:25–26 statute … rule … commandments … statutes. With this incident, the Lord began to lay down some rules to discipline the immature nation. He introduces covenant language, as He had with the patriarchs (e.g., Gn 26:5). See p 971.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:25 showed. The word for God's Law (i.e., "instruction") is a form of this verb. log. See ESV note. God had provided the solution years earlier, when the tree first grew. water became sweet. A miracle; no natural reason for this result is apparent. Perhaps the tree represented life, communicating to onlookers that the water was cleansed. tested. See note, Gn 22:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:26 diseases … I put on the Egyptians. A mark of divine punishment. Cf 12:23. I am the LORD, your healer. Israel is to look to God for health and sustenance (cf Dt 32:39). Physicians were highly prized in the Egyptian culture, from which Israel had just departed.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:27 Elim. Means "large trees," probably in the Valley of Gharandel, c 7 mi S of Marah. See map, p 120. Date palms were highly valued as a source of food and shade.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 15:22–27 The Lord patiently supplies Israel with drinking water. Without water, there is no life. We need water to refresh our body; without it, we die. And if we go without spiritual refreshment, we will die eternally. However, God meets this spiritual need for us just as certainly as He slaked Israel's thirst at Marah. • Jesus Christ, Living Water, refresh us in this wilderness so that we may pass the test and prove You faithful by our faithful obedience. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:1 One month had passed since leaving Egypt. A group of this size, with livestock, would likely have traveled no more than 10 mi per day and would have required intervals of rest.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:2 whole congregation … grumbled. Collectively, the nation once again showed its lack of confidence in God's chosen leaders.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:3 died by the hand of the LORD. Israel tested God with illogical, unwarranted faultfinding. meat pots. Slaves were not often given meat, so the people were fantasizing about the best moments of their life in Egypt.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:4 bread from heaven. God would provide bread through a daily miracle. This gift foreshadows the gift of Jesus as the bread of life (Jn 6:47–51). test … whether they will walk in My law. God set simple rules about when and how to gather the bread to test Israel's confidence in His daily care for them. walk. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:5 The people were to gather twice as much on the sixth day so that they would not have to gather food on the seventh day of the week, which was the Sabbath.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:6 you shall know. If they had eyes of faith to see and understand, they would see that God's provision of food confirmed His intent to save and sustain Israel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:7 see the glory of the LORD. The provision of bread should remind Israel of God's presence.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:8 grumbling. A sin against God, which He will judge.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:9–10 Come near before the LORD. How this happened is not entirely clear. It seems that the Lord drew near to them in the cloud. glory … in the cloud. See note, 13:21.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:12 I have heard. God loves His people too much to ignore them.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:13 quail. Small game birds that migrate through this area in large numbers. Their migration was a mark of God's providence.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:14 fine, flake-like thing. Some scholars think this was a natural occurrence. However, no manna was found on the Sabbath, which makes a natural phenomenon unlikely. Moses, who had lived in the wilderness, simply noted that it was "bread that the LORD has given" (v 15).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:18 Whether by sharing or by God's unseen intervention, each person had just the right amount of manna to eat.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:19–20 The people were supposed to gather only enough manna for one day, but some disregarded the command and tried to hoard some for the next day. The rotting food revealed their disobedience.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:20 it bred worms. Probably maggots from flies.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:22–30 God used manna to teach Israel at least three lessons: (1) They were to rely on Him (gathering manna one day at a time). (2) They were to obey Him (not hoarding the manna). (3) They were to have special regard for the Sabbath (seventh-day exception to gathering).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:23 rest, a holy Sabbath to the LORD. The seventh day of the week had been set aside as a day of rest and holiness at creation, but it is first named here. Sabbath. Hbr means "stop" or "rest." See note, Gn 2:2.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:26 there will be none. The Sabbath was for rest (vv 29–30).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:27 some … went out to gather. A sign of unbelief and disobedience.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:28 God challenged Moses over the people's disobedience (v 27) because as the intermediary (see note, 14:13–14), Moses represented Israel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:29–30 God explicitly commanded the people to rest rather than search for food on the Sabbath. They finally took God at His word. Their search was a symptom of arrogance rather than faith.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:31 manna. See ESV note, v 15. coriander seed … wafers made with honey. Because the Israelites did not know what it was, they described it by comparison.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:32 kept throughout your generations. Dt 8:3 explains the lesson God gave Israel in furnishing the manna; God directed that a portion be kept as evidence, or a testimony, for future generations.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:33 place it before the LORD. Anticipating the jar's preservation in the ark of the covenant.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:34 placed it before the testimony. The action probably took place after the ark of the covenant and the tabernacle were built. Moses would place the jar, the tablets of the Law, and Aaron's rod that budded (Nu 17) in the ark of the covenant as a testimony to what God had done for Israel. testimony. See p 971.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:35 ate the manna forty years. Until they arrived in Canaan and could procure their own food.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 16:36 omer. See p cx.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 16 God meets Israel's need for food with bread from heaven. However, when the Israelites ignore God's simple rules for its collection and consumption, they provoke an exasperated rebuke from God (vv 28–29). Israel does not understand at the time, but God is blessing them through this experience, training them in the rhythms of work and Sabbath rest. These rhythms still apply for us today because we require both physical rest and rest from our sins through the righteous labors of Jesus. • Lord, lead us in productive labor and healing rest, even as You labored to grant us rest by Your cross and resurrection. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:1 congregation. See p 6. Rephidim. Probably the Wadi Refayid in southern Sinai. See map, p 120; see also note, v 8.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:2–3 test the LORD*?* Despite His promise of sustenance (16:4), the people accused God of abandoning them.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:3 our livestock. Herders were nearly as concerned for their animals as for their families.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:4 this people? Reflecting their estrangement, Moses did not call them "my people" or "Your people." ready to stone me. The Israelites are in rebellion against Moses and, by extension, God. Cf 8:26.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:5 the staff with which you struck the Nile. This staff was a symbol of God's authority. See note, 4:2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:6 I will stand. A theophany. See p 39. strike the rock. Dt 32:4, 15, 18, and 31 identify God as "the Rock." Ambr: "For them water flowed from the rock, for you Blood flowed from Christ; water satisfied them for a time, the Blood satiates you for eternity…. You after drinking will be beyond the power of thirsting; that was in a shadow, this is in truth" (NPNF 2 10:323). Luth: "Faith is the prerequisite before everything. If one has faith, all other things gush forth from it, like water from the rock and stone" (AE 11:146). Luth: "St. Paul does not say that the rock which Moses struck is Christ. His words say very plainly: They ate of the same spiritual food of which we eat, and they drank of the same spiritual drink of which we drink, and so forth…. He does not say that Christ is signified by, but that Christ himself actually is, the spiritual Rock—the one signified by that physical rock. That is why Paul was careful to add the word 'spiritual' to the word 'Rock,' so that no one could ever construe it to mean that physical rock. Moreover, he says it was a Rock which was yet to come, from which they drank spiritually" (AE 36:280–81).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:7 Is the LORD among us or not? The Lord shows them plainly that He is present with them. They have not yet learned to live by faith. See "presence," p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:1–7 When Israel runs out of water, they grumble instead of turning to God, their Rock, for help. God in His graciousness does not deal with them according to their folly but furnishes the water they desperately need. He was stricken Himself for what they deserve. Christ Jesus is the Rock of Israel and our Rock of salvation. • O Lord, our Rock, grant us the insight of faith, and give us the stability, refuge, and living water that we need. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:8 Amalek came and fought. A nomadic tribe, descended from Esau (Gn 36:12, 16). Israel may have been camped near or between Wadi Refayid and Wadi Feiran, and Amalek would not want them to use either oasis. Rephidim. See map, p 120.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:9 Joshua. See note, Jsh 1:1. go out and fight. Joshua chose men to lead into battle, but this succeeded only as God willed it.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:11 held up his hand. Moses held his hands spread out in prayer, appealing to God for help. See "stretch out hands," p 1277. Cypr: "By this sign of the cross also Amalek was conquered by Jesus [Joshua] through Moses" (ANF 5:524).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:12 Aaron and Hur held up his hands. They assisted Moses, setting an example for believers to support their leaders in prayer.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:14 memorial in a book. Possibly the Book of the Wars of the Lord (Nu 21:14). See pp 3–5. Moses witnessed to the knowledge and practice of record keeping and sacred history. recite it in the ears of Joshua. Joshua may have acted as a scribe. These events anticipated Joshua's future leadership of Israel as well as additional battles with Amalek. blot out … Amalek. War of annihilation against Amalek.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:15 The Lord Is My Banner. Hbr for "banner" is related to "staff," linking the altar to the place where Moses prayed over the battle against Amalek.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:16 hand upon the throne of the Lord! Amalek tried to lay a hand upon the Lord's property, a serious offense.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 17:8–16 Israel learns firsthand as they fight enemies such as Amalek that success depends on the Lord. Without the Lord's direction and strength, they will lose. Victory comes by God's intervention. • Heavenly Father, fight for us as we look to You in times of difficulty. Strengthen and protect us as we face challenges and enemies. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:1 Jethro, the priest of Midian. See notes, 2:16, 18.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:2 sent her home. When and why this happened is unclear. Cf 4:24–26, after which Zipporah is not mentioned until here.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:3–4 Gershom … Eliezer. See notes, 4:25, 26.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:5 mountain of God. Sinai. See note, 3:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:7 bowed … kissed. Customary greeting of courtesy and respect.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:8 delivered. See p 842.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:9 Jethro rejoiced. Cf Nu 22:4–7. The elders of Midian did not have Jethro's regard for the Lord and saw Israel as a threat.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:10 Blessed be the LORD. See p 842.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:11 greater than all gods. Jethro had not believed in one God, but now he recognized the Lord as supreme. Cf 2Ki 5:15; Jnh 1:16 for similar confessions. dealt arrogantly. See note, 15:9.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:12 A fellowship meal, marking their shared faith in the Lord.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:13 sat to judge. As the judge, Moses sat. Litigants and witnesses stood.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:14 sit alone. Moses tried to be judge for the entire nation.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:15 to inquire of God. To seek resolution of disputes through Moses, their intermediary with God. See "seek," p 843.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:16 the statutes of God and His laws. Rules introduced in ch 12 and 15:25–26. Decisions were probably made case by case. The practice of law and justice was important to the Lord in ordering Israelite society, as the details of the Books of Moses show. The Lord worked through Moses—a judge—to write these first books of Scripture.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:19 God be with you! See "be with," p 5. Jethro advised Moses on how to delegate his workload, but also recognized that God must authorize and direct the process.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:20 make them know the way. Moses should educate the people and resolve disputes. See "way," p 844.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:21–22 These judges worked administratively under the auspices of Moses.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:21 fear God. This would make the men trustworthy and immune to bribes. See p 1001.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:23 God will direct you. Jethro's reorganization did not rule out God's direction but respected it.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:24 listened to the voice. Moses humbly accepted Jethro's advice.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:25 heads … chiefs. This hierarchy of leadership, based on existing offices, provided Israel with a practical system of government that they had not developed while in Egypt.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 18:27 his own country. Midian. See map, p 120.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 18 Moses serves as chief mediator between God and the Israelites, and God uses Moses and his subordinates to teach the people about Himself through His Law. God also uses Moses to provide access to Him, since the people come to Moses to seek God's will. This role of Moses foreshadowed Jesus, our mediator with the Father. God has revealed Himself in Jesus for all to see, and through Jesus we may approach God as one of His own children. • Jesus Christ, our mediator, judge and guide us so we may be Your faithful servants who minister in Your name. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:1 third new moon. Late May or early June. Cf 12:2; see calendar, p 262.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:2 Rephidim … wilderness of Sinai. Southeastern Sinai Peninsula. See map, p 120. Modern surveys of the area have suggested the Er-Raha plain as a potential place for a large Israelite encampment. The peak Gebel Musa stands close by. The traditional site is marked today by St Catherine's Monastery. This remains the best possible site, though the absolute location where Moses received the covenant cannot be determined.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:3 went up to God. Ascended the mountain to talk with God.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:4 on eagles' wings. Metaphor for their speedy salvation and rescue from Egypt.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:5 keep My covenant. As a response to His covenant promise (cf 6:5), the people were to obey God. See p 127. My treasured possession. They would enjoy a relationship of grace and forgiveness (cf Eph 2:8–10).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:6 kingdom of priests. As the consecrated priests would stand between God and His people, so the people of Israel would act as priests to the world, set aside by God for service, witness, and prayer. Israel would be a priest to all the nations of the world. See pp 1565–66. Today, Jesus perfectly mediates between sinners and God; the Church also intercedes (1Pt 2:9). Luth: "Do not despair after sin, but lift your eyes on high to where Christ intercedes for us. He is our Advocate. He intercedes for us and says: 'Father, I have suffered for this person; I am looking after him.' This prayer cannot be in vain" (AE 30:236).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:7 elders. See note, 3:16. See p 228.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:8 we will do. The people are confident they can fulfill the Law. Chem: "God restrains this arrogance by manifesting their sin and His wrath by the voice of the Law" (LTh 2:458).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:9 God publicly authenticated Moses as His spokesman so the people would have no doubt about the source of the Law that Moses would give them.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:10 consecrate. See p 6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:11 in the sight. The people would be able to see the cloud and lightning and hear the thunder (visible manifestation of God's presence). See note, v 18; see also p 39.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:12–13 The people were to come close to the mountain but not touch it. God is holy, and the people are sinners. Sinners could not approach God without being destroyed.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:14 consecrated. See p 6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:15 do not go near a woman. Refers to sexual intercourse, which rendered men ceremonially unclean for a short time (cf Lv 15:16–18). See p 300.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:16–19 God's power and majesty were overwhelming, striking fear into the hearts of all who were there.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:18 Lord had descended on it in fire. Physical manifestation of the living God. See note, v 11. Fire and smoke often signaled God's presence, esp in the context of covenant and promise (cf Gn 15:17). See p 39.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:22–23 consecrate. See p 6. Even the priests who drew near to God in their duties were not exempt from this requirement. No one was to set foot on the mountain. The repetition underscored the seriousness of the command and also helped people commit the rules to memory. (At this time, most people were illiterate; see pp 1081–83.)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 19:24 bringing Aaron. Aaron served as Moses' "mouthpiece" and also helped lead God's people (4:14–16).

EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 19 God's people, rescued from slavery in Egypt by His grace, go to Mount Sinai, where God establishes His covenant with them. Sinfulness prevents the people from approaching God personally. Yet God graciously appoints an intermediary, Moses, through whom He makes His covenant with His people. Thanks be to God, we can approach Him with confidence through our mediator, Jesus. • O Lord, deliver and consecrate us this day in the renewal of our Baptism, that we may lead lives that honor You. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:1 words. Hbr dabar; see p 971.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:2 I … you. The Lord directly addresses each individual of Israel. your God. The God who established a covenant with Abraham and Moses (cf 3:14) and who holds authority over these people.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:3–17 Though traditionally known as the Ten Commandments, the term "commandments" occurs only in v 6. See note, 34:28. The list proclaims both Law (vv 3–17) and mercy (vv 2, 6). According to the Jewish Mishnah, reciting the Ten Commandments was a significant feature of temple liturgy (Tamid 5:1).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:3 Prohibits any other gods from Israel's exclusive relationship with Him. See note, Dt 32:39; see also SC, First Commandment, p xxxv. before Me. Lit, "in front of My face."
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:4 carved image. Explanation of v 3. See p 141. Cypr: "Idols are not gods, and … the elements are not to be worshipped in the place of gods" (ANF 5:498).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:5 jealous. Hbr qanna', adjective used esp of God; associated with term for "zealous" and "passionate." God prohibits worshiping other gods because, as in any good marriage, the relationship does not admit third parties. See note, Hos 4:13. This was not sinful jealousy, but a righteous desire for His people to be faithful. visiting the iniquity. Bringing the deserved condemnation. of the fathers on the children. Sin, which is inherited (Ps 51:5), corrupts and affects families. Consider how children often repeat the sins of the parents and then suffer the consequences. Our relationship with God is both individual and corporate. However, note two things: God pictures His mercy here as being much greater than His wrath. Every person stands before God in judgment based on his own relationship with God, not another's (cf Dt 24:16). See SC, First Commandment, p xxxv. Luth: "'Although the Law does not justify, it is nevertheless extremely useful and necessary. In the first place, it acts as a civic restraint upon those who are unspiritual and uncivilized. In the second place, it produces in a man the knowledge of himself as a sinner, who is therefore subject to death and worthy of eternal wrath.' But what is the value of this effect, this humiliation, this wounding and crushing by the hammer? It has this value, that grace can have access to us. Therefore the Law is a minister and a preparation for grace" (AE 26:314).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:6 steadfast love. See p 843. commandments. See p 971.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:7–17 God no longer speaks directly to the people (see note, v 2), but Moses speaks for Him. Cf v 19.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:7 The commandment prohibits taking oaths or vows in the Lord's name, which one does not intend to keep. See "oath," p 7. in vain. Without meaning (i.e., to use it unnecessarily or casually). See SC, Second Commandment, p xxxv.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:8 Remember. Pay attention to. Sabbath. Hbr means "rest" or "stop." keep it holy. Keep it special by being separate from other days. It is meant for rest and worship. Cf Dt 5:12–15 for emphasis on worship as reexperiencing the saving acts of God. See "holy," p 7; see also SC, Third Commandment, p xxxv. According to Ne 13:17–19, the Sabbath began when it grew dark (Friday night).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:11 Follow God's example by resting. People worked six days a week, 12 or more hours per day. They needed a day of rest, primarily for the soul (cf Mt 11:28). the LORD blessed the Sabbath day. Declared it special, set apart for Him. See note, Gn 2:3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:12–17 Whereas the first set, or "table," of commandments (vv 3–11) describes a person's actions toward God, the second set, or "table," describes one's actions toward others.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:12 Care for parents was esp needed during old age, during funeral and burial rites, and about a year after burial, when the bones of the deceased were gathered to the family bone pile. See note, 1Ki 2:10. Honor. Hold in high regard, respect and obey. See SC, Fourth Commandment, p xxxv. your days may be long. See note, Eph 6:3. land. Canaan.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:13 murder. The unauthorized taking of human life, whether premeditated, in anger, or by carelessness. See SC, Fifth Commandment, p xxxv; see also note, Gn 9:6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:14 adultery. Specifically refers to a married person engaging in sexual activity with someone other than his or her spouse. See SC, Sixth Commandment, p xxxv. See also pp 2120–21.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:15 God forbids taking private property, which shows approval of the concept of private property in human economy. Ultimately, He is the owner of everything (cf Ps 50:10). See SC, Seventh Commandment, p xxxvi.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:16 bear false witness. Lie under oath in court. See SC, Eighth Commandment, p xxxvi.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:17 Understood as two commandments. See SC, Ninth and Tenth Commandments, p xxxvi. Unlike the early commandments that address actions, these two focus on intentions. Ambr: "Love of money, then, is an old, an ancient vice, which showed itself even at the declaration of the divine law" (NPNF 2 10:63). covet. Hbr chamad, desire or crave. neighbor's. Member of another household. ox. Large cattle were important contributors to the household and were kept nearby or in homes. See pp 380–81.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:20 God has come to test you. See note, Gn 22:1. God graciously gave the Israelites a tangible experience of His presence so they would take these commands seriously. Luth: "If He were to come to deal with us in His true person and majesty, we would be lost. No one would believe it if He were to utter a word strong enough to resound from heaven to earth. No one would be able to endure a voice as great and powerful as the one on Mt. Sinai, when He spoke with trumpet blasts amid a great display of thunder, with the entire mountain on fire and enveloped in smoke, as is recorded in Ex. 19 and 20" (AE 22:308). fear of Him. See p 1001. not sin. Their "fear" included saving faith and the personal, awesome experience at Sinai. Motivation for keeping the Law included not only respect for God as One who punishes sin but also simple trust in Him, which leads to joyful obedience.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:21 thick darkness where God was. A veil for the glory of God; the visible symbol of His majestic presence. See note, 33:19–23.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:1–21 God reminds His people that He graciously rescued them in the exodus, impresses them with His majesty and presence, and establishes a covenant with them to guide their service as a "kingdom of priests." Human sin means that the Law, a reflection of God's own righteousness, always condemns us. Therefore, the Lord comforts His people by reminding them first of His mercy toward them. He made them His people, a blessing He extends also to us (1Pt 2:9–10). • "You have this Law to see therein That you have not been free from sin But also that you clearly see How pure toward God life should be. Have mercy, Lord!" Amen. (LSB 581:11)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:22–23:19 The laws and topics provided in the Book of the Covenant receive more detailed treatment in Lv and Dt. They appear to address the immediate issues of the people dwelling in Sinai.

Later, the laws could more fully anticipate how the people would live in the Promised Land. Mel: "There are three general divisions of the Mosaic law: the moral laws, the ceremonial, and the civil or judicial laws…. The ceremonial laws of Moses and the civil laws are not commanded to the other nations, nor are they binding upon us. They were given to the people of Israel for that time in order that the political structure might continue for a definite period of time, so that there might be a specific place in which the Christ should be born and reveal Himself, be proclaimed, and become the sacrifice and openly complete the work of our eternal life…. The moral laws have been summarized by God in a remarkable way on one small table, which is called the Decalog [Ten Words]" (Chem, LTh 2:342).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:23 make gods. See note, v 4. No image made by human hands was to depict God. He would give the people markers of His presence among them in the sanctuary (chs 25–26). Luth: "We believe and confess the one true, almighty, and eternal God. But [the evangelist John] states expressly that three distinct Persons dwell in that same single divine essence, namely, God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit. The Father begets the Son from eternity, the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son, etc. Therefore there are three distinct Persons, equal in glory and majesty; yet there is only one divine essence" (AE 22:5–6).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:24 altar of earth. Edifice of earth, stone, or other material upon which animals were sacrificed. Cf 38:1–2. sacrifice. See pp 170–71. I cause My name to be remembered. As we meditate on God, His Word, and His works of salvation. See note, Ps 1:2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:25 Carving stones for an altar verged on violating the First Commandment (v 4). Canaanite altars discovered at Ugarit were made with cut stones and steps.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:26 nakedness. Climbing steps increases exposure; the altar was to have a ramp instead. Respectful covering of one's sexual organs implied deference to the One who created man and woman (cf Gn 9:22–23). Exposure of the sexual organs was disrespectful, esp in the presence of God, who had covered humankind (Gn 3:21). Priests were required to wear linen undergarments (Ex 28:42).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 20:22–26 Ch 20 marks the beginning of the Book of the Covenant (20:22–23:19), in which the Ten Commandments are explained and applied. Humans constantly run the risk of idolatry, making something or someone else "god" in their lives (cf Dt 4:15–20). Here God regulates worship, helping His people to receive His Word and to trust Him for salvation. To worship the God of the First Commandment is to worship the triune God, the Holy Trinity. • "The Lord, my God, be praised, My light, my life from heaven; My maker, who to me Has soul and body given; My Father, who will shield And keep me day by day And make each moment yield New blessings on my way." Amen. (LSB 794:1)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:1–23:9 Egyptian civil law differs from Israelite civil law, which bears greater resemblance to the laws and practices of Mesopotamia, from which Abraham's family came (cf esp the Code of Hammurabi, c 1728–1686 BC).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:2 Hebrew slave. Economies based on slavery were common throughout the world and still exist today in various forms. God regulated the practice in Israel, establishing certain rights for slaves and setting time limits on their bondage. See p 101. free, for nothing. After six years of service, the owner was required to set the slave free without charge. The slave was in some respects like a contract employee with protection and rights under law but "owned."

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:3–4 The rights of both the owner and the slave were protected. These verses reflect the common legal and social context of the second millennium BC.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:5–6 Options for the slave included perpetual bondage to his master (a "permanent contract"), by which his family would also remain intact. Slave owners also had an obligation to slaves, providing housing, food, and humane treatment.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:6 bring him to God. By a public oath before the leading men of the community. See "oath," p 7. bore his ear. Pierced ears marked a slave in Israel.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:7 sells his daughter. People sold their children into service during times of famine, when they could not afford to feed them. See note, Mt 18:25.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:8 designated her for himself. Betrothal; similar to our engagement but legally binding. redeemed. Her family could buy her back. See p 843. broken faith. The woman had certain rights under the Law and, if it was broken, she was free. The owner/husband was required to keep his social and legal commitments to her. See note, 1Ch 2:7. It was esp important that she remain among her people.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:10 another wife. Polygamy was not necessarily approved by these provisions (see note, Gn 4:19), but God protected the rights of women in polygamous marriages. A husband had to provide for her physical welfare and fulfill his responsibility to her. See pp 54–55. marital rights. Providing her with sexual relations and children. See notes, Gn 30:3, 15.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:13 God let him fall into his hand. Describes an unintended or accidental act of manslaughter. God does not cause the death but allows it. a place to which he may flee. A city of refuge, where such a person would be safe from retribution from the victim's family. See notes, Jsh 20:7–8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:14 you shall take him from My altar. Not even the ultimate sanctuary (the horns of God's altar) would protect a person who intentionally murdered another human being. Cf 1Ki 1:49–53.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:15–17 Parents represent God's order; therefore, an attack on mother or father is tantamount to an attack on God's order. See p 1291.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:16 steals a man. Kidnaps.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:18–19 Principles of legal liability. The attacker would compensate the victim for lost wages and medical expenses.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:20 slave. See p 101. avenged. Punished in proportion to the crime.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:21 survives a day or two. The owner was given the benefit of the doubt, and the death would be considered accidental or unintentional. A master was permitted to discipline his slaves physically but not to maim them (they would then immediately go free) or kill them (the master would then be punished). Slaves had greater human rights under God's Law than under the laws of many nations.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:22 as the woman's husband shall impose. The plaintiff (the husband) would sue for damages (set the amount of the suit), and a court would decide the case. judges determine. Elders of the village constituted the community's judicial body. See p 792.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:23–25 if … harm … life for life. Proportional justice. Equal injury would be inflicted on the attacker. God considers unborn children human beings.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:28–32, 35–36 The owner of an animal that caused harm for the first time had no way of knowing the animal was dangerous; the owner was relatively free from liability. However, if the animal had shown aggressive inclinations or had previously caused harm, the owner was clearly liable under the law for all damages.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:30 redemption. See p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:32 thirty shekels. See note, Gn 37:28.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:1–32 Through Moses, God gives a variety of "guiding decisions," precedent-setting legislation that would guide Israel's courts throughout the coming generations. Slavery (vv 1–11) and homicide (vv 12–36) occupy the first two parts of this guide. Because we, God's people, continue to sin, even though we are justified by faith, we need God's Law as a guide in life. God's Law shows that He values all people, including slaves, women, and children (cf Gal 3:26–29). All people are sinners, and our gracious Lord makes His forgiveness available to all. • "My gracious Master and my God, Assist me to proclaim, To spread through all the earth abroad, The honors of Thy name. He breaks the pow'r of canceled sin; He sets the pris'ner free. His blood can make the foulest clean; His blood avails for me." Amen. (LSB 528:2, 4)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:1 repay five. Punitive damages (over and above the actual cost of the animal) may have been assessed because the oxen and sheep would have been the source of a family's income.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:2–3 Nighttime intrusion would make it hard for the homeowner to know whether the intruder meant to harm or merely to steal. Lethal force would be justified in such a case. However, if the intrusion occurred during daylight hours and it was evident the intruder meant only to steal, then lethal force would not be justified. See note, 1Ki 2:31.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:4 pay double. Because the animal was recovered safe in contrast to the animal in v 1.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:5–6 make restitution … make full restitution. Repetition for emphasis. Luth: "A sincere Christian believer has all the possessions of God and is a child of God. The time of his life, however, is but a pilgrimage. For through faith the spirit is already in heaven, and this makes him lord over all things. But God permits him to remain alive in the flesh and lets his body walk the earth in order that he may help others and bring them to heaven too. Therefore we must use everything on earth in no other way than as a guest who travels across country, comes to an inn where he must spend the night, and takes nothing but food and lodging from the innkeeper. He does not say that the innkeeper's property belongs to him. Thus we must also deal with temporal goods as if they did not belong to us. We must limit our enjoyment of them to what is necessary for the preservation of the body. With the rest we must help our neighbor" (AE 30:35).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:7–9 Details of the procedure to establish rightful ownership were not recorded (cf 1Ki 3:16–28).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:8 shall come near to God. Seek God's decision in the matter. Moses did not describe the exact process, perhaps because it was well known. Cf 1Sm 14:40–42; see "seek," p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:9 both parties. Both claimants appeared before the judges as God's representatives for a decision. Cf ch 18.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:11 An oath in the name of the Lord was taken seriously and would be considered sufficient "proof" of the trustee's innocence. See "oath," p 7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 21:33–22:15 Sinful human nature always seeks its own welfare, even at the expense of others. God graciously regulates society for the benefit of all His people. We will never experience an all-peaceful "heaven on earth," but God's mercy and the forgiveness of sins allow us to enjoy His peace and blessings now. • "Give me Thy courage, Lord, to speak Whenever strong oppress the weak. Should I myself the victim be, Help me forgive, rememb'ring Thee." Amen. (LSB 844:4)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:16 bride-price. See note, Gn 34:12. make her his wife. Sexual intercourse was tantamount to marriage, only to be regularized with a ceremony.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:18 sorceress. A woman who practiced witchcraft (fortune-telling, casting spells, etc.). Witchcraft attempted to know, avoid, or alter the Lord's will. See note, Dt 18:10–11.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:20 devoted to destruction. See p 6.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:26 cloak in pledge. Shows the high value of garments, due to the labor and material required to make them by hand. return it. Each evening, out of compassion for the borrower (who needed it to keep warm at night), the lender should return the cloak used as collateral. This large, square outer garment was wrapped around the body or draped over the shoulder, similar to a Roman toga, and reached down to the knees.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:27 in what else shall he sleep? The poor often had only this garment (v 26) in which to sleep. compassionate. Hbr chanan,

"to be gracious, generous." The Lord cares about people, particularly the poor. His compassion supports all these regulations. Luth: "Christ demands only that your life give tangible evidence of your love toward your neighbor. He says: 'It would please Me, and I would be satisfied, if you, as members of one body under one Head, show one another fidelity and benevolence, friendship, service, and assistance; if you do not stir up factions and schisms among one another and thus destroy love'" (AE 24:251).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:28 curse a ruler. In their office, rulers represented God. Cf Rm 13:1–7; see "curse," p 6.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:29 firstborn … give to Me. Giving God firstfruits showed respect for Him as owner of all the world and submission to Him as Lord. Firstborn animals were to be sacrificed, and firstborn children were to be redeemed. See notes, 4:22; 13:2; cf Lk 2:22–23.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:31 consecrated. See p 6. throw it to the dogs. Kept as pets in Egypt; dogs in Israel more often roamed in packs, scavenging for food in villages and towns. See note, Php 3:2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:3 nor … partial. Justice must be impartial. Neither rich nor poor should have an advantage in court.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:5 If an animal collapsed under its burden, help was to be given the animal and its owner, even if the owner hated you (Lv 19:18).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:7 righteous. See p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:8 Justice must not be perverted—it must be fair, honest, and impartial. Bribes were forbidden.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:9 You know the heart of a sojourner. A traveler lacked protection and was often at the mercy of the locals. Israel should recall they all were "travelers" in Egypt and treat the sojourner with compassion and respect.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 22:16–23:9 The Lord regulates human relations with sensitivity toward the poor and powerless, yet also with high regard for impartial justice. God protects the poor and vulnerable by building compassion and respect for justice into Israel's social laws. His two ways of Law and Gospel manifest themselves constantly for our good. • "To those who help in Christ have found And would in works of love abound It shows what deeds are His delight And should be done as good and right." Amen. (LSB 579:3)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:11 The poor were allowed to forage in the fields during the Sabbath Year. See p 206.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:12 Cf Ex 20:8–11. A reminder of the Sabbath Day designed to refresh land, animals, and humanity. See p 206. Luth: "Man was especially created for the knowledge and worship of God; for the Sabbath was not ordained for sheep and cows but for men, that in them the knowledge of God might be developed and might increase. Therefore although man lost his knowledge of God, nevertheless God wanted this command about sanctifying the Sabbath to remain in force. On the seventh day He wanted men to busy themselves both with His Word and with the other forms of worship established by Him, so that we might give first thought to the fact that this nature was created chiefly for acknowledging and glorifying God" (AE 1:80).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:13 make no mention. Cf 20:3. God bound Israel to Himself in an exclusive relationship much like marriage (see note, 20:5).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:14–17 The three great festivals of the OT. See pp 200–201.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:17 all your males appear before the Lord GOD. All family heads were to make these three annual pilgrimages to Jerusalem (cf Lk 2:41). Women and children also attended (cf 1Sm 1).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:19 The best of the firstfruits. God received the first and the best of what He gave to Israel. Cf 22:29. boil a young goat. Rabbinic texts ascribe this practice to the Ishmaelites. Milking the mother, and then boiling her kid in that milk, is painfully ironic and disrespectful toward the life-giving relationships God established between the creatures and the people they feed and sustain. This law reinforces the fact that animals were used for food, but it also enforces an attitude of respect and care for animals as living creatures. See notes, Gn 9:3, 4.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:10–19 The Lord connects the Sabbath with regulations on rest (cf Ex 20:8–11) and worship (cf Dt 5:12–15). Rest refreshes the body; worship refreshes the soul. By nature, greed impels us to work all the time in an effort to accumulate wealth, exhausting both the body and soul for mere possessions. God generously provides all we need in six days of labor and calls us to trust Him enough to take time off for rest and worship, for He is our dearest treasure. • "Hence, all earthly treasure! Jesus is my pleasure, Jesus is my choice. Hence, all empty glory! Naught to me thy story Told with tempting voice. Pain or loss, Or shame or cross, Shall not from my Savior move me Since He deigns to love me." Amen. (LSB 743:4)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:20–21 I send an angel … obey his voice. See "angel," p 5. for My name is in him. God's name signifies His authority and presence in this messenger. See "angel of the LORD," p 1227.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:23 See p 345.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:24 break their pillars in pieces. Stones (resembling pillars) were set up as worship sites for false gods. God wanted these pagan worship structures destroyed. See note, Gn 28:18.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:25 bless your bread and your water. God provided for their daily needs. See "bless," p 842. I will take sickness away. Physical health and well-being were part of God's gifts to His people. See note, 15:26.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:26 the number of your days. A full length of life.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:28 People Israel would conquer. See p 345.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:29–30 As numerous as the Israelites were, they would not yet fill the land. A general conquest would come quickly (Dt 9:3), but a complete conquest would require time (see pp 338–40).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:32 A covenant is a binding agreement that would have indicated peaceful coexistence with these pagan peoples, who could become a fatal snare through their false gods and fertility religions. See p 127.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 23:20–33 God promises to drive out Israel's enemies ahead of them if they remain faithful to Him and to the covenant given them through Moses. Because the Israelites fail to do as God commands, they fall victim to the false gods of the Canaanites. Despite Israel's failure to keep God's command, God preserves a remnant of Israel from which is born Jesus, Savior of all nations. • "God loved the world so that He gave His only Son the lost to save, That all who would in Him believe Should everlasting life receive." Amen. (LSB 571:1)
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:1–2 Moses (the leader), along with priests and elders (religious and state leaders), represented the people in the covenant confirmation. See note, 3:16. See also p 228.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:3 with one voice. Showing consensus and unity.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:4 wrote down. Cf v 7. twelve pillars. Stones were piled up to make pillars as a memorial of the event (cf Jsh 4:4–7). See note, Gn 28:18.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:5 young men. Designated for the task (cf 19:22), since the Levitical priesthood had not yet been established. offerings. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:6 blood he threw against the altar. How covenants were made. See note, Gn 17:7. An animal was sacrificed, and the agreement was sealed by its death and blood. This is the establishment of the agreement between God and His people.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:7 Book of the Covenant. See p 127. Book. Lit, "scroll."
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:8 took the blood and threw it on the people. See pp xxvi–xxx.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:10 they saw. No one could see God and live, but the elders did not die. The Lord is never described physically in this passage, but Moses describes the place where the Lord appeared (see p 39). the God of Israel. Describes God's acceptance of His people and the intimate fellowship between God and sinners (cf 33:18–20).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:11 ate and drank. The degree of fellowship is evidenced by the shared meal. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:12 tablets of stone. See note, 31:18. I have written. God set the terms. He initiated the covenant with His people by rescuing them from Egypt.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:13 Joshua. Moses' aide and second-in-command. He would later lead the people into the Promised Land. See note, Jsh 1:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:14 elders. See note, 3:16. See also p 228. Hur. Probably the son of Caleb, one of two faithful spies.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:15–18 went up. Moses and Joshua continued up the mountain to a point at which Joshua stopped and Moses ascended farther. Moses waited until the seventh day and then entered the presence of the Lord.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:16 Moses does not inform us about his activities during the previous six days.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 24:17 the glory of the LORD. See pp 6–7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 24 Moses ascends Mount Sinai to receive the terms of the covenant God makes with His people, concluding the Book of the Covenant begun in ch 20. Sin creates an impassible barrier between God and people. By the blood of the covenant, the Lord anticipates the forgiveness of sins in Jesus, who would become "sin" for us in order to redeem us (2Co 5:21). • "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow" (Ps 51:7). Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON Chs 25–40 The account of building the tabernacle is paralleled by similar accounts from the rulers Gudea of Lagash and Samsu-iluna of Babylon, and the Baal myth of Ugarit. Moses records the account in a known literary style that includes God's command, preparations, manufacture, consecration, and blessings.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:1 The LORD said to Moses. Formula that occurs seven times in chs 25–31 (25:1; 30:11, 17, 22, 34; 31:1, 12), perhaps echoing the repetition in the story of creation (Gn 1). The seventh use (31:12) introduces the Sabbath.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:2 From every man … contribution for Me. Not an obligation but a voluntary offering.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:3–7 Describes highest quality materials.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:3 gold, silver, and bronze. The closer to the Most Holy Place, the more precious the metal. The tabernacle and its furniture were gold (v 24), bases (26:19–21) and anchoring hooks were silver (27:10–11); items in the court were bronze (27:1–3; 30:17–18).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:5 acacia. Hard wood, brown to orange in color, used for cabinetmaking.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:7 ephod. A vest. See note, 28:36.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:8 sanctuary. See p 7. that I may dwell in their midst. God would now dwell among His people in His sanctuary. The sanctuary's three spheres of holiness were reminiscent of those at Mount Sinai: (1) At the base of Mount Sinai was an altar; the people approached no farther (19:23). The Israelites typically came no farther than the entrance to the tent of meeting (Lv 1:2–5). (2) The priests and the elders were permitted farther up Sinai (Ex 24:1). Only priests were permitted in the Holy Place (Nu 18:4–7). (3) The peak of Sinai was reserved for Moses (Ex 19:20; 24:2). This corresponds to the Most Holy Place, reserved for the high priest (Heb 9:7).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:9 pattern. Hbr tabnith, from the verb "to build." The Lord showed Moses patterns, or models, to guide the work. tabernacle. Tent-dwelling. See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:1–9 The Lord tells Moses to build a sanctuary in which He will dwell. Though God is present everywhere, He locates His saving presence in the tabernacle, where He has promised to be found. Today, He locates His blessings of salvation for you in the Word and Sacraments of His Church. • Lord God, what a wonderful blessing that You meet with us through Your Son, Jesus. Move our hearts to share the Gospel with others, that many more may hear, learn, and believe in You. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:10 an ark. Same Hbr term as Moses' basket (2:3) and Noah's boat, where eight people were preserved (Gn 6:14). acacia. See note, v 5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:11 pure gold. Gold leaf applied to the wood. See note, v 3.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:13–15 poles. Used to carry the ark. See note, 2Sm 6:6. Such a chest with rings, carried by poles, was discovered in the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamun.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:16 the testimony. The Ten Commandments (20:1–17), the basis for the covenant (24:7–8). Also referred to as the "covenant" or the "tablets" (34:27–28). See p 971.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:17 mercy seat. Hbr kapporeth, "atonement," from the idea of covering something. See "atonement," p 5. This is the traditional translation for the cover of the ark, which was regarded as God's footstool or throne (1Sm 4:4; Ps 132:7) from which God spoke to Moses (v 22; Nu 7:89). God forgave sin when the high priest sprinkled or "covered" the mercy seat with the blood of the appointed sacrifices (Lv 16:14–18; Heb 9:6–12). The Ten Commandments were placed underneath the mercy seat (1Ki 8:9; Heb 9:4) so that the blood of sacrifice would cover them. See p 495.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:18 two cherubim of gold. Artwork to represent the devotion of the angels of heaven. Cf 20:4; Ezk 10:1. hammered work. See diagram, p 159.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:19 See diagram, p 159.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:20 overshadowing. Cherubim sheltered the mercy seat, depicting God as the One enthroned on cherubim (v 17). Their outstretched wings depicted movement (cf 2Sm 22:11). their faces one to another. Looking toward the place of atonement, not toward God's face. See note, Is 6:2.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:21 the testimony. See note, v 16.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:22 I will meet with you … I will speak with you. "You" is singular, meaning Moses. Earlier, the Lord met with Moses on Mount Sinai (19:9, 16–19), also called Mount Horeb (Dt 18:16). Frightened, the people (Ex 19:10–25) asked the Lord to speak through Moses as an intermediary (Dt 18:16–17). Mel: "From this mercy seat God was going to speak to the people and there He would answer their prayer…. There are several types which apply here. Just as the mercy seat is the seat of God, so Christ is the seat of God, because in Christ the divine nature truly exists and before Him the church is gathered; and our prayers are not heard except for His sake…. Those who pray without knowledge of Christ or trust in Him will be rejected by God, as will all those who do not know the Gospel" (Chem, LTh 2:658). commandment. See p 971. God also addressed the liturgical shape of Israel's life.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:10–22 The Lord speaks to Moses from the mercy seat, the place of the Commandments and the atonement—His Law and His Gospel-mercy. Today, God no longer speaks from Mount Sinai or between the cherubim of the ark. He has spoken in these last days by His Son (Heb 1:2), who came to fulfill the Law for us and atone for all our sin. • Lord God, move our hearts to be attentive as You speak, and give Yourself to us in Your Word and Sacraments, through Christ, our Lord. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:23 acacia. See note, v 5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:29 incense. See notes, 30:1, 7, 8. drink offerings. Flagons filled with wine. Priests may have drunk the contents of these flagons when they ate the bread every Sabbath (Lv 24:8–9).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:30 bread of the Presence. Lit, "the bread of the face," i.e., before God's face, since He was present in the Most Holy Place. See application note, Lv 24:5–9.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:23–30 God sets before His people the bread of His presence. Jesus is "the living bread that came down from heaven" (Jn 6:51). • Lead us, dear Jesus, to feast on Your sacramental body in the bread and drink Your blood in the cup of thanksgiving (1Co 10:16), that we may be nourished by Your presence for all eternity. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:31 lampstand. For burning oil and lighting the holy place. hammered work. See diagram, p 159. calyxes. The leaves surrounding a flower; they look like a cup from which the flower blooms.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:32–35 See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:33 almond blossoms. Earliest to flower in spring.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:37 The beautiful lampstand served a practical purpose, lighting the tabernacle. The golden lampstand foreshadowed Christ (Jn 1:6–9). Cf Rv 1:12–13. As the lampstand gave the sanctuary light, so Christ is the light of the world (Jn 8:12). Many congregations today have two lampstands of seven lamps in the chancel, symbolizing the presence of Christ with His Church. seven lamps. As the seven "lights" in a week. See p 217.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:38 tongs. To remove the burnt wicks. trays. Held the wicks.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:40 the pattern … shown you on the mountain. See note, v 9.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 25:31–40 The lampstand serves both practical and symbolic functions, providing the only light in the dark sanctuary and representing the sacred order God established in the daily and weekly services of His house. No wonder "light" and "enlightenment" have come to describe His work among us through the Word we hear at His house, which enlightens our understanding of His ways. • Jesus, we praise You, for in mercy You have not left us in darkness but have enlightened us with the Word of Your salvation. Lead us to reflect Your light in a lost world. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:1–27:19 God is a God of order and beauty. Cf 28:40. See p 1291.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:1 tabernacle. See diagram, p 139. ten curtains. Placed over the framework of the tabernacle. No roof poles are mentioned; the tabernacle had a flat roof. See diagram, p 139. blue … purple … scarlet. A variety of bluish/purplish colors that were nonetheless distinct and likely based on different dye baths. cherubim skillfully worked into them. Woven into the fabric. See note, Ezk 10:1. Gold, as a complementary color, would stand out strongly from the fabric and intensify the coloration.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:2 breadth of each curtain four cubits. Loom width may have been 4 cubits.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:5 opposite one another. Loops were positioned so that they met exactly, emphasizing the quality of the work.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:6 clasps … so that the tabernacle may be a single whole. Two sets of five curtains were clasped at their loops for a breadth of 40 cubits (vv 3–4). The clasps fastened everything together tightly, making a sturdy tent.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:7 goats' hair for a tent. Provided waterproofing.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:8 thirty cubits. See scale in diagram, p 139.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:9 The sixth curtain apparently doubled over at the front of the tabernacle to form a gable 2 cubits in breadth.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:10 outermost. At the back corners of the tabernacle court, where curtains would need to be joined.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:12 hang over the back. The tabernacle was 30 cubits in breadth (vv 16, 18). The curtain of goats' hair was 44 cubits in breadth (north to south; v 8). Fourteen cubits of goats'-hair curtain draped the western, or back, wall.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:13 hang over the sides. The goats'-hair curtain was 2 cubits longer than the cherubim curtain (v 2).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:14 For waterproofing.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:15 acacia. See note, 25:5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:17 tenons. Lit, "hands"; pegs that held the frames together.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:22 rear of the tabernacle westward. The front opening faced the rising sun, which set the time for the morning sacrifice. See pp 170–71; see also note, Mal 4:2.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:30 the plan. Hbr mishpat, "judgment." What the Lord decided. See note, 25:9.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:31 cherubim skillfully worked. See v 36.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:33 The Most Holy Place was a cube of 10 cubits. ark of the testimony. See note, 25:16. the Holy Place from the Most Holy. Cf 25:8; see "holy," p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:34 mercy seat. See note, 25:17.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:36 screen. At the entrance to the tabernacle. Cf Heb 9:2. embroidered with needlework. Cf v 31.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 26:37 gold … bronze. See diagram, p 139; see also note, 25:3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 26 The tabernacle is laid out according to the specifications God gave on the mountain (25:40; Ac 7:44). Worship is not spontaneous or haphazard but is carefully organized to honor the Creator, who set creation in order by carefully arranging space, boundaries, and the passage of time. Cf Gn 1:1–2:3. Today, organized worship, patterned on God's Word and the life of our Savior, honors God's works of creation, redemption, and sanctification, by which He makes us His beloved people. •

Lord Jesus, You establish all things to benefit us with Your gifts. We praise You for the mercy shown us through Your shed blood. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:1–8 The first and most visible furniture in the court was the bronze altar. This showed that sacrifice was needed to have fellowship with God, ultimately pointing to the altar of the cross, where Jesus reconciled the world to Himself.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:1 altar of acacia wood. The altar's firebox was overlaid with bronze (v 2), and the box was presumably filled with earth or gravel to prevent the fire from destroying the structure. See note, 25:5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:2 horns. See p 842. Typical Near Eastern design element. Practically, such horns could help hold the wood and the sacrifice in place. Priests may also have tied sacrificial animals to them during the preparations for sacrifice. See note, 1Ki 1:50.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:8 As it has been shown you. See note, 25:9.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:1–8 The first and most visible item of furniture in the court is the bronze altar. Blood is applied on the horns and sides to atone for sins. The altar points forward to the cross of Calvary, where Jesus, God's sacrifice, shed His blood to atone for the sins of the world. • Lord Jesus, we thank and praise You. You are the perfect sacrifice who made peace with the Father for us. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:9 court of the tabernacle. The court walls separated the ordinary space from the holiness of God's presence within the tabernacle. Israel's access to God was restricted to the court (cf 25:8). Devout people longed to enter the court and be in God's presence (Ps 84:2, 10; 100:4; 116:12–14, 17–19). tabernacle. See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:16 gate … a screen. The line of sight toward the interior of the tabernacle was blocked. Priests and Levites could still enter when the gate was set back from the opening to provide a screen. See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:18 length … a hundred cubits. C 150 ft. height five cubits. The court walls. The tabernacle was 10 cubits high (26:16), which made it impossible to see the tabernacle when one stood close by the wall of the court.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:9–19 Specific limits mark the holiness of the Lord, limiting the approach of humans to Him. Due to our sins, we cannot approach the Holy One of Israel and live. Through Christ's work on the cross, we have access to the court, the Most Holy Place in heaven (cf Heb

4:14). • Jesus, may Your Spirit lead us to confess Your loving mercy, that many more may enter Your courts in praise and eternal life. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:20 beaten olive oil. Clear oil that burned brightly with little smoke. Similar to modern virgin oil, pressed from the crushed olives rather than rinsed out by hot water, as happens when the olives are crushed a second time.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:21 tent of meeting. Usually describes the Holy Place of the tabernacle. However, it also described a tent Moses set up for meeting with the Lord, which was pitched outside the camp of Israel (33:7). outside the veil. In the Holy Place, where Aaron and his sons tended the lamp. the testimony. See note, 25:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 27:20–21 Because the lamp stands in the Holy Place, the priests need to tend it. The light provided by the lamp enables their service. Today, the Lord enables our service and hallows us as His priesthood—believers enlightened with the Holy Spirit. • Jesus, thank You that Your Word and Sacraments bring us the light of salvation. By the power of Your Holy Spirit, may we be light to the world that is lost in darkness. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:1 to serve … as priests. Hbr kahan. Priests represent worshipers and present the worshipers' cause before God.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:2 holy garments … for glory and for beauty. Just as sacred space in the tabernacle was separated from secular space, so the priests of the tabernacle were distinct from the laity. See p 141.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:3 filled with a spirit of skill. See note, 31:3. garments to consecrate. Priestly garments symbolized the office of the priesthood and set the priests apart in their service. See "consecrate," p 6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:4 ephod. A vest. See note, v 36. checker work. Woven in a pattern of squares. The ephod, breastpiece, lace of blue (v 28), and blue robe were luxurious apparel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:8 skillfully woven band. Tied around the waist; kept the ephod snug.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:9 onyx. Translucent stones set in gold on the shoulder (vv 12–13).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:10 in the order of their birth. Cf Gn 29:32–30:24; 35:16–19.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:11 jeweler engraves signets. Seals engraved with the names of Israel's sons. gold filigree. Intricate ornamental design using strands of gold wire.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:12 stones of remembrance. To remind the priest that he mediated for Israel and bore witness to God that Israel was His people. See "remember," p 843.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:15–43 Note the key body parts for jewelry: shoulders, heart, and forehead. Cf Dt 6:5, 8. As mediator, Aaron bore responsibility for Israel and loved Israel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:15 breastpiece. Typically, a warrior's armor but here modified for priestly service. judgment. Contained within the breastpiece were the instruments of decision making: the Urim and Thummim. See note, v 30.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:16 doubled. Forming the shape of a pocket. Cf v 30. span. See p cx.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:17–21 Cf 12:35–36. Precious stones, representing the 12 tribes of Israel, illustrated that God's people were His treasured possession. Cf Dt 7:6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:29 breastpiece of judgment. See note, v 15.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:30 Urim and the Thummim. Two sacred lots placed in the breastpiece that were used by the high priest to receive answers from the Lord. See notes, 1Sm 14:39–42; see also "seek," p 843. on Aaron's heart. The heart of the high priest was to be one with Israel. judgment. Guidance. See "rules," p 971.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:33 pomegranates. Fruit about the size of an apple. See note, 1Ki 7:18; see also p 236.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:35 A musical offering. Whether bells also served a practical purpose is unclear.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:36 engraving of a signet. Writing etched into gold. Holy to the LORD. The high priest was devoted to the Lord. The ephod (v 6), breastpiece (v 15), robe (v 31), turban (v 37), and plate of pure gold (v 36) were made with the same materials used for the tabernacle (26:1), inner veil (26:31), outer veil (26:36), and court veil (27:16). The attire of the priests was associated with the holy presence of the Lord.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:37 turban. Headdress worn by Aaron to remind him that his thoughts were to be pure.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:38 bear any guilt. Aaron functioned as a mediator to take sins away through sacrifices. See note, v 1. consecrate. See p 6. accepted before the LORD. Aaron represented the people as he presented their offerings.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:39 checker. See note, v 4.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:40 coats and sashes and caps. Regular priestly garments. for glory and beauty. God designed the priesthood so that the people would give Him the glory due His name.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:41 anoint … ordain … consecrate. The priests were set apart, ritually ordained into their office. See notes, 29:9; 1Sm 10:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:42 linen undergarments to cover their naked flesh. Pagan priests frequently performed their rites naked or used sexual rituals. Before the true God, modesty is required. See note, 20:26.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 28:43 altar … in the Holy Place. They ministered at the altar of incense. See notes, 30:6, 7. bear guilt and die. Cf Lv 10:1–2. statute. See p 971.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 28 The beautiful priestly attire reflects the beauty of God as well as the office in which the priests minister. Often today, our devotion to God grows more and more lax. Rather than stand to pray, we sit. Rather than dress properly, we become casual or immodest. Rather than sing, we just listen. In contrast, the Lord required that even the clothing and movement of the high priest would bring glory and offer praise. Reassess your offering of praise and service to the Lord. Give all glory to Jesus, who diligently bore your guilt and consecrates you by grace. • O Lord God, draw us to the One whom our pastors preach, Christ crucified for the forgiveness of sins. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:1 consecrate. See p 6. Take. Animals were selected from herds (cf Dt 12:6). without blemish. Without physical defect. Cf 1Pt 1:19.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:2 unleavened. Made without yeast. smeared. As people today may spread butter on bread.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:3 one basket. For the grain offering (v 41). See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:4–9, 31–33 Note the pattern of consecration: wash, dress, anoint, and eat from the sacrifices. Such elements were adopted by the early Christians for services of Baptism, confirmation, and first Communion during the Easter Vigil.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:4 the entrance. By the outer veil (26:36–37). wash them. Special event in arid climates, emphasizing the purity of God, whom they would serve. Moses would officiate at the first ordination when he washed the priests (cf 30:19).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:9–10, 20, 24–25 Note the emphasis throughout on the priests' hands, by which they served the Lord.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:9 statute. See p 971. ordain. Lit, "fill the hand" by entrusting the work and service to Aaron and his sons.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:10 lay their hands. Hands "filled" with the work of the Lord must empty themselves of sins by transferring the sins to sacrificial animals (Lv 4:3–4).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:12 blood. Shedding of blood brought atonement. See pp 170–71. horns. By daubing the horns with blood, the entire altar was cleansed and consecrated.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:13 Pagan priests used such items for divination (see note, Dt 18:10–11).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:14 a sin offering. For personal sins the priests committed. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:16 blood … against the sides of the altar. Ensured that both the offerer and altar were cleansed from impurity.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:18 burn the whole ram … burnt offering. Consumed by fire. The flesh was the most important part, since it was burned on the altar (cf Lv 1:3–17). food offering. The pleasing aroma to God (the aroma of grilling meat) assured people that the Lord took pleasure in them and would deal favorably with them. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:20 blood … on the tip of the right ear of Aaron … on the thumbs … on the great toes. An act of purification and consecration. The right ear emphasized hearing and obeying the Word of God. The right thumb signified that the priests were now pure to handle the holy things of God. The right toe allowed the priest to walk on holy ground, pure before God.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:21 blood … oil. Mixed together; elsewhere, blood was mixed with water (see pp xxvi–xxx; cf Heb 9:19). See also note, 40:9. sprinkle. This anointing gave priests access to the altar and its food. holy. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:22 right thigh (for it is a ram of ordination). This ram constituted the peace offering (Lv 3:9–11). See pp 170–71. The right thigh was the priests' portion of the peace offering (Lv 7:32–33). ordination. See note, v 9.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:24 palms of Aaron. The newly consecrated priests now take the food offering in hand. a wave offering. By elevating these foods, the priests dedicated to God what by law belonged to them. See note, Lv 7:30–35.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:25 food offering. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:26 the breast … shall be your portion. Moses officiated at the first ordination (Lv 8). Because he was not a priest, he could not eat the sin offering (v 14; Lv 6:25–26) or the thigh from the ram of ordination (vv 31–32), but instead ate the breast. portion. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:28 sons. The ordination pertained to Aaron and his sons, from the tribe of Levi. perpetual. This contribution occurred whenever peace offerings were presented. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:29 holy garments … for his sons after him. The ephod that hung on the shoulder and the sash around the waist (28:4) were adjustable, which allowed the garments to fit the next generation. anointed. See note, 1Sm 10:1. ordained. See note, v 9.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:30 son who succeeds him. High priest who would succeed Aaron and serve in the Most Holy Place. wear them seven days. See p 217. High priest began his work on the eighth day, the first day of the new week. See note, Gn 17:12.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:31 ordination. See note, v 9. in a holy place. Within the tabernacle court.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:32 the entrance. By the screen (27:16) in front of the altar for burnt offering. See diagram, p 139. tent of meeting. See note, 27:21.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:33 atonement. See p 5. outsider. Only priests ate what pertained to ordination. holy. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:36 purify the altar. Due to the priests' sinfulness. Cf vv 12, 16. consecrate. See p 6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:37 atonement. See p 5. consecrate. See p 6. most holy. Lit, "holy of holies," which is how Hbr forms a superlative. Items described this way were to be handled only by priests on duty at the tabernacle. See note, Lv 2:3. Whatever touches the altar shall become holy. It could not return to use outside the tabernacle court.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:38–42 Regular, daily sacrifices the new priest would offer. See pp 170–71.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:40 seah … hin. See p cx. drink offering. Poured at the base of the altar (Nu 28:7). Cf Lv 23:13. It accompanied all burnt offerings. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:41 offering. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:42 I will meet with you, to speak. God promised that through the ark He would commune with His people. See note, 25:17.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:43 sanctified by My glory. The tabernacle of Israel would be sanctified by God's abiding presence. See "holy" and "glory of the LORD," pp 7, 6.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:44 I will consecrate. The Lord Himself is the true source and cause of consecration. The rituals illustrated and applied this truth. See "holy," p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:45 A reference to the promise given in 25:8, 22, which was fulfilled in Jesus, who tabernacled with us (Jn 1:14).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 29:46 Connection to the Book of the Covenant and its testimony (20:1), which distinguished Yahweh from every so-called god. As the Lord claimed the people, they would claim and proclaim Him. See "be with," p 5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 29 God consecrates the Aaronic priesthood to consecrate His people, who would be a kingdom of priests (19:6). Our High Priest, Jesus, set aside this old order of sacrifices to offer Himself once for all (Heb 10:8–10). • Rejoice that, through Jesus, we can "draw near [to God] with a true heart in full assurance of faith" (Heb 10:22) and receive forgiveness of our sins. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:1 altar. Also referred to as the "golden altar" as it was overlaid with gold (v 3). burn incense. Incense was first placed on the table for the bread of the Presence (Lv 24:5–9) and then burned on the altar of incense. acacia. See note, 25:5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:2 horns. See note, 27:2.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:6 The altar of incense stood in front of the second curtain (Heb 9:2–3), before the Most Holy Place (cf Ex 26:31). See diagram, p 139. testimony. See note, 25:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:7 fragrant incense. Once pure frankincense was made, it was placed on the table for the bread of the Presence alongside the bread and wine (Lv 24:7). See note, Lv 2:1. Jesus was a fragrant incense to the Father (cf Eph 5:2). All prayer that is accepted by the Father is presented through Jesus.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:8 incense offering. Incense was burned as nearly as possible to when the lamb was being slain at the bronze altar and when the priests dressed the lamps (cf v 7). Incense was needed for a practical purpose: to sweeten the air. As the incense was lit, the assembled people silently offered their sacrifice of prayer (Lk 1:10). See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:9 Anyone who gave an unauthorized offering transgressed God's holiness and was slain. offering. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:10 atonement. See p 5. sin offering. Once a year, the high priest sprinkled the shed blood of the lamb on the mercy seat (Lv 16:34). See pp 170–71. most holy. See note, 29:37.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:1–10 The Lord describes the use of incense in the sanctuary; it is offered with the people's prayers. Without faith, it is impossible for us to pray rightly and to please God (Heb 11:6). Jesus' life and work was pleasing incense before His Father. Through Jesus' intercession, our prayers are acceptable. • May the Good News impel us to intercede continually before You, Jesus, on behalf of the Church and for the needs of all people. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:11–16 This census tax served to bolster the freewill offering raised in 25:1–9.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:11 See note, 25:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:12 census. A onetime event. ransom for his life. See "redeem," p 843; see also notes, 1Pt 1:18–19. plague. The tax reflected faith in the Lord. To break faith with the Lord would lead to disaster. Cf 1Ch 21:1–22:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:13 shekel. A standard unit of weight for silver or gold. A half-shekel was 1/5 oz. See p cx. sanctuary. "Holy place"; see diagram, p 139. offering to the LORD. A gift in response to the blessings the Lord gives us (cf 1Ch 29:14, 16). Moses conducted the census (vv 11–12).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:14 twenty years old and upward. The age Israelites became eligible for military service (Nu 1:3).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:15–16 Poll tax (v 12).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:15 not give more … less. Each gave the same amount. atonement for your lives. See note, v 12. atonement. See p 5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:16 service. Maintenance. remembrance. Reminder that guilt incurred by sins was removed before the Lord. The Lord treated the people as reconciled because of this payment. Cf Mt 17:24–27.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:11–16 The census tax is established for upkeep and atonement at the sanctuary. No amount of labor on our part can remove the guilt that our sins incur. Jesus paid the ransom for every soul that walks on the earth. • Lord Jesus, may Your Holy Spirit lead us to give generously, so the work of proclaiming the Gospel may go forth in Word and Sacrament, for You have paid the price for all. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:17–20 Priests began their service after they washed. This washing foreshadowed the washing of Holy Baptism.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:17 See note, 25:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:19 hands and their feet. The parts of the body that became soiled most often during work. Washing one's feet naturally causes a person to wash his hands. See notes, Mk 7:3–4; Jn 13:5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:20 food offering. See pp 170–71. die. Whoever ministered in a profane manner would die, for God's holiness consumes sin (Lv 10:1–3). See note, v 9.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:17–21 The priests must wash their hands and feet before they minister before God. Our High Priest, Jesus, was washed (Mt 3:13–17) before He began His work of redemption on our behalf. • Lord Jesus, through our pastors' service in Holy Baptism, You wash our hands, feet, and conscience (1Co 6:11; Heb 10:21–22). May this "washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit" (Ti 3:5) move us to serve You by serving our neighbor. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:21 statute. See p 971.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:22–38 The sanctuary had a distinct fragrance. Three liquids purified the priests and the tabernacle: blood (29:19–21), water (30:17–21), and fragrant oil. Cf 1Jn 5:6–8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:22 See note, 25:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:23 finest spices. The best for the Lord. liquid myrrh. Balsam sap. sweet-smelling cinnamon. From the bark of cinnamon trees, imported from the region of India. aromatic cane. Spongy tissue from the root of a reed plant.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:24 cassia. Produced from the dried flowers of cassia cinnamon trees.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:25 blended. Thoroughly mixed.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:26 ark of the testimony. See note, 25:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:27 When the high priest was anointed into his office (v 31), the tent and artifacts were anointed as well.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:29 consecrate. Sin defiled the tabernacle and court. The consecrated utensils were transferred from the human to the divine sphere. Whatever touches them will become holy. Through these rites, the Lord shared His holiness with the priests, tabernacle, and furniture. See "holy," p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:33 cut off from his people. He would lose his salvation. See note, Gn 17:14.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:34–36 stacte. Resin that oozes from certain trees. onycha. Made from the shells of mollusks. galbanum. Rubbery sap extracted from the roots of flowering plants native to Syria and Persia.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:34 See note, 25:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:36 beat. Pulverize. before the testimony. Offered on the golden altar (vv 6–8). See notes, vv 1, 6; 25:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:37 Any deviation in composition resulted in punishment (Lv 10:1–3).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 30:22–38 The Lord gives details for the anointing oil. This perfumed oil distinguishes the Lord's priests and the tabernacle. Today, the Lord sends the Holy Spirit, who sets us apart from the world by His work of sanctification and the fruit of the Spirit. • Thank You, Lord, for anointing us in Baptism (2Co 1:21), that we may serve You in holiness and approach You in "all boldness and confidence … as dear children ask their dear father" (SC, Lord's Prayer Introduction, p xxxvii). Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:1 See note, 25:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:2 Hur. Grandfather of Bezalel.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:3 filled him with the Spirit of God. In addition to their God-given talents as created beings, these men received supernatural abilities from the Holy Spirit. See p 1920.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:4 to devise. Though the Lord revealed the general plans for the tabernacle (25:40; 27:8), the details had to be finalized.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:6 him. Bezalel. As senior leader, Bezalel was mentioned first in the list (v 2) and distinguished by his specific responsibilities.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:7 ark of the testimony. See note, 25:16. mercy seat. See note, 25:17.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:1–11 Artisans assemble to begin the work, and they follow the Lord's plans exactly. As you serve in your congregation, remember that "unless the LORD builds the house, those who build it labor in vain" (Ps 127:1). Value the service of each person, but give all glory to the Lord, who forgives your sins and makes you one in Christ. • Jesus, we are unworthy servants. "We have only done what was our duty" (Lk 17:10). Lead us to use our gifts in honorable service to spread Your Gospel. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:12 See note, 25:1. Introduces the Sabbath.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:13 The Sabbath was the pinnacle of God's revelation. I, the LORD, sanctify you. The Lord lived with His people in these rites and removed their guilt. Physical rest pointed to spiritual rest (cf Mt 11:28–30; Heb 4:2–6). See notes, Gn 2:2, 3; see also "holy," p 7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:14 put to death … cut off. Not trusting in the Lord's rest invited temporal death, a precursor to eternal death. See note, 12:15.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:16 Cf 20:8–11. covenant. See p 127.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:17 in six days the LORD made heaven and earth. Connects the building of the tabernacle to creation. The tabernacle would be a Sabbath-house, a house of rest. refreshed. The people's refreshment came in part through physical rest and all the more from a conscience cleansed by the Word of God.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:18 testimony. See note, 25:16. tablets of stone. Common in ancient Near East to record important public documents on enduring surfaces. Cf Jsh 8:32. written with the finger of God. God Himself wrote the Commandments. Cf Lk 11:20.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 31:12–18 Plans for construction are revealed. Craftsmen, imbued with the Spirit of God, are secured. Such work is not an end in itself. It finds its fulfillment in the Sabbath rest for the sin-wearied soul. • Lord Jesus, may Your Spirit work in our hearts, leading us to repentance, that we may remain in the rest You have for us through all eternity. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:1 gods. The people requested multiple gods, but Aaron made just one idol (v 4). The people may have imagined that the calf carried another, invisible god. go before us. As the Lord had gone before them in a pillar of cloud or fire, so the people wanted a visible representation of their idols to lead them. Ephr: "They had been secretly worshiping [the idol] in their hearts…. Moses who kept them in awe was removed from them, that the idolatry might cry aloud in their mouths, which the restraint of Moses had kept down in their hearts" (NPNF 2 13:312).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:2–3 Both men and women wore earrings and donated them for the idol's manufacture. Ter: "The people were about to lose, as a judgment upon themselves, the true ornaments for the ears [:] the words of God" (ANF 3:636).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:4 fashioned it with a graving tool. After casting the gold into the right shape, Aaron finished it with a carving tool. The idol may have been made of wood that was overlaid with gold, allowing it later to be burned and ground up (v 20). golden calf. An image of a calf or young bull; a common symbol of fertility and power in many religions. See p 141. gods. Aaron is likely referring to the idol and Yahweh as Israel's gods, mixing truth and error. See note, v 5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:5 Aaron saw. Or, "Aaron was afraid," which some believe to be the reason Aaron cooperated with the people in this false worship. to the LORD. Aaron is mixing forbidden idolatry with the worship of the true God.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:6 burnt offerings. See pp 170–71. peace offerings. Part of the animal was burned in sacrifice; the rest was eaten by the people. See pp 170–71. to play. Implies immoral activity done for the honor of the god. See note, Gn 26:8, which describes the same term. Ter: "Understand the modest language of Holy Scripture: [genuine] 'play,' … would not have [been] reprehended" (ANF 4:105). Mel: "When their stomachs were full and they felt at ease, they forgot all about God and became negligent and wanton" (Chem, LTh 2:668).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:7 your people. Not "My people," as previous, because they are not acting like God's children.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:9 stiff-necked. A yoked or haltered animal might tighten its neck muscles to resist having its head turned to go a new direction. Like a farm animal that refused to be guided, Israel refused to follow God's new direction for them.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:10 wrath may burn hot. God communicated His holy nature in terms that humans could understand. Here, He compared His reaction to human anger. make a great nation of you. God promised Abraham that he would be a great nation. See note, Gn 12:2. God could do this only through Moses, one of Abraham's descendants, and still be faithful to His promise.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:11 Moses implored. Moses interceded for God's mercy on Israel. This shows that Moses has grown in love for Israel. Aug: "Moses makes intercession for them…. And that he might not seem to have acted thus from necessity rather than from love, God offered [Moses] another people…. But he did not accept it; he cleaves to the sinners, he prays for the sinners" (NPNF 1 6:387).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:12 Why should the Egyptians say. Moses argued that God's justified destruction of Israel might cause the nations to blaspheme God and become even more alienated from Him. Turn … relent. Though God would be just in punishing Israel, Moses cried for mercy. See note, 1Ch 21:15.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:13 Moses trusted the divine promise to the patriarchs and asked for God's mercy. swore. See p 7. inherit. See "portion," p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:14 relented. See note, 1Ch 21:15. Luth: "It is superfluous to enter on the subtle question here how God can repent, turn from and regret His anger, since He is unchangeable. Some people are deeply concerned about this; they complicate the matter for themselves unnecessarily" (AE 19:88–89). See pp 1079–80. His. Though they have sinned, God still acknowledges them as His people and not just Moses' people (cf v 7).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:15 tablets of the testimony. The Ten Commandments. These tablets were small enough for Moses to carry in one hand. See note, 25:16. written on both sides. Detail often missing in artistic portrayals.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:16 engraved. Words were cut into the stone.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:17 Joshua. Moses' assistant went part of the way with Moses, but Moses was alone when he spoke with God (24:15). See note, 24:13.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:18–19 singing … dancing. Likely reflecting practices associated with pagan worship. Cf v 6; see p 959.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:19 broke them. In anger, showing that Israel had broken God's covenant.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:20 Moses completely destroyed the idol and made Israel drink the remains in water. This provided a strong reminder that their sin had polluted them thoroughly (cf Nu 5:24–26). Cypr: "Why do you bow your body captive before foolish images and creations of earth? God made you upright; and while other animals are downlooking, and are depressed in posture bending towards the earth, yours is a lofty attitude; and your countenance is raised upwards to heaven, and to God" (ANF 5:462).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:22 they are set on evil. The people wanted to sin and were bound to sin. See note, Gn 6:5. Like Adam (Gn 3:12), Aaron tries to deflect responsibility to others without confessing his sin.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:24 out came this calf. Denying his guilt, Aaron implies that the idol was formed miraculously.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:25 Aaron had let them. The people, out of control, had given in to their sinful passions. break loose. Hbr can also refer to nakedness. enemies. The Egyptians and others who did not worship the true God would mock this behavior.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:26 gate. Entrance at one end of camp. Gates commonly served as gathering places. See p 792. Who is on the LORD's side? Those who had been faithful to the true God and had not participated in the idolatry. sons of Levi. Priests would come from this tribe, as did Moses and Aaron.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:27 gate to gate. From one end to the other. his brother and his companion and his neighbor. Fellow Israelites, not just Levites. Anyone who did not come forward as being "on the LORD's side" (v 26) was guilty of idolatry. Some of these were killed.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:28 three thousand. Small percentage of those who had committed idolatry. The punishment was not as severe as it might have been.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:29 ordained for the service of the LORD. The Levites had shown their dedication to God by placing Him above all people. See note, 29:9. son … brother. All Israelites were related. Levites showed that loyalty to God is more important than family ties. bestow a blessing. The Levites (along with others) received God's blessing, first promised to Abraham (Gn 12:2–3), that they would be God's people. See "bless," p 842.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:30 great sin. All sin is serious, but this crass idolatry was a rejection of God. I can make atonement. Moses did not tell Israel how he proposed to do this, but the following verses made his intentions clear. See "atonement," p 5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:31 gods. See note, v 4.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:32 blot me out of Your book. Ancient kings would keep lists of their subjects—those who belonged to the king. Moses offered to be cut off from God's people or even lose his life if it might be helpful to Israel. But such an exchange is not possible. The life of one sinner is not enough to pay for another (Ps 49:7–8). Ambr: "What reproaches Moses had to bear from his people! … With what gentle words used he to address the people, even after he was wronged! He comforted them in their labors, consoled them by his prophetic declarations of the future, and encouraged them by his works" (NPNF 2 10:48). Bern: "What a devoted advocate! who, because he does not seek his own interests, easily obtains everything which he seeks. What a benign chief, who, binding together his people with bonds of charity as the head is united with the members, will either save them with himself or else encounter the same danger as they!" (SLSB, p 72).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:33 A blunt reminder that sin merits death (Rm 6:23). Everyone who sinned would die, though not all died at that moment.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:34 angel. See p 5.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 32:35 they made … Aaron made. The people were responsible for their sin as Aaron was responsible for his.

EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 32 Feeling alone in the wilderness, Israel soon doubts God's promises and turns to idolatry. Their idol is unable to help them, and they experience greater suffering. We, too, may grow impatient or doubt God's promises. In fear or doubt, we may turn to idols of our own: anything that we "fear, love, and trust" more than the true God. But these idols cannot help us. Thank God that He remembers His promises and is faithful to us, even when we are unfaithful. He sends His Son to offer atonement for our sin. He alone is able to take the sin of the world upon Himself and give us His perfect righteousness. We are God's people because of Him. • O Christ, Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world, thank You for giving Yourself for me. Forgive my sins, and strengthen me to believe in You and love You. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:2 angel. Though God condemned their idolatry, He still protected and guided His people (cf v 3). Canaanites. See p 345.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:3 flowing with milk and honey. See p 6. I will not go up among you. God certainly is present with His people but notes that their sin has consequences. They will not experience His blessings in the same way as if they had not committed idolatry. consume. God's holiness would destroy them in their sin. "This hereditary sin is such a deep corruption of nature that no reason can understand it. Rather, it must be believed from the revelation of Scripture" (SA III I 3). stiff-necked. See note, 32:9.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:4 ornaments. As a sign of sorrow, the Israelites did not wear festive clothing or jewelry. This is common practice in a time of mourning.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:6 Mourners and penitent people generally removed their ornaments for a limited time (see note, v 4). Here, it becomes an enduring response from Israel.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:1–6 Fully aware of their sin, the Israelites strip off their ornaments to show their repentance and sorrow. Our repentance may also be accompanied by outward signs, but these are not substitutes for a repentant heart. Each day, we confess our sins to God. Through the means of grace, we receive His forgiveness. How blessed we are that, because of Christ, God is "faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1Jn 1:9). • Thank You, Lord, for Your gracious forgiveness in Christ. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:7 the tent. Not the tabernacle, which would be built later. See note, 27:21. sought the LORD. Israel was learning to turn to God instead of to idols. See "seek," p 843.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:8 rise up … watch. In expectation of God's presence and to honor His presence. It is no small thing for God to come among His people.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:9 pillar of cloud. See note, 13:21. the LORD would speak with Moses. When the pillar of cloud was over the tent, God spoke directly to Moses. Moses recorded some of these conversations in the Bible.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:10 worship. Lit, "bow down." The people would prostrate themselves before the Lord, acknowledging His presence and identity. See "bow," p 1276.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:11 face to face. Hbr expression for intimacy (cf Dt 5:4, applied to Israel). This experience was significantly different from the one mentioned in v 20. as a man speaks to his friend. God spoke to Moses directly, not through visions or dreams. assistant Joshua. See note, 24:13. would not depart from the tent. The Levitical priesthood had not yet been established. Joshua served as an attendant in the tent. He remained in the tent whenever Moses was not there, so that someone was always in the tent.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:7–11 Moses receives an extraordinary gift: God speaks to him face-to-face, as to a friend. Jesus Christ gives believers in the NT the same gift. He says, "I have called you friends, for all that I have heard from My Father I have made known to you" (Jn 15:15). He invites our prayers and has promised to hear us and answer. He works with us in His grace. How blessed are we to be called the friends of God. • Thank You, Jesus, for being my friend. May I always hear Your voice in faith. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:12–23 Though this passage speaks of future events on the mountain (cf 34:2), Moses was probably in the tent when this conversation occurred.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:12 whom You will send with me. God promised to send an angel before Israel (v 2). Moses sought assurance that God would bless them. know you by name. God knew Moses personally, including the details of his life. favor. God is pleased with Moses. This can only be because of God's grace, not Moses' personal characteristics, which were often deficient (cf 4:10, 13). See p 6.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:13 show me now Your ways, that I may know You. Moses wanted to know more about God, whose ways are higher than human ways. Moses had found favor in God's sight but seems confused as to why. He wants to understand why and how God shows favor. See "favor," p 6; see "way," p 844; see also notes, v 19; 34:6–7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:14 presence. God's presence was sometimes seen in the pillar of cloud, but God was always present with Israel. See p 843. rest. Israel was commanded to rest on the Sabbath. When they lived in God's covenant, they could rest and enjoy peace—trusting Him to care for them.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:16 distinct. Lit, "lifted up" so they appear different. The presence and favor of God made Israel distinct from the rest of the nations. See notes, Dt 7:6–10.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:17 I know you by name. See note, v 12.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:18 show me Your glory. Moses boldly asked for a direct vision of God's glory. Moses thought that the presence of God's glory would prove that the promise would be fulfilled. See "glory of the LORD," pp 6–7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:19–23 God would appear visibly before Moses. See p 39. The Lord took steps to protect him, lest the divine holiness destroy sinful Moses.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:19 My goodness pass. Moses asked to see God's glory, but God told him that He would send His goodness. God would reveal more in His character than in His glorious appearance. proclaim … My name 'The LORD.' The Lord had already proclaimed and revealed His name to Moses (3:14) and Israel (20:2), but here the revelation is deeper, coupled with His goodness and declarations of His graciousness. gracious … and will show mercy. Moses asked to understand God's "ways" of Law and Gospel (v 13); God reveals the purity of His grace to Moses, which does not respond to people due to their merit but springs from God's own goodness. See "mercy," p 842.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:20 Note the contrast between human sinfulness and divine holiness. A sinful human could not withstand the full revelation of God's presence without being destroyed. Luth: "He says, 'Man shall not see Me and live.' Therefore He put before us an image of Himself, because He shows Himself to us in such a manner that we can grasp Him. In the New Testament we have Baptism, the Lord's Supper, absolution, and the ministry of the Word" (AE 2:46).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:21 place by Me. In human terms, God told Moses how he would see the divine presence.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:22 Moses could see only a portion of God's glory. glory. Describes God as He is—perfect, wonderful, and holy. See pp 6–7. cover you with My hand. God would conceal most of His presence from Moses for Moses' own good.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:23 see My back. Cf v 22. Moses does not see God's "face"—the full expression of His glory, but he does see a glimpse of the divine presence (cf 34:6–7). Ter: "It is not permitted us to contemplate the sun, in the full amount of [its] substance which is in the heavens, but we can only endure with our eyes a ray" (ANF 3:609).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 33:12–23 Moses asks to learn God's ways and see God's glory. He is permitted to see a glimpse of God's presence. John tells us that no one has ever seen God's full presence and glory, for it would be too much for a sinner to bear. Yet, we see God when Christ Jesus covered Himself in our flesh and lived among us (Jn 1:18). On the cross, He was glorified (Jn 17:5). • "The Law of God is good and wise And sets His will before our eyes, Shows us the way of righteousness, And dooms to death when we transgress. The Gospel shows the Father's grace, Who sent His Son to save our race, Proclaims how Jesus lived and died That we might thus be justified." Amen. (LSB 579:1; 580:1)

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:1 tablets of stone. See note, 31:18. I will write. Moses wrote on the tablets, but it is God who inspires the words, guides Moses, and guarantees the content and accuracy of His Word.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:2 present yourself. A formal summons of Moses to come before God on Sinai.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:3 No one shall come up with you. Even Joshua, Moses' assistant (24:13), was to stay away. graze opposite. No animals were allowed to graze on the slopes of the mountain while God was revealing Himself.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:4 hand. See note, 32:15.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:5 descended … and stood with him. God is omnipresent, but here His presence was localized and partially visible to Moses. proclaimed the name of the LORD. God identified Himself by name. This is a personal encounter. See p 39.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:6–7 Fulfilling His promise of 33:19, God appears to Moses and reveals His name. He also reveals His "ways," which are divided into mercy (vv 6–7a) and punishment (v 7b). God reveals that He works through Law and Gospel. These two ways stem from His very being and show how He has worked and will work with humankind through all covenants and eras of history. See p 127. This passage is the "Jn 3:16" of the OT, cited repeatedly hereafter, which demonstrates the unity of Scripture. Cf Dt 5:9; 7:9; Ne 9:31; Jer 32:18; Dn 9:4; Jl 2:13; Mi 7:18–20. See pp xlv–xlvii.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:6 The LORD, the LORD. Formal and majestic proclamation of God's name and identity, followed by a proclamation of some of His attributes. merciful. Not giving people the due penalty for their sin. gracious. Giving people undeserved blessings, which are given only for Christ's sake. See p 842. slow to anger. Patient and long-suffering with His people. steadfast love and faithfulness. See pp 842–43. "Wherever we escape from disaster or danger, we ought to remember that it is God who gives and does all these things. In these escapes we sense and see His fatherly heart and His surpassing love toward us" (LC II 23).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:7 for thousands. Or, "for thousands of generations." God's love and grace never end. See p 217. forgiving. God removed and forgot sin because of Christ, the coming Messiah. iniquity … transgression … sin. These overlapping words for sin showed that this description referred to all human sin. See p 959. iniquity. Guilt that accompanied sin. transgression. Rebellion against God. sin. Any violation of God's Law. clear the guilty. God did not simply forget sin. Its penalty was to be paid by either the sinner or by a sacrifice. visiting the iniquity. Sin affected more than the individual; its consequences also affected others, including descendants. to the third and the fourth generation. Hbr expression for a continuing effect. See note, 20:5. See also note, Pr 30, on numerical sayings.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:8 bowed … and worshiped. Moses appropriately acknowledged God's presence and identity by responding to His glory and self-revelation. See "bow," p 1276.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:9 favor. See p 6. stiff-necked. See note, 32:9. pardon. Moses asked God to declare forgiveness of Israel's guilt. inheritance. Moses prayed for God to make Israel His children and heirs of His kingdom. See "portion," p 7.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:1–9 Sinful hearts stumble over God's verdict that the effects of sin may harm anyone other than the sinner. Could it be fair that the fathers' sin affects the third and fourth generation (v 7)? But the results of sin in one person's life often do impact others. We learn patterns of sin from our parents and often suffer the effects of others' sin. But the Lord's steadfast love, mercy, and grace are greater than any sin, because He has atoned for our sin. His mercy abounds for thousands of generations (v 7), far more than the effects of sin. • Merciful Lord, I confess my sin and plead for future generations. Grant me forgiveness; make me Your heir for Jesus' sake. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:10–28 The Lord repeats various promises and commands related to worship and interaction with non-Israelites. This emphasis may stem from the recent disobedience in matters of worship, which included adoption of foreign gods and practices (ch 32). The Lord would revisit these matters in the rest of the Books of Moses.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:10 I am making a covenant. Israel broke the covenant in idolatry (ch 32). Since they could not repair the damage of their sin, God restored the covenant. See p 127. marvels. Signs of God's almighty power. the work of the LORD. They would see that God caused these events to happen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:11 See p 345.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:12 God made a covenant with Israel, which was to be exclusive.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:13 pillars. See note, Gn 28:18. Asherim. Representations of Asherah, the most important Canaanite goddess. She was commonly the sister-wife to the storm god Baal (see note, Nu 25:3). At Ugarit, she was consort to the god El and mother of other gods, including Baal. (An inscription at Kuntillet ʻAjrud names her as a consort to "Yahweh of Samaria," illustrating the mixing of religions in the Northern Kingdom.) Asherah was associated with the sea but was honored most as goddess of fertility. Asherah (Ashtoreth) is also associated with Babylonian Ishtar. See note, Est 2:7. The Bible notes that Asherah was worshiped in association with trees, groves, and wooden poles (see p 526). She was often portrayed in carved wooden figurines with her female characteristics featured prominently. Archaeologists associate Asherah with the numerous fertility figurines discovered throughout Canaan. Most Near Eastern religions had a male deity and a female deity as a couple; worship practices for Baal and Asherah were sexual in nature. Later, the cult was so popular, Judean artisans developed their own style in depicting such fertility goddesses. The only era when such figurines are not found is the period after the return from exile, illustrating how effective the religious reforms were under Ezra and Nehemiah. See p 403.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:14 no other god. See note, Dt 32:39. Jealous. See note, 20:5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:15 covenant. See p 127. whore after their gods. Israel was "married" to God. See note, Hos 4:13. eat of his sacrifice. In certain sacrifices, gods were given some of the offering and worshipers ate the rest to show their union with that god. Participation in such meals was also idolatrous. See notes, 1Co 10:18, 20, 21.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:16 Israelites were not to marry Canaanites; such unions would almost certainly lead to idolatry and breaking God's covenant.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:17 Images were not forbidden, but idols were. See note, 20:4.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:18 Feast of Unleavened Bread. The Passover, during which Israel was to remember annually God's deliverance from Egypt and to tell the story to their children. month Abib. Began shortly after the vernal equinox. See calendar, p 262.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:19–20 See note, 13:2.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:21 See notes, 20:8, 11.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:22 See pp 200–201.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:23 Men of Israel were commanded to worship together for these festivals. These were not to be mere family remembrances, but worship from a nation.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:24 no one shall covet … three times in the year. God's promise here is contingent on obedience. If Israel was united and faithful to God, no one would attempt to take their land, even when they were worshiping at these festivals.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:25 leavened. Bread made with yeast. Feast of the Passover. Annual remembrance of God's deliverance. See pp 200–201.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:26 best of the firstfruits. Offerings to God were not an afterthought; He was to receive the first and the best. See pp 170–71. You shall not boil … in its mother's milk. See note, 23:19.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:27 Write these words. The commands just given (vv 10–26). See note, vv 10–28. covenant. See p 127.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:28 He neither ate bread nor drank water. Only with God's miraculous help. he wrote. Could refer to the Lord or to Moses; most likely, Moses acted as God's scribe and wrote the words from God (v 1). the covenant, the Ten Commandments. Lit, "the covenant of the 10 words," which summarized the commands of the entire covenant. See "covenant," p 6. Chem: "So great is the brevity in the individual precepts of the Decalog that Moses called them 'words' (verba), Deut. 4:12; 10:4; Ex. 34:28. Yet within this brevity is included whatever pertains to loving God and our neighbor, and these brief statements should be the rule and measure by which we recognize what sins are, Rom. 3:20" (LTh 2:356).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:10–28 Sinners are unable to keep God's holy commands perfectly. We rebel against them in our thoughts, words, and deeds. If left up to us, we could not live in God's covenant. Here, in the middle of the worship provisions of the covenant, God foreshadows His solution: redemption through sacrifice (v 20). The blood of the Lamb redeems those who continually break the covenant. He died for us that we might live. • Lord Jesus, Lamb of God, I am grateful for Your sacrifice. Strengthen me by Your Spirit to worship You properly. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:29 tablets of the testimony. See note, 32:15. skin of his face shone. Moses' face was literally radiant, reflecting the glory of the Lord.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:30 afraid. Even a reflection of the divine glory was too much for sinful people to bear. This is beyond all human experience.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:31 leaders of the congregation. See note, 3:16. See also p 228.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:32 commanded. Moses proclaimed the things that God had revealed and told the people to follow them. See p 971.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:33 veil. Term is different from the veil (wrapping or shawl) used by a woman in Gn 38:19. Since Moses' appearance frightened the people, he covered his face.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:34 in before the LORD. See note, 27:21. remove the veil. Moses would not conceal his face from God. Likewise, when he was speaking God's Word to the people, he would remove the veil. This reminded the people that Moses had seen God face-to-face.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:35 Moses does not mention whether his face ever ceased to be radiant.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 34:29–35 Moses veils himself because the Israelites, in their sinfulness, are terrified to see a manifestation of God's glory. Today, our sin also separates us from God's glory and presence, but St Paul reminds us that "when one turns to the Lord, the veil is removed … and we all, with unveiled face, beholding the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image" (2Co 3:16, 18). Because of Christ, we see the Lord and live in His glorious grace. • O Lord my God, let me see You in Christ under the veil of the incarnation. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:2 Third time the Lord teaches about and emphasizes the Sabbath. See note, 34:10–28.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:3 kindle no fire. Fire was used for cooking (work) but was also instrumental in constructing the golden calf. Cf 32:24.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:1–3 God calls the people again to share in His Sabbath rest. The soul that forsakes the gift of Sabbath rest remains in torment. Our true rest is in the one true God, who grants life, peace, and all blessings. • We thank You, Jesus, for patiently having had mercy on us, that we can rest in the work of salvation that You have accomplished for us. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:5 contribution to the LORD. Request fulfilled in ch 25.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:10 every skillful craftsman. Oholiab and Bezalel as designers and leaders (31:2–6).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:11 tabernacle. See diagram, p 139.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:19 Cf ch 28.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:21 heart stirred … spirit moved. God's Word caused the people to be generous. See note, v 29. tent of meeting. See note, 27:21.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:22 brooches and earrings and signet rings and armlets. Jewelry they had plundered from the Egyptians. See note, 3:22. every man. Everyone whose heart was stirred.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:24 possessed acacia wood. Cf 25:13; see note, 25:5.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:25–26 See note, Gn 37:3; cf Ex 35:35.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:27 leaders. Cf 18:24–26.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:29 moved … freewill offering. Verb and noun have same Hbr root nadab, to "urge" or "volunteer." The expression "freewill" can be confusing, as Scripture does not teach that the human will is free in spiritual matters but is bound due to the fall into sin. See note, Gn 6:5. We are servants, either of sin or of righteousness (Rm 6:16–18). Good works, such as the offerings described here, are motivated by the Holy Spirit working through the Word (cf v 4). The believer gladly hears and obeys God's Word (v 21).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:4–29 Offerings, materials, and laborers pour into the work site to begin the task. Work begins as an act of faith motivated by God's Word. • "Thy strong Word bespeaks us righteous; Bright with Thine own holiness, Glorious now, we press toward glory, And our lives our hopes confess. Alleluia, alleluia! Praise to Thee who light dost send! Alleluia, alleluia! Alleluia without end!" Amen. (LSB 578:3)
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:31 filled him with the Spirit of God. See note, 31:3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:34 Bezalel and Oholiab trained the other workmen and acted as foremen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:35 embroiderer … weaver. Men were weavers. See note, Gn 37:3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:1 sanctuary. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:2 Cf 35:21, 29.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:4 See note, 31:3.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:5 Cf 1Ch 29:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:7 sufficient … and more. Luth: "It is a living, busy, active, mighty thing, this faith. It is impossible for it not to be doing good works incessantly" (FC SD IV, 10–11).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:8 cherubim. See note, Ezk 10:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 36:10 He. Bezalel. Cf 31:2–3.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 35:30–36:38 What God spoke, Moses reveals to Bezalel and Oholiab, who in turn train the craftsmen. God works through a plan, through means, and through people. When the fullness of time came (Gal 4:4), Jesus enacted the plan laid before eternity (Eph 1:4) and built a heavenly city with foundations (Heb 11:10; Rv 21:9–27). • Holy Spirit, keep us faithful to the doctrinal foundation of the prophets, the apostles, and the cornerstone, Jesus (Eph 2:20). Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:1–9 Cf 25:10–20.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:2 Cf 25:11.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:4–6 Cf 25:10–22.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:7 cherubim. See note, Ezk 10:1.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:1–9 The ark and mercy seat are built. As the single most holy piece of furniture, the ark is specifically mentioned as being built by Bezalel. The ark would receive the blood of the sacrifices, which pointed forward to the atonement of Christ, our Lord. • O Lord God, Your holiness and mercy shine more brightly than the finest gold. Exceedingly great is Your mercy toward us. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:10–16 Bezalel builds the table for the bread of the Presence. Just as the Lord provided for the nourishment of the priests in the bread and the flagons containing wine, so He nourishes us now in the elements of the Lord's Supper, even giving us His body and blood. • O Holy Spirit, lead us to seek the merciful presence of Jesus in Holy Communion, where He has promised to be found. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:17 See note, 25:18. calyxes. See note, 25:31.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:20 See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:24 talent. See p cx.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:17–24 The assembled lampstand gives light to the tabernacle but also symbolizes the light of God's care and mercy. Due to sin, the eyes of our heart are bad, and the whole body is darkened (Mt 6:23). How great is our need for repentance! Jesus is the light of the world, and in Him we have the light of life (Jn 8:12). • Jesus, we praise You that through Word and Sacrament, You enlighten us to walk in the way of salvation (Ps 119:105). Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:25 See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 37:25–29 The altar of incense and the anointing oil purifies the air of the tabernacle. Their composition is precious. Later, the Magi brought Jesus precious incense after His birth, showing that His life's work on our behalf was a pleasing fragrance before the Father. He covers the stench of our sin and makes us precious to the Father. • Holy Jesus, purify us, that we may honor You before the Father in heaven. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:1–7 The altar of burnt offering is assembled. We cannot approach the Father on our own merit. Only through the altar of the cross do we have access to Him. • Lord Jesus, thank You for offering Your life for the forgiveness of sin. Through Your work of mercy, we have access to the heavenly Father. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:8 bronze. See note, 25:3. mirrors. See note, 1Co 13:12. Formerly used for personal beautification, the mirrors are now used to serve the Lord. ministering women. See p 389.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:8 Donating their material goods of mirrors, these women no longer focus on themselves. Moved by the Holy Spirit, they now want to reflect the Lord to others. • Lord, take our eyes off our selfish interests. By the power of the Holy Spirit, may we reflect Jesus' love to others. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:9–20 Bezalel erects the court boundary. Entering from the east, one comes first to the place of sacrifice: the bronze altar. Today, we first enter the courts of the Lord when He leads us to trust in Christ's sacrifice. • Spirit of God, lead us in the way of life (Jn 14:6). Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:21 tabernacle of the testimony. See note, 25:16; see also diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:22 the LORD commanded. Refrain appears 19 times in describing the work of the sanctuary (38:22; 39:1, 5, 7, 21, 26, 29, 31, 32, 42, 43; 40:16, 19, 21, 23, 25, 27, 29, 32).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:23 See note, Gn 37:3; cf Ex 35:35.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:24–25 See note, 25:3. sanctuary. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:26 shekel. See note, 30:13. 603,550 men. See note, Nu 1:46.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:27 A large quantity of silver was used. Cf v 25.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 38:21–31 In the Gospels, Jesus compares the tabernacle and Herod's temple with the temple of His body (Mt 27:40; Jn 2:19–22), by which we have full remission of sin. By the temple of Jesus' body, we approach the Father. • Lord Jesus, we praise You that the prophecies of the OT (Lk 24:27) have been fulfilled in Your life, death, and resurrection. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:3 See note, 26:1; see also application note, ch 28.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:30 Holy. See p 7.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:32 Thus … finished. Cf Gn 2:1; the construction of the tabernacle mimics the first creation. See note, v 43.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:33 tabernacle. See diagram, p 139.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:34 covering. Cf 26:14. veil. Cf 26:31–33.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:39 Cf 27:1–8.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:41 Cf ch 28.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 39:43 blessed them. Creation was proclaimed very good, and God blessed His work (Gn 2:3). Creation of the tabernacle was also very good because it was built as God commanded and as Moses blessed. See p 842.
EXODUS—NOTE ON Ch 39 The priestly garments are completed. Just as the garments of the priests set them apart, so the Lord clothes us with His righteousness and sets us apart as a royal priesthood. • Bless me, O Savior, and consecrate me for service in Your kingdom. Amen.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:2 first day of the first month. Nearly one calendar year has passed since the Passover, established on the 10th day of the first month.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:3 ark of the testimony. See note, 25:16.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:4 table. Cf 25:23–30. lampstand. Cf 25:31–39.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:9–15 Anointing was by sprinkling.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:9 anointing oil. Oil was a preservative (e.g., oilcloth).
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:10 most holy. See note, 29:37. Both the altar of burnt offering (27:1–8) and the altar of incense (30:1–10) are mentioned. Cf Lv 8:11.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:13 garments. Cf ch 28. anoint. Cf ch 29. consecrate. See p 6.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:26 golden altar. For incense. See note, 30:1.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:27 incense. Cf 30:34–38.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:29 offered … burnt offering. Moses offered the first sacrifice because the priesthood was not yet ordained (cf Lv 8; see notes, 29:4, 26). grain offering. Offered along with the burnt offering. See pp 170–71.
EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:30 basin. Cf 30:17–21.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:33 Moses finished the work. He oversaw the work. Cf Gn 2:2. The creation of the tabernacle ushered in new life through faith in the shed blood. Cf 39:42–43.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:1–33 The Lord lives among His people in the tabernacle and leads them to life and salvation. Today, the Lord blesses us in the means of grace, leading us to life and salvation through His shed blood, which covers our sin. • Thank You, Jesus, for these OT types that find their fulfillment in You. Amen.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:34 cloud. The cloud and glory of the Lord were present on Sinai (24:15–18). glory of the LORD. See pp 6–7. tabernacle. See diagram, p 139.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:35 Though Moses was not a priest, he typically worked alongside them and had special access to God's presence (see notes, 29:4, 26). But not even Moses could enter on this occasion, when God sanctified and blessed the tabernacle.

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:36 The cloud testified that the Lord was protecting and leading His people (14:19–20).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:38 cloud. Cf v 34. fire. The Lord lived in the pillar of fire by night and cloud by day (13:21–22).

EXODUS—NOTE ON 40:34–38 In the tabernacle, the glory of the Lord is seen. We do not choose God, His location, or the form of worship. God reveals this in His gracious mercy so that we may be with Him for all eternity. The glory of the Lord continues in Word and Sacrament, through which Christ lives in and with us. • "Immortal, invisible, God only wise, In light inaccessible hid from our eyes, Most blessed, most glorious, the Ancient of Days, Almighty, victorious, Thy great name we praise." Amen. (LSB 802:1)

Laws for Burnt Offerings

1 [1] The Lord called Moses and spoke to him from the tent of meeting, saying, [2] "Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When any one of you brings an offering to the Lord, you shall bring your offering of livestock from the herd or from the flock.

[3] "If his offering is a burnt offering from the herd, he shall offer a male without blemish. He shall bring it to the entrance of the tent of meeting, that he may be accepted before the Lord. [4] He shall lay his hand on the head of the burnt offering, and it shall be accepted for him to make atonement for him. [5] Then he shall kill the bull before the Lord, and Aaron's sons the priests shall bring the blood and throw the blood against the sides of the altar that is at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [6] Then he shall flay the burnt offering and cut it into pieces, [7] and the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire on the altar and arrange wood on the fire. [8] And Aaron's sons the priests shall arrange the pieces, the head, and the fat, on the wood that is on the fire on the altar; [9] but its entrails and its legs he shall wash with water.
And the priest shall burn all of it on the altar, as a burnt offering, a food offering[1] with a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

[10] "If his gift for a burnt offering is from the flock, from the sheep or goats, he shall bring a male without blemish, [11] and he shall kill it on the north side of the altar before the Lord, and Aaron's sons the priests shall throw its blood against the sides of the altar. [12] And he shall cut it into pieces, with its head and its fat, and the priest shall arrange them on the wood that is on the fire on the altar, [13] but the entrails and the legs he shall wash with water. And the priest shall offer all of it and burn it on the altar; it is a burnt offering, a food offering with a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

[14] "If his offering to the Lord is a burnt offering of birds, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves or pigeons. [15] And the priest shall bring it to the altar and wring off its head and burn it on the altar. Its blood shall be drained out on the side of the altar. [16] He shall remove its crop with its contents[2] and cast it beside the altar on the east side, in the place for ashes.
[17] He shall tear it open by its wings, but shall not sever it completely. And the priest shall burn it on the altar, on the wood that is on the fire. It is a burnt offering, a food offering with a pleasing aroma to the LORD.

Laws for Grain Offerings

2 [1]‡†“When anyone brings a grain offering as an offering to the Lord, his offering shall be of fine flour. He shall pour oil on it and put frankincense on it [2]†and bring it to Aaron’s sons the priests. And he shall take from it a handful of the fine flour and oil, with all of its frankincense, and the priest shall burn this as its memorial portion on the altar, a food offering with a pleasing aroma to the Lord. [3]†But the rest of the grain offering shall be for Aaron and his sons; it is a most holy part of the Lord’s food offerings.

[4]‡†“When you bring a grain offering baked in the oven as an offering, it shall be unleavened loaves of fine flour mixed with oil or unleavened wafers smeared with oil. [5]And if your offering is a grain offering baked on a griddle, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mixed with oil. [6]You shall break it in pieces and pour oil on it; it is a grain offering. [7]And if your offering is a grain offering cooked in a pan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil. [8]†And you shall bring the grain offering that is made of these things to the Lord, and when it is presented to the priest, he shall bring it to the altar. [9]†And the priest shall take from the grain offering its memorial portion and burn this on the altar, a food offering with a pleasing aroma to the Lord. [10]†But the rest of the grain offering shall be for Aaron and his sons; it is a most holy part of the Lord’s food offerings.

[11]†“No grain offering that you bring to the Lord shall be made with leaven, for you shall burn no leaven nor any honey as a food offering to the Lord. [12]†As an offering of firstfruits you may bring them to the Lord, but they shall not be offered on the altar for a pleasing aroma. [13]†You shall season all your grain offerings with salt. You shall not let the salt of the covenant with your God be missing from your grain offering; with all your offerings you shall offer salt.

[14]†“If you offer a grain offering of firstfruits to the Lord, you shall offer for the grain offering of your firstfruits fresh ears, roasted with fire, crushed new grain. [15]†And you shall put oil on it and lay frankincense on it; it is a grain offering. [16]And the priest shall burn as its memorial portion some of the crushed grain and some of the oil with all of its frankincense; it is a food offering to the LORD.

Laws for Peace Offerings

3 [1]†“If his offering is a sacrifice of peace offering, if he offers an animal from the herd, male or female, he shall offer it without blemish before the Lord. [2]†And he shall lay his hand on the head of his offering and kill it at the entrance of the tent of meeting, and Aaron’s sons the priests shall throw the blood against the sides of the altar. [3]†And from the sacrifice of the peace offering, as a food offering to the Lord, he shall offer the fat covering the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails, [4]†and the two kidneys with the fat that is on them at the loins, and the long lobe of the liver that he shall remove with the kidneys. [5]†Then Aaron’s sons shall burn it on the altar on top of the burnt offering, which is on the wood on the fire; it is a food offering with a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

[6]†“If his offering for a sacrifice of peace offering to the Lord is an animal from the flock, male or female, he shall offer it without blemish. [7]†If he offers a lamb for his offering, then he shall offer it before the Lord, [8]lay his hand on the head of his offering, and kill it in front of the tent of meeting; and Aaron’s sons shall throw its blood against the sides of the altar. [9]†Then from the sacrifice of the peace offering he shall offer as a food offering to the Lord its fat; he shall remove the whole fat tail, cut off close to the backbone, and the fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails [10]and the two kidneys with the fat that is on them at the loins and the long lobe of the liver that he shall remove with the kidneys. [11]†And the priest shall burn it on the altar as a food offering to the Lord.

[12]“If his offering is a goat, then he shall offer it before the Lord [13]†and lay his hand on its head and kill it in front of the tent of meeting, and the sons of Aaron shall throw its blood against the sides of the altar. [14]Then he shall offer from it, as his offering for a food offering to the Lord, the fat covering the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails [15]and the two kidneys with the fat that is on them at the loins and the long lobe of the liver that he shall remove with the kidneys. [16]†And the priest shall burn them on the altar as a food offering with a pleasing aroma. All fat is the Lord’s. [17]†It shall be a statute forever throughout your generations, in all your dwelling places, that you eat neither fat nor blood.”

Laws for Sin Offerings

4 [1]And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Speak to the people of Israel, saying, If anyone sins unintentionally[1] in any of the Lord's commandments about things not to be done, and does any one of them, [3]if it is the anointed priest who sins, thus bringing guilt on the people, then he shall offer for the sin that he has committed a bull from the herd without blemish to the Lord for a sin offering. [4]He shall bring the bull to the entrance of the tent of meeting before the Lord and lay his hand on the head of the bull and kill the bull before the Lord. [5]And the anointed priest shall take some of the blood of the bull and bring it into the tent of meeting, [6]and the priest shall dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle part of the blood seven times before the Lord in front of the veil of the sanctuary. [7]And the priest shall put some of the blood on the horns of the altar of fragrant incense before the Lord that is in the tent of meeting, and all the rest of the blood of the bull he shall pour out at the base of the altar of burnt offering that is at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [8]And all the fat of the bull of the sin offering he shall remove from it, the fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails [9]and the two kidneys with the fat that is on them at the loins and the long lobe of the liver that he shall remove with the kidneys [10](just as these are taken from the ox of the sacrifice of the peace offerings); and the priest shall burn them on the altar of burnt offering. [11]But the skin of the bull and all its flesh, with its head, its legs, its entrails, and its dung— [12]all the rest of the bull—he shall carry outside the camp to a clean place, to the ash heap, and shall burn it up on a fire of wood. On the ash heap it shall be burned up.

[13] "If the whole congregation of Israel sins unintentionally[1] and the thing is hidden from the eyes of the assembly, and they do any one of the things that by the Lord's commandments ought not to be done, and they realize their guilt,[2] [14]when the sin which they have committed becomes known, the assembly shall offer a bull from the herd for a sin offering and bring it in front of the tent of meeting. [15]And the elders of the congregation shall lay their hands on the head of the bull before the Lord, and the bull shall be killed before the LORD. 16 †Then the anointed priest shall bring some of the blood of the bull into the tent of meeting, 17 †and the priest shall dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD in front of the veil. 18 And he shall put some of the blood on the horns of the altar that is in the tent of meeting before the LORD, and the rest of the blood he shall pour out at the base of the altar of burnt offering that is at the entrance of the tent of meeting. 19 And all its fat he shall take from it and burn on the altar.

20 †Thus shall he do with the bull. As he did with the bull of the sin offering, so shall he do with this. And the priest shall make atonement for them, and they shall be forgiven. 21 †And he shall carry the bull outside the camp and burn it up as he burned the first bull; it is the sin offering for the assembly.

22 †"When a leader sins, doing unintentionally any one of all the things that by the commandments of the LORD his God ought not to be done, and realizes his guilt, 23 †or the sin which he has committed is made known to him, he shall bring as his offering a goat, a male without blemish, 24 and shall lay his hand on the head of the goat and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt offering before the LORD; it is a sin offering. 25 †Then the priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering with his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering and pour out the rest of its blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering. 26 †And all its fat he shall burn on the altar, like the fat of the sacrifice of peace offerings. So the priest shall make atonement for him for his sin, and he shall be forgiven.

27 †"If anyone of the common people sins unintentionally in doing any one of the things that by the LORD's commandments ought not to be done, and realizes his guilt, 28 †or the sin which he has committed is made known to him, he shall bring for his offering a goat, a female without blemish, for his sin which he has committed. 29 †And he shall lay his hand on the head of the sin offering and kill the sin offering in the place of burnt offering.
30 †And the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering and pour out all the rest of its blood at the base of the altar. 31 †And all its fat he shall remove, as the fat is removed from the peace offerings, and the priest shall burn it on the altar for a pleasing aroma to the LORD. And the priest shall make atonement for him, and he shall be forgiven.

32 †“If he brings a lamb as his offering for a sin offering, he shall bring a female without blemish 33 †and lay his hand on the head of the sin offering and kill it for a sin offering in the place where they kill the burnt offering.
34 †Then the priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering with his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offering and pour out all the rest of its blood at the base of the altar. 35 †And all its fat he shall remove as the fat of the lamb is removed from the sacrifice of peace offerings, and the priest shall burn it on the altar, on top of the Lord's food offerings. And the priest shall make atonement for him for the sin which he has committed, and he shall be forgiven.

5 1 ††“If anyone sins in that he hears a public adjuration to testify, and though he is a witness, whether he has seen or come to know the matter, yet does not speak, he shall bear his iniquity; 2 †or if anyone touches an unclean thing, whether a carcass of an unclean wild animal or a carcass of unclean livestock or a carcass of unclean swarming things, and it is hidden from him and he has become unclean, and he realizes his guilt; 3 †or if he touches human uncleanness, of whatever sort the uncleanness may be with which one becomes unclean, and it is hidden from him, when he comes to know it, and realizes his guilt; 4 †or if anyone utters with his lips a rash oath to do evil or to do good, any sort of rash oath that people swear, and it is hidden from him, when he comes to know it, and he realizes his guilt in any of these; 5 †when he realizes his guilt in any of these and confesses the sin he has committed, 6 †he shall bring to the Lord as his compensation[1] for the sin that he has committed, a female from the flock, a lamb or a goat, for a sin offering. And the priest shall make atonement for him for his sin.

7 †“But if he cannot afford a lamb, then he shall bring to the Lord as his compensation for the sin that he has committed two turtledoves or two pigeons,[2] one for a sin offering and the other for a burnt offering. 8 He shall bring them to the priest, who shall offer first the one for the sin offering. He shall wring its head from its neck but shall not sever it completely, 9 and he shall sprinkle some of the blood of the sin offering on the side of the altar, while the rest of the blood shall be drained out at the base of the altar; it is a sin offering. 10 †Then he shall offer the second for a burnt offering according to the rule. And the priest shall make atonement for him for the sin that he has committed, and he shall be forgiven.

11 † “But if he cannot afford two turtledoves or two pigeons, then he shall bring as his offering for the sin that he has committed a tenth of an ephah[1] of fine flour for a sin offering. He shall put no oil on it and shall put no frankincense on it, for it is a sin offering. 12 † And he shall bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take a handful of it as its memorial portion and burn this on the altar, on the Lord’s food offerings; it is a sin offering.
13 † Thus the priest shall make atonement for him for the sin which he has committed in any one of these things, and he shall be forgiven. And the remainder[2] shall be for the priest, as in the grain offering.”

Laws for Guilt Offerings

14 †The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 15 †“If anyone commits a breach of faith and sins unintentionally in any of the holy things of the Lord, he shall bring to the Lord as his compensation, a ram without blemish out of the flock, valued[3] in silver shekels,[4] according to the shekel of the sanctuary, for a guilt offering. 16He shall also make restitution for what he has done amiss in the holy thing and shall add a fifth to it and give it to the priest.
And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram of the guilt offering, and he shall be forgiven.
17 “If anyone sins, doing any of the things that by the Lord’s commandments ought not to be done, though he did not know it, then realizes his guilt, he shall bear his iniquity. 18He shall bring to the priest a ram without blemish out of the flock, or its equivalent for a guilt offering, and the priest shall make atonement for him for the mistake that he made unintentionally, and he shall be forgiven. 19 †It is a guilt offering; he has indeed incurred guilt before[5] the Lord.”

6 1[6] The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 2†“If anyone sins and commits a breach of faith against the Lord by deceiving his neighbor in a matter of deposit or security, or through robbery, or if he has oppressed his neighbor 3or has found something lost and lied about it, swearing falsely—in any of all the things that people do and sin thereby— 4if he has sinned and has realized his guilt and will restore what he took by robbery or what he got by oppression or the deposit that was committed to him or the lost thing that he found 5†or anything about which he has sworn falsely, he shall restore it in full and shall add a fifth to it, and give it to him to whom it belongs on the day he realizes his guilt. 6 † And he shall bring to the priest as his compensation to the Lord a ram without blemish out of the flock, or its equivalent for a guilt offering. 7†And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord, and he shall be forgiven for any of the things that one may do and thereby become guilty.”

The Priests and the Offerings

8 ‡ ‡ ‡ [7] The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 9 † “Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the burnt offering. The burnt offering shall be on the hearth on the altar all night until the morning, and the fire of the altar shall be kept burning on it. 10 † And the priest shall put on his linen garment and put his linen undergarment on his body, and he shall take up the ashes to which the fire has reduced the burnt offering on the altar and put them beside the altar. 11 † Then he shall take off his garments and put on other garments and carry the ashes outside the camp to a clean place. 12 † The fire on the altar shall be kept burning on it; it shall not go out. The priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and he shall arrange the burnt offering on it and shall burn on it the fat of the peace offerings. 13 Fire shall be kept burning on the altar continually; it shall not go out.

14 † “And this is the law of the grain offering. The sons of Aaron shall offer it before the Lord in front of the altar. 15 And one shall take from it a handful of the fine flour of the grain offering and its oil and all the frankincense that is on the grain offering and burn this as its memorial portion on the altar, a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 16 † And the rest of it Aaron and his sons shall eat. It shall be eaten unleavened in a holy place. In the court of the tent of meeting they shall eat it. 17 † It shall not be baked with leaven. I have given it as their portion of my food offerings. It is a thing most holy, like the sin offering and the guilt offering. 18 † Every male among the children of Aaron may eat of it, as decreed forever throughout your generations, from the Lord’s food offerings. Whatever touches them shall become holy.”

19 The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 20 † “This is the offering that Aaron and his sons shall offer to the Lord on the day when he is anointed: a tenth of an ephah[1] of fine flour as a regular grain offering, half of it in the morning and half in the evening. 21 † It shall be made with oil on a griddle.
You shall bring it well mixed, in baked[2] pieces like a grain offering, and offer it for a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 22 † The priest from among Aaron’s sons, who is anointed to succeed him, shall offer it to the Lord as decreed forever. The whole of it shall be burned. 23 Every grain offering of a priest shall be wholly burned. It shall not be eaten.”

[24]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [25]†“Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the sin offering. In the place where the burnt offering is killed shall the sin offering be killed before the Lord; it is most holy. [26]†The priest who offers it for sin shall eat it. In a holy place it shall be eaten, in the court of the tent of meeting. [27]†Whatever touches its flesh shall be holy, and when any of its blood is splashed on a garment, you shall wash that on which it was splashed in a holy place. [28]And the earthenware vessel in which it is boiled shall be broken. But if it is boiled in a bronze vessel, that shall be scoured and rinsed in water. [29]†Every male among the priests may eat of it; it is most holy. [30]†But no sin offering shall be eaten from which any blood is brought into the tent of meeting to make atonement in the Holy Place; it shall be burned up with fire.

7 [1]†“This is the law of the guilt offering. It is most holy. [2]In the place where they kill the burnt offering they shall kill the guilt offering, and its blood shall be thrown against the sides of the altar. [3]And all its fat shall be offered, the fat tail, the fat that covers the entrails, [4]the two kidneys with the fat that is on them at the loins, and the long lobe of the liver that he shall remove with the kidneys. [5]The priest shall burn them on the altar as a food offering to the Lord; it is a guilt offering. [6]‡†Every male among the priests may eat of it. It shall be eaten in a holy place. It is most holy. [7]†The guilt offering is just like the sin offering; there is one law for them. The priest who makes atonement with it shall have it. [8]And the priest who offers any man’s burnt offering shall have for himself the skin of the burnt offering that he has offered. [9]And every grain offering baked in the oven and all that is prepared on a pan or a griddle shall belong to the priest who offers it. [10]†And every grain offering, mixed with oil or dry, shall be shared equally among all the sons of Aaron.

[11]† “And this is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings that one may offer to the Lord. [12]†If he offers it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer with the thanksgiving sacrifice unleavened loaves mixed with oil, unleavened wafers smeared with oil, and loaves of fine flour well mixed with oil. [13]†With the sacrifice of his peace offerings for thanksgiving he shall bring his offering with loaves of leavened bread. [14]†And from it he shall offer one loaf from each offering, as a gift to the Lord. It shall belong to the priest who throws the blood of the peace offerings. 15 †And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offerings for thanksgiving shall be eaten on the day of his offering. He shall not leave any of it until the morning. 16 †But if the sacrifice of his offering is a vow offering or a freewill offering, it shall be eaten on the day that he offers his sacrifice, and on the next day what remains of it shall be eaten. 17 But what remains of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day shall be burned up with fire. 18 †If any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace offering is eaten on the third day, he who offers it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be credited to him. It is tainted, and he who eats of it shall bear his iniquity.

19 †"Flesh that touches any unclean thing shall not be eaten. It shall be burned up with fire. All who are clean may eat flesh, 20 †but the person who eats of the flesh of the sacrifice of the Lord's peace offerings while an uncleanness is on him, that person shall be cut off from his people. 21 And if anyone touches an unclean thing, whether human uncleanness or an unclean beast or any unclean detestable creature, and then eats some flesh from the sacrifice of the Lord's peace offerings, that person shall be cut off from his people."

22 †The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 23 "Speak to the people of Israel, saying, You shall eat no fat, of ox or sheep or goat. 24 The fat of an animal that dies of itself and the fat of one that is torn by beasts may be put to any other use, but on no account shall you eat it. 25 For every person who eats of the fat of an animal of which a food offering may be made to the Lord shall be cut off from his people. 26 †Moreover, you shall eat no blood whatever, whether of fowl or of animal, in any of your dwelling places. 27 Whoever eats any blood, that person shall be cut off from his people."

28 The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 29 †"Speak to the people of Israel, saying, Whoever offers the sacrifice of his peace offerings to the Lord shall bring his offering to the Lord from the sacrifice of his peace offerings.
30 †His own hands shall bring the Lord's food offerings. He shall bring the fat with the breast, that the breast may be waved as a wave offering before the Lord. 31 The priest shall burn the fat on the altar, but the breast shall be for Aaron and his sons. 32 And the right thigh you shall give to the priest as a contribution from the sacrifice of your peace offerings. 33 Whoever among the sons of Aaron offers the blood of the peace offerings and the fat shall have the right thigh for a portion. [34]For the breast that is waved and the thigh that is contributed I have taken from the people of Israel, out of the sacrifices of their peace offerings, and have given them to Aaron the priest and to his sons, as a perpetual due from the people of Israel. [35]This is the portion of Aaron and of his sons from the LORD's food offerings, from the day they were presented to serve as priests of the LORD. [36] † The LORD commanded this to be given them by the people of Israel, from the day that he anointed them. It is a perpetual due throughout their generations."

[37] † This is the law of the burnt offering, of the grain offering, of the sin offering, of the guilt offering, of the ordination offering, and of the peace offering, [38]which the LORD commanded Moses on Mount Sinai, on the day that he commanded the people of Israel to bring their offerings to the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai.

Consecration of Aaron and His Sons

8 [1]†The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†"Take Aaron and his sons with him, and the garments and the anointing oil and the bull of the sin offering and the two rams and the basket of unleavened bread. [3]†And assemble all the congregation at the entrance of the tent of meeting." [4]And Moses did as the Lord commanded him, and the congregation was assembled at the entrance of the tent of meeting.

[5]And Moses said to the congregation, "This is the thing that the Lord has commanded to be done." [6]And Moses brought Aaron and his sons and washed them with water. [7]†And he put the coat on him and tied the sash around his waist and clothed him with the robe and put the ephod on him and tied the skillfully woven band of the ephod around him, binding it to him with the band.[1] [8]†And he placed the breastpiece on him, and in the breastpiece he put the Urim and the Thummim. [9]And he set the turban on his head, and on the turban, in front, he set the golden plate, the holy crown, as the Lord commanded Moses.

[10]† Then Moses took the anointing oil and anointed the tabernacle and all that was in it, and consecrated them. [11]And he sprinkled some of it on the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all its utensils and the basin and its stand, to consecrate them. [12]†And he poured some of the anointing oil on Aaron's head and anointed him to consecrate him. [13]†And Moses brought Aaron's sons and clothed them with coats and tied sashes around their waists and bound caps on them, as the Lord commanded Moses.

[14]†Then he brought the bull of the sin offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the bull of the sin offering. [15]†And he[2] killed it, and Moses took the blood, and with his finger put it on the horns of the altar around it and purified the altar and poured out the blood at the base of the altar and consecrated it to make atonement for it. [16]And he took all the fat that was on the entrails and the long lobe of the liver and the two kidneys with their fat, and Moses burned them on the altar. [17]†But the bull and its skin and its flesh and its dung he burned up with fire outside the camp, as the Lord commanded Moses.

18 Then he presented the ram of the burnt offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram. 19And he killed it, and Moses threw the blood against the sides of the altar. 20He cut the ram into pieces, and Moses burned the head and the pieces and the fat. 21† He washed the entrails and the legs with water, and Moses burned the whole ram on the altar. It was a burnt offering with a pleasing aroma, a food offering for the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.
22† Then he presented the other ram, the ram of ordination, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram. 23† And he killed it, and Moses took some of its blood and put it on the lobe of Aaron's right ear and on the thumb of his right hand and on the big toe of his right foot. 24Then he presented Aaron's sons, and Moses put some of the blood on the lobes of their right ears and on the thumbs of their right hands and on the big toes of their right feet. And Moses threw the blood against the sides of the altar.
25Then he took the fat and the fat tail and all the fat that was on the entrails and the long lobe of the liver and the two kidneys with their fat and the right thigh, 26and out of the basket of unleavened bread that was before the LORD he took one unleavened loaf and one loaf of bread with oil and one wafer and placed them on the pieces of fat and on the right thigh. 27† And he put all these in the hands of Aaron and in the hands of his sons and waved them as a wave offering before the LORD. 28† Then Moses took them from their hands and burned them on the altar with the burnt offering. This was an ordination offering with a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the LORD.
29† And Moses took the breast and waved it for a wave offering before the LORD. It was Moses' portion of the ram of ordination, as the LORD commanded Moses.
30† Then Moses took some of the anointing oil and of the blood that was on the altar and sprinkled it on Aaron and his garments, and also on his sons and his sons' garments. So he consecrated Aaron and his garments, and his sons and his sons' garments with him.
31And Moses said to Aaron and his sons, "Boil the flesh at the entrance of the tent of meeting, and there eat it and the bread that is in the basket of ordination offerings, as I commanded, saying, 'Aaron and his sons shall eat it.' 32And what remains of the flesh and the bread you shall burn up with fire. 33† And you shall not go outside the entrance of the tent of meeting for seven days, until the days of your ordination are completed, for it will take seven days to ordain you. [34]As has been done today, the LORD has commanded to be done to make atonement for you. [35]At the entrance of the tent of meeting you shall remain day and night for seven days, performing what the LORD has charged, so that you do not die, for so I have been commanded." [36]And Aaron and his sons did all the things that the LORD commanded by Moses.

The LORD Accepts Aaron's Offering

9 [1]†On the eighth day Moses called Aaron and his sons and the elders of Israel, [2]and he said to Aaron, "Take for yourself a bull calf for a sin offering and a ram for a burnt offering, both without blemish, and offer them before the LORD. [3]And say to the people of Israel, 'Take a male goat for a sin offering, and a calf and a lamb, both a year old without blemish, for a burnt offering, [4]and an ox and a ram for peace offerings, to sacrifice before the LORD, and a grain offering mixed with oil, for today the LORD will appear to you.'" [5]†And they brought what Moses commanded in front of the tent of meeting, and all the congregation drew near and stood before the LORD.
[6]And Moses said, "This is the thing that the LORD commanded you to do, that the glory of the LORD may appear to you." [7]†Then Moses said to Aaron,
"Draw near to the altar and offer your sin offering and your burnt offering and make atonement for yourself and for the people, and bring the offering of the people and make atonement for them, as the LORD has commanded."

[8]So Aaron drew near to the altar and killed the calf of the sin offering, which was for himself. [9]†And the sons of Aaron presented the blood to him, and he dipped his finger in the blood and put it on the horns of the altar and poured out the blood at the base of the altar. [10]But the fat and the kidneys and the long lobe of the liver from the sin offering he burned on the altar, as the LORD commanded Moses. [11]†The flesh and the skin he burned up with fire outside the camp.

[12]Then he killed the burnt offering, and Aaron's sons handed him the blood, and he threw it against the sides of the altar. [13]And they handed the burnt offering to him, piece by piece, and the head, and he burned them on the altar. [14]And he washed the entrails and the legs and burned them with the burnt offering on the altar.

[15]† Then he presented the people's offering and took the goat of the sin offering that was for the people and killed it and offered it as a sin offering, like the first one. [16]And he presented the burnt offering and offered it according to the rule. [17]And he presented the grain offering, took a handful of it, and burned it on the altar, besides the burnt offering of the morning.

[18]† Then he killed the ox and the ram, the sacrifice of peace offerings for the people. And Aaron's sons handed him the blood, and he threw it against the sides of the altar. [19]But the fat pieces of the ox and of the ram, the fat tail and that which covers the entrails and the kidneys and the long lobe of the liver— [20]they put the fat pieces on the breasts, and he burned the fat pieces on the altar, [21]†but the breasts and the right thigh Aaron waved for a wave offering before the Lord, as Moses commanded.
[22]† Then Aaron lifted up his hands toward the people and blessed them, and he came down from offering the sin offering and the burnt offering and the peace offerings. [23]†And Moses and Aaron went into the tent of meeting, and when they came out they blessed the people, and the glory of the Lord appeared to all the people. [24]†And fire came out from before the Lord and consumed the burnt offering and the pieces of fat on the altar, and when all the people saw it, they shouted and fell on their faces.

The Death of Nadab and Abihu

10 [1]†Now Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, each took his censer and put fire in it and laid incense on it and offered unauthorized[1] fire before the Lord, which he had not commanded them. [2]†And fire came out from before the Lord and consumed them, and they died before the Lord.
[3]†Then Moses said to Aaron, "This is what the Lord has said, 'Among those who are near me I will be sanctified, and before all the people I will be glorified.'" And Aaron held his peace.

[4]‡ And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said to them, "Come near; carry your brothers away from the front of the sanctuary and out of the camp." [5]So they came near and carried them in their coats out of the camp, as Moses had said. [6]‡And Moses said to Aaron and to Eleazar and Ithamar his sons, "Do not let the hair of your heads hang loose, and do not tear your clothes, lest you die, and wrath come upon all the congregation; but let your brothers, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning that the Lord has kindled. [7]And do not go outside the entrance of the tent of meeting, lest you die, for the anointing oil of the Lord is upon you." And they did according to the word of Moses.

[8]And the Lord spoke to Aaron, saying, [9]†"Drink no wine or strong drink, you or your sons with you, when you go into the tent of meeting, lest you die. It shall be a statute forever throughout your generations. [10]†You are to distinguish between the holy and the common, and between the unclean and the clean, [11]†and you are to teach the people of Israel all the statutes that the Lord has spoken to them by Moses."

[12]‡†Moses spoke to Aaron and to Eleazar and Ithamar, his surviving sons:
"Take the grain offering that is left of the Lord's food offerings, and eat it unleavened beside the altar, for it is most holy. [13]You shall eat it in a holy place, because it is your due and your sons' due, from the Lord's food offerings, for so I am commanded. [14]But the breast that is waved and the thigh that is contributed you shall eat in a clean place, you and your sons and your daughters with you, for they are given as your due and your sons' due from the sacrifices of the peace offerings of the people of Israel. [15]The thigh that is contributed and the breast that is waved they shall bring with the food offerings of the fat pieces to wave for a wave offering before the Lord, and it shall be yours and your sons' with you as a due forever, as the Lord has commanded."

16 †Now Moses diligently inquired about the goat of the sin offering, and behold, it was burned up! And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the surviving sons of Aaron, saying, 17 † "Why have you not eaten the sin offering in the place of the sanctuary, since it is a thing most holy and has been given to you that you may bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the Lord? 18 †Behold, its blood was not brought into the inner part of the sanctuary. You certainly ought to have eaten it in the sanctuary, as I commanded." 19 †And Aaron said to Moses, "Behold, today they have offered their sin offering and their burnt offering before the Lord, and yet such things as these have happened to me! If I had eaten the sin offering today, would the Lord have approved?" 20 †And when Moses heard that, he approved.

Clean and Unclean Animals

11 [1] † And the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying to them,
[2] "Speak to the people of Israel, saying, These are the living things that you may eat among all the animals that are on the earth. [3] † Whatever parts the hoof and is cloven-footed and chews the cud, among the animals, you may eat. [4] Nevertheless, among those that chew the cud or part the hoof, you shall not eat these: The camel, because it chews the cud but does not part the hoof, is unclean to you. [5] And the rock badger, because it chews the cud but does not part the hoof, is unclean to you. [6] And the hare, because it chews the cud but does not part the hoof, is unclean to you. [7] And the pig, because it parts the hoof and is cloven-footed but does not chew the cud, is unclean to you. [8] You shall not eat any of their flesh, and you shall not touch their carcasses; they are unclean to you.

[9] † "These you may eat, of all that are in the waters. Everything in the waters that has fins and scales, whether in the seas or in the rivers, you may eat. [10] But anything in the seas or the rivers that has not fins and scales, of the swarming creatures in the waters and of the living creatures that are in the waters, is detestable to you. [11] You shall regard them as detestable; you shall not eat any of their flesh, and you shall detest their carcasses.
[12] Everything in the waters that has not fins and scales is detestable to you.

[13] † "And these you shall detest among the birds;[1] they shall not be eaten; they are detestable: the eagle,[2] the bearded vulture, the black vulture, [14] the kite, the falcon of any kind, [15] every raven of any kind, [16] the ostrich, the nighthawk, the sea gull, the hawk of any kind, [17] the little owl, the cormorant, the short-eared owl, [18] the barn owl, the tawny owl, the carrion vulture, [19] the stork, the heron of any kind, the hoopoe, and the bat.

[20] † "All winged insects that go on all fours are detestable to you. [21] Yet among the winged insects that go on all fours you may eat those that have jointed legs above their feet, with which to hop on the ground. [22] Of them you may eat: the locust of any kind, the bald locust of any kind, the cricket of any kind, and the grasshopper of any kind. [23] But all other winged insects that have four feet are detestable to you.

[24] ✝ “And by these you shall become unclean. Whoever touches their carcass shall be unclean until the evening, [25]and whoever carries any part of their carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until the evening.
[26]Every animal that parts the hoof but is not cloven-footed or does not chew the cud is unclean to you. Everyone who touches them shall be unclean.
[27]And all that walk on their paws, among the animals that go on all fours, are unclean to you. Whoever touches their carcass shall be unclean until the evening, [28]and he who carries their carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until the evening; they are unclean to you.

[29] ✝ “And these are unclean to you among the swarming things that swarm on the ground: the mole rat, the mouse, the great lizard of any kind, [30]the gecko, the monitor lizard, the lizard, the sand lizard, and the chameleon.
[31]These are unclean to you among all that swarm. Whoever touches them when they are dead shall be unclean until the evening. [32]And anything on which any of them falls when they are dead shall be unclean, whether it is an article of wood or a garment or a skin or a sack, any article that is used for any purpose. It must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the evening; then it shall be clean. [33]And if any of them falls into any earthenware vessel, all that is in it shall be unclean, and you shall break it.
[34]Any food in it that could be eaten, on which water comes, shall be unclean. And all drink that could be drunk from every such vessel shall be unclean. [35]And everything on which any part of their carcass falls shall be unclean. Whether oven or stove, it shall be broken in pieces. They are unclean and shall remain unclean for you. [36]Nevertheless, a spring or a cistern holding water shall be clean, but whoever touches a carcass in them shall be unclean. [37]And if any part of their carcass falls upon any seed grain that is to be sown, it is clean, [38]but if water is put on the seed and any part of their carcass falls on it, it is unclean to you.

[39] ✝ “And if any animal which you may eat dies, whoever touches its carcass shall be unclean until the evening, [40]and whoever eats of its carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until the evening. And whoever carries the carcass shall wash his clothes and be unclean until the evening.

[41] ✝ “Every swarming thing that swarms on the ground is detestable; it shall not be eaten. [42]Whatever goes on its belly, and whatever goes on all fours, or whatever has many feet, any swarming thing that swarms on the ground, you shall not eat, for they are detestable. [43]You shall not make yourselves detestable with any swarming thing that swarms, and you shall not defile yourselves with them, and become unclean through them. [44]†† For I am the LORD your God. Consecrate yourselves therefore, and be holy, for I am holy. You shall not defile yourselves with any swarming thing that crawls on the ground. [45]For I am the LORD who brought you up out of the land of Egypt to be your God. You shall therefore be holy, for I am holy."

[46] † This is the law about beast and bird and every living creature that moves through the waters and every creature that swarms on the ground, [47]to make a distinction between the unclean and the clean and between the living creature that may be eaten and the living creature that may not be eaten.

Purification After Childbirth

12 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†“Speak to the people of Israel, saying, ‘If a woman conceives and bears a male child, then she shall be unclean seven days. As at the time of her menstruation, she shall be unclean. [3]† And on the eighth day the flesh of his foreskin shall be circumcised. [4]†Then she shall continue for thirty-three days in the blood of her purifying. She shall not touch anything holy, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying are completed. [5]†But if she bears a female child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her menstruation.
And she shall continue in the blood of her purifying for sixty-six days.

[6]†“‘And when the days of her purifying are completed, whether for a son or for a daughter, she shall bring to the priest at the entrance of the tent of meeting a lamb a year old for a burnt offering, and a pigeon or a turtledove for a sin offering, [7]† and he shall offer it before the Lord and make atonement for her. Then she shall be clean from the flow of her blood. This is the law for her who bears a child, either male or female. [8]†And if she cannot afford a lamb, then she shall take two turtledoves or two pigeons,[1] one for a burnt offering and the other for a sin offering. And the priest shall make atonement for her, and she shall be clean.’”

Laws About Leprosy

13 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, [2]“When a person has on the skin of his body a swelling or an eruption or a spot, and it turns into a case of leprous[1] disease on the skin of his body, then he shall be brought to Aaron the priest or to one of his sons the priests, [3]† and the priest shall examine the diseased area on the skin of his body. And if the hair in the diseased area has turned white and the disease appears to be deeper than the skin of his body, it is a case of leprous disease. When the priest has examined him, he shall pronounce him unclean. [4]†But if the spot is white in the skin of his body and appears no deeper than the skin, and the hair in it has not turned white, the priest shall shut up the diseased person for seven days. [5]† And the priest shall examine him on the seventh day, and if in his eyes the disease is checked and the disease has not spread in the skin, then the priest shall shut him up for another seven days. [6]† And the priest shall examine him again on the seventh day, and if the diseased area has faded and the disease has not spread in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean; it is only an eruption. And he shall wash his clothes and be clean.
[7]But if the eruption spreads in the skin, after he has shown himself to the priest for his cleansing, he shall appear again before the priest. [8]And the priest shall look, and if the eruption has spread in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a leprous disease.

[9]“When a man is afflicted with a leprous disease, he shall be brought to the priest, [10]and the priest shall look. And if there is a white swelling in the skin that has turned the hair white, and there is raw flesh in the swelling, [11]it is a chronic leprous disease in the skin of his body, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean. He shall not shut him up, for he is unclean. [12]And if the leprous disease breaks out in the skin, so that the leprous disease covers all the skin of the diseased person from head to foot, so far as the priest can see, [13]† then the priest shall look, and if the leprous disease has covered all his body, he shall pronounce him clean of the disease; it has all turned white, and he is clean. [14]† But when raw flesh appears on him, he shall be unclean. [15]And the priest shall examine the raw flesh and pronounce him unclean. Raw flesh is unclean, for it is a leprous disease. [16]†But if the raw flesh recovers and turns white again, then he shall come to the priest, [17]and the priest shall examine him, and if the disease has turned white, then the priest shall pronounce the diseased person clean; he is clean.

[18]"If there is in the skin of one's body a boil and it heals, [19]and in the place of the boil there comes a white swelling or a reddish-white spot, then it shall be shown to the priest. [20]†And the priest shall look, and if it appears deeper than the skin and its hair has turned white, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is a case of leprous disease that has broken out in the boil. [21]†But if the priest examines it and there is no white hair in it and it is not deeper than the skin, but has faded, then the priest shall shut him up seven days. [22]And if it spreads in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a disease. [23]†But if the spot remains in one place and does not spread, it is the scar of the boil, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

[24]†"Or, when the body has a burn on its skin and the raw flesh of the burn becomes a spot, reddish-white or white, [25]the priest shall examine it, and if the hair in the spot has turned white and it appears deeper than the skin, then it is a leprous disease. It has broken out in the burn, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a case of leprous disease. [26]But if the priest examines it and there is no white hair in the spot and it is no deeper than the skin, but has faded, the priest shall shut him up seven days, [27]and the priest shall examine him the seventh day. If it is spreading in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a case of leprous disease. [28]But if the spot remains in one place and does not spread in the skin, but has faded, it is a swelling from the burn, and the priest shall pronounce him clean, for it is the scar of the burn.

[29]†"When a man or woman has a disease on the head or the beard, [30]the priest shall examine the disease. And if it appears deeper than the skin, and the hair in it is yellow and thin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is an itch, a leprous disease of the head or the beard. [31]And if the priest examines the itching disease and it appears no deeper than the skin and there is no black hair in it, then the priest shall shut up the person with the itching disease for seven days, [32]and on the seventh day the priest shall examine the disease. If the itch has not spread, and there is in it no yellow hair, and the itch appears to be no deeper than the skin, [33]then he shall shave himself, but the itch he shall not shave; and the priest shall shut up the person with the itching disease for another seven days. [34]† And on the seventh day the priest shall examine the itch, and if the itch has not spread in the skin and it appears to be no deeper than the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean. And he shall wash his clothes and be clean. [35]But if the itch spreads in the skin after his cleansing, [36]then the priest shall examine him, and if the itch has spread in the skin, the priest need not seek for the yellow hair; he is unclean. [37]But if in his eyes the itch is unchanged and black hair has grown in it, the itch is healed and he is clean, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

[38]“When a man or a woman has spots on the skin of the body, white spots, [39]†the priest shall look, and if the spots on the skin of the body are of a dull white, it is leukoderma that has broken out in the skin; he is clean.

[40]“If a man’s hair falls out from his head, he is bald; he is clean. [41]And if a man’s hair falls out from his forehead, he has baldness of the forehead; he is clean. [42]† But if there is on the bald head or the bald forehead a reddish-white diseased area, it is a leprous disease breaking out on his bald head or his bald forehead. [43]Then the priest shall examine him, and if the diseased swelling is reddish-white on his bald head or on his bald forehead, like the appearance of leprous disease in the skin of the body, [44]he is a leprous man, he is unclean. The priest must pronounce him unclean; his disease is on his head.

[45]“The leprous person who has the disease shall wear torn clothes and let the hair of his head hang loose, and he shall cover his upper lip[1] and cry out, ‘Unclean, unclean.’ [46]He shall remain unclean as long as he has the disease. He is unclean. He shall live alone. His dwelling shall be outside the camp.

[47]† “When there is a case of leprous disease in a garment, whether a woolen or a linen garment, [48]†in warp or woof of linen or wool, or in a skin or in anything made of skin, [49]†if the disease is greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin or in the warp or the woof or in any article made of skin, it is a case of leprous disease, and it shall be shown to the priest. [50]And the priest shall examine the disease and shut up that which has the disease for seven days. [51]Then he shall examine the disease on the seventh day. If the disease has spread in the garment, in the warp or the woof, or in the skin, whatever be the use of the skin, the disease is a persistent leprous disease; it is unclean. 52 † And he shall burn the garment, or the warp or the woof, the wool or the linen, or any article made of skin that is diseased, for it is a persistent leprous disease. It shall be burned in the fire.

53 "And if the priest examines, and if the disease has not spread in the garment, in the warp or the woof or in any article made of skin, 54 † then the priest shall command that they wash the thing in which is the disease, and he shall shut it up for another seven days. 55 † And the priest shall examine the diseased thing after it has been washed. And if the appearance of the diseased area has not changed, though the disease has not spread, it is unclean. You shall burn it in the fire, whether the rot is on the back or on the front.

56 † "But if the priest examines, and if the diseased area has faded after it has been washed, he shall tear it out of the garment or the skin or the warp or the woof. 57 Then if it appears again in the garment, in the warp or the woof, or in any article made of skin, it is spreading. You shall burn with fire whatever has the disease. 58 But the garment, or the warp or the woof, or any article made of skin from which the disease departs when you have washed it, shall then be washed a second time, and be clean."

59 † This is the law for a case of leprous disease in a garment of wool or linen, either in the warp or the woof, or in any article made of skin, to determine whether it is clean or unclean.

Laws for Cleansing Lepers

14 [1]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"This shall be the law of the leprous person for the day of his cleansing. He shall be brought to the priest, [3]and the priest shall go out of the camp, and the priest shall look.
Then, if the case of leprous disease is healed in the leprous person, [4]the priest shall command them to take for him who is to be cleansed two live[1] clean birds and cedarwood and scarlet yarn and hyssop. [5]And the priest shall command them to kill one of the birds in an earthenware vessel over fresh[2] water. [6]He shall take the live bird with the cedarwood and the scarlet yarn and the hyssop, and dip them and the live bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the fresh water. [7]And he shall sprinkle it seven times on him who is to be cleansed of the leprous disease. Then he shall pronounce him clean and shall let the living bird go into the open field.
[8]And he who is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes and shave off all his hair and bathe himself in water, and he shall be clean. And after that he may come into the camp, but live outside his tent seven days. [9]And on the seventh day he shall shave off all his hair from his head, his beard, and his eyebrows. He shall shave off all his hair, and then he shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and he shall be clean.

[10]"And on the eighth day he shall take two male lambs without blemish, and one ewe lamb a year old without blemish, and a grain offering of three tenths of an ephah[3] of fine flour mixed with oil, and one log[4] of oil. [11]And the priest who cleanses him shall set the man who is to be cleansed and these things before the LORD, at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [12]And the priest shall take one of the male lambs and offer it for a guilt offering, along with the log of oil, and wave them for a wave offering before the LORD. [13]And he shall kill the lamb in the place where they kill the sin offering and the burnt offering, in the place of the sanctuary. For the guilt offering, like the sin offering, belongs to the priest; it is most holy.
[14]The priest shall take some of the blood of the guilt offering, and the priest shall put it on the lobe of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed and on the thumb of his right hand and on the big toe of his right foot.

15 †Then the priest shall take some of the log of oil and pour it into the palm of his own left hand 16 and dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand and sprinkle some oil with his finger seven times before the Lord.
17 And some of the oil that remains in his hand the priest shall put on the lobe of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed and on the thumb of his right hand and on the big toe of his right foot, on top of the blood of the guilt offering. 18 †And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall put on the head of him who is to be cleansed. Then the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord. 19 The priest shall offer the sin offering, to make atonement for him who is to be cleansed from his uncleanness. And afterward he shall kill the burnt offering. 20 †And the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the grain offering on the altar. Thus the priest shall make atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 †"But if he is poor and cannot afford so much, then he shall take one male lamb for a guilt offering to be waved, to make atonement for him, and a tenth of an ephah of fine flour mixed with oil for a grain offering, and a log of oil; 22 also two turtledoves or two pigeons, whichever he can afford.
The one shall be a sin offering and the other a burnt offering. 23 And on the eighth day he shall bring them for his cleansing to the priest, to the entrance of the tent of meeting, before the Lord. 24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the guilt offering and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave offering before the Lord. 25 And he shall kill the lamb of the guilt offering. And the priest shall take some of the blood of the guilt offering and put it on the lobe of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, and on the thumb of his right hand and on the big toe of his right foot. 26 And the priest shall pour some of the oil into the palm of his own left hand, 27 and shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the Lord. 28 And the priest shall put some of the oil that is in his hand on the lobe of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed and on the thumb of his right hand and on the big toe of his right foot, in the place where the blood of the guilt offering was put. 29 And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall put on the head of him who is to be cleansed, to make atonement for him before the Lord. 30 And he shall offer, of the turtledoves or pigeons, whichever he can afford, 31 one[1] for a sin offering and the other for a burnt offering, along with a grain offering. And the priest shall make atonement before the LORD for him who is being cleansed. [32]This is the law for him in whom is a case of leprous disease, who cannot afford the offerings for his cleansing."

Laws for Cleansing Houses

33 ‡ ‡The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, 34 †“When you come into the land of Canaan, which I give you for a possession, and I put a case of leprous disease in a house in the land of your possession, 35then he who owns the house shall come and tell the priest, ‘There seems to me to be some case of disease in my house.’ 36†Then the priest shall command that they empty the house before the priest goes to examine the disease, lest all that is in the house be declared unclean. And afterward the priest shall go in to see the house. 37†And he shall examine the disease. And if the disease is in the walls of the house with greenish or reddish spots, and if it appears to be deeper than the surface, 38†then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house and shut up the house seven days. 39And the priest shall come again on the seventh day, and look. If the disease has spread in the walls of the house, 40†then the priest shall command that they take out the stones in which is the disease and throw them into an unclean place outside the city. 41And he shall have the inside of the house scraped all around, and the plaster that they scrape off they shall pour out in an unclean place outside the city. 42Then they shall take other stones and put them in the place of those stones, and he shall take other plaster and plaster the house.

43“If the disease breaks out again in the house, after he has taken out the stones and scraped the house and plastered it, 44then the priest shall go and look. And if the disease has spread in the house, it is a persistent leprous disease in the house; it is unclean. 45And he shall break down the house, its stones and timber and all the plaster of the house, and he shall carry them out of the city to an unclean place. 46Moreover, whoever enters the house while it is shut up shall be unclean until the evening, 47and whoever sleeps in the house shall wash his clothes, and whoever eats in the house shall wash his clothes.

48‡“But if the priest comes and looks, and if the disease has not spread in the house after the house was plastered, then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, for the disease is healed. 49And for the cleansing of the house he shall take two small birds, with cedarwood and scarlet yarn and hyssop, 50and shall kill one of the birds in an earthenware vessel over fresh water

[51]and shall take the cedarwood and the hyssop and the scarlet yarn, along with the live bird, and dip them in the blood of the bird that was killed and in the fresh water and sprinkle the house seven times. [52]Thus he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird and with the fresh water and with the live bird and with the cedarwood and hyssop and scarlet yarn. [53]And he shall let the live bird go out of the city into the open country. So he shall make atonement for the house, and it shall be clean."

[54]†This is the law for any case of leprous disease: for an itch, [55]for leprous disease in a garment or in a house, [56]and for a swelling or an eruption or a spot, [57]to show when it is unclean and when it is clean. This is the law for leprous disease.

Laws About Bodily Discharges

15 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, [2]"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When any man has a discharge from his body,[1] his discharge is unclean. [3]And this is the law of his uncleanness for a discharge: whether his body runs with his discharge, or his body is blocked up by his discharge, it is his uncleanness. [4]Every bed on which the one with the discharge lies shall be unclean, and everything on which he sits shall be unclean. [5]And anyone who touches his bed shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. [6]And whoever sits on anything on which the one with the discharge has sat shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. [7]And whoever touches the body of the one with the discharge shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. [8]And if the one with the discharge spits on someone who is clean, then he shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. [9]And any saddle on which the one with the discharge rides shall be unclean. [10]And whoever touches anything that was under him shall be unclean until the evening. And whoever carries such things shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. [11]Anyone whom the one with the discharge touches without having rinsed his hands in water shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. [12]And an earthenware vessel that the one with the discharge touches shall be broken, and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.

[13]"And when the one with a discharge is cleansed of his discharge, then he shall count for himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes. And he shall bathe his body in fresh water and shall be clean.
[14]And on the eighth day he shall take two turtledoves or two pigeons and come before the Lord to the entrance of the tent of meeting and give them to the priest. [15]And the priest shall use them, one for a sin offering and the other for a burnt offering. And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord for his discharge.

16 ✝ “If a man has an emission of semen, he shall bathe his whole body in water and be unclean until the evening. 17 And every garment and every skin on which the semen comes shall be washed with water and be unclean until the evening. 18 If a man lies with a woman and has an emission of semen, both of them shall bathe themselves in water and be unclean until the evening.
19 ✝ “When a woman has a discharge, and the discharge in her body is blood, she shall be in her menstrual impurity for seven days, and whoever touches her shall be unclean until the evening. 20 And everything on which she lies during her menstrual impurity shall be unclean. Everything also on which she sits shall be unclean. 21 And whoever touches her bed shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening.
22 And whoever touches anything on which she sits shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. 23 Whether it is the bed or anything on which she sits, when he touches it he shall be unclean until the evening. 24 And if any man lies with her and her menstrual impurity comes upon him, he shall be unclean seven days, and every bed on which he lies shall be unclean.
25 ✝ “If a woman has a discharge of blood for many days, not at the time of her menstrual impurity, or if she has a discharge beyond the time of her impurity, all the days of the discharge she shall continue in uncleanness. As in the days of her impurity, she shall be unclean. 26 Every bed on which she lies, all the days of her discharge, shall be to her as the bed of her impurity.
And everything on which she sits shall be unclean, as in the uncleanness of her menstrual impurity. 27 And whoever touches these things shall be unclean, and shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening. 28 But if she is cleansed of her discharge, she shall count for herself seven days, and after that she shall be clean. 29 ✝ And on the eighth day she shall take two turtledoves or two pigeons and bring them to the priest, to the entrance of the tent of meeting. 30 And the priest shall use one for a sin offering and the other for a burnt offering. And the priest shall make atonement for her before the Lord for her unclean discharge.
31 ✝ “Thus you shall keep the people of Israel separate from their uncleanness, lest they die in their uncleanness by defiling my tabernacle that is in their midst.”

[32] † This is the law for him who has a discharge and for him who has an emission of semen, becoming unclean thereby; [33] also for her who is unwell with her menstrual impurity, that is, for anyone, male or female, who has a discharge, and for the man who lies with a woman who is unclean.

The Day of Atonement

16 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron, when they drew near before the Lord and died, [2]†and the Lord said to Moses, “Tell Aaron your brother not to come at any time into the Holy Place inside the veil, before the mercy seat that is on the ark, so that he may not die. For I will appear in the cloud over the mercy seat. [3]†But in this way Aaron shall come into the Holy Place: with a bull from the herd for a sin offering and a ram for a burnt offering. [4]†He shall put on the holy linen coat and shall have the linen undergarment on his body, and he shall tie the linen sash around his waist, and wear the linen turban; these are the holy garments. He shall bathe his body in water and then put them on. [5]†And he shall take from the congregation of the people of Israel two male goats for a sin offering, and one ram for a burnt offering.

[6]†“Aaron shall offer the bull as a sin offering for himself and shall make atonement for himself and for his house. [7]Then he shall take the two goats and set them before the Lord at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [8]†And Aaron shall cast lots over the two goats, one lot for the Lord and the other lot for Azazel.[1] [9]And Aaron shall present the goat on which the lot fell for the Lord and use it as a sin offering, [10]†but the goat on which the lot fell for Azazel shall be presented alive before the Lord to make atonement over it, that it may be sent away into the wilderness to Azazel.

[11]“Aaron shall present the bull as a sin offering for himself, and shall make atonement for himself and for his house. He shall kill the bull as a sin offering for himself. [12]†And he shall take a censer full of coals of fire from the altar before the Lord, and two handfuls of sweet incense beaten small, and he shall bring it inside the veil [13]†and put the incense on the fire before the Lord, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy seat that is over the testimony, so that he does not die. [14]† And he shall take some of the blood of the bull and sprinkle it with his finger on the front of the mercy seat on the east side, and in front of the mercy seat he shall sprinkle some of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 ‡“Then he shall kill the goat of the sin offering that is for the people and bring its blood inside the veil and do with its blood as he did with the blood of the bull, sprinkling it over the mercy seat and in front of the mercy seat.
16 Thus he shall make atonement for the Holy Place, because of the uncleannesses of the people of Israel and because of their transgressions, all their sins. And so he shall do for the tent of meeting, which dwells with them in the midst of their uncleannesses. 17 No one may be in the tent of meeting from the time he enters to make atonement in the Holy Place until he comes out and has made atonement for himself and for his house and for all the assembly of Israel. 18 ‡Then he shall go out to the altar that is before the Lord and make atonement for it, and shall take some of the blood of the bull and some of the blood of the goat, and put it on the horns of the altar all around. 19 And he shall sprinkle some of the blood on it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it and consecrate it from the uncleannesses of the people of Israel.

20 “And when he has made an end of atoning for the Holy Place and the tent of meeting and the altar, he shall present the live goat. 21 †And Aaron shall lay both his hands on the head of the live goat, and confess over it all the iniquities of the people of Israel, and all their transgressions, all their sins. And he shall put them on the head of the goat and send it away into the wilderness by the hand of a man who is in readiness. 22 The goat shall bear all their iniquities on itself to a remote area, and he shall let the goat go free in the wilderness.

23 †“Then Aaron shall come into the tent of meeting and shall take off the linen garments that he put on when he went into the Holy Place and shall leave them there. 24 †And he shall bathe his body in water in a holy place and put on his garments and come out and offer his burnt offering and the burnt offering of the people and make atonement for himself and for the people. 25 And the fat of the sin offering he shall burn on the altar. 26 †And he who lets the goat go to Azazel shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and afterward he may come into the camp. 27 †And the bull for the sin offering and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the Holy Place, shall be carried outside the camp. Their skin and their flesh and their dung shall be burned up with fire. 28 And he who burns them shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and afterward he may come into the camp.

[29]† “And it shall be a statute to you forever that in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, you shall afflict yourselves[1] and shall do no work, either the native or the stranger who sojourns among you. [30]†For on this day shall atonement be made for you to cleanse you. You shall be clean before the Lord from all your sins. [31]†It is a Sabbath of solemn rest to you, and you shall afflict yourselves; it is a statute forever. [32]And the priest who is anointed and consecrated as priest in his father’s place shall make atonement, wearing the holy linen garments. [33]He shall make atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make atonement for the tent of meeting and for the altar, and he shall make atonement for the priests and for all the people of the assembly. [34]†And this shall be a statute forever for you, that atonement may be made for the people of Israel once in the year because of all their sins.” And Moses did as the Lord commanded him.

The Place of Sacrifice

17 [1]‡‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Speak to Aaron and his sons and to all the people of Israel and say to them, This is the thing that the Lord has commanded. [3]If any one of the house of Israel kills an ox or a lamb or a goat in the camp, or kills it outside the camp, [4]†and does not bring it to the entrance of the tent of meeting to offer it as a gift to the Lord in front of the tabernacle of the Lord, bloodguilt shall be imputed to that man.
He has shed blood, and that man shall be cut off from among his people.
[5]†This is to the end that the people of Israel may bring their sacrifices that they sacrifice in the open field, that they may bring them to the Lord, to the priest at the entrance of the tent of meeting, and sacrifice them as sacrifices of peace offerings to the Lord. [6]And the priest shall throw the blood on the altar of the Lord at the entrance of the tent of meeting and burn the fat for a pleasing aroma to the Lord. [7]†So they shall no more sacrifice their sacrifices to goat demons, after whom they whore. This shall be a statute forever for them throughout their generations.

[8]"And you shall say to them, Any one of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who sojourn among them, who offers a burnt offering or sacrifice [9]†and does not bring it to the entrance of the tent of meeting to offer it to the Lord, that man shall be cut off from his people.

Laws Against Eating Blood

10 ‡ ‡ “If any one of the house of Israel or of the strangers who sojourn among them eats any blood, I will set my face against that person who eats blood and will cut him off from among his people. 11For the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it for you on the altar to make atonement for your souls, for it is the blood that makes atonement by the life.
12Therefore I have said to the people of Israel, No person among you shall eat blood, neither shall any stranger who sojourns among you eat blood.
13 ‡ “Any one also of the people of Israel, or of the strangers who sojourn among them, who takes in hunting any beast or bird that may be eaten shall pour out its blood and cover it with earth. 14 † For the life of every creature[1] is its blood: its blood is its life.[2] Therefore I have said to the people of Israel, You shall not eat the blood of any creature, for the life of every creature is its blood. Whoever eats it shall be cut off. 15 ‡ And every person who eats what dies of itself or what is torn by beasts, whether he is a native or a sojourner, shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the evening; then he shall be clean. 16But if he does not wash them or bathe his flesh, he shall bear his iniquity.”

Unlawful Sexual Relations

18 [1]†And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, I am the Lord your God. [3]†You shall not do as they do in the land of Egypt, where you lived, and you shall not do as they do in the land of Canaan, to which I am bringing you. You shall not walk in their statutes. [4]You shall follow my rules[3] and keep my statutes and walk in them. I am the Lord your God. [5]†You shall therefore keep my statutes and my rules; if a person does them, he shall live by them: I am the Lord.

[6]†† "None of you shall approach any one of his close relatives to uncover nakedness. I am the Lord. [7]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father, which is the nakedness of your mother; she is your mother, you shall not uncover her nakedness. [8]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's wife; it is your father's nakedness. [9]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your sister, your father's daughter or your mother's daughter, whether brought up in the family or in another home. [10]† You shall not uncover the nakedness of your son's daughter or of your daughter's daughter, for their nakedness is your own nakedness. [11]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's wife's daughter, brought up in your father's family, since she is your sister. [12]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's sister; she is your father's relative. [13]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your mother's sister, for she is your mother's relative. [14]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's brother, that is, you shall not approach his wife; she is your aunt. [15]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your daughter-in-law; she is your son's wife, you shall not uncover her nakedness. [16]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your brother's wife; it is your brother's nakedness. [17]† You shall not uncover the nakedness of a woman and of her daughter, and you shall not take her son's daughter or her daughter's daughter to uncover her nakedness; they are relatives; it is depravity. [18]†And you shall not take a woman as a rival wife to her sister, uncovering her nakedness while her sister is still alive.

[19]† "You shall not approach a woman to uncover her nakedness while she is in her menstrual uncleanness. [20]†And you shall not lie sexually with your neighbor's wife and so make yourself unclean with her. 21 † You shall not give any of your children to offer them[1] to Molech, and so profane the name of your God: I am the Lord. 22 † You shall not lie with a male as with a woman; it is an abomination. 23 † And you shall not lie with any animal and so make yourself unclean with it, neither shall any woman give herself to an animal to lie with it: it is perversion.

24 † "Do not make yourselves unclean by any of these things, for by all these the nations I am driving out before you have become unclean, 25 † and the land became unclean, so that I punished its iniquity, and the land vomited out its inhabitants. 26 † But you shall keep my statutes and my rules and do none of these abominations, either the native or the stranger who sojourns among you 27 † (for the people of the land, who were before you, did all of these abominations, so that the land became unclean), 28 † lest the land vomit you out when you make it unclean, as it vomited out the nation that was before you. 29 † For everyone who does any of these abominations, the persons who do them shall be cut off from among their people. 30 † So keep my charge never to practice any of these abominable customs that were practiced before you, and never to make yourselves unclean by them: I am the Lord your God."

The Lord Is Holy

19 [1]†‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†“Speak to all the congregation of the people of Israel and say to them, You shall be holy, for I the Lord your God am holy. [3]‡Every one of you shall revere his mother and his father, and you shall keep my Sabbaths: I am the Lord your God. [4]Do not turn to idols or make for yourselves any gods of cast metal: I am the Lord your God.

[5]†“When you offer a sacrifice of peace offerings to the Lord, you shall offer it so that you may be accepted. [6]It shall be eaten the same day you offer it or on the day after, and anything left over until the third day shall be burned up with fire. [7]‡If it is eaten at all on the third day, it is tainted; it will not be accepted, [8]and everyone who eats it shall bear his iniquity, because he has profaned what is holy to the Lord, and that person shall be cut off from his people.

Love Your Neighbor as Yourself

9 ‡‡“When you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not reap your field right up to its edge, neither shall you gather the gleanings after your harvest.
10 And you shall not strip your vineyard bare, neither shall you gather the fallen grapes of your vineyard. You shall leave them for the poor and for the sojourner: I am the Lord your God.

11 “You shall not steal; you shall not deal falsely; you shall not lie to one another. 12 You shall not swear by my name falsely, and so profane the name of your God: I am the Lord.

13 †“You shall not oppress your neighbor or rob him. The wages of a hired servant shall not remain with you all night until the morning. 14 †You shall not curse the deaf or put a stumbling block before the blind, but you shall fear your God: I am the Lord.

15 ‡“You shall do no injustice in court. You shall not be partial to the poor or defer to the great, but in righteousness shall you judge your neighbor.
16 You shall not go around as a slanderer among your people, and you shall not stand up against the life[1] of your neighbor: I am the Lord.

17 †“You shall not hate your brother in your heart, but you shall reason frankly with your neighbor, lest you incur sin because of him. 18 †You shall not take vengeance or bear a grudge against the sons of your own people, but you shall love your neighbor as yourself: I am the Lord.

You Shall Keep My Statutes

19 ✝✝“You shall keep my statutes. You shall not let your cattle breed with a different kind. You shall not sow your field with two kinds of seed, nor shall you wear a garment of cloth made of two kinds of material.
20 ✝“If a man lies sexually with a woman who is a slave, assigned to another man and not yet ransomed or given her freedom, a distinction shall be made. They shall not be put to death, because she was not free; 21but he shall bring his compensation to the Lord, to the entrance of the tent of meeting, a ram for a guilt offering. 22✝And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram of the guilt offering before the Lord for his sin that he has committed, and he shall be forgiven for the sin that he has committed.
23 ✝“When you come into the land and plant any kind of tree for food, then you shall regard its fruit as forbidden.[1] Three years it shall be forbidden to you; it must not be eaten. 24And in the fourth year all its fruit shall be holy, an offering of praise to the Lord. 25✝But in the fifth year you may eat of its fruit, to increase its yield for you: I am the Lord your God.
26✝“You shall not eat any flesh with the blood in it. You shall not interpret omens or tell fortunes. 27✝You shall not round off the hair on your temples or mar the edges of your beard. 28You shall not make any cuts on your body for the dead or tattoo yourselves: I am the Lord.
29✝“Do not profane your daughter by making her a prostitute, lest the land fall into prostitution and the land become full of depravity. 30✝You shall keep my Sabbaths and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord.
31✝“Do not turn to mediums or necromancers; do not seek them out, and so make yourselves unclean by them: I am the Lord your God.
32✝“You shall stand up before the gray head and honor the face of an old man, and you shall fear your God: I am the Lord.
33 ✝“When a stranger sojourns with you in your land, you shall not do him wrong. 34✝You shall treat the stranger who sojourns with you as the native among you, and you shall love him as yourself, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.
35 ✝“You shall do no wrong in judgment, in measures of length or weight or quantity. 36You shall have just balances, just weights, a just ephah, and a just hin:[2] I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt. 37 † And you shall observe all my statutes and all my rules, and do them: I am the Lord.”

Punishment for Child Sacrifice

20 [1]†The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†"Say to the people of Israel, Any one of the people of Israel or of the strangers who sojourn in Israel who gives any of his children to Molech shall surely be put to death. The people of the land shall stone him with stones. [3]†I myself will set my face against that man and will cut him off from among his people, because he has given one of his children to Molech, to make my sanctuary unclean and to profane my holy name. [4]And if the people of the land do at all close their eyes to that man when he gives one of his children to Molech, and do not put him to death, [5]†then I will set my face against that man and against his clan and will cut them off from among their people, him and all who follow him in whoring after Molech.

[6]†"If a person turns to mediums and necromancers, whoring after them, I will set my face against that person and will cut him off from among his people. [7]†Consecrate yourselves, therefore, and be holy, for I am the Lord your God. [8]†Keep my statutes and do them; I am the Lord who sanctifies you. [9]†For anyone who curses his father or his mother shall surely be put to death; he has cursed his father or his mother; his blood is upon him.

Punishments for Sexual Immorality

[10]‡‡“If a man commits adultery with the wife of[1] his neighbor, both the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death. [11]‡If a man lies with his father’s wife, he has uncovered his father’s nakedness; both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood is upon them. [12]If a man lies with his daughter-in-law, both of them shall surely be put to death; they have committed perversion; their blood is upon them. [13]If a man lies with a male as with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination; they shall surely be put to death; their blood is upon them. [14]‡If a man takes a woman and her mother also, it is depravity; he and they shall be burned with fire, that there may be no depravity among you. [15]If a man lies with an animal, he shall surely be put to death, and you shall kill the animal. [16]If a woman approaches any animal and lies with it, you shall kill the woman and the animal; they shall surely be put to death; their blood is upon them.

[17]‡“If a man takes his sister, a daughter of his father or a daughter of his mother, and sees her nakedness, and she sees his nakedness, it is a disgrace, and they shall be cut off in the sight of the children of their people. He has uncovered his sister’s nakedness, and he shall bear his iniquity. [18]If a man lies with a woman during her menstrual period and uncovers her nakedness, he has made naked her fountain, and she has uncovered the fountain of her blood. Both of them shall be cut off from among their people. [19]You shall not uncover the nakedness of your mother’s sister or of your father’s sister, for that is to make naked one’s relative; they shall bear their iniquity. [20]‡If a man lies with his uncle’s wife, he has uncovered his uncle’s nakedness; they shall bear their sin; they shall die childless. [21]If a man takes his brother’s wife, it is impurity.[2] He has uncovered his brother’s nakedness; they shall be childless.

You Shall Be Holy

22 ‡ ‡ ‡ “You shall therefore keep all my statutes and all my rules and do them, that the land where I am bringing you to live may not vomit you out.
23 And you shall not walk in the customs of the nation that I am driving out before you, for they did all these things, and therefore I detested them.
24 † But I have said to you, ‘You shall inherit their land, and I will give it to you to possess, a land flowing with milk and honey.’ I am the Lord your God, who has separated you from the peoples. 25 You shall therefore separate the clean beast from the unclean, and the unclean bird from the clean. You shall not make yourselves detestable by beast or by bird or by anything with which the ground crawls, which I have set apart for you to hold unclean.
26 † You shall be holy to me, for I the Lord am holy and have separated you from the peoples, that you should be mine.

27 † “A man or a woman who is a medium or a necromancer shall surely be put to death. They shall be stoned with stones; their blood shall be upon them.”

Holiness and the Priests

21 [1]And the Lord said to Moses, “Speak to the priests, the sons of Aaron, and say to them: No one shall make himself unclean for the dead among his people, [2]except for his closest relatives, his mother, his father, his son, his daughter, his brother, [3]or his virgin sister (who is near to him because she has had no husband; for her he may make himself unclean). [4]He shall not make himself unclean as a husband among his people and so profane himself. [5]They shall not make bald patches on their heads, nor shave off the edges of their beards, nor make any cuts on their body. [6]They shall be holy to their God and not profane the name of their God. For they offer the Lord’s food offerings, the bread of their God; therefore they shall be holy. [7]They shall not marry a prostitute or a woman who has been defiled, neither shall they marry a woman divorced from her husband, for the priest is holy to his God. [8]You shall sanctify him, for he offers the bread of your God. He shall be holy to you, for I, the Lord, who sanctify you, am holy. [9]And the daughter of any priest, if she profanes herself by whoring, profanes her father; she shall be burned with fire.

[10] “The priest who is chief among his brothers, on whose head the anointing oil is poured and who has been consecrated to wear the garments, shall not let the hair of his head hang loose nor tear his clothes. [11]He shall not go in to any dead bodies nor make himself unclean, even for his father or for his mother. [12]He shall not go out of the sanctuary, lest he profane the sanctuary of his God, for the consecration of the anointing oil of his God is on him: I am the Lord. [13]And he shall take a wife in her virginity.[1] [14]A widow, or a divorced woman, or a woman who has been defiled, or a prostitute, these he shall not marry. But he shall take as his wife a virgin[2] of his own people, [15]that he may not profane his offspring among his people, for I am the Lord who sanctifies him.”

[16]And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [17]“Speak to Aaron, saying, None of your offspring throughout their generations who has a blemish may approach to offer the bread of his God. [18]For no one who has a blemish shall draw near, a man blind or lame, or one who has a mutilated face or a limb too long, [19]or a man who has an injured foot or an injured hand, [20]or a hunchback or a dwarf or a man with a defect in his sight or an itching disease or scabs or crushed testicles. [21]No man of the offspring of Aaron the priest who has a blemish shall come near to offer the LORD's food offerings; since he has a blemish, he shall not come near to offer the bread of his God. [22]He may eat the bread of his God, both of the most holy and of the holy things, [23]but he shall not go through the veil or approach the altar, because he has a blemish, that he may not profane my sanctuaries, for I am the LORD who sanctifies them." [24]†So Moses spoke to Aaron and to his sons and to all the people of Israel.

22 [1]†And the LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†"Speak to Aaron and his sons so that they abstain from the holy things of the people of Israel, which they dedicate to me, so that they do not profane my holy name: I am the LORD. [3]†Say to them, 'If any one of all your offspring throughout your generations approaches the holy things that the people of Israel dedicate to the LORD, while he has an uncleanness, that person shall be cut off from my presence: I am the LORD. [4]†None of the offspring of Aaron who has a leprous disease or a discharge may eat of the holy things until he is clean. Whoever touches anything that is unclean through contact with the dead or a man who has had an emission of semen, [5]and whoever touches a swarming thing by which he may be made unclean or a person from whom he may take uncleanness, whatever his uncleanness may be— [6]the person who touches such a thing shall be unclean until the evening and shall not eat of the holy things unless he has bathed his body in water. [7]When the sun goes down he shall be clean, and afterward he may eat of the holy things, because they are his food. [8]He shall not eat what dies of itself or is torn by beasts, and so make himself unclean by it: I am the LORD.' [9]They shall therefore keep my charge, lest they bear sin for it and die thereby when they profane it: I am the LORD who sanctifies them.

[10]"A lay person shall not eat of a holy thing; no foreign guest of the priest or hired servant shall eat of a holy thing, [11]but if a priest buys a slave as his property for money, the slave[1] may eat of it, and anyone born in his house may eat of his food. [12]If a priest's daughter marries a layman, she shall not eat of the contribution of the holy things. [13]But if a priest's daughter is widowed or divorced and has no child and returns to her father's house, as in her youth, she may eat of her father's food; yet no lay person shall eat of it. [14]And if anyone eats of a holy thing unintentionally, he shall add the fifth of its value to it and give the holy thing to the priest. [15]They shall not profane the holy things of the people of Israel, which they contribute to the LORD, [16]and so cause them to bear iniquity and guilt, by eating their holy things: for I am the LORD who sanctifies them."

Acceptable Offerings

17 ‡ ‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 18 †“Speak to Aaron and his sons and all the people of Israel and say to them, When any one of the house of Israel or of the sojourners in Israel presents a burnt offering as his offering, for any of their vows or freewill offerings that they offer to the Lord, 19if it is to be accepted for you it shall be a male without blemish, of the bulls or the sheep or the goats. 20You shall not offer anything that has a blemish, for it will not be acceptable for you. 21†And when anyone offers a sacrifice of peace offerings to the Lord to fulfill a vow or as a freewill offering from the herd or from the flock, to be accepted it must be perfect;
there shall be no blemish in it. 22Animals blind or disabled or mutilated or having a discharge or an itch or scabs you shall not offer to the Lord or give them to the Lord as a food offering on the altar. 23†You may present a bull or a lamb that has a part too long or too short for a freewill offering, but for a vow offering it cannot be accepted. 24Any animal that has its testicles bruised or crushed or torn or cut you shall not offer to the Lord; you shall not do it within your land, 25†neither shall you offer as the bread of your God any such animals gotten from a foreigner. Since there is a blemish in them, because of their mutilation, they will not be accepted for you.” 26‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 27“When an ox or sheep or goat is born, it shall remain seven days with its mother, and from the eighth day on it shall be acceptable as a food offering to the Lord. 28But you shall not kill an ox or a sheep and her young in one day. 29†And when you sacrifice a sacrifice of thanksgiving to the Lord, you shall sacrifice it so that you may be accepted. 30It shall be eaten on the same day; you shall leave none of it until morning: I am the Lord.
31‡“So you shall keep my commandments and do them: I am the Lord.
32And you shall not profane my holy name, that I may be sanctified among the people of Israel. I am the Lord who sanctifies you, 33who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God: I am the Lord.”

Feasts of the Lord

23 [1] The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2] "Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, These are the appointed feasts of the Lord that you shall proclaim as holy convocations; they are my appointed feasts.

The Sabbath

3 † “Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day is a Sabbath of solemn rest, a holy convocation. You shall do no work. It is a Sabbath to the Lord in all your dwelling places.

The Passover

4 † “These are the appointed feasts of the Lord, the holy convocations, which you shall proclaim at the time appointed for them. 5 † In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at twilight,[1] is the Lord’s Passover. 6 † And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the Feast of Unleavened Bread to the Lord; for seven days you shall eat unleavened bread. 7 † On the first day you shall have a holy convocation; you shall not do any ordinary work. 8 † But you shall present a food offering to the Lord for seven days. On the seventh day is a holy convocation; you shall not do any ordinary work.”

The Feast of Firstfruits

9 ‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 10 †“Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you come into the land that I give you and reap its harvest, you shall bring the sheaf of the firstfruits of your harvest to the priest, 11 †and he shall wave the sheaf before the Lord, so that you may be accepted. On the day after the Sabbath the priest shall wave it. 12 ‡And on the day when you wave the sheaf, you shall offer a male lamb a year old without blemish as a burnt offering to the Lord. 13 And the grain offering with it shall be two tenths of an ephah[1] of fine flour mixed with oil, a food offering to the Lord with a pleasing aroma, and the drink offering with it shall be of wine, a fourth of a hin.[2] 14 †And you shall eat neither bread nor grain parched or fresh until this same day, until you have brought the offering of your God: it is a statute forever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

The Feast of Weeks

15 ‡ ‡ “You shall count seven full weeks from the day after the Sabbath, from the day that you brought the sheaf of the wave offering. 16 † You shall count fifty days to the day after the seventh Sabbath. Then you shall present a grain offering of new grain to the Lord. 17 † You shall bring from your dwelling places two loaves of bread to be waved, made of two tenths of an ephah. They shall be of fine flour, and they shall be baked with leaven, as firstfruits to the Lord. 18 † And you shall present with the bread seven lambs a year old without blemish, and one bull from the herd and two rams. They shall be a burnt offering to the Lord, with their grain offering and their drink offerings, a food offering with a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 19 And you shall offer one male goat for a sin offering, and two male lambs a year old as a sacrifice of peace offerings. 20 † And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the firstfruits as a wave offering before the Lord, with the two lambs. They shall be holy to the Lord for the priest. 21 † And you shall make proclamation on the same day. You shall hold a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work. It is a statute forever in all your dwelling places throughout your generations.

22 † “And when you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not reap your field right up to its edge, nor shall you gather the gleanings after your harvest. You shall leave them for the poor and for the sojourner: I am the Lord your God.”

The Feast of Trumpets

23 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 24 “Speak to the people of Israel, saying, In the seventh month, on the first day of the month, you shall observe a day of solemn rest, a memorial proclaimed with blast of trumpets, a holy convocation. 25 You shall not do any ordinary work, and you shall present a food offering to the Lord.”

The Day of Atonement

[26]†And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [27]†“Now on the tenth day of this seventh month is the Day of Atonement. It shall be for you a time of holy convocation, and you shall afflict yourselves and present a food offering to the Lord. [28]And you shall not do any work on that very day, for it is a Day of Atonement, to make atonement for you before the Lord your God. [29]†For whoever is not afflicted on that very day shall be cut off from his people.
[30]†And whoever does any work on that very day, that person I will destroy from among his people. [31]You shall not do any work. It is a statute forever throughout your generations in all your dwelling places. [32]†It shall be to you a Sabbath of solemn rest, and you shall afflict yourselves. On the ninth day of the month beginning at evening, from evening to evening shall you keep your Sabbath.”

The Feast of Booths

33 † And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 34 † “Speak to the people of Israel, saying, On the fifteenth day of this seventh month and for seven days is the Feast of Booths[1] to the Lord. 35On the first day shall be a holy convocation; you shall not do any ordinary work. 36For seven days you shall present food offerings to the Lord. On the eighth day you shall hold a holy convocation and present a food offering to the Lord. It is a solemn assembly; you shall not do any ordinary work.

37 † “These are the appointed feasts of the Lord, which you shall proclaim as times of holy convocation, for presenting to the Lord food offerings, burnt offerings and grain offerings, sacrifices and drink offerings, each on its proper day, 38 † besides the Lord’s Sabbaths and besides your gifts and besides all your vow offerings and besides all your freewill offerings, which you give to the Lord.

39 “On the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when you have gathered in the produce of the land, you shall celebrate the feast of the Lord seven days.
On the first day shall be a solemn rest, and on the eighth day shall be a solemn rest. 40 † And you shall take on the first day the fruit of splendid trees, branches of palm trees and boughs of leafy trees and willows of the brook, and you shall rejoice before the Lord your God seven days. 41You shall celebrate it as a feast to the Lord for seven days in the year. It is a statute forever throughout your generations; you shall celebrate it in the seventh month. 42 † You shall dwell in booths for seven days. All native Israelites shall dwell in booths, 43that your generations may know that I made the people of Israel dwell in booths when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.”

44Thus Moses declared to the people of Israel the appointed feasts of the Lord.

The Lamps

24 [1]‡‡The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†“Command the people of Israel to bring you pure oil from beaten olives for the lamp, that a light may be kept burning regularly. [3]†Outside the veil of the testimony, in the tent of meeting, Aaron shall arrange it from evening to morning before the Lord regularly. It shall be a statute forever throughout your generations. [4]He shall arrange the lamps on the lampstand of pure gold[2] before the Lord regularly.

Bread for the Tabernacle

5 ‡ ‡ “You shall take fine flour and bake twelve loaves from it; two tenths of an ephah[3] shall be in each loaf. 6 And you shall set them in two piles, six in a pile, on the table of pure gold[4] before the Lord. 7 And you shall put pure frankincense on each pile, that it may go with the bread as a memorial portion as a food offering to the Lord. 8 ‡ Every Sabbath day Aaron shall arrange it before the Lord regularly; it is from the people of Israel as a covenant forever. 9 And it shall be for Aaron and his sons, and they shall eat it in a holy place, since it is for him a most holy portion out of the Lord’s food offerings, a perpetual due.”

Punishment for Blasphemy

10 ‡ ‡Now an Israelite woman's son, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the people of Israel. And the Israelite woman's son and a man of Israel fought in the camp, 11 ‡and the Israelite woman's son blasphemed the Name, and cursed. Then they brought him to Moses. His mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan. 12 ‡And they put him in custody, till the will of the Lord should be clear to them.

13 Then the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 14 ‡"Bring out of the camp the one who cursed, and let all who heard him lay their hands on his head, and let all the congregation stone him. 15 And speak to the people of Israel, saying, Whoever curses his God shall bear his sin. 16 Whoever blasphemes the name of the Lord shall surely be put to death. All the congregation shall stone him. The sojourner as well as the native, when he blasphemes the Name, shall be put to death.

An Eye for an Eye

17 ‡‡‡“Whoever takes a human life shall surely be put to death. 18 Whoever takes an animal’s life shall make it good, life for life. 19 If anyone injures his neighbor, as he has done it shall be done to him, 20 †fracture for fracture, eye for eye, tooth for tooth; whatever injury he has given a person shall be given to him. 21 Whoever kills an animal shall make it good, and whoever kills a person shall be put to death. 22 You shall have the same rule for the sojourner and for the native, for I am the Lord your God.” 23 So Moses spoke to the people of Israel, and they brought out of the camp the one who had cursed and stoned him with stones. Thus the people of Israel did as the Lord commanded Moses.

The Sabbath Year

25 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai, saying, [2]“Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you come into the land that I give you, the land shall keep a Sabbath to the Lord. [3]For six years you shall sow your field, and for six years you shall prune your vineyard and gather in its fruits, [4]but in the seventh year there shall be a Sabbath of solemn rest for the land, a Sabbath to the Lord. You shall not sow your field or prune your vineyard. [5]You shall not reap what grows of itself in your harvest, or gather the grapes of your undressed vine. It shall be a year of solemn rest for the land. [6]The Sabbath of the land shall provide food for you, for yourself and for your male and female slaves and for your hired servant and the sojourner who lives with you, [7]and for your cattle and for the wild animals that are in your land: all its yield shall be for food.

The Year of Jubilee

8 “You shall count seven weeks[1] of years, seven times seven years, so that the time of the seven weeks of years shall give you forty-nine years.
9 Then you shall sound the loud trumpet on the tenth day of the seventh month. On the Day of Atonement you shall sound the trumpet throughout all your land. 10 And you shall consecrate the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout the land to all its inhabitants. It shall be a jubilee for you, when each of you shall return to his property and each of you shall return to his clan. 11 That fiftieth year shall be a jubilee for you; in it you shall neither sow nor reap what grows of itself nor gather the grapes from the undressed vines. 12 For it is a jubilee. It shall be holy to you. You may eat the produce of the field.[1]

13 “In this year of jubilee each of you shall return to his property. 14 And if you make a sale to your neighbor or buy from your neighbor, you shall not wrong one another. 15 You shall pay your neighbor according to the number of years after the jubilee, and he shall sell to you according to the number of years for crops. 16 If the years are many, you shall increase the price, and if the years are few, you shall reduce the price, for it is the number of the crops that he is selling to you. 17 You shall not wrong one another, but you shall fear your God, for I am the Lord your God.

18 “Therefore you shall do my statutes and keep my rules and perform them, and then you will dwell in the land securely. 19 The land will yield its fruit, and you will eat your fill and dwell in it securely. 20 And if you say, ‘What shall we eat in the seventh year, if we may not sow or gather in our crop?’ 21 I will command my blessing on you in the sixth year, so that it will produce a crop sufficient for three years. 22 When you sow in the eighth year, you will be eating some of the old crop; you shall eat the old until the ninth year, when its crop arrives.

Redemption of Property

23 ‡ ‡ “The land shall not be sold in perpetuity, for the land is mine. For you are strangers and sojourners with me. 24 ‡ And in all the country you possess, you shall allow a redemption of the land.

25 ‡ “If your brother becomes poor and sells part of his property, then his nearest redeemer shall come and redeem what his brother has sold. 26 If a man has no one to redeem it and then himself becomes prosperous and finds sufficient means to redeem it, 27 let him calculate the years since he sold it and pay back the balance to the man to whom he sold it, and then return to his property. 28 But if he has not sufficient means to recover it, then what he sold shall remain in the hand of the buyer until the year of jubilee. In the jubilee it shall be released, and he shall return to his property.

29 “If a man sells a dwelling house in a walled city, he may redeem it within a year of its sale. For a full year he shall have the right of redemption. 30 If it is not redeemed within a full year, then the house in the walled city shall belong in perpetuity to the buyer, throughout his generations; it shall not be released in the jubilee. 31 But the houses of the villages that have no wall around them shall be classified with the fields of the land. They may be redeemed, and they shall be released in the jubilee.
32 As for the cities of the Levites, the Levites may redeem at any time the houses in the cities they possess. 33 And if one of the Levites exercises his right of redemption, then the house that was sold in a city they possess shall be released in the jubilee. For the houses in the cities of the Levites are their possession among the people of Israel. 34 But the fields of pastureland belonging to their cities may not be sold, for that is their possession forever.

Kindness for Poor Brothers

35 ‡ ‡ “If your brother becomes poor and cannot maintain himself with you, you shall support him as though he were a stranger and a sojourner, and he shall live with you. 36 † Take no interest from him or profit, but fear your God, that your brother may live beside you. 37 You shall not lend him your money at interest, nor give him your food for profit. 38 † I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to give you the land of Canaan, and to be your God.

39 † “If your brother becomes poor beside you and sells himself to you, you shall not make him serve as a slave: 40 † he shall be with you as a hired servant and as a sojourner. He shall serve with you until the year of the jubilee. 41 Then he shall go out from you, he and his children with him, and go back to his own clan and return to the possession of his fathers. 42 For they are my servants,[1] whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves. 43 † You shall not rule over him ruthlessly but shall fear your God. 44 ‡ As for your male and female slaves whom you may have: you may buy male and female slaves from among the nations that are around you. 45 You may also buy from among the strangers who sojourn with you and their clans that are with you, who have been born in your land, and they may be your property. 46 You may bequeath them to your sons after you to inherit as a possession forever. You may make slaves of them, but over your brothers the people of Israel you shall not rule, one over another ruthlessly.

Redeeming a Poor Man

47 ‡ ‡ “If a stranger or sojourner with you becomes rich, and your brother beside him becomes poor and sells himself to the stranger or sojourner with you or to a member of the stranger’s clan, 48 † then after he is sold he may be redeemed. One of his brothers may redeem him, 49 † or his uncle or his cousin may redeem him, or a close relative from his clan may redeem him.
Or if he grows rich he may redeem himself. 50 ‡ He shall calculate with his buyer from the year when he sold himself to him until the year of jubilee, and the price of his sale shall vary with the number of years. The time he was with his owner shall be rated as the time of a hired servant. 51 If there are still many years left, he shall pay proportionately for his redemption some of his sale price. 52 If there remain but a few years until the year of jubilee, he shall calculate and pay for his redemption in proportion to his years of service. 53 He shall treat him as a servant hired year by year. He shall not rule ruthlessly over him in your sight. 54 And if he is not redeemed by these means, then he and his children with him shall be released in the year of jubilee. 55 † For it is to me that the people of Israel are servants.[2]
They are my servants whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

Blessings for Obedience

26 [1]“You shall not make idols for yourselves or erect an image or pillar, and you shall not set up a figured stone in your land to bow down to it, for I am the Lord your God. [2]You shall keep my Sabbaths and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord.

[3]“If you walk in my statutes and observe my commandments and do them, [4]then I will give you your rains in their season, and the land shall yield its increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit. [5]Your threshing shall last to the time of the grape harvest, and the grape harvest shall last to the time for sowing. And you shall eat your bread to the full and dwell in your land securely. [6]I will give peace in the land, and you shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid. And I will remove harmful beasts from the land, and the sword shall not go through your land. [7]You shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword. [8]Five of you shall chase a hundred, and a hundred of you shall chase ten thousand, and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword. [9]I will turn to you and make you fruitful and multiply you and will confirm my covenant with you. [10]You shall eat old store long kept, and you shall clear out the old to make way for the new. [11]I will make my dwelling[1] among you, and my soul shall not abhor you. [12]And I will walk among you and will be your God, and you shall be my people. [13]I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, that you should not be their slaves. And I have broken the bars of your yoke and made you walk erect.

Punishment for Disobedience

14 ‡ ‡ ‡ “But if you will not listen to me and will not do all these commandments, 15if you spurn my statutes, and if your soul abhors my rules, so that you will not do all my commandments, but break my covenant, 16† then I will do this to you: I will visit you with panic, with wasting disease and fever that consume the eyes and make the heart ache.
And you shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it. 17†I will set my face against you, and you shall be struck down before your enemies.
Those who hate you shall rule over you, and you shall flee when none pursues you. 18And if in spite of this you will not listen to me, then I will discipline you again sevenfold for your sins, 19†and I will break the pride of your power, and I will make your heavens like iron and your earth like bronze. 20And your strength shall be spent in vain, for your land shall not yield its increase, and the trees of the land shall not yield their fruit.

21 † “Then if you walk contrary to me and will not listen to me, I will continue striking you, sevenfold for your sins. 22† And I will let loose the wild beasts against you, which shall bereave you of your children and destroy your livestock and make you few in number, so that your roads shall be deserted.

23† “And if by this discipline you are not turned to me but walk contrary to me, 24then I also will walk contrary to you, and I myself will strike you sevenfold for your sins. 25† And I will bring a sword upon you, that shall execute vengeance for the covenant. And if you gather within your cities, I will send pestilence among you, and you shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy. 26† When I break your supply[1] of bread, ten women shall bake your bread in a single oven and shall dole out your bread again by weight, and you shall eat and not be satisfied.

27“But if in spite of this you will not listen to me, but walk contrary to me, 28then I will walk contrary to you in fury, and I myself will discipline you sevenfold for your sins. 29† You shall eat the flesh of your sons, and you shall eat the flesh of your daughters. 30† And I will destroy your high places and cut down your incense altars and cast your dead bodies upon the dead bodies of your idols, and my soul will abhor you. 31† And I will lay your cities waste and will make your sanctuaries desolate, and I will not smell your pleasing aromas. 32And I myself will devastate the land, so that your enemies who settle in it shall be appalled at it. 33And I will scatter you among the nations, and I will unsheathe the sword after you, and your land shall be a desolation, and your cities shall be a waste.

34 ‡ “Then the land shall enjoy[2] its Sabbaths as long as it lies desolate, while you are in your enemies’ land; then the land shall rest, and enjoy its Sabbaths. 35As long as it lies desolate it shall have rest, the rest that it did not have on your Sabbaths when you were dwelling in it. 36And as for those of you who are left, I will send faintness into their hearts in the lands of their enemies. The sound of a driven leaf shall put them to flight, and they shall flee as one flees from the sword, and they shall fall when none pursues. 37They shall stumble over one another, as if to escape a sword, though none pursues. And you shall have no power to stand before your enemies. 38And you shall perish among the nations, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up. 39 † And those of you who are left shall rot away in your enemies’ lands because of their iniquity, and also because of the iniquities of their fathers they shall rot away like them.

40 † “But if they confess their iniquity and the iniquity of their fathers in their treachery that they committed against me, and also in walking contrary to me, 41 † so that I walked contrary to them and brought them into the land of their enemies—if then their uncircumcised heart is humbled and they make amends for their iniquity, 42 † then I will remember my covenant with Jacob, and I will remember my covenant with Isaac and my covenant with Abraham, and I will remember the land. 43But the land shall be abandoned by them and enjoy its Sabbaths while it lies desolate without them, and they shall make amends for their iniquity, because they spurned my rules and their soul abhorred my statutes. 44Yet for all that, when they are in the land of their enemies, I will not spurn them, neither will I abhor them so as to destroy them utterly and break my covenant with them, for I am the Lord their God. 45But I will for their sake remember the covenant with their forefathers, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations, that I might be their God: I am the Lord.”

46 † These are the statutes and rules and laws that the Lord made between himself and the people of Israel through Moses on Mount Sinai.

Laws About Vows

27 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]“Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, If anyone makes a special vow to the Lord involving the valuation of persons, [3]then the valuation of a male from twenty years old up to sixty years old shall be fifty shekels[1] of silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary. [4]If the person is a female, the valuation shall be thirty shekels. [5]If the person is from five years old up to twenty years old, the valuation shall be for a male twenty shekels, and for a female ten shekels. [6]If the person is from a month old up to five years old, the valuation shall be for a male five shekels of silver, and for a female the valuation shall be three shekels of silver. [7]And if the person is sixty years old or over, then the valuation for a male shall be fifteen shekels, and for a female ten shekels. [8]And if someone is too poor to pay the valuation, then he shall be made to stand before the priest, and the priest shall value him;
the priest shall value him according to what the vower can afford.

[9]“If the vow[2] is an animal that may be offered as an offering to the Lord, all of it that he gives to the Lord is holy. [10]He shall not exchange it or make a substitute for it, good for bad, or bad for good; and if he does in fact substitute one animal for another, then both it and the substitute shall be holy. [11]And if it is any unclean animal that may not be offered as an offering to the Lord, then he shall stand the animal before the priest, [12]and the priest shall value it as either good or bad; as the priest values it, so it shall be. [13]But if he wishes to redeem it, he shall add a fifth to the valuation.

[14]“When a man dedicates his house as a holy gift to the Lord, the priest shall value it as either good or bad; as the priest values it, so it shall stand.
[15]And if the donor wishes to redeem his house, he shall add a fifth to the valuation price, and it shall be his.

[16]“If a man dedicates to the Lord part of the land that is his possession, then the valuation shall be in proportion to its seed. A homer[3] of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver. [17]If he dedicates his field from the year of jubilee, the valuation shall stand, [18]but if he dedicates his field after the jubilee, then the priest shall calculate the price according to the years that remain until the year of jubilee, and a deduction shall be made from the valuation. 19And if he who dedicates the field wishes to redeem it, then he shall add a fifth to its valuation price, and it shall remain his. 20But if he does not wish to redeem the field, or if he has sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed anymore. 21But the field, when it is released in the jubilee, shall be a holy gift to the Lord, like a field that has been devoted. The priest shall be in possession of it. 22If he dedicates to the Lord a field that he has bought, which is not a part of his possession, 23then the priest shall calculate the amount of the valuation for it up to the year of jubilee, and the man shall give the valuation on that day as a holy gift to the Lord. 24In the year of jubilee the field shall return to him from whom it was bought, to whom the land belongs as a possession. 25Every valuation shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: twenty gerahs[4] shall make a shekel.

26†“But a firstborn of animals, which as a firstborn belongs to the Lord, no man may dedicate; whether ox or sheep, it is the Lord’s. 27And if it is an unclean animal, then he shall buy it back at the valuation, and add a fifth to it; or, if it is not redeemed, it shall be sold at the valuation.

28“But no devoted thing that a man devotes to the Lord, of anything that he has, whether man or beast, or of his inherited field, shall be sold or redeemed; every devoted thing is most holy to the Lord. 29†No one devoted, who is to be devoted for destruction[5] from mankind, shall be ransomed; he shall surely be put to death.

30“Every tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the trees, is the Lord’s; it is holy to the Lord. 31†If a man wishes to redeem some of his tithe, he shall add a fifth to it. 32And every tithe of herds and flocks, every tenth animal of all that pass under the herdsman’s staff, shall be holy to the Lord. 33One shall not differentiate between good or bad, neither shall he make a substitute for it; and if he does substitute for it, then both it and the substitute shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.”

34These are the commandments that the Lord commanded Moses for the people of Israel on Mount Sinai.

Introduction to Leviticus

Reading Leviticus

He had pastured and watered the young bull all its days. Now the bull stood calmly before him as he solemnly placed his hands on its head. He nimbly swung a blade through the bottom of the animal's throat, severing the main artery. Blood spurted and then drained rapidly into the bowls brought by the priests, who carried the blood to the altar while the worshiper continued to butcher and skin the animal. God would be honored by the fat, the kidneys, and the liver lobe that the priests would burn. The worshiper's family would feast together on the meat the Lord had provided.

Leviticus opens with earthy, life-and-death detail about the sacrifices Israel was to offer at the tabernacle they had just built in the wilderness. Their cattle, which had traveled with them out of Egypt and southward to Sinai, would not only feed their eager bellies but also touch their hearts as living illustrations of God's gracious provision for them. By these sacrifices, He would provide atonement for sin and food for life and fellowship in the congregation of Israel.

Luther on Leviticus

> The special topic of the third book [Leviticus] is the appointment of the priesthood, with the statutes and laws according to which the priests are to act and to teach the people. There we see that a priestly office is instituted only because of sin, to disclose sin to the people and to make atonement before God, so that its entire function is to deal with sin and sinners. For this reason too no temporal wealth is given to the priests; neither are they commanded or permitted to rule men's bodies. Rather the only work assigned to them is to care for the people who are in sin. (AE 35:237–38)

Challenges for Readers

Animal Sacrifice. Chs 1–7 provide detailed descriptions of animal sacrifice. The services God instituted for Israel are literally bathed in blood, which might be strange and offensive to many modern readers. However, in most cases the worshipers, or the priests and their families, ate the meat of the sacrifices in an experience comparable to congregational meals today. The Israelites did not have modern conveniences such as refrigeration; therefore, slaughter, cooking, and eating all took place together in a festive atmosphere of worship.

Goat Demons and Azazel. Some modern commentators associate the atonement services of ch 16 with sacrifices to "goat demons" (17:7), which they assume was a more primitive form of Israelite religion. There is no historical or textual basis for these assumptions. See note, 16:8.

Nadab and Abihu Punished. Moses did not fully describe the exact violation Aaron's oldest sons committed, which resulted in God harshly punishing them. They mishandled an incense offering by using "unauthorized fire" (10:1), which could mean (1) they burned the incense that should have been sprinkled on the bread of the Presence, (2) they carried burning incense into the tabernacle when they were not supposed to, or (3) they used an unauthorized source for their fire. (Some commentators suggest these priests were drunk because a warning against using alcohol comes immediately after the incident [10:9].) God's swift, harsh response seems surprising. As you read about such incidents, remember the weight of responsibility to which God calls leaders and teachers of the faith. His harshest punishments teach by example and set clear precedent in new situations (cf Ex 32; Lv 24:10–16; Jsh 7; 2Sm 6:1–15).

Blessings for Readers

As you study the Book of Leviticus, reflect on the detail and deep care with which God teaches the people about faithful, orderly worship. Though worship is chiefly a matter of faith and sincere repentance, God's people must not regard the outward expressions of worship as mere formalism; our outward actions reveal our hearts. Genuine confession of faith manifests itself in thought, word, and deed.

Note especially the four greatest themes of Leviticus: cleansing, atonement, rest, and redemption. These themes foreshadow Jesus' sacrifice on the cross, His peace, and the freedom He grants us in the Gospel. Seeing these broad themes allows one to understand that Leviticus is truly about the chief article of the Christian faith: justification through Christ's blood.

A Wrong Understanding of Freedom

When the Law is minimized, God's revelation in His Word is distorted. If the Law tells us the unchangeable will of God, then it follows that we should not—even if we could—discard the Law. To eliminate the Law is serious disservice to the very Word of God. But since the fall into sin in Eden, the perennial bent of humanity has been to do things that are openly repugnant to the will of the Creator. Man has become autonomous, a law unto himself, obeying no bounds….

The claim of absolute freedom under the Gospel, apart from any ordering of life, is based on a false conception of the Gospel and a wrong understanding of freedom, which either sanctions disorder and anarchy or confuses Law and Gospel by assigning a normative function to the Gospel…. Once a church body begins to draw a wedge between the two doctrines, Law and Gospel, in a manner that subjects the Law to disdain and denigration, it is courting anarchy.

Joseph Tom Omolo, "Women's Ordination: A Litmus Test for Antinomianism" (MA thesis, Concordia Seminary, 2007), 14, 17.

Eating the Offerings

Imagine the combination of a church, a slaughterhouse, and an open-air kitchen and you will begin to form a picture of the tabernacle. Each day, the priests sacrificed animals and grain offerings. On feast days, they made more extensive sacrifices based on the laws God gave Moses. When people brought their personal sacrifices to the Lord, the priests offered these as well.

The offerings we make today—bills and coins—may seem vastly different from the bloody sacrifices of the OT. However, in at least one way, our offerings and the offerings of the OT worked the same: both kinds of offerings have fed the Lord's ministers and their families.

The Portion of the Priests and Levites

During the wilderness wanderings, the Lord commanded that the priests and Levites should receive a tithe of all the offerings in Israel (Nu 18:8–32). The priests sacrificed a portion of this tithe by burning it or presenting it before the Holy Place of the tabernacle. The remainder of the meat or grain might feed the priests, the Levites, and their families.

When Israel settled in the Promised Land, the priests and Levites did not receive a major land grant like the other tribes. They made their living by teaching and guiding God's people (cf Dt 17:8–13; Jsh 21; 2Ch 15:3; 17:7–9). Leviticus provides the details about what portions of the sacrifices belonged to the priests. They did not eat any of the burnt offerings, but they were allowed to eat a portion of most other offerings. Here are examples (see also note, 2:3):

- • Grain offering—Lv 2:3, 10; 6:16, 18, 23
- • Peace offering—Lv 7:14–21, 28–38
- • Sin offering—Lv 6:26, 29–30
- • Guilt offering—Lv 7:6–10
- • Showbread—Lv 24:9

Lost Priests and Levites

When priests and Levites did not faithfully teach God's Word, people stopped following the Law and bringing their offerings. As a consequence, the priests and Levites were forced to wander in search of other work. Jgs 17–19 gives examples of two corrupt Levite priests wandering throughout the land. They join in idolatry, brutality, and other forms of wickedness. These stories illustrate the dreadful consequences of neglecting God's Word.

1Sm 2:12–17 records an abuse of God's offerings by Hophni and Phinehas, two sons of the high priest Eli. These young priests and their servants were consuming more and more of the offerings. They robbed their fellow Israelites and abused the sacrifices. As a result, God told the prophet Samuel that the sons of Eli would die. The entire family would lose its priestly office.

In 174 BC, while the Seleucids of Syria ruled Jerusalem, there was a dispute between the priests. A priest named Jason obtained the high priesthood of Israel by offering the largest sum of money to the pagan Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV Epiphanes. Three years later, a man named Menelaus offered more money than Jason and received the high priesthood, even though Menelaus was not a descendant of Aaron. This unholy selling of the high priesthood led to the desecration of the temple and the Maccabean revolt (167 BC). See pp 1553–58.

Holy Offerings

Each of these stories shows the seriousness of the call to administer God's Word. They illustrate the need for faithfulness with the offerings of God's people. Today, diligently pray for your pastor and other leaders in your congregation so that they will not enter temptation. As the Lord's Word teaches, faithfully support His servants through your tithes and offerings. Remember that the Lord works through them and through you to accomplish His purposes.

As you make your offering to the Lord, remember what the Lord offered up for you—His only Son! Think of the constant blessings of body and soul the Lord bestows on you each day through Christ. Jesus made the perfect sacrifice once for all upon the cross. The Lord nourished the priests of the old covenant by the sacrifices, but today He nourishes the priesthood of believers through the sacrifice of Jesus, our Passover Lamb.

Outmoded or Relevant?

The demand for holiness did not end with the old covenant. Consider just a few passages from the new covenant:

> Present your members as slaves to righteousness leading to sanctification. (Rm 6:19)
>
> Present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God. (Rm 12:1)
>
> Let us cleanse ourselves from every defilement of body and spirit, bringing holiness to completion in the fear of God. (2Co 7:1)
>
> We should be holy and blameless before Him. (Eph 1:4)
>
> [He] called us to a holy calling, not because of our works but because of His own purpose and grace. (2Tm 1:9)
>
> As He who called you is holy, you also be holy in all your conduct. (1Pt 1:15)

In fact, were these passages (and many others from the New Testament) encountered in Leviticus, they would not be considered foreign elements.

Like Israel, the people of the new covenant must be holy in order to be in communion with God, and they must give evidence of that communion in holy worship and holy lives. Though many of the laws in Leviticus no longer apply (Gal 3:19–25), the book (indeed, all the Law) still provides profitable instruction in holy living (Rm 7:6; 12:1–2; 2Tm. 3:16–17).

But since unholiness awaits God's people at every corner of life, they (like Israel) must be accounted holy:

> For in Him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through Him to reconcile to Himself all things, … making peace by the blood of His cross…. He has now reconciled [you] in His body of flesh by His death, in order to present you holy and blameless and above reproach before Him. (Col 1:19–23)

This reconciliation is once and for all; every sin becomes contemporary with it and is atoned. The Lamb of God, slaughtered 20 centuries ago, gave benefit for sins committed today as well as for Israel's sins long ago, for "it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins" (Heb 10:4).

The sacrifices of the Old Testament have been abrogated because they pointed forward to the blood of Christ, who has come. Yet even the New Testament believer (who is, at the same time, a sinner with "natural" thinking) needs to read of them and hear again the underlying theology:

Sin is not a trivial matter. Every breaking of God's will, including unwitting sin, has deadly consequences.

People can do nothing to make themselves acceptable to God. Their forfeited lives can be redeemed only by an atonement, a substitution, that God has "given on the altar."

People daily need to seek the forgiving mercy of God.

Total redemption calls forth a total response and commitment to God. Holy living is living wholly to God. "You therefore must be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Mt 5:48).

When You Fast

Afflicting One's Soul

The modern Jewish calendar has 28 fasting days, but in the Old Testament, God commanded only one annual fast. In Lv 16:29–31, Moses gave God's dictum to "afflict [deny] yourselves" on the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur). In response to the atonement for Israel's corporate sin, devout Israelites would fast from morning until evening on the tenth day of the seventh month.

Before the exile to Babylon, Israelites fasted during times of impend-ing danger, mourning, sickness, threat of war, distress, and sorrow. For example, Hannah did not eat because of the great stress brought about by her barrenness (1Sm 1:7), and David fasted after learning of Abner's death (2Sm 3:35). Religious leaders also mandated periods of fasting at times of great national crisis (cf Jgs 20:26; 2Ch 20:3; Jer 36:9). These examples show that fasting was an expression of sorrow and, most important, an expression of repentance.

Overindulgence

Where faith is strongest, Satan works hardest. While God esteems those who are "humble and contrite in spirit" (Is 66:2), Satan vigorously attacks them with temptations to overindulge. Thankfully, God did not leave His people powerless in their sin. In answer to prayer, God sent Isaiah to call passionately for their repentance and help them understand the true character of fasting as an expression of sorrow over sin and an opportunity to have mercy on the hungry (Is 58:3–8).

Unfortunately, instead of heeding God's call, the people continued in their self-centeredness and thus brought about the Babylonian exile. For God's people, the Babylonian exile and the destruction of the first temple by Nebuchadnezzar (587 BC) was a turning point in history rivaled only by the Roman destruction of Herod's temple (AD 70). As a result of the exile, four new fasts were added to the Jewish calendar, each marking key historical dates leading up to and including the exile (Zec 8:18–19). For instance, a fast in the fourth month laments the breach of Jerusalem's outer wall by Nebuchadnezzar (Jer 52:6–7). A fast in the fifth month commemorates the burning of God's holy temple and other buildings (2Ki 25:8–9), while a fast in the seventh month marks the assassination of Gedaliah, whom the king of Babylon had placed as governor over Judah (Zec 7:5). Finally, a fast during the tenth month is held in memory of Nebuchadnezzar's siege of Jerusalem (2Ki 25:1). These fasts served a holy purpose: they reminded the Israelites of the sorrows brought by neglecting God's Word. However, over time fasting became another way the Israelites abused God's Word.

In the hope of preventing any further captivity, Jewish scholars pored over the writings of Moses, frantically searching for a reason why God exiled them. They determined to apply the Law more vigorously. What followed was a fundamental shift in their belief system. To this day, many people still believe that if they keep all the laws perfectly, they will gain salvation. Fasting changed from an expression of repentance to compulsory appeasement of a legalistic code. This deception led many astray to spend eternity apart from the Lord, who desires to save all people (1Tm 2:3–4).

The Appearing of Christ

Before the birth of Jesus, the Pharisees mandated twice-weekly fasting (Lk 18:9–12). The Essenes, a splinter group that may have lived at Qumran, centered much of their lives on fasting. For the unfaithful, fasting was something done to curry God's favor—a duty, a work, a law. But for the faithful, fasting continued as an expression of repentance and reverence for the Lord, who created them and promised to redeem them.

After Jesus' Baptism, He went into the wilderness and fasted for 40 days and 40 nights (Mt 4:2). This recalled the devotion of Moses (Ex 24:18), the great prophet Elijah (1Ki 19:8), and the 40 years of wilderness wandering for Israel. During this fast, Satan repeatedly tempted Jesus, but He used God's precious Word to defend Himself.

Fasting for You

During the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus spoke against fasting as a means of salvation. Instead, He commended fasting as a private, voluntary act of humility before God (Mt 6:16–18). Take a few moments now to read His words and reflect on your own devotion. If you are like most people, you have thought more about dieting than fasting. It is hard to imagine a daylong fast. No doubt fasting for 40 days like Jesus did after His Baptism is out of the question. Yet our Lord's words clearly reveal that fasting should be part of a Christian's life: He said, "When you fast" (Mt 6:16), not "If you fast" (cf Mt 9:14–15). The early Christians fasted (Ac 13:2–3; 14:23). Why shouldn't a twenty-first-century Christian do likewise?

As you fast, let the feelings of hunger you experience remind you to pray. Spend the time you would normally spend eating by reading God's Word and meditating on the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Through His Word, the Lord will bless and nourish you. "Then shall your light break forth like the dawn, and your healing shall spring up speedily; your righteousness shall go before you; the glory of the LORD shall be your rear guard. Then you shall call, and the LORD will answer; you shall cry, and He will say, 'Here I am' " (Is 58:8–9).

How You Might Fast

Consider fasting for a meal or two before partaking of the Lord's Supper. Spend your extra time studying God's Word and singing Communion hymns.

Fasting during Lent can be a wonderful way to remember the perfect obedience of Christ and His sacrifice for your salvation. Money not spent on food may be donated for the poor.

You might follow this routine for a daylong fast: (1) rise before dawn and eat breakfast; (2) examine yourself as you would prior to partaking of the Lord's Supper; (3) offer your life to God in penitent prayer; (4) go about your day, breaking your fast at evening.

If you are diabetic, fasting could be hazardous. Check with your doctor.Do not consider fasting as a dieting program.

If abstaining from food is not possible, consider abstaining from something else. For example, turn off your television and spend time in prayer and study of God's Word.

Feasts Appointed by the Lord

In Gn 2 and Ex 20, the Lord hallowed the seventh day as a day of rest so that God's people could learn of God's blessings, celebrate them, and be strengthened for further service. During the exodus, the Lord added other feasts (Ex 12; 23:10–19; 34:18–26) and required the men of Israel to gather annually for special celebrations. In this way, the Lord hallowed time so the people could share in His holiness. The chart below provides an overview of the feasts as listed in Lv 23 and how the people observed them at the tabernacle. See calendar, p 262.

Bible Feasts and the Church Year

As Jews, the earliest Christians followed the Israelite calendar and its feasts as observed by first-century Judaism. However, as more and more Gentiles came to faith in Jesus as their Savior, a new yearly pattern of worship emerged: the Church Year, which most Christians continue to observe today. The Israelite year was organized around the rhythm of the agricultural seasons in Israel and national events. By contrast, the Church Year was organized around the life and teachings of Jesus.

Two Church festivals descend directly from Israelite feast days: Easter and Pentecost. For centuries, the early Christians referred to Easter as Pasch, from the Hebrew word for Passover. The name Pentecost comes from the Greek word for 50, since Israelites and Christians celebrated this feast 50 days after Passover. These annual celebrations remind us of the Old Testament roots of the Church as well as the transformation of worship in view of the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. Study the chart below to grow in your understanding of the Jewish and Christian calendars.

Holy Time Today

In Christ, every day is the day of salvation (2Co 6:2). Yet the patterns of our holidays continue to serve us by serving God's purposes. They call to mind God's blessings. They organize our thoughts around the works of His mercy. And, perhaps most important, they draw God's people together in celebration, to encourage one another through His Word (Heb 10:25).

When the pace of life or the demands of the holidays overwhelm you, pause and remember the Sabbath rest and the feast of blessings provided for you through the Lord of the Sabbath, Jesus Christ (Mt 11:28–12:8).

The Lamb of God

Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29), John the Baptist, the last Old Testament prophet, said, pointing at Jesus Christ. This is the One whose sole purpose is not to moralize over issues of politics or history or being politically correct or incorrect. No, His sol[e] task is to take away the sin of the world. All kinds of roles ascribed to Him outside of this great mission nullify this great message, "This is the Lamb of God that takes away the sin of the world." …

For the believing Jews the words of John the Baptist had to remind [of] bondage and deliverance. They were slaves in Egypt. God delivered them from that terrible bondage in a miraculous way. As the Angel of the Lord was passing through the land of captivity, he was killing all the first-born in Egypt. Consequences of being part of the sinful oppression never touched Israelites sojourning in that god-less country. They had a lamb. They put blood of the lamb on the door-posts, they ate the body of the roasted lamb without breaking its bones. They ate the lamb, lamb's blood was on their doorways and death had not touched them. Christ was with His people there foreshadowing [inexpressible] love of the Triune God in the coming Incarnate Lamb of God. Now a prophet of the Lord is standing at the Jordan River and points at Jesus Christ and says, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." …

A Passover lamb in Egypt and the lambs sacrificed by Israelites as it was commanded by God were pointing at this true Lamb of God, Jesus Christ that sacrificed Himself for our sake on the Cross of Calvary. There He brought all our sins to wash them away with His holy, innocent blood and in a minute of His holy death to proclaim "It is finished!"

Bp. Dr. Vyacheslav Horpynchuk, "Behold, the Lamb of God!" (sermon, January 20, 2008).

The Heart of the Atonement

The] English word for atonement can be derived from the [words] "at-one," i.e. making reconcilement or putting at-one. The Old Testament is full of … examples when people sacrifice a dove, sheep, goats or ox in order to cover up or to abolish their guilt. For this purpose Israelites had the Day of Atonement…. But all this was only "types" or "shadows" that were "preparing the way" for the coming Christ. The Old Testament is full (or —"pregnant") with prophecies and traditions that show … Christ.

Some modern scholars say that the traditional doctrine of the Atonement is too much influenced by the Old Testament. They can see only the horrible death of Christ on a cross…. They deny even the possibility that Christ could die in order to satisfy God's justice and to forgive our sins. Some can see only a righteous man who died for us. This way they limit the Atonement Christ made….

Vicarious satisfaction is the heart of the Atonement and is the Scriptural teaching. Other doctrines such as victory over the devil and death are consequences of the Christ's work. Therefore it is correct to say that the Atonement in a narrow sense is vicarious satisfaction…. In a wider sense it embrace[s] not only the death of Christ for [our] sins but also His incarnation, temptations, victory over the devil and death. It is not possible to accomplish for a mere man, but only for a God-Man.

Freedom, Rest, and Redemption

This article examines three aspects of Jubilee: (1) the care of the land; (2) the redemption of land, homes, and people; and (3) the treatment of the poor. It will provide you with a firm understanding of this special Sabbath and its emphasis on freedom for God's people.

Care of the Land

Long before the first Israelite set foot in Canaan, God made land provisions for each tribe and family. In addition, the Levites were given 48 cities and adjoining lands in all 12 tribal areas. God remained the landowner, while the Israelites were His tenants (Lv 25:23–24). This was the same relationship God had with Adam, whom He placed in the Garden of Eden "to work it and take care of it" (Gn 2:15). It is also the same relationship God wants in our lives.

God commanded the Israelites to care for their land through a period of Sabbath rest every seven years (Lv 25:1–7). When the Sabbath rest came, the Israelites were to let their fields go fallow. They trusted God to provide enough harvest in the sixth year to sustain them through the eighth. This cycle lasted seven successive seven-year periods. Then that year's Day of Atonement ushered in the celebration of Jubilee.

In the 50th year, the 7th month, on the 10th day, a trumpet blast marked the beginning of this unique feast. (The word jubilee comes from yobel, a Hebrew word for "ram's horn trumpet.") The sound called every Israelite back to his or her original land. It also marked a second Sabbath year for the land (Lv 25:11–12). God assured His people that they would harvest enough in the 48th year to last the three years of the Sabbath year, the Jubilee, and the wait for the next year's harvest (Lv 25:21).

Since God owned the land, it was never sold, only leased. Payments were based on the number of harvests until Jubilee (Lv 25:13–16). More harvests meant a higher lease payment. God knew that the Israelites would be tempted to take advantage of their countrymen in financial matters (Lv 25:17). He also knew that they would exhaust the land in their pursuit of success. The Sabbath and Jubilee festivals addressed these issues and taught the Israelites to depend on the Lord for their prosperity.

Redemption

One of the most important aspects of Jubilee was redemption. For example, impoverished Israelites who leased their land could redeem it if they or a kinsman paid the value of the lease for the number of years remaining until Jubilee. Only a kinsman could redeem the land.

A kinsman could also redeem homes (except if the home was in a walled city). Homes in walled cities were limited by a one-year redemption proviso, after which they could not be redeemed, not even at Jubilee (Lv 25:29–30). Since the homes of Levites were found only in walled cities, God made an exemption for them. Their homes were redeemable at any time, as was the case for all homes in villages without walls. If a Levite's home was not redeemed, it had to be returned during Jubilee. Although Levites could sell their home, they could not sell any of the pastureland near their home, since it provided food for their livestock (Lv 25:31–34; Nu 35:2–5).

The Israelite people could also be redeemed. At any time, a relative could secure release for a man and his family forced into slavery by economic hardship (Lv 25:47–49). If a man became prosperous, he could redeem himself (v 49b). Regardless, all Israelite slaves were released at Jubilee (Lv 25:40). Any Israelite in the possession of a foreigner or another Israelite was to be treated as a hired hand because he belonged to God. What was the redemption rate for Israelites? Lv 25:50 states that the buyer and seller were to count the number of years until Jubilee and then multiply that figure by the rate paid a hired man. Redemption applied only to the Israelite people. Their foreign slaves were never subject to release and could be willed as inherited property (Lv 25:46).

Treatment of the Poor

God commanded that during a Jubilee, His people should care for their poorer countrymen by lending them money at no interest and selling them food at no profit (Lv 25:35–38). God never wants the poor mistreated, so He strictly commanded His people to treat the poor with respect and never take advantage of them. Notice how He sternly reminds them to love the poor out of respect for Him, remembering how He redeemed them in Egypt (Lv 25:37–38). God also prevented the wealthy from amassing great tracts of land at the expense of the poor by commanding its return during Jubilee.

Our Sabbath and Jubilee

God's Word continually calls sinners to repent and live in God-given rest and freedom. Throughout Lv 25, the Lord reminded the Israelites that He had set them free, that He had redeemed them (25:38, 42, 55). Today, God's Word reminds us of the Redeemer of all people. Jesus our Kinsman has set us free. His precious blood has redeemed us from the slavery of sin (Heb 2:14–18). That is true cause for jubilation!

Study Notes

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:1 The Lord called Moses. Moses wrote Lv under divine inspiration. Ancient Israelites knew Lv as "Now He (God) Called," a name that emphasized God's actions instead of the ceremonial rites performed by Levites ("Leviticus" comes from the LXX). God continues the dialogue with Moses begun at the burning bush (Ex 3), beginning some 33 times with "the Lord spoke to Moses" (e.g., 4:1; 5:14; 8:1; 18:1). tent of meeting. Consecrated portable tent where God dwelled among His people (see note, Ex 27:21).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:2 offering of livestock. Part of the household (see note, Ex 20:17) and representative of it. Israelites brought to the Lord the firstborn of their animals (27:26) and tithed to Him (27:32). Archaeological discoveries show that animals offered by the Israelites were also offered by other nations. However, Canaanites sacrificed donkeys at Ugarit, Philistines had ritual burials for dogs, and Greeks sacrificed dogs, horses, and pigs.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:3 burnt offering. See pp 170–71. without blemish. Animals presented before God must be perfect, as He is perfect (22:20–25). "They were not called sacrifice because they merited the forgiveness of sins before God, but because they merited the forgiveness of sins according to the righteousness of the Law, so that those for whom they were made might not be excluded from that commonwealth 'from the people of Israel'. Therefore, for a trespass, the sacrifices were called sin offerings and burnt offerings" (Ap XXIV 21). Animal sacrifices were commanded by God as a precursor to the ultimate sacrifice of Jesus Christ at Calvary (1Pt 1:18–19). "We teach that the sacrifice of Christ dying on the cross has been enough for the sins of the whole world. There is no need for other sacrifices, as though Christ's sacrifice were not enough for our sins. So people are justified not because of any other sacrifices, but because of this one sacrifice of Christ, if they believe that they have been redeemed by this sacrifice" (Ap XIII 8).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:4 lay his hand on the head. Vouched that the animal belonged to the person presenting the sacrifice and could be used on his behalf to secure God's approval and acceptance. See note, Ex 29:10. atonement. See p 5.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:5 Priestly work began once the offerer slit the throat of his sacrifice. The sacrificial blood was collected in a basin and applied to the altar. throw the blood against the sides of the altar. A priest sprinkled the sacrificial blood on the sides of the altar in the rite of atonement: the animal's death atoned for the life of the offerer.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:6–7 Before the sacrifice was placed on the altar for total consumption by fire, the priest removed the skin and cut it into pieces. altar. Most holy; where God met His people each morning and evening (Ex 29:38–43).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:8 the fat. Many pagan religions believed that an animal's power and strength were found in the fat and blood once the animal was sacrificed to their deities. To overturn this idea, God reserved the fat for Himself (3:16) and designated the blood for atonement (17:11). An Israelite found guilty of eating fat or drinking blood was "cut off from his people" (7:25–27).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:9 wash. In the butchering process, fecal material, blood, or even dirt may end up on the sacrifice. Thorough washing was necessary before the offering was incinerated on God's holy altar. Uncleanliness desecrated God's altar. food offering. Most assuredly, God does not eat in the sense that we eat. The altar fire turns the sacrifice into smoke, which ascends into God's heavenly domain. pleasing aroma to the LORD. Indicates God's acceptance of the offering and, therefore, acceptance of the offerer. Unlike pagan deities, God offers forgiveness. With sacrifices, people tried to manipulate these deities into providing rain, bringing forth abundant crops, or instilling power and strength.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:10–17 Additional ordinances for burnt offerings, including sheep, goats, and birds.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:10 male without blemish. Males were less valuable to breeding stock because only one male was needed to populate a herd. Moreover, male animals were the head of the flock or herd and as such could represent the male head of the Israelite family for sacrificial purposes.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:12 The head represented the whole animal and the person who presented it.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:13 wash. See note, v 9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:14 turtledoves or pigeons. In His grace, God provided a less expensive sacrifice for those of poorer means.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:15 blood shall be drained. See note, v 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:16 crop. Because the crop of the bird was unclean and could not be offered in sacrifices, it was placed in an ash heap on the east side of the altar (see diagram, p 139). The ash heap was cleaned up every morning (6:10–11).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:17 a pleasing aroma. See note, v 9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 1:1–17 In His grace, God provides a means through which He can "dwell" among a sinful people: the sacrifice of animals on behalf of the people. This priestly system culminates in the atoning sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Today, just as the Israelites faithfully confessed their sins and prayed to the Lord, present your confession of sins and prayers of repentance and faith before Him in the name of "the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!" (Jn 1:29). • Almighty Father, may we always rejoice in Your abundant grace, through Christ, our Lord. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:1 grain offering. Only freshly gathered grain was used in a grain offering. Since God provides all we have, He wants the best we can offer. See pp 170–71. fine flour. Usually means finely milled flour, though the definition is not certain. The grain used was most likely wheat or, in some instances, barley. frankincense. Aromatic gum resin procured from three types of trees found in southern Arabia and East Africa. For the Israelites, frankincense was mixed with the grain offering and also provided a central ingredient to the sacred incense burned twice daily in the incense altar inside the tent of meeting (cf Ex 30:34).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:2 memorial portion. Substituted for the entire grain offering. "The eucharistic sacrifices were the grain offering, the drink offering, thank offerings, firstfruits, tithes [Leviticus 1–7]" (Ap XXIV 21).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:3 the rest … for Aaron and his sons. After the memorial portion was offered to God and burned on the altar (v 2), the remaining portion of the grain was dedicated to God, consecrated, and given to the priests as food. most holy. Offerings presented to the Lord became "most holy" and provided sustenance for His priests. Only the priests were allowed to eat "most holy" food, and only in the sanctuary (courtyard of the tent of meeting).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:4–10 The Lord gave the Israelites regulations for presenting an acceptable grain offering. If the flour was presented as bread, olive oil had to be used in its preparation. Olive oil served to make the memorial portion of the offering flammable. Bread was baked in an oven (2:4) or on a flat plate (2:5). Round cakes were fried in oil (2:7). Frankincense provided a second ingredient to the grain offering (2:1–2), as did salt (see note, v 13).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:4 Leavening agents were associated with sin, decay, corruption, sickness, and even death. All baked items offered to God as a grain offering were unleavened. The bread of the Passover meal was also unleavened. This significant Israelite feast is also called the Feast of Unleavened Bread (Ex 13:3–16).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:8 he shall bring it to the altar. When the officiating priest brought the memorial portion before the Lord and burned it, it became His property. See note, v 3.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:9 pleasing aroma to the LORD. See note, 1:9.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:10 for Aaron and his sons. See note, v 3.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:11 no leaven nor any honey. Hbr word for "honey" likely refers to "fruit syrup." Fruit syrup, like leavened dough, is subject to fermentation and could become putrid; it could not be used as a grain offering. See p 236.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:12 firstfruits. First vegetables and grains of harvest belonged to God. These were dedicated and presented to Him during the Feast of Firstfruits celebrated on the 16th day of Abib. See pp 200–201.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:13 salt of the covenant. See p 127. Salt was produced by drying seawater from mineral deposits near the Salt Sea. Salt preserves, so it reminded the Israelites that God would preserve His covenant with Abraham, including the messianic promise that through Abraham "all the families of the earth" would be blessed (Gn 12:1–3). Ultimately, this was fulfilled in the life and teaching of Jesus Christ. Cf Mt 5:13.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:14 Fire-roasted grain was commonly eaten in ancient times and is still eaten in Syria and Egypt. See p 236.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 2:15 frankincense. See note, v 1.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 2 God provides His OT priests with food through the grain offering. The remaining grain becomes most holy once the priest burns the memorial portion. By grace, the priests are permitted to eat a sacred meal at God's table. In this, God's people may see a foreshadowing of Holy Communion. Today, at Christ's invitation, we come to the Lord's Table, where we receive the true body and blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, a holy meal God Himself prepares for the forgiveness of sins. • We give thanks to You, almighty God, that You have refreshed us through this salutary gift, and we implore You that of Your mercy You would strengthen our faith toward You and love for one another. Amen. (Adapted from LSB, p 166.)

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:1 a sacrifice of peace offering. See pp 170–71. male or female. Burnt offerings required a male sacrifice; peace offerings had no such requirement. without blemish. See note, 1:3.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:2 See notes, 1:4, 5.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:3 the fat. See note, 1:8.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:4 long lobe of the liver. The liver was burned completely, removing it from use in fortune-telling (cf 19:26; Dt 18:10). Ancient pagan cultures used liver for divination.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:5 food offering … pleasing aroma to the LORD. See note, 1:9.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:6 without blemish. See note, 1:3.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:7–8 See notes, 1:4, 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:9 fat tail. Considered a delicacy representing the produce of the land (cf Gn 45:18). See note, 1:8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:11 food offering. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:13 See notes, 1:4, 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:16 food offering with a pleasing aroma. See note, 1:9. All fat is the LORD's. See note, 1:8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 3:17 eat neither fat nor blood. See note, 1:8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 3 Through the peace offering on high holy days and special occasions, God provides meat for a sacrificial banquet, which a family could share with invited guests (7:11–36; 19:5–6; 23:37). Peace offerings acknowledge God's grace toward His people. Jesus' death was God's great peace offering for the world, since the Father brought about our peace and reconciliation through Jesus. • Gracious Father, we thank You for Your peace through Christ, who offered Himself for the sins of the world. Grant us generous hearts to share Your peace. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 4 Highlights God's regulations covering inadvertent or accidental offenses made against Him. Unintentional sins in this chapter fall into four categories: those committed by the priests (vv 3–12); those committed by the whole Israelite community (vv 13–21); those committed by the leader (vv 22–26); and those committed by an individual (vv 27–35). In each of these four cases, God prescribes means of atonement leading to repentance and the forgiveness of sin (v 35).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:2 sins unintentionally. Contrasts unintentional sins with those of a deliberate nature recorded in Nu 15:22–31. sins. Hbr chata', "misses the mark." Sin involves failure to keep God's Law (Rm 4:15; 1Jn 3:4; see p 959). Any such violation deserves death (Rm 6:23a).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:3 guilt. As representatives of the Israelite community, when priests sinned they brought God's wrath against the whole community. sin offering. Atonement was at the heart of this offering. By God's grace, the Israelites were provided a means by which God cleansed the tabernacle and freed His people from the iniquity of their sins.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:4 lay his hand on the head. See note, 1:4.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:5–6 into the tent of meeting. Ritual went beyond the eastern courtyard of the tent of meeting ("the entrance," v 4) into the inner courts and the veil separating the Holy Place from the Most Holy Place, the dwelling place of God (see diagram, p 139).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:6–7 Ritual atonement. Blood is God's atoning agent (17:11). Note how the author of Heb ties this Lv ordinance to the atoning death of Christ (Heb 9:20–22). See "atonement," p 5. seven times. Used repeatedly: 4:17; 8:11; 14:16, 27, 51; 16:19; 25:8; 26:18, 21, 24, 28. See p 217.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:8 remove … the fat. See note, 1:8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:11–12 Remainder of sacrificial bull was taken to the ash heap outside the camp and burned. The camp housed the tent of meeting, where God resided, so care was taken not to defile the camp with anything unclean, whether a person or a thing. Only those persons declared ritually clean could enter the camp (cf 14:8; 16:26, 28). See note, 1:16.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:13 sins unintentionally. See note, v 2. Anyone who sinned intentionally (e.g., blasphemed) was cast out of camp. In some cases, the punishment was death. Cf Nu 15:30–36. realize their guilt. When God, through direct action or the action of others, draws attention to the sin, and those involved realize what they have done and repent. See King David's response to the prophet Nathan when accused of adultery (2Sm 12:1–15).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:15 When the Israelite community was found guilty of sin, elders of each tribe were to gather around the young bull offered to the Lord. All elders gathered corporately to confess the sins of the community and to lay hands on the young bull. Their sins were transferred to the animal, which was sacrificed as a sin offering before the Lord. See notes, 1:4, 5; Ex 3:16.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:16–18 See note, vv 6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:17 veil. Curtain that hung between the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:20 atonement. See p 5. forgiven. Or, "released." God's forgiveness releases one from the burden of sin, removing all impurity and guilt. His actions free our consciences and restore us to Him. See p 1902.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:21 burn it up … the first bull. See note, vv 11–12.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:22 leader sins. Sins committed by a leader impact his whole family or clan. unintentionally. See note, v 2. On Israelite leaders, see p 228.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:23 male without blemish. See note, 1:10.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:25 See note, vv 6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:26 atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, v 20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:27 common people. Members of tribes who were not priests or princes. unintentionally. See note, v 2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:28 female without blemish. God permitted individual sinners to offer sacrifices based on their financial means. A bull (vv 4, 14) or male goat (v 23) emphasized the severity of sins committed by leaders. A female goat was offered by the general population (followers).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:29 lay his hand on the head. See note, 1:4.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:30 See note, vv 6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:31 pleasing aroma to the LORD. See note, 1:9. atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, v 20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:32 female without blemish. See note, v 28.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:33 lay his hand on the head. See note, 1:4.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:34 See note, vv 6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:35 on top of the LORD 's food offerings. Often, more than one offering was presented. First, the sin offering, then the burnt and grain offering, then the peace offering. atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, v 20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:1–13 These offerings fit into a category known as a graded sin offering. Sacrificial offerings were made to cleanse the offerer of his sin in four categories: failure to respond to a public oath to testify (v 1); touching an unclean thing (v 2); touching human uncleanness (v 3); or uttering a careless oath (v 4).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:1 It is sinful not to testify when called to do so. adjuration. A placing under oath. See "oath," p 7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:2 unclean thing. See p 300. guilt. Ritually unclean people were unfit for God's presence.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:3 human uncleanness. Any person with a skin disease (14:2, 19) or a bodily discharge (15:2, 16, 19), or anyone who had handled a corpse (Nu 19:14–16).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:4 rash oath. Oath made in haste that may include bargaining with God (e.g., "Lord, if You do this, I will be more faithful in worship attendance"). See "oath," p 7.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:5 Sins were confessed publicly at the altar before God and His priest. We are called to confess our sins as well (1Jn 1:8–10).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:6 female. See note, 4:28. atonement. See p 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:7 cannot afford. See note 1:14. burnt offering. See pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:10 atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, 4:20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:11 cannot afford. See note, 1:14. fine flour. See note, 2:1. no frankincense. Too expensive for the poor. In this case, God wanted the unsavoriness of this sacrifice to remind the sinner not to relish sin.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:12 memorial portion. See note, 2:2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:13 atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, 4:20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 4:1–5:13 God, who abhors all sin, distinguishes sins of error from those of intent. Because of sin, God could no longer dwell with the Israelites as He desired. To this end, God gave the sin offering for the deliverance of those who inadvertently sinned against Him (cf 4:20, 26, 31, 35). Just as God's OT people publicly confessed their sins during divine worship, God's people today confess, "We have sinned against You in thought, word, and deed, by what we have done and by what we have left undone" (LSB, p 151). Jesus Christ is the sin offering for all sins, for all time (1Jn 2:2; 4:10). • How wonderful it is to hear the words of Absolution: "Almighty God in His mercy has given His Son to die for you and for His sake forgives you all your sins." Amen. (LSB, p 151)
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:15–16 shekel of the sanctuary. Weight of this shekel was set by the priests and may have varied in weight from the common shekel. See note, Jsh 24:32. guilt offering. An individual was required to present a sacrifice to compensate God for his or her sacrilege. See pp 170–71. The guilt offering, also called a reparation offering, required a ram of acceptable value. Precious metals valued at one-fifth of the animal's value were weighed and given to the priest (cf 6:5).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:16, 18 atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, 4:20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:19 incurred guilt before the LORD. Offenders suffered divine retribution for instances of unrepented sin.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:2 breach of faith. See note, 1Ch 2:7. Actions toward our neighbor are connected to our attitude toward God. This important link is emphasized in the Ten Commandments, where we are commanded to love God (Ex 20:1–11) and then to love our neighbor (Ex 20:12–17). Sins committed against our neighbor violate our trust in God. Defrauding one's neighbor by any means, including robbery, withholding wages, or swearing falsely, required restoration of the property and a further restitution of one-fifth of the property's value. In addition, a confession of sins was made along with a guilt offering.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:5 restore it in full and shall add a fifth. A feature of the guilt offering. See note, 5:15–16. on the day. God desires that once a sin is realized, confession be made. We see God's grace in these words, for He does not want His people to live in sin and forfeit His many blessings.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:6 Compensation offered to God in the guilt offering reminded the sinner that this sin went deeper than an offense against the neighbor; it also involved God. without blemish. See note, 1:3.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:7 atonement. See p 5. forgiven. See note, 4:20.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 5:14–6:7 The Lord describes the sacrifice and compensations of the guilt offering for mending relationships with God and with neighbor. While summing up the Law, Christ taught, "You shall love the Lord your God…. You shall love your neighbor as yourself" (Mt 22:37, 39). In the Law, the Lord calls us to something far greater than self-interest. Praise God, His attitude toward us is merciful and self-giving; He desires our atonement. • Lord, have mercy on me for my mistreatment of my neighbor. Lead me to love others as You have loved me in Jesus. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:8–7:38 Priestly regulations governing each sacrifice were set forth by God.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:8 Continuing dialogue between Moses and God.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:9 burnt offering. See pp 170–71. on the hearth … all night. Burnt offerings were left on the altar until completely consumed.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:10 Holy vestments marked the priest's sacred office and status when he officiated in the sanctuary. Vestments consisted of an underskirt, linen tunic, embroidered linen sash, and linen skullcap. Each item received a sprinkling of blood and holy oil (8:30; Ex 29:21).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:11 other garments. Holy vestments (v 10) were exchanged for ordinary clothing when performing duties such as carrying ashes outside the camp.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:12 fat of the peace offerings. Placed on top of the burnt offering (3:5).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:14 grain offering. See pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:16 a holy place. While the whole courtyard near the altar was available, the priests most likely used the western half. Later, special rooms were provided for this purpose (Ezk 42:13; 46:19–20).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:17 most holy. See note, 2:3.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:18 Every male. Only men were allowed to become priests. See pp 1972, 2067. Whatever touches them shall become holy. Both holiness and sin were transferable by touch (cf 11:24).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:20 day when he is anointed. God issued His regulations to Moses prior to the ordination of Aaron and his sons. Cf ch 8. fine flour. See note, 2:1.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:21 The unleavened baked pieces were prepared by priests, not the laity as prescribed in ch 2. For priests, grain offerings culminated in a holy meal eaten in God's presence in the courtyard of the tent of meeting. See note, v 16. pleasing aroma. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:22 The priest … decreed forever. God designated the high priest as presenter of this offering. As such, each high priest from that day forward was responsible for this daily ritual. Descendants of ancient Israel no longer make these offerings today because the Romans violently destroyed the Jerusalem temple in AD 70. (Today, the Dome of the Rock, a Muslim mosque, stands on the site of the ancient temple, preventing renewal of sacrifices.) However, texts regarding the offerings are still recited in traditional synagogue services.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:25 sin offering. See note, 4:3.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:26 The meat of the sin offering of the people became the food of the officiating priest and was eaten in the courtyard. Meat offered by the priest as his sin offering was not eaten, but incinerated (v 30) on the ash dump (cf 16:27). eaten, in the court. See note, v 16.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:27 See note, v 18.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:29 Every male. See note, v 18. most holy. See note, 2:3.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:30 atonement in the Holy Place. This sin offering is different from all others. Here, God previews the sin offering made on the Day of Atonement, a day of cleansing for all things belonging to God (ch 16). The meat from the sin offering on this day is not consumed but is burned completely on the ash dump (cf 16:27).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 6:8–30 God would have fellowship with His people only after they atoned for sin through sacrifice. The people had to be ritually clean to participate in the meal God prepared for them (7:19–21). Today, God's people eat a meal in His presence each time they partake of Holy Communion as God's priests (cf 1Pt 2:9). Christ's body was offered as a sin offering and a reparation offering to God. By Christ's holy flesh and blood, God keeps His people holy (Heb 10:10). • Father in heaven, we thank You for Your surpassing gifts of grace and fellowship, which come through Christ's atoning sacrifice. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:1 guilt offering. See note, 5:15–16.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:6–10 God ordained that the officiating priest was given the meat of the guilt and sin offerings and the hide of the burnt offering. The grain offering, after the memorial portion was burned, is divided equally among the priests. Notice how God faithfully supplied the daily needs of His OT priesthood, just as He provides our daily needs. See "portion," p 7.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:6 Every male. See note, 6:18.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:7 The guilt offering and the sin offering were alike in the law governing the distribution of meat. In both, the meat was given to the officiating priest.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:10 shared equally. Each priest received a share of the grain offering, whether or not he officiated.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:11 peace offerings. Cf ch 3. Three kinds of peace offerings are known: to give thanks, to fulfill a vow, and to volunteer an offering in a sense of gratitude and consecration to God.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:12 thanksgiving. Included not only a sacrifice but also the singing of the song of thanksgiving (cf Jer 33:11).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:13 loaves of leavened bread. The only other time Israelites were allowed to bring leavened bread into the tabernacle was to offer grain at the Feast of Weeks (23:17).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:14 one loaf from each offering. Offered to officiating priest; rest eaten at the sacrificial meal.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:15 eaten on the day. To prevent it from becoming "tainted" (v 18). Defiled meat was not consumable.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:16 vow offering … freewill offering. See notes, v 11; Ex 35:29.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:18 not be accepted. Meat from a less-sacred sacrifice (i.e., votive or freewill) could be eaten the second day. But after that, meat was defiled. credited. The Lord recognized and accepted the offering. tainted … iniquity. Consumption of tainted meat canceled any blessing God attached to the sacrifice.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:19 unclean … clean. See p 300.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:20–21 cut off from his people. Removed from the encampment. As leaven permeates bread, the sin of one individual infects the whole Israelite camp, making it unclean in God's sight. God will not dwell with and shower blessings of His mercy on an unrepentant people.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:22–25 God extends the prohibition against eating fat of a sacrificed animal to include the fat of animals that died of natural causes or were killed. Instead, this fat could be used for other purposes such as fuel for lamps or as a polish or ointment.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:26–27 See note, 1:8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:29–30 The offerer personally brings his offering to the Lord with "his own hands."
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:30–35 wave offering. Executed by extending the offering horizontally, away from the body and back again. With the breast waved horizontally, followed by the thigh presented vertically, we see symbolized God's later tool of salvation: the cross.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:36 Since priests were anointed into God's service, they were provided with the breast and thigh as their right and hereditary portion from God (v 35). See "portion," p 7; cf 1Co 9:13–14; Mt 10:8–10.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 7:37 This is the law. See note, 11:46–47. Order of sacrifices in this verse is different from that found in previous chapters. This was deliberately done by God so that His priests received a list of sacrifices in "order of holiness" (CC Lv, p 183).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 7 Concludes God's manual of offerings, a precise manual meant to be strictly followed by priests and individuals. Here is God's framework to prepare an unholy people to dwell with a holy

God. By His incarnation and atoning sacrifice, Jesus Christ is today our Immanuel, "God with us" to save us. • To You, O Lord, we offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving for Your daily blessings of forgiveness, food, consecration, and peace in Christ. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:1 A new section presents God's guidelines for the ordination of the priesthood. God commands Moses to conduct the initial rite of ordination for the high priest, Aaron, and his sons.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:2 The Lord prescribes four things necessary for ordination: vestments worn by the priests when they officiated at the altar; holy anointing oil that sanctified a person or object (Ex 30:22–33); three animals for the sin offering (4:3), burnt offering (1:10–13; 9:2), and ordination offering (3:7–11); and unleavened bread. One piece from each of the three classes of bread was presented with the fat of the ordination offering (7:12). Gr Naz: "No one is worthy of the mightiness of God, and the sacrifice, and priesthood, who has not first presented himself to God, a living, holy sacrifice, and set forth the reasonable, well-pleasing service, and sacrificed to God the sacrifice of praise and the contrite spirit, which is the only sacrifice required of us by the Giver of all" (NPNF 2 7:223).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:3 all the congregation. Ordination was a public worship service involving the entire Israelite community. tent of meeting. See note, 1:1.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:7–9 Each priest wore his linen underskirt overlaid with a white linen tunic; a linen sash embroidered with blue, purple, or scarlet yarn; and a linen cap. For the high priest's garments, cf Ex 28. See p 141.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:8 Urim and the Thummim. See note, 1Sm 28:6; see also "seek," p 843.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:10 anointing oil. See note, v 2. consecrated. See p 6.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:12 With an application of sacred anointing oil, God sets Aaron apart for his holy work as high priest.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:13 caps. Unlike the high priest, who wore a turban with a gold plate inscribed with the words "Yahweh's holiness," Aaron's four sons—Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar—wore linen caps when officiating (Ex 28:40).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:14 laid their hands on the head. See note, 1:4.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:15 See note, 4:6–7. horns of the altar. Cf Ex 38:1–2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:17 outside the camp. See note, 4:11–12.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:21 burnt offering. See pp 170–71. pleasing aroma, a food offering. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:22–29 ram of ordination. Third sacrifice offered during rite of ordination. Normally, a peace offering was made at this time. The ordination sacrifice differed from the peace offering in three ways. First, Moses splashed blood on the sides of the altar, then applied blood to the right ear, right thumb, and right big toe of the priestly candidates. Second, Moses performed a unique wave offering (vv 26–27). Finally, Moses received the breast, rather than the thigh, because he was not a priest, though he was a Levite.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:23–24 See note, Ex 29:20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:27 in the hands. See note, Ex 29:9–10, 20, 24–25. wave offering. See note, 7:30–35.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:28 pleasing aroma, a food offering. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:29 Moses' portion. See note, vv 22–29.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:30 See note, Ex 29:21.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 8:33–36 Installation ceremony took seven full days; penalty for a priest leaving early was death.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 8 Moses consecrates Aaron as high priest and Aaron's sons as priests. Today, Jesus is our great High Priest (Heb 2:17; 3:1; 7:26). We come before Him as sinners in need of consecration. As with the OT priests, it is God's cleansing that makes us holy. In Baptism, God washes us clean (1Co 6:11). He anoints us with the Holy Spirit (2Co 1:21–22). Christ Himself consecrates us as priests (Eph 5:26–27). • "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from Your presence, and take not Your Holy Spirit from me. Restore to me the joy of Your salvation, and uphold me with a willing spirit" (Ps 51:10–12). Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:1–4 The eighth day of ordination marked the beginning of a new era. Prior to this day, Moses had served as officiant. But the days of purification and consecration were complete, and Aaron and his sons began their service to God in their capacity as high priest and priests.

(Note how the seven days of consecration correspond to the seven days of creation. See p 217.)
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:5 stood before the LORD. As part of their worship of God, the entire Israelite community gathered before Him.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:7 sin offering. See note, 4:3. burnt offering. See pp 170–71. atonement. See p 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:9 See note, 4:6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:11 See note, 4:11–12.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:15 the people's offering. Leaders of various tribes brought their offerings to Aaron (vv 1–5a). Aaron presented them to God (vv 15–21), performing the rite of atonement on behalf of the Israelite congregation (v 7b).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:18 peace offerings for the people. This special offering, instituted only on high holy days and special occasions, marked "peace" between God and man and included a meal shared by family and invited guests of the offerer. Most likely, the leaders shared a communal meal involving the meat of this sacrifice. See pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:21 wave offering. See note, 7:30–35.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:22 lifted up his hands … blessed. Aaron lifted his hands toward the congregation and bestowed God's blessing on them. Cf Dt 10:8; 1Ch 23:13; see "bless," p 842. he came down. Aaron came down the altar ramp. See note, Ex 20:26.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:23 Moses led Aaron into the tent of meeting to set the precedent for daily entry of the high priest into the Holy Place (Ex 28:29) to burn incense (Ex 30:7–8). they blessed. They returned with an unstated blessing from almighty God. the glory of the LORD. See pp 6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 9:24 consumed. God's fire "ate up" the burnt offering lying on the altar.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 9 Aaron begins his priestly duties with God's approval. In the Divine Service, God's people today share much in common with God's OT people. Like them, we come before God and humbly confess our sins. We also seek anew the promise of forgiveness offered by God's grace. • Precious Lord, we thank You for the glimpse of salvation in the sacrifices offered by Your OT priests. May we grow to understand the binding relationship we share through the Aaronic blessing and the communal meal made possible by the great atoning offering of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 10 Nadab and Abihu bring unauthorized fire into God's presence and pay with their lives for failing to distinguish between holy and common, a priestly requirement (v 10).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:1 censer. Ceremonial container holding hot coals for burning incense. Cf 16:12–13. unauthorized fire. Not authorized by God for use in the Divine Service. The character of the offense is not fully clear. Iren: "The heretics, indeed, who bring strange fire to the altar of God—namely, strange doctrines—shall be burned up by the fire from heaven, as were Nadab and Abihu" (ANF 1:497).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:2 fire came out. Holy fire from the Most Holy Place. See note, Jb 1:16. consumed them. Ironically, God's earlier sign of blessing (9:24) here expresses condemnation. He does not tolerate man's arbitrary worship procedures. He alone provides the ordinances governing divine worship. Cf Ex 40; Nu 7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:3 sanctified … glorified. God, the source of all holiness, expects His priests to treat Him as holy, and then God's people will do so as well. Aaron held his peace. He accepted God's decision.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:4–5 Mishael and Elzaphan. Nadab and Abihu's cousins.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:6–7 Aaron and his surviving two sons are not to mourn or attend the funeral; God has anointed them as priests, and their service is confined to the tent of meeting. At Jesus' trial, the high priest tore his clothes (Mt 26:65), contrary to Mosaic Law. As the temple curtain was ripped apart at Christ's death, so, too, was the priestly office ripped apart. See notes, Mk 15:38; Lk 23:45.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:9 Priests were not allowed to drink intoxicating beverages before or during the time they carried out their liturgical duties. Some commentaries suggest that Nadab and Abihu were drunk in v 1, but most likely intoxicating drink is mentioned here because drinking from the "cup of consolation" was part of the funeral service (Jer 16:7).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:10 God's OT priests were responsible for determining what was God's (holy) and what was not (common). All rituals were performed to safeguard God's holiness and protect His people from the consequences of desecrating His holiness.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:11 teach the people. God's priests were to share instruction and ritual knowledge with God's people. See notes, Dt

6:6–9; Pr 1:8; see also p 555.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:12–15 Sacrifices begun (ch 9) before the deaths of Aaron's two sons were not made unclean by their deaths. God commanded use of these sacrifices as food for Aaron and his children.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:12 most holy. See note, 2:3.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:16 sin offering. See note, 4:3. burned up! Moses becomes angry after learning that a sin offering was burned instead of eaten.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:17 bear the iniquity. A chain of accountability was established. The Levites bore the iniquity of the people (Nu 18:23). The Aaronic priests bore the iniquity of the whole priesthood (Nu 18:1). The high priest bore the iniquity for acts of sacrilege during divine worship (Ex 28:38). Then, on the Day of Atonement, which God instituted because of Nadab and Abihu's actions, a scapegoat bore the iniquities of people and priests, lest any should die for a sacrilege to God's holiness (Lv 16:21–22). atonement. See p 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:18 The law governing sin offerings was broken. When blood of the sin offering was used to atone for a priest and the blood was sprinkled in the tent of meeting, the offering was then burned. However, when the sin offering was not for priestly atonement, the meat was eaten. In this instance, the priests confused the two offerings.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:19 yet such things as these have happened to me! After the death of his sons, Aaron was extra cautious in his actions.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 10:20 Moses was satisfied that Aaron's actions were sincere and not an act of rebellion against the Lord.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 10 The story of Nadab and Abihu's thoughtlessness shows us that God is present in grace and in wrath. The God who justifies sinners also condemns those who will not sanctify the Lord. God's people, the beneficiaries of His grace, should serve the Lord in reverence and awe (Heb 12:28–29). Jesus Christ, who bore the sins of all, declares us acceptable to God (1Pt 2:24). Scripture calls this justification. • Lord, how awesome is Your almighty power. Thank You for Your grace, which justified sinners like us and made us holy through the body and blood of Your Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 11 Part of the manual of purity (chs 11–15), here dealing with dietary rules. Because the family table was an extension of the Lord's altar, God proclaimed what foods would defile them ("unclean") or not defile them ("clean"). By eating unclean foods, the people would die in their impurity as Nadab and Abihu had done (10:1). See p 300.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:1 God addresses both Moses and Aaron for the first time. As high priest, Aaron is included as a custodian of God's teachings.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:3–8 Israelites could eat meat from an animal only if it had a split hoof and chewed its cud. Specific examples are provided to avoid confusion.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:9–12 Fish could be eaten only if they had scales and fins.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:13–19 A list of birds that are unclean and not to be eaten. Some are birds of prey, and others feed on carcasses of dead animals.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:20–23 Insects that walked on all fours were unclean. Since insects have six or more legs and not four, these regulations seem to apply to insects that move (creep) like an animal on four legs. Hopping insects, including locusts, katydids, crickets, and grasshoppers, distinguished themselves and were edible.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:24–28 Contact with a carcass made an individual unclean until the ritual bath before sunset.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:29–38 Israelites or anyone living within their camp became unclean by touching the following: dead rodents or reptiles (vv 29–31), an article onto which a carcass falls (v 32), a container into which a carcass falls (v 33), contaminated food or drink (v 34), oven or stove onto which part of a carcass falls (v 35), a carcass in a spring or cistern (v 36), and wet seed onto which part of a carcass falls (vv 37–38).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:39–40 Ritual impurity also resulted from touching the carcass of an edible, four-legged animal found dead from natural causes.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:41–43 Israelites seeing a snake could not help but recall the fall into sin and God's promise of a Savior to deliver them. See note, Gn 3:15.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:44–45 For I am the LORD. This covenant phrase appears 45 times from here to the end of Lv and served to remind the Israelites that He had distinguished Israel from other nations (20:24), that

He might sanctify the chosen people (20:8; 21:8) and be their God. See note, Ex 20:2.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:44 Consecrate … holy. We might define as holy anything belonging to the sphere of God's being or activity. See "holy," p 7. Ter: "The will of God is our sanctification, for He wishes His 'image'—us—to become likewise His 'likeness'; that we may be 'holy' just as [He] Himself is 'holy'" (ANF 4:50).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 11:46–47 This is the law. Summary statement. Although multifaceted, all of God's ordinances fall under a common heading of "the Law," lovingly designed by God so that His people might share in His holiness.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 11 Each dietary regulation was lovingly put in place so that God might protect His people from death such as what was experienced by Nadab and Abihu, who died because of their impurity. As seen in this section, the wages of sin is death (Rm 6:23a). Disobedience of God's Word results in death. But in His Word, He grants life and fellowship by His grace. • Merciful Lord, You alone are holy, and You shared holiness with us through the atoning sacrifice of Jesus Christ, who fulfilled the Law, and declared what was unclean to be clean. We thank You, Lord, for Your great mercy, through Christ, our Lord. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:2 unclean seven days. After seven days, the new mother could resume normal family life.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:3 Cf Gn 17:10–14.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:4 blood of her purifying. She was not ritually unclean, but not yet ritually clean. Discharge during the first week or two after a birth was known as "the blood of purity."

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:5 unclean two weeks. As throughout the Law, male and female are distinguished in God's order. However, no explanation is given for the doubling of the purification time between male and female babies. The weeks may mark the boundaries for postnatal discharge as the Israelites typically experienced them.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:6 burnt offering … sin offering. These sacrifices purified the new mother from the impurity of her blood flow. Menstruation was not regarded as sinful, but the flow of blood made people ritually unclean (15:19–24). See note, Ex 19:15.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:7 atonement. See p 5. clean from the flow of her blood. Through the ritual burning of the lamb on the altar, the woman was accepted by God and readmitted into the community.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 12:8 cannot afford a lamb. See note, 1:14. Lk 2:22–32 records the account of Mary's sacrifice when Jesus was born.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 12 Childbirth made a woman ceremonially unclean. These rules would exempt the new mother from the rigors of the Law and her typical role in family/community life. They also promised cleansing and restoration. In these ways, the Lord acts mercifully toward His daughters, even as He remembers us with kindness. • Merciful Father, we thank You for the rich blessings we find in Your Word. There we see how You placed Your Son under the Law, that we might have rest and peace. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Chs 13–14 God's laws regarding unclean skin diseases, commonly called leprosy. No one English word covers all the skin diseases in these chapters.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:3 priest shall examine. God commanded His priests to distinguish "between the unclean and the clean" (11:47). Priests acted as religious officials, not as doctors prescribing treatments. hair … turned white. Two symptoms verified a skin disease: white hair in a discolored area, and an ulcer with raw (dying) flesh. pronounce him unclean. By priestly declaration, the affected individual was no longer able to participate in public worship until declared clean again.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:4 seven days. Period of home quarantine to keep the infected individual under surveillance before declaring him clean or unclean. The significance of seven days is not explained in religious terms; however, see p 217.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:5–6 another seven. If the infection has not spread in 14 days, the individual is declared clean. If the infection has spread, the individual is unclean. Cf vv 7–8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:6 eruption. Scab. wash his clothes and be clean. See note, v 34.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:13 turned white. The significance of its turning white is not absolutely clear. However, since it was not red, there were apparently no open wounds.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:14 raw flesh. Skin ulcer.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:16–17 See note, v 13.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:20 leprous disease that has broken out in the boil. Formed in the scar left by a boil.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:21 shut him up seven days. See note, v 4.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:23 If the spot in the boil did not spread, no skin disease was present.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:24–28 Skin diseases could occur in burn scars. If reddish-white or white raw flesh contained white hair, the individual was declared unclean. Reddish-white or white raw flesh without white hair resulted in a seven-day quarantine. See note, v 4. On the seventh day, the priest decided if the disease was spreading before declaring the individual clean or unclean.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:29–37 Skin diseases of the head and chin were marked by infected flesh with yellow and thinning hair. After a week, the priest reexamined the infected area to determine if it was spreading or subsiding, as well as to search for the existence of yellow hair. If the infection was subsiding, the individual was declared clean. His clothes had to be washed before he became ritually clean. If the infection spread or yellow hairs were present, the priest declared the individual unclean.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:34 wash his clothes and be clean. Ritual washings were not done specifically for sanitary purposes but to remove ritual uncleanness before the holy God. Cf 1:9; 8:6.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:39 leukoderma. Noncontagious rash common in warm climates.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:42–46 Most serious of all skin diseases. Sufferers were to give warning of their uncleanness with shouts of "Unclean, unclean!" Their disease was transferable and could make others ceremonially unclean on contact. Infected individuals must live outside the camp and have no further contact with family and friends. Most significant is their exclusion from divine worship.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:47 leprous disease in a garment. Infection of mold or mildew on items of clothing. Mold appears greenish; mildew is yellowish.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:48 warp. Vertical fabric threads. woof. Horizontal fabric threads. linen or wool, or in a skin. Wool and flax were the most common fibers used in ancient cloth weaving. Skins, or hides, were also used as clothing.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:49 shown to the priest. See note, v 3.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:52 Fabrics with an irremovable infection were destroyed.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:54 See note, v 34. Fabrics were to be reevaluated just as individuals with skin disease were.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:55 rot. Most likely a fungus that has eaten away the cloth.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:56–57 Infected area must be cut out to prevent further contamination, but if it appears again, the article must be destroyed.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 13:59 See note, 11:46–47.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 13 Infectious skin diseases, whether of the body or of clothing, make individuals unclean. Priestly legislation keeps God's people clean, so that God might dwell among them and bless them (cf Ex 25:8). In Lv 13, we witness minute details of God's Law. We also see God's grace and His hand of protection providing guidelines for what is clean and unclean for His OT people. In Baptism, God clothes people today with Christ's "righteousness and holiness" (Eph 4:23–24). Christ strips off our old self (Eph 4:22), and we are clothed in Him (Rm 13:14). • Lord, we see Your hand of grace in the teachings of Leviticus. Without it, You could not dwell among Your people. Strengthen us, we pray, with Your precious Word and Sacraments to life eternal. In Jesus' name. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:2 law of the leprous person. See note, 11:46–47.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:4–6 Purification rites for the leprous person. God's intervention, through priestly actions, brings individuals back into God's covenant community.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:6 yarn. Used for binding other items, though the process is not explained.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:7–9 The ancient Israelites held that birds symbolized human vitality, so this rite symbolized the healed person's freedom and return from social death to life.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:10–20 On the eighth day, the cleansed individual brought the required offerings, oils, and flour to the sanctuary. The purificatory priest received the offerings and dedicated them to God. Like the ordination offering, blood is applied to the right earlobe, right thumb, and right big toe of the individual. Before the priest applied holy oil to the same places, he sprinkled oil seven times on the courtyard floor. After applying holy oil to the right ear, hand, and foot, remaining oil was "put on" the individual's head, in contrast to the high priest, on whom the oil was "poured" (8:12; 21:10). Remaining blood was used to perform the rite of atonement. A sin offering, burnt offering, and grain offering followed, establishing the person as clean and acceptable to God.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:10 without blemish. See note, 1:3. fine flour. See note, 2:1.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:12 guilt offering. See note, 5:15–16. wave offering. See note, 7:30–35.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:13 sin offering. See note, 4:3. burnt offering. See pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:14 Recalls the ordination of God's priests. See note, 8:22–29.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:15–18 Holy oil was placed on the person's head in contrast to the pollution of his head (cf 13:43–44). The head of a person governs the body and so represents the whole person.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:18 atonement. See p 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:20 grain offering. See pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:21–32 By God's grace, even the poor among the Israelites were provided a means of purification from the infection of skin disease. See note, 1:14.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:1–32 Disease is a consequence of the fall into sin, which isolates God's people outside the boundaries He established, but God provides the means to readmit those whose skin disease is healed. Thankfully, God now provides a means for the sinner, outside His boundaries, to return to Him: His own Son, Jesus Christ. When we repent, Christ removes our impurities, that we might daily be clothed in our Baptism (Gal 3:27; Col 3:9–10). • Lord God, we come before You with a deep sense of our unworthiness and of Your infinite love and grace. Forgive, protect, and guide us always, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:33–53 Purification of homes infested by mold or mildew. Compare to 13:47–59; in both cases, if the disease has not spread in the fabric or home, they are declared clean.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:34 Canaan, which I give you for a possession. Land of Canaan was promised to Abram's descendants (Gn 15:18–21). Although God allowed the Israelites to settle in Canaan, the land belonged to God; the Israelites were tenants. See notes, Jsh 1:6; 13:6. They lived together with God; therefore, their homes and towns were to be kept ritually clean. I put a case of leprous disease in a house. Hurrian and Hittite cultures believed that infections were a sign that the gods were displeased; Babylonians believed infections were a sign of demon possession. God counters these claims, stating that sometimes He sends infections that make homes and people unclean.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:36 Priests were allowed to leave the tent of meeting. In this case, they made a house call to determine whether a home was clean or unclean.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:37 greenish or reddish spots. Fungus such as mold or mildew reaching below the surface of the mud-plastered walls.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:38 seven days. See note, 13:4.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:40 an unclean place. Outside the community, where trash and other unclean items were placed to prevent the pollution of God's people.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:48–53 Before homes were declared clean, a rite of purification (comparable to those for an infected person) was performed (cf vv 1–9).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:54 See note, 11:46–47.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 14:33–57 Infected individuals and homes must be removed from God's presence. In His mercy, God provides His priests with purification rites to cleanse individuals and homes. Ultimately, God sent His Son to enter the unclean home of sinners (cf Mt 26:6). Christ purifies and blesses our homes by His presence, as we pray, "Come, Lord Jesus, be our guest, and let these gifts to us be blessed." • Bless our homes, Lord, we pray. Make them safe havens for the hearing of Your precious Word. Protect us from the power of the evil one. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:2–15 Abnormal male or female genital discharges are addressed.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:3 uncleanness. Infections disqualified individuals from contact with holy things, making them ritually impure.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:4–12 Uncleanness could be transferred through contact with an infected person's bed or chair (vv 4–6), body (v 7), spittle (v 8), saddle (v 9), or vessels (v 12). Those made unclean remained unclean until their ritual bath at sundown.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:4 bed. Perhaps an actual bed; most likely padding for sleeping on a dirt floor.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:5 unclean until the evening. See note, 11:24–28.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:12 Porous nature of earthenware retained infections. Breaking the object and removing it from the camp could prevent a transfer of the infection. Wooden vessels could be thoroughly cleansed, removing any infection.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:13 seven days. See note, 13:4.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:14–15 The eighth day marked a new beginning in the purification process. For information on sin offerings and burnt offerings, see pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:16–18 Any emission of semen during sexual intercourse made both the man and woman ritually unclean, requiring the washing of themselves and their bedding. After sexual intercourse, normal daily functions could occur without contaminating others, unlike the rules for an infectious skin disease (14:1–9). After intercourse, the couple was required to bathe, and they remained unclean until their ritual evening bath.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:19–24 Menstruation made a woman ritually unclean and unable to come into God's presence in worship. If a man had sexual intercourse with a woman during her monthly period, her menstrual blood made him ritually unclean for seven days. These rules did not prevent women from their normal work routines, but placed restrictions on items that could come in contact with menstrual blood. No rite of purification is presented in this text, which implies that she need only count off seven days after the beginning of the issue of blood and take a ritual bath on the eighth day to become clean again.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:25–30 Abnormal menstrual blood flow is addressed in these verses. Once the abnormal flow ceased, the woman was to mark off seven days. On the eighth day, she presented the required doves or pigeons to the priest.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:29 Under normal circumstances, a woman did not bring a sacrifice at the end of her monthly flow. Women performed these sacrifices when an abnormal menstrual flow ended.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:31 In grace, God provided ordinances to prevent deaths like those experienced by Nadab and Abihu when they brought "unauthorized fire" into the Lord's presence. Cf 10:1–2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 15:32 See note, 11:46–47.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 15 Ritual impurity separates God from His people. God's declaration that semen and menstrual blood cause uncleanness prevents His people from engaging in ritual prostitution. Lv 15 provides specific examples of how God provides a means to remove impurity and to make His people clean again. His Word, which threatens by the Law, also cleanses hearts by faith in the Gospel. • Lord, You alone have the power to make us clean in Your sight through the washing of Holy Baptism. Renew us by Your grace. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:2 not to come at any time into the Holy Place. The deaths of Nadab and Abihu necessitated regulations for the protection of those coming into God's presence. Aaron is not to enter the Most Holy Place indiscriminately (here called just "Holy Place"), but only on the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), and then only after carefully following God's prescribed means of cleansing. I will appear in the cloud. Refers to the cloud of smoke from the incense burned by the high priest as he entered God's presence (v 13). These regulations protected those serving God from defiling themselves and incurring God's wrath. Cf Ex 19:16–25. mercy seat. See note, Ex 25:17.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:3 sin offering. See note, 4:3. burnt offering. Cf 1:1–9; see pp 170–71.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:4 Before entering into the Lord's presence, the high priest prepared himself by washing completely and dressing in the manner God ordained. These are the high priest's "sacred vestments." Cf 8:5–9.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:5 On the Day of Atonement, Aaron offered two sacrifices for the entire Israelite community, including resident aliens.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:6 offering for himself. See note, 4:28.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:8 cast lots. One male goat was designated as belonging to God; the second was assigned to Azazel. Azazel. Commonly translated as "a departing goat" or "[e]scapegoat." In modern Hbr, the words lekh la-azazel correspond to Eng "go to hell," which is exactly what the Israelite community wanted to happen to their sins. However, see note, 17:7.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:10 make atonement over it. The high priest placed his hands on the scapegoat and confessed Israel's sins over it before sending it off into the wilderness to die (vv 21–22). The death of this goat atoned for Israel's sins. See p 5.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:12 beaten small. Finely ground.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:13 cloud. Provided a screen between the high priest and the mercy seat. The mercy seat is where God dwells; His presence was often marked by a cloud or theophany. See p 39. God was present whether or not the cloud/theophany was visible. so that he does not die. The incense cloud protected the high priest from seeing the Lord and dying.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:14 seven times. See note, 4:6–7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:15–16 atonement for the Holy Place. The blood sprinkled on the mercy seat and on the ground cleansed the Most Holy Place of Israel's sins. See note, v 2. tent of meeting. See note, Ex 27:21.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:18–19 Leaving the Most Holy Place, the high priest carried the sacrificial blood and cleansed the altar of burnt offering in the courtyard of the tent of meeting. Over the course of the year, this altar had become defiled by the sins brought before it. Through ritual cleansing, blood was sprinkled seven times, symbolizing God's perfection in this act.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:21 lay both his hands on the head. With the laying on of hands, the priest offers a corporate confession of the acts of rebellion and sin the Israelites had committed against God. In so doing, the high priest transferred their sin to the scapegoat, which would take their sins away from them and into the wilderness. confess … the iniquities. Wicked acts performed against God; sin.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:23 leave them there. The high priest's garments are holy and must stay inside the tent of meeting. Removing them would defile God's holiness.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:24 Final act of cleansing for the altar of burnt offerings.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:26 Azazel. See note, v 8.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:27 See note, 4:11–12.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:29 The Day of Atonement was celebrated annually on the 10th day of the seventh month. Included in the self-denial practiced by the Israelites was a 24-hour abstention from food, drink, bathing, anointing, and sexual intercourse. The Israelites often wore sackcloth and ashes as a sign of mourning over the sins they had committed. See note, Jb 16:15.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:30 atonement. See p 5.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:31 Sabbath of solemn rest. God connected the cessation of work on the seventh day of the week (Ex 31:15), the cessation of work in the seventh month on the Day of Atonement, and the complete cessation of cultivation of the land in the seventh year (Lv 25:4). you shall afflict yourselves. By showing penitence before God. See note, v 29. "There are monstrous debates about changing the law, ceremonies of the new law, and changing the Sabbath Day. They have all sprung from the false belief that in the Church there must be something similar to the services set forth in Leviticus [1–7], and that Christ had commissioned the apostles and bishops to come up with new ceremonies necessary to salvation. These errors crept into the Church when the righteousness that comes through faith was not taught clearly enough. Some debate whether or not keeping the Lord's Day is not a divine right, but similar to it. They prescribe the extent to which it is lawful to work on holy days. What else are such disputes except traps for the conscience?" (AC XXVIII 61–64).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 16:34 statute forever. See note, 6:22.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 16 Once a year, on the 10th day of the seventh month, God implemented a mandatory Day of Atonement. Ritual sacrifices cleansed the sanctuary, tent of meeting, altar, priests, and entire congregation of their sins. The chief cleansing agent was blood, which pointed forward to Jesus' sacrifice. By His death, Jesus offered the perfect sacrifice and entered the heavenly sanctuary with His blood (Heb 9:11–14), opening the way for believers to enter into God's presence (Heb 6:20). • We give You thanks, Lord, for Your abundant mercy. You heard Your people's prayers of repentance and sent Your precious Son to die for all. By His blood, we are made clean and enter into eternal life with You. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:1–4 Outside the tabernacle, God considered the ritual sacrifice of animals and disposal of their blood a capital crime. Only those sacrifices commanded by God and offered at the entrance to the tent of meeting were permitted.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:4 bloodguilt. The life of any creature is in its blood (vv 11, 14). God compares their needless slaughter to murder of human beings. cut off. God's punishment may include execution at His own hand, but most certainly a dismissal from God's covenant community.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:5 they sacrifice in the open field. Pagan nations poured the blood of slaughtered animals on the ground to appease the "spirits." The Lord required singular devotion and one altar. tent of meeting. See note, Ex 27:21. peace offerings. See pp 170–71.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:7 goat demons. Earth spirits envisaged as he-goats much like the satyrs of mythology. Cf 2Ch 11:15; Is 13:21; 34:14.

Some interpreters associate these pagan deities with the Azazel goat (see note, 16:8), though Scripture never affirms such an association. they whore. See note, Hos 4:13.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:9 cut off. See note, v 4.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:1–9 God proclaims His dwelling place as the exclusive place for sacrifices. He does not want His people running after false gods. Today, avoid every association with idolatrous practices. Jesus is the only way to the Father (Jn 1:17–18; 14:6). He alone atones for our sins of idolatry with His precious blood (Rm 3:25). By God's grace, He offers eternal life (Rm 6:23). • Father in heaven, grant us undivided hearts focused on Your dear Son, who came to ransom us from our sin, that we might receive the joy of Your salvation. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:10–12 God reserved blood for a divine purpose, the atonement of sins.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:13–14 The Israelites and those who came among them as strangers were permitted to hunt birds and animals to supplement their diets. The blood from these birds and animals was drained on the ground and covered with earth. Dt 12:15–16, 20–25; 15:21–23 use this ordinance as permission to slaughter domestic animals for their consumption.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:14 cut off. See note, v 4.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:15–16 See note, 11:24–28.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 17:10–16 God forbids the wanton killing of birds and animals. He desires that respect be shown for all life. Those who kill wantonly are held accountable for each life. Thanks be to God for the precious, life-giving blood of Jesus, who has reconciled us to the Father. • Father of mercy, You provided Your ancient people with ordinances that respected lifeblood as the atonement of sins. By Christ's blood, You redeemed all people. Thank You for Your gracious gifts through Jesus Christ. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:1–5 God often used a personal identifier when addressing His people. In doing so, He reminded them of His covenant with them at Mount Sinai and showed that His personal interest was in their well-being. In this case, God connected their sexual relationships with His provision of land. Cf Gn 26:24; 35:11. Some provisions here bear similarity to the Code of Hammurabi (c 1728–1686 BC).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:3 land of Egypt … land of Canaan. God detailed the sexual practices He abhors, in order that the Israelites might live before Him in purity, unlike the Egyptians and Canaanites. Because of their sexual practices, Canaan, the land promised to the Israelites, is defiled, and their people will soon be "vomited out" of the land as God leads the Israelites in (v 25). Bas: "It appears that the legislator does not include every kind of sin, but particularly prohibits those of the Egyptians, from among whom Israel had gone forth, and of the Canaanites among whom they were going" (NPNF 2 8:213).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:5 statutes … rules. See p 971. shall live by them: I am the LORD. God offers the promise of life, including vitality, prosperity, and blessings, if His decrees are kept (Dt 30:15–20).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:6–23 Pointedly, God provides provisions for holiness in sexuality by addressing key issues of incest (vv 6–16), adultery (vv 17–18, 20), sacrificial idolatry (v 21), homosexuality (v 22), and bestiality (v 23). The Bible records Abraham's intercourse with a servant (Gn 16:1–4), Lot's incest (Gn 19:36), and Jacob's marriage to his first cousins, who were also sisters (Gn 29), but it never promotes such relationships. God restates here that His original intent at creation was the ordered intimacy between one man and one woman. He makes plain that close intermarriage is now forbidden. See note, Gn 4:19.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:6 uncover nakedness. Euphemism for sexual relations; a command against nudity. See note, Gn 9:22; cf Lv 20:17. A person's nakedness involves personal honor, modesty, and sexual identity.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:10 your own nakedness. Incest degrades and often destroys those who participate in it, even entire families.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:17 depravity. Technical term in ritual legislation used to describe a deliberate act of sexual misconduct such as rape, prostitution (19:29; cf Ezk 16:26–27), and incest (Lv 20:14).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:18 rival wife to her sister. Marriage to a sister-in-law was permitted only after the death of her sister. See note, vv 6–23.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:19 menstrual uncleanness. Cf 15:19–24.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:20 unclean with her. See note, 15:16–18. This legislation may be addressing the consensual act of intercourse to impregnate the wife of an infertile man.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:21 In pagan cultures, children were offered to gods such as Molech, an Ammonite god (2Ki 16:3). These children were slaughtered or perhaps incinerated (Ezk 16:21). Such acts desecrate God's holy name. See note, 2Ki 23:10.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:22 Sexual intercourse was ordained by God for procreation (cf Gn 1:28) and must involve husband and wife, the "male and female" in Gn 1:27. abomination. See note, Pr 6:16. On homosexuality, see p 1911.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:23 perversion. Disruption in the divinely established order by the union of what should be kept apart. Bestiality, or the sexual union of a human being and an animal, is perverted behavior.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:24 I am driving out. Sexual purity commanded by God had implications for all nations. Because of the sexual practices of the Canaanites, God used the Israelites to drive them from their land.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:25 the land vomited out its inhabitants. God in His purity looked upon the displacement of the Canaanites as accomplished fact. The correlation between the ugliness of sin and the "vomit[ing] out" restated divine intervention as God called people to account for their deeds and let them suffer the consequences of their sin. See note, Gn 9:25. See also p 345.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:26 abominations. See note, v 22.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:27 God warns that those now inhabiting Canaan polluted the land by their sin. He commissions Israel to protect His land from sexual pollution.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:28 lest the land vomit you out. The Israelites were given possession of the land on a conditional basis. They must remain sexually pure and follow God's tenets or be subjected to the same consequences as the Canaanites before them. Cf Dt 28.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:29 abominations. See note, v 22.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 18:30 abominable customs. See note, v 22. I am the LORD your God. God's name here and in v 2 reminds His people from whom these ordinances come.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 18 Sexual purity is so important to God that He issued decrees detailing how to protect it. Only intercourse between a husband and wife is approved by God. God speaks against sexual sins among Christians as well (Eph 5:5–6; Heb 13:4). The Gospel sets people free from sin, but that freedom is not an excuse for committing sin. God knows our hearts and provides marriage to protect us from sin (1Co 7:2). In faithfulness to His Church, He hallows us and provides for our forgiveness from all sins. • Lord of the Church, forgive me and protect my heart from all impurity. Keep me from sexual sin by the power of Your Holy Spirit. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:2 congregation. God addressed the Israelites as a liturgical community. See "great congregation," p 842. Later, God will address each person individually. The following commands use the singular "you": vv 9, 10, 12, 15b–18, 19b, 29, 32, 34b. I the LORD your God am holy. Only God is intrinsically holy; He is the source of Israel's holiness. See "holy," p 7.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:3–4 Fourth, Third, and First Commandments restated.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:5 peace offerings. See pp 170–71. accepted. Unacceptable peace offerings cut God's people off from His blessings flowing through their family and into their congregation. In the truest sense, it was spiritual suicide.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:7–8 tainted … profaned. Without refrigeration, meat became rancid and unacceptable to God. See note, 7:18. cut off. See note, 17:4.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:1–8 God ties His holiness to Israel in words not unlike those of Jesus, who said, "I am the vine; you are the branches. Whoever abides in Me and I in him, he it is that bears much fruit, for apart from Me you can do nothing" (Jn 15:5). He is the source of our holiness, life, and salvation. God attached Himself to us through His means of grace. God's Word and Sacraments feed and nourish us as surely as a vine feeds and nourishes its branches. • Lord, by Your abundant grace, have mercy on us. Nurture us through Your Word and Sacraments, through Christ, our Savior. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:9–10 God blessed the poor and aliens with a portion of the crops and vineyards left for them as food.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:13 oppress … rob. Command against exploitation. wages … not remain with you. Protection for society's poor.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:14 stumbling block. Anything that would cause the blind to fall. fear your God. See p 1001.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:15–16 In response to His righteousness, the Lord expected fairness from His people.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:17 not hate your brother. A society filled with hatred will soon tear itself away from God and self-destruct. reason frankly. Jesus expounded this ordinance in Mt 18:15–17.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:18 vengeance or bear a grudge. God pays back evildoers (Ps 94:1; Na 1:2), so thoughts of personal revenge and violence are prohibited. Cypr: "When a wrong is received, patience is to be maintained, and that vengeance is to be left to God" (ANF 5:555). See note, Gn 4:15. love your neighbor as yourself. See notes, Mt 22:37–40.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:9–18 God wants His holiness reflected in the lives and conduct of His people. The Israelite community shared in God's holiness, and so do believers today (cf 1Co 1:2). We are hallowed in the Lord's name. • Almighty Father, may our conduct reflect sincere faith in Your Gospel. Deliver us from evil thoughts and deeds for the sake of Your Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:19 cattle breed with a different kind. Living things were meant to breed with their own kind. See note, Gn 1:11. two kinds of material. Because the priests wore fabric of mixed yarn (Ex 28:6, 15; 39:29), others were forbidden to wear similar clothing to avoid spiritual ambiguity.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:20–22 Ambiguous case; the woman was not free and the betrothal was not settled. The man commits the sin of adultery and is required to sacrifice for his behavior. Had she been free, both she and her lover should be put to death (Dt 22:23–24).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:22 atonement. See p 5. guilt offering. See note, 5:15–16; see also pp 170–71. forgiven. See note, 4:20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:23–25 Fruit trees planted in Canaan were not harvested the first three years. In the fourth year, all of the fruit was declared holy and given to the priests to eat. Beginning the fifth year, the firstfruits were given to God (Ne 10:35, 37); the remainder could be used or sold.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:25 increase its yield. Offering firstfruits to God freed the remainder of the fruit for common consumption, and God blessed His people with increased yields. I am the LORD your God. See note, Ex 20:2.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:26 blood. Cf 17:10–16. not interpret omens or tell fortunes. See notes, Gn 30:27; Dt 18:10–11.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:27–28 Practices often employed by cults of the dead.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:29 Daughters are not property for commercial enterprise, no matter how poor or desperate the family. Families are precious to God.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:30 Israelite families participated in God's holiness by honoring the Sabbath (vv 2–3) and respecting God's sanctuary.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:31 Consulting the spirits of the dead in search of power, blessing, or help was prohibited. See note, Dt 18:10–11.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:32 the gray head. The congregation's elders. See notes, Ex 3:16; 20:12. fear your God. When honor and respect are paid to the elderly, God is honored, feared, and respected. See p 1001.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:33–34 God applied v 18 to the aliens living among them. See note, Gn 18:4.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:34 love him as yourself. Cf v 18. strangers. The Israelites were once aliens living in Egypt. When they were generous in their treatment of aliens, they honored God's faithfulness. Cf Ex 22:21.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:35–36 Prohibition of false weights and scales applied not only to the Israelites but also to aliens. If one loved one's neighbor as oneself, such dishonest business practices would never occur.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:37 statutes … rules. See p 971. I am the LORD. See note, Ex 20:2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 19:19–37 Through these holy ordinances, God demands the obedience of His people. By His grace, He also chooses to dwell among them and shower them with blessings. By His hand, they were delivered from the corruption of Egypt; by His hand, they would drive out the Canaanites and settle in their land; and by His hand, the land would bring forth its abundance. Today, by the Lord's nail-pierced hands, we are His people. As God's holy people, we bring Christ's message of salvation to all nations (Mt 28:19–20), which is the ultimate expression of loving our neighbors as ourselves. • Forgive us, Lord, for we do not always love our neighbor as ourselves. Strengthen us by Your Holy Spirit, that we may continually boast in what You have done. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 20 Penalties for the ritual defilements presented in chs 18–19.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:2 children to Molech. See note, 18:21. stone him with stones. Execution for acts of sacrilege.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:3 cut him off. See note, 17:4. make My sanctuary unclean. Sacrifice of children to Molech defiled God's sanctuary. Stoning was done outside the camp to prevent defiling the congregation (cf 24:14). profane My holy name. Show irreverence toward God and His sacred things.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:5 set My face. Oppose. clan. See pp 54–55. cut them off. See note, 17:4. whoring after Molech. God considered idolatry spiritual whoring or spiritual prostitution. Cf Nu 15:39; Ezk 16:15.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:6 See note, 19:31.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:7 Consecrate. See p 6. Cypr: "We ask and entreat, that we who were sanctified in baptism may continue in that which we have begun to be. And this we daily pray for; for we have need of daily sanctification, that we who daily fall away may wash out our sins by continual sanctification" (ANF 5:450).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:8 I am the LORD who sanctifies you. Through ritual decrees, God made and kept His people holy. See "holy," p 7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:9 This and preceding decrees were designed to preserve the family.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:1–9 In response for all He has done, God commands the loyalty of His people. To protect those He loves from spiritual whoring, God decrees that those who follow false gods be dealt with decisively. God wants their influence eliminated, that others will not fall away and spend eternity apart from Him. Today, God's Law continues to reveal us as sinners deserving death (Rm 3:9–20), but Jesus reveals that He came not to condemn but to save sinners (Jn 3:17–18). Through Baptism, He grants new life in His Word (Rm 6:1–11; 1Co 6:9–11). • Father, we thank You for setting us apart through the blessings of Holy Baptism. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:10 Penalty for adultery was death. On the blessings of marriage, see notes Gn 1:28; 2:24–25; cf Ps 128; Sg.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:11 their blood is upon them. Those punished bore their own guilt. God prevented revenge by the executed person's kinsfolk. See note, 1Ki 2:31.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:14 burned with fire. The worst kind of sexual depravity was incest with two women in the first degree of kinship.

Cremation denied them burial in a family tomb and removed all traces of their existence.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:17 cut off. See note, 17:4.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:20–21 bear their sin. Offense leads to death. childless. Sexual union between a man and his aunt or sister-in-law will not produce living children or will cause the children to abandon their parents.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:10–21 Sexual immorality defiles individuals, making them unclean. Because these individuals are God's holy people, their sexual conduct desecrates God's name as well. Today, the closest thing we have to sacrificing children on Molech's altar is the sin of abortion offered to the idol of personal convenience. God calls us to honor Him with our bodies (1Pt 1:14–15), to refrain from sexual immorality (Ac 15:29), and to offer our lives in humble service. Christians, too, are accountable to God for their behavior. Thank God, He protects and preserves families from Satan's clutches and provides forgiveness for even the most destructive sins. • Lord God, You are a light in the darkness of this world. Forgive our sins. Send Your Holy Spirit to bless and keep us. In Christ we pray. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:22–26 God's precepts and decrees about holiness were not new. He shared many of them with the patriarchs Abraham (Gn 12:7; 15:15–21; 17:4–8; 18:18–19; 22:17–18), Isaac (Gn 26:2–5), and Jacob (Gn 28:13–14; 35:11–12; 46:3). Here, God restated His precepts, which the Israelites may have forgotten during their Egyptian captivity. His holiness will separate them from the inhabitants of Canaan. If the Israelites remained holy before God, they would fulfill God's promise to make them a blessing (Dt 4:1–8), the blessing ultimately fulfilled in Jesus Christ.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:22 statutes … rules. See p 971.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:24 inherit. See "portion," p 7. flowing with milk and honey. See p 6. I am the LORD your God. See note, Ex 20:2.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:26 holy. See p 7.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:27 See note, 19:31.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 20:22–27 In reading Lv, we might feel threatened by the Law. Do this! Don't do that! Or we may become legalistic, thinking salvation hinges on our goodness. Recognize that God made His people holy by grace, and in the Law He guides them away from the self-destructive customs of the nations. In the Gospel of Jesus Christ, believers have freedom from their sins, freedom to please God as His beloved, chosen people. • Lord, You saw us as sinners, yet loved us still. By Your grace, You washed us in the water of Baptism and made us new creations. Sustain us with the life-giving body and blood of Your Son. Send Your Holy Spirit to make us pure. Keep us as Your ambassadors, living examples of Your love for all people. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:1–22:16 Joins the code of the priests (21:1–9) to the code of the high priest (21:10–15); lists defects that disqualify a priest from eating sacred food (22:1–9); provides a list of residents within a priest's house disqualified from eating sacred food (22:10–16).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:1 make himself unclean for the dead. Touching a dead body (Nu 19:11) or entering the home of a dead person (Nu 19:14) made a priest unclean.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:3 An unmarried sister was legally a member of her brother's family.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:5 Priests were devoted to God and were not to mark their bodies as a sign of devotion to the deceased person.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:7 Priests were forbidden to marry women who engaged in sexual activity with other men because they defiled a priest's holiness.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:8 He shall be holy to you. The nation of Israel is to honor and respect God's priests and avoid doing anything to desecrate their holiness.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:9 If the daughter of a priest became a prostitute, she defiled her father. Such sacrilege was punishable by burning. Although not specifically stated, some commentators believe this analogy also applied to priests' sons.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:10–11 See note, v 1.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:13–15 See note, v 7.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:15 profane his offspring. Any male child born of a priest's union with a widow, divorcée, or prostitute was disqualified from priesthood.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:16–24 Physical blemishes disqualified a priest from entering God's sanctuary or holy places. The disabled or misshapen were not regarded as profane, for the Lord allowed them to perform other tasks and eat holy food.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:24 all the people of Israel. Conduct of priests was a matter of concern because priests were national leaders. Cf v 8; Ex 19:6.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:1–9 Relates to earlier laws (chs 11–15).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:2 holy things … they dedicate to Me. Personal offerings donated and dedicated to the Lord by the Israelites. Priests were given a portion of the offering as compensation for their service. God required that His priests deal respectfully with all sacred objects; unclean priests were not to handle these objects at all.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:3 cut off from My presence. Not permitted into the Lord's sanctuary. See "presence," p 843.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:4–16 God establishes parameters for those eating His sacred meal. Those excluded were unclean family members (vv 4–8), laypeople (vv 10a, 13b), indentured servants and employees (v 10b), and daughters married to laymen (v 12). Those included were slaves of the priests and their children (v 11b), widowed or divorced daughters who had no sons to support them (v 13a), as well as the priests and their immediate families. The Lord sanctified them through the holy bread and meat that He provided (v 9).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 21:1–22:16 God sets His priests apart. They determine what is holy and what is common (10:10). Such an important responsibility requires rules to protect their consecration before God so that they would not die as did Nadab and Abihu. All the people are responsible for helping priests maintain their sacred status before God. Today, Christ's atoning death makes us members of God's royal priesthood (1Pt 2:9). As members of His royal priesthood, God separates us from every defilement (2Co 7:1) and calls us to care for one another. • Lord, as You have set us apart for Yourself, lead us to set our hearts on You and our feet on the way of Your statutes, to the honor of Your name. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:17–25 Ordinances governing the animals that may be offered to God by the Israelites and the aliens living among them. See pp 170–71.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:18 burnt offering. See pp 170–71. freewill offerings. Voluntary, personal burnt offering or peace offering. See notes, 7:11; Ex 35:29.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:21 peace offerings. See pp 170–71.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:23 vow offering. Presented to God at the completion of a promise sworn in His name. See "vow," p 7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:25 bread of your God. Israelites must not treat the sacrifices of holy meat as common food. their mutilation. Through His priests, God declared an animal suitable or unsuitable for sacrifice. Any disfigurement made the animal unsuitable.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:26–28 See note, Ex 23:19.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:29 God established these regulations so the Israelites would know for certain that their sacrifices were acceptable to Him.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:31–33 The summary reminded the Israelites that keeping God's commands was a response to His great love for them. I am the LORD. See note, Ex 20:2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 22:17–33 Our God is a holy God who shares His holiness with His people. By keeping God's ordinances, the Israelites reflect God's love back to Him and to one another. Failure to keep God's commands destroys any assurance of God's acceptance of their sacrifice and of them. Today, God brings His people into His holy presence through the blood of His Son, Jesus Christ (Eph 2:17–22). By His Word, God sanctifies us and makes us holy (Jn 17:17; cf Eph 5:26), that we may present ourselves unblemished to God as a "living sacrifice" (Rm 12:1). • "Lord Jesus, my salvation, My light, my life divine, My only consolation, O make me wholly Thine! For Thou has dearly bought me With blood and bitter pain. Let me, since Thou hast sought me, Eternal life obtain." Amen. (LSB 689:2)
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:2 appointed feasts of the LORD. God desired to meet His people at His altar (Ex 29:42–43; Nu 17:4); He fixed the times to meet with them there (v 44). holy convocations. Gatherings for divine worship.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:3 solemn. Marked or observed with religious rites.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:1–3 Ch 23 represents a liturgical calendar for the Israelites. All such festivals and Sabbaths prefigure Christ (Col 2:16–17). The life of Jesus Christ shapes the Christian liturgical calendar, granting rest not only for our weary bodies but also for our weary souls. • Lord, may we always see the life of Christ reflected in our service, since He comes near to us through His precious Word and Sacraments. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:5 first month, on the fourteenth day of the month. See calendar, p 262. Passover. Cf Ex 12:25–27.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:6 Feast of Unleavened Bread. Named from the prohibition of eating leavened bread. Cf Ex 12:8; 14–20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:7 ordinary work. One's occupation.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:8 food offering. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:4–8 Remembrance of God's deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt was the most important component in their liturgical calendar. He made redemption the chief theme of their service. Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God, was slain on Good Friday as the Passover lambs were sacrificed. His sacrifice made redemption the chief theme of our worship too. • Blessed Redeemer, deliver us from all evil through Jesus Christ, our Paschal Lamb. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:10 harvest. See calendar, p 262. sheaf of the firstfruits. Earliest sheaves from the barley harvest.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:11 wave the sheaf. Ritual action to thank God for His blessings. you may be accepted. See note, 22:29.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:12–13 As the sheaves were waved, an unblemished lamb was presented as a burnt offering along with a grain offering of flour mixed with oil and wine.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:14 God forbade any eating of the new harvest until He received thanks.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:9–14 Ritual celebrations remind the Israelites of God's blessing of the harvest. Today, the food that sustains us is likewise a gift from His kindness. At every meal, offer thanks to God for His generous gift of daily bread and blessing, from the One who has blessed us with the bread of life. • Come, Lord Jesus, be our guest, and let these gifts to us be blessed. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:15–16 The Feast of Weeks is celebrated 50 days after the barley harvest in May/June. See calendar, p 262.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:16 new grain. Beginning of the wheat harvest.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:17 fine flour. See note, 2:1.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:18 pleasing aroma to the L ORD. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:20 wave offering. See note, 7:30–35. holy to the L ORD for the priest. Only the priests could eat from this sacrifice.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:21 God declares the day holy, like a Sabbath, so people may observe this feast. ordinary work. One's occupation.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:22 See note, 19:9–10.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:15–22 God reminds His people that He is the source of all their blessings. He desires that they pause to thank Him during the wheat harvest. At Pentecost in the NT, God poured out the rich blessings of His Holy Spirit to begin a new harvest: God's harvest of believers in Christ. • Lord, strengthen us with Your Holy Spirit, that we might gather a rich harvest of souls for Christ, so others may receive Your joy and rest. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:24 seventh month, on the first day. See calendar, p 262. a memorial. This holy day celebrated the Lord as King. trumpets. See p 993.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:25 food offering. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:23–25 God's acclamation as Israel's King ushers in the seventh month of the calendar. As Israel celebrated God's reign through the old covenant, we celebrate His present reign in Christ, our gracious Lord. • Lord God, precious King, make us ever mindful of Your abundant mercies. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:27 Day of Atonement. See calendar, p 262; see also note, 16:29. afflict yourselves. See note, 16:31.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:29 cut off from his people. See note, 7:20–21.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:30 I will destroy. Reference to the fate of Nadab and Abihu.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:32 afflict yourselves. See note, 16:31. evening to evening. Days were calculated from evening to evening (cf Gn 1:5).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:26–32 The Day of Atonement was the great day of rest in the Sabbath month (23:32), with no work performed the entire day. Like Passover, the Day of Atonement commemorated God's mercy and was an annual call to repentance and faith. Though our repentance should be daily, a season each year for repentance (e.g., Lent) helps us focus intentionally on our need for the Savior and the blessings He offers through the Church. • God of mercy, thank You for the atoning death of Your Son. Grant me sincere repentance and faith. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:34 fifteenth day of this seventh month. See calendar, p 262. Feast of Booths. Commemorated Israel's passing through the wilderness (v 43).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:37 food offerings. See note, 1:9. burnt offerings. See pp 170–71. grain offerings. See pp 170–71. drink offerings. Wine (Nu 15:5) poured around the altar (cf Ex 30:9).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:38 freewill offerings. See notes, 7:11; Ex 35:29.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:40 Known as the "four species"; trees from which branches were taken and used as part of the ceremonies in the Feast of Booths. See pp 200–201.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:42 dwell in booths. Israelites commemorated their passage through the wilderness by living in crude huts made of tree branches.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 23:33–44 The Feast of Booths concluded the festive half of the liturgy that began at Passover and commemorated Israel's safe travel on the way to the Promised Land. As you start each new journey, call on God's blessing and commemorate His care. Walk with Him by faith. His peace will comfort you in all circumstances. • As You watched over Israel, dearest Jesus, and journeyed with the disciples, so also abide with me and watch over me until, by Your grace, I reach my eternal home in heaven. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:1–4 The first of three ordinances regarding God's holy things. Cf Ex 25:31–40.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:2 pure oil from beaten olives. See note, Ex 27:20.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:3 Outside the veil of the testimony. The Holy Place was located outside the curtain before the ark. See diagram, p 139.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:1–4 Aaron or his sons attend the lamps twice daily to maintain light in the Holy Place. As you serve the Lord daily, rejoice and attend the light of His Word, which enlightens the sanctuary of the heart. Jesus is the light of the world (Jn 8:12; 9:5). • Shine Your light on us, O Lord, that others might see the light of Christ through us. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:5–9 Second of three ordinances regarding God's holy things. Cf Ex 25:23–30.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:8 a covenant forever. God's covenant with the Israelites (Ex 24) obligated them to bring Him bread.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:5–9 The second ordinance involves the bread of the Presence. Each Sabbath, the high priest sets 12 new loaves before the Lord (v 8). As you thank God for daily bread, remember that Jesus is the bread of life (Jn 6:35, 48). He gives His flesh as bread for all believers (Jn 6:51) and grants life (Jn 6:53–55). • Lord, Your precious body provides bread for our souls in a lasting covenant. We thank and praise You, O Lord. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:10 Now. Apparently this incident interrupted Moses' work on compiling Lv. father was an Egyptian. Technically an alien among the Israelites.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:11 blasphemed the Name, and cursed. Forbidden (Ex 20:7). Punishing someone severely for their words seems harsh by our free-speech standards. However, cursing involved more than cussing or a slip of the tongue. See "curse," p 6; see "name," p 843. tribe of Dan. Descendant of Jacob's fourth son, Dan.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:12 till the will of the LORD should be clear. No specific punishment was provided in God's Law, so the Israelites waited for God's decision.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:14 lay their hands on his head. Those who heard the cursing transferred the pollution they heard back to the blasphemer. See note, Ex 29:10. stone him. Mode of execution to purge the blasphemer from their midst.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:10–16 The third ordinance (see note, vv 1–4) deals with God's holy name. God equates this blasphemy with the sin of idolatry because it undermined true worship. Blasphemers were cursed by God (cf Mt 25:41). The Lord bids us to hallow God's name (Mt 6:9), to call on His name (1Co 1:2), and to do everything in His name (Col 3:17). God's name is "a treasure greater and nobler than heaven and earth" (LC IV 16). • Lord, may we at all times remember Your name and keep it holy. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:17–23 The cursing of God's name (v 16) leads Moses to recite the guiding principle of punishment, which applied to all inhabitants. Today we say the punishment should fit the crime.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:17–18 life for life. Restatement of God's Law given in Gn 9:6.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:20 God seeks to prevent exaggerated revenge.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 24:17–23 God establishes a system for administering justice based on equity and compensation for loss. However, no human compensation could give back to the Lord the honor due His saving name. Thanks be to God, Christ's atoning death brings forgiveness of blasphemy and teaches us to call on His mercy. • O Lord, guide our lips, that every word we say may give glory and honor to Your precious name. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Chs 25–26 Comprises a single speech God prepared for Moses to deliver to the Israelites. The speech connects life in the land with the observance of the Sabbath years.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:2 the land shall keep a Sabbath. The land will rest every seventh year.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:3–7 The land was left uncultivated during the seventh year, which helped restore its productive qualities. Whatever it produced during that year was gleaned for people and animal usage, but not sold commercially.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:1–7 Just as humankind needs a Sabbath rest, so the land needs rest. Because the land belongs to God, it was returned to Him every seventh year. All we have belongs to the Lord, our Maker and Redeemer. Honor Him with your property and life, even as He blesses and prospers you in His loving care. • Lord of heaven and earth, may we never forget that all we have, including the salvation of our souls, is provided by Your gracious hand. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:9 Day of Atonement. See calendar, p 262; see also note, 16:29.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:10 proclaim liberty. All the land of Israel would be divided for the tribes, clans, and households (see notes, Jsh 1:6; 13:6). The Year of Jubilee included the return of land to its original owner (v 13) and the release of slaves (v 40). This ensured that families always had a place in Israel and would not be sold abroad or forced to wander away from the Promised Land. jubilee. Name derived from the horn of a ram, which was sounded to mark the beginning of the year of freedom. return. Each person was restored to the land possessed by his family, which had been provided by God (cf Jsh 13:6–21:45).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:11 neither sow nor reap. As in the Sabbath Year, the land remained uncultivated during the Year of Jubilee.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:12 eat the produce. What grew voluntarily could be eaten.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:14 not wrong one another. Fair treatment of others always applies if we are to do as God commands in the Second Table of the Law (Ex 20:12–17).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:15–16 Land "purchases" did not give title to the land. A purchaser obtained only the rights to produce a certain number of harvests, with the value of the land established by the number of years until the next Jubilee.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:20–22 God promised such abundant harvests that there would be enough to eat while the land rested during the Sabbath Year and the Year of Jubilee (years 49 and 50 in succession).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:8–22 The Year of Jubilee provides God's people with restored freedoms. Lands are returned to their original owners, slaves are freed, land is given rest, and loans are written off. In this way, the Lord emphasizes freedom, family, property rights, and devotion, which make a nation strong. In Christ, we find our jubilee. In Him, our sins are forgiven, and we receive our "eternal inheritance" (Heb 9:15). • Thank You, Lord, for freeing us from the bondage of sin. May we honor You by our freedom, family, and goods. Amen.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:23 the land is Mine. Although God gave the land to the Israelites, He retained ownership and could terminate the lease if they proved unfit tenants. strangers and sojourners with Me. The Israelites resided in the land at God's discretion.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:24 redemption of the land. God provided means by which the land stayed within the family.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:25–34 Two cases of redemption are specified. (1) If a man sold property out of necessity, his paternal next of kin was obligated to buy it back. See note, Ru 2:20. Should the poor man prosper, he also could buy back his land. Regardless of circumstances, the land returned to its original owner at Jubilee, when God acted as redeemer. (2) Homes in walled cities were redeemable only within the first year; otherwise, all family rights were forfeited. There were two exceptions: houses in rural villages (v 31) and houses in towns belonging to the Levites (vv 32–34).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:23–34 Land is God's gift to His people through their tribes and clans. God desires that this gift stay in families and never be bargained or sold. God's laws of redemption made this possible. At all times, land sold by a poor family member could be redeemed. How greatly the Lord treasures families! In love, God has redeemed us from sin through the precious blood of His Son. We are bought and paid for. We are His. • Lord, we praise You for sending a Kinsman-Redeemer, Jesus Christ, to redeem us with His precious blood. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:35 Family members were to care for relatives who were poor by allowing them to work for them. brother. Fellow Israelite.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:36 Interest was often taken in advance of a loan. In this case, no interest was to be taken. fear your God. See p 1001.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:38 God reminded the Israelites that He freed them from Egyptian bondage so that He might provide them land, fulfilling God's promise to Abraham (Gn 15:18–21).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:39 sells himself to you. An Israelite could sell himself to another in payment of a debt. See p 101.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:40 hired servant. A fellow Israelite received the same treatment as a hired worker and was never to be mistreated. jubilee. See note, v 10.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:43 fear your God. See p 1001.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:44–46 Although the enslavement of their fellow Israelites was not allowed, they were allowed to own slaves purchased from foreign lands or from among the aliens living with them in Canaan. See p 101.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:35–46 Israelites are to respect one another, regardless of their financial circumstances. God expects His people to honor Him for His great provisions by treating others with respect (Ex 20:12–17). We also see God's faithfulness in the provision of land. For our sakes, Jesus Christ became poor, that He might provide us with God's blessings (2Co 8:9). As our Brother, He frees us from the bondage of sin. • Merciful Savior, lead me to love and respect my brothers and sisters and serve for their benefit, in accordance with Your merciful goodness. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:47–55 The compensation paid to redeem an Israelite enslaved for his debt was based on the number of years until the next Jubilee; if only a few years remained until the Jubilee, a yearly rate was established.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:48 An indebted Israelite was always redeemable; a slave was not.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:49 redeem himself. Servants were allowed to earn money. If their financial circumstances changed, Israelites could pay for their own release.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:50–54 God provided a means to calculate what was owed for a person's redemption from servitude.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:55 The Israelites were free only because God freed them from Egyptian captivity. Because He redeemed them, they no longer belonged to themselves but to God.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 25:47–55 God set apart the Israelites by His covenant. Those who entered bond-service because of debts were to be treated with respect, for they did not belong to their master but to God. Today, those in Christ are likewise beneficiaries of God's grace (Ac 10:39–43). Because we are released from our debts, we are called to have mercy on others, to release them from their debt (Mt 6:12). We now await the restoration promised in the heavenly Jubilee (Ac 3:21). • Lord of promise, thank You for our release from sin. We await the fullness of heaven, through Christ, our Lord. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:4–8 Blessings are restated in Dt 28:1–14.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:9 fruitful and multiply. By God's hand, the Israelites will grow in number. Cf Gn 15:4–5. confirm My covenant with you. God's covenant promise to Abraham, renewed with the patriarchs and at Sinai (Ex 20). The covenant culminated in the messianic promise, fulfilled in Christ. See notes, Gn 12:2, 3.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:10 The food supply would not run out before the next harvest.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:11 My soul. God's holy being and presence, which abided at the tabernacle. See "presence," p 843. Aph: "My beloved, we also have received of the Spirit of Christ, and Christ dwells in us" (NPNF 2 13:371).

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:12 God desired to walk among His people as He once did with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden (Gn 3:8).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:13 The chain of promises concludes with God's reminder that He is their liberator. See note, Ex 20:2.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:1–13 By the Word of promise, the Lord grants us faith, that we may walk by faith and enjoy His blessings of abundance and peace. Failure to walk with God brings painful consequences (vv 14–39). Therefore, cling to God's Word, especially His promise that His people belong to Him (v 13). • Lord, we entrust our lives to You. You alone have the words of eternal life. Amen.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:17 set My face against you. See note, Ps 119:135.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:19 Continued refusal to listen to God brings pride-breaking drought.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:21 sevenfold for your sins. Punishment, though complete, would leave room for God's mercy.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:22 let loose the wild beasts. As a means of discipline, God unleashes wild animals in order to turn hearts back to Him. Cf 2Ki 17:26.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:23 discipline. Lit, "these things" listed in vv 16–22. In His mercy, God disciplines His disobedient people so they might "not be condemned along with the world" (1Co 11:31–32).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:25 vengeance for the covenant. In an attempt to bring His wayward people back to Him, God disciplines more harshly. pestilence. Plague. See note, Ps 91:3. Besieged cities were esp prone to epidemics.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:26 supply. Lit, "staff," which may refer to a stick used to hold ring-shaped bread out of the reach of rodents. Short supply of flour resulted in a central supply and rationing.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:29 Cannibalism occurred during two later sieges (cf 2Ki 6:26–28).
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:30 high places. See p 526.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:31 pleasing aromas. See note, 1:9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:34–35 The ultimate humbling would come by removing the Israelites from the land God promised them, which forcibly gave the land rest from cultivation.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:39 God's discipline will lead to the Israelites' captivity, where they will rot away.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:40 confess. Confession and Absolution were seen at the golden calf incident. Cf Ex 32; Ezr 10:1–17; Ne 9.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:41 uncircumcised heart. Unrepentant heart that does not accord with the covenant.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:42 remember. See p 843. Israel's sin could not annul God's covenant with Abraham, which promised the Savior.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:46 statutes … rules … laws. See p 971.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 26:14–46 Failure to obey God's statutes, rules, and laws results in punishment. God's discipline intensifies as the disobedience intensifies against Him. One by one, God removes His blessings in order to lead His people back to Him in repentance, that He may again shower them with His grace (2Pt 3:9). The epitome of God's grace is seen at the cross, where His Son died to remove the curse brought by sin (cf 1Jn 1:9). • "O almighty God, merciful Father, I, a poor, miserable sinner, confess unto You all my sins and iniquities with which I have ever offended You and justly deserved Your temporal and eternal punishment. But I am heartily sorry for them and sincerely repent of them, and I pray You of Your boundless mercy and for the sake of the holy, innocent, bitter sufferings and death of Your beloved Son, Jesus Christ, to be gracious and merciful to me, a poor, sinful being." Amen. (LSB, p 184)
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 27 There are four possible reasons for the placement of the laws about vows at the end of Lv. (1) Vows made by the Israelites may be linked to God's promises in ch 26. (2) These laws provide the necessary funding for sanctuary maintenance, allowing the Israelites to keep God's command to revere the sanctuary (26:2). (3) It allows Lv to end on a positive note, emphasizing Israel's voluntary response to God's grace. (4) Voluntary contributions to the sanctuary provide a counterbalance to the divinely ordained offerings of chs 1–7. See "vow," p 7.
LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:3–8 Shows common social distinctions among the Israelites. The values may be associated with the person's productivity. Men of fighting age (cf Nu 1:3) would pay the most. See note, Jsh 24:32.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:9–10 God knows men's hearts. The temptation exists to substitute an animal of one species for another, so God prevents such actions by declaring, through His priests, that both animals were holy and not redeemable. Both animals then could be sold and the money used to support the sanctuary.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:11–12 Unclean animals (cf 5:2) could be offered in a vow, but not sacrificed. After they were ascribed a value by the priests, they were sold, and the money was used to support the sanctuary.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:14–25 Dedicating, or devoting, items in the manner addressed here was often done in answer to prayer. Dedication offerings were different from votive (freewill) offerings. Dedication offerings belonged to God immediately (the offering was consecrated or holy), while votive offerings were made only when God answered a prayer. The most dramatic example of a votive offering is that of Hannah, who volunteered her young son Samuel to God (1Sm 1:21–28). Family land offered to God was redeemable by paying one shekel per year for each area covered by a homer (c 8 bushels) of barley, less the number of years to the next Jubilee, and then adding one-fifth to the total. If an individual had already sold the land pledged to God, the land was forever forfeited to Him.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:26–27 Firstborn animals already belonged to God and were presented to the priests. Therefore, these animals could not be dedicated to God (Ex 13:12). The dedication of unclean animals was permitted, but these were redeemed at their value plus one-fifth.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:29 devoted for destruction. See p 6.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON 27:31 People or unclean livestock were redeemed at the value set by the priest, plus one-fifth. Payment was made in precious metals (e.g., silver) for the amount of the assessed value.

LEVITICUS—NOTE ON Ch 27 Lv concludes by showing how all God's people are involved in the stewardship of God's house. Based on how God has blessed them, each Israelite provides materials and finances for the maintenance of God's sanctuary for the ongoing operation of the Divine Service. The collection of our offerings during the liturgy serves a parallel purpose (cf Ac 4:34–5:11). Our offerings are part of the holy work of God's people for the benefit of the world (Rm 15:27; 2Co 9:12). Through our offerings, we bear witness to what God has done through Calvary's cross. •

“What shall I render to the Lord for all His benefits to me? I will offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving and will call on the name of the Lord. I will take the cup of salvation and will call on the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows to the Lord now in the presence of all His people, in the courts of the Lord’s house, in the midst of you, O Jerusalem.” Amen. (LSB, p 176)

A Census of Israel's Warriors

1 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the tent of meeting, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt, saying, [2] "Take a census of all the congregation of the people of Israel, by clans, by fathers' houses, according to the number of names, every male, head by head. [3] From twenty years old and upward, all in Israel who are able to go to war, you and Aaron shall list them, company by company. [4]And there shall be with you a man from each tribe, each man being the head of the house of his fathers. [5]And these are the names of the men who shall assist you. From Reuben, Elizur the son of Shedeur; [6]from Simeon, Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai; [7]from Judah, Nahshon the son of Amminadab; [8]from Issachar, Nethanel the son of Zuar; [9]from Zebulun, Eliab the son of Helon; [10]from the sons of Joseph, from Ephraim, Elishama the son of Ammihud, and from Manasseh, Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur; [11]from Benjamin, Abidan the son of Gideoni; [12]from Dan, Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai; [13]from Asher, Pagiel the son of Ochran; [14]from Gad, Eliasaph the son of Deuel; [15]from Naphtali, Ahira the son of Enan." [16]These were the ones chosen from the congregation, the chiefs of their ancestral tribes, the heads of the clans of Israel.

[17]Moses and Aaron took these men who had been named, [18]and on the first day of the second month, they assembled the whole congregation together, who registered themselves by clans, by fathers' houses, according to the number of names from twenty years old and upward, head by head, [19]as the Lord commanded Moses. So he listed them in the wilderness of Sinai.

[20]The people of Reuben, Israel's firstborn, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, head by head, every male from twenty years old and upward, all who were able to go to war: [21]those listed of the tribe of Reuben were 46,500.

[22]Of the people of Simeon, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, those of them who were listed, according to the number of names, head by head, every male from twenty years old and upward, all who were able to go to war: [23]those listed of the tribe of Simeon were 59,300.

[24]Of the people of Gad, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all who were able to go to war: [25]those listed of the tribe of Gad were 45,650.

[26]Of the people of Judah, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [27]those listed of the tribe of Judah were 74,600.

[28]Of the people of Issachar, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [29]those listed of the tribe of Issachar were 54,400.

[30]Of the people of Zebulun, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [31]those listed of the tribe of Zebulun were 57,400.

[32]Of the people of Joseph, namely, of the people of Ephraim, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [33]those listed of the tribe of Ephraim were 40,500.

[34]Of the people of Manasseh, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [35]those listed of the tribe of Manasseh were 32,200.

[36]Of the people of Benjamin, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [37]those listed of the tribe of Benjamin were 35,400.

[38]Of the people of Dan, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [39]those listed of the tribe of Dan were 62,700.

[40]Of the people of Asher, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [41]those listed of the tribe of Asher were 41,500.

[42]Of the people of Naphtali, their generations, by their clans, by their fathers' houses, according to the number of names, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war: [43]those listed of the tribe of Naphtali were 53,400.

[44]These are those who were listed, whom Moses and Aaron listed with the help of the chiefs of Israel, twelve men, each representing his fathers' house. [45]So all those listed of the people of Israel, by their fathers' houses, from twenty years old and upward, every man able to go to war in Israel— [46]† all those listed were 603,550.

Levites Exempted

47 ‡ † But the Levites were not listed along with them by their ancestral tribe. 48 For the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 49 “Only the tribe of Levi you shall not list, and you shall not take a census of them among the people of Israel. 50 † But appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of the testimony, and over all its furnishings, and over all that belongs to it. They are to carry the tabernacle and all its furnishings, and they shall take care of it and shall camp around the tabernacle. 51 † When the tabernacle is to set out, the Levites shall take it down, and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up. And if any outsider comes near, he shall be put to death. 52 † The people of Israel shall pitch their tents by their companies, each man in his own camp and each man by his own standard. 53 † But the Levites shall camp around the tabernacle of the testimony, so that there may be no wrath on the congregation of the people of Israel. And the Levites shall keep guard over the tabernacle of the testimony.” 54 Thus did the people of Israel; they did according to all that the Lord commanded Moses.

Arrangement of the Camp

2 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, [2]† "The people of Israel shall camp each by his own standard, with the banners of their fathers' houses. They shall camp facing the tent of meeting on every side. [3]‡Those to camp on the east side toward the sunrise shall be of the standard of the camp of Judah by their companies, the chief of the people of Judah being Nahshon the son of Amminadab, [4]his company as listed being 74,600. [5]Those to camp next to him shall be the tribe of Issachar, the chief of the people of Issachar being Nethanel the son of Zuar, [6]his company as listed being 54,400. [7]Then the tribe of Zebulun, the chief of the people of Zebulun being Eliab the son of Helon, [8]his company as listed being 57,400. [9]† All those listed of the camp of Judah, by their companies, were 186,400. They shall set out first on the march.

[10]"On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben by their companies, the chief of the people of Reuben being Elizur the son of Shedeur, [11]his company as listed being 46,500. [12]And those to camp next to him shall be the tribe of Simeon, the chief of the people of Simeon being Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai, [13]his company as listed being 59,300. [14]Then the tribe of Gad, the chief of the people of Gad being Eliasaph the son of Reuel, [15]his company as listed being 45,650. [16]All those listed of the camp of Reuben, by their companies, were 151,450. They shall set out second.

[17]† "Then the tent of meeting shall set out, with the camp of the Levites in the midst of the camps; as they camp, so shall they set out, each in position, standard by standard.

[18]"On the west side shall be the standard of the camp of Ephraim by their companies, the chief of the people of Ephraim being Elishama the son of Ammihud, [19]his company as listed being 40,500. [20]And next to him shall be the tribe of Manasseh, the chief of the people of Manasseh being Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur, [21]his company as listed being 32,200. [22]Then the tribe of Benjamin, the chief of the people of Benjamin being Abidan the son of Gideoni, [23]his company as listed being 35,400. [24]All those listed of the camp of Ephraim, by their companies, were 108,100. They shall set out third on the march.

25 “On the north side shall be the standard of the camp of Dan by their companies, the chief of the people of Dan being Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai, 26 his company as listed being 62,700. 27 And those to camp next to him shall be the tribe of Asher, the chief of the people of Asher being Pagiel the son of Ochran, 28 his company as listed being 41,500. 29 Then the tribe of Naphtali, the chief of the people of Naphtali being Ahira the son of Enan, 30 his company as listed being 53,400. 31 All those listed of the camp of Dan were 157,600. They shall set out last, standard by standard.”

32 † These are the people of Israel as listed by their fathers’ houses. All those listed in the camps by their companies were 603,550. 33 † But the Levites were not listed among the people of Israel, as the Lord commanded Moses.

34 Thus did the people of Israel. According to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so they camped by their standards, and so they set out, each one in his clan, according to his fathers’ house.

The Sons of Aaron

3 [1]‡‡These are the generations of Aaron and Moses at the time when the Lord spoke with Moses on Mount Sinai. [2]These are the names of the sons of Aaron: Nadab the firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.
[3]†These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the anointed priests, whom he ordained to serve as priests. [4]†But Nadab and Abihu died before the Lord when they offered unauthorized fire before the Lord in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children. So Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests in the lifetime of Aaron their father.

Duties of the Levites

5 ✝And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 6 ✝"Bring the tribe of Levi near, and set them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister to him. 7 ✝They shall keep guard over him and over the whole congregation before the tent of meeting, as they minister at the tabernacle. 8 They shall guard all the furnishings of the tent of meeting, and keep guard over the people of Israel as they minister at the tabernacle. 9 ✝And you shall give the Levites to Aaron and his sons; they are wholly given to him from among the people of Israel.
10 ✝And you shall appoint Aaron and his sons, and they shall guard their priesthood. But if any outsider comes near, he shall be put to death."

11 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 12 ✝"Behold, I have taken the Levites from among the people of Israel instead of every firstborn who opens the womb among the people of Israel. The Levites shall be mine, 13 for all the firstborn are mine. On the day that I struck down all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, I consecrated for my own all the firstborn in Israel, both of man and of beast. They shall be mine: I am the Lord."

14 And the Lord spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, 15 ✝"List the sons of Levi, by fathers' houses and by clans; every male from a month old and upward you shall list." 16 ✝So Moses listed them according to the word of the Lord, as he was commanded. 17 And these were the sons of Levi by their names: Gershon and Kohath and Merari. 18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their clans: Libni and Shimei. 19 And the sons of Kohath by their clans: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 20 And the sons of Merari by their clans: Mahli and Mushi. These are the clans of the Levites, by their fathers' houses.

21 ✝To Gershon belonged the clan of the Libnites and the clan of the Shimeites; these were the clans of the Gershonites. 22 Their listing according to the number of all the males from a month old and upward was[1] 7,500.
23 The clans of the Gershonites were to camp behind the tabernacle on the west, 24 with Eliasaph, the son of Lael as chief of the fathers' house of the Gershonites. 25 And the guard duty of the sons of Gershon in the tent of meeting involved the tabernacle, the tent with its covering, the screen for the entrance of the tent of meeting, 26 the hangings of the court, the screen for the door of the court that is around the tabernacle and the altar, and its cords—all the service connected with these.

27 ‡To Kohath belonged the clan of the Amramites and the clan of the Izharites and the clan of the Hebronites and the clan of the Uzzielites; these are the clans of the Kohathites. 28According to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, there were 8,600, keeping guard over the sanctuary. 29The clans of the sons of Kohath were to camp on the south side of the tabernacle, 30with Elizaphan the son of Uzziel as chief of the fathers' house of the clans of the Kohathites. 31And their guard duty involved the ark, the table, the lampstand, the altars, the vessels of the sanctuary with which the priests minister, and the screen; all the service connected with these. 32And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest was to be chief over the chiefs of the Levites, and to have oversight of those who kept guard over the sanctuary.

33 ‡To Merari belonged the clan of the Mahlites and the clan of the Mushites: these are the clans of Merari. 34Their listing according to the number of all the males from a month old and upward was 6,200. 35And the chief of the fathers' house of the clans of Merari was Zuriel the son of Abihail. They were to camp on the north side of the tabernacle. 36And the appointed guard duty of the sons of Merari involved the frames of the tabernacle, the bars, the pillars, the bases, and all their accessories; all the service connected with these; 37also the pillars around the court, with their bases and pegs and cords.

38 †Those who were to camp before the tabernacle on the east, before the tent of meeting toward the sunrise, were Moses and Aaron and his sons, guarding the sanctuary itself, to protect[1] the people of Israel. And any outsider who came near was to be put to death. 39 †All those listed among the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron listed at the commandment of the Lord, by clans, all the males from a month old and upward, were 22,000.

Redemption of the Firstborn

40 ✝ ✝ And the Lord said to Moses, “List all the firstborn males of the people of Israel, from a month old and upward, taking the number of their names. 41 And you shall take the Levites for me—I am the Lord—instead of all the firstborn among the people of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the cattle of the people of Israel.” 42 So Moses listed all the firstborn among the people of Israel, as the Lord commanded him. 43 ✝ And all the firstborn males, according to the number of names, from a month old and upward as listed were 22,273.

44 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 45 “Take the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the people of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle. The Levites shall be mine: I am the Lord. 46 ✝ And as the redemption price for the 273 of the firstborn of the people of Israel, over and above the number of the male Levites, 47 you shall take five shekels[2] per head; you shall take them according to the shekel of the sanctuary (the shekel of twenty gerahs[3]), 48 and give the money to Aaron and his sons as the redemption price for those who are over.” 49 So Moses took the redemption money from those who were over and above those redeemed by the Levites. 50 ✝ From the firstborn of the people of Israel he took the money, 1,365 shekels, by the shekel of the sanctuary. 51 And Moses gave the redemption money to Aaron and his sons, according to the word of the Lord, as the Lord commanded Moses.

Duties of the Kohathites

4 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, [2]†"Take a census of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, by their clans and their fathers' houses, [3]† from thirty years old up to fifty years old, all who can come on duty, to do the work in the tent of meeting. [4]†† This is the service of the sons of Kohath in the tent of meeting: the most holy things. [5]When the camp is to set out, Aaron and his sons shall go in and take down the veil of the screen and cover the ark of the testimony with it. [6]Then they shall put on it a covering of goatskin[4] and spread on top of that a cloth all of blue, and shall put in its poles. [7]And over the table of the bread of the Presence they shall spread a cloth of blue and put on it the plates, the dishes for incense, the bowls, and the flagons for the drink offering; the regular showbread also shall be on it. [8]Then they shall spread over them a cloth of scarlet and cover the same with a covering of goatskin, and shall put in its poles. [9]And they shall take a cloth of blue and cover the lampstand for the light, with its lamps, its tongs, its trays, and all the vessels for oil with which it is supplied. [10]And they shall put it with all its utensils in a covering of goatskin and put it on the carrying frame. [11]† And over the golden altar they shall spread a cloth of blue and cover it with a covering of goatskin, and shall put in its poles. [12]And they shall take all the vessels of the service that are used in the sanctuary and put them in a cloth of blue and cover them with a covering of goatskin and put them on the carrying frame. [13]And they shall take away the ashes from the altar and spread a purple cloth over it. [14]And they shall put on it all the utensils of the altar, which are used for the service there, the fire pans, the forks, the shovels, and the basins, all the utensils of the altar; and they shall spread on it a covering of goatskin, and shall put in its poles. [15]† And when Aaron and his sons have finished covering the sanctuary and all the furnishings of the sanctuary, as the camp sets out, after that the sons of Kohath shall come to carry these, but they must not touch the holy things, lest they die. These are the things of the tent of meeting that the sons of Kohath are to carry.

16 ✝“And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest shall have charge of the oil for the light, the fragrant incense, the regular grain offering, and the anointing oil, with the oversight of the whole tabernacle and all that is in it,
of the sanctuary and its vessels.” 17 The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, 18 ✝“Let not the tribe of the clans of the Kohathites be destroyed from among the Levites, 19 but deal thus with them, that they may live and not die when they come near to the most holy things: Aaron and his sons shall go in and appoint them each to his task and to his burden, 20 but they shall not go in to look on the holy things even for a moment, lest they die.” 21 The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 22 ✝“Take a census of the sons of Gershon also, by their fathers’ houses and by their clans.
23 From thirty years old up to fifty years old, you shall list them, all who can come to do duty, to do service in the tent of meeting. 24 This is the service of the clans of the Gershonites, in serving and bearing burdens: 25 they shall carry the curtains of the tabernacle and the tent of meeting with its covering and the covering of goatskin that is on top of it and the screen for the entrance of the tent of meeting 26 and the hangings of the court and the screen for the entrance of the gate of the court that is around the tabernacle and the altar, and their cords and all the equipment for their service. And they shall do all that needs to be done with regard to them. 27 All the service of the sons of the Gershonites shall be at the command of Aaron and his sons, in all that they are to carry and in all that they have to do. And you shall assign to their charge all that they are to carry. 28 ✝This is the service of the clans of the sons of the Gershonites in the tent of meeting, and their guard duty is to be under the direction of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.
29 ✝“As for the sons of Merari, you shall list them by their clans and their fathers’ houses. 30 From thirty years old up to fifty years old, you shall list them, everyone who can come on duty, to do the service of the tent of meeting. 31 And this is what they are charged to carry, as the whole of their service in the tent of meeting: the frames of the tabernacle, with its bars, pillars, and bases, 32 and the pillars around the court with their bases, pegs, and cords, with all their equipment and all their accessories. And you shall list by name the objects that they are required to carry. 33 This is the service of the clans of the sons of Merari, the whole of their service in the tent of meeting, under the direction of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.”

34 ✝And Moses and Aaron and the chiefs of the congregation listed the sons of the Kohathites, by their clans and their fathers’ houses, 35 from thirty years old up to fifty years old, everyone who could come on duty, for service in the tent of meeting; 36 and those listed by clans were 2,750. 37 This was the list of the clans of the Kohathites, all who served in the tent of meeting, whom Moses and Aaron listed according to the commandment of the Lord by Moses.

38 Those listed of the sons of Gershon, by their clans and their fathers’ houses, 39 from thirty years old up to fifty years old, everyone who could come on duty for service in the tent of meeting— 40 those listed by their clans and their fathers’ houses were 2,630. 41 This was the list of the clans of the sons of Gershon, all who served in the tent of meeting, whom Moses and Aaron listed according to the commandment of the Lord.

42 Those listed of the clans of the sons of Merari, by their clans and their fathers’ houses, 43 from thirty years old up to fifty years old, everyone who could come on duty, for service in the tent of meeting— 44 those listed by clans were 3,200. 45 This was the list of the clans of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron listed according to the commandment of the Lord by Moses.

46 All those who were listed of the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron and the chiefs of Israel listed, by their clans and their fathers’ houses, 47 from thirty years old up to fifty years old, everyone who could come to do the service of ministry and the service of bearing burdens in the tent of meeting, 48 those listed were 8,580. 49 According to the commandment of the Lord through Moses they were listed, each one with his task of serving or carrying. Thus they were listed by him, as the Lord commanded Moses.

Unclean People

5 [1] The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2] "Command the people of Israel that they put out of the camp everyone who is leprous[1] or has a discharge and everyone who is unclean through contact with the dead. [3]You shall put out both male and female, putting them outside the camp, that they may not defile their camp, in the midst of which I dwell." [4]And the people of Israel did so, and put them outside the camp; as the Lord said to Moses, so the people of Israel did.

Confession and Restitution

5 ‡ ‡ And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 6 † “Speak to the people of Israel, When a man or woman commits any of the sins that people commit by breaking faith with the Lord, and that person realizes his guilt, 7 †he shall confess his sin that he has committed.[2] And he shall make full restitution for his wrong, adding a fifth to it and giving it to him to whom he did the wrong. 8 † But if the man has no next of kin to whom restitution may be made for the wrong, the restitution for wrong shall go to the Lord for the priest, in addition to the ram of atonement with which atonement is made for him. 9 ‡ And every contribution, all the holy donations of the people of Israel, which they bring to the priest, shall be his. 10 Each one shall keep his holy donations: whatever anyone gives to the priest shall be his.”

A Test for Adultery

11 ‡ ‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 12 †“Speak to the people of Israel, If any man’s wife goes astray and breaks faith with him, 13 †if a man lies with her sexually, and it is hidden from the eyes of her husband, and she is undetected though she has defiled herself, and there is no witness against her, since she was not taken in the act, 14 †and if the spirit of jealousy comes over him and he is jealous of his wife who has defiled herself, or if the spirit of jealousy comes over him and he is jealous of his wife, though she has not defiled herself, 15 †then the man shall bring his wife to the priest and bring the offering required of her, a tenth of an ephah[1] of barley flour. He shall pour no oil on it and put no frankincense on it, for it is a grain offering of jealousy, a grain offering of remembrance, bringing iniquity to remembrance.

16 ‡ †“And the priest shall bring her near and set her before the Lord.
17 †And the priest shall take holy water in an earthenware vessel and take some of the dust that is on the floor of the tabernacle and put it into the water. 18 †And the priest shall set the woman before the Lord and unbind the hair of the woman’s head and place in her hands the grain offering of remembrance, which is the grain offering of jealousy. And in his hand the priest shall have the water of bitterness that brings the curse. 19 †Then the priest shall make her take an oath, saying, ‘If no man has lain with you, and if you have not turned aside to uncleanness while you were under your husband’s authority, be free from this water of bitterness that brings the curse. 20 But if you have gone astray, though you are under your husband’s authority, and if you have defiled yourself, and some man other than your husband has lain with you, 21 †then’ (let the priest make the woman take the oath of the curse, and say to the woman) ‘the Lord make you a curse and an oath among your people, when the Lord makes your thigh fall away and your body swell. 22 †May this water that brings the curse pass into your bowels and make your womb swell and your thigh fall away.’ And the woman shall say, ‘Amen, Amen.’

23 ‡“Then the priest shall write these curses in a book and wash them off into the water of bitterness. 24 And he shall make the woman drink the water of bitterness that brings the curse, and the water that brings the curse shall enter into her and cause bitter pain. 25 † And the priest shall take the grain offering of jealousy out of the woman's hand and shall wave the grain offering before the LORD and bring it to the altar. 26 † And the priest shall take a handful of the grain offering, as its memorial portion, and burn it on the altar, and afterward shall make the woman drink the water. 27 † And when he has made her drink the water, then, if she has defiled herself and has broken faith with her husband, the water that brings the curse shall enter into her and cause bitter pain, and her womb shall swell, and her thigh shall fall away, and the woman shall become a curse among her people. 28 † But if the woman has not defiled herself and is clean, then she shall be free and shall conceive children.

29 "This is the law in cases of jealousy, when a wife, though under her husband's authority, goes astray and defiles herself, 30 or when the spirit of jealousy comes over a man and he is jealous of his wife. Then he shall set the woman before the LORD, and the priest shall carry out for her all this law. 31 † The man shall be free from iniquity, but the woman shall bear her iniquity."

The Nazirite Vow

6 [1]†And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When either a man or a woman makes a special vow, the vow of a Nazirite,[1] to separate himself to the Lord, [3]†he shall separate himself from wine and strong drink. He shall drink no vinegar made from wine or strong drink and shall not drink any juice of grapes or eat grapes, fresh or dried. [4]†All the days of his separation[2] he shall eat nothing that is produced by the grapevine, not even the seeds or the skins.

[5]† "All the days of his vow of separation, no razor shall touch his head.
Until the time is completed for which he separates himself to the Lord, he shall be holy. He shall let the locks of hair of his head grow long.

[6]† "All the days that he separates himself to the Lord he shall not go near a dead body. [7]Not even for his father or for his mother, for brother or sister, if they die, shall he make himself unclean, because his separation to God is on his head. [8]All the days of his separation he is holy to the Lord.

[9]† "And if any man dies very suddenly beside him and he defiles his consecrated head, then he shall shave his head on the day of his cleansing; on the seventh day he shall shave it. [10]On the eighth day he shall bring two turtledoves or two pigeons to the priest to the entrance of the tent of meeting, [11]†and the priest shall offer one for a sin offering and the other for a burnt offering, and make atonement for him, because he sinned by reason of the dead body. And he shall consecrate his head that same day [12]† and separate himself to the Lord for the days of his separation and bring a male lamb a year old for a guilt offering. But the previous period shall be void, because his separation was defiled.

[13]†† "And this is the law for the Nazirite, when the time of his separation has been completed: he shall be brought to the entrance of the tent of meeting, [14]and he shall bring his gift to the Lord, one male lamb a year old without blemish for a burnt offering, and one ewe lamb a year old without blemish as a sin offering, and one ram without blemish as a peace offering, [15]and a basket of unleavened bread, loaves of fine flour mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers smeared with oil, and their grain offering and their drink offerings. [16]And the priest shall bring them before the Lord and offer his sin offering and his burnt offering, [17]and he shall offer the ram as a sacrifice of peace offering to the Lord, with the basket of unleavened bread. The priest shall offer also its grain offering and its drink offering. [18]And the Nazirite shall shave his consecrated head at the entrance of the tent of meeting and shall take the hair from his consecrated head and put it on the fire that is under the sacrifice of the peace offering. [19]And the priest shall take the shoulder of the ram, when it is boiled, and one unleavened loaf out of the basket and one unleavened wafer, and shall put them on the hands of the Nazirite, after he has shaved the hair of his consecration, [20]† and the priest shall wave them for a wave offering before the Lord. They are a holy portion for the priest, together with the breast that is waved and the thigh that is contributed. And after that the Nazirite may drink wine.

[21]"This is the law of the Nazirite. But if he vows an offering to the Lord above his Nazirite vow, as he can afford, in exact accordance with the vow that he takes, then he shall do in addition to the law of the Nazirite."

Aaron’s Blessing

22 ‡ ‡ The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 23 ‡ “Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying, Thus you shall bless the people of Israel: you shall say to them,

24 ‡ The Lord bless you and keep you;
25 ‡ the Lord make his face to shine upon you and be gracious to you;
26 ‡ the Lord lift up his countenance[1] upon you and give you peace.

27 ‡ “So shall they put my name upon the people of Israel, and I will bless them.”

Offerings at the Tabernacle's Consecration

7 [1]†On the day when Moses had finished setting up the tabernacle and had anointed and consecrated it with all its furnishings and had anointed and consecrated the altar with all its utensils, [2]†the chiefs of Israel, heads of their fathers' houses, who were the chiefs of the tribes, who were over those who were listed, approached [3]†and brought their offerings before the Lord, six wagons and twelve oxen, a wagon for every two of the chiefs, and for each one an ox. They brought them before the tabernacle. [4]Then the Lord said to Moses, [5]† "Accept these from them, that they may be used in the service of the tent of meeting, and give them to the Levites, to each man according to his service." [6]So Moses took the wagons and the oxen and gave them to the Levites. [7]Two wagons and four oxen he gave to the sons of Gershon, according to their service. [8]And four wagons and eight oxen he gave to the sons of Merari, according to their service, under the direction of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest. [9]†But to the sons of Kohath he gave none, because they were charged with the service of the holy things that had to be carried on the shoulder. [10]† And the chiefs offered offerings for the dedication of the altar on the day it was anointed; and the chiefs offered their offering before the altar. [11]†And the Lord said to Moses, "They shall offer their offerings, one chief each day, for the dedication of the altar."

[89]†And when Moses went into the tent of meeting to speak with the LORD, he heard the voice speaking to him from above the mercy seat that was on the ark of the testimony, from between the two cherubim; and it spoke to him.

The Seven Lamps

8 [1]Now the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Speak to Aaron and say to him, When you set up the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light in front of the lampstand." [3]And Aaron did so: he set up its lamps in front of the lampstand, as the Lord commanded Moses. [4]And this was the workmanship of the lampstand, hammered work of gold. From its base to its flowers, it was hammered work; according to the pattern that the Lord had shown Moses, so he made the lampstand.

Cleansing of the Levites

5 ‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 6 †“Take the Levites from among the people of Israel and cleanse them. 7 † Thus you shall do to them to cleanse them: sprinkle the water of purification upon them, and let them go with a razor over all their body, and wash their clothes and cleanse themselves. 8Then let them take a bull from the herd and its grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, and you shall take another bull from the herd for a sin offering. 9And you shall bring the Levites before the tent of meeting and assemble the whole congregation of the people of Israel.
10 †When you bring the Levites before the Lord, the people of Israel shall lay their hands on the Levites, 11 †and Aaron shall offer the Levites before the Lord as a wave offering from the people of Israel, that they may do the service of the Lord. 12 †Then the Levites shall lay their hands on the heads of the bulls, and you shall offer the one for a sin offering and the other for a burnt offering to the Lord to make atonement for the Levites. 13And you shall set the Levites before Aaron and his sons, and shall offer them as a wave offering to the Lord.

14 †“Thus you shall separate the Levites from among the people of Israel, and the Levites shall be mine. 15And after that the Levites shall go in to serve at the tent of meeting, when you have cleansed them and offered them as a wave offering. 16 ‡For they are wholly given to me from among the people of Israel. Instead of all who open the womb, the firstborn of all the people of Israel, I have taken them for myself. 17For all the firstborn among the people of Israel are mine, both of man and of beast. On the day that I struck down all the firstborn in the land of Egypt I consecrated them for myself, 18and I have taken the Levites instead of all the firstborn among the people of Israel. 19 †And I have given the Levites as a gift to Aaron and his sons from among the people of Israel, to do the service for the people of Israel at the tent of meeting and to make atonement for the people of Israel, that there may be no plague among the people of Israel when the people of Israel come near the sanctuary.”

20 †Thus did Moses and Aaron and all the congregation of the people of Israel to the Levites. According to all that the Lord commanded Moses concerning the Levites, the people of Israel did to them. [21]And the Levites purified themselves from sin and washed their clothes, and Aaron offered them as a wave offering before the LORD, and Aaron made atonement for them to cleanse them. [22]And after that the Levites went in to do their service in the tent of meeting before Aaron and his sons; as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so they did to them.

Retirement of the Levites

23 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 24 “This applies to the Levites:
from twenty-five years old and upward they[1] shall come to do duty in the service of the tent of meeting. 25 And from the age of fifty years they shall withdraw from the duty of the service and serve no more. 26 They minister[2] to their brothers in the tent of meeting by keeping guard, but they shall do no service. Thus shall you do to the Levites in assigning their duties.”

The Passover Celebrated

9 [1]‡†And the Lord spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt, saying, [2]†"Let the people of Israel keep the Passover at its appointed time.
[3]†On the fourteenth day of this month, at twilight, you shall keep it at its appointed time; according to all its statutes and all its rules you shall keep it." [4]So Moses told the people of Israel that they should keep the Passover.
[5]And they kept the Passover in the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, at twilight, in the wilderness of Sinai; according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so the people of Israel did. [6]†And there were certain men who were unclean through touching a dead body, so that they could not keep the Passover on that day, and they came before Moses and Aaron on that day. [7]And those men said to him, "We are unclean through touching a dead body. Why are we kept from bringing the Lord's offering at its appointed time among the people of Israel?" [8]And Moses said to them,
"Wait, that I may hear what the Lord will command concerning you."

[9]‡The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [10]†"Speak to the people of Israel, saying, If any one of you or of your descendants is unclean through touching a dead body, or is on a long journey, he shall still keep the Passover to the Lord. [11]In the second month on the fourteenth day at twilight they shall keep it. They shall eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.
[12]They shall leave none of it until the morning, nor break any of its bones;
according to all the statute for the Passover they shall keep it. [13]†But if anyone who is clean and is not on a journey fails to keep the Passover, that person shall be cut off from his people because he did not bring the Lord's offering at its appointed time; that man shall bear his sin. [14]† And if a stranger sojourns among you and would keep the Passover to the Lord, according to the statute of the Passover and according to its rule, so shall he do. You shall have one statute, both for the sojourner and for the native."

The Cloud Covering the Tabernacle

15 ‡ † On the day that the tabernacle was set up, the cloud covered the tabernacle, the tent of the testimony. And at evening it was over the tabernacle like the appearance of fire until morning. 16 So it was always: the cloud covered it by day[1] and the appearance of fire by night. 17 † And whenever the cloud lifted from over the tent, after that the people of Israel set out, and in the place where the cloud settled down, there the people of Israel camped. 18 At the command of the Lord the people of Israel set out, and at the command of the Lord they camped. As long as the cloud rested over the tabernacle, they remained in camp. 19 Even when the cloud continued over the tabernacle many days, the people of Israel kept the charge of the Lord and did not set out. 20 Sometimes the cloud was a few days over the tabernacle, and according to the command of the Lord they remained in camp; then according to the command of the Lord they set out.
21 And sometimes the cloud remained from evening until morning. And when the cloud lifted in the morning, they set out, or if it continued for a day and a night, when the cloud lifted they set out. 22 Whether it was two days, or a month, or a longer time, that the cloud continued over the tabernacle, abiding there, the people of Israel remained in camp and did not set out, but when it lifted they set out. 23 † At the command of the Lord they camped, and at the command of the Lord they set out. They kept the charge of the Lord, at the command of the Lord by Moses.

The Silver Trumpets

10 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Make two silver trumpets.
Of hammered work you shall make them, and you shall use them for summoning the congregation and for breaking camp. [3]And when both are blown, all the congregation shall gather themselves to you at the entrance of the tent of meeting. [4]But if they blow only one, then the chiefs, the heads of the tribes of Israel, shall gather themselves to you. [5]When you blow an alarm, the camps that are on the east side shall set out. [6]And when you blow an alarm the second time, the camps that are on the south side shall set out.
An alarm is to be blown whenever they are to set out. [7]But when the assembly is to be gathered together, you shall blow a long blast, but you shall not sound an alarm. [8]And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow the trumpets. The trumpets shall be to you for a perpetual statute throughout your generations. [9]And when you go to war in your land against the adversary who oppresses you, then you shall sound an alarm with the trumpets, that you may be remembered before the Lord your God, and you shall be saved from your enemies. [10]On the day of your gladness also, and at your appointed feasts and at the beginnings of your months, you shall blow the trumpets over your burnt offerings and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings. They shall be a reminder of you before your God: I am the Lord your God."

Israel Leaves Sinai

11 ‡ † In the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth day of the month, the cloud lifted from over the tabernacle of the testimony, 12 † and the people of Israel set out by stages from the wilderness of Sinai. And the cloud settled down in the wilderness of Paran. 13 † They set out for the first time at the command of the Lord by Moses. 14 ‡ † The standard of the camp of the people of Judah set out first by their companies, and over their company was Nahshon the son of Amminadab. 15 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Issachar was Nethanel the son of Zuar. 16 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Zebulun was Eliab the son of Helon.

17 ‡ And when the tabernacle was taken down, the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari, who carried the tabernacle, set out. 18 And the standard of the camp of Reuben set out by their companies, and over their company was Elizur the son of Shedeur. 19 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai. 20 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

21 Then the Kohathites set out, carrying the holy things, and the tabernacle was set up before their arrival. 22 And the standard of the camp of the people of Ephraim set out by their companies, and over their company was Elishama the son of Ammihud. 23 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Manasseh was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur. 24 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Benjamin was Abidan the son of Gideoni.

25 Then the standard of the camp of the people of Dan, acting as the rear guard of all the camps, set out by their companies, and over their company was Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai. 26 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Asher was Pagiel the son of Ochran. 27 And over the company of the tribe of the people of Naphtali was Ahira the son of Enan.
28 This was the order of march of the people of Israel by their companies, when they set out.

29 ‡ And Moses said to Hobab the son of Reuel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, "We are setting out for the place of which the Lord said, 'I will give it to you.' Come with us, and we will do good to you, for the Lord has promised good to Israel.” 30But he said to him, “I will not go. I will depart to my own land and to my kindred.” 31And he said, “Please do not leave us, for you know where we should camp in the wilderness, and you will serve as eyes for us. 32And if you do go with us, whatever good the Lord will do to us, the same will we do to you.”

33† So they set out from the mount of the Lord three days’ journey. And the ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them three days’ journey, to seek out a resting place for them. 34† And the cloud of the Lord was over them by day, whenever they set out from the camp.

35† And whenever the ark set out, Moses said, “Arise, O Lord, and let your enemies be scattered, and let those who hate you flee before you.” 36And when it rested, he said, “Return, O Lord, to the ten thousand thousands of Israel.”

The People Complain

11 [1]‡†And the people complained in the hearing of the Lord about their misfortunes, and when the Lord heard it, his anger was kindled, and the fire of the Lord burned among them and consumed some outlying parts of the camp. [2]Then the people cried out to Moses, and Moses prayed to the Lord, and the fire died down. [3]So the name of that place was called Taberah, [1] because the fire of the Lord burned among them.

[4]‡†Now the rabble that was among them had a strong craving. And the people of Israel also wept again and said, “Oh that we had meat to eat!
[5]†We remember the fish we ate in Egypt that cost nothing, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic. [6]But now our strength is dried up, and there is nothing at all but this manna to look at.”

[7]‡Now the manna was like coriander seed, and its appearance like that of bdellium. [8]The people went about and gathered it and ground it in handmills or beat it in mortars and boiled it in pots and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was like the taste of cakes baked with oil. [9]When the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell with it.

[10]†Moses heard the people weeping throughout their clans, everyone at the door of his tent. And the anger of the Lord blazed hotly, and Moses was displeased. [11]†Moses said to the Lord, “Why have you dealt ill with your servant? And why have I not found favor in your sight, that you lay the burden of all this people on me? [12]†Did I conceive all this people? Did I give them birth, that you should say to me, ‘Carry them in your bosom, as a nurse carries a nursing child,’ to the land that you swore to give their fathers? [13]Where am I to get meat to give to all this people? For they weep before me and say, ‘Give us meat, that we may eat.’ [14]†I am not able to carry all this people alone; the burden is too heavy for me. [15]†If you will treat me like this, kill me at once, if I find favor in your sight, that I may not see my wretchedness.”

Elders Appointed to Aid Moses

16 ‡ † Then the Lord said to Moses, “Gather for me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom you know to be the elders of the people and officers over them, and bring them to the tent of meeting, and let them take their stand there with you. 17 † And I will come down and talk with you there. And I will take some of the Spirit that is on you and put it on them, and they shall bear the burden of the people with you, so that you may not bear it yourself alone. 18 † And say to the people, ‘Consecrate yourselves for tomorrow, and you shall eat meat, for you have wept in the hearing of the Lord, saying, “Who will give us meat to eat? For it was better for us in Egypt.” Therefore the Lord will give you meat, and you shall eat. 19 You shall not eat just one day, or two days, or five days, or ten days, or twenty days, 20 † but a whole month, until it comes out at your nostrils and becomes loathsome to you, because you have rejected the Lord who is among you and have wept before him, saying, “Why did we come out of Egypt?”’” 21 But Moses said, “The people among whom I am number six hundred thousand on foot, and you have said, ‘I will give them meat, that they may eat a whole month!’ 22 Shall flocks and herds be slaughtered for them, and be enough for them? Or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, and be enough for them?” 23 † And the Lord said to Moses, “Is the Lord’s hand shortened? Now you shall see whether my word will come true for you or not.”

24 † So Moses went out and told the people the words of the Lord. And he gathered seventy men of the elders of the people and placed them around the tent. 25 † Then the Lord came down in the cloud and spoke to him, and took some of the Spirit that was on him and put it on the seventy elders.
And as soon as the Spirit rested on them, they prophesied. But they did not continue doing it.

26 † Now two men remained in the camp, one named Eldad, and the other named Medad, and the Spirit rested on them. They were among those registered, but they had not gone out to the tent, and so they prophesied in the camp. 27 And a young man ran and told Moses, “Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp.” 28 † And Joshua the son of Nun, the assistant of Moses from his youth, said, “My lord Moses, stop them.” [29]†But Moses said to him, “Are you jealous for my sake? Would that all the Lord’s people were prophets, that the Lord would put his Spirit on them!” [30]And Moses and the elders of Israel returned to the camp.

Quail and a Plague

31 ‡ † Then a wind from the Lord sprang up, and it brought quail from the sea and let them fall beside the camp, about a day's journey on this side and a day's journey on the other side, around the camp, and about two cubits[1] above the ground. 32 † And the people rose all that day and all night and all the next day, and gathered the quail. Those who gathered least gathered ten homers.[2] And they spread them out for themselves all around the camp.
33 † While the meat was yet between their teeth, before it was consumed, the anger of the Lord was kindled against the people, and the Lord struck down the people with a very great plague. 34 Therefore the name of that place was called Kibroth-hattaavah,[3] because there they buried the people who had the craving. 35 From Kibroth-hattaavah the people journeyed to Hazeroth, and they remained at Hazeroth.

Miriam and Aaron Oppose Moses

12 [1]†Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses because of the Cushite woman whom he had married, for he had married a Cushite woman. [2]†And they said, “Has the Lord indeed spoken only through Moses? Has he not spoken through us also?” And the Lord heard it. [3]†Now the man Moses was very meek, more than all people who were on the face of the earth. [4]†And suddenly the Lord said to Moses and to Aaron and Miriam, “Come out, you three, to the tent of meeting.” And the three of them came out. [5]†And the Lord came down in a pillar of cloud and stood at the entrance of the tent and called Aaron and Miriam, and they both came forward. [6]†And he said, “Hear my words: If there is a prophet among you, I the Lord make myself known to him in a vision; I speak with him in a dream. [7]†Not so with my servant Moses. He is faithful in all my house. [8]†With him I speak mouth to mouth, clearly, and not in riddles, and he beholds the form of the Lord. Why then were you not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?” [9]And the anger of the Lord was kindled against them, and he departed.

[10]†When the cloud removed from over the tent, behold, Miriam was leprous,[1] like snow. And Aaron turned toward Miriam, and behold, she was leprous. [11]And Aaron said to Moses, “Oh, my lord, do not punish us[2] because we have done foolishly and have sinned. [12]†Let her not be as one dead, whose flesh is half eaten away when he comes out of his mother’s womb.” [13]†And Moses cried to the Lord, “O God, please heal her—please.” [14]†But the Lord said to Moses, “If her father had but spit in her face, should she not be shamed seven days? Let her be shut outside the camp seven days, and after that she may be brought in again.” [15]So Miriam was shut outside the camp seven days, and the people did not set out on the march till Miriam was brought in again. [16]After that the people set out from Hazeroth, and camped in the wilderness of Paran.

Spies Sent into Canaan

13 [1]The LORD spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Send men to spy out the land of Canaan, which I am giving to the people of Israel. From each tribe of their fathers you shall send a man, every one a chief among them." [3]So Moses sent them from the wilderness of Paran, according to the command of the LORD, all of them men who were heads of the people of Israel. [4]And these were their names: From the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur; [5]from the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of Hori; [6]from the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh; [7]from the tribe of Issachar, Igal the son of Joseph; [8]from the tribe of Ephraim, Hoshea the son of Nun; [9]from the tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu; [10]from the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son of Sodi; [11]from the tribe of Joseph (that is, from the tribe of Manasseh), Gaddi the son of Susi; [12]from the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son of Gemalli; [13]from the tribe of Asher, Sethur the son of Michael; [14]from the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi; [15]from the tribe of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi. [16]These were the names of the men whom Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called Hoshea the son of Nun Joshua.

[17]Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan and said to them, "Go up into the Negeb and go up into the hill country, [18]and see what the land is, and whether the people who dwell in it are strong or weak, whether they are few or many, [19]and whether the land that they dwell in is good or bad, and whether the cities that they dwell in are camps or strongholds, [20]and whether the land is rich or poor, and whether there are trees in it or not. Be of good courage and bring some of the fruit of the land." Now the time was the season of the first ripe grapes.

[21]So they went up and spied out the land from the wilderness of Zin to Rehob, near Lebo-hamath. [22]They went up into the Negeb and came to Hebron. Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the descendants of Anak, were there. (Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.) [23]And they came to the Valley of Eshcol and cut down from there a branch with a single cluster of grapes, and they carried it on a pole between two of them; they also brought some pomegranates and figs. 24That place was called the Valley of Eshcol,[1] because of the cluster that the people of Israel cut down from there.

Report of the Spies

25 ‡ † At the end of forty days they returned from spying out the land.
26 And they came to Moses and Aaron and to all the congregation of the people of Israel in the wilderness of Paran, at Kadesh. They brought back word to them and to all the congregation, and showed them the fruit of the land. 27 † And they told him, “We came to the land to which you sent us. It flows with milk and honey, and this is its fruit. 28 ‡ However, the people who dwell in the land are strong, and the cities are fortified and very large. And besides, we saw the descendants of Anak there. 29 The Amalekites dwell in the land of the Negeb. The Hittites, the Jebusites, and the Amorites dwell in the hill country. And the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and along the Jordan.” 30 † But Caleb quieted the people before Moses and said, “Let us go up at once and occupy it, for we are well able to overcome it.” 31 † Then the men who had gone up with him said, “We are not able to go up against the people, for they are stronger than we are.” 32 † So they brought to the people of Israel a bad report of the land that they had spied out, saying, “The land, through which we have gone to spy it out, is a land that devours its inhabitants, and all the people that we saw in it are of great height. 33 † And there we saw the Nephilim (the sons of Anak, who come from the Nephilim), and we seemed to ourselves like grasshoppers, and so we seemed to them.”

The People Rebel

14 [1]‡‡‡Then all the congregation raised a loud cry, and the people wept that night. [2]And all the people of Israel grumbled against Moses and Aaron. The whole congregation said to them, “Would that we had died in the land of Egypt! Or would that we had died in this wilderness! [3]†Why is the Lord bringing us into this land, to fall by the sword? Our wives and our little ones will become a prey. Would it not be better for us to go back to Egypt?” [4]† And they said to one another, “Let us choose a leader and go back to Egypt.”

[5]†Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the people of Israel. [6]† And Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, who were among those who had spied out the land, tore their clothes [7]and said to all the congregation of the people of Israel, “The land, which we passed through to spy it out, is an exceedingly good land. [8]†If the Lord delights in us, he will bring us into this land and give it to us, a land that flows with milk and honey. [9]†Only do not rebel against the Lord. And do not fear the people of the land, for they are bread for us. Their protection is removed from them, and the Lord is with us; do not fear them.” [10]†Then all the congregation said to stone them with stones.
But the glory of the Lord appeared at the tent of meeting to all the people of Israel.

[11]‡And the Lord said to Moses, “How long will this people despise me?
And how long will they not believe in me, in spite of all the signs that I have done among them? [12]I will strike them with the pestilence and disinherit them, and I will make of you a nation greater and mightier than they.”

Moses Intercedes for the People

13 ‡‡But Moses said to the Lord, “Then the Egyptians will hear of it, for you brought up this people in your might from among them, 14 ‡†and they will tell the inhabitants of this land. They have heard that you, O Lord, are in the midst of this people. For you, O Lord, are seen face to face, and your cloud stands over them and you go before them, in a pillar of cloud by day and in a pillar of fire by night. 15 Now if you kill this people as one man, then the nations who have heard your fame will say, 16 ‘It is because the Lord was not able to bring this people into the land that he swore to give to them that he has killed them in the wilderness.’ 17 And now, please let the power of the Lord be great as you have promised, saying, 18 †‘The Lord is slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love, forgiving iniquity and transgression, but he will by no means clear the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children, to the third and the fourth generation.’ 19 †Please pardon the iniquity of this people, according to the greatness of your steadfast love, just as you have forgiven this people, from Egypt until now.”

God Promises Judgment

20 ‡ ‡ † Then the Lord said, “I have pardoned, according to your word.
21 † But truly, as I live, and as all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, 22 † none of the men who have seen my glory and my signs that I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, and yet have put me to the test these ten times and have not obeyed my voice, 23 shall see the land that I swore to give to their fathers. And none of those who despised me shall see it. 24 † But my servant Caleb, because he has a different spirit and has followed me fully, I will bring into the land into which he went, and his descendants shall possess it. 25 † Now, since the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwell in the valleys, turn tomorrow and set out for the wilderness by the way to the Red Sea.”

26 And the Lord spoke to Moses and to Aaron, saying, 27 “How long shall this wicked congregation grumble against me? I have heard the grumblings of the people of Israel, which they grumble against me. 28 Say to them, ‘As I live, declares the Lord, what you have said in my hearing I will do to you:
29 † your dead bodies shall fall in this wilderness, and of all your number, listed in the census from twenty years old and upward, who have grumbled against me, 30 ‡ not one shall come into the land where I swore that I would make you dwell, except Caleb the son of Jephunneh and Joshua the son of Nun. 31 But your little ones, who you said would become a prey, I will bring in, and they shall know the land that you have rejected. 32 But as for you, your dead bodies shall fall in this wilderness. 33 † And your children shall be shepherds in the wilderness forty years and shall suffer for your faithlessness, until the last of your dead bodies lies in the wilderness.
34 ‡ According to the number of the days in which you spied out the land, forty days, a year for each day, you shall bear your iniquity forty years, and you shall know my displeasure.’ 35 † I, the Lord, have spoken. Surely this will I do to all this wicked congregation who are gathered together against me:
in this wilderness they shall come to a full end, and there they shall die.”

36 And the men whom Moses sent to spy out the land, who returned and made all the congregation grumble against him by bringing up a bad report about the land— 37 † the men who brought up a bad report of the land—died by plague before the LORD. [38]Of those men who went to spy out the land, only Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephunneh remained alive.

Israel Defeated in Battle

39 † When Moses told these words to all the people of Israel, the people mourned greatly. 40 † And they rose early in the morning and went up to the heights of the hill country, saying, “Here we are. We will go up to the place that the Lord has promised, for we have sinned.” 41 But Moses said, “Why now are you transgressing the command of the Lord, when that will not succeed? 42 † Do not go up, for the Lord is not among you, lest you be struck down before your enemies. 43 For there the Amalekites and the Canaanites are facing you, and you shall fall by the sword. Because you have turned back from following the Lord, the Lord will not be with you.” 44 † But they presumed to go up to the heights of the hill country, although neither the ark of the covenant of the Lord nor Moses departed out of the camp. 45 † Then the Amalekites and the Canaanites who lived in that hill country came down and defeated them and pursued them, even to Hormah.

Laws About Sacrifices

15 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you come into the land you are to inhabit, which I am giving you, [3]and you offer to the Lord from the herd or from the flock a food offering[1] or a burnt offering or a sacrifice, to fulfill a vow or as a freewill offering or at your appointed feasts, to make a pleasing aroma to the Lord, [4]then he who brings his offering shall offer to the Lord a grain offering of a tenth of an ephah[2] of fine flour, mixed with a quarter of a hin[3] of oil; [5]and you shall offer with the burnt offering, or for the sacrifice, a quarter of a hin of wine for the drink offering for each lamb. [6]Or for a ram, you shall offer for a grain offering two tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with a third of a hin of oil. [7]And for the drink offering you shall offer a third of a hin of wine, a pleasing aroma to the Lord. [8]And when you offer a bull as a burnt offering or sacrifice, to fulfill a vow or for peace offerings to the Lord, [9]then one shall offer with the bull a grain offering of three tenths of an ephah of fine flour, mixed with half a hin of oil. [10]And you shall offer for the drink offering half a hin of wine, as a food offering, a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

[11]"Thus it shall be done for each bull or ram, or for each lamb or young goat. [12]As many as you offer, so shall you do with each one, as many as there are. [13]Every native Israelite shall do these things in this way, in offering a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord. [14]And if a stranger is sojourning with you, or anyone is living permanently among you, and he wishes to offer a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord, he shall do as you do. [15]For the assembly, there shall be one statute for you and for the stranger who sojourns with you, a statute forever throughout your generations. You and the sojourner shall be alike before the Lord.
[16]One law and one rule shall be for you and for the stranger who sojourns with you."

[17]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [18]"Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you come into the land to which I bring you [19]and when you eat of the bread of the land, you shall present a contribution to the Lord.

[20]† Of the first of your dough you shall present a loaf as a contribution; like a contribution from the threshing floor, so shall you present it. [21]Some of the first of your dough you shall give to the Lord as a contribution throughout your generations.

Laws About Unintentional Sins

22 ‡ † “But if you sin unintentionally,[4] and do not observe all these commandments that the Lord has spoken to Moses, 23all that the Lord has commanded you by Moses, from the day that the Lord gave commandment, and onward throughout your generations, 24then if it was done unintentionally without the knowledge of the congregation, all the congregation shall offer one bull from the herd for a burnt offering, a pleasing aroma to the Lord, with its grain offering and its drink offering, according to the rule, and one male goat for a sin offering. 25†And the priest shall make atonement for all the congregation of the people of Israel, and they shall be forgiven, because it was a mistake, and they have brought their offering, a food offering to the Lord, and their sin offering before the Lord for their mistake. 26And all the congregation of the people of Israel shall be forgiven, and the stranger who sojourns among them, because the whole population was involved in the mistake.

27“If one person sins unintentionally, he shall offer a female goat a year old for a sin offering. 28And the priest shall make atonement before the Lord for the person who makes a mistake, when he sins unintentionally, to make atonement for him, and he shall be forgiven. 29You shall have one law for him who does anything unintentionally, for him who is native among the people of Israel and for the stranger who sojourns among them. 30†But the person who does anything with a high hand, whether he is native or a sojourner, reviles the Lord, and that person shall be cut off from among his people. 31Because he has despised the word of the Lord and has broken his commandment, that person shall be utterly cut off; his iniquity shall be on him.”

A Sabbathbreaker Executed

32 ‡‡‡While the people of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath day. 33 And those who found him gathering sticks brought him to Moses and Aaron and to all the congregation. 34 They put him in custody, because it had not been made clear what should be done to him. 35 † And the Lord said to Moses, “The man shall be put to death; all the congregation shall stone him with stones outside the camp.” 36 And all the congregation brought him outside the camp and stoned him to death with stones, as the Lord commanded Moses.

Tassels on Garments

37 The Lord said to Moses, 38 “Speak to the people of Israel, and tell them to make tassels on the corners of their garments throughout their generations, and to put a cord of blue on the tassel of each corner. 39 And it shall be a tassel for you to look at and remember all the commandments of the Lord, to do them, not to follow[1] after your own heart and your own eyes, which you are inclined to whore after. 40 So you shall remember and do all my commandments, and be holy to your God. 41 I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God: I am the Lord your God.”

Korah's Rebellion

16 [1]Now Korah the son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, and Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and On the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men. [2]†And they rose up before Moses, with a number of the people of Israel, 250 chiefs of the congregation, chosen from the assembly, well-known men. [3]†They assembled themselves together against Moses and against Aaron and said to them, "You have gone too far! For all in the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the LORD is among them. Why then do you exalt yourselves above the assembly of the LORD?" [4]† When Moses heard it, he fell on his face, [5]and he said to Korah and all his company, "In the morning the LORD will show who is his,[1] and who is holy, and will bring him near to him. The one whom he chooses he will bring near to him. [6]†Do this: take censers, Korah and all his company; [7]†put fire in them and put incense on them before the LORD tomorrow, and the man whom the LORD chooses shall be the holy one. You have gone too far, sons of Levi!" [8]And Moses said to Korah, "Hear now, you sons of Levi: [9]is it too small a thing for you that the God of Israel has separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself, to do service in the tabernacle of the LORD and to stand before the congregation to minister to them, [10]†and that he has brought you near him, and all your brothers the sons of Levi with you? And would you seek the priesthood also?
[11]† Therefore it is against the LORD that you and all your company have gathered together. What is Aaron that you grumble against him?"

[12]†And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and they said, "We will not come up. [13]†Is it a small thing that you have brought us up out of a land flowing with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, that you must also make yourself a prince over us? [14]†Moreover, you have not brought us into a land flowing with milk and honey, nor given us inheritance of fields and vineyards. Will you put out the eyes of these men?
We will not come up." [15]†And Moses was very angry and said to the LORD,
"Do not respect their offering. I have not taken one donkey from them, and I have not harmed one of them."

16 And Moses said to Korah, “Be present, you and all your company, before the Lord, you and they, and Aaron, tomorrow. 17 And let every one of you take his censer and put incense on it, and every one of you bring before the Lord his censer, 250 censers; you also, and Aaron, each his censer.” 18 † So every man took his censer and put fire in them and laid incense on them and stood at the entrance of the tent of meeting with Moses and Aaron. 19 † Then Korah assembled all the congregation against them at the entrance of the tent of meeting. And the glory of the Lord appeared to all the congregation.
20 And the Lord spoke to Moses and to Aaron, saying, 21 “Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.” 22 † And they fell on their faces and said, “O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and will you be angry with all the congregation?” 23 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 24 “Say to the congregation, Get away from the dwelling of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.” 25 † Then Moses rose and went to Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel followed him. 26 †† And he spoke to the congregation, saying, “Depart, please, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest you be swept away with all their sins.” 27 † So they got away from the dwelling of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stood at the door of their tents, together with their wives, their sons, and their little ones. 28 ‡ And Moses said, “Hereby you shall know that the Lord has sent me to do all these works, and that it has not been of my own accord. 29 If these men die as all men die, or if they are visited by the fate of all mankind, then the Lord has not sent me. 30 † But if the Lord creates something new, and the ground opens its mouth and swallows them up with all that belongs to them, and they go down alive into Sheol, then you shall know that these men have despised the Lord.” 31 And as soon as he had finished speaking all these words, the ground under them split apart. 32 And the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up, with their households and all the people who belonged to Korah and all their goods. 33 So they and all that belonged to them went down alive into Sheol, and the earth closed over them, and they perished from the midst of the assembly. 34 And all Israel who were around them fled at their cry, for they said, “Lest the earth swallow us up!” 35 †And fire came out from the Lord and consumed the 250 men offering the incense.

36[1] Then the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 37 †“Tell Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest to take up the censers out of the blaze. Then scatter the fire far and wide, for they have become holy. 38As for the censers of these men who have sinned at the cost of their lives, let them be made into hammered plates as a covering for the altar, for they offered them before the Lord, and they became holy. Thus they shall be a sign to the people of Israel.” 39So Eleazar the priest took the bronze censers, which those who were burned had offered, and they were hammered out as a covering for the altar, 40to be a reminder to the people of Israel, so that no outsider, who is not of the descendants of Aaron, should draw near to burn incense before the Lord, lest he become like Korah and his company—as the Lord said to him through Moses.

41 †But on the next day all the congregation of the people of Israel grumbled against Moses and against Aaron, saying, “You have killed the people of the Lord.” 42†And when the congregation had assembled against Moses and against Aaron, they turned toward the tent of meeting. And behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the Lord appeared. 43And Moses and Aaron came to the front of the tent of meeting, 44and the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 45†“Get away from the midst of this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.” And they fell on their faces. 46†And Moses said to Aaron, “Take your censer, and put fire on it from off the altar and lay incense on it and carry it quickly to the congregation and make atonement for them, for wrath has gone out from the Lord; the plague has begun.” 47So Aaron took it as Moses said and ran into the midst of the assembly. And behold, the plague had already begun among the people. And he put on the incense and made atonement for the people. 48And he stood between the dead and the living, and the plague was stopped. 49Now those who died in the plague were 14,700, besides those who died in the affair of Korah. 50And Aaron returned to Moses at the entrance of the tent of meeting, when the plague was stopped.

Aaron's Staff Buds

17 1 [1] The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 2 "Speak to the people of Israel, and get from them staffs, one for each fathers' house, from all their chiefs according to their fathers' houses, twelve staffs. Write each man's name on his staff, 3 and write Aaron's name on the staff of Levi.
For there shall be one staff for the head of each fathers' house. 4 Then you shall deposit them in the tent of meeting before the testimony, where I meet with you. 5 And the staff of the man whom I choose shall sprout. Thus I will make to cease from me the grumblings of the people of Israel, which they grumble against you." 6 Moses spoke to the people of Israel. And all their chiefs gave him staffs, one for each chief, according to their fathers' houses, twelve staffs. And the staff of Aaron was among their staffs. 7 And Moses deposited the staffs before the Lord in the tent of the testimony.

8 On the next day Moses went into the tent of the testimony, and behold, the staff of Aaron for the house of Levi had sprouted and put forth buds and produced blossoms, and it bore ripe almonds. 9 Then Moses brought out all the staffs from before the Lord to all the people of Israel. And they looked, and each man took his staff. 10 And the Lord said to Moses, "Put back the staff of Aaron before the testimony, to be kept as a sign for the rebels, that you may make an end of their grumblings against me, lest they die." 11 Thus did Moses; as the Lord commanded him, so he did.

12 And the people of Israel said to Moses, "Behold, we perish, we are undone, we are all undone. 13 Everyone who comes near, who comes near to the tabernacle of the Lord, shall die. Are we all to perish?"

Duties of Priests and Levites

18 [1]†So the Lord said to Aaron, “You and your sons and your father’s house with you shall bear iniquity connected with the sanctuary, and you and your sons with you shall bear iniquity connected with your priesthood.
[2]†And with you bring your brothers also, the tribe of Levi, the tribe of your father, that they may join you and minister to you while you and your sons with you are before the tent of the testimony. [3]†They shall keep guard over you and over the whole tent, but shall not come near to the vessels of the sanctuary or to the altar lest they, and you, die. [4]They shall join you and keep guard over the tent of meeting for all the service of the tent, and no outsider shall come near you. [5]And you shall keep guard over the sanctuary and over the altar, that there may never again be wrath on the people of Israel. [6]†And behold, I have taken your brothers the Levites from among the people of Israel. They are a gift to you, given to the Lord, to do the service of the tent of meeting. [7]†And you and your sons with you shall guard your priesthood for all that concerns the altar and that is within the veil; and you shall serve. I give your priesthood as a gift,[1] and any outsider who comes near shall be put to death.”

[8]†† Then the Lord spoke to Aaron, “Behold, I have given you charge of the contributions made to me, all the consecrated things of the people of Israel. I have given them to you as a portion and to your sons as a perpetual due. [9]This shall be yours of the most holy things, reserved from the fire:
every offering of theirs, every grain offering of theirs and every sin offering of theirs and every guilt offering of theirs, which they render to me, shall be most holy to you and to your sons. [10]†In a most holy place shall you eat it.
Every male may eat it; it is holy to you. [11]† This also is yours: the contribution of their gift, all the wave offerings of the people of Israel. I have given them to you, and to your sons and daughters with you, as a perpetual due. Everyone who is clean in your house may eat it. [12]†All the best of the oil and all the best of the wine and of the grain, the firstfruits of what they give to the Lord, I give to you. [13]The first ripe fruits of all that is in their land, which they bring to the Lord, shall be yours. Everyone who is clean in your house may eat it. [14]Every devoted thing in Israel shall be yours. [15] † Everything that opens the womb of all flesh, whether man or beast, which they offer to the Lord, shall be yours. Nevertheless, the firstborn of man you shall redeem, and the firstborn of unclean animals you shall redeem. [16] † And their redemption price (at a month old you shall redeem them) you shall fix at five shekels[2] in silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, which is twenty gerahs. [17]But the firstborn of a cow, or the firstborn of a sheep, or the firstborn of a goat, you shall not redeem; they are holy. You shall sprinkle their blood on the altar and shall burn their fat as a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord. [18]But their flesh shall be yours, as the breast that is waved and as the right thigh are yours. [19] † All the holy contributions that the people of Israel present to the Lord I give to you, and to your sons and daughters with you, as a perpetual due. It is a covenant of salt forever before the Lord for you and for your offspring with you." [20] † And the Lord said to Aaron, "You shall have no inheritance in their land, neither shall you have any portion among them. I am your portion and your inheritance among the people of Israel.

[21] † "To the Levites I have given every tithe in Israel for an inheritance, in return for their service that they do, their service in the tent of meeting, [22]so that the people of Israel do not come near the tent of meeting, lest they bear sin and die. [23]But the Levites shall do the service of the tent of meeting, and they shall bear their iniquity. It shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations, and among the people of Israel they shall have no inheritance. [24]For the tithe of the people of Israel, which they present as a contribution to the Lord, I have given to the Levites for an inheritance. Therefore I have said of them that they shall have no inheritance among the people of Israel."

[25] † And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [26]"Moreover, you shall speak and say to the Levites, 'When you take from the people of Israel the tithe that I have given you from them for your inheritance, then you shall present a contribution from it to the Lord, a tithe of the tithe. [27]And your contribution shall be counted to you as though it were the grain of the threshing floor, and as the fullness of the winepress. [28] † So you shall also present a contribution to the Lord from all your tithes, which you receive from the people of Israel. And from it you shall give the Lord's contribution to Aaron the priest. [29]Out of all the gifts to you, you shall present every contribution due to the LORD; from each its best part is to be dedicated.’ 30 †Therefore you shall say to them, ‘When you have offered from it the best of it, then the rest shall be counted to the Levites as produce of the threshing floor, and as produce of the winepress. 31 And you may eat it in any place, you and your households, for it is your reward in return for your service in the tent of meeting. 32 †And you shall bear no sin by reason of it, when you have contributed the best of it. But you shall not profane the holy things of the people of Israel, lest you die.’”

Laws for Purification

19 [1]Now the Lord spoke to Moses and to Aaron, saying, [2]†"This is the statute of the law that the Lord has commanded: Tell the people of Israel to bring you a red heifer without defect, in which there is no blemish, and on which a yoke has never come. [3]And you shall give it to Eleazar the priest, and it shall be taken outside the camp and slaughtered before him.
[4]†And Eleazar the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger, and sprinkle some of its blood toward the front of the tent of meeting seven times. [5]†And the heifer shall be burned in his sight. Its skin, its flesh, and its blood, with its dung, shall be burned. [6]†And the priest shall take cedarwood and hyssop and scarlet yarn, and throw them into the fire burning the heifer.
[7]†Then the priest shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and afterward he may come into the camp. But the priest shall be unclean until evening. [8]The one who burns the heifer shall wash his clothes in water and bathe his body in water and shall be unclean until evening. [9]†And a man who is clean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer and deposit them outside the camp in a clean place. And they shall be kept for the water for impurity for the congregation of the people of Israel; it is a sin offering. [10]†And the one who gathers the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes and be unclean until evening. And this shall be a perpetual statute for the people of Israel, and for the stranger who sojourns among them.

[11]†"Whoever touches the dead body of any person shall be unclean seven days. [12]He shall cleanse himself with the water on the third day and on the seventh day, and so be clean. But if he does not cleanse himself on the third day and on the seventh day, he will not become clean. [13]Whoever touches a dead person, the body of anyone who has died, and does not cleanse himself, defiles the tabernacle of the Lord, and that person shall be cut off from Israel; because the water for impurity was not thrown on him, he shall be unclean. His uncleanness is still on him.

[14]†"This is the law when someone dies in a tent: everyone who comes into the tent and everyone who is in the tent shall be unclean seven days.
[15]And every open vessel that has no cover fastened on it is unclean.

16 Whoever in the open field touches someone who was killed with a sword or who died naturally, or touches a human bone or a grave, shall be unclean seven days. 17 For the unclean they shall take some ashes of the burnt sin offering, and fresh[1] water shall be added in a vessel. 18 Then a clean person shall take hyssop and dip it in the water and sprinkle it on the tent and on all the furnishings and on the persons who were there and on whoever touched the bone, or the slain or the dead or the grave. 19 And the clean person shall sprinkle it on the unclean on the third day and on the seventh day. Thus on the seventh day he shall cleanse him, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe himself in water, and at evening he shall be clean.

20 † "If the man who is unclean does not cleanse himself, that person shall be cut off from the midst of the assembly, since he has defiled the sanctuary of the Lord. Because the water for impurity has not been thrown on him, he is unclean. 21 And it shall be a statute forever for them. The one who sprinkles the water for impurity shall wash his clothes, and the one who touches the water for impurity shall be unclean until evening. 22 And whatever the unclean person touches shall be unclean, and anyone who touches it shall be unclean until evening."

The Death of Miriam

20 [1] ††And the people of Israel, the whole congregation, came into the wilderness of Zin in the first month, and the people stayed in Kadesh. And Miriam died there and was buried there.

The Waters of Meribah

2 ‡ ‡ Now there was no water for the congregation. And they assembled themselves together against Moses and against Aaron. 3 † And the people quarreled with Moses and said, “Would that we had perished when our brothers perished before the Lord! 4 Why have you brought the assembly of the Lord into this wilderness, that we should die here, both we and our cattle? 5 † And why have you made us come up out of Egypt to bring us to this evil place? It is no place for grain or figs or vines or pomegranates, and there is no water to drink.” 6 † Then Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the entrance of the tent of meeting and fell on their faces. And the glory of the Lord appeared to them, 7 and the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 8 †“Take the staff, and assemble the congregation, you and Aaron your brother, and tell the rock before their eyes to yield its water. So you shall bring water out of the rock for them and give drink to the congregation and their cattle.” 9 And Moses took the staff from before the Lord, as he commanded him.

Moses Strikes the Rock

10 ‡ † Then Moses and Aaron gathered the assembly together before the rock, and he said to them, “Hear now, you rebels: shall we bring water for you out of this rock?” 11 ‡ And Moses lifted up his hand and struck the rock with his staff twice, and water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their livestock. 12 And the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, “Because you did not believe in me, to uphold me as holy in the eyes of the people of Israel, therefore you shall not bring this assembly into the land that I have given them.” 13 † These are the waters of Meribah,[1] where the people of Israel quarreled with the Lord, and through them he showed himself holy.

Edom Refuses Passage

14 ‡ † Moses sent messengers from Kadesh to the king of Edom: “Thus says your brother Israel: You know all the hardship that we have met: 15 how our fathers went down to Egypt, and we lived in Egypt a long time. And the Egyptians dealt harshly with us and our fathers. 16 And when we cried to the Lord, he heard our voice and sent an angel and brought us out of Egypt. And here we are in Kadesh, a city on the edge of your territory. 17 † Please let us pass through your land. We will not pass through field or vineyard, or drink water from a well. We will go along the King’s Highway. We will not turn aside to the right hand or to the left until we have passed through your territory.” 18 ‡ But Edom said to him, “You shall not pass through, lest I come out with the sword against you.” 19 † And the people of Israel said to him, “We will go up by the highway, and if we drink of your water, I and my livestock, then I will pay for it. Let me only pass through on foot, nothing more.” 20 But he said, “You shall not pass through.” And Edom came out against them with a large army and with a strong force. 21 † Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his territory, so Israel turned away from him.

The Death of Aaron

22 ††And they journeyed from Kadesh, and the people of Israel, the whole congregation, came to Mount Hor. 23 And the Lord said to Moses and Aaron at Mount Hor, on the border of the land of Edom, 24 †"Let Aaron be gathered to his people, for he shall not enter the land that I have given to the people of Israel, because you rebelled against my command at the waters of Meribah. 25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son and bring them up to Mount Hor. 26 †And strip Aaron of his garments and put them on Eleazar his son.
And Aaron shall be gathered to his people and shall die there." 27 †Moses did as the Lord commanded. And they went up Mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation. 28 †And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments and put them on Eleazar his son. And Aaron died there on the top of the mountain. Then Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. 29 †And when all the congregation saw that Aaron had perished, all the house of Israel wept for Aaron thirty days.

Arad Destroyed

21 [1]†† When the Canaanite, the king of Arad, who lived in the Negeb, heard that Israel was coming by the way of Atharim, he fought against Israel, and took some of them captive. [2]† And Israel vowed a vow to the Lord and said, “If you will indeed give this people into my hand, then I will devote their cities to destruction.”[1] [3]† And the Lord heeded the voice of Israel and gave over the Canaanites, and they devoted them and their cities to destruction. So the name of the place was called Hormah.[2]

The Bronze Serpent

4 ✝✝From Mount Hor they set out by the way to the Red Sea, to go around the land of Edom. And the people became impatient on the way. 5 ✝And the people spoke against God and against Moses, “Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? For there is no food and no water, and we loathe this worthless food.” 6 ✝Then the Lord sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people, so that many people of Israel died.
7 ✝And the people came to Moses and said, “We have sinned, for we have spoken against the Lord and against you. Pray to the Lord, that he take away the serpents from us.” So Moses prayed for the people. 8 ✝And the Lord said to Moses, “Make a fiery serpent and set it on a pole, and everyone who is bitten, when he sees it, shall live.” 9 ✝So Moses made a bronze[3] serpent and set it on a pole. And if a serpent bit anyone, he would look at the bronze serpent and live.

The Song of the Well

10 ‡† And the people of Israel set out and camped in Oboth. 11 † And they set out from Oboth and camped at Iye-abarim, in the wilderness that is opposite Moab, toward the sunrise. 12 From there they set out and camped in the Valley of Zered. 13 From there they set out and camped on the other side of the Arnon, which is in the wilderness that extends from the border of the Amorites, for the Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites. 14 ‡† Therefore it is said in the Book of the Wars of the Lord,

WILDERNESS WANDERINGS. God delayed the conquest of Canaan for 40 years (Nu 13–14; Dt 1:19–46). Israel often stayed near Kadesh-barnea (Nu 33:36). Aaron died on Mount Hor (Nu 20:22–29; 33:37–39). Israel destroyed Arad and surrounding cities (Nu 21:1–3). Edom refused passage to the east (Nu 20:14–21), so the Israelites went perhaps as far south as Ezion-geber to skirt Edom (Nu 21:4; Dt 2:8; see color map 3). They camped in the Valley of Zered and along the Arnon River (Nu 21:12–13). At Jahaz, they defeated the Amorites who had occupied part of Moab (Nu 21:21–30; Dt 2:24–37). They defeated Bashan at Edrei (Nu 21:31–35; Dt 3:1–7). Next they camped east of Jericho at Shittim (Nu 25). After they defeated the Midianites (Nu 31), Israel controlled the Transjordan from the Valley of the Arnon to Mount Hermon (Dt 3:8–10). Moses died on Mount Nebo (Dt 34).

" Waheb in Suphah, and the valleys of the Arnon,
15 and the slope of the valleys that extends to the seat of Ar,
and leans to the border of Moab."

16 And from there they continued to Beer;[1] that is the well of which the Lord said to Moses, "Gather the people together, so that I may give them water." 17 † Then Israel sang this song:

“ Spring up, O well!—Sing to it!— 18 † the well that the princes made, that the nobles of the people dug,
with the scepter and with their staffs.”

And from the wilderness they went on to Mattanah, 19 and from Mattanah to Nahaliel, and from Nahaliel to Bamoth, 20 † and from Bamoth to the valley lying in the region of Moab by the top of Pisgah that looks down on the desert.[2]

King Sihon Defeated

21 ‡ † Then Israel sent messengers to Sihon king of the Amorites, saying, 22 † "Let me pass through your land. We will not turn aside into field or vineyard. We will not drink the water of a well. We will go by the King's Highway until we have passed through your territory." 23 But Sihon would not allow Israel to pass through his territory. He gathered all his people together and went out against Israel to the wilderness and came to Jahaz and fought against Israel. 24 † And Israel defeated him with the edge of the sword and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, as far as to the Ammonites, for the border of the Ammonites was strong. 25 † And Israel took all these cities, and Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all its villages. 26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab and taken all his land out of his hand, as far as the Arnon. 27 † Therefore the ballad singers say,

" Come to Heshbon, let it be built;
let the city of Sihon be established.
28 † For fire came out from Heshbon, flame from the city of Sihon.
It devoured Ar of Moab,
and swallowed[3] the heights of the Arnon.
29 † Woe to you, O Moab!
You are undone, O people of Chemosh!
He has made his sons fugitives,
and his daughters captives,
to an Amorite king, Sihon.
30 † So we overthrew them;
Heshbon, as far as Dibon, perished;
and we laid waste as far as Nophah;
fire spread as far as Medeba."[1]

King Og Defeated

31 †Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 †And Moses sent to spy out Jazer, and they captured its villages and dispossessed the Amorites who were there. 33 †Then they turned and went up by the way to Bashan. And Og the king of Bashan came out against them, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei. 34 †But the Lord said to Moses, “Do not fear him, for I have given him into your hand, and all his people, and his land. And you shall do to him as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon.” 35 †So they defeated him and his sons and all his people, until he had no survivor left. And they possessed his land.

Balak Summons Balaam

22 [1]‡†Then the people of Israel set out and camped in the plains of Moab beyond the Jordan at Jericho. [2]†And Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites. [3]†And Moab was in great dread of the people, because they were many. Moab was overcome with fear of the people of Israel. [4]†And Moab said to the elders of Midian, "This horde will now lick up all that is around us, as the ox licks up the grass of the field." So Balak the son of Zippor, who was king of Moab at that time, [5]† sent messengers to Balaam the son of Beor at Pethor, which is near the River in the land of the people of Amaw,[2] to call him, saying, "Behold, a people has come out of Egypt. They cover the face of the earth, and they are dwelling opposite me. [6]† Come now, curse this people for me, since they are too mighty for me. Perhaps I shall be able to defeat them and drive them from the land, for I know that he whom you bless is blessed, and he whom you curse is cursed."

[7]†So the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the fees for divination in their hand. And they came to Balaam and gave him Balak's message. [8]‡†And he said to them, "Lodge here tonight, and I will bring back word to you, as the Lord speaks to me." So the princes of Moab stayed with Balaam. [9]†And God came to Balaam and said, "Who are these men with you?" [10]And Balaam said to God, "Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, has sent to me, saying, [11]'Behold, a people has come out of Egypt, and it covers the face of the earth. Now come, curse them for me. Perhaps I shall be able to fight against them and drive them out.'" [12]†God said to Balaam, "You shall not go with them. You shall not curse the people, for they are blessed." [13]So Balaam rose in the morning and said to the princes of Balak, "Go to your own land, for the Lord has refused to let me go with you." [14]†So the princes of Moab rose and went to Balak and said, "Balaam refuses to come with us."

[15]Once again Balak sent princes, more in number and more honorable than these. [16]And they came to Balaam and said to him, "Thus says Balak the son of Zippor: 'Let nothing hinder you from coming to me, [17]for I will surely do you great honor, and whatever you say to me I will do. Come, curse this people for me.’” 18†But Balaam answered and said to the servants of Balak, “Though Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go beyond the command of the Lord my God to do less or more. 19†So you, too, please stay here tonight, that I may know what more the Lord will say to me.” 20†And God came to Balaam at night and said to him, “If the men have come to call you, rise, go with them; but only do what I tell you.” 21So Balaam rose in the morning and saddled his donkey and went with the princes of Moab.

Balaam's Donkey and the Angel

22 ‡ † But God's anger was kindled because he went, and the angel of the LORD took his stand in the way as his adversary. Now he was riding on the donkey, and his two servants were with him. 23 † And the donkey saw the angel of the LORD standing in the road, with a drawn sword in his hand. And the donkey turned aside out of the road and went into the field. And Balaam struck the donkey, to turn her into the road. 24 Then the angel of the LORD stood in a narrow path between the vineyards, with a wall on either side.
25 And when the donkey saw the angel of the LORD, she pushed against the wall and pressed Balaam's foot against the wall. So he struck her again.
26 Then the angel of the LORD went ahead and stood in a narrow place, where there was no way to turn either to the right or to the left. 27 When the donkey saw the angel of the LORD, she lay down under Balaam. And Balaam's anger was kindled, and he struck the donkey with his staff. 28 † Then the LORD opened the mouth of the donkey, and she said to Balaam, "What have I done to you, that you have struck me these three times?" 29 † And Balaam said to the donkey, "Because you have made a fool of me. I wish I had a sword in my hand, for then I would kill you." 30 † And the donkey said to Balaam, "Am I not your donkey, on which you have ridden all your life long to this day? Is it my habit to treat you this way?" And he said, "No."

31 † Then the LORD opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, with his drawn sword in his hand. And he bowed down and fell on his face. 32 † And the angel of the LORD said to him, "Why have you struck your donkey these three times? Behold, I have come out to oppose you because your way is perverse[1] before me. 33 The donkey saw me and turned aside before me these three times. If she had not turned aside from me, surely just now I would have killed you and let her live." 34 † Then Balaam said to the angel of the LORD, "I have sinned, for I did not know that you stood in the road against me. Now therefore, if it is evil in your sight, I will turn back." 35 † And the angel of the LORD said to Balaam, "Go with the men, but speak only the word that I tell you." So Balaam went on with the princes of Balak.

[36]When Balak heard that Balaam had come, he went out to meet him at the city of Moab, on the border formed by the Arnon, at the extremity of the border. [37]†And Balak said to Balaam, “Did I not send to you to call you? Why did you not come to me? Am I not able to honor you?” [38]Balaam said to Balak, “Behold, I have come to you! Have I now any power of my own to speak anything? The word that God puts in my mouth, that must I speak.” [39]†Then Balaam went with Balak, and they came to Kiriath-huzoth. [40]†And Balak sacrificed oxen and sheep, and sent for Balaam and for the princes who were with him.

[41]† And in the morning Balak took Balaam and brought him up to Bamoth-baal, and from there he saw a fraction of the people.

Balaam's First Oracle

23 [1]†And Balaam said to Balak, "Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams." [2]Balak did as Balaam had said. And Balak and Balaam offered on each altar a bull and a ram. [3]†And Balaam said to Balak, "Stand beside your burnt offering, and I will go.
Perhaps the LORD will come to meet me, and whatever he shows me I will tell you." And he went to a bare height, [4]† and God met Balaam. And Balaam said to him, "I have arranged the seven altars and I have offered on each altar a bull and a ram." [5]†And the LORD put a word in Balaam's mouth and said, "Return to Balak, and thus you shall speak." [6]And he returned to him, and behold, he and all the princes of Moab were standing beside his burnt offering. [7]†††And Balaam took up his discourse and said,

" From Aram Balak has brought me,
the king of Moab from the eastern mountains:
' Come, curse Jacob for me,
and come, denounce Israel!'
[8] How can I curse whom God has not cursed?
How can I denounce whom the LORD has not denounced?
[9]† For from the top of the crags I see him,
from the hills I behold him;
behold, a people dwelling alone,
and not counting itself among the nations!
[10]† Who can count the dust of Jacob or number the fourth part[1] of Israel?
Let me die the death of the upright, and let my end be like his!"

[11]†And Balak said to Balaam, "What have you done to me? I took you to curse my enemies, and behold, you have done nothing but bless them."

12 † And he answered and said, “Must I not take care to speak what the Lord puts in my mouth?”

Balaam's Second Oracle

13 ‡ † And Balak said to him, "Please come with me to another place, from which you may see them. You shall see only a fraction of them and shall not see them all. Then curse them for me from there." 14 † And he took him to the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah, and built seven altars and offered a bull and a ram on each altar. 15 Balaam said to Balak, "Stand here beside your burnt offering, while I meet the Lord over there." 16 † And the Lord met Balaam and put a word in his mouth and said, "Return to Balak, and thus shall you speak." 17 And he came to him, and behold, he was standing beside his burnt offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said to him, "What has the Lord spoken?" 18 † And Balaam took up his discourse and said,

" Rise, Balak, and hear;
give ear to me, O son of Zippor:
19 † God is not man, that he should lie,
or a son of man, that he should change his mind.
Has he said, and will he not do it?
Or has he spoken, and will he not fulfill it?
20 Behold, I received a command to bless:
he has blessed, and I cannot revoke it.
21 † He has not beheld misfortune in Jacob, nor has he seen trouble in Israel.
The Lord their God is with them, and the shout of a king is among them.
22 † God brings them out of Egypt and is for them like the horns of the wild ox.
23 ‡ For there is no enchantment against Jacob, no divination against Israel;
now it shall be said of Jacob and Israel,
' What has God wrought!'
24 Behold, a people! As a lioness it rises up and as a lion it lifts itself;
it does not lie down until it has devoured the prey

and drunk the blood of the slain.”

25 † And Balak said to Balaam, “Do not curse them at all, and do not bless them at all.” 26 But Balaam answered Balak, “Did I not tell you, ‘All that the Lord says, that I must do’?” 27 † And Balak said to Balaam, “Come now, I will take you to another place. Perhaps it will please God that you may curse them for me from there.” 28 † So Balak took Balaam to the top of Peor, which overlooks the desert.[1] 29 And Balaam said to Balak, “Build for me here seven altars and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams.” 30 And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

Balaam's Third Oracle

24 [1]‡† When Balaam saw that it pleased the Lord to bless Israel, he did not go, as at other times, to look for omens, but set his face toward the wilderness. [2]† And Balaam lifted up his eyes and saw Israel camping tribe by tribe. And the Spirit of God came upon him, [3]† and he took up his discourse and said,

" The oracle of Balaam the son of Beor,
the oracle of the man whose eye is opened,[1]
[4]† the oracle of him who hears the words of God,
who sees the vision of the Almighty,
falling down with his eyes uncovered:
[5]‡ How lovely are your tents, O Jacob,
your encampments, O Israel!
[6] Like palm groves[2] that stretch afar,
like gardens beside a river,
like aloes that the Lord has planted,
like cedar trees beside the waters.
[7]† Water shall flow from his buckets,
and his seed shall be in many waters;
his king shall be higher than Agag,
and his kingdom shall be exalted.
[8]† God brings him out of Egypt and is for him like the horns of the wild ox;
he shall eat up the nations, his adversaries,
and shall break their bones in pieces
and pierce them through with his arrows.
[9]† He crouched, he lay down like a lion and like a lioness; who will rouse him up?
Blessed are those who bless you,
and cursed are those who curse you."

[10] † And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he struck his hands together. And Balak said to Balaam, "I called you to curse my enemies, and behold, you have blessed them these three times. [11] † Therefore now flee to your own place. I said, 'I will certainly honor you,' but the Lord has held you back from honor." [12] And Balaam said to Balak, "Did I not tell your messengers whom you sent to me, [13] 'If Balak should give me his house full of silver and gold, I would not be able to go beyond the word of the Lord, to do either good or bad of my own will. What the Lord speaks, that will I speak'? [14] † And now, behold, I am going to my people. Come, I will let you know what this people will do to your people in the latter days."

Balaam's Final Oracle

15 †††And he took up his discourse and said,

" The oracle of Balaam the son of Beor,
the oracle of the man whose eye is opened,
16 the oracle of him who hears the words of God,
and knows the knowledge of the Most High,
who sees the vision of the Almighty,
falling down with his eyes uncovered:
17 † I see him, but not now;
I behold him, but not near:
a star shall come out of Jacob,
and a scepter shall rise out of Israel;
it shall crush the forehead[3] of Moab
and break down all the sons of Sheth.
18 † Edom shall be dispossessed;
Seir also, his enemies, shall be dispossessed.
Israel is doing valiantly.
19 And one from Jacob shall exercise dominion and destroy the survivors of cities!"

20 †Then he looked on Amalek and took up his discourse and said,

" Amalek was the first among the nations, but its end is utter destruction."

21 †And he looked on the Kenite, and took up his discourse and said,

" Enduring is your dwelling place,
and your nest is set in the rock.
22 † Nevertheless, Kain shall be burned
when Asshur takes you away captive."

23 And he took up his discourse and said,

“ Alas, who shall live when God does this?
24† But ships shall come from Kittim and shall afflict Asshur and Eber;
and he too shall come to utter destruction.”

25†Then Balaam rose and went back to his place. And Balak also went his way.

Baal Worship at Peor

25 [1]‡‡While Israel lived in Shittim, the people began to whore with the daughters of Moab. [2]‡These invited the people to the sacrifices of their gods, and the people ate and bowed down to their gods. [3]‡So Israel yoked himself to Baal of Peor. And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel. [4]‡And the Lord said to Moses, “Take all the chiefs of the people and hang[1] them in the sun before the Lord, that the fierce anger of the Lord may turn away from Israel.” [5]‡And Moses said to the judges of Israel, “Each of you kill those of his men who have yoked themselves to Baal of Peor.”

[6]‡And behold, one of the people of Israel came and brought a Midianite woman to his family, in the sight of Moses and in the sight of the whole congregation of the people of Israel, while they were weeping in the entrance of the tent of meeting. [7]‡When Phinehas the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose and left the congregation and took a spear in his hand [8]‡and went after the man of Israel into the chamber and pierced both of them, the man of Israel and the woman through her belly. Thus the plague on the people of Israel was stopped. [9]Nevertheless, those who died by the plague were twenty-four thousand.

The Zeal of Phinehas

10 And the Lord said to Moses, 11 “Phinehas the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, has turned back my wrath from the people of Israel, in that he was jealous with my jealousy among them, so that I did not consume the people of Israel in my jealousy. 12 Therefore say, ‘Behold, I give to him my covenant of peace, 13 and it shall be to him and to his descendants after him the covenant of a perpetual priesthood, because he was jealous for his God and made atonement for the people of Israel.’”

14 The name of the slain man of Israel, who was killed with the Midianite woman, was Zimri the son of Salu, chief of a father’s house belonging to the Simeonites. 15 And the name of the Midianite woman who was killed was Cozbi the daughter of Zur, who was the tribal head of a father’s house in Midian.

16 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 17 “Harass the Midianites and strike them down, 18 for they have harassed you with their wiles, with which they beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of the chief of Midian, their sister, who was killed on the day of the plague on account of Peor.”

Census of the New Generation

26 [1] After the plague, the Lord said to Moses and to Eleazar the son of Aaron, the priest, [2]†"Take a census of all the congregation of the people of Israel, from twenty years old and upward, by their fathers' houses, all in Israel who are able to go to war." [3]And Moses and Eleazar the priest spoke with them in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho, saying, [4]"Take a census of the people,[1] from twenty years old and upward," as the Lord commanded Moses. The people of Israel who came out of the land of Egypt were:

[5]††Reuben, the firstborn of Israel; the sons of Reuben: of Hanoch, the clan of the Hanochites; of Pallu, the clan of the Palluites; [6]of Hezron, the [34]These are the clans of Manasseh, and those listed were 52,700.

[35]These are the sons of Ephraim according to their clans: of Shuthelah, the clan of the Shuthelahites; of Becher, the clan of the Becherites; of Tahan, the clan of the Tahanites. [36]And these are the sons of Shuthelah: of Eran, the clan of the Eranites. [37]These are the clans of the sons of Ephraim as they were listed, 32,500. These are the sons of Joseph according to their clans.

[38]The sons of Benjamin according to their clans: of Bela, the clan of the Belaites; of Ashbel, the clan of the Ashbelites; of Ahiram, the clan of the Ahiramites; [39]of Shephupham, the clan of the Shuphamites; of Hupham, the clan of the Huphamites. [50]These are the clans of Naphtali according to their clans, and those listed were 45,400.

[51]This was the list of the people of Israel, 601,730.

[52]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [53]"Among these the land shall be divided for inheritance according to the number of names. [54]† To a large tribe you shall give a large inheritance, and to a small tribe you shall give a small inheritance; every tribe shall be given its inheritance in proportion to its list. [55]But the land shall be divided by lot. According to the names of the tribes of their fathers they shall inherit. [56]†Their inheritance shall be divided according to lot between the larger and the smaller."

[57]†This was the list of the Levites according to their clans: of Gershon, the clan of the Gershonites; of Kohath, the clan of the Kohathites; of Merari, the clan of the Merarites. [58]These are the clans of Levi: the clan of the Libnites, the clan of the Hebronites, the clan of

And she bore to Amram Aaron and Moses and Miriam their sister. [60]And to Aaron were born Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. [61]But Nadab and Abihu died when they offered unauthorized fire before the Lord. [62]†And those listed were 23,000, every male from a month old and upward. For they were not listed among the people of Israel, because there was no inheritance given to them among the people of Israel.

[63]†These were those listed by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who listed the people of Israel in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho. [64]But among these there was not one of those listed by Moses and Aaron the priest, who had listed the people of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai. [65]For the LORD had said of them, “They shall die in the wilderness.” Not one of them was left, except Caleb the son of Jephunneh and Joshua the son of Nun.

The Daughters of Zelophehad

27 [1]‡† Then drew near the daughters of Zelophehad the son of Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh, from the clans of Manasseh the son of Joseph. The names of his daughters were: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. [2]‡ And they stood before Moses and before Eleazar the priest and before the chiefs and all the congregation, at the entrance of the tent of meeting, saying, [3]"Our father died in the wilderness. He was not among the company of those who gathered themselves together against the Lord in the company of Korah, but died for his own sin. And he had no sons. [4]† Why should the name of our father be taken away from his clan because he had no son? Give to us a possession among our father's brothers."

[5]‡ Moses brought their case before the Lord. [6]And the Lord said to Moses, [7]"The daughters of Zelophehad are right. You shall give them possession of an inheritance among their father's brothers and transfer the inheritance of their father to them. [8]And you shall speak to the people of Israel, saying, 'If a man dies and has no son, then you shall transfer his inheritance to his daughter. [9]And if he has no daughter, then you shall give his inheritance to his brothers. [10]And if he has no brothers, then you shall give his inheritance to his father's brothers. [11]† And if his father has no brothers, then you shall give his inheritance to the nearest kinsman of his clan, and he shall possess it. And it shall be for the people of Israel a statute and rule, as the Lord commanded Moses.'"

Joshua to Succeed Moses

12 ✝✝✝The Lord said to Moses, “Go up into this mountain of Abarim and see the land that I have given to the people of Israel. 13✝When you have seen it, you also shall be gathered to your people, as your brother Aaron was, 14because you rebelled against my word in the wilderness of Zin when the congregation quarreled, failing to uphold me as holy at the waters before their eyes.” (These are the waters of Meribah of Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin.) 15Moses spoke to the Lord, saying, 16✝“Let the Lord, the God of the spirits of all flesh, appoint a man over the congregation 17✝who shall go out before them and come in before them, who shall lead them out and bring them in, that the congregation of the Lord may not be as sheep that have no shepherd.” 18✝So the Lord said to Moses, “Take Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the Spirit, and lay your hand on him. 19✝Make him stand before Eleazar the priest and all the congregation, and you shall commission him in their sight. 20✝You shall invest him with some of your authority, that all the congregation of the people of Israel may obey. 21✝And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall inquire for him by the judgment of the Urim before the Lord. At his word they shall go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he and all the people of Israel with him, the whole congregation.” 22And Moses did as the Lord commanded him. He took Joshua and made him stand before Eleazar the priest and the whole congregation, 23and he laid his hands on him and commissioned him as the Lord directed through Moses.

Daily Offerings

28 [1] ✝The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]“Command the people of Israel and say to them, ‘My offering, my food for my food offerings, my pleasing aroma, you shall be careful to offer to me at its appointed time.’ [3]And you shall say to them, This is the food offering that you shall offer to the Lord: two male lambs a year old without blemish, day by day, as a regular offering. [4] ✝The one lamb you shall offer in the morning, and the other lamb you shall offer at twilight; [5]also a tenth of an ephah[1] of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with a quarter of a hin[2] of beaten oil. [6]It is a regular burnt offering, which was ordained at Mount Sinai for a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the Lord. [7]✝Its drink offering shall be a quarter of a hin for each lamb. In the Holy Place you shall pour out a drink offering of strong drink to the Lord. [8]The other lamb you shall offer at twilight. Like the grain offering of the morning, and like its drink offering, you shall offer it as a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

Sabbath Offerings

9 † “On the Sabbath day, two male lambs a year old without blemish, and two tenths of an ephah of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with oil, and its drink offering: 10 this is the burnt offering of every Sabbath, besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

Monthly Offerings

[11]“At the beginnings of your months, you shall offer a burnt offering to the Lord: two bulls from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old without blemish; [12]also three tenths of an ephah of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with oil, for each bull, and two tenths of fine flour for a grain offering, mixed with oil, for the one ram; [13]and a tenth of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering for every lamb; for a burnt offering with a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the Lord. [14]Their drink offerings shall be half a hin of wine for a bull, a third of a hin for a ram, and a quarter of a hin for a lamb. This is the burnt offering of each month throughout the months of the year. [15]Also one male goat for a sin offering to the Lord; it shall be offered besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

Passover Offerings

16 ✝“On the fourteenth day of the first month is the Lord’s Passover, 17and on the fifteenth day of this month is a feast. Seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten. 18On the first day there shall be a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work, 19but offer a food offering, a burnt offering to the Lord: two bulls from the herd, one ram, and seven male lambs a year old; see that they are without blemish; 20also their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil; three tenths of an ephah shall you offer for a bull, and two tenths for a ram; 21a tenth shall you offer for each of the seven lambs; 22 ✝also one male goat for a sin offering, to make atonement for you. 23You shall offer these besides the burnt offering of the morning, which is for a regular burnt offering. 24In the same way you shall offer daily, for seven days, the food of a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord. It shall be offered besides the regular burnt offering and its drink offering. 25And on the seventh day you shall have a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work.

Offerings for the Feast of Weeks

[26] † “On the day of the firstfruits, when you offer a grain offering of new grain to the Lord at your Feast of Weeks, you shall have a holy convocation.
You shall not do any ordinary work, [27] but offer a burnt offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord: two bulls from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old; [28] also their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah for each bull, two tenths for one ram, [29] a tenth for each of the seven lambs; [30] with one male goat, to make atonement for you.
[31] Besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, you shall offer them and their drink offering. See that they are without blemish.

Offerings for the Feast of Trumpets

29 [1]"On the first day of the seventh month you shall have a holy the trumpets, [2]and you shall offer a burnt offering, for a pleasing aroma to the LORD: one bull from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old without blemish; [3]also their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah[1] for the bull, two tenths for the ram, [4]and one tenth for each of the seven lambs; [5]with one male goat for a sin offering, to make atonement for you; [6]besides the burnt offering of the new moon, and its grain offering, and the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, and their drink offering, according to the rule for them, for a pleasing aroma, a food offering to the LORD.

Offerings for the Day of Atonement

[7]"On the tenth day of this seventh month you shall have a holy convocation and afflict yourselves. You shall do no work, [8]but you shall offer a burnt offering to the LORD, a pleasing aroma: one bull from the herd, one ram, seven male lambs a year old: see that they are without blemish. [9]And their grain offering shall be of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah for the bull, two tenths for the one ram, [10]a tenth for each of the seven lambs: [11]also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the sin offering of atonement, and the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, and their drink offerings.

Offerings for the Feast of Booths

12 ✝ “On the fifteenth day of the seventh month you shall have a holy convocation. You shall not do any ordinary work, and you shall keep a feast to the Lord seven days. 13And you shall offer a burnt offering, a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord, thirteen bulls from the herd, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old; they shall be without blemish; 14and their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, three tenths of an ephah for each of the thirteen bulls, two tenths for each of the two rams, 15and a tenth for each of the fourteen lambs; 16also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering and its drink offering.

17“On the second day twelve bulls from the herd, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, 18with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; 19also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering, and their drink offerings.

20“On the third day eleven bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, 21with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; 22also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering and its drink offering.

23“On the fourth day ten bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, 24with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; 25also one male goat for a sin offering, besides the regular burnt offering, its grain

26“On the fifth day nine bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, 27with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering and its drink offering.

29“On the sixth day eight bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, 30with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [31]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offerings.

[32]“On the seventh day seven bulls, two rams, fourteen male lambs a year old without blemish, [33]with the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [34]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering, its grain offering, and its drink offering.

[35]† “On the eighth day you shall have a solemn assembly. You shall not do any ordinary work, [36]but you shall offer a burnt offering, a food offering, with a pleasing aroma to the Lord: one bull, one ram, seven male lambs a year old without blemish, [37]and the grain offering and the drink offerings for the bull, for the ram, and for the lambs, in the prescribed quantities; [38]also one male goat for a sin offering; besides the regular burnt offering and its grain offering and its drink offering.

[39]“These you shall offer to the Lord at your appointed feasts, in addition to your vow offerings and your freewill offerings, for your burnt offerings, and for your grain offerings, and for your drink offerings, and for your peace offerings.”

[40][1] So Moses told the people of Israel everything just as the Lord had commanded Moses.

Men and Vows

30 [1]‡†Moses spoke to the heads of the tribes of the people of Israel, saying, “This is what the Lord has commanded. [2]†If a man vows a vow to the Lord, or swears an oath to bind himself by a pledge, he shall not break his word. He shall do according to all that proceeds out of his mouth.

Women and Vows

3 ‡ ‡ † "If a woman vows a vow to the Lord and binds herself by a pledge, while within her father's house in her youth, 4 † and her father hears of her vow and of her pledge by which she has bound herself and says nothing to her, then all her vows shall stand, and every pledge by which she has bound herself shall stand. 5 † But if her father opposes her on the day that he hears of it, no vow of hers, no pledge by which she has bound herself shall stand.
And the Lord will forgive her, because her father opposed her.

6 ‡ † "If she marries a husband, while under her vows or any thoughtless utterance of her lips by which she has bound herself, 7 and her husband hears of it and says nothing to her on the day that he hears, then her vows shall stand, and her pledges by which she has bound herself shall stand. 8 But if, on the day that her husband comes to hear of it, he opposes her, then he makes void her vow that was on her, and the thoughtless utterance of her lips by which she bound herself. And the Lord will forgive her. 9 † (But any vow of a widow or of a divorced woman, anything by which she has bound herself, shall stand against her.) 10 And if she vowed in her husband's house or bound herself by a pledge with an oath, 11 and her husband heard of it and said nothing to her and did not oppose her, then all her vows shall stand, and every pledge by which she bound herself shall stand. 12 But if her husband makes them null and void on the day that he hears them, then whatever proceeds out of her lips concerning her vows or concerning her pledge of herself shall not stand. Her husband has made them void, and the Lord will forgive her. 13 Any vow and any binding oath to afflict herself, her husband may establish,[1] or her husband may make void. 14 † But if her husband says nothing to her from day to day, then he establishes all her vows or all her pledges that are upon her. He has established them, because he said nothing to her on the day that he heard of them. 15 But if he makes them null and void after he has heard of them, then he shall bear her iniquity."

16 These are the statutes that the Lord commanded Moses about a man and his wife and about a father and his daughter while she is in her youth within her father's house.

Vengeance on Midian

31 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]†"Avenge the people of Israel on the Midianites. Afterward you shall be gathered to your people." [3]So Moses spoke to the people, saying, "Arm men from among you for the war, that they may go against Midian to execute the Lord's vengeance on Midian. [4]†You shall send a thousand from each of the tribes of Israel to the war." [5]So there were provided, out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand from each tribe, twelve thousand armed for war. [6]†And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand from each tribe, together with Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, with the vessels of the sanctuary and the trumpets for the alarm in his hand. [7]†They warred against Midian, as the Lord commanded Moses, and killed every male. [8]†They killed the kings of Midian with the rest of their slain, Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the five kings of Midian. And they also killed Balaam the son of Beor with the sword. [9]†And the people of Israel took captive the women of Midian and their little ones, and they took as plunder all their cattle, their flocks, and all their goods. [10]All their cities in the places where they lived, and all their encampments, they burned with fire, [11]and took all the spoil and all the plunder, both of man and of beast. [12]Then they brought the captives and the plunder and the spoil to Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and to the congregation of the people of Israel, at the camp on the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho.

[13]Moses and Eleazar the priest and all the chiefs of the congregation went to meet them outside the camp. [14]And Moses was angry with the officers of the army, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, who had come from service in the war. [15]†Moses said to them, "Have you let all the women live? [16]Behold, these, on Balaam's advice, caused the people of Israel to act treacherously against the Lord in the incident of Peor, and so the plague came among the congregation of the Lord. [17]†Now therefore, kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman who has known man by lying with him. [18]†But all the young girls who have not known man by lying with him keep alive for yourselves. [19]†Encamp outside the camp seven days. Whoever of you has killed any person and whoever has touched any slain, purify yourselves and your captives on the third day and on the seventh day. [20]You shall purify every garment, every article of skin, all work of goats' hair, and every article of wood."

[21]‡Then Eleazar the priest said to the men in the army who had gone to battle: "This is the statute of the law that the Lord has commanded Moses: [22]only the gold, the silver, the bronze, the iron, the tin, and the lead, [23]everything that can stand the fire, you shall pass through the fire, and it shall be clean. Nevertheless, it shall also be purified with the water for impurity. And whatever cannot stand the fire, you shall pass through the water. [24]‡You must wash your clothes on the seventh day, and you shall be clean. And afterward you may come into the camp."

[25]The Lord said to Moses, [26]"Take the count of the plunder that was taken, both of man and of beast, you and Eleazar the priest and the heads of the fathers' houses of the congregation, [27]‡and divide the plunder into two parts between the warriors who went out to battle and all the congregation. [28]And levy for the Lord a tribute from the men of war who went out to battle, one out of five hundred, of the people and of the oxen and of the donkeys and of the flocks. [29]Take it from their half and give it to Eleazar the priest as a contribution to the Lord. [30]And from the people of Israel's half you shall take one drawn out of every fifty, of the people, of the oxen, of the donkeys, and of the flocks, of all the cattle, and give them to the Levites who keep guard over the tabernacle of the Lord." [31]And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the Lord commanded Moses.

[32]‡Now the plunder remaining of the spoil that the army took was 675,000 sheep, [33]72,000 cattle, [34]61,000 donkeys, [35]and 32,000 persons in all, women who had not known man by lying with him. [36]And the half, the portion of those who had gone out in the army, numbered 337,500 sheep, [37]and the Lord's tribute of sheep was 675. [38]The cattle were 36,000, of which the Lord's tribute was 72. [39]The donkeys were 30,500, of which the Lord's tribute was 61. [40]The persons were 16,000, of which the Lord's tribute was 32 persons. [41]And Moses gave the tribute, which was the contribution for the Lord, to Eleazar the priest, as the Lord commanded Moses.

[42]From the people of Israel's half, which Moses separated from that of the men who had served in the army— [43]now the congregation's half was

337,500 sheep, [44]36,000 cattle, [45]and 30,500 donkeys, [46]and 16,000 persons — [47]from the people of Israel's half Moses took one of every 50, both of persons and of beasts, and gave them to the Levites who kept guard over the tabernacle of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

[48]Then the officers who were over the thousands of the army, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, came near to Moses [49]† and said to Moses, "Your servants have counted the men of war who are under our command, and there is not a man missing from us. [50]† And we have brought the LORD's offering, what each man found, articles of gold, armlets and bracelets, signet rings, earrings, and beads, to make atonement for ourselves before the LORD." [51]And Moses and Eleazar the priest received from them the gold, all crafted articles. [52]And all the gold of the contribution that they presented to the LORD, from the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, was 16,750 shekels.[1] [53](The men in the army had each taken plunder for himself.) [54]And Moses and Eleazar the priest received the gold from the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tent of meeting, as a memorial for the people of Israel before the LORD.

Reuben and Gad Settle in Gilead

32 [1]†Now the people of Reuben and the people of Gad had a very great number of livestock. And they saw the land of Jazer and the land of Gilead, and behold, the place was a place for livestock. [2]So the people of Gad and the people of Reuben came and said to Moses and to Eleazar the priest and to the chiefs of the congregation, [3]"Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam, Nebo, and Beon, [4]the land that the Lord struck down before the congregation of Israel, is a land for livestock, and your servants have livestock." [5]†And they said, "If we have found favor in your sight, let this land be given to your servants for a possession. Do not take us across the Jordan."

[6]†But Moses said to the people of Gad and to the people of Reuben, "Shall your brothers go to the war while you sit here? [7]† Why will you discourage the heart of the people of Israel from going over into the land that the Lord has given them? [8]Your fathers did this, when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to see the land. [9]For when they went up to the Valley of Eshcol and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the people of Israel from going into the land that the Lord had given them. [10]And the Lord's anger was kindled on that day, and he swore, saying, [11]'Surely none of the men who came up out of Egypt, from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land that I swore to give to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, because they have not wholly followed me, [12]none except Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite and Joshua the son of Nun, for they have wholly followed the Lord.' [13]And the Lord's anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them wander in the wilderness forty years, until all the generation that had done evil in the sight of the Lord was gone. [14]†And behold, you have risen in your fathers' place, a brood of sinful men, to increase still more the fierce anger of the Lord against Israel! [15]For if you turn away from following him, he will again abandon them in the wilderness, and you will destroy all this people."

[16]†Then they came near to him and said, "We will build sheepfolds here for our livestock, and cities for our little ones, [17]but we will take up arms, ready to go before the people of Israel, until we have brought them to their place. And our little ones shall live in the fortified cities because of the inhabitants of the land. 18 † We will not return to our homes until each of the people of Israel has gained his inheritance. 19 For we will not inherit with them on the other side of the Jordan and beyond, because our inheritance has come to us on this side of the Jordan to the east." 20 ‡ So Moses said to them, "If you will do this, if you will take up arms to go before the Lord for the war, 21 † and every armed man of you will pass over the Jordan before the Lord, until he has driven out his enemies from before him 22 and the land is subdued before the Lord; then after that you shall return and be free of obligation to the Lord and to Israel, and this land shall be your possession before the Lord. 23 † But if you will not do so, behold, you have sinned against the Lord, and be sure your sin will find you out. 24 Build cities for your little ones and folds for your sheep, and do what you have promised." 25 And the people of Gad and the people of Reuben said to Moses, "Your servants will do as my lord commands. 26 Our little ones, our wives, our livestock, and all our cattle shall remain there in the cities of Gilead, 27 but your servants will pass over, every man who is armed for war, before the Lord to battle, as my lord orders."

28 ‡ So Moses gave command concerning them to Eleazar the priest and to Joshua the son of Nun and to the heads of the fathers' houses of the tribes of the people of Israel. 29 And Moses said to them, "If the people of Gad and the people of Reuben, every man who is armed to battle before the Lord, will pass with you over the Jordan and the land shall be subdued before you, then you shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession. 30 However, if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan." 31 And the people of Gad and the people of Reuben answered, "What the Lord has said to your servants, we will do. 32 We will pass over armed before the Lord into the land of Canaan, and the possession of our inheritance shall remain with us beyond the Jordan."

33 † And Moses gave to them, to the people of Gad and to the people of Reuben and to the half-tribe of Manasseh the son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land and its cities with their territories, the cities of the land throughout the country. 34 † And the people of Gad built Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, 35 Atroth-shophan, Jazer, Jogbehah, 36 Beth-nimrah and Beth-haran, fortified cities, and folds for sheep. 37 And the people of Reuben built Heshbon, Elealeh, Kiriathaim, 38 Nebo, and Baal-meon (their names were changed), and Sibmah. And they gave other names to the cities that they built. 39 And the sons of Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead and captured it, and dispossessed the Amorites who were in it. 40 † And Moses gave Gilead to Machir the son of Manasseh, and he settled in it. 41 And Jair the son of Manasseh went and captured their villages, and called them Havvoth-jair.[1] 42 † And Nobah went and captured Kenath and its villages, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

Recounting Israel's Journey

33 [1]‡‡‡These are the stages of the people of Israel, when they went out of the land of Egypt by their companies under the leadership of Moses and Aaron. [2]Moses wrote down their starting places, stage by stage, by command of the Lord, and these are their stages according to their starting places. [3]They set out from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month. On the day after the Passover, the people of Israel went out triumphantly in the sight of all the Egyptians, [4]† while the Egyptians were burying all their firstborn, whom the Lord had struck down among them. On their gods also the Lord executed judgments.

[5]‡So the people of Israel set out from Rameses and camped at Succoth.
[6]And they set out from Succoth and camped at Etham, which is on the edge of the wilderness. [7]And they set out from Etham and turned back to Pi-hahiroth, which is east of Baal-zephon, and they camped before Migdol.
[8]†And they set out from before Hahiroth[1] and passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and they went a three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham and camped at Marah. [9]And they set out from Marah and came to Elim; at Elim there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees, and they camped there. [10]And they set out from Elim and camped by the Red Sea. [11]And they set out from the Red Sea and camped in the wilderness of Sin. [12]And they set out from the wilderness of Sin and camped at Dophkah. [13]And they set out from Dophkah and camped at Alush. [14]And they set out from Alush and camped at Rephidim, where there was no water for the people to drink. [15]And they set out from Rephidim and camped in the wilderness of Sinai. [16]And they set out from the wilderness of Sinai and camped at Kibroth-hattaavah. [17]And they set out from Kibroth-hattaavah and camped at Hazeroth. [18]And they set out from Hazeroth and camped at Rithmah. [19]And they set out from Rithmah and camped at Rimmon-perez. [20]And they set out from Rimmon-perez and camped at Libnah. [21]And they set out from Libnah and camped at Rissah. [22]And they set out from Rissah and camped at Kehelathah. [23]And they set out from Kehelathah and camped at Mount Shepher. [24]And they set out from Mount

Shepher and camped at Haradah. [25]And they set out from Haradah and camped at Makheloth. [26]And they set out from Makheloth and camped at Tahath. [27]And they set out from Tahath and camped at Terah. [28]And they set out from Terah and camped at Mithkah. [29]And they set out from Mithkah and camped at Hashmonah. [30]And they set out from Hashmonah and camped at Moseroth. [31]And they set out from Moseroth and camped at Bene-jaakan. [32]And they set out from Bene-jaakan and camped at Hor-haggidgad. [33]And they set out from Hor-haggidgad and camped at Jotbathah. [34]And they set out from Jotbathah and camped at Abronah. [35]And they set out from Abronah and camped at Ezion-geber. [36]And they set out from Ezion-geber and camped in the wilderness of Zin (that is, Kadesh). [37]And they set out from Kadesh and camped at Mount Hor, on the edge of the land of Edom.

[38]†And Aaron the priest went up Mount Hor at the command of the LORD and died there, in the fortieth year after the people of Israel had come out of the land of Egypt, on the first day of the fifth month. [39]†And Aaron was 123 years old when he died on Mount Hor.

[40]†And the Canaanite, the king of Arad, who lived in the Negeb in the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the people of Israel.

[41]And they set out from Mount Hor and camped at Zalmonah. [42]†And they set out from Zalmonah and camped at Punon. [43]And they set out from Punon and camped at Oboth. [44]And they set out from Oboth and camped at Iye-abarim, in the territory of Moab. [45]And they set out from Iyim and camped at Dibon-gad. [46]And they set out from Dibon-gad and camped at Almon-diblathaim. [47]And they set out from Almon-diblathaim and camped in the mountains of Abarim, before Nebo. [48]And they set out from the mountains of Abarim and camped in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho; [49]†they camped by the Jordan from Beth-jeshimoth as far as Abel-shittim in the plains of Moab.

Drive Out the Inhabitants

50 ✝And the Lord spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho, saying, 51 “Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you pass over the Jordan into the land of Canaan, 52 ✝then you shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you and destroy all their figured stones and destroy all their metal images and demolish all their high places.
53 ✝And you shall take possession of the land and settle in it, for I have given the land to you to possess it. 54 ✝You shall inherit the land by lot according to your clans. To a large tribe you shall give a large inheritance, and to a small tribe you shall give a small inheritance. Wherever the lot falls for anyone, that shall be his. According to the tribes of your fathers you shall inherit.
55 ✝But if you do not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you, then those of them whom you let remain shall be as barbs in your eyes and thorns in your sides, and they shall trouble you in the land where you dwell.
56 ✝And I will do to you as I thought to do to them.”

Boundaries of the Land

34 [1]The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, [2]"Command the people of Israel, and say to them, When you enter the land of Canaan (this is the land that shall fall to you for an inheritance, the land of Canaan as defined by its borders), [3]your south side shall be from the wilderness of Zin alongside Edom, and your southern border shall run from the end of the Salt Sea on the east. [4]And your border shall turn south of the ascent of Akrabbim, and cross to Zin, and its limit shall be south of Kadesh-barnea. Then it shall go on to Hazar-addar, and pass along to Azmon. [5]And the border shall turn from Azmon to the Brook of Egypt, and its limit shall be at the sea.

[6]"For the western border, you shall have the Great Sea and its[1] coast.
This shall be your western border.

[7]"This shall be your northern border: from the Great Sea you shall draw a line to Mount Hor. [8]From Mount Hor you shall draw a line to Lebo-hamath, and the limit of the border shall be at Zedad. [9]Then the border shall extend to Ziphron, and its limit shall be at Hazar-enan. This shall be your northern border.

[10]"You shall draw a line for your eastern border from Hazar-enan to Shepham. [11]And the border shall go down from Shepham to Riblah on the east side of Ain. And the border shall go down and reach to the shoulder of the Sea of Chinnereth on the east. [12]And the border shall go down to the Jordan, and its limit shall be at the Salt Sea. This shall be your land as defined by its borders all around."

[13]Moses commanded the people of Israel, saying, "This is the land that you shall inherit by lot, which the Lord has commanded to give to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe. [14]For the tribe of the people of Reuben by fathers' houses and the tribe of the people of Gad by their fathers' houses have received their inheritance, and also the half-tribe of Manasseh. [15]The two tribes and the half-tribe have received their inheritance beyond the Jordan east of Jericho, toward the sunrise."

List of Tribal Chiefs

16 The Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 17 “These are the names of the men who shall divide the land to you for inheritance: Eleazar the priest and Joshua the son of Nun. 18 You shall take one chief from every tribe to divide the land for inheritance. 19 These are the names of the men: Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh. 20 Of the tribe of the people of Simeon, Shemuel the son of Ammihud. 21 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chislon. 22 Of the tribe of the people of Dan a chief, Bukki the son of Jogli. 23 Of the people of Joseph: of the tribe of the people of Manasseh a chief, Hanniel the son of Ephod. 24 And of the tribe of the people of Ephraim a chief, Kemuel the son of Shiphtan. 25 Of the tribe of the people of Zebulun a chief, Elizaphan the son of Parnach. 26 Of the tribe of the people of Issachar a chief, Paltiel the son of Azzan. 27 And of the tribe of the people of Asher a chief, Ahihud the son of Shelomi. 28 Of the tribe of the people of Naphtali a chief, Pedahel the son of Ammihud. 29 These are the men whom the Lord commanded to divide the inheritance for the people of Israel in the land of Canaan.”

Cities for the Levites

35 [1]†The Lord spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho, saying, [2]"Command the people of Israel to give to the Levites some of the inheritance of their possession as cities for them to dwell in. And you shall give to the Levites pasturelands around the cities. [3]†The cities shall be theirs to dwell in, and their pasturelands shall be for their cattle and for their livestock and for all their beasts. [4]The pasturelands of the cities, which you shall give to the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city outward a thousand cubits[1] all around. [5]And you shall measure, outside the city, on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits, the city being in the middle. This shall belong to them as pastureland for their cities.

[6]†"The cities that you give to the Levites shall be the six cities of refuge, where you shall permit the manslayer to flee, and in addition to them you shall give forty-two cities. [7]All the cities that you give to the Levites shall be forty-eight, with their pasturelands. [8]And as for the cities that you shall give from the possession of the people of Israel, from the larger tribes you shall take many, and from the smaller tribes you shall take few; each, in proportion to the inheritance that it inherits, shall give of its cities to the Levites."

Cities of Refuge

9 ‡And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, 10 “Speak to the people of Israel and say to them, When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan, 11 †then you shall select cities to be cities of refuge for you, that the manslayer who kills any person without intent may flee there. 12 †The cities shall be for you a refuge from the avenger, that the manslayer may not die until he stands before the congregation for judgment. 13 And the cities that you give shall be your six cities of refuge. 14 †You shall give three cities beyond the Jordan, and three cities in the land of Canaan, to be cities of refuge. 15 These six cities shall be for refuge for the people of Israel, and for the stranger and for the sojourner among them, that anyone who kills any person without intent may flee there.

16 ‡† “But if he struck him down with an iron object, so that he died, he is a murderer. The murderer shall be put to death. 17 And if he struck him down with a stone tool that could cause death, and he died, he is a murderer. The murderer shall be put to death. 18 Or if he struck him down with a wooden tool that could cause death, and he died, he is a murderer. The murderer shall be put to death. 19 The avenger of blood shall himself put the murderer to death; when he meets him, he shall put him to death. 20 And if he pushed him out of hatred or hurled something at him, lying in wait, so that he died, 21 or in enmity struck him down with his hand, so that he died, then he who struck the blow shall be put to death. He is a murderer. The avenger of blood shall put the murderer to death when he meets him.

22 ‡ “But if he pushed him suddenly without enmity, or hurled anything on him without lying in wait 23 or used a stone that could cause death, and without seeing him dropped it on him, so that he died, though he was not his enemy and did not seek his harm, 24 †then the congregation shall judge between the manslayer and the avenger of blood, in accordance with these rules. 25 †And the congregation shall rescue the manslayer from the hand of the avenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to his city of refuge to which he had fled, and he shall live in it until the death of the high priest who was anointed with the holy oil. 26 But if the manslayer shall at any time go beyond the boundaries of his city of refuge to which he fled,

[27] † and the avenger of blood finds him outside the boundaries of his city of refuge, and the avenger of blood kills the manslayer, he shall not be guilty of blood. [28] For he must remain in his city of refuge until the death of the high priest, but after the death of the high priest the manslayer may return to the land of his possession. [29] And these things shall be for a statute and rule for you throughout your generations in all your dwelling places.

[30] † "If anyone kills a person, the murderer shall be put to death on the evidence of witnesses. But no person shall be put to death on the testimony of one witness. [31] † Moreover, you shall accept no ransom for the life of a murderer, who is guilty of death, but he shall be put to death. [32] † And you shall accept no ransom for him who has fled to his city of refuge, that he may return to dwell in the land before the death of the high priest. [33] † You shall not pollute the land in which you live, for blood pollutes the land, and no atonement can be made for the land for the blood that is shed in it, except by the blood of the one who shed it. [34] † You shall not defile the land in which you live, in the midst of which I dwell, for I the LORD dwell in the midst of the people of Israel."

Marriage of Female Heirs

36 [1]The heads of the fathers' houses of the clan of the people of Gilead the son of Machir, son of Manasseh, from the clans of the people of Joseph, came near and spoke before Moses and before the chiefs, the heads of the fathers' houses of the people of Israel. [2]† They said, "The Lord commanded my lord to give the land for inheritance by lot to the people of Israel, and my lord was commanded by the Lord to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother to his daughters. [3]†But if they are married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the people of Israel, then their inheritance will be taken from the inheritance of our fathers and added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry. So it will be taken away from the lot of our inheritance. [4]†And when the jubilee of the people of Israel comes, then their inheritance will be added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry, and their inheritance will be taken from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers."

[5]And Moses commanded the people of Israel according to the word of the Lord, saying, "The tribe of the people of Joseph is right. [6]†This is what the Lord commands concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, 'Let them marry whom they think best, only they shall marry within the clan of the tribe of their father. [7]The inheritance of the people of Israel shall not be transferred from one tribe to another, for every one of the people of Israel shall hold on to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers. [8]And every daughter who possesses an inheritance in any tribe of the people of Israel shall be wife to one of the clan of the tribe of her father, so that every one of the people of Israel may possess the inheritance of his fathers. [9]So no inheritance shall be transferred from one tribe to another, for each of the tribes of the people of Israel shall hold on to its own inheritance.'"

[10]The daughters of Zelophehad did as the Lord commanded Moses, [11]†for Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married to sons of their father's brothers. [12]They were married into the clans of the people of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of their father's clan.

13 †These are the commandments and the rules that the Lord commanded through Moses to the people of Israel in the plains of Moab by the Jordan at Jericho.

Introduction to Numbers

Reading Numbers

He felt excited on the first day of travel, anticipating a new and better land. On the second day, his burden grew heavy as exhaustion rose from heel to shoulder. When they broke for camp at the end of the third day, he complained like everyone else about the hard march, the lack of decent food, and the constant drudgery. The march of millions of people and animals by ranks kicked up an endless cloud of dust. Grime caked his sweaty brow and caused him to cough up a steady stream of curses and complaints.

Numbers is a story of endurance and promises of a better life. Nothing could better describe the hopes, disappointments, and struggles of God's people today, who look forward to the fulfillment of all God's promises. Numbers teaches duties, discipline, and the daily need for repentance, forgiveness, and faith.

Luther on Numbers

In the fourth book [Numbers], after the laws have been given, the princes and priests instituted, the tent and form of worship set up, and everything that pertains to the people of God made ready, then the whole thing begins to function; a test is made as to how well the arrangement operates and how satisfactory it is. This is why this very book says so much about the disobedience of the people and the plagues that came upon them. And some of the laws are explained and the number of the laws increased. Indeed this is the way it always goes; laws are quickly given, but when they are to go into effect and become operative, they meet with nothing but hindrance; nothing goes as the law demands. This book is a notable example of how vacuous it is to make people righteous with laws; rather, as St. Paul says, laws cause only sin and wrath. (AE 35:238)

Therefore we see that these many laws of Moses were given not only to prevent anyone from choosing ways of his own for doing good and living aright, as was said above, but rather that sins might simply become numerous and be heaped up beyond measure. The purpose was to burden the conscience so that the hardened blindness would have to recognize itself, and feel its own inability and nothingness in the achieving of good. Such blindness must be thus compelled and forced by the law to seek something beyond the law and its own ability, namely, the grace of God promised in the Christ who was to come. Every law of God is good and right [Rom. 7:7–16], even if it only bids men to carry dung or to gather straw. Accordingly, whoever does not keep this good law—or keeps it unwillingly—cannot be righteous or good in his heart. But human nature cannot keep it otherwise than unwillingly. It must therefore, through this good law of God, recognize and feel its wickedness, and sigh and long for the aid of divine grace in Christ. (AE 35:244)

Challenges for Readers

Census Figures. The censuses in chs 1 and 26, which give the Book its name, would suggest a total of c 2.2 million Israelites. Critics have argued that these figures must be exaggerated because so large a group and their livestock could not survive in the Sinai wilderness. Elaborate reinterpretations of the figures in ch 1 have been proposed. Yet Moses carefully describes how the Lord prospered and cared for His people in miraculous and providential ways (cf 11:7, 31). One should also note that the Sinai Peninsula was not as barren then as it is today. The climate in the region provided more rain and vegetation. See note, Jsh 17:15. (Cf Ps 68:7–9 about God's special providence.)

Standing of Women. The test of adultery (5:11–31), the capture of Midianite girls (31:18), and the laws about women's vows (30:3–16) have been cited as evidence that the Bible teaches suppression of women or that women were owned and valued much like cattle. Such an interpretation does not take into account the cultural environment of the second millennium BC or what Scripture, in other places, teaches about men and women (see note, 30:3–16). The example of the daughters of Zelophehad (27:1–11; ch 36) tells a different story; these single women were allowed to inherit their father's property and could choose husbands for themselves (36:6). See notes, 2:3–31; Pr 31:10–31.

Laws Given through Moses. See p 95.

Ministers Then and Now. Although comparisons and applications can be made from the services of priests and Levites of the OT to the services of church workers today, the services cannot be equated.

Vengeance. God's command to punish the Midianites may surprise some readers. See notes, ch 31; Ex 20:5.

Blessings for Readers

As you read Numbers, reflect on how God repeatedly speaks His Word of Law and promise to the people while sustaining them in the wilderness. Each event illustrates His fatherly discipline and gracious care for a wayward, rebellious people. Numbers leaves the reader hanging, anticipating something greater because the Book ends on Jordan's east bank, just shy of the Promised Land.

While reading Numbers, pray for the Lord to discipline and sustain you in the service of His kingdom. Also, anticipate how He prepares something greater for you, an eternal homeland in heaven to be revealed when Christ returns.

Number Symbolism

The Israelites used number symbolism, as did many other ancient cultures. Ancient systems for counting probably developed from the 10 digits of human hands. As written language developed, ancient people commonly used the letters of their alphabets to represent numbers (this was true for the Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek languages). The use of letters as numbers caused numbers to become invested with greater symbolic meaning.

The numbers presented in historical accounts of the Bible should usually be read as ordinary numbers; apocalyptic books such as Daniel, Ezekiel, and Revelation tend to use more number symbolism. The numbering of the days of creation may have provided symbolic meaning to some numbers, though Scripture does not emphasize this for each number. Sometimes, multiples of a number carry deeper meaning (Dn 9:24; Mt 18:22; Rv 13:18). However, biblical writers more often associated ideas with certain numbers in only a general way. Common associations are described below; use these associations cautiously. See note, Pr 30.

one. Typically represents uniqueness (2Sm 7:23) or unity (Gn 2:24; Ex 26:6). In the OT, related to Hbr ro'sh, "first in order; head, or chief" (see p 228). See note, Dt 6:4.

two. Hbr root term means "to repeat." The number's form is not plural but dual, a word form in Semitic languages used for pairs on the human body (arms, legs, etc.). However, the term also describes division, contrast, and distinction (1Ki 18:21; Jb 9:33). There may be an association with Day 2 of the creation, which describes separations (Gn 1:6–8).

three. The first plural number in Hbr, since "two" in Hbr is dual. Three appears with examples of counsel (Gn 18:2; Dt 19:15; Jb 2:11; Ezk 14:14) and also represents a short, complete cycle of action (Nu 22:28; Est 4:16). The threefold repetition of God's name and His attributes also associates the number with God (Nu 6:23–26; Is 6:3) and points to Jesus' teaching about the Trinity (Mt 28:19).

four. Associated with the four corners of an object (Ex 27:2; Jb 1:19), directions of the compass (1Ch 9:24; Is 11:2; Zec 6:5), and the winds that blow from the four quarters of heaven (Jer 49:36). Four is therefore associated with the heavenly and earthly spheres of creation.

six. The number of mankind, since God created Adam and Eve on the sixth day (Gn 1:24–27; Rv 13:18).

seven. Prominent in biblical order and design (such as the sevenfold lampstand). The most obvious association between the number seven and God's design is with the heavenly lights in the seven sunrises of the week (Gn 2:2–3; Ex 20:8–11), the moon's progress around the earth in c 28 days (7 × 4; Israel had a lunar calendar, Ex 12:2), and the seven visible "lights" in the sky (sun, moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn; cf Rv 1:20). In this way, seven has strong association with heaven, divine illumination, and the things of God.

ten. Often associated with a group of persons in Semitic languages, though this association is not strong in the OT. Ten commonly represents completeness or constancy (Gn 31:7; see also multiples of ten —"hundred" and "thousand"—below). Tithing, based on giving the tenth part of a whole thing, is an important biblical practice in which offering the tenth represents thanks for the whole (Gn 14:20; 28:22; Lv 27:30–34; Nu 18:21–32; Dt 12:1–14; 14:22–29). The Ten Commandments (lit, "10 words") can stand for the whole of God's covenant (Ex 34:28; Dt 4:13).

twelve. Associated with the sons of Jacob (Gn 35:22b–26), from whom descended the tribes of Israel (Ex 28:21; Nu 1:1–16). Twelve thus represents the people of God. This later applied to the NT people of God, the Church, led by the twelve apostles (Mt 19:28).

twenty-four. Twelve repeated (Rv 4:4, 10). See twelve.

forty. Often used with a length of time characterizing a critical period in redemptive history or a period of testing (Gn 7:12; Dt 9:11; Mt 4:2).

seventy. See seven; see also p 206.

hundred. Used in round figures (cf Gn 15:13; Lv 26:8; Mt 18:12) and in expressions of uncertain amounts (Is 65:20), as also happens in other languages (e.g., the Eng expression "I've told you a hundred times" means "constantly").

thousand. Hbr 'eleph; occurs most often in censuses and accounts of troop musters in the Book of Numbers and other Historical Books. It is a technical military term similar to modern military terms such as division, brigade, and regimen (cf Nu 31, where 12,000 troops were mustered, a unit from each tribe). It described an Israelite tactical unit, which may not have included a literal 1,000 men. When Israelites heard or read the word 'eleph, they did not necessarily think of the number 1,000. Like

"ten" and "hundred," "thousand" can simply mean a large quantity, all of something, or constantly (Jb 9:3; Ps 50:10; 84:10; 90:4). This background is especially helpful for understanding the symbolism in Rv 7:4–8; 14:1–3; 20:2 (see notes).

144,000. Multiple of twelve and a thousand, symbolizing all of God's people; Rv 7:4; 14:1–3. See twelve and thousand.

Students of the Bible should beware of searching the Scriptures for hidden number symbolism because such speculating has led to false interpretations and false teachings in the past. Especially dangerous is the mixing of nonbiblical systems of number symbolism with interpretations of the Bible, as happened with the Jewish interpreter Philo of Alexandria, the Jewish Cabbala, and Christian allegorists. The Early Church Father Irenaeus strongly warned against the heretical Gnostic abuse of number symbolism, and his words provide appropriate caution today (ANF 1:393–96).

Leadership and Service in Israel

Terms for Israelite leadership are often used interchangeably, so that offices are not easily ranked. However, during the tribal period (Ex 1 through 1Sm 8), the general order seems to be (1) elder of Israel, (2) tribal leader, (3) clan leader, (4) household leader, (5) household member, and (6) sojourner (cf Dt 29:10–11). On the organization of the people in the wilderness, see note, Nu 1:2–18. 1Ki 8:1 gives an illustration of civil leadership in the kingdom period (1Sm 9 through 2Ch 36), stating, "Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the fathers' houses of the people of Israel." (Regarding households, see pp 54–55.) Most Israelite leaders could also act as military commanders. During the kingdom period, other administrative offices were added to supplement the traditional tribal administration.

The explanations below provide guidance through general descriptions of common terms and how they were used. Specific uses of these terms varied widely over the thousands of years described by Old Testament history.

Civil Institutions

king. Hbr melek. Uses range from leaders of tribes and cities to the leader of a nation or an empire. Beginning with King Saul, the OT focuses strongly on this rank of civil leadership. See pp 1565–66.

elder. Hbr zaqen; term related to "beard." Used for various levels of tribal leadership. A body of 70 elders led Israel, representing the tribes (e.g., Ex 24:9; c six elders per tribe). Elders were often associated with religious leadership and acted as counselors to rulers. Each city typically had elders who acted as judges. See p 792.

prince. Hbr sar; often used parallel with "chief" as a warlord or leader of a tribe. The prince was a high-level official during the kingdom period. The term does not specifically mean the son of a king, as it is commonly used in Eng.

head. Hbr ro'sh; like "chief," general term used with "tribe," "clan," and "father's house." Indicates different leadership strata within a tribe.

chief. Hbr nasi'; like "head," used variously with "father's house," "tribe," and with military units.

eunuch. Hbr saris. In the Israelite kingdom period, a minor official. In other nations, eunuchs served in more important administrative roles. The term does not necessarily mean the official was castrated. See notes, 2Ki 9:32; 20:18.

judge. Hbr shophet. Elders served as officers of law courts in their communities (see elder). The judges (Judges–1Sm 9) who led Israel during the tribal period were not officers of such courts, but temporary military saviors. See pp 380–81. Unlike local judges, priests, and kings, these tribal judges did not always come to their office because of tribal or family background; the Lord raised them up, or they were appointed by another Israelite leader (1Sm 8:1).

noble. Translated from various Hbr terms, occurring mostly in later OT books. Indicates a free man, or a leader in fame or ability.

people of the land. General citizenry. However, in Jeremiah and Ezekiel, the expression may describe landowners who had political and cultural influence.

slaves. Israelites could be slaves for a time but were to be freed (see pp 101, 206). Captives, such as Canaanites, might be enslaved permanently. See Gibeonites.

Gibeonites. Neither Israelites nor leaders, but Canaanites who became slaves. They cut wood and drew water for the Israelites (see notes, Jsh 9:21, 27). Other Canaanites who were spared during the conquest entered this type of service. See notes, Gn 9:25; 1Ki 5:15.

Religious Institutions

high priest. Leader of the priests and Levites; a descendant of Aaron of the tribe of Levi. High priests were chosen from the line of Eleazar (Nu 20:25–28) and his son Phinehas. In later times, there appears to be more than one high priest (cf 1Ki 2:27, 35; see p 495). One of Eleazar's descendants, Zadok (1Ch 6:1–15), headed the later succession of high priests. See "Zadokites," p 1558.

priests. Descendants of Aaron ordained for service (Lv 8) at the tabernacle and temple (Leviticus focuses on priestly duties). They oversaw the work of the Levites (Numbers states the Levites' duties).

Levites. Descendants of the patriarch Levi whom the Lord appointed as tabernacle/temple workers through Moses (Nu 3:5–39).

women of the tabernacle. Mentioned only in Ex 38:8 and 1Sm 2:22, they apparently assisted the priests and Levites. However, their work is not described. See p 389. Women could not serve as priests or Levites.

Nazirites. Men or women who dedicated themselves to the Lord through a temporary vow (Nu 6:1–21).

Regarding prophets and prophetesses, see pp 1081–83, 389.

The Israelite Diet

Crevices, knots, and whorls wrinkle the faces of the stout olive trees growing on the slope of the Kidron Valley, just east of Jerusalem. Their massive trunks demonstrate their great age. Some scholars suggest that Jesus may have walked amid these very trees. In fact, the early Christians prayed in this olive grove and concluded that it was the Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus retreated after eating the bread and drinking the cup of the Passover.

Olives, wheat, and grapes provided the basic ingredients of an ancient Near Eastern diet. But as the Israelites thanked God for the abundance of the harvest and passed these foods around the table, they saw something more. Many of these foods bore spiritual meaning. The following chart will introduce you to the basics of Israelite meals and some of the meanings they evoked.

Whether you reach for olives from the Kidron Valley or corn-fed beef from Iowa, let your food remind you of the heavenly Father, who opens His hand and satisfies the desires of every living thing (Ps 145:16). See in each food His gracious provision, and receive your daily bread with thanksgiving. Like Jesus, offer a blessing before and after each meal (Mt 14:19; Mk 8:7; 14:22; Lk 24:30). (See SC, pp xli–xlii, for such prayers.)

When you finish eating, remember, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God" (Mt 4:4). During His time in the wilderness, Jesus refused Satan's bread (Mt 4:1–4). On the cross, He closed His mouth to wine and gall (Mt 27:34). Instead of eating and drinking during those trials, Jesus spoke God's Word for you and for your salvation. Feasting on God's Word, receive the life and satisfaction that He alone can give (Mt 4:4). Christ will fill your heart with hope and peace (Rm 15:13).

The Israelite Calendar

The first months of the Israelite calendar are arranged here from first to last as they typically ordered them. Israel basically has two seasons: the wet season (Bul/Heshvan through Ziv/Iyyar) and the dry season (Sivan through Ethanim/Tishri).

An extra month, Adar Sheni (Second Adar), adjusts the lunar cycles with the solar cycle. See p 1567.

The Gezer Calendar tablet (tenth century BC) describes a 12-month cycle beginning in the fall. The poetic form may represent a schoolboy's rhyme. It states, "His double-month is ingathering. His double-month is sowing. His double-month is late-planting. His month is chopping flax. His month is barley harvest. His month is harvest and measuring (?). His double-month is pruning. His month is summerfruit" (CS 2:222).

Study Notes

NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 1 Records how the nation was counted and organized into military-style units. People traveled with the order and precision of an army. The numerical strength of each unit was to be carefully recorded by "a man from each tribe … the head of the house of his fathers" (v 4). The Eng title of the Book is based on the record of the censuses (from LXX arithmoi); the Hbr title, "in the wilderness," gives a better description of the work as a whole.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:1 The LORD spoke to Moses. Lit, "And then the LORD spoke to Moses" indicates that Moses is continuing the account begun in Lv. The division of Lv and Nu was a practical matter of scroll size, not a difference in message. Nu appears to be a summary of a diary that Moses kept. The expression about the Lord speaking is repeated 80 times in Nu, setting the tone for the entire Book and indicating the Lord's direct and gracious supervision of His people. Today, God's people have the written record of God's Word, which guides our lives and worship. tent of meeting. Where the Lord gave directions to His people (e.g., Ex 40:34; Lv 1:1). See note, Ex 27:21. the first day of the second month. Nineteen days later, Israel was to leave Mount Sinai. Daily mustering was done quickly because the people were organized by the sanctuary tax census taken months earlier (Ex 30:11–12; 38:26).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:2–18 census of all the congregation. To demonstrate to His people how great the Lord had made them; to make them realize how great His care was for them; to provide order for their living, traveling, and for war, thus demonstrating that their God is a God of order. Cf 1Co 14:40; see note, Gn 1:2. See also p 1291. clans … fathers' houses. Levels and divisions of the people. Tribe names were derived from the 12 sons of Jacob, who had lived four centuries earlier. Clan names were taken from the grandsons of Jacob. Fathers' houses included all living descendants of a common, living ancestor. Individual names included every male age 20 and older. See pp 54–55.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:20–40 Tribes numbered according to the census tabulation (vv 5–15). Grouped in threes according to their encampment in military units; e.g., Reuben, Simeon, and Gad were deployed on the south side of the tabernacle.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:46 See "Census Figures," p 213. Figures for the individual groups add up to the given total. Total population may have been nearly 2.2 million. The Lord kept His promise to Abraham about raising a nation (Gn 15:5) to provide the promised Savior (cf Gal 3:8–9). The census agrees with the round figure given in Ex 12:37 and with the exact count in Ex 38:26 and Nu 2:32. It is somewhat larger than the sum recorded after the lapse of 38 years (26:51). See note, 26:5–51. The remains of those who died in the wilderness would not be found today, as they were buried in shallow graves.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:1–46 Through a census, the Lord shows Moses that Israel has grown mightily. However, the strength of God's people does not depend on size and military strength but on His Word and grace. How good to know that God counts you righteous in His sight through His Son, who lived perfectly for you and died as the atoning sacrifice for your sin. In Christ, God numbers you among His people through your Baptism, providing all you need for your earthly journey to the promised land of heaven. • Lord, keep me ever faithful to Your Word, and sustain me with Your grace in the family of all believers. Thank You for freeing me from bondage to sin, death, and the devil, through Christ, my Lord. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:47 not listed. Levites were appointed "over the tabernacle" (v 50); therefore, there was no need to tabulate their manpower in a military census. Their numbers and duties are recorded separately in chs 3–4.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:50 the testimony. See note, Ex 25:16.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:51 outsider … put to death. See note, Ex 19:12–13.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:52 standard. Occurs here and 13 times in ch 2 (only again Sg 2:4, where it is translated "banner"). Designates a banner to identify larger groups. Individual tribes also had distinctive ensigns.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:53 camp. See note, 2:2. no wrath. Unmediated approach to the holy God works disaster (e.g., Lv 10:1–7). Communion with Him is possible only through the means of grace instituted in the covenant. Levites shall keep guard. Armed, military-style guards. See note, 3:7–10.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 1:47–54 The Lord sets the Levites apart for special service. Their duty is spiritual, not military. God charges the Levites with moving, maintaining, and protecting the tabernacle, God's dwelling place. As an added means of protection, He instructs the Israelites to camp around the tabernacle; the Levites serve as the final defense against defilement (vv 52–53). See diagram, p 139. By God's grace, all the people huddle about His sacred dwelling and enjoy the blessings of His presence. • Praise be to God, who sets us apart by His Holy Spirit, and who guards the faith He has worked in us through our Baptism. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:2 own standard. Not specifically described. See note, 1:52. Rabbinic tradition associated a lion with the standard of Judah, a man with Reuben, an ox with Ephraim, and an eagle with Dan (see the faces of the cherubim, Ezk 1:10; cf Gn 49:3, 9). facing the tent. Tribes were stationed around the four sides of the tabernacle but did not contact it. Three divisions of Levites were closest to it, on three sides. Moses, Aaron, and his sons were on the fourth side (the front side on the east). See diagram, p 139.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:3–31 Matriarchal heritage ordered the tribes. Sons of Leah came first, on the east side (vv 3–9) and the south side (vv 10–13, 16). Zilpah's son Gad was also on the south side (vv 14–16). Third, on the west side, were the sons of Rachel (vv 18–24). Last, on the north side, were the sons of Bilhah (vv 25–26, 29–31) and the other son of Zilpah, Asher (vv 27–28, 31). The Levites are mentioned after the first and last two groups to indicate their importance (vv 17, 33).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:9 set out first. As prophesied by Jacob (cf Gn 49:8), Judah became the lead tribe.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:17 The Levites, sons of Leah, would follow the first group, the tribe of Judah (vv 3–9).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:32 listed. Each tribe's population is again added from vv 4–31. Though each triad of tribes had approximately the same manpower, the vanguard on the east side had the most soldiers (vv 3–9).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 2:33 See note, 1:47.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 2 God's dwelling place is the center of Israelite life. Note that v 17, referring to the Levites and the movement of the tent of meeting, is the central verse of the 34 verses in ch 2. When encamped, the Israelites face the tent of meeting, showing the centrality of God's place for their lives. For today's believers, Christ dwells in our midst and incorporates us into His holy tabernacle, the Church. • Lord, dwell among us by Your Word and Spirit, that we may keep You first in our lives and follow You always. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:1–4 generations. See pp 8–11. Leaders of the Levites are briefly reintroduced. Cf Lv 8–10 for their consecration and history.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:3 anointed … ordained. See notes, 1Sm 10:1; Ex 29:9–10.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:4 Nadab and Abihu. Cf Lv 10:1–7; 1Ch 24:1–2; Nu 20:25.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:1–4 Aaron's sons are set apart to serve as God's high priests. They would be the anointed leaders of the tabernacle and later the temple, down to the first century, when Herod's temple was destroyed in AD 70. Although Aaron's oldest sons, Nadab and Abihu, offended the Lord and were consumed by fire, in His mercy God raised up new, faithful leaders in Aaron's younger sons. Today, pray for the leaders of your congregation and community, that they may walk in the ways of the Lord. He will hear your prayer for Jesus' sake and lead you into a blessed future. • Merciful Father, lead us always by Your Son, who is ever faithful. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:6 minister. Hbr sharath, to serve by attending or waiting on someone. Description of the priests' role in offering sacrifices. See notes, Lv 1:5–9.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:7–10 guard. Priests did not guard the Lord in a merely militaristic sense but kept the services of His house and observed the proper usages of the sacred vessels.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:9 give the Levites. Priests led the Levites. wholly given. Levites were exempt from military duty to give full-time assistance to the priests. They humbly served the Lord as they served God's ordained representatives. The Lord always supplies His people with the gifts and abilities needed to support His mission, as Paul indicates in 1Co 12:27–31. The Lord expects His people to use the gifts He gives to their full potential, and He gives them the strength to do so (cf 1Co 4:2).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:10 guard their priesthood. Levites could not rise in rank to priesthood. put to death. Changing God's established order was punished severely, just as the Lord had severely punished the priests Nadab and Abihu for changing the order of sacrifices. See notes, Lv 10.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:12 instead of every firstborn. The Lord always claims the firstborn of His people (cf Gn 4:4). The substitution of the Levite firstborn reminded Israel of the firstborn of Egypt, who died to secure their freedom (Ex 11:5; 13:11–16), foreshadowing the sacrifice of God's only-begotten Son to liberate the world from bondage to sin, death, and hell (Lk 2:7; Rm 8:29; Col 1:15, 18; Heb 1:6; 12:23; Rv 1:5). Luth: "The entire Levitical priesthood points to Him and indicates that He would be a King and Priest entirely different from those of the past or future" (AE 13:228). Animals were also offered to the Lord in recognition of His claim to Israel's firstborn and to point toward the ultimate sacrifice of Jesus (Heb 13:11–12; cf 1Jn 1:7b). See note, Ex 22:29.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:15 fathers' houses … every male. Not just those who were old enough for military duty (cf 1:17–18).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:16–39 The three "sons of Levi" and their immediate descendants are listed first (vv 17–20). Names are repeated as each of the three major groups is counted, assigned a place in the camp, and given its general area of responsibility. Tasks are described in greater detail in ch 4.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:21–26 Gershonites. Guards and caretakers for the structural coverings of the tabernacle (vv 25–26).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:27–32 Kohathites. Guards and caretakers of the furnishing of the sanctuary (v 31).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:33–37 sons of Merari. Guards and caretakers of the structural framework of the tabernacle (v 36).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:38 See note, vv 7–10.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:39 22,000. Totals in vv 22, 28, and 34 (7,500; 8,600; 6,200) equal 22,300 Levite males. There is a possible scribal error in v 28, where the loss of a letter would change the figure from 8,300 to 8,600.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:5–39 The Lord chooses the Levites to assist the sons of Aaron, His anointed priests. Each Levitical clan performs assigned duties for the care and security of the sanctuary (tent of meeting) and its precious contents (vv 25, 31, 36–37). Just as the Lord consecrated the Levites to care for the tabernacle and to support the services of the sanctuary, He likewise calls and consecrates His people today to support the ministry of the Word. The Lord has a place for you to serve among His people. Rejoice in the mutual love and care He provides for all in Christ Jesus. • O God, by Your grace through Christ, You have made us Your temple. Bless our service together in spreading the Word of salvation to all nations. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:40–43 See note, v 12.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:43 The number of firstborn males in Israel nearly matched the number of Levite males (v 39), who were consecrated to the Lord's service and thereby "paid" the redemption price for the whole nation.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:46 redemption price. See note, v 43.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:50 shekel of the sanctuary. See note, Ex 30:13.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 3:40–51 According to the Law, the firstborn sons belong to the Lord (Ex 34:20). In their place, God appoints the Levites and allows for the redemption of all firstborn Israelite sons, foreshadowing redemption through Christ (Heb 9:12). • Lord, You provided our redemption through the blood of Your Son, Jesus. We praise You for His generous sacrifice. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:2 Kohath. Clan of Moses and Aaron (cf Ex 6:16).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:3 thirty years. Levites were eligible for "work in the tent of meeting" at age 25. They provided a different kind of service than those who had reached age 30. tent of meeting. See note, Ex 27:21.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:4–15 Precise descriptions of priestly and Levitical duties ensure good order and safety. Cf Lv 10:1–3.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:4 most holy things. Kohathites had the most sacred assignment: carry "the sanctuary and all the furnishings" after Aaron and his sons "have finished covering" them (v 15). They were not to touch or even "to look on the holy things … lest they die" (v 20).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:11 golden altar. The golden altar of incense (cf v 13). See note, Ex 30:1.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:15 not touch. See note, v 4. Objects were carefully wrapped; touch was regarded as the chief means of transferring uncleanness (see note, Ex 29:10).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:16 Eleazar would act as head of the Levites in caring for the most sacred vessels. This leadership role is confirmed for all of Aaron's sons in vv 17–20.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:18 Kohathites. Directly supervised by "Eleazar the son of Aaron" (v 16).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:22–28 Earlier, the Levites were exempt from the military census, but now they undergo a census for service at the tabernacle. See note, 3:9.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:28 Ithamar. Gershonites and sons of Merari were "under the direction of Ithamar," another son of Aaron (v 33).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:29–33 Sons of Merari would carry the outer portions of the tent.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 4:34–49 Summary of the census data.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 4 The Lord calls the Levites to complete specific tasks. Great care is taken to protect items used in worship within the tent of meeting. Failure to respect items God had declared holy would result in immediate death (v 15). Today, God entrusts us with His Gospel message of reconciliation through His Son, Jesus Christ. That message must be kept undefiled (Gal 1:8) by proper training for ordained ministers of the Gospel (2Tm 2:2) and for all believers. Those whom the Lord calls, He also equips by grace. • Lord, send us Your Holy Spirit, that Your Word may always be preached in purity and truth among us. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:2–4 Moses enacted the purity laws recorded in Lv 13–15. Levitical laws protected the Israelite camp from defilement. Among those laws were regulations governing people found to have an infectious skin disease or any bodily discharge. Regulations also governed those who had touched dead bodies. Unclean individuals, whether male or female, were placed outside the camp (v 3). See p 300. After Israel settled in the Promised Land, unclean people were required to live outside cities and villages (cf 2Ki 7:3; 15:5).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:1–4 The ground is holy wherever the tent of meeting lodges. Defilement means death, for uncleanness is rooted in sin. Today, through Confession and Absolution, we may enter the Lord's presence. Our corporate prayer of Confession reminds us that "we are by nature sinful and unclean" and that our salvation comes through Christ's mercy alone (LSB, p 167). • Lord, Your mercy enables us to walk anew in our Father's ways. Cleanse us for life in the communion of saints and life everlasting. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:5–6:21 The Lord provides Moses with laws for specific issues affecting the unity and purity of the camp.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:6 breaking faith. See notes, Lv 6:2; 1Ch 2:7; 10:13.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:7 confess his sin. During the guilt offering (Lv 5:14–6:7). See notes, Lv 5:15–16; 6:2. make full restitution. Theft is "breaking faith with the LORD" because He is the source of all things. The thief made restitution to the rightful owner or his kinsmen according to Lv 6:1–7. fifth. Sin tax of 20 percent.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:8 restitution … go to the LORD. In case no rightful owner or kinsman could be found, the thief paid the penalties to the priest. atonement. See p 5.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:9–10 holy donations … shall be his. Since the priest conducted the services of the offerings, he also partook of the offerings. See note, Lv 6:26; see also pp 170–71.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:5–10 Any sinful act committed against another is considered "breaking faith with the LORD" (v 6). God expects His people to keep His Law, for that will be their wisdom and understanding in the sight of the people (Dt 4:6). Through the guilt offering, the sinner is reconciled to the Lord and to the community of faith. Today, God's people receive forgiveness through Confession and Absolution. However, do not neglect to make restitution for what you have done wrong. Freely honor the Lord's mercy by making restitution and by showing mercy toward others. The Lord, who takes away your sin, also freely grants you His promised Holy Spirit. • Precious Savior, by Your grace, set us free from sin. Grant us Your Holy Spirit and thoughtful hearts for making restitution. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:11–31 A water test. The goal of the ordeal was to cause sincere confession of sin or of innocence. This unusual procedure has some parallels with practices in other cultures. The Babylonian Code of Hammurabi (c 1728–1686 BC) has a water test whereby a suspected wife was to throw herself into a river. See note, vv 16–22.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:12 wife. Lit, "woman." Married or betrothed. breaks faith. See notes, Lv 6:2; 1Ch 2:7; 10:13. Close association in a camp heightened temptation to commit adultery. Mishnah Sotah 1, which comments on these circumstances, assumes that the husband has warned his wife before witnesses. It also requires that he or another person stand as an official witness of her suspicious behavior. So, according to rabbinic accounts, the husband could not act on a whim.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:13 she is undetected. No witnesses to the crime, but clear cause for suspicion and concern (circumstantial evidence). defiled herself. See note, Lv 12:6.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:14 spirit of jealousy. Suspicion.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:15 grain offering of jealousy. A husband, suspicious of his wife's fidelity, brought a grain offering of remembrance.

bringing iniquity to remembrance. Plain offering to invoke the Lord's memory, that He might establish her guilt or innocence.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:16–22 To invoke God's judgment upon the woman, she has to undergo a test. While holding the grain offering of remembrance and while under an oath of incrimination, she is asked to drink "holy water," containing "the dust that is on the floor of the tabernacle" (v 17). Her guilt or innocence becomes manifest by the results that this mixture causes inside her. This method of determining guilt or innocence was no magical process but depended on God's direct intervention. There is no instance of this trial by ordeal in the biblical record. However, Mishnah Sotah 1:4 describes such proceedings taking place at the "great court" of the temple in Jerusalem.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:16 set her before the LORD. Before the sanctuary.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:17 holy water. From the bronze basin in the sanctuary (cf Ex 30:17–21). dust. A second item of the sanctuary was added, making a murky solution. The significance of these elements is not entirely clear.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:18 unbind the hair. Her head covering was removed, normally an act of mourning. But here the act raised the issue of immoral behavior (i.e., has she uncovered herself?). water of bitterness. Wordplay in Hbr (me hammarim ham'ararim). The mixture likely tasted bitter (cf Ex 15:23), though bitterness can also denote feelings of anger and disappointment. curse. The oath (v 19), like a typical covenant in the Lord's name, would involve a curse on the person speaking it. If one did not fulfill his word, harm would befall him (see p 6).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:19 oath. See note, v 18. under your husband's authority. Betrothed or married.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:21 oath of the curse. See note, v 18. thigh fall away and your body swell. By the oath, if she had committed adultery, she cursed her own womb and body.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:22 bowels … womb. The normal bodily course for water but with the potential of bringing the curse. See note, v 21. Amen, Amen. She swears the oath.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:23–24 He makes her drink her own words/oath. bitter pain. Perhaps the mixture caused physical distress.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:25 wave the grain offering. See note, Lv 7:30–35.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:26 afterward … drink the water. A duplication in the sequence (cf v 23), because the note about the offering interrupted the account.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:27 the woman shall become a curse. The curse, if fulfilled, would prove her guilty and change her status in the community (how is not explained).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:28 The curse would not befall her if she were innocent. She could be reconciled with her husband and have a family with him. The reference to children may mean that a woman found guilty was divorced (Dt 24:1) and thereby bereft of children.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:31 man shall be free. He did not undergo the trial and was not held liable for the outcome. However, consider the tensions existing within the woman's family or with the man suspected of committing adultery with her; cf Lv 20:10. bear her iniquity. If found guilty. Some commentators point to this verse and the ordeal (vv 11–28) as examples of unfair and demeaning treatment of women in the Bible. Such an interpretation fails to appreciate the seriousness of adultery and its consequences. Adultery undermines people's lives in serious ways: trust is destroyed, inheritance comes into question, disease is spread, and children might be born without fatherly care. Adultery tears families and nations apart. Because women by nature bear children, they carry a special burden in such circumstances, which made them the focus of this ordeal. All of this heightens the special burden on husbands and fathers to properly love and care for wives and daughters, as clearly taught in Scripture (e.g., Eph 5:25–33; 6:4).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 5:11–31 God provides recourse should a man suspect his wife of adultery, a most serious matter (Ex 20:14). In OT times, the penalty for adultery was death (Lv 20:10). God designed human sexuality for the blessed estate of marriage. Yet He also offers forgiveness through Christ for those who err and repent. • Almighty Father, keep us sexually pure, whether we are married or unmarried. In Jesus' name. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:2 a special vow. See p 7. "To separate, consecrate." For unspecified reasons, voluntarily and for a certain period of time, a person could make a special pledge of dedication to the Lord above the normal requirements of holiness. The vow and its consecration gave the person a special, holy status (i.e., status of a priest or Levite). This vow of separation included three elements: abstention from all products of the grapevine, fermented and unfermented (vv 3–4; cf Lv 10:9; Am 2:11); letting his hair grow (v 5); and avoidance of all contact with the dead (vv 6–12; see the priestly regulation in Lv 21:1–4). Nazirite. Cf 1Sm 1:28; Lk 1:15; Ac 18:18. "The Nazirites did not make their vows with the same opinion of the monks, which we condemn. The rite of the Nazirites was an exercise or a declaration of faith before the people. It did not merit the forgiveness of sins before God and did not justify before God. Further, just as circumcision or slaying victims would not be a service of God now, so the rite of the Nazirites should not be presented now as a service" (Ap XXVII 58).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:3 Wine was associated with joy (cf Ps 104:15), and vows typically involved serious matters.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:4 days of his separation. Specific times are not designated. Some vows were lifelong (Jgs 13:3–5; 1Sm 1:28). However, cf Ac 18:18.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:5 Razors were typically used for cutting hair. Uncut hair created a visual testimony of the vow. Cf Lv 21:1–5; Ezk 27:31. holy. See p 7.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:6–7 Funerals typically involved ritual uncleanness and shaving off the hair as a sign of mourning.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:9 defiles his consecrated head. See note, vv 6–7.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:11 he sinned. Became unclean, even though it was accidental. See "guilt offering," in note, Lv 5:15–16.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:12 previous period shall be void. Vowed period of consecration would have to start over.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:13–15 A full complement of offerings made atonement and ended the vow.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:13 completed. A special sacrifice marked the Nazirite's release from the pledge (vv 14–16).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:20 wave offering. See note, Lv 7:30–35.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:1–21 Nazirite vows are made voluntarily before God. The length of vows can vary, but once a vow is made, God requires fulfillment (v 21). Today, we take vows at important times: Baptisms, confirmations, weddings, citizenship, and government service. When you take a vow, honor the Lord by keeping your word. God, who does not take lightly any vow made to Him, faithfully keeps His vows, including that of Gn 3:15, which promised your salvation in Christ. • Lord God, thank You for Your faithfulness. Help me to keep my word to You and to others. In Christ's name. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:22–27 After introducing new regulations for the camp (chs 1–6), the Lord adds a blessing, showing His gracious favor toward the people. The threefold repetition of the divine name (cf Ps 24:8–10; 113:1; 136:1–3) anticipates the threefold name Jesus uses in Mt 28:19, the basis for the doctrine of the Trinity. See note, Mt 28:19. The first clause in each line of the benediction invokes God's movement to His people; the second clause invokes His activities.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:23 bless the people. See p 842. The priests expressed God's gracious attitude to the Israelites in a formula Aaron used when he "lifted up his hands toward the people and blessed them" (Lv 9:22). The rite in Lv 9 was the consecration of the Aaronic priesthood. The specific occasion for the blessing in Nu 6 is not described. It perhaps concluded the regular services of the tabernacle. Its frequent use is demonstrated by echoes found in Psalms and by an inscription of the blessing on silver amulets found in a burial cave at Ketef Hinnom, Jerusalem (see note, Pr 1:9). Luth: "I believe Christ used something like this when, ascending into heaven, he blessed his disciples [Luke 24:50–51]" (AE 53:30).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:24 keep. Guard and protect.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:25 make His face to shine. The Lord warned Moses that no man could see His face and live (Ex 33:20). When God sets His face against His enemies, they are destroyed or put to flight. But here, God's face beams (see note, Jb 17:7) with gentle kindness so that His people are not harmed but blessed. Through the mercies and promises of the covenant, the people who were terrified by the Lord's presence now begin to see Him for who He is. gracious. Essence of God's character. See p 842.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:26 lift up His countenance. Hbr expression for viewing someone favorably, as a smile turns the corners of the mouth upward. Same Hbr word used for "face" (v 25) and for "countenance." peace. When God's favor lights up His gaze on us, the result is peace, well-being, wholeness. See p 7.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:27 put My name upon the people. More than 20 times since the exodus, Moses recorded the Lord's claim "I am the LORD your God." See note, Dt 1:10. This bond of the covenant-promise, that Israel belongs to God and God to Israel, is made a regular part of the tabernacle services. Israel bears God's name as a mark of His ownership, blessing, and protection.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 6:22–27 The Aaronic benediction is still repeated in Christian worship (e.g., LSB, pp 166, 183, 202, 212, 218). Note that the divine name Yahweh is used three times in reference to the triune nature of God. What a blessing it is to know that God the Father blesses all aspects of our lives, that God the Son has redeemed us poor, miserable sinners, and that God the Holy Spirit calls us by the Gospel. He saves us by His name, applied to us in Holy Baptism (Mt 28:19) and invoked by us throughout our lives. • "I bind unto myself today The strong name of the Trinity By invocation of the same, The Three in One and One in Three." Amen. (LSB 604:1)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:1 finished … the tabernacle. Continues the story of the tabernacle from Lv 8:10–11. Out of gratitude for God's mercy, "the chiefs of the tribes" (v 2) supplied consecrated items. Other gifts "for the dedication of the altar" (v 11) by each tribal representative are recorded in the same connection. The ceremony extended over a period of 12 days.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:2 chiefs. Named in vv 12–83. See p 228.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:3 wagons. Needed to transport the tabernacle.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:5 give them to the Levites. They cared for the tabernacle and transported it. Cf chs 3–4.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:9 The most holy parts were treated/handled distinctly. See note, 4:15.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:10 dedication of the altar. Cf Lv 9.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:11 Offered over 12 days.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:12–83 Gifts are listed individually in the roll call of the various leaders, though the gifts are identical. Repetition emphasizes that all tribes participated equally and that God looks for a response to His goodness from those who receive it (see SC, First Article, p xxxvi). The tribal chiefs present their gifts in the same order as the arrangement of the camp (ch 2).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:84–88 Summary, which again emphasizes the equality of the offerings.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 7:89 Describes how the Lord will speak with Moses now that the tabernacle is complete. It concludes what the Lord "said to Moses" (v 4) and the general introduction to the following series of divine directives, each of which is prefaced by "the LORD spoke" (8:1, 5, 23). above the mercy seat. See note, Ex 25:22.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 7 Each leader of the 12 tribes of Israel presents his offering to God at the tabernacle dedication. Leaders give thanks to God for bringing them out of Egypt to establish His covenant with them. The offerings of Israel commemorate God's favor, which we still enjoy due to the sacrifice of Christ's blood at Calvary (cf 1Co 5:7). • Father, for Your mercy we give You thanks and praise. Grant us generous hearts in offering thanks to You. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:2 in front of the lampstand. Last detail of tabernacle construction; more specific direction provided in Ex 25:31–40. Light was directed toward the table for the bread of the Presence (Ex 25:37). All provisions for the tabernacle's proper use are completed, and Israel is now ready to move.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:4 hammered work. See diagram, p 159.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:1–4 No windows shed light into the Lord's sanctuary, so these lampstands are truly a light shining in the darkness (see diagram, p 139). For the priests serving in the Most Holy Place, the luminescence provides a poignant symbol that true light comes from the Lord alone. Today, we light candles to symbolize the Lord's presence among us through His Word and Sacraments. God's light is Jesus Christ (Jn 1:4), who conquers death and grants eternal life (Rm 6:23b). • Lord of heaven and earth, in the lampstand You provide a precious symbol of Your grace: salvation's true light. Your Word is a lamp to our feet and a light to our path. Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:6 from among the people. Before the Levites began to carry out their assignments (chs 3–4), they were formally inducted into office (vv 5–19). The rites included ceremonial and physical purification (vv 7–8), the transfer of the people's guilt to the Levites and from them to the sacrificial animals (vv 8–12), the dedication of the Levites as a "wave offering" (v 11). cleanse. See p 300.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:7 water of purification. See note, 19:9. razor over all their body. Cleansing from parasites.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:10 lay their hands. People's sins were laid symbolically on the Levites as a substitutionary oblation (cf Lv 3:12–13). Levites in turn laid their hands on the heads of the bulls that were slain "to make atonement" (v 12; see note, Ex 29:10).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:11 wave offering. To perform this ritual, Aaron likely led them to the altar and then drew them back. Cf Lv 8:27.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:12 lay their hands on the heads. See note, v 10. sin offering … burnt offering. See pp 170–71.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:14 separate the Levites. See note, v 6.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:16–19 See notes, 3:9; Ex 4:22; 13:2.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:19 atonement. See p 5.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:20 people of Israel did to them. The Israelites apparently learned to follow the ritual laws, though they continued to offend the Lord in other ways.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:5–22 Israel's sin is transferred to the Levites, who transfer this sin to sacrificial animals. Only by the blood of sacrificial animals are the Levites cleansed of their sin and allowed to serve the priests of the Most High God. "It is the blood that makes atonement by the life" (Lv 17:11). At Calvary, Jesus redeemed all humans from sin (Heb 9:15) as foreshadowed in the OT sacrifices. Rejoice, for Christ's sacrifice sets you free! • "Lamb of God, pure and holy, Who on the cross didst suffer, Ever patient and lowly, Thyself to scorn didst offer. All sins Thou borest for us, Else had despair reigned o'er us: Have mercy on us, O Jesus! O Jesus!" Amen. (LSB 434:1)
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:24 twenty-five years. See note, 4:3. Scholars believe that older Levites taught the men from ages 25 to 30 as apprentices until they learned their tasks.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:25 fifty years they shall withdraw. Retirement, due to the physical labor of caring for and moving the parts of the tabernacle. Priests could serve longer (e.g., Zechariah, Lk 1:5–7).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:26 keeping guard. See note, 3:7–10.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 8:23–26 Our God is a God of order. He gives an age requirement for performing the work in His tabernacle. A Levite could begin service at age 25. Once a Levite reached 50, he could assist younger Levites, but he could no longer do the work required at the tabernacle. Just as the Lord provided the Sabbath for His people's rest, He provided for the Levites' retirement in good health. Today, the Church should show appropriate care for the health of faithful church workers, for the Lord bears the burdens of us all and carries us through life unto life everlasting. • "Entrust your days and burdens To God's most loving hand; He cares for you while ruling The sky, the sea, the land. For He who guides the tempests Along their thund'rous ways Will find for you a pathway And guide you all your days." Amen. (LSB 754:1) NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 9 The census, instructions, and consecrations of chs 1–8 took place over c two weeks in 1446 BC (see chronology, p xcvi). Israel would now observe its second Passover before leaving Sinai.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:1 first month of the second year. Nisan (Apr/May) 1446 BC.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:2 Passover at its appointed time. One who had not kept the Passover was to "be cut off from his people" (v 13). Some Israelites were unclean, thus excluded from participating in the Passover when it was observed on its regular day, the 14th day of the first month. Their dilemma was presented to the Lord (v 8).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:3 twilight. See note, Ex 12:6.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:6 unclean. See note, Lv 11:29–38.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:9–11 The Lord commanded the unclean to observe the Passover two weeks later, thus permitting all Israelites to undertake the journey into the wilderness, which began six days later. This special provision applied also when their descendants in the desert had strayed "on a long journey" (lit, "on a distant way"). However, the basic requirements of the Passover were not changed (vv 11–12).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:10 still keep the Passover. See note, ch 9.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:13 cut off from his people. See note, Ex 12:15. bear his sin. Judged guilty and subject to punishment.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:14 sojourner … native. See note, Ex 12:19.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:1–14 God commands Moses to celebrate Passover anew as a memorial of His great deliverance. All people were to participate, even if they could not observe the event on the same dates. God reveals His grace in the Passover and in the exceptions He allows for its observance. Just as He continually sought the good and unity of Israel, He seeks our good and unity in the services of His precious Word, which describes our creation, redemption, and sanctification as His people through faith in Christ, our Passover Lamb. • Lord, we deserve death because of our sins. Yet Your Son's blood covers our sins and grants eternal life. Unite our hearts in the confession of this faith. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:15 cloud … appearance of fire. See note, v 17. tent of the testimony. See note, Ex 25:16.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:17 set out … camped. The final directive for the departure from Sinai and the journey in the wilderness gave explicit marching orders. The first of these came from God in the form of a cloud that had guided Israel on its way out of Egypt (Ex 13:21–22; 14:19–20). The cloud rested over the tabernacle after its completion, and now its future purpose is explained: to signal the breaking and making of camp (v 15; Ex 40:34–38). This function is here repeated and explained in greater detail because God, by this means, was about to lead His people to the Promised Land. See p 39.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:23 kept the charge of the LORD. Israel showed its trust in God's direction by obeying Him, even when He delayed their journey for a month or longer (vv 17–22; cf Ps 16:11; 27:11; 119:105; 139:3; 142:3).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 9:15–23 At God's directive, the Israelites move away from Mount Sinai. God's providential care is evident. The pillar of cloud/fire symbolizes His gracious hand over His covenant community. Today, God continues to care for His people, sustaining them on the journey of faith through His means of grace. • "Open now the crystal fountain Whence the healing stream doth flow; Let the fiery, cloudy pillar Lead me all my journey through. Strong deliv'rer, strong deliv'rer, Be Thou still my strength and shield; Be Thou still my strength and shield." Amen. (LSB 918:2)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:2 two silver trumpets. Straight metal tubes, different from the curved ram's horn, which is also translated as "trumpet" (Ex 19:16, 19; 20:18; Lv 25:9). See p 993. hammered work. See diagram, p 159. breaking camp. Israel obeyed God's commands in an orderly fashion. Like a large military unit, it was summoned to action by prearranged signals given by two silver trumpets.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:3 all the congregation shall gather. Space for this large gathering must have been reserved east of the tabernacle.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:4 chiefs. See p 228.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:5 alarm. Specified call, perhaps long used in military or community service.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:8–9 Later, when Israel was in its land, trumpets were used in time of war and on days of gladness (cf Lv 25:9; see p 993).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:10 burnt offerings … peace offerings. See pp 170–71. your God. See note, Dt 1:10.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:1–10 Blasts on the silver trumpets signal the time to move, but they also serve the purpose of calling leaders of the entire community to assemble at the tent of meeting. God ordains an Israelite theocracy with Himself as King. In mercy, God leads His people toward the land promised long ago (Gn 12:7). Scripture teaches that a trumpet blast will also signal our call to heaven on the Last Day (1Th 4:16).
• "Today on weary nations The heav'nly manna falls; To holy convocations The silver trumpet calls, Where Gospel light is glowing With pure and radiant beams And living water flowing With soul-refreshing streams." Amen. (LW 203:3)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:11 Ziv (Apr/May) 1445 BC. See calendar, p 262. tabernacle of the testimony. See note, Ex 25:16.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:12 by stages. Israel broke camp from Mount Sinai according to prearranged orders. By recording the sequence of the tribal groups and once more listing the leaders, Moses showed that the people followed God's commands. The next chapters (10:11–21:35) explain why it took 38 more years before Israel arrived in "the plains of Moab" (22:1), opposite the Jordan River. See color map 2. Paran. Wilderness where the tribes settled on signal, after moving in a northeasterly direction. Perhaps a name for the general Sinai Peninsula. The northern reaches of Paran are called the wilderness of Zin (cf 20:1). From there, the borders of the Promised Land could have been reached in a short time.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:13 first time. Departing from Sinai.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:14–28 The order as prearranged. See note, v 12; cf ch 2.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:14 the son of. The father's name was given as we use a surname to help identify families and to distinguish people with the same first name.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:17–28 Levites who carried the structural parts of the tabernacle set out with the first contingent of three tribes. Kohathites, "carrying the holy things" (v 21) and thus constituting "the midst of the camps" (2:17), followed with the next three standards.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:29–32 Reuel. See note, Ex 2:18. Hobab, Midianite brother-in-law of Moses, is called his "father-in-law" in Jgs 4:11. Perhaps Hobab had become the head of his family. Although God was directing the march of the Israelites, they could use help from an experienced man in the ordinary tasks of setting up a camp.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:33 the ark … before them. If taken literally, this sentence would say that the ark of the covenant was carried in advance of the entire marching group, contrary to the general rule that it was to be "in the midst of the camps" (2:17). It is possible that such a deviation from general practice was decreed for the first three days of the journey or for special occasions (cf Jsh 3:6). But the reference to the ark may merely emphasize the fact that the real guide of Israel was not Hobab but the Lord, who dwelled above the mercy seat of the ark. He directed the course of the march through the cloud (v 34).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:34 cloud of the LORD. See note, Ex 13:21.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:35–36 Liturgical responses to the Lord's leadership, expressed as prayers. The community would be more vulnerable during travel, but the Lord was ever vigilant in His care, as Moses confidently expresses.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 10:11–36 The Israelites march to the Promised Land; the ark of the covenant leads the way (v 33). The Lord deals gently with His people by providing constant guidance and sound leadership. Today, pray for your leaders, that the Lord would bless and keep them and guide them in thoughtful service to His people, whom Christ redeemed with His precious blood. • "Arise, O LORD, and let Your enemies be scattered, and let those who hate You flee before You" (v 35). Amen.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:1 complained. Comparatively few incidents along the way are recorded. Almost all are variations of the same theme: Israel complains ("murmurs") and revolts against God's guidance. The story of the chosen people is not an epic of national heroism nor the glorious record of a people willing to suffer hardship for the sake of freedom. their misfortunes. They complained (vv 1–3); wept over the food (vv 4–35); rebelled against Moses (chs 12; 16); "raised a loud cry" (14:1) after hearing the report of the spies (ch 13); disobeyed an express command not to enter Canaan from the south (14:39–45); "quarreled with Moses" because of lack of water (20:2–5); even after reaching Moab, they "spoke against God and against Moses" (21:5). So it had been from the beginning (cf Ex 14:10–12; 15:22–25; 16; 17). And so it is with us. Only because "the steadfast love of the LORD never ceases," because "His mercies … are new every morning" (Lm 3:22–23), do we remain His true children and not turn back to the slavery of self, materialism, and the demonic bondage of evil (Mal 3:6). fire of the LORD. See note, Ex 13:21.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:4–6 In contrast with what the Israelites had experienced in Egypt, the wilderness was a completely different setting with new hardships. The food they had brought from Egypt more than a year earlier was now long gone, leading them to unthankfulness. Luth: "We may know and judge how full the world is nowadays of false preachers and false saints, who fill the ears of the people with preaching good works. There are indeed a few who teach them how to do good works, but the greater part preach human doctrines and works that they themselves have devised and set up…. These men are mere parasites and hirelings; slaves, not sons; aliens, not heirs. They turn themselves into idols, whom God is to love and praise and for whom He is to do the very things they ought to do for Him. They have no spirit, nor is God their Savior. His good gifts are their Savior, and with them God must serve them as their lackey. They are the Children of Israel, who were not content in the desert with eating bread from heaven, but wanted meat, onions, and garlic, too (Num. 11:4–6)" (AE 21:311–12).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:4 rabble. Lit, "the gathered ones," a unique term in Hbr Scripture. Likely non-Israelite slaves who escaped with the Israelites and believed in the Lord because of the miracles and plagues. See note, Ex 12:38.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:5 The Egyptian text "In Praise of the City Ramses" celebrates a similar bounty in a food list. fish. Important source of protein for Egyptians and Israelites. See p 236.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:7–9 Moses illustrates just how fine the Lord's provision was for His people. cakes. See note, Gn 18:6; see also p 236.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:10 The people's discontent led to discontent between the Lord and Moses.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:11 Israel's complaints stretched Moses' patience to the breaking point and caused him to complain, resembling Israel's murmurings and weeping. Because Moses turned to the Lord in his feelings of insufficiency and frustration, his complaint did not degenerate into rebellion.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:12 as a nurse carries a nursing child. Irony. The Lord had provided Moses with his own mother as a nurse (Ex 2:7–9) and had stayed with Moses throughout the recent struggle from Midian to Egypt to Sinai.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:14 Note Jethro's advice to Moses in Ex 18.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:15 Moses reached a new level of distress, different from that experienced earlier. favor. See p 6.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:1–15 The grumbling begins only three days into the journey. Perhaps aching muscles or sore feet cause their discomfort. God provides guidance to the Promised Land and manna to eat on the way; in return for His love, He receives grumbling. Sometimes, obeying God causes pain and suffering. When tempted to grumble, think of Christ at Gethsemane and how He turned His pains into prayers. Meditate on how He willingly submitted to the Father's will for the sake of our salvation (Mt 26:39). • "How sweet the name of Jesus sounds In a believer's ear! It soothes our sorrows, heals our wounds, And drives away our fear. It makes the wounded spirit whole And calms the heart's unrest; 'Tis manna to the hungry soul And to the weary, rest." Amen. (LSB 524:1–2)

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:16 The Lord came to the aid of His weak and distraught servant, giving Moses a twofold solution to his problem. See prayers at Ps 43:2; 142:2. seventy men. Moses' task of administration was lightened by the appointment of 70 elders of Israel who were to "bear the burden of the people" with him (v 17). By a supply of meat, the Lord also removed the immediate cause of Israel's irritating weeping (vv 18–20). whom you know. Trusted men. elders … officers. See note, Ex 3:16. See also p 228. tent of meeting. See note, Ex 27:21.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:17 I will come down. A theophany. See p 39. some of the Spirit. God's Spirit equips the spirits of His servants in various degrees. See p 1815. Moses' assistants were to work in harmony with him in carrying out God's will. They were to be endowed with the same spiritual gifts that Moses possessed in extraordinary measure, but they were not to supplant him as the sole leader of the people. Aph: "God and His Christ, though they are One, yet dwell in men who are many…. When He took away some of the Spirit of Moses, and the seventy men were filled with it, Moses nothing lacked, nor could it be known that anything was taken away from his Spirit" (NPNF 2 13:370). Cyr Jer: "It was not Moses who bestowed the gift, but the Spirit…. He secretly alluded to what was to happen among us on the day of Pentecost; for He Himself came down among us. He had however also come down upon many before" (NPNF 2 7:122).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:18 Consecrate. See p 6.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:20 until it comes out at your nostrils. Humorous hyperbole expressing God's displeasure. See p 1335. rejected the LORD. A serious and somber condemnation. among you. See "be with," p 5.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:23 Is the LORD*'s hand shortened?* See "hand," p 842.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:24 gathered seventy men. Possibly the same men chosen on Jethro's advice (cf Ex 18:21; 24:1).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:25 some of the Spirit. See note, v 17. prophesied … did not continue. The extraordinary manifestation of divine power took place only to validate the authority of the 70 elders. When they left the tent, this miraculous gift was no longer available to them.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:26 remained in the camp. They had not made it to the consecration rite. registered. Implies a written record. See pp 3–5.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:28 from his youth. See note, Ex 17:14. stop them. Joshua feared that Eldad and Medad were assuming authority in competition with Moses (a threat that would arise in ch 16). However, Moses assured him that the Lord gives His Spirit under various conditions for the same purpose (cf Lk 9:49–50).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:29 Moses reiterates his exhaustion due to leadership (vv 11–15). all … prophets. Fulfilled at Pentecost (Ac 2). Even so, the Lord provides His people with leaders (Eph 4:8–16).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:16–30 Earlier, we learned of Moses' helplessness as Israel's leader—one man amid a throng of rebellious people. Mercifully, God grants 70 elders to help Moses. Like Moses, you may at times feel frustration and become angry with the Lord. Thanks be to God, He is "slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness" (Ps 86:15). In His mercy, the Lord provides for you and calls you to repentance and faith through His faithful servants. • Lord, You command us to call upon You in times of trouble, and You promise to deliver us. We thank You for hearing our prayer through Christ, our Lord. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:31 quail from the sea. See note, Ex 16:13. A southeast wind over the gulf brings a large flock of migrating birds into the wilderness. The region is well known as a migration route for African, Asian, and European species. a day's journey. Distance over which the flock spread. two cubits above the ground. C 36 in. Exhausted, they could not flee.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:32 spread them out. Either sharing or drying the meat for preservation.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:33 between their teeth. Bitter irony; they did not enjoy the food they so craved.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 11:31–35 The Israelites greedily hoard the quail, gathering at least 6 bushels per person. They eat some and dry the rest to eat later. Meat replaces God in their minds, just as wealth replaces God in Christ's parable of the rich fool (Lk 12:16–21). As Job noted, "The LORD gave, and the LORD has taken away" (Jb 1:21). In all circumstances, the Lord leads us to confess, "Blessed be the name of the LORD" (Jb 1:21), for He truly does bless us and supply our needs (cf Mt 6:11). • Father, with our daily bread, grant us faithful hearts, ever set on You. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:1 spoke against. Occurred at the next recorded place of encampment, Hazeroth (11:35). for he had married a Cushite woman. Seems to suggest a rather recent event. Moses' sister and brother attacked his leadership, hiding their sinful claim to his position by finding fault with his marriage to a Cushite (Ethiopian) woman. On Moses' family, cf Ex 6:14–26; 18:1–6. The Lord did not forbid the marriage of an Israelite man to a foreign woman (cf Gn 41:45), except in certain cases (Dt 7:1–4).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:2 spoken through us. See notes, Ex 4:15; 15:20.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:3 very meek. Moses did not speak out strongly or move to punish. He was humble before the Lord, who quickly acted to vindicate him. See note, Ps 37:10–11. Moses' faults and virtues are mentioned with equal candor. Here, his humility motivates God's intervention on his behalf. Moses has the final word by recording his own meekness and vindication.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:4 tent of meeting. See note, Ex 27:21.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:5 pillar of cloud. See note, Ex 13:21. stood at the entrance of the tent. See p 39.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:6 prophet … vision … dream. Typical means of revelation in OT. See p 74. Luth: "This diversity of expressions sheds light on the three types of prophecy or the three classes of revelation that are clearly mentioned in Num. 12:6–8.… It is a vision or a form of apparition when God appears to people when they are awake, not as in dreams…. But these visions are usually forms which require explanation…. Dreams are on a level below this" (AE 3:10–11).

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:7 See "faithfulness," p 842. all My house. God speaks as head of Israel, which is His household. See p 54–55.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:8 mouth to mouth. Moses held a unique position. God communicated His will through him more directly and intimately than through any other prophet, including Aaron and "Miriam the prophetess" (Ex 15:20; cf 25:22; Dt 18:15, 18). Moses was even granted to see "the form of the LORD." See note, Ex 33:18. Bas: "Let us listen then to these words of truth written without the help of the 'enticing words of man's wisdom' [1Co 2:4] by the dictation of the Holy Spirit; words destined to produce not the applause of those who hear them, but the salvation of those who are instructed by them" (NPNF 2 8:52).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:10 Aaron was likely not made leprous because that would prevent him from serving as high priest. See note, v 13.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:12 Sorrowful reference to an ill-formed child, who could not survive.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:13 O God, please heal her. Only Miriam was made leprous, perhaps because she was the instigator of the opposition, while Aaron was only the weak-willed accomplice (cf Ex 32:1–6, 21–24); however, see note, v 10. Or, perhaps his full confession of guilt averted the Lord's anger (v 11). Moses' intercession for his offending sister (without a word of recrimination) is a powerful demonstration of his meekness (v 3).
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 12:14 Miriam had offended the Lord Himself, yet He was lenient with her. seven days? Cured of her disease, Miriam was nevertheless required to observe the period of isolation prescribed for the cleansing of lepers.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 12 Moses faces a new rebellion when Miriam and Aaron claim equal status with their younger brother. They learn the danger of challenging God's authority. God's punishment is swift, yet merciful. Our Lord is a Lord of both Law and Gospel, by which He always calls people to repentance and pronounces grace. • Heavenly Lord, curb our rebellious, jealous hearts, and grant us meekness. Look on us with mercy through Christ, our Redeemer. Amen.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON Ch 13 Representatives of the tribes will act as a reconnaissance party and report to the people upon return. The Lord's command that spies be sent was His answer to Israel's request for an exploration of the land.

NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:2 spy out the land. See note, Jsh 2:1. I am giving. See note, Jsh 1:6. chief. See p 228.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:3 from the wilderness of Paran. See color map 3. After their reconnaissance, the spies returned to Kadesh, located in the northern part of a larger area called the wilderness of Paran (see note, 10:12), only 50 mi SW of Beersheba and the southern border of the Promised Land.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:4–15 Similar to the order provided in 1:5–15, but Zebulun is separated from the sons of Leah, and Manasseh is separated from Ephraim. The 12 men chosen to explore Canaan were not the same tribal leaders mentioned in 1:5–15. Only two are mentioned by name: Caleb and Hoshea, the son of Nun.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:11 Joseph … Manasseh. See note, Jsh 12:6.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:16 Hoshea … Joshua. Moses had changed the name from Hoshea (salvation) to Joshua (the LORD is salvation). See notes, Dt 32:44; Jsh 1:1.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:17 Negeb. See note, Jgs 1:9. The spies penetrated as far north as Rehob (v 21), in the vicinity of Hamath, on the Orontes River (cf 2Ki 14:28). This brief summary is followed by a more detailed account of their experiences in one of the areas (vv 22–24). In the Negeb, they were closer to their home base and were able to carry out the assignment to "bring some of the fruit of the land" (v 20). See color map 2.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:20 trees in it. Sign of fruitfulness in contrast with the wilderness. the season. See calendar, p 262.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:21–24 See map, p 60.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:22 Anak. Lit, "necklace." Nothing is known of these people except their reputed great size. Their descendants are called Nephilim (lit, "giants"). See note, Gn 6:4. Hebron. See color map 1.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:23 Eshcol. Valley mentioned only in connection with the spying of the land. The name likely fell out of use. carried it on a pole. Extraordinarily large clusters can weigh as much as 12 lb. The Egyptian story of Sinuhe (c 1960–1928 BC) celebrates the bounty of figs and grapes in Canaan.
NUMBERS—NOTE ON 13:1–24 God permits the spies to enter the Promised Land at the Israelites' request (Dt 1:22). Twelve spies, one from
